If you’re only passing through Mumbai between flights and need to sit out half the night, it’s worth knowing that the Leela Kempinski and Royal Meridien five-stars are both a short, complimentary transfer bus ride from the international terminal at CST. Their a/c restaurants, coffee shops and bars are generally more comfortable places to kill time than the airport, though first-class and business passengers can use the luxurious lounges in T2. There’s also a transit hotel on Level 1 of that terminal.

Each of the four entrances to the simple square main shrine – unusually, it has one on each side – is flanked by a pair of huge fanged dvarapala guardians (only those to the back have survived undamaged), while inside a large lingam is surrounded by coins and smouldering joss left by devotees. Facing the northern wall of the shrine, another panel shows Shiva impaling the demon Andhaka, who wandered around as though blind, symbolizing his spiritual blindness. The panel behind the shrine on the back wall portrays the marriage of Shiva and Parvati, but the cave's outstanding centrepiece is its powerful 6m bust of Trimurti, the three-faced Shiva, whose profile has become almost as familiar to Indians as that of the Taj Mahal.

Elephanta Hill

From Cave 1 you can follow a paved path around the north flank of the hillside past a string of other, unfinished excavations, which exemplify how the caves were originally dug out and carved. If you've the stamina, follow the dirt path that leads from the end of the paved trail beyond these to the summit of Elephanta Hill, a stiff hike of fifteen minutes. At the top you'll be rewarded by an encounter with a couple of rusting Portuguese cannons and a magnificent view back over Mumbai harbour to the distant city beyond.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE UNLESS YOU'RE MUMBAI TRAVELLING BY TRAIN TO OR FROM CHHATRAPATI SHIVAJI TERMINUS (FORMERLY VICTORIA TERMINUS), BE PREPARED FOR A LONG SLOG TO OR FROM THE CENTRE. THE INTERNATIONAL AND DOMESTIC AIRPORTS ARE WAY NORTH OF THE CITY, AND NINETY MINUTES OR MORE BY ROAD FROM THE MAIN HOTEL AREAS, WHILE FROM MUMBAI CENTRAL RAILWAY OR BUS STATION YOU ALSO FACE A LABORIOUS TRIP ACROSS TOWN. THE MUMBAI METRO CONSTRUCTION IS ONGOING, WITH A PLANNED COMPLETION DATE OF 2026. ONCE FINISHED, IT WILL CONNECT THE NORTHERN SUBURBS OF MUMBAI TO THE SOUTHERN TIP OF COLABA. THE BLUE LINE WITH STATIONS AT VERSOVA, ANDHERI AND GHATKOPAR IS UP AND RUNNING.

BY PLANE INTERNATIONAL FLIGHTS MUMBAI'S BUSY INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT, CHHATRAPATI SHIVAJI (30KM NORTH OF DOWNTOWN; ☎022 6685 1010, 🌐CSIA.IN) WAS IMPRESSIVELY REVAMPED IN 2015, AND THE ICONIC T2 (TERMINAL 2) IS (SURPRISINGLY) HOME TO INDIA'S LARGEST PUBLIC ART PROGRAMME. CHECK-IN IS LOCATED IN THE DEPARTURE AREA (LEVEL 4), AND ALL AIRLINES HAVE OFFICES OUTSIDE THE MAIN ENTRANCE.

Taxis While many of the more upmarket hotels send out courtesy coaches or chauffeur-driven cars to pick up and drop off their guests, most people arriving in Mumbai use the prepaid taxi desk in the arrivals hall. Choose from no-frills black and yellow cabs or the a/c Cool Cabs (☎76665 54466, 🌐citycoolcab.in). A prepaid taxi will cost ₹600 (or ₹700 a/c), while a Cool Cab is ₹800–1000 to Colaba. Alternatively, there's a choice of fleet taxis like Meru (☎022 4422 4422, 🌐merucabs.com) or Tab Cab (☎022 6363 6363, 🌐tabcab.in) and app-based services such as Ola (🌐olacabs.com) and Uber (🌐uber.com). There's free wi-fi available for booking cabs online, but the latter also has an information desk in the arrivals hall.

DOMESTIC FLIGHTS

confusingly, internal flights also land at both terminals in Mumbai's international airport (26km to the north of downtown; ☎022 6685 1010, 🌐csia.in). Vistara and Air India are the only airlines that use T2 for domestic routes, all others use Terminal 1.

Transfers If you're transferring directly from Terminal 1 to Terminal 2 for an international flight, take the free “fly-bus” that shuttles every 30min between the two terminals; look for the transfer counter in your transit lounge. Note that you may be required to collect and re-check your baggage.

GETTING TO GOA EASILY THE BEST-VALUE WAY TO TRAVEL THE 500KM FROM MUMBAI TO GOA IS BY PLANE – PRICES OFTEN COMPARE FAVOURABLY WITH THE COST OF THE SAME JOURNEY ON THE KONKAN RAILWAY, WHICH HAS TWO DEPARTURES

DAILY. IF YOU ARE ON A BUDGET OR UNABLE TO PROCURE A FLIGHT OR TRAIN TICKET, THERE ARE SEVERAL OVERNIGHT BUS SERVICES WITH SEMI-SLEEPER OR SLEEPER SEATS.

BY PLANE

Around two dozen flights leave daily from Mumbai's domestic airport for Goa's Dabolim airport (code GOI). Flights are currently operated by Jetlite, IndiGo, SpiceJet, Go Air, and Air India. One-way fares start from around ₹2700; check www.expedia.co.in and www.cleartrip.com for the latest deals, or the websites of the airlines themselves for special offers and promotions.

Demand for seats can be fierce around Diwali and Christmas/New Year, when you're unlikely to get a ticket at short notice. At other times, one or other of the carriers should be able to offer a seat on the day you wish to travel – though perhaps not the lowest fares. If you didn't prebook when you purchased your international ticket, check availability as soon as you arrive.

BY TRAIN

The Konkan Railway line runs daily express trains from Mumbai to Goa. However, these services are not always available at short notice from the booking halls at CST and Churchgate. Don't, whatever you do, be tempted to travel "unreserved" class on any Konkan service, as the journey as far as Ratnagiri (roughly midway) is overwhelmingly crushed. There are a number of convenient overnight services.

Fares range from a bargain-bucket ₹270 for basic second-class seated, to ₹390 for sleeper class, or ₹1530 for two-tier a/c. The priciest first-class tickets cost ₹2795 – roughly what you pay for a low-cost flight off peak.

BY BUS

The Mumbai–Goa bus journey is not as bad as it used to be, thanks to better road conditions, though the journey is still long. Depending on the type of bus you get and the sinuous coastal route, thirteen to fifteen hours is a realistic estimate for the journey time.

Fares start at around ₹840 for a push-back seat on a beaten-up Kadamba (Goan government) and ₹945 on a sleeper. MSRTC a/c coaches cost from ₹540. Tickets for these services are in great demand in season with domestic tourists, so book in advance at Mumbai Central. Quite a few private overnight buses (around a dozen daily) also run to Goa, costing from around ₹750 for no-frills buses up to ₹1500 for swisher a/c Volvo coaches with berths. Tickets are best booked at least a day in advance through the bus company, or online via redbus.in or makemytrip.com. Apart from enabling you to compare services, these websites allow you to check departure and pick-up points, which vary between operators. Few leave from south Mumbai. Among those that do is the largest operator for Goa, Paulo Travels (paulotravels.com), whose recommended sleeper services from Dhobi Talao Junction on Fashion St at 5.15pm and 7.35pm, are the most comfortable buses to catch, costing ₹900 single and taking 15hr. Alternatively, Neeta Tours & Travels starts from the northern suburbs and has a pick-up point at Kalanagar bus stop in Bandra East near the Western Express highway (neetabus.in).

Information and taxis India Tourism and the MTDC both have 24hr information counters in the arrivals hall, and there's a foreign exchange counter and accommodation desk tucked away near the first-floor exit. The official "prepaid" taxi counter on the arrivals concourse charges around ₹600 to Colaba (₹700 for a/c). Alternatives are Cool Cab (☎76665 54466, citycoolcab.in) and Meru (☎022 4422 4422, merucabs.com) or app-based Ola (olacabs.com) and Uber (uber.com). There's free wi-fi available for booking cabs online.

Domestic airlines Air India, Air India Building, Nariman Point (☎1800 180 1407); Air India Express, Air India Building, Nariman Point (☎022 2202 3031); GoAir (☎092232 22111); IndiGo Airlines (☎099103 83838 or ☎1800 180 3838); Vistara, JetLite, Chhatrapati Shivaji International Airport (☎022 6121 1000); SpiceJet (☎096540 03333).

BY TRAIN THREE MAIN RAIL NETWORKS SERVICE MUMBAI:
WESTERN RAILWAYS, COVERING GUJARAT, NORTHERN MADHYA PRADESH AND RAJASTHAN; CENTRAL RAILWAYS,

COVERING MAHARASHTRA AND SOUTHERN MADHYA PRADESH; AND THE KONKAN RAILWAY, RUNNING SOUTH DOWN THE COAST TO GOA AND BEYOND.

CHHATRAPATI SHIVAJI TERMINUS (CST) TRAINS OPERATING BETWEEN MUMBAI AND MOST CENTRAL, SOUTHERN AND EASTERN REGIONS WORK OUT OF CHHATRAPATI SHIVAJI TERMINUS OR CST (FORMERLY VICTORIA TERMINUS, OR VT), THE MAIN RAILWAY STATION AT THE END OF THE CENTRAL RAILWAY LINE. THE STATION LIES A 10- OR 15MIN RIDE TO/FROM COLABA; TAXIS WAIT AT THE BUSY RANK OUTSIDE THE SOUTH EXIT, OPPOSITE THE RESERVATION HALL.

MUMBAI CENTRAL THE TERMINUS FOR WESTERN RAILWAY TRAINS FROM NORTHERN INDIA, MUMBAI CENTRAL, IS A 30MIN RIDE FROM COLABA; ON ARRIVAL, TAKE A TAXI FROM THE FORECOURT, OR FLAG ONE DOWN ON THE MAIN ROAD – IT SHOULD COST AROUND ₹250–300.

OTHER STATIONS SOME TRAINS FROM SOUTH INDIA RUN OUT OF MORE OBSCURE STATIONS: DADAR IS WAY UP IN THE INDUSTRIAL SUBURBS; KURLA, ARRIVAL/DEPARTURE POINT FOR A FEW TRAINS TO/FROM BENGALURU (BANGALORE) AND KERALA, IS EVEN FURTHER OUT, JUST SOUTH OF THE DOMESTIC AIRPORT. FROM EITHER, IT'S WORTH ASKING AT THE STATION WHEN YOU ARRIVE IF THERE IS ANOTHER LONG-DISTANCE TRAIN GOING TO CHURCHGATE OR CST (VICTORIA TERMINUS) SHORTLY AFTER – FAR BETTER THAN TRYING TO CRAM INTO EITHER A SUBURBAN TRAIN OR BUS.

RESERVATIONS THE QUICKEST AND MOST CONVENIENT PLACE FOR FOREIGN NATIONALS TO MAKE RESERVATIONS ON ANY OF THE NETWORKS IS THE EFFICIENT TOURIST COUNTER (#14) ON THE FIRST FLOOR OF THE WESTERN RAILWAY'S BOOKING HALL, NEXT DOOR TO THE GOVERNMENT OF INDIA TOURIST OFFICE ON M KARVE RD, OPPOSITE CHURCHGATE STATION (MON–FRI 8AM–8PM, SAT 8AM–2PM; ☎022 2209 7577). MUMBAI'S OTHER "TOURIST TICKETING FACILITY" IS ON THE GROUND FLOOR (COUNTER #4) OF THE A/C CENTRAL RAILWAY RESERVATION OFFICE AT CST (VT; MON–SAT 8AM–8PM, SUN 8AM–2PM; ☎022 2262 2859). THE OFFICE IS ON THE RIGHT OF THE MAIN STATION ENTRANCE (AS YOU GO IN), JUST OFF THE CONCOURSE WHERE TAXIS PULL UP. IN THEORY YOU MAY BE REQUIRED TO PRODUCE A FOREIGN CURRENCY ENCASHMENT CERTIFICATE OR ATM SLIP TO BUY TICKETS HERE, THOUGH IT'S UNLIKELY TO BE ASKED FOR. TICKETS FOR SEATS ON THE KONKAN RAILWAY CAN BE BOOKED AT EITHER CHURCHGATE OR CST BOOKING HALLS.

RECOMMENDED TRAINS FROM MUMBAI ALL THE FOLLOWING TRAINS RUN DAILY.

Destination	Name	No.	From	Departs	Arrives
Aurangabad	Tapovan Express	#17617	CST	6.15am	1.15pm

Bengaluru (Bangalore)	Udyan Express	#11301	CST	8.10am	7.30am*
Bhuj	Kutch Express	#22955	Bandra	5.45pm	10.00am+
Delhi	Rajdhani Express	#12951	MC	5.00pm	8.15am+
Goa (Margao)	Konkan– Kanya Express	#10111	CST	11.25pm	9.30am+
	Jan Shatabdi	#12051	Dadar	5.25am	1.00pm
	Mangalore Express	#12133	CST	10.00pm	7.00am+
Kochi (Cochin)	Netravati Express	#16345	LTT (Kurla)	11.40am	1.00pm+
Kolhapur	Sahyadri Express	#11023	CST	5.50pm	6.00am+
Lonavala	Udyan Express	#11301	CST	8.05am	10.35am
Nashik	Pushpak Express	#12534	CST	8.20pm	11.50pm
Neral (for Matheran)	Deccan Express	#11007	CST	7.00am	8.30am
Pune	Inrdayani Express	#22105	CST	5.40am	8.40am

*+ = next day

A “SUPER-DENSE” CRUSH THE SUBURBAN RAIL NETWORK IN MUMBAI IS OFFICIALLY THE BUSIEST ON THE PLANET. NO OTHER LINE CARRIES AS MANY PASSENGERS, NOR CRAMS THEM INTO SUCH CONFINED SPACES. AT PEAK TIMES, AS MANY AS 4700 PEOPLE MAY BE JAMMED INTO A NINE-CARRIAGE TRAIN DESIGNED TO CARRY 1700, RESULTING IN WHAT THE RAIL COMPANY, IN TYPICALLY JAUNTY MUMBAI STYLE, REFERS TO AS “SUPER-DENSE CRUSH LOAD” OF FOURTEEN TO SIXTEEN STANDING PASSENGERS PER SQUARE METRE. NOT ALL OF THESE ACTUALLY OCCUPY FLOOR SPACE, ABOUT TEN PERCENT WILL BE DANGLING PRECARIOUSLY OUT OF THE DOORS.

The busiest stretch, a 60km segment between Churchgate terminus and Virar in north Mumbai, transports nearly nine hundred million people each year, the highest of any rail network in the world. Fatalities are all too frequent: on average, six hundred die on the rail network annually (that's more than sixteen deaths per day), usually from falling out of the doors, crossing the tracks or because they're hit by overhead cables while riding on the roof.

BY BUS

Although taxis, working from ranks immediately outside both airports and the train stations, are by far the most convenient form of onward transport, there are a number of bus services.

GOVERNMENT SERVICES NEARLY ALL INTERSTATE BUSES WORK FROM MUMBAI CENTRAL BUS STAND, A STONE'S THROW FROM THE RAILWAY STATION OF THE SAME NAME. GOVERNMENT SERVICES USE THE MAIN MAHARASHTRA STATE ROAD TRANSPORT CORPORATION (MSRTC) STAND ITSELF.

BOOKING COUNTERS AND RESERVATIONS STATES WITH BUS COMPANY BOOKING COUNTERS (DAILY 8AM–8PM) HERE INCLUDE MAHARASHTRA, KARNATAKA AND GOA. FEW OF THEIR SERVICES COMPARE FAVOURABLY WITH TRAIN TRAVEL ON THE SAME ROUTES. RELIABLE TIMETABLE INFORMATION CAN BE DIFFICULT TO OBTAIN, RESERVATIONS ARE NOT AVAILABLE ON STANDARD BUSES, AND MOST LONG-HAUL JOURNEYS ARE GRUELLING OVERNIGHTERS. AMONG THE EXCEPTIONS ARE THE DELUXE BUSES RUN BY MSRTC TO PUNE AND KOLHAPUR; THE SMALL EXTRA COST BUYS YOU MORE LEG ROOM, FEWER STOPS AND THE OPTION OF ADVANCE BOOKING. THE ONLY PROBLEM IS THAT MOST LEAVE FROM THE ASIAD BUS STAND IN DADAR, OR THE MSRTC STAND IN THANE, 30MIN AND 60MIN RESPECTIVELY BY ROAD OR RAIL NORTH OF MUMBAI CENTRAL.

PRIVATE BUSES PRIVATE SERVICES OPERATE FROM THE ROADSIDE NEXT TO MUMBAI CENTRAL RAILWAY STATION, A 2MIN WALK WEST ON THE OPPOSITE SIDE OF BUSY DR AN MARG (LAMINGTON RD). THEY COVER MOST OF THE SAME ROUTES AS GOVERNMENT BUSES AND TEND TO BE FASTER, MORE COMFORTABLE AND EASIER TO BOOK IN ADVANCE – THOUGH AGAIN, LONG-DISTANCE SERVICES INVARIABLY DEPART AT NIGHT. NOTE THAT FARES ON SERVICES TO POPULAR TOURIST DESTINATIONS SUCH AS GOA AND MAHABALESHWAR DOUBLE DURING PEAK SEASON.

TIMETABLES TIMETABLE INFORMATION IS MOST EASILY RESEARCHED ONLINE, VIA WEBSITES SUCH AS www.makemytrip.com, WHICH COMPARE FARES, CLASS OF VEHICLES, JOURNEY DURATIONS, DEPARTURE TIMES AND – CRUCIALLY – DEPARTURE POINTS (SERVICES LEAVE FROM DIFFERENT PLACES AND FOLLOW DIFFERENT ROUTES OUT OF THE CITY).

Destinations The following refers only to MSRTC (government) services. For timetable information for private buses, check www.makemytrip.com or www.redbus.in.

ASIAD Dadar to: Kolhapur (hourly; 10hr); Nashik (hourly; 4–5hr); Pune (every 15min; 4hr).

Mumbai Central to: Aurangabad (3 daily; 10hr); Bengaluru (6 daily; 24hr); Goa (2 daily; 13–16hr); Mahabaleshwar (2 daily; 7hr 30min); Goa (1 daily; 12hr).

BY BOAT THREE COMPANIES – PNP, MALDAR CATAMARANS AND AJANTA – OPERATE BOAT SERVICES FROM THE GATEWAY OF INDIA TO MANDWA JETTY, ON THE FAR SIDE OF MUMBAI HARBOUR, FROM WHERE BUSES SHUTTLE TO NEARBY ALIBAG, TRANSPORT HUB FOR THE ROUTE SOUTHWARDS DOWN THE KONKAN COAST. RANGING FROM COMFORT-ABLE A/C CATAMARANS (₹185) TO BOG-STANDARD LAUNCHES (₹165 UPPER DECK; ₹135 MAIN DECK), THE FERRIES LEAVE ROUGHLY EVERY HOUR; TICKETS SHOULD BE PURCHASED IN ADVANCE FROM THE PNP, AJANTA OR MALDAR COMPANY BOOTHS NEAR THE GATEWAY OF INDIA, ON THE NORTH SIDE OF SHIVAJI MARG, NEXT TO THE MTDC INFORMATION COUNTER.

GETTING AROUND DURING PEAK HOURS IN MUMBAI GRIDLOCK IS THE NORM, AND YOU SHOULD BRACE YOURSELF FOR LONG WAITS AT JUNCTIONS IF YOU TAKE TO

THE ROADS BY TAXI, BUS OR AUTO. LOCAL TRAINS GET THERE FASTER, BUT CAN BE A REAL ENDURANCE TEST EVEN OUTSIDE RUSH HOURS.

TOURS

A number of operators around the Gateway of India offer whistle-stop one-day city “darshan” tours by bus (around ₹175–200 non-a/c, not including admission charges) – an inexpensive but usually very rushed way to cram Mumbai’s tourist highlights into a single day. These trips are pitched primarily at Indian visitors, so expect slow drives past the homes of Bollywood stars and the US$200-billion skyscraper of tycoon Mukesh Ambani, as well as a crossing of the Worli-Bandra Sea Link bridge. There are, however, some more foreigner-friendly alternatives.

The Bombay Heritage Walks 📞98218 87321 🌐
bombayheritagewalks.com. Focusing mainly on period buildings and colonial history around Kala Ghoda and Horniman Circle, the excellent guided walks organized by architects Abha Bahl and Brinda Gaitonde last for 2hr and are offered mainly at weekends, though weekday evening outings can sometimes be arranged, depending on availability. Advance bookings essential. ₹3750 minimum for a group of up to five people.

MTDC Maharashtra Tourism’s 1hr after-dark tours of downtown Mumbai’s illuminated landmarks are on an open-top bus. Tickets bookable at the MTDC kiosk near the Gateway of India, which is also where they leave from. Weekends 7pm & 8.15pm; upper deck ₹180, lower deck ₹60.

Mumbai Magic 🌐mumbaimagic.com. A range of interesting walking and driving tours delving into various aspects of the city, from colonial architecture to Jewish heritage. Two-hour walking tour ₹3000/person.

Reality Tours and Travels 🌐realitytoursandtravel.com. A trip out to the huge Dharavi shantytown. It is important to be mindful when engaging in slum tourism as many slum dwellers find the experience of tourists walking into their home and taking photos extremely humiliating.

World of Bollywood Tours and Travels ☎99305 66780, 🌐 <https://www.facebook.com/WOBIndiaTours>. Several excursions and tours in and around Mumbai including a Dharavi Slum Tour (US$70/person), a Bollywood Tour (US$115/150 for half/full day) and City tour.

BY TRAIN MUMBAI'S LOCAL TRAINS CARRY AN ESTIMATED 7.5 MILLION COMMUTERS EACH DAY BETWEEN DOWNTOWN AND THE SPRAWLING SUBURBS IN THE NORTH – HALF THE ENTIRE PASSENGER CAPACITY OF INDIAN RAILWAYS (SEE BOX BELOW). ONE LINE BEGINS AT CST (VT), RUNNING UP THE EAST SIDE OF THE CITY; THE OTHER LEAVES CHURCHGATE, TRAVELLING VIA MUMBAI CENTRAL AND DADAR TO SANTA CRUZ AND BEYOND. SERVICES DEPART EVERY FEW MINUTES FROM 5AM UNTIL MIDNIGHT, STOPPING AT DOZENS OF SMALL STATIONS. CARRIAGES ARE PACKED FOR MOST OF THE DAY, WITH PASSENGERS DANGLING PRECARIOUSLY OUT OF OPEN DOORS TO ESCAPE THE CRUSH, SO START TO MAKE YOUR WAY TO THE EXIT AT LEAST THREE STOPS BEFORE YOUR DESTINATION. PEAK HOURS (APPROXIMATELY 8.30–10AM & 4–10PM) ARE THE WORST OF ALL. WOMEN ARE marginally BETTER OFF IN THE DEDICATED “LADIES ONLY CARRIAGES”; LOOK FOR THE CROWD OF COLOURFUL SARIS AND SALWAR KAMEEZ GROUPED AT THE END OF THE PLATFORM. TRAVEL DURING NON-PEAK HOURS (11AM–3.30PM) CAN BE COMPARATIVELY EASIER.

METRO

The Mumbai Metro (☎022 3031 0900, 🌐 reliancemumbaimetro.com) connects Versova in the west to Ghatkopar in the east, a 12km elevated network that stops at twelve stations en route, most importantly Andheri, Western Express Highway and Airport Road, close to the inter-national airport and the clutch of hotels around it. The vast network is growing rapidly, with proposed new lines under construction to span an incredible 337km across the city.

BUSES

BEST (☎022 2285 6262 🌐bestundertaking.com) operates a bus network of labyrinthine complexity, covering every part of the city. You can check routes and bus numbers on their website; recognizing bus numbers in the street, however, can be more problematic, as numerals are written in Marathi (although in English on the sides). Avoid rush hours at all costs and aim, wherever possible, for the "Limited" ("Ltd") services, which stop less frequently. Buses hardly come to a standstill at stops, so it's not uncommon to run alongside and jump on; tickets are bought from the conductor on the bus.

TAXIS AND CAR RENTAL WITH RICKSHAWS BANISHED TO THE SUBURBS, MUMBAI'S UBIQUITOUS BLACK-AND-YELLOW TAXIS ARE THE QUICKEST AND MOST CONVENIENT WAY TO NIP AROUND THE CITY CENTRE. IN THEORY, ALL SHOULD HAVE METERS; IN PRACTICE, PARTICULARLY AT NIGHT OR EARLY IN THE MORNING, MANY DRIVERS REFUSE TO USE THEM. IF THIS HAPPENS, EITHER FLAG DOWN ANOTHER OR HAGGLE OUT A FARE. AS A RULE OF THUMB, EXPECT TO BE CHARGED ₹22 FOR THE FIRST 1.5KM AND ₹14.84/KM THEREAFTER, PLUS A SMALL SUM FOR HEAVY LUGGAGE (₹10/ARTICLE). A FIFTY PERCENT SUPPLEMENT IS LEVIED FOR JOURNEYS BETWEEN MIDNIGHT AND 5AM. FOR MORE COMFORT, TRY A COOL CAB (☎022 2216 4466, 🌐CITYCOOLCAB.IN), BLUE TAXIS WITH A/C AND TINTED WINDOWS; RATES ARE AROUND FORTY PERCENT HIGHER THAN IN A NORMAL CAB.

CARS WITH DRIVERS CARS CAN BE RENTED PER 8HR DAY (₹2000–2500 FOR NON-A/C, OR FROM 3000 FOR A/C, DEPENDING ON THE CAR), PLUS ₹300/DAY DRIVER ALLOWANCE IF THE TRIP INVOLVES AN OVERNIGHT STAY (THE DRIVER SLEEPS IN THE CAR). A MINIMUM KILOMETRE RATE APPLIES (USUALLY 250KM), AFTER WHICH THERE IS A CHARGE FOR EVERY ADDITIONAL KILOMETRE COVERED. A RECOMMENDED TRAVEL AGENT WHO CAN ARRANGE CARS AND DRIVERS IN MUMBAI IS KARMIC TRAVELS PVT LTD (☎ 022 2612 4927, 🌐KARMICTRAVELS.COM). FOR CAR HIRE, TRY CARJEE (☎022 2830 1941 OR ☎96193 78898, 🌐CARJEE.COM). THERE ARE APPS LIKE UBER AND OLA THAT ARE CHEAP AND EASY TO USE TO GET AROUND IN MUMBAI.

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE BEST SOURCE OF INFORMATION IN MUMBAI IS THE EXCELLENT INDIA TOURISM (MON–FRI 8.30AM–6PM, SAT 9AM–2PM; ☎022 2207 4333 OR ☎022 2207 4334, ✉INDIATOURISM-MUM@NIC.IN) ON THE GROUND FLOOR OF THE AIR INDIA BUILDING ON NARIMAN POINT, WITH EXCEPTIONALLY HELPFUL STAFF AND LOTS OF FREE MAPS AND BROCHURES. THE MAHARASHTRA STATE TOURISM DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION (MTDC) OFFICE IS IN APEEJAY HOUSE, 4TH FLOOR, 3 DINSHAW VACHHA ROAD (MON–FRI 10AM–5.30PM; ☎022 2204 4040, 🌐MAHARASHTRATOURISM.GOV.IN).

Listings Check out the “Metro” page in the Indian Express or the “Bombay Times” section of the Times of India. Both are available from street vendors around Colaba and downtown.

ACCOMMODATION FINDING ACCOMMODATION AT THE RIGHT PRICE WHEN YOU ARRIVE IN MUMBAI CAN BE A REAL PROBLEM. BUDGET TRAVELLERS, IN PARTICULAR, CAN EXPECT A HARD TIME FINDING DECENT BUT AFFORDABLE ACCOMMODATION. THE BEST LOW-COST PLACES TEND TO FILL UP DAYS OR WEEKS IN ADVANCE, SO YOU SHOULD BOOK WELL AHEAD TO AVOID A STRESSFUL, SWEATY ROOM HUNT. TARIFFS IN MID-RANGE AND UPMARKET PLACES ARE ALSO ESPECIALLY HIGH FOR INDIA. STATE-IMPOSED LUXURY TAX (CURRENTLY TWELVE PERCENT), AND SERVICE CHARGES LEVIED BY THE HOTEL ITSELF FURTHER BUMP UP BILLS; BOTH THESE ADD-ONS ARE INCLUDED IN THE PRICES QUOTED IN THE FOLLOWING REVIEWS. A SHORT RIDE FROM THE RAILWAY STATIONS, COLABA MAKES A HANDY BASE AND IS WHERE THE MAJORITY OF FOREIGN VISITORS HEAD FIRST. THE STREETS AROUND THE GATEWAY OF INDIA ARE CHOCK-FULL OF ACCOMMODATION, AND THE AREA ALSO OFFERS MORE IN THE WAY OF FOOD AND ENTERTAINMENT THAN NEIGHBOURING DISTRICTS. AT THE WESTERN EDGE OF THE DOWNTOWN AREA, SWANKY MARINE DRIVE (OFFICIALLY NETAJI SUBHASH CHANDRA MARG) IS LINED WITH FOUR- AND FIVE-STAR HOTELS TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THE PANORAMIC VIEWS OVER BACK BAY AND THE EASY ACCESS TO THE CITY'S COMMERCIAL HEART.

COLABA AND KALA GHODA, SEE MAPS PAGES 588 AND 590

★Abode First Floor, Lansdowne House, M.B. Marg 🌐 abodeboutiquehotels.com. A rare find in south Mumbai, this thoughtfully decorated, exceptional boutique hotel has delightful rooms ranging from basic (en-suite shower, shared toilet) to superior luxury. All are furnished with Indian antiques and receive a turn-down service including a handwritten note. Brilliant breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Ascot 38 Garden Rd 🌐 ascothotel.com. One of the oldest and most comfortable small hotels in Mumbai, updated with contemporary glass-and-marble designer interiors and spacious modern rooms. Their Deluxe rooms are twice the size of the Superiors. ₹₹₹

Bentleys 17 Oliver Rd 🌐 bentleyshotel.com. Dependable old Parsi-owned favourite in five different colonial tenements, all on leafy backstreets. Rooms are quiet, secure and spacious, if a little worn, though the overall shabbiness isn't compensated for by the rates, which are higher than you'd expect for the level of comfort. Singles ₹₹

Godwin Jasmine Building, 41 Garden Rd 🌐 hotelgodwin.in. Smart three-star with large, international-standard rooms and great views from the rooftop garden restaurant and upper floors (ask for #804, #805 or #806). Not quite in the same league as the nearby (and comparably priced) Ascot but a sound choice nonetheless. ₹₹₹

Gordon House 5 Battery St 🌐 ghhotel.com. Chic designer boutique place behind the Regal cinema. Each floor has a different theme: Scandinavian, Mediterranean and Country, plus there's a Versailles Suite. ₹₹₹

Lawrence 3rd floor, 33 Sri Sai Baba Marg (Rope Walk Lane), off K Dubash Marg, behind TGI's 📞022 2284 3618 or 📞6633 6107. Close to the Jehangir Art Gallery, this is arguably south Mumbai's best rock-bottom choice, with five well-scrubbed doubles (plus two singles and two triples) with fans, and not-so-clean shared shower-toilets. Be warned though, it's a long slog up three floors of filthy wooden steps if the (decrepit) lift isn't working. No wi-fi. Advance booking essential. ₹₹₹

Moti International 10 Best Marg ☎hotelmotiinternational@yahoo.co.in. Quiet and friendly hotel in a characterful old colonial building. Rooms are cosy and clean; most (but not all) have windows. All come with a/c, fridge, TV and complimentary soap and towels. Good value. ₹₹₹

Red Shield Red Shield House, 30 Boram Behram (Mereweather) Rd, near the Taj hotel ☎redshieldhouse_mumbai@iwt.salvationarmy.org. Ultrabasic bunk beds in cramped, stuffy dorms (lockers available), or larger doubles. Rates include a basic breakfast, served in a sociable canteen. Maximum one-week stay. ₹₹

Sea Palace Kerawalla Chambers, 26 PJ Ramchandani Marg (Apollo Bunder) ☎seapalacehotel.net. Best of the three mid-range hotels at the quiet end of the harbour front, although the rooms come as a bit of a disappointment for the price, with old-fashioned decor and worn furnishings. All are a/c but sea views cost extra. Breakfast and light meals are served in the rooftop café. ₹₹₹

Taj Mahal Palace and Tower PJ Ramchandani Marg ☎tajhotels.com. Perhaps India's most famous hotel and the haunt of Mumbai's beau monde, with 560 luxury rooms, shopping arcades, a huge outdoor pool and a good spread of bars and restaurants. The hotel was at the centre of the terrorist attacks of November 2008, but reopened within a month, and has now been restored to its former glory after a US$40-million refit. Prices are considerably more in the Palace than the Tower. ₹₹₹₹

Vivanta By Taj 90 Cuffe Parade ☎tajhotels.com. Modern, business-oriented five-star occupying a seventeen-floor skyscraper just south of Colaba. A much more competitively priced option than its sister concern, the Taj Mahal Palace and Tower, though lacking old-world style and atmosphere. There is a large outdoor pool, three restaurants, a spa and gym and steam room. ₹₹₹₹

MARINE DRIVE, SEE MAPS PAGES 588 AND 595

Ambassador VN Rd ☎ambassadorindia.com. Landmark four-star hotel established in 1930 with smart modern rooms and a choice location close to the sea and cafés. The revolving restaurant on the top floor is unfortunately still closed for renovation but there's also a bar, restaurant and bakery on site. ₹₹₹₹

Astoria Jamshedji Tata Rd 🌐astoriamumbai.com. Smart business hotel in a refurbished 1930s Art Deco building near the Eros cinema. The rooms are nowhere near as ritzy as the lobby but offer good value this close to the centre. ₹₹₹₹

Bentley 3rd floor, Krishna Mahal, Marine Drive 🌐bentleyhotel.in. Not to be confused with Bentley's in Colaba, this small, friendly guesthouse is near the cricket stadium. The nineteen marble-lined a/c rooms are clean and comfortable, though five share shower-toilets. Rates include a continental breakfast. ₹₹₹

Chateau Windsor 5th floor, 86 Veer Nariman Rd 🌐chateauwindsor.com. Impeccably neat and central, with unfailingly polite staff and a selection of attractively renovated rooms – many of them quaintly old-fashioned. Their “penthouse” on the fifth floor is particularly nice, comprising an individual bungalow surrounded by pot plants. Very popular, so reserve well in advance. ₹₹₹₹

Intercontinental 135 Marine Drive 🌐mumbai.intercontinental.com. Ultra-chic boutique hotel whose rooms have huge sea-facing windows and state-of-the-art gadgets. There's a rooftop pool, outdoor dining with sheesha, and the Long & Short restaurant serves great breakfast buffets and brunches, plus the Dome. ₹₹₹₹₹

Marine Plaza 29 Marine Drive 🌐hotelmarineplaza.com. Ritzy but small luxury hotel on the seafront, with the usual five-star facilities and a (pseudo) Art Deco atrium lobby topped by a glass-bottomed rooftop pool. Sea-view rooms cost extra. ₹₹₹₹₹

Oberoi Nariman Point 🌐oberoihotels.com. Enjoying a prime spot overlooking Back Bay, this hotel is traditionally the first choice of business travellers to the city – lacking the heritage character of the Taj Mahal Palace and Tower, but with fine views from its soaring tower and an atmosphere of glittering opulence throughout. It was severely damaged during the 2008 terror attacks, in which 32 staff and guests lost their lives, but has been fully renovated since. ₹₹₹₹₹

Sea Green/Sea Green South 145 Marine Drive 🌐seagreenhotel.com & 145-A Marine Drive 🌐seagreensouth.com. Jointly owned and enduringly popular pair of seafront hotels. Decor is old-fashioned going on shabby, and rates are quite high, although the sweeping bay views from front-facing rooms partly compensate. ₹₹₹₹

Trident Nariman Point Nariman Point 🌐 tridenthotels.com. Sitting next to the Oberoi on Nariman Point, the Trident has equally spectacular views out to the ocean. One of the city's premier business hotels, with full five-star facilities and trimmings, including sea views from its pool and a dreamy spa. ₹₹₹₹

West End 45 New Marine Lines 🌐 westendhotelmumbai.com. A large economy hotel established in 1948 in the heart of South Mumbai with a/c rooms and suites, great Continental, Tandoori and Mughlai food in the Gourmet restaurant, plus a lounge bar. ₹₹₹₹

AROUND CHHATRAPATI SHIVAJI (VICTORIA) TERMINUS, MAP

City Palace 121 City Terrace 🌐 hotelcitypalace.net. Large and popular basic hotel bang opposite the station. The twenty economy rooms are tiny and windowless (almost like in a capsule hotel), but have a/c and are passable as clean. Deluxe rooms higher up the building are larger and have bird's-eye views. ₹₹

Grand 17 Shri SR Marg, Ballard Estate 🌐 <https://www.grandhotels.in>. Characterful British-era three-star near the old docks, almost a century old though nicely refurbished, with well-equipped rooms at competitive rates and a decent restaurant. ₹₹₹

Oasis 276 Shahid Bhagat Singh Marg, near the GPO 🌐 hoteloasisindia.in. Very well placed for CST station, and the best-value budget option in this area: rooms have good beds, clean linen and TVs. It's worth splashing out on a top-floor "deluxe" room as they offer better views. ₹₹

★ Residency Hotel Fort 26 Rustom Sidhwa Marg, off DN Rd 🌐 residencyhotel.com. Great little mid-range hotel, close to the best shopping areas. Its variously priced rooms (all with safe and complimentary breakfast) offer unbeatable value, especially the no-frills "standard" options. Some rooms are cramped and lack external windows, but they're well-furnished and clean, and staff are courteous. Book a fortnight in advance. ₹₹₹

JUHU AND AROUND THE AIRPORTS, MAP

Accord 32 Jawaharlal Nehru Rd, Near Canara Bank, Santa Cruz (East) 🌐 hotelaccordindia.com. If all you want is a simple, inexpensive, clean, secure, attached room for the night within easy reach of the airport, you won't do better than this place. Don't expect a palace: the decor is faded and the location, amid a tangle of busy roads and overpasses, is dreadful; but they get the basics right. The windows are well sound-proofed; staff are courteous; breakfast is included; and there's a 24hr complimentary transfer car to or from the airport, just 15min away. ₹₹

Ginger Teli Gali ☎022 6980 4100; Among the best budget deals in Andheri, off the Western Express Highway, this unpretentious budget hotel is a 9-minute walk from Andheri train station. ₹₹

Hyatt Regency Airport Rd, Andheri (East) 🌐www.hyatt.com. Ancient Hindu precepts on architecture and design were incorporated into this ultra-luxurious five-star, right next to the airport. The results are impressive, with floor-to-ceiling windows and rain showers, plus a spa and fitness centre. ₹₹₹₹

ISKCON Guesthouse Juhu Church Rd, Juhu 🌐iskconmumbai.com (follow the "Guest House" link under "Temple" on the drop-down menu). Idiosyncratic hotel run by the International Society for Krishna Consciousness. Rooms are very large and impeccably clean and comfortable for the price, though certain restrictions apply (no alcohol, meat or caffeine may be consumed on the premises). Forty days' advance booking is recommended. ₹₹

ITC Maratha Sahar Rd, Andheri (East) 🌐itchotels.in. This palatial luxury hotel close to the airport has made an attempt to infuse some Maharashtra character into its decor, and holds a particularly pleasant pool in its central courtyard. Check for early bird offers. ₹₹₹₹

Midland Jawaharlal Nehru Rd, Santa Cruz (East) 🌐midland.hotelsofmumbai.com. Dependable two-star with well-furnished twin-bedded rooms, just a short ride from the airport. It's right in front of the Accord (see above) but not as good value. Breakfast included in the price. ₹₹

The Orchid 70-C Nehru Rd, Vile Parle (East) 🌐orchidhotel.com. Award-winning "Eco-Five-Star", built with organic and recycled materials and using low-toxin paints. Every effort is made to minimize waste of natural resources, with a water-recycling plant and "zero garbage" policy. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

★Soho House 16, Juhu Tara Rd 🌐sohohousemumbai.com. The first Asian outpost of the London-born private members club, Soho House Mumbai has a fantastic location right on Juhu Beach. Rooms are beautiful and modern but homely, with antiques and Indian artworks adding a nice touch. Lovely rooftop pool and bar, the latter with glorious sea views. ₹₹₹

VITS Andheri Kurla Rd, International Airport Zone, Andheri (East) 🌐vitshotels.com. An “Eco-Four-Star at Three-Star prices” is how this environment-friendly hotel describes itself, designed using energy-saving materials and with “green” trimmings such as jute slippers and recycling bins in the rooms. A very comfortable option for the price. ₹₹₹

Waterstones Hotel Sahar, Andheri (East) 🌐waterstoneshotel.com. A boutique hotel just five minutes away from the International Airport. Rooms are modern, clean, and there’s a terrific bar and grill, a “movie lounge”, Olympic-sized pool and a spa. Breakfast and airport transfers included. ₹₹ EATING MUMBAI IS CRAMMED WITH INTERESTING PLACES TO EAT, FROM GLAMOROUS ROOFTOP LOUNGE BARS TO HOLE-IN-THE-WALL KEBAB SHOPS. THE CAFÉS, BARS AND RESTAURANTS OF COLABA ENCOMPASS JUST ABOUT THE FULL GAMUT OF POSSIBILITIES, WHILE A SHORT WALK OR TAXI RIDE NORTH, KALA GHODA AND FORT ARE HOME TO SOME OF THE BEST CAFÉS AND RESTAURANTS IN THE CITY, INCLUDING ITS LAST TRADITIONAL PARSİ DINERS, WHOSE MENUS (AND SOMETIMES DECOR AS WELL) HAVE CHANGED LITTLE IN GENERATIONS. WATCH OUT FOR THE SERVICE CHARGES LEVIED ON YOUR BILL BY SOME OF THE MORE EXPENSIVE PLACES.

COLABA, SEE MAPS PAGES 588 AND 590

All Stir Fry Gordon House Hotel. Cool modern restaurant specializing in build-your-own meals using a selection of fresh veg, meat, fish, noodles and sauces, flash-cooked in a wok in front of you. The wok buffet has unlimited servings, and there’s an extensive dim sum menu too. ₹₹₹

Bademiya Behind the Taj Mahal Palace & Tower on Tulloch Rd 📍 bademiya.com. Legendary Colaba kebab-wala serving delicious flame-grilled chicken, mutton and fish chunks as well as veg alternatives wrapped in paper-thin, piping hot rotis, from benches on the sidewalk. Families from uptown drive here on weekends, eating on their car bonnets, but there are also little tables and chairs if you don't fancy a takeaway. For a sit-down meal, try their restaurant on nearby Navroji F Rd (📞99 6711 4179) or their fine-dining branch near the State Central Library at Horniman Circle (📞022 2265 5657). ₹

Churchill 103 Colaba Causeway. Tiny a/c Parsi diner, with a vast choice of filling, Continental comfort food, from pizza to pasta and burgers – ideal if you've had your fill of spicy food. For dessert or an afternoon treat, check the famous Churchill fridge for freshly baked treats such as gooey chocolate cake or blueberry cheesecake. No alcohol, no washrooms. ₹

STREET FOOD MUMBAI IS RENOWNED FOR DISTINCTIVE STREET FOOD – ESPECIALLY VADA PAV AND BHEL PURI. THE FORMER COULD WELL BE HAILED AS AN INDIAN VEGETARIAN SANDWICH WHERE A DEEP-FRIED POTATO PATTY IS SANDWICHED IN A PAV BUN WITH CHUTNEY. BHEL PURI IS A QUINTESSENTIALLY MUMBAI MASALA MIXTURE OF PUFFED RICE, DEEP-FRIED VERMICELLI, POTATO, CRUNCHY PURI PIECES, CHILLI PASTE, TAMARIND PASTE, CHOPPED ONIONS, TOMATOES AND CORIANDER WITH A SQUEEZE OF LIME. THE UBIQUITOUS DISH LOVED BY MANY IS THE PAV BHAJI, A ROUND PORTUGUESE-STYLE BREAD ROLL SERVED ON A TIN PLATE WITH GRIDDLE-FRIED, SPICY, BUTTERY VEGETABLE STEW. AND IF ALL THAT DOESN'T APPEAL, A PIT-STOP AT ONE OF THE CITY'S HUNDREDS OF JUICE BARS PROBABLY WILL. THERE'S NO BETTER WAY

TO BEAT THE STICKY HEAT THAN WITH A GLASS OF COOL MILK SHAKEN WITH FRESH PINEAPPLE, MANGO, BANANA, CHIKOO (SMALL BROWN FRUIT THAT TASTES LIKE A SWEET PEAR) OR CUSTARD APPLE. JUST MAKE SURE THEY HOLD ON THE ICE – WHICH MAY BE MADE WITH UNTREATED WATER. THERE IS ALSO THE FRANKIE, MUMBAI’S NOD TO A WRAP, MADE WITH A FLAKY ROTI AND FILLED WITH EITHER SCRUMPTIOUS VEGETABLES OR GRILLED MEAT.

Colaba Social 24, B K Boman Behram Marg 📞socialoffline.in. One of Colaba's coolest hangouts, this place is packed with well-to-do students and young Mumbaikars every night of the week. Great pub-style food in a modern, somewhat hipster warehouse setting. Don't miss the Goan influenced calamari cafreal and chicken tikka tacos. Drinks are reasonable too, with Indian wines and craft beers on offer. ₹₹

Indigo Deli Ground Floor, Pheroze Building, Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharishi Marg 📞080974 74373. This much-loved gastro café-restaurant is a stalwart of the south Mumbai scene thanks to its menu of Continental comfort foods and NY deli-style staples – from burgers and hot dogs to thin-crust pizzas and perfect steak frites – served in sleek designer comfort. Pick of the all-day breakfast selection is the chef's special Eggs Benedict (or “Eggs Benny” as it's known here). For dessert, try the organic lime pie or croissant bread pudding with brandy sauce. They serve single origin coffees and teas. ₹₹₹₹

Kailash Parbat 5 First Pasta Rd, just off Colaba Causeway 📞022 2283 1913. Popular little chain restaurant serving build-your-own Punjabi thalis (veg only) and snacks such as pav bhaji and paneer paratha The sweet shop of the same name over the road is the place to go for dessert. ₹

The Konkan Café Vivanta By Taj Hotel, Cuffe Parade 📞022 6665 0808. Sophisticated five-star hotel restaurant, done up in earthy terracotta red and banana-leaf green hues in homage to a Mangalorean home. They serve fine regional cuisine from coastal Maharashtra, Goa, Karnataka and Kerala.

Choose from their thali platters or go à la carte: butter-pepper-garlic crab is to die for. Quite simply some of the most mouth-watering south Indian coastal food you'll ever eat. ₹₹₹₹

Leopold's Colaba Causeway. A Mumbai institution that played a starring role in Gregory David Roberts' Shantaram, Leopold's is the number-one hangout for India-weary Western travellers, who continue to cram onto its small tables for overpriced Indian, Continental and Chinese food. The café was one of the leading targets of the 2008 terror attacks, though its bullet-ridden walls have now been discreetly hidden with pictures. ₹

★Miss T 4 Mandlik Rd, Apollo Bandar 022 2280 1155. Contemporary fine-dining restaurant open for dinner only, serving truly exceptional Southeast Asian food. Soups and salads from snacks/starters from and sharing plates such as soba noodles and tamarind port. Cocktails by the head barman are inventive, with flavours such as peanut butter whiskey and caramelised onion cordial. ₹₹₹₹

Olympia Coffee House Rahim Mansion, Colaba Causeway 022 2202 1043. Fin-de-siècle Irani café with marble tabletops, wooden wall panels, fancy mirrors and a mezzanine floor for women. Waiters in Peshwari caps and salwar kameez serve melt-in-the-mouth kebabs and delicious curd-based dips. It gets crowded at breakfast for cholesterol-packed masala kheema (fried mutton mince), which regulars wash down with bright orange chai. A exemplary (and inexpensive) Bombay experience. ₹

The Sea Lounge Taj Mahal Palace and Tower. Atmospheric 1930s-style lounge café on the first floor of the Taj, with fine Gateway and harbour views – good for high tea or a decadent breakfast ₹₹₹₹

KALA GHODA, MAP

Chetana 34K Dubhash Marg 022 2280 1155 chetana.com. Sumptuous pure-veg thalis (Maharashtrian, Rajasthani or Gujarati, with a healthy low-calorie and filling option at lunchtime; served in a mellow, Indian-style interior (a/c) with booths and traditional art on the walls. You won't find better desi cooking at this price anywhere else in south Mumbai. ₹

Kala Ghoda Café 10 Rope Walk Lane 022 2280 1155 kgcafe.in. This café, with a full restaurant at the back, makes a great little pit-stop if you're visiting the nearby museums. High, whitewashed walls, long skylights and wood benches give a feeling of space even though it's pint-sized. The coffee and teas are first rate, and they do freshly baked light bites, sandwiches saladssoups, waffles and fruit sundaes as well as more filling main meals like pasta after 7.30pm. There's a wine bar right at the back too (see below). Free wi-fi. ₹₹₹

★Khyber 145 MG Rd, opposite Jehangir Art Gallery 📍 khyberrestaurant.com. You enter this romantic Mughlai restaurant through a finely carved, cusp-arched sandstone facade, and the interior is no less enchanting. The cuisine is “Northwest Frontier” style: rich, creamy curries made with sublime blends of spices, and choice cuts of seafood, chicken or mutton kebabs flame-grilled or braised in traditional tava pans. ₹₹₹

The Pantry Yeshwant Chambers, Ground Floor, Military Square Lane 📍022 22007461. A great option for a heat-beating light bite or gourmet brunch: with its cement floors, recycled Burmese hardwood table tops, white walls and dabs of pastel colour, the café has a fresh, airy feel and a varied Continental menu (vegan and gluten free options available) including quiche, vegetable lasagne and pizzas alongside freshly baked pastries. ₹₹₹

Trishna 7 Sai Baba Marg (Ropewalk Lane), Kala Ghoda 📍 <https://www.facebook.com/Trishna-220529934721182>. Visiting dignitaries and local celebs, from the President of Greece to Bollywood stars, have eaten in this dimly lit Mangalorean restaurant. There are wonderful fish dishes in every sauce going, including the signature butter-pepper-garlic crab and superb pomfret stuffed with green masala plus cheaper north Indian standards. Very small, so book in advance. ₹₹₹₹

CHURCHGATE AND FORT, SEE MAPS PAGES 588 AND 595

★Apoorva SA Brelvi Rd 📍022 2287 0335. Popular Mangalorean restaurant, hidden up a side street off Horniman Circle (look for the tree trunk wrapped with fairy lights). The cooking is authentic and the seafood – simmered in spicy coconut-based gravies – comes fresh off the boat each day. Try their definitive Bombay duck, surmai (kingfish) in coconut gravy or delicious prawn gassi, served with perfect sannas. ₹₹

★Britannia & Co Shri SR Marg, Ballard Estate 📍022 2261 5264. Quirky little Parsi restaurant set up in 1923, famous for its quaint period atmosphere and wholesome Irani food, like the mouthwatering berry pulao (chicken, mutton or vegetable), made with deliciously tart dried berries imported from Tehran and the portions are gigantic). For afters, there's the house caramel custard. One of the city's unmissable eating experiences. ₹₹

Ideal Corner 12 F/G Hornby View, Gunbow St ☎022 2262 1930. Another Parsi café with a cult following, dishing up delicious home-made specialities like salli boti (meat curry with potato stick toppings), patra ni machi (fish steamed in banana leaf), lamb or veg dhansak, and exceptional lagan nu custard – a Zoroastrian take on the classic British pud, flavoured with rose water and cardamom. ₹

Mahesh Lunch Home 8-B Cawasji Patel St ☎maheshlunchhome.com. Much like Trishna only a good bit cheaper and less touristy, this Mangalorean diner in the depths of Fort is famous across the city for its flavoursome seafood specialities, especially the Koliwada prawns, pomfret gassi and fish curry, and the jumbo butter-garlic crab, sold by weight. Reservations recommended on weekends. ₹₹-₹₹₹

Pizza By the Bay Soona Mahal, 143 Marine Drive ☎pizzabythebay.in. This bustling, high-end Italian on the corner of VN Rd and Marine Drive does a brisk trade in authentic pasta, pizza and freshly baked treats, as well as European-style breakfasts (7–11am). Reserve ahead for a table next to the window for breezy bay views. Long waits on weekends are the norm, even if you book ₹₹-₹₹₹

★Swati Snacks Dalmal Tower, Free Press Journal Marg ☎swatisnacks.com. The best place to try Mumbai's favourite street foods in a clean and safe environment, Swati Snacks opened its second restaurant at Nariman Point after 50 years in central Mumbai. Their minimalist canteen lets the food do the talking, with superb snacks available only in the city like panki chatni on the menu. The fresh sugarcane juice is addictive. ₹-₹₹

CHOWPATTY, MAP

Bachelorr's Juice House Chowpatty Sea Face, opposite Birla Krida Kendra, near Charni Rd station ☎022 2368 8889. There's no better antidote to the brouhaha of the nearby beach than a "Strawberry Cream" at Bachelorr's – a tall milkshake crammed with whipped cream and pieces of fresh strawberry, which they do in any number of chocolate-based variations. It's hidden under an awning, so look out for the lime piled high on the shelves. Don't miss the green chilli ice cream. ₹

Cream Centre Fulchand Niwas 25/B, Chowpatty Sea Face 022 2367 9222. This immaculately clean, pure-veg fast-food joint facing Chowpatty Beach serves a huge range of Indian snacks, but the best, by far, is their famous channa batura – a frisbee-sized pillow of deep-fried puri, which you poke with your finger to deflate and use to mop up a bowl of creamy masala chickpeas, diced potatoes and onions. ₹

Crystal 19 Chowpatty Sea Face, near Wilson College 022 2369 1482. Lovers of north Indian home-cooking travel here from across the city to eat dhaba-style dhal makhani, alu matar and other spicy vegetarian dishes, served from a soot-blackened kitchen. For dessert, there's divine kheer (cardamom-flavoured rice pudding) and amras (mango pulp). A great little budget option if you're not fazed by the grime. ₹

CRAWFORD MARKET AND THE CENTRAL BAZAARS, MAP

Badshah Juice and Snack Bar Opposite Crawford Market, Lokmanya Tilak Rd 022 2342 1943. Delicious kulfi, and dozens of freshly squeezed fruit juices, though most locals come for the faloodeas – an incomparable, quintessentially Mumbai mix of vermicelli, basil seeds and tapioca pearls steeped in milk, ice cream and rose syrup. The ideal place to round off a trip to the market. ₹

★Joshi Club 381-A Narottamwadi, Kalbadevi Rd 022 2205 8089. Also known as The Friends Union Joshi Club, this eccentric thali canteen serves what many aficionados regard as the most genuine and tasty Gujarati-Marwari meals in the city, on unpromising Formica tables against a backdrop of grubby walls. Expect vegetable dishes, dhal, many different kinds of bread, and banana custard. ₹

THE NORTHERN SUBURBS, MAP

★Dakshin Coastal ITC Maratha, Sahar Rd, near the airport 022 2830 3030. A far cry from your regular Udupi vegetarian joint, Dakshin Coastal showcases the sublime and varied cuisine of the south Indian shore-line. From the sun-dried chillies soaked in buttermilk appetizer to main-course delights such as Keralan-style prawns delicately cooked with raw mango and fresh coconut, everything is packed with intense flavours and exquisitely presented. ₹₹₹₹

★Dum Pukht ITC Maratha, Sahar Rd, near the airport ITC Maratha, Sahar Rd ☎022 2830 3030. One of the few kitchens in India that faithfully re-creates the cuisine of the Muslim nawabs of Hyderabad and Awadh, where chefs developed a technique of slow cooking known as dum. If you've a monster appetite, go for the raan-e-dum pukht – a leg of marinated lamb stuffed with spices, baked in dough and finished with a shell of dried fruit, coconut and oven juices. The decor's as regal as the cooking. ₹₹₹₹

Govinda's ISKCON Hare Krishna Mandir, Juhu Tara Rd, Juhu ☎022 2620 0337. Sumptuous vegetarian thalis of sattvic cooking (no garlic or onions). Everything's been ritually offered to Krishna before being served, guaranteeing what the management describe as a "transcendental dining experience". It's certainly great value for Mumbai and there's often live bhajan singing. ₹₹

Maharaja Bhog Juhu Tara Road, Opposite Juhu Beach ☎022 2661 7722. A superb veg thali restaurant with a menu that changes monthly. You'll be plied with an assortment of twenty different dishes, from breads to veg curries to dessert; don't miss their famous traditional khichdi (rice and lentils cooked in ghee). It's always busy, so get there early to ensure a seat. Thalís and takeaway available. ₹₹

Pali Bhavan 10 Adarsh Nagar, Pali Naka, near Costa Coffee, Bandra (West) ☎022 2651 9400. An aura of Old India hangs over this quirkily styled restaurant up in Bandra, which delights as much for its decor of sepia photos and antique woodwork as its classy pan-Indian cuisine. The huge menu features dishes from across the country, given classy gourmet twists). ₹₹₹₹

DRINKING MUMBAIKARS, LIKE MOST OF INDIA'S URBAN CITIES LIKE DELHI AND BENGALURU, HAVE AN EASY-GOING ATTITUDE TO ALCOHOL; POPPING INTO A BAR FOR A BEER IS VERY MUCH ACCEPTED, EVEN AT LUNCHTIME. COLABA CAUSEWAY IS THE FOCUS OF THE TRAVELLERS' AND LOCAL STUDENTS' SOCIAL SCENE BUT TO SAMPLE THE CUTTING EDGE OF THE CITY'S NIGHTLIFE, YOU'LL HAVE TO VENTURE TO THE SUBURBS, WHERE THE TRENDIEST PLACES HAVE TURNED THE CITY'S DRACONIAN LICENSING LAWS TO THEIR ADVANTAGE BY SERVING GOURMET FOOD TO

COMPLEMENT THE RANGE OF BEERS, WINES AND COCKTAILS. ₹₹₹₹

★AER Four Seasons Hotel, 114 Dr E Moses Rd, Worli 🌐 fourseasons.com; map. With its all-white, Miami Vice-style jigsaw furniture and astounding panoramic views over the city, this alfresco bar on the 34th floor of a luxury skyscraper hotel has become the poster boy of Mumbai's lounge bars, even out-blinging the Dome on Marine Drive (see below). Cocktails go from ₹950 and beers from ₹475. A glass of good Indian bubbly costs ₹900. Cover charges after 10pm, ₹2500/head admission on Fri & Sat.

Bonobo 1 Kennilworth Phase II, 2nd Floor, off Linking Rd, Bandra 📞 022 2605 5050; map. Bonobo hosts live gigs and DJ sets on Fridays and Saturdays in a (tiny) a/c performance space – from drum 'n' bass to dubstep. A balmy rooftop bar soaks up the overspill, and doubles as a gastro diner with delicious dishes like picante prawns and calamari.

★Café Marina Sea Palace Hotel, Kerawalla Chambers, Apollo Bunder, Colaba; map. If lounge-resto isn't your thing, and all you want is a reasonably priced cold beer, and something tasty to munch while savouring an expansive view, this place ticks all the boxes. Overlooking the harbour from a great rooftop vantage point, it offers local and imported bottled beers.

Café Mondegar Colaba Causeway; map. Draught and bottled beer (₹230–380) and deliciously fruity cocktails are served in this small café-bar. The atmosphere is very relaxed, the music on the famous jukebox tends towards cheesy rock classics and the clientele is a mix of Westerners and local students; murals by famous Goan cartoonist Mario Miranda give the place a cheerful ambience. Breakfast menu till 11.30am. Daily 7.30am–12.30am. ₹₹₹

The Dome Hotel InterContinental, 135 Marine Drive 🌐 <https://www.ihg.com/intercontinental/hotels/gb/en/mumbai/bomhb/hotel/detail>; map. This cool rooftop bar is easily south Mumbai's most alluring spot for a sundowner. Plush white sofas and candlelit tables surround the domed rotunda and a very sexy raised pool, while the views over Back Bay make even the sky-high drink prices feel worth it.

Gadda da Vida Novotel Mumbai, Balraj Sahani Marg, Juhu Beach 🌐 novotel.com; map. Beach-front bars are like hens' teeth in Mumbai, but at Gadda da Vida (named after a hit from 1970s prog-rock band Iron Butterfly) you can sip your Caipiroska by the poolside as the sun sets over Juhu's churning waves. House DJs spin electro jazz early on, followed by dance anthems as the place fills up.

Garage Inc Apollo Bandar, Colaba 📞022 2283 9393; map. Low vaulted ceilings with renaissance style murals and red-brick pillars make this a cosy bolthole for a drink. Don't come for a romantic date, though; loud pop music blares from speakers while groups of young Mumbaikars drink bottles of beer or local wines. Burgers and pizza also served.

Havana Gordon House Hotel, Battery St, Colaba; map. The retro Polly Esther's has been revamped into a warm-toned Cuban-style café and bar with wooden railway sleepers and hand-painted signs of Che and Castro, plus a separate cigar room.

The Irish House Phoenix Mills Compound, Senapati Bapat Marg, Lower Parel 🌐theirishhouse.in; map. Rustic wooden decor and booths create the chatty ambience of a typical Irish pub. Fresh draught beer is served out of wooden kegs, and there's an extensive range of bottled beers. Their popular pub grub includes fish 'n' chips and BBQ sandwiches. Happy hours 5–8pm.

Olive 4 Union Park Rd, Pali Hill (between Juhu and Bandra) 🌐olivebarandkitchen.com; map. If you want to rub shoulders with Mumbai's party crowd, the theme bar night on Thursday evening (aka TGIT or Thank God It's Thursday) is your best bet, though dress to kill – and come armed with a full wallet.

Salt Water Café Rose Minar Annexe, 87 Chapel Rd, next to Mount Carmel Church, Bandra (West) 🌐www.facebook.com/SaltWaterCafe; map. This smart all-day diner in swanky Bandra is renowned for its relaxed atmosphere, warm-toned designer decor, gastro food and drink-till-you-drop happy hours. From 11am–4pm on weekdays you can down unlimited quantities of sangria and the Sunday brunch rates are without alcohol.

Todi Mill Social Mathuradas Mill Compound, 242, Lower Parel 🌐socialoffline.in; map. Sister bar to the Colaba Social, this one sits inside a repurposed 1920s loom mill with all recycled furniture and striking black-painted windows set against exposed red brick. There's an impressive drinks menu including cocktails, imported bottled beers Don't miss the Long Island Iced Tea served in a bong Fri & Sat DJs, no cover charge.

Toit Brewery Zeba Centre, Mathuradas Mill Compound, 242, Lower Parel 📍toit.in; map. The Bangalore-based brewery's Mumbai outlet serves its best beers and ales on draught in a large taproom with tables and booths and a convivial atmosphere. Memes and movie posters cover the walls, there's a live band every last Wed of the month and Fri & Sat night sees a DJ play tunes to boozy crowds. The all-you-can-eat-and-drink Sunday brunch is excellent.

Toto's Garage 30 Lourdes Heaven, Pali Junction, Bandra (West) 📞022 2600 5494; map. Neon-lit, garage-themed bar with a VW hanging from its ceiling, belting mostly 80s rock. It's tiny and packed to the gills most of the time with the lads piling in for pitchers of draught beer after work.

Wink Vivanta by Taj, G.D. Somani Rd, 90 Cuffe Parade 📞022 6665 0808; map. This stylish lounge bar a short hop from Colaba is split into two areas, separated by a Japanese gauze screen: a sleek island bar, famous for its Winktini cocktails and a chillout area with brick walls and comfy couches where you can chat and munch on wasabi peas until the DJ cranks up the volume around 11pm. It gets very busy on weekends.

NIGHTLIFE DESPITE A 1.30AM CURFEW (ONLY CLUBS WITHIN HOTELS ARE ALLOWED TO CARRY ON LATER), MUMBAI'S CLUBBING SCENE REMAINS THE MOST FULL-ON IN INDIA. DANCEFLOORS GET AS RAMMED AS A SUBURBAN COMMUTER TRAIN AND THE COVER CHARGES CAN BE ASTRONOMICAL ON WEEKENDS. DOOR POLICIES AND DRESS CODES TEND TO BE STRICT ("NO BALLCAPS, NO SHORTS, NO SANDALS"), AND MANY CLUBS HAVE A "COUPLES-ONLY" POLICY. IN PRACTICE, IF YOU'RE IN A MIXED GROUP AND DON'T APPEAR TO BE TROUBLEMAKERS YOU SHOULDN'T HAVE ANY PROBLEMS.

Drop G1/B, Krystal Building, Waterfield Road, Bandra West 📍facebook.com/DropinMumbai; map. Brushed concrete floors and walls and bright, contemporary furnishings make this one of Mumbai's coolest clubs. The dancefloor fills up by midnight and the place gets pretty crazy by 1am. Resident DJs play popular techno and hip-hop, and there are frequent gigs by guest artists.

★Kitty Su Ground Floor The LaLit Mumbai, Airport Rd, Andheri East 📍kittysu.com; map. Taking shabby chic to a whole new, possibly uncomfortable level, you enter this popular nightclub through a corrugated iron entrance reminiscent of the homes in the nearby Dharavi Slum. Bizarre design choices aside, the club has been a safe space for LGBTQ+ party-goers well before the legalization of gay sex; resident and guest DJs spin techno, dance and pop music for a packed dancefloor throughout the week.

PERFORMING ARTS IN MUMBAI MUMBAI IS A MAJOR CENTRE FOR TRADITIONAL PERFORMING ARTS, ATTRACTING THE FINEST INDIAN CLASSICAL MUSICIANS AND DANCERS FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY. FREQUENT CONCERTS AND RECITALS ARE STAGED AT VENUES SUCH AS BHARATIYA VIDYA BHAVAN, KM MUNSHI MARG (☎022 2363 1261), THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE INTERNATIONAL CULTURAL (HINDU) ORGANIZATION, AND THE NATIONAL CENTRE FOR THE PERFORMING ARTS, NARIMAN POINT (NCPA; 📍NCPAMUMBAI.COM). THE ROYAL OPERA HOUSE (📍ROYALOPERAHOUSE.IN), WITH ITS FABULOUS BAROQUE EDIFICE REOPENED IN 2016 AFTER LYING DORMANT FOR 25 YEARS AND NOW PUTS ON THEATRE, CONCERTS AND ARTS FESTIVALS THROUGHOUT THE YEAR.

For drama, head out to the Prithvi Theatre (☎022 2614 9546, 📍prithvitheatre.org) on Juhu Church Road, a small but lively venue focusing mainly on Hindi-language theatre, along with some English productions.

XXO Level 37, St Regis Hotel, Senapati Bapat Marg, Lower Parel 📍stregismumbai.com; map. Mumbai's hottest nightclub, spread over two floors (Level 37–38 of the swish St Regis, with floor-to-ceiling windows, Osler chandeliers, leather upholstery and foot-tapping house music.

PRODUCED TEXTILES AND EXPORT-SURPLUS CLOTHING ARE AMONG THE BEST BUYS IN THIS BUSTLING METROPOLIS, AS ARE INDIAN-MADE HANDICRAFTS BOUGHT IN FROM FAR-FLUNG CORNERS OF THE COUNTRY. IN THE LARGER SHOPS, RATES ARE FIXED AND CREDIT AND DEBIT CARDS ARE OFTEN ACCEPTED AS ARE LOCAL ONLINE PAYMENTS SUCH AS G-PAY. IN SMALLER SHOPS, HAGGLING IS ACCEPTABLE. UPTOWN, THE CENTRAL BAZAARS ARE BETTER FOR SPECTATING THAN SERIOUS SHOPPING BUT YOU WILL COME ACROSS A FEW INTERESTING BITS.

ANTIQUES BOLLYWOOD BAZAAR MUTTON ST 📍90 7044 0970; MAP. THE CHOR BAZAAR AREA, AND MUTTON STREET IN PARTICULAR, IS THE CENTRE OF MUMBAI'S ANTIQUES TRADE. ONE SHOP THAT'S WORTH THE TRIP ALONE FOR HINDI FILM FANS IS THE WONDERFUL BOLLYWOOD BAZAAR, WHICH SELLS A DELIGHTFUL SELECTION OF OLD MOVIE POSTERS AND MEMORABILIA. THE PRICIEST PIECES ARE AUTHENTIC HAND-PAINTED SPECIMENS DATING FROM THE 1950S, BUT THEY ALSO STOCK PLENTY OF REPRO VERSIONS THAT MAKE GREAT (AND LESS EXPENSIVE) SOUVENIRS TO TAKE BACK HOME.

Phillip's Antiques Madame Cama Rd, opposite Regal Cinema 📍 phillipsantiques.com, Colaba; map. Although much more expensive than Chor Bazaar, this famous antique shop is well worth a browse – even if you're not buying. Brass, bronze and wood Hindu sculptures, silver jewellery, old prints and aquatints form the mainstay of its collection.

CLOTHES AND TEXTILES MUMBAI PRODUCES THE BULK OF INDIA'S CLOTHES, MOSTLY THE LIGHTWEIGHT, LIGHT-COLOURED "SHIRTINGS AND SUITINGS" FAVOURED BY DROVES OF UNIFORMLY ATTIRED OFFICE-WALLAHS. BETTER-QUALITY COTTON CLOTHES (OFTEN STYLISH DESIGNER-LABEL RIP-OFFS) ARE AVAILABLE IN SHOPS ALONG COLABA CAUSEWAY AND MANDLIK MARG (BEHIND THE TAJ MAHAL PALACE AND TOWER). IF THERE'S ONE THING

THAT IS KNOWN AS QUINTESSENTIALLY COLABA BY MANY URBANS INDIANS, IT'S THE KOHLAPURI SLIPPERS AND OSHO SLIPPERS. BOTH ARE ALSO KNOWN AS KOHLAPURI CHAPPALS AND OSHO CHAPPALS.

Osho chappals derive their name from the guru Shree Rajneesh, who was also known as Osho. He was a great philosopher, and these chappals were first found in an ashram owned by him in Pune. The basic style of these chappals included a straw mat which was used to make the flat surface, and two chappal strings made out of faux velvet, rubber, or simple cotton cloth. The bottom surface of the chappals were made out of hard rubber which ensured sturdiness and comfort. Both of these are available in Colaba Causeway.

Fabindia Jeroo Bldg, 137 MG Road, Kala Ghoda 📍fabindia.com; map. It's worth checking out the local branch of the nationwide Fabindia chain, which has an excellent and very affordable selection of stylish modern Indian-style shirts, kurtas, salwar kameez, as well as beautifully made items for the home.

“Fashion Street” MG Rd; map. For cheap Western clothing, you can't beat this long row of stalls strung out along MG Rd between Cross and Azad maidans west of CST, specializing in reject and export-surplus goods ditched by big manufacturers: mainly T-shirts, jeans, summer dresses and sweatshirts.

Khadi shop (signed “Mumbai Khadi Gramodyog Sangh”) 286 Dr D.N. Marg, near the Thomas Cook office ☎022 2261 7641; map. For traditional Indian clothes, look no further than here. As Whiteaway & Laidlaw, this rambling Victorian department store used to kit out all the newly arrived burrasahibs with pith helmets, khaki shorts and quinine tablets. These days, its old wooden counters and shirt and sock drawers stock dozens of different hand-spun cottons and silks, sold by the metre or made up as vests, kurtas or block-printed salwar kameez.

No-Mad Fabric Shop First floor, Mangaldas Market Building, Kitchen Garden Ln 📍no-mad.in; map. Once you've navigated the crush of stalls overflowing with fabrics inside Mangaldas market, you'll be relieved to step into this tiny but beautiful air-conditioned store. There isn't a huge range, but this is the place to buy high-end, trendy block-printed fabrics. You'll get the full fabric shop experience: remove your shoes, take a seat on the mattress, order a chai and let the assistants lay out their wares one by one.

Vaya Tanna House Annexe, Nathalal Parekh Marg 📞022 2202 9115; map. Charming collective of hand-woven and heritage textiles from across India with artisan shawls, saris and fabrics sourced directly from weavers.

LIFESTYLE BOMBAY STORE WESTERN INDIA HOUSE, SIR PM RD, FORT 📞022 2288 5048; MAP. THIS DEPARTMENT STORE IN THE FORT DISTRICT IS A GREAT PLACE TO SHOP FOR SOUVENIRS, WITH VIBRANT DISPLAYS OF TRADITIONAL HANDICRAFTS, TEXTILES, WOODWORK, SILVER-WARE, REPRO VINTAGE PHOTOS AND FUNKY FASHION ACCESSORIES AND DESIGNER ARTEFACTS FROM THE ELEPHANT COMPANY.

Good Earth 2 Reay House, next to Taj Mahal Palace and Tower Hotel 📞022 2202 1030; map. Fine tableware, luxury bed linen, lanterns and exquisite clothes made from traditional Indian fabrics. Prices reflect its proximity to the Taj, but their stock is all original and beautifully displayed.

Nicobar Ropewalk Lane, above Kala Ghoda Café, Kala Ghoda 📞84 4809 5484, 🌐nicobar.com; map. Colourful range of contemporary homewares, such as bowls, glasses and plates, designer clothes and accessories from mostly Indian producers.

HANDICRAFTS REGIONALLY PRODUCED HANDICRAFTS ARE MARKETING IN ASSORTED STATE-RUN EMPORIA AT THE WORLD TRADE CENTRE, DOWN ON CUFFE PARADE, AND ALONG SIR PM RD, FORT. THE QUALITY IS CONSISTENTLY HIGH – AS ARE THE PRICES, IF YOU MISS OUT ON THE PERIODIC HOLIDAY DISCOUNTS. MEREWETHER RD (NOW OFFICIALLY B BEHRAM MARG), BEHIND THE TAJ MAHAL PALACE AND TOWER, IS AWASH WITH KASHMIRI HANDICRAFT STORES STOCKING OVERPRICED PAPIER-MÂCHÉ POTS AND BOWLS, SILVER JEWELLERY, WOOLLEN SHAWLS AND RUGS. AVOID THEM IF YOU FIND IT HARD TO SHRUG OFF AGGRESSIVE SALES PITCHES. MEANWHILE, DOWN AT THE SOUTH END OF COLABA CAUSEWAY, AROUND ARTHUR

BUNDER RD, SHOPS WITH MIRRORED WALLS AND SHELVES ARE STACKED WITH CUT-GLASS CARAFES FULL OF SYRUPY, FRAGRANT ESSENTIAL OILS. INCENSE IS HAWKED IN STICKS, CONES AND SLABS OF STICKY DHOOP ON THE PAVEMENT NEARBY (JUST CHECK THAT THE BOXES HAVEN'T ALREADY BEEN OPENED AND THEIR CONTENTS SOLD OFF PIECEMEAL BEFORE YOU PURCHASE ANYTHING HERE).

Avante Cottage Crafts 12 Oriental Mansion, Wodehouse Rd, Colaba; map. One of the pioneering handicraft retailers in town selling a wide range of metal, wood and stone artefacts, folk paintings and textiles.

BOOKSHOPS CROSSWORD BOOKSTORE MOHAMMED BHAI MANSION, NS PATKAR MARG, KEMP'S CORNER, A 10MIN WALK NORTH OF CHOWPATTY BEACH ☎022 6627 2100; MAP. MUMBAI'S LARGEST RETAILER, IN A/C PREMISES, COMPLETE WITH ITS OWN COFFEE BAR.

BOLLYWOOD REVOLUTION FILM IS MASSIVE IN INDIA.THERE IS ALWAYS A SOARING DEMAND FOR CINEMA IN THE COUNTRY AS IT IS CULTURALLY AN INTEGRAL PART OF LIFE FOR INDIANS ACROSS VARIOUS SOCIO-ECONOMIC STRATA. GOING TO THE MOVIES IS ORDINARILY A WEEKEND HIGHLIGHT FOR MANY AS IT IS AFFORDABLE ENTERTAINMENT. THE COUNTRY PRODUCES AROUND 1200 MOVIES ANNUALLY, A THIRD OF THEM IN THE STUDIOS OF NORTH MUMBAI. KNOWN AS “BOLLYWOOD”, THE HOME OF THE HINDI FILM INDUSTRY HAS EXPERIENCED A SEA CHANGE OVER THE PAST DECADES, AS ITS OUTPUT HAS STARTED TO REACH MASS AUDIENCES OF EXPAT INDIANS IN EUROPE, AUSTRALIA AND NORTH AMERICA. THE RESULTING GLOBAL REVENUES HAVE FINANCED MUCH HIGHER PRODUCTION STANDARDS AND A COMPLETELY NEW APPROACH TO PLOT, ACTING STYLES AND SCRIPTS – RENDERING REDUNDANT THE OLD CINEMATIC STEREOTYPES OF FREQUENT SONG-AND-DANCE WHICH DOMINATED INDIAN FILM FOR DECADES.

Though one or two song-and-dance numbers still very much have their place in the modern Bollywood blockbuster, as does melodrama. But the overall tone these days tends to be much more sophisticated, with glamorous locations, more plausible story lines, cutting-edge camera work and even CGI deployed to wow cinemagoers at home and abroad. Much of it is now developed in-house, helmed by VFX studios like Red Chillies.

Whereas in the past, hit movies tended to incorporate a bit of everything – romance, laughs, fight scenes, chases, lurid baddies, a set of instantly recognizable stock characters and convoluted plots that emphasized traditional values – now the industry is making big bucks from more nuanced genre flicks. Though “commercial” film-makers like Aditya Chopra, Karan Johar and Rohit Shetty continue to churn out tried-and-tested formulaic films, a crop of directors like Vishal Bhardwaj, Dibakar Banerjee and Anurag Kashyap are unafraid to experiment with themes.

Some elements, however, remain consistent. Not even the most serious Indian movie can do without at least two or three “item numbers” – the set-piece song-and-dance sequences that give all hit films their essential anthems. The reason for musical numbers is more of a safety net to gain profit in parallel. Many films though commercial failures have had music that have become instant favourite amongst the masses.

The cult of the Bollywood star shows no sign of abating. A-listers in the industry enjoy almost god-like status (only the country’s top cricketers come close to matching their exalted mass appeal). Images of the current heartthrobs appear everywhere, from newspapers, barbershops to cheesy TV ads.

At the top of the heap stands the veteran, white-bearded éminence grise of Bollywood, Amitabh Bachchan, whose record-breaking career as a screen hero saw a startling revival in the 2000s after he came out of de facto retirement to host India's version of Who Wants To Be A Millionaire, called KBC (Kaun Banega Crorepati). Only a notch behind him comes Shah Rukh Khan, the smouldering lead of countless romantic blockbusters and the man the Los Angeles Times dubbed "the world's biggest movie star" in 2011. SRK as he is fondly abbreviated has great overseas appeal, and the Khan trilogy is completed by Bollywood bad boy Salman Khan and Aamir Khan, the actor-director-producer behind hits such as Lagaan, Taare Zameen Par, Ghajini, 3 Idiots, PK and Dangal. Other leading men of the moment include action stars Akshay Kumar and Ajay Devgan, dancing sensation Hrithik Roshan, Ranveer Singh and talented Ranbir Kapoor who represents the fourth generation of the illustrious Kapoor clan, the Hindi film industry's first family of cinema.

Not surprisingly in such an image-obsessed industry, female leads tend to have a shorter shelf life than their male counterparts, although contemporary starlets such as Priyanka Chopra, Deepika Padukone, Alia Bhatt, Anushka Sharma and Kangna Ranaut are tackling increasingly demanding roles in an attempt to prove themselves as serious actresses.

Even so, their off-screen antics and romantic dalliances continue to capture more attention than their acting skills, as do any public appearance of India's biggest celebrity couple, star actor Abhishek Bachchan (son of Amitabh) and his wife Aishwarya Rai. A former Miss World whose extreme beauty and svelte figure are often credited as spearheading the crossover of Bollywood into Western cinemas, Aishwarya has maintained her great popularity over the decades. The career trajectory of Bollywood actresses has tended to be downwards after marriage (the assumption being that Indian audiences aren't prepared to accept a married woman, or even worse, a mother, as a romantic heroine). But with several other Bollywood queens – Madhuri Dixit Nene, Karisma Kapoor, Rani Mukherjee and Vidya Balan – making comebacks after starting a family, the times may well be changing.

Though the pandemic deeply affected many films on the big screen, some films signed deals with streaming giants like Netflix, Disney and Amazon Prime, releasing exclusive films on these platforms. The storyline of many films has also been changing, tackling issues such as poverty and the lack of basic facilities, religion, domestic abuse and sports biopics. Many actors manage to stay afloat doing remakes, mainly in the Tamil and Malayalam film industries.

Kitab Khana Somaiya Bhavan, MG Rd ☎022 6170 2276; map. Eclectic bookshop in a restored heritage building with high ceilings, polished woodwork and a café.

Trilogy 1 Carter Road, Near Joggers Park ☎teltrilogy.com; map. This hidden gem of a bookstore has all the classic must-reads with an emphasis on travel, feminism, photography, art and wildlife. Along with a library, Trilogy also boasts a heavily curated collection of books with a focus on lesser-known local writers along with coffee table books.

MUSIC AND MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS BHARGAVA'S MUSIK 4/5 IMPERIAL PLAZA, 30TH RD, BANDRA ☎007506238084; MAP. THE CITY'S FOREMOST MUSIC SHOP, UP IN THE NORTHERN SUBURB OF BANDRA, STOCKS EVERY CONCEIVABLE KIND OF INDIAN INSTRUMENT, FROM SITARS AND SARODS TO BAMBOO FLUTES AND SHRUTI BOXES, AS WELL AS WESTERN GUITARS, STRINGS AND DRUMS.

Furtado's Jer Mahal, Dhobitalao ☎furtadosonline.com; map. Mostly Western-style woodwind, brass, keyboard and percussion, with a basic stock of Indian instruments. It's more easily accessible than Bhargava's if you're based in south Mumbai.

SPORTS MUMBAIKARS LIKE THE REST OF THE COUNTRY ARE CRAZY ABOUT CRICKET. FEW OTHER SPECTATOR SPORTS GET MUCH OF A LOOK-IN, ALTHOUGH THE HORSERACING AT MAHALAKSHMI DRAWS LARGE CROWDS ON DERBY DAYS. PREVIEWS OF ALL FORTHCOMING EVENTS ARE POSTED ON THE BACK PAGES OF THE TIMES OF INDIA.

CRICKET CRICKET PROVIDES ALMOST AS MUCH OF A DISTRACTION AS MOVIES IN THE MAHARASHTRIAN CAPITAL, AND YOU'LL SEE GAMES IN PROGRESS

EVERYWHERE, FROM IMPROMPTU SUNSET KNOCKABOUTS ON CHOWPATTY BEACH TO MORE FORMAL CLUB MATCHES IN FULL WHITES AT THE GYMKHANAS LINED UP ALONG MARINE DRIVE. THE INDIAN SEASON RUNS FROM OCTOBER THROUGH FEBRUARY. TICKETS FOR CUP AND TEST MATCHES ARE ALMOST AS HARD TO COME BY, BUT FOREIGN VISITORS CAN SOMETIMES GAIN PREFERENTIAL ACCESS TO QUOTAS THROUGH THE MUMBAI CRICKET ASSOCIATION'S OFFICES ON THE FIRST FLOOR OF WANKHEDE (SEE BELOW; ☎022 2279 5500, 🌐MUMBAICRICKET.COM).

Brabourne Stadium Off Marine Drive. The home of the highly exclusive Indian Cricket Club (membership is by invitation only), history was made in this stadium which has now been side-lined by the newer Wankhede Stadium (see below). Occasional matches are still played here though.

Oval Maidan South Mumbai. This is the place to watch local talent in action, set against a wonderful backdrop of imperial-era buildings. Something of a pecking order applies here: the further from the path cutting across the centre of the park you go, the better the wickets and the classier the games become. Pitches like these are where former India captain Sachin Tendulkar cut his cricketing teeth.

Wankhede Stadium Off Marine Drive. This 45,000-capacity stadium is where major test matches are hosted, amid an atmosphere as intense, raucous and intimidating for visiting teams as any in India.

HORSERACING AND HORSE-RIDING MAHALAKSHMI RACECOURSE NEAR THE MAHALAKSHMI TEMPLE, JUST NORTH OF MALABAR HILL 🌐ARCMUMBAL.COM. THIS IS THE HOME OF THE ROYAL WESTERN INDIA TURF CLUB SERVES AS A PRIME STOMPING GROUND FOR THE CITY'S UPPER CLASSES. RACE MEETS ARE HELD TWICE WEEKLY, ON WEDNESDAYS AND SATURDAYS BETWEEN NOVEMBER AND MARCH, AND BIG DAYS SUCH AS THE 2000 GUINEAS AND DERBY ATTRACT CROWDS OF 25,000. ENTRANCE TO THE PUBLIC GROUND IS BY TICKET ON THE DAY. SEATS FROM THE COLONIAL-ERA STAND, WITH ITS POSH LAWNS AND EXCLUSIVE GALLOPS RESTAURANT ARE, ALAS, ALLOCATED TO

MEMBERS ONLY. RACE CARDS ARE POSTED IN THE SPORTS SECTION OF THE TIMES OF INDIA AND AT RWITCLIVE.COM. ON NON-RACE DAYS, THE MAHALAKSHMI GROUND DOUBLES AS A RIDING TRACK. TEMPORARY MEMBERSHIP OF THE AMATEUR RIDING CLUB OF MUMBAI, ANOTHER BASTION OF ELITE MUMBAI, ENTITLES YOU TO USE THE CLUB'S THOROUGHBREDS FOR CLASSES. FULL DETAILS ON HOW TO DO THIS, ALONG WITH PREVIEWS OF FORTHCOMING CLUB POLO MATCHES, ARE POSTED ON THE WEBSITE.

LAUGHTER YOGA ON THE PRINCIPLE THAT LAUGHTER IS THE BEST MEDICINE, MUMBAI DOCTOR MADAN KATARIA AND HIS WIFE MADHURI – AKA “THE GIGGLING GURUS” – HAVE CREATED A NEW KIND OF THERAPY: HASYA (LAUGHTER) YOGA. THERE ARE NOW MORE THAN THREE HUNDRED LAUGHTER CLUBS IN INDIA AND MANY MORE WORLDWIDE; AROUND FIFTY THOUSAND PEOPLE JOIN THE LAUGHTER DAY CELEBRATIONS IN MUMBAI ON THE FIRST SUNDAY OF MAY EACH YEAR, WITH TENS OF THOUSANDS MORE PARTICIPATING IN SEVENTY COUNTRIES WORLDWIDE.

Fifteen-minute sessions start with adherents doing yogic breathing while chanting “Ho ho ha ha”, which develops into spontaneous “hearty laughter” (raising both hands in the air with the head tilting backwards), “milkshake laughter” (everyone laughs while making a gesture as if they are drinking milkshake), and “swinging laughter” (standing in a circle saying “aeee-oo-eee-uuu”) before the rather fearsome “lion laughter” (extruding the tongue fully with eyes wide open and hands stretched out like claws, and laughing from the tummy). The session then winds up with holding hands and the chanting of slogans (“We are the laughter club member [sic]...Y...E...S!”).

Laughter Clubs take place between 6am and 7am at various venues around the city, including Colaba Woods in Cuffe Parade and Juhu Beach. For the full story, go to www.laughteryoga.org.

DIRECTORY AMBULANCE ☎101 FOR GENERAL EMERGENCIES; BUT YOU'RE NEARLY ALWAYS BETTER OFF TAKING A TAXI.

Banks and exchange There are dozens of ATMs dotted around the city. All the major state banks downtown change foreign currency (Mon–Fri 10.30am–2.30pm, Sat 10.30am–12.30pm); some (eg the Bank of Baroda) also handle credit cards and cash advances. Thomas Cook's big Dr D.N. Marg branch (Mon–Sat 9.30am–6pm; ☎022 4879 5009), between the Khadi shop and Hutatma Chowk, can also arrange money transfers from overseas.

Consulates and high commissions Note that most of India's neighbours, including Bangladesh, Bhutan, Burma, Nepal and Pakistan, only have embassies in New Delhi and/or Kolkata (Calcutta). All of the following are open Mon–Fri only: Australia, Level 10, A Wing, Crescenzo Building, G Block, Plot C 38-39, Bandra Kurla (☎022 6757 4900, www.mumbai.consulate.gov.au); Canada, Indiabulls Finance Centre, 21st Floor, Tower 2, Senapati Bapat Marg, Elphin-stone Rd West (☎022 6749 4444, www.canadainternational.gc.ca); Republic of Ireland, Mafatlal House, 7th Floor, H.T. Parekh Marg, Churchgate (☎022 6635 5635); South Africa, Gandhi Mansion, 20 Altamount Rd (☎022 2351 3725, www.dha.gov.za); United Kingdom, Naman Chambers, C/32 G Block, Bandra Kurla Complex, Bandra East (☎022 6650 2222, www.gov.uk); US, C-49, G-Block, Bandra Kurla Complex, Bandra East (☎022 2672 4000, www.in.usembassy.gov).

Hospitals The best hospital in the centre is the private Bombay Hospital, New Marine Lines (☎022 2206 7676, www.bombayhospital.com), just north of the government tourist office on M Karve Rd. Breach Candy Hospital (☎022 2366 7788, www.breachcandyhospital.org) on Bhulabhai Desai Rd, near the swimming pool, is also recommended by foreign embassies.

Internet A couple of cramped 24hr places (₹40/hr) can be found in Colaba on Nawroji F Marg. If you have your own computer, wi-fi access is available at most of the city's mid- and high-end hotels, as well as at local branches of the Barista coffee shop chain (there's a branch next to the Regal cinema in Colaba).

Libraries Asiatic Society, Shahid Bhagat Singh Marg, Horniman Circle, Ballard Estate (Mon–Sat 10.30am–7pm); British Council (for British newspapers and magazines), A Wing, 1st floor, Mittal Tower, Nariman Point (Tues–Sat 10am–6pm); Bombay Natural History Society, Hornbill House, next to the Chhatrapati Shivaji Museum (bnhs.org; Mon–Fri 9.30am–5.30pm), has an international reputation for the study of wildlife in India. Visitors may obtain temporary membership, which allows them access to the library, natural history collection, occasional talks and the opportunity to join organized walks and field trips.

Pharmacies Causeway Chemist on the Colaba Causeway just beyond the corner of Garden Road, is open until 8.30pm.

Police The main police station in Colaba (☎022 2204 3702) is on the west side of Colaba Causeway, near the crossroads with Best Marg.

Postal services The GPO (Mon–Sat 9am–5pm) is around the corner from CST (VT) station, off Nagar Chowk. The parcel office (10am–4.30pm) is behind the main building on the first floor. Packing-wallahs hang around on the pavement outside. DHL (☎1800 111 345) has twenty offices in Mumbai, including a few along Colaba Causeway and one on Marine Drive.

Travel agents The following travel agents are recommended for booking domestic and international flights, and cars with drivers: Cox and Kings India, 16 Bank St, Fort (☎022 2270 9100); Sita World, 11th Floor, Bajaj Bhavan, Nariman Point (sitatours.com); Thomas Cook, 324 Dr DN Rd, Fort (☎022 6160 3333, thomascook.in); Karmic Travels, B7 Ground Floor, Shivam Apartments Opp Greater Bank, Sant Janabai Road, Vile Parle East (☎022 2612 4927 or 022 2612 4928).

< Back to Mumbai

iStock
TOY TRAIN TO MATHERAN

Maharashtra

Nashik and around

Aurangabad and around

Ellora

Ajanta

Lonar

Jalgaon

Nagpur

Around Nagpur

The Konkan coast

Matheran

Lonavala and around

Pune

Mahabaleshwar and around

Kolhapur

Maharashtra Vast and rugged, the modern state of Maharashtra is the third largest in India, and one of the most visited by foreign tourists, though most people venture no further than its port capital, Mumbai. As soon as you leave the seemingly endless concrete housing projects, industrial works and swamplands of Mumbai, you enter a different world with a different history. Undoubtedly, Maharashtra's greatest treasures are its extraordinary cave temples and monasteries; the finest of all are found near Aurangabad, renamed after the Mughal emperor Aurangzeb and home to the Bibi-ka-Maqbara, dedicated to his wife. The busy commercial city is the obvious base for visits to the Buddhist caves at Ajanta, with their fabulous and still-vibrant murals, and the monolithic temples of Ellora, where the astonishing Hindu Kailash temple was carved in its entirety from one single rock.

Despite Maharashtra's early importance as a centre of Buddhism, Hinduism is very much at the core of the life in the state. Balancing modern industry alongside ancient associations with the Ramayana, the main pilgrimage centre has always been Nashik, a handy place to break journeys en route to Aurangabad. One of the four locations of the Kumbh Mela, the city is always a hive of devotional activity, and lies close to one of India's most sacred Shiva shrines, reached from the village of Trimbak. In the state's far northeastern corner, the city of Nagpur lies close to Sevagram, where Mahatma Gandhi set up his headquarters during the struggle for Independence.

Away from the cities, one of the most characteristic features of the landscape is a plenitude of forts. Rising abruptly a short distance inland from the sea, the Sahyadri Hills – part of the Western Ghats – form a series of huge steps that march up from the narrow coastal strip to the edge of the Deccan plateau. These flat-topped hills could easily be converted into forts where small forces could withstand protracted sieges by large armies. Today, visitors can scale such windswept fortified heights at Pratapgad and Daulatabad (Also known as Devagiri).

During the nineteenth century, the mountains found another use. When the summer proved too much for the British in Bombay, they sought refuge in nearby hill stations, the most popular of which, Mahabaleshwar, now caters for droves of domestic tourists. Matheran, 800m higher, has a special attraction: a rickety miniature train. South of Matheran, a further series of magnificent rock-cut caves clustered around another town, Lonavala, provides the main incentive to break the journey to the modern, cosmopolitan city of Pune, famous for its Osho resort founded by the New Age guru Bhagwan Rajneesh, but most appealing for its atmospheric old town and burgeoning restaurant and bar scene.

To the west, Maharashtra occupies 500km of the Konkan coast on the Arabian Sea, from Gujarat to Goa. The little-explored palm-fringed coast winds back and forth with countless inlets, ridges and valleys; highlights include Murud-Janjira, whose extraordinary fortress was the only one never conquered by the Mughals, and Ganpatipule, the region's chief pilgrimage centre, with kilometres of virtually deserted, palm-fringed beaches. By the time you reach Kolhapur, the main town in the far south of the state, famous for its temple and palace, Mumbai feels a world away.

BEST TIME TO VISIT THE BEST TIME TO VISIT MAHARASHTRA IS BETWEEN OCTOBER AND FEBRUARY, WHEN IT IS TYPICALLY HOT AND DRY (THOUGH THE EASTERN SIDE OF THE STATE MAY GET A FEW SHOWERS). TEMPERATURES RAMP UP FROM MARCH TO MAY, WHEN IT CAN GET UNCOMFORTABLE, AND THUNDERSTORMS ARE NOT UNCOMMON. THE MONSOON GENERALLY HITS IN EARLY JUNE AND LASTS TILL SEPTEMBER, WITH JULY THE WETTEST MONTH; MOST HOTELS IN THE HILL STATION OF MATHERAN CLOSE DURING THIS PERIOD. IT IS ALSO WELL WORTH TRYING TO COINCIDE YOUR VISIT WITH ONE OF THE STATE'S MANY FESTIVALS.

Shutterstock

KAILAS TEMPLE AT THE ELLORA CAVES

Highlights

- ① Nashik Pilgrimage centre and capital of India's nascent wine industry, this city is a fascinating combination of ancient and modern.
- ② Ellora caves A World Heritage Site with breathtaking Hindu, Buddhist and Jain caves carved from solid volcanic rock, as well as the stunning Kailash temple.
- ③ Ajanta caves Hidden in a remote horseshoe-shaped ravine, Ajanta's caves contain the finest surviving gallery of art from any of the world's ancient civilizations.
- ④ Gandhi ashram, Sevagram Learn about the great man's life and beliefs at the last ashram he lived in.
- ⑤ The Konkan coast This stretch of coastline remains relatively unspoilt with several appealing places to stay, including the small port of Murud-Janjira.
- ⑥ Miniature train to Matheran Fantastic views across the Western Ghats are revealed during the switchback train journey up to this former British hill station.
- ⑦ Pune This sophisticated city has an absorbing old town, a riveting museum and some excellent places to eat and drink, plus the Osho ashram.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

Brief history Maharashtra enters recorded history in the second century BC, with the construction of its first Buddhist caves. These lay in peaceful places of great natural beauty and were created with the wealth generated by the nearby caravan trade routes between north and south India.

The region's first Hindu rulers – based in Badami, Karnataka – appeared during the sixth century, and Buddhism was almost entirely supplanted by the twelfth century. Hinduism, in the form of the simple faith of Ramdas, the “Servant of Rama”, provided the philosophical underpinning behind the campaigns of the Maharashtra's greatest warrior, Shivaji (1627–80), who remains a potent symbol for Maharashtrians. The fiercely independent Maratha chieftain united local forces to place insurmountable obstacles in the way of any prospective invader; so effective were their guerrilla tactics that he could even take on the mighty Mughals, who by 1633 had got as far as capturing Daulatabad. By the time he died, in 1680, he had managed to unite the Marathas into a stable and secure state, funded by the plunder gleaned through guerrilla raids as far afield as Andhra Pradesh. In response, Mughal Emperor Aurangzeb moved his court and capital south to the Deccan, first to Bijapur (now Vijayapura) in 1686 and then Golconda in 1687, but still failed to subdue Shivaji's dynasty. Yet by the end of the eighteenth century the power of both had weakened and the British were able to take full control.

FESTIVALS IN MAHARASHTRA MAKAR SANKRANTI (JAN). MARKS THE END OF DAKSHINAYANA (THE SOUTHWARD MOVEMENT OF THE SUN) AND THE START OF UTTARAYAN (THE NORTHWARD MOVEMENT OF THE SUN); KITE-FLYING, BATHING IN SACRED RIVERS AND/OR WITH SESAME OIL, LIGHTING OIL LAMPS TO HONOUR ANCESTORS, AND EXCHANGING SESAME SWEETS ALL FEATURE IN THE FESTIVITIES.

Ratha Saptami (Jan). This festival heralds the start of spring and the harvest, when offerings are made to the sun god, Surya.

Gudhi Padwa (usually March or April). Hindu celebration marking the start of the new year, the day Brahma created the universe. People raise a bright green or yellow flag outside households and kick off festivities by eating a paste made from neem leaves and jaggery that denote the obstacles and opportunities in life.

Narali Purnima/Raksha Bandhan (Aug). The “coconut festival” marks the end of the monsoon, and heralds the start of the fishing season – it is celebrated enthusiastically by communities on the Konkan coast.

Ganesh Chaturthi (Aug/Sept). Dedicated to one of Hinduism’s most popular deities, this ten-day festival finishes with a procession and the immersion of large Ganesh effigies into rivers, water tanks or the sea.

Marabats and Badgyas (Aug/Sept). Celebrated with particular fervour in Nagpur, where effigies personifying evils such as corruption and bribery are taken on a procession and then burned.

Navaratri (Sept/Oct). The “Nine nights” festival dedicated to the worship of Shakti, the mother goddess, and by extension the importance of women generally. A Maharashtrian characteristic of the festival is bondhla, folk dances performed by girls each evening.

Tripuri Purnima (Nov). The most important Shiva festival after Shivratri, Tripuri Purnima marks the god’s victory over the demon Tripurasura. Celebrations include ritual bathing, and in places such as Nashik lit candles are floated on the Godavari River.

Maharashtra claims a crucial role in the development of a nationalist consciousness. The Indian National Union, originally convened in Pune, held a conference in Bombay in 1885; thereafter it was known as the Indian National Congress. This loose congregation of key local figures from around the country changed the face of Indian politics. At first, its aim was limited to establishing a national platform to raise the status of Indians, and it remained loyal to the British. In the long term, of course, it was instrumental in the achievement of Independence 62 years later, with many of the Congress’s factional leaders over the years hailing from Maharashtra.

With Independence, the Bombay Presidency, to which most of Maharashtra belonged, became known as Bombay State. Maharashtra as such was created in 1960 from the state's Marathi-speaking regions. Its manufacturing industries, centred on Mumbai and to a lesser extent cities such as Nagpur, Nashik, Aurangabad, Sholapur and Kolhapur, now account for around fifteen percent of the nation's output. Textiles have long been important – the Deccan soils supplied the world with cotton in the nineteenth century after its main source was interrupted by the American Civil War – but this is now also one of the premier high-tech industry regions, especially along the Mumbai–Pune corridor. The majority of Maharashtra's population of around 116 million are still engaged in agricultural pursuits.

MTDC HOTELS THE MAHARASHTRA TOURISM DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION (MTDC) RUNS A NUMBER OF HOTELS ACROSS THE STATE, OFTEN OCCUPYING SUPERB LOCATIONS – THOUGH STANDARDS ARE VARIABLE – AND IT CAN ALSO ORGANIZE HOMESTAYS AND B&BS. THE MOST USEFUL OF ITS RESORTS ARE LISTED IN THIS CHAPTER AND CAN BE BOOKED EITHER AT MTDC OFFICES OR AT MAHARASHTRATOURISM.GOV.IN.

Nashik and around Lying at the head of the main pass through the Western Ghats, the city of NASHIK (or Nasik) makes an interesting stopover en route to or from Mumbai, 187km southwest. It is one of the four sites of the world's largest religious gathering, the Kumbh Mela, most recently hosting it in 2015 (it won't return until 2027). Even outside festival times, the ghat-lined banks of the River Godavari are always animated.

According to the Ramayana, Nashik is one of the places where Rama (Vishnu in human form), his brother Lakshmana and wife Sita lived during their exile from Ayodhya, and the arch-demon Ravana carried off Sita from here in an aerial chariot to his kingdom, Lanka, in the far south. The scene of such episodes forms the core of the busy pilgrimage circuit – a lively enclave packed with religious specialists, sadhus and street vendors touting puja paraphernalia.

About 55 miles west of Nashik is Shirdi, a prominent Hindu pilgrimage site. It was known as the former home of revered spiritual leader Sai Baba and the temple has a marble statue of him.

However, Nashik has a surprising dearth of historical buildings, and its only real monuments are the rock-cut caves at nearby Pandav Lena. Excavated at the peak of Buddhist achievement on the Deccan, these 2000-year-old cells hark back to the days when, as capital of the powerful Satavahana dynasty, Nashik dominated the all-important trade routes linking the Ganges plains with the ports to the west.

From Nashik, you can make an interesting day-trip to the highly auspicious village of Trimbak, from which a steep climb takes you to Brahmagiri, the source of the Godavari. Somewhat in contrast to its religious importance, Nashik is also the centre of Maharashtra's burgeoning wine region.

Ram Kund Around 1.7km northeast of the Old City Bus Stand
Always buzzing with a carnival atmosphere, the Ram Kund is the reason most people come to Nashik, although this sacred bathing tank can look more like an overcrowded municipal swimming pool than one of India's most ancient holy places.

Among the Ram Kund's more arcane attributes is its capacity to dissolve bones – whence the epithet of Astivilaya Tirth or “Bone Immersion Tank”.

Kala Ram Mandir At the end of the narrow, uphill street opposite the Ram Kund • No fixed opening times • Free The square around the Kala Ram Mandir, that translates to “Black Rama Temple”, is the city's second most important sacred area. Among the well-known episodes from the Ramayana to occur, here was the event that led to Sita's abduction. Ravana's sister Shurpanakha tried to seduce Rama by taking the form of a voluptuous princess. When he rejected her advances, she returned to her true demonic form and tried to attack Sita which is when Lakshmana sliced off the nose. Sita's cave, or Gumph, a tiny grotto known in the Ramayana as Parnakuti (“Smallest Hut”), is just off the square.

The Kala Ram temple itself, at the bottom of the square, houses unusual jet-black deities of Rama, Sita and Lakshmana; these are very popular with visiting pilgrims, as access is free from all caste restrictions. The best time to visit is around sunset, after evening puja, when a crowd, mostly of women, gathers in the courtyard to listen to a traditional storyteller recount tales from the Ramayana and other epics.

Pandav Leni Caves 8km southwest of Nashik • Daily 08.30am-5.30pm • Charge • An auto-rickshaw costs ₹400-450 return, including waiting time A steep fifteen-minute climb up one of the precipitous conical hills that overlook the Mumbai–Agra road is Pandav Leni, a small group of 24 rock-cut caves famous for their well-preserved Pali inscriptions and fine ancient stone sculpture. Cave 18, the only chaitya hall, is one of the earliest, dating from the first century BC, and is notable for its striking facade, while Cave 3, the largest vihara, boasts some superb exterior stonework.

INDIA'S WINE CAPITAL WITH ITS TEMPERATE WINTERS, RICH SOIL AND GENTLY UNDULATING LANDSCAPE, NASHIK'S ARID AND DUSTY HINTERLAND HAS OVER THE PAST TWO DECADES PROVED ITSELF TO BE – INCONGRUOUSLY ENOUGH – IDEAL FOR GROWING WINE GRAPES, AND THE CITY HAS FIRMLY ESTABLISHED ITSELF AT THE CENTRE OF INDIA'S FAST-EXPANDING WINE INDUSTRY. NASHIK IS HOME TO NEARLY THIRTY WINERIES WHICH IS WHY IT IS ALSO WIDELY ACKNOWLEDGED AS INDIA'S WINE CAPITAL. APART FROM SULA, THERE ARE OTHER WINE PRODUCERS SUCH AS CHANDON INDIA AND VALLONNÉ. THE NUTRIENT-RICH SOIL IN NASHIK RANGES FROM METAMORPHIC FORMATIONS TO WELL- DRAINED SANDY VARIATIONS. THE PH OF THE SOILS ARE SLIGHTLY ACIDIC BUT ARE LARGELY NEUTRAL, LEANING WITH A TYPICAL PH OF AROUND 6.8. NOTE THAT MAHARASHTRA HAS ELEVEN “DRY DAYS” WHEN IT IS ILLEGAL TO SELL ALCOHOL (NOT TO CONSUME); CHECK THE LOCAL NEWS CHANNELS SUCH AS TIMES NOW FOR DATES.

TOURS AND TASTINGS GROVER ZAMPA GAT NO.967 / 1026, AT POST SANJEGAON, 32KM SOUTHWEST OF NASHIK 📞8805 000 822, 🌐GROVERZAMPA.IN. BASED IN THE SANJEGAON VALLEY, GROVER ZAMPA IS INDIA'S SECOND-BIGGEST WINE PRODUCER (AFTER SULA), AND OFFERS TOURS AND TASTINGS LASTING 1HR 30MIN–2HR (DAILY 10.30AM, 2.30PM & 4PM; ₹400 FOR THE TOUR, ₹500 FOR THE TOUR AND FIVE TASTINGS, ₹650 FOR THE TOUR AND SEVEN TASTINGS). BOOK IN ADVANCE.

Sula Vineyards 14km west of Nashik 📞0253 220 2424, 🌐 sulawines.com. The best-established producer, enthusiastically supported by Mumbai's urban oenophiles, Sula Vineyards is a slick operation that focuses on sustainability and wouldn't feel out of place in the Napa Valley. It runs 30min tours of its winery (hourly daily 11.30am–6.30pm; ₹150 for the tour, ₹400 for the tour and six tastings), concluding with a tasting session. There's also the Tasting Room wine bar and the Soleil restaurant. In February, the vineyard stages a lively festival, SulaFest (🌐 sulafest.com), featuring live bands, DJs, food and, of course, plenty of wine.

Trimbak Buses leave regularly from Nashik's Old City Bus Stand (every 30min; 45min). To return, you can catch a bus (which run until around 8pm) or one of the shared taxis that wait outside Trimbak Bus Stand. Crouched in the shadow of the Western Ghats, 28km west of Nashik, the village of TRIMBAK – literally “Three-Eyed”, another name for Lord Shiva, in Marathi – marks the spot where one of the four infamous drops of immortality-giving amrita nectar fell to earth from the kumbh vessel during the struggle between Vishnu's vehicle Garuda and the Demons – the mythological origin of the Kumbh Mela.

Trimbakeshwar Mandir Among India's most sacred Shiva centres (it houses one of the twelve holiest Shiva temples, known as jyotirlingas), the Trimbakeshwar Mandir, in the centre of the village, is closed to non-Hindus. Its impressive eighteenth-century shikhara, however, can be glimpsed from the backstreets nearby.

The source of the Godavari Trimbak is also close to the source of one of India's longest and most venerated rivers, the Godavari – the spring can be reached via an ancient trail. The round trip to Brahmagiri, the source of the Godavari, takes between two and three hours. It's a strenuous walk, particularly in the heat, so take enough water and wear comfortable shoes.

From the trailhead at the edge of the village, the way is paved and stepped as far as the first level outcrop, where there are some welcome chai stalls and a small hamlet. Beyond that, either turn left after the last group of huts and follow the dirt trail through the woods to the foot of the rock-cut steps (20min), or continue straight on to the three shrines clinging to the base of the cliff above. The first is dedicated to the goddess Ganga, the second – a cave containing 108 lingams – to Shankar (Shiva), and the third to the sage Gautama Rishi, whose hermitage this once was.

The steps climb 550m above Trimbak to the remains of Anjeri Fort – a site that was, over the years, attacked by the armies of both Shah Jahan and Aurangzeb before it fell into the hands of Shaha-ji Raj, father of the legendary rebel-leader Shivaji. The source itself is another twenty minutes further on, across Brahmagiri Hill, in the otherwise unremarkable Gaumukh (“Mouth of the Cow”) temple. From its rather unimpressive origins, this paltry trickle flows for nearly 1000km east across the entire Deccan to the Bay of Bengal.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE NASHIK AND AROUND NASHIK INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT IS AROUND 5KM SOUTHEAST OF THE CITY AND HAS DAILY FLIGHTS TO/FROM DELHI AND GOA; A TAXI TO/FROM THE CITY CENTRE COSTS AROUND ₹350.

By bus Buses from Mumbai pull in at the Mahamarga Bus Stand, 10min by rickshaw from the city centre, while Aurangabad and Pune buses terminate at the central New City Bus Stand. The Old City Bus Stand is around 500m north along the Old Agra Rd (also known as Swami Vivekanand Rd), and is primarily useful for buses to Trimbak; it’s an easy walk from either stand to several budget hotels and restaurants.

Destinations Aurangabad (every 1–2hr; 4hr–4hr 30min); Mumbai (roughly hourly; 4hr); Pune (every 30min; 4–5hr); Trimbak (every 30min; 45min).

By train Nashik Road is the nearest railway station, 8km southeast of the centre; local buses regularly ply the route into town, and there is no shortage of shared taxis and auto-rickshaws (₹150–250). There’s a ticket booking office (Mon–Sat 8am–8pm, Sun 8am–2pm), near HDFC House, around 1km west of the city bus stands, though it is easier to book online or via a travel agent.

Destinations Agra (3-5 daily; 14hr 25min–20hr 50min); Aurangabad (4–5 daily; 3hr–3hr 40min); Delhi (3–4 daily; 17hr–24hr 30min); Jalgaon (20–23 daily; 2hr 30min–4hr); Mumbai (every 30min–1hr; 2hr 30min–4hr 30min); Nagpur (8–10 daily; 9hr 20min–20hr 15min); Pune (1 daily; 7hr).

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE HELPFUL MTDC TOURIST OFFICE (MON–SAT 10AM–5.30PM; ☎0253 257 0059, 🌐MAHARASHTRATOURISM.GOV.IN) IS AT T1, GOLF CLUB, OLD AGRA RD, MOST EASILY REACHED BY CUTTING ACROSS THE PARK OPPOSITE THE NEW CITY BUS STAND.

Banks and exchange The State Bank of India, between the two city bus stands on Old Agra Rd, changes money.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Most of Nashik's hotels, stretching along the Mumbai–Agra road en route to Pandav Leni, are targeted towards business travellers, though there are a few more budget-friendly exceptions around the Old City Bus Stand chowk.

Gateway 7km southwest on the Mumbai–Agra road 🌐gateway.tajhotels.com. Set amid beautifully landscaped grounds, with a gleaming marble lobby designed in mock-Maratha style, the Gateway is one of the most luxurious places to stay in the area, though rooms are somewhat overpriced. Facilities include a pool, gym, restaurant and bar. ₹₹₹₹

Ginger Satpur MIDC 🌐gingerhotels.com. Nashik outpost of this reliable mid-range chain offering efficient service, comfortable if bland rooms, a small gym and a buffet breakfast. The downside is the location, on a busy road 4km northwest of the Mahamarga Bus Stand. It's much cheaper to book in advance. ₹₹₹

Ibis Nashik Nashik Triambakeshwar, Road, Satpur MIDC Rd 🌐all.accor.com. Solid, centrally located, Ibis though an international brand has a local flair at the Nashik branch. The rooms are modern, there is a fitness centre and the staff are attentive. ₹₹₹

Panchavati 430 Chandak Vadi 🌐panchavatihotels.com. Set mercifully off noisy MG Rd a 15min walk from the New City Bus Stand, this complex has rooms to suit most pockets, all of them clean, attached and good value for money, though overall it's a little worn and institutional. At the bottom of the range is the budget Panchavati Guest House, followed by the mid-range Panchavati Yatri, the slightly smarter Hotel Panchavati and, at the top of the range, the Panchavati Millionaire. ₹₹

GOING DOOLALLY IN THE DAYS OF THE RAJ, SOLDIERS WHO CRACKED UNDER THE STRESSES AND STRAINS OF MILITARY LIFE IN BRITISH INDIA WERE PACKED OFF TO RECUPERATE AT A PSYCHIATRIC HOSPITAL IN THE SMALL MAHARASHTRIAN CANTONMENT TOWN OF DEOLALI, NEAR NASHIK. ITS NAME BECAME SYNONYMOUS WITH MADNESS AND NERVOUS BREAKDOWN; HENCE THE ENGLISH PHRASE “TO GO DOOLALLY”.

The Source and Beyond by Sula Sula Vineyards, 14km west of Nashik www.sulavineyards.com. Each of the super-stylish rooms is named after a grape variety at this tranquil hotel in the grounds of Sula Vineyards. There's also an infinity pool, spa and gym, and you can go hiking or cycling. Prices are generally lower during the week. ₹₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

Nashik's best-value meals are to be had in its traditional thali restaurants, where for less than the price of a beer you can enjoy carefully prepared and tasty vegetable, pulse and lentil dishes, often including such regional specialities as bajra (wholemeal rotis) and bakri (local oatmeal biscuits).

The Grill P17 MIDC Ambad, Agra Road, 253-6692328. One of the Gateways Hotel's excellent in-house restaurants featuring a wide range of marinated vegetarian and meaty grills to accompany some rotis and curries. If that's not tempting enough there's an extensive wine list too. ₹₹₹

Little Italy & Rasa Sula Vineyards, 14km west of Nashik www.sulawines.com. Two excellent restaurants on the Sula vineyard. As you'd expect, the former specialises in pasta, risotto and pizza, while the former focuses on contemporary north Indian cuisine. ₹₹₹

Sadhana Misal Hardev Bagh, Motiwala College Rd 📞93739 37310. Popular budget joint where the local delicacy misal pav is the order of the day: a reviving mix of lentils, veg and beansprouts in a hearty spiced gravy, topped with puffed rice and served with a soft buttered roll. ₹₹

DRINKING

MAP

Ironically, given that the surrounding region is the country's prime wine region, Nashik's religious associations tend to mean that meat and alcohol are less easily available than elsewhere in Maharashtra, but most of the larger hotels have bars (known as "permit rooms") and several of the more expensive restaurants serve beers and spirits too.

Solterra P17 MIDC Ambad, Agra Road 📞253-6692328; A wine bar which takes pride in calling itself "an ode to Nashik's local wines". There is also an elaborate menu featuring world wines, as well as spirits and cocktails.

★Tasting Room Sula Vineyards, 14km west of Nashik 📞0253 223 0575, sulawines.com. This breezy bar looks out over acres of neat rows of vines towards the scenic Gangapur tank. The wine list focuses on Sula's range of whites, reds and rosés (the Merlot-Malbec and the Shiraz are well worth sampling), as well as a small selection from other (mainly New World) producers.

Aurangabad and around Many travellers regard AURANGABAD as little more than a convenient, though largely uninteresting, place in which to kill time on the way to Ellora and Ajanta, yet given a little effort, this city can compensate for its architectural shortcomings. Scattered around its ragged fringes, the remains of fortifications, gateways, domes and minarets – including those of the most ambitious Mughal tomb garden in western India, the Bibi-ka-Maqbara – which one could say is a replica of the Taj Mahal bear witness to an illustrious imperial past; the fascinating crop of rock-cut Buddhist caves, huddled along the flanks of the flat-topped, sandy yellow hills to the north, are remnants of even more ancient occupation.

Modern Aurangabad is one of India's fastest growing commercial and industrial centres, specialising in car, soft drink and beer production. It's an upbeat place, boasting plenty of restaurants, bars and interesting shops in the old city. Easy day-trips include the dramatic fort of Daulatabad, and, just a little further along the Ellora road, the tomb of Emperor Aurangzeb at the Muslim village of Khuldabad.

Brief history The city was founded in the early seventeenth century by Malik Ambar, an ex-Abyssinian slave and prime minister of the independent Muslim kingdom of the Nizam Shahis; many of the mosques and palaces he erected still endure, albeit in ruins.

Aurangabad really rose to prominence, however, towards the end of the seventeenth century, when Aurangzeb decamped here from Delhi. At his behest, the impressive city walls and gates were raised in 1682 to withstand the persistent Maratha attacks that bedevilled his later years. Following his death in 1707, the city was renamed in his honour as it changed hands once again. The new rulers, the Nizams of Hyderabad, staved off the Marathas for the greater part of 250 years, until the city finally merged with Maharashtra in 1956.

The old city The old city, laid out on a grid by Malik Amber in the early seventeenth century, still forms the core of Aurangabad's large bazaar area. It's best approached via Gulmandi Square to the south, along any of several narrow streets lined with colourful shops and stalls. Sections of Aurangzeb's city wall survive, though more impressive is the network of city gates, some of which have been restored to something approaching their former glory.

The Panchakki Panchakki Rd, about 600m northwest of the Central Bus Stand • Daily 7am–8pm • Charge On the left bank of the Kham River is an unusual watermill known as the Panchakki. Water pumped underground from a reservoir in the hills 6km away drives a small grindstone, once used to mill flour, and collects in an attractive fish-filled tank, shaded by a large banyan tree. The Panchakki forms part of the Dargah of Baba Shah Muzaffar, a religious compound built by Aurangzeb as a memorial to his spiritual mentor, a Chishti mystic. The complex makes a lively place to wander around in the early evening with lots of chai shops, antique stores and souvenir shops.

Bibi-ka-Maqbara Around 2.5km north of the city centre • Daily 8am-8pm • Charge • The easiest way to get here is by auto-rickshaw; a round trip encompassing the Bibi-ka-Maqbara and the Aurangabad caves costs ₹400–500

Although it's the most impressive Islamic monument in Maharashtra, Aurangabad's Mughal tomb-garden, the Bibi-ka-Maqbara, has always suffered from comparison with the Taj Mahal, built forty years earlier, of which it's an obvious imitation. Completed in 1678, the mausoleum was dedicated by Prince Azam Shah to the memory of his mother Begum Rabi'a Daurani, Aurangzeb's wife. Lack of resources dogged the 25-year project, and the end result fell far short of expectations. Looking at the mausoleum from beyond the ornamental gardens and redundant fountains in front of it, the truncated minarets and ungainly entrance arch make the Bibi-ka-Maqbara appear ill-proportioned compared with the elegant height and symmetry of the Taj, an impression not enhanced by the abrupt discontinuation of marble after the first 2m – allegedly a cost-saving measure.

An enormous brass-inlaid door – decorated with Persian calligraphy naming the maker, the year of its installation and chief architect – gives access to the archetypal charbagh garden complex. Of the two entrances to the mausoleum itself, one leads to the inner balcony while the second drops through another beautiful door to the vault (visitors may no longer climb the minarets). Inside, an exquisite octagonal lattice-screen of white marble surrounds the raised plinth supporting Rabia Durrani's grave. Like her husband's in nearby Khuldabad, it is "open" as a sign of humility. The unmarked grave beside it is said to be that of the empress's nurse.

Aurangabad caves Around 3.5km north of the city centre • Daily 9am-5pm • Charge • The most practical way of getting to the caves is by auto-rickshaw; a round trip encompassing the Bibi-ka-Maqbara and caves costs around ₹400

Carved out of a steep-sided spur of the Sahyadri Range overlooking the Bibi-ka-Maqbara, Aurangabad's own caves bear no comparison to those in nearby Ellora and Ajanta, but their fine sculpture makes a worthwhile introduction to rock-cut architecture. In addition, the infrequently visited site is peaceful and pleasant in itself, with commanding views over the city and surrounding countryside.

The caves, all Buddhist, consist of two groups, eastern and western (a third group is inaccessible), around 500m apart. The majority were excavated between the fourth and eighth centuries, under the patronage of two successive dynasties: the Vakatakas, who ruled the western Deccan from Nashik, and the Chalukyas, a powerful Mysore (now Mysuru) dynasty who emerged during the sixth century. All except the much earlier Cave 4, which is a chaitya hall, are of the vihara (monastery) type, belonging to the Mahayana school of Buddhism. Cave 3 is the most impressive of the western group, with vivid friezes adorning the pillars in the main chamber. In the eastern group, Cave 6 has some finely carved bodhisattvas, but it's the superb sculpture in Cave 7 that provides the real highlight, including a couple of zaftig representations of Tara and, to the left of the Buddha in the sanctuary, a celebrated frieze showing a dancer in classic pose accompanied by six female musicians.

Daulatabad Dominating the horizon 13km northwest of Aurangabad, the awesome hilltop citadel of DAULATABAD crowns a massive conical volcanic outcrop whose sides have been shaped into a sheer 60m wall of granite. Not least for the panoramic views from the top of the hill, Daulatabad (also known as Devagiri) makes a rewarding pause en route to or from the caves at Ellora, 17km northwest.

Brief history It was the eleventh-century Yadavas who were responsible for scraping away the jagged lower slopes of the mount – originally known as Devagiri (or Deogiri), “Hill of the Gods” – to form its vertical-cliff base, as well as the 15m-deep moat that encircles the upper portion of the citadel. Muslim occupation of Devagiri began in earnest with the arrival in 1327 of Sultan Mohammad-bin-Tughluq, who decreed that his entire court should decamp here from Delhi in an effort to protect the region from foreign invasions. This turned out to be an epic 1150km journey that cost thousands of lives, and ultimately proved futile – within years, drought and famine had forced the beleaguered ruler to return to Delhi. Thereafter, the fortress fell to a succession of different regimes, including Shah Jahan's Mughals in 1633, before it was finally taken by the Marathas midway through the eighteenth century.

The fortress Daily 9am–6pm • Charge

Beyond the formidable sets of outer defences that enclose a series of high-walled courtyards at the foot of the hill, Daulatabad's labyrinthine fortress unfolds around the enormous Chand Minar, or “Victory Tower”, erected in 1435. The Persian blue-and-turquoise tiles that once plastered it in complex geometric patterns have disappeared, but it remains an impressive spectacle, rising from the ruins of the city that once sprawled from its base. The Jama Masjid, back along the main path, is Daulatabad's oldest Islamic monument. Built in 1318, the well-preserved mosque comprises 106 pillars plundered from the Hindu and Jain temples that previously stood on the site. It now functions as a Bharatmata temple, much to the chagrin of local Muslims. Adjoining the mosque, the large stone-lined “Elephant” tank was once a central component in the fort’s extensive water-supply system. Two giant terracotta pipes channelled water from the hills into Devagiri’s legendary fruit and vegetable gardens.

From the Chand Minar, the main walkway continues through another set of bastions and fortified walls before emerging close to the Chini Mahal, or “Chinese Palace”. The impressive Mendha Tope (“Ram-headed Cannon”), inscribed in Persian, rests on a squat stone tower just above. From here onwards, a sequence of macabre traps lay in wait for the unwary intruder. First, a moat infested with crocodiles (now spanned by an iron bridge) had to be crossed to reach the main citadel. Next the attackers would have had to clamber through a maze of claustrophobic, zigzagging passageways, the last of which was closed with an iron cover that could be heated to generate toxic gases.

From the final tunnel, it’s a fairly steep ten-minute climb up a broad flight of steps to the Baradari, an attractive octagonal pavilion used by Shah Jahan during his visits to Daulatabad. The views from the flat roof of the building are superb, but an even more impressive panorama is to be had from the look-out post perched on the summit of the hill, marked with another grand cannon.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS/TAXI DAULATABAD
ALTHOUGH DAULATABAD FEATURES ON THE GUIDED TOURS OF ELLORA FROM AURANGABAD, YOU’LL HAVE MORE TIME TO ENJOY IT BY TRAVELLING HERE ON ONE OF THE BUSES (EVERY 30MIN; 30MIN) THAT SHUTTLE BETWEEN AURANGABAD AND THE CAVES. FROM DAULATABAD, IT IS EASY TO CATCH ANOTHER BUS OR SHARED TAXI ON TO KHULDABAD AND ELLORA; THE STOP IS OPPOSITE THE MAIN ENTRANCE TO THE FORT.

Visiting independently If you’re not on a tour, try to arrive early as the place is often overrun, and bring a torch as some of the passages in the fort are pitch-black and hopelessly confusing – one reason why you might also consider hiring a guide (around ₹500).

Khuldabad 22km north of Aurangabad • Tombs sunrise–10pm
• Free, but small tips and donations are expected • Buses run every 30min between Aurangabad and Ellora, stopping en route at Khuldabad’s small bus stand (30min from Aurangabad, 10min from Ellora), a 10min walk from the tombs Nestled on a saddle of high ground, KHULDABAD, also known as Rauza, is an old walled town famous for a wonderful crop of onion-domed tombs. Among the Muslim notables deemed worthy of a patch of earth in this most hallowed of burial grounds (“Khuldabad” means “Heavenly Abode”) were the Emperor Aurangzeb himself, who raised the town’s granite battlements and seven fortified gateways, a couple of nizams, and a fair few of the town’s Chishti founding fathers.

Aurangzeb’s tomb lies inside a whitewashed dargah, midway between the North and South gates. The grave itself is a humble affair decorated only by the fresh flower petals scattered by visitors, open to the elements instead of sealed in stone. The devout emperor insisted that it be paid for not out of the royal coffers, but with the money he raised in the last years of life by selling his own hand-quilted white skullcaps. Aurangzeb chose this as his final resting place primarily because of the presence, next door, of Sayeed Zain-ud-din’s tomb, which occupies a quadrangle separating Aurangzeb’s grave from those of his wife and second son, Azam Shah. Locked away behind a small door in the mausoleum is Khuldabad’s most jealously guarded relic, the Robe of the Prophet, revealed to the public once a year on the twelfth day of the Islamic month of Rabi-ul-Awwal, when the tomb attracts worshippers from all over India. Directly opposite Zain-ud-din’s tomb is the Dargah of Sayeed Burhan-ud-din, a Chishti missionary buried here in 1334. The shrine is said to contain hairs from the Prophet’s beard, which magically increase in number when they are counted each year.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY AURANGABAD AND AROUND PLANE CHIKAL THANA AIRPORT AURANGABAD’S AIRPORT IS 10KM EAST OF THE CITY; A TAXI TO/FROM THE CITY CENTRE COSTS AROUND ₹400–450. MOST OF THE SMARTER HOTELS

OFFER A PICK-UP SERVICE. AIR INDIA AND INDIGO RUN DAILY FLIGHTS TO MUMBAI (1HR) AND DELHI (1HR 50MIN).

BY TRAIN AURANGABAD RAILWAY STATION THE RAILWAY STATION IS ON THE SOUTHWEST EDGE OF THE CITY CENTRE, AT THE SOUTHERN END OF STATION RD WEST. AS AURANGABAD IS NOT ON THE MAIN LINE, TRAINS TO AND FROM THE CITY ARE FAIRLY LIMITED (JALGAON, 166KM NORTH, HAS THE NEAREST MAINLINE STATION, WITH SERVICES TO A FAR GREATER RANGE OF DESTINATIONS. THE QUICKEST TRAIN TO MUMBAI IS THE #12072 JAN SHATABDI EXPRESS (DAILY 6AM; 5HR 30MIN); IF YOU PREFER TO TRAVEL OVERNIGHT, TRY THE #17058 DEVAGIRI EXPRESS (DAILY 11.25PM; 6HR 20MIN).

Destinations Delhi (1 daily; 22hr); Hyderabad/Secunderabad (6–7 daily; 9hr 30min–15hr 30min); Jalgaon (1–3 daily; 4hr 15min–5hr 50min); Mumbai (4–5 daily; 5hr 30min–9hr 30min); Nashik (4-5 daily; 3hr–3hr 40min).

BY BUS STATE BUSES THE HECTIC CENTRAL BUS STAND IS 2.5KM NORTH OF THE RAILWAY STATION, OFF DR AMBEDKAR RD. ALL THE STATE TRANSPORT CORPORATION (MSRTC) BUSES ARRIVE AND DEPART FROM HERE.

Destinations Ellora (every 30min; 40min) via Daulatabad and Khuldabad; Jalgaon (every 30min; 3hr 30min–4hr) via Fardapur for Ajanta (2hr 30min–3hr); Mumbai (5–6 daily, including a nightly “luxury” bus; 8–10hr); Nagpur (around 5–6 daily; 12hr); Nashik (every 30min–1hr; 4hr 30min); Pune (every 30min–1hr; 5hr).

Private buses For a little more comfort, numerous private companies run a/c buses to most of the larger destinations; you can save yourself a lot of hassle by heading straight to the calm and efficient Manmandir Travels on Adalat Rd (☎0240 236 5748, 🌐manmandir.co.in), which operates services to a wide range of destinations from its own private terminus – a far cry from the usual bedlam.

GETTING AROUND BY AUTO-RICKSHAW AURANGABAD'S SIGHTS LIE TOO FAR APART TO TAKE IN ON FOOT. THE CITY IS, HOWEVER, BUZZING WITH AUTO-RICKSHAWS; LONGER SIGHTSEEING TRIPS WORK OUT MUCH CHEAPER IF YOU SETTLE ON A FARE IN ADVANCE (AROUND ₹700/DAY).

By taxi Taxis can be hailed in the street or found at the railway station and cars with drivers can be hired through travel agents such as the efficient Classic Travel Services (☎0240 233 7788, 🌐classictravelservicesaurangabad.tripod.com), on the ground floor of the Tourist Reception Centre. Expect to pay around ₹1500/day.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST INFORMATION A BOOTH AT THE AIRPORT (OPENS TO MEET INCOMING FLIGHTS) PROVIDES BASIC INFORMATION, WHILE MORE DETAILED ENQUIRIES ARE FIELDDED AT THE TOURIST RECEPTION CENTRE ON STATION RD EAST, WHERE HELPFUL OFFICES OF BOTH INDIA TOURISM (MON–FRI 8.30AM–6PM, SAT 8.30AM–1.30PM; ☎0240 233 1217, 🌐INCREDIBLEINDIA.ORG) AND MTDC (MON–FRI PLUS 1ST & 3RD SAT OF MONTH 10AM–1PM & 1.30–5.45PM; ☎0240 234 3169, 🌐MAHARASHTRATOURISM.GOV.IN) ARE ON THE FIRST FLOOR.

Tour operators Several companies run guided tours of Aurangabad and the surrounding area, all operating similar itineraries and departure times, and all generally rushed. Ellora and City tours usually include the Bibi-ka-Maqbara, Panchakki, Daulatabad Fort, Aurangzeb's tomb at Khuldabad, and the Ellora caves (though not the Aurangabad ones). Ajanta tours go to the caves only, but it's a long round-trip to make in a day – if you want to spend more time at the site, stay at Fardapur or travel on to Jalgaon. Classic Travel Services (see above) runs the best of the tours (₹300–500, excluding entry fees).

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Aurangabad's proximity to some of India's most important monuments, together with its "boom-city" status, ensures a profusion of hotels, though standards are variable. For local guesthouses, contact the MTDC.

Amarpreet Jalna Rd 🌐 amarpreethotel.com. This whitewashed, vaguely Art Deco mid-range hotel, on a main road just south of the old city, is a reliable choice. Rooms are large and well furnished (if a bit dated), and there's a quality non-veg restaurant and a bar. Good value, especially if you book online. ₹₹₹

★ Green Olive CBS Rd 🌐 hotelgreenolive.com. A swish hotel that has set a benchmark for its competitors: staff are friendly and efficient; the rooms are clean, modern and well equipped (nice toiletries, kettle and so on); there's a great restaurant; and rates – particularly if you book online – are very reasonable. ₹₹₹

Lemon Tree 7/2 Chikalhana 🌐 lemontreehotels.com. Set around a large pool, this is the brightest and cheeriest of the high-end hotels lining the airport road. It has a couple of good restaurants (see below) and the appealing Slounge bar. The rate given here is for booking online in advance; rack rates are significantly higher. ₹₹₹₹

Manmandir Executive Adalat Rd 🌐 manmandirmotels.com. Well-maintained, low-cost business hotel above a private bus terminus (see above), with a range of sizeable, blandly comfortable rooms (the non-a/c options are particularly good value), plus a reasonable a/c dorm for those on a really tight budget. Dorms ₹, doubles ₹₹

Panchavati Off Station Rd West 🌐 hotelpanchavati.com. A very basic, if unspectacular, hotel on the western edge of the city centre with economical rooms (some with a/c), welcoming staff and a restaurant (whose menu even features a few Korean options such as kimchi pancakes). ₹₹

Vivanta Ajanta Rd, 4km north of the centre 🌐 vivanta.tajhotels.com. Part of the Taj group, Aurangabad's most luxurious option is a domed, gleaming-white, wedding-cake confection. Rooms are tastefully finished in dark wood, and all come with bathtubs and a balcony. Facilities include a spa, large pool and croquet on the palm-fringed lawn. ₹₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

Aurangabad is full of places to eat, with most restaurants serving either strictly vegetarian food or meat-oriented north Indian dishes. As elsewhere in the state, non-veg places tend to be synonymous with dim lights, drawn curtains and a male clientele – with a few exceptions – while the veg restaurants attract families. Drinking is an exclusively male preserve in Aurangabad, usually carried out in the many specially segregated bars (aka “permit rooms”), as well as the larger, more tourist-oriented restaurants and hotels. One’s best bet for grabbing a drink would be at high-end restaurants or bars within five-star establishments.

Kailash Station Rd East 📞02402352031. This pure-veg restaurant serves inexpensive south Indian (including tasty dosas) and also excellent Punjabi food – plus some so-so Indo-Chinese dishes – and is a popular local spot. ₹

Republic of Noodles Lemon Tree hotel 📞01244165165. If you fancy something a little different, head to this award-winning Southeast Asian restaurant, which has an alfresco dining area by the pool. As well as some classic Thai and Vietnamese dishes, there are a few more unusual Burmese, Indonesian and Singaporean options. ₹₹₹

Tandoor Shyam Chambers, Station Rd East 📞09168333392. Dominated somewhat surreally by an imposing bust of Egyptian pharaoh Tutankhamun, this travellers’ favourite is one of the city’s best-established non-veg restaurants. Tandoori chicken and mutton kebabs are the house specialities, while for monster appetites there’s the enormous “sizzling non-veg tandoori platter” that’s big enough for two. ₹-₹₹

That Baat Beneath Embassy Hotel, near Vivekanand College, Samarth Nagar Rd 📞0240 233 4666. There’s a festive air at this fun, family-friendly thali place, where armies of waiters breezily ladle out dollops of tasty pure veg against a backdrop of Rajasthani puppets, paintings and handicrafts. A hearty thali meal (which includes a soft drink) is very pocket-friendly and will keep diners fuelled for hours. ₹₹

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE AN EFFICIENT FOREIGN EXCHANGE SERVICE IS PROVIDED AT THIS BRANCH OF NATIONAL CHAIN TRADE WINGS ON CBS RD (DAILY 9AM–7PM; 📞0240 235 7480, 🌐TRADEWINGS.IN).

Textiles Aurangabad is famous for its Himroo and Paithani textiles, which are on sale (alongside an array of cheaper imitations) throughout the city; Classic Travel Services runs a tour to the Paithani Weaving Centre.

Ellora

Palaces will decay, bridges will fall, and the noblest structures must give way to the corroding tooth of time; whilst the caverned temples of Ellora shall rear their indestructible and hoary heads in stern loneliness, the glory of past ages, and the admiration of ages yet to come.

Captain Seely, The Wonders of Ellora Maharashtra's most visited ancient monument, the ELLORA caves, 29km northwest of Aurangabad, may not enjoy as grand a setting as their older cousins at Ajanta, but their amazing wealth of sculpture more than compensates – this is an unmissable stop if you're heading to or from Mumbai, 400km southwest. In all, 34 Buddhist, Hindu and Jain caves – some excavated simultaneously, in competition – line the foot of the 2km-long Chamadiri escarpment as it tumbles down to meet the open plains. The site's principal attraction, the colossal Kailash temple, rears from a huge, sheer-edged cavity cut from the hillside – a vast lump of solid basalt fashioned into a spectacular complex of colonnaded halls, galleries and shrines.

Brief history The original reason why this apparently remote spot became the focus of so much religious and artistic activity was the busy caravan route that passed through here on its way between the prosperous cities to the north and the ports of the west coast. Profits fuelled a 500-year spate of excavation, beginning midway through the sixth century AD at around the same time that Ajanta, 100km northeast, was abandoned. This was the twilight of the Buddhist era in central India; by the end of the seventh century, Hinduism had begun to reassert itself. The Brahmanical resurgence gathered momentum over the next three hundred years under the patronage of the Chalukya and Rashtrakuta kings – the two powerful dynasties responsible for the bulk of the work carried out at Ellora, including the eighth-century Kailash temple. A third and final flourish of activity on the site took place towards the end of the first millennium AD, after the local rulers had switched allegiance from Shaivism to the Jain faith. A small cluster of more subdued caves to the north of the main group stand as reminders of this age.

Unlike the isolated site of Ajanta, Ellora did not escape the iconoclasm that accompanied the arrival of the Muslims in the thirteenth century. The worst excesses were committed during the reign of Aurangzeb who ordered the demolition of the site's "heathen idols". Although Ellora still bears the scars from this time, most of its best pieces of sculpture have remained remarkably well preserved, sheltered from centuries of monsoon downpours by the hard basalt hillside.

The caves Daily except Tues 6am-06pm • Charge • If you've come in an auto-rickshaw or a taxi you will also need to buy a parking ticket The caves are numbered, following a roughly chronological plan. Numbers 1 to 12, at the southern end of the site, are the oldest, from the Vajrayana Buddhist era (500–750 AD). The Hindu caves, 13 to 29, overlap with the later Buddhist ones and date from between 600 and 870 AD. Further north, the Jain caves – 30 to 34 – were excavated from 800 AD until the late eleventh century. Because of the sloping hillside, most of the cave entrances are set back from the level ground behind open courtyards and large colonnaded verandas or porches.

To see the oldest caves first, turn right opposite Cave 16, the vast Kailash temple, and follow the main pathway down to Cave 1. From here, work your way gradually northwards again, avoiding the temptation to look around Cave 16, which is best saved until late afternoon when the bus parties have all left and the long shadows cast by the setting sun bring its extraordinary stonework to life.

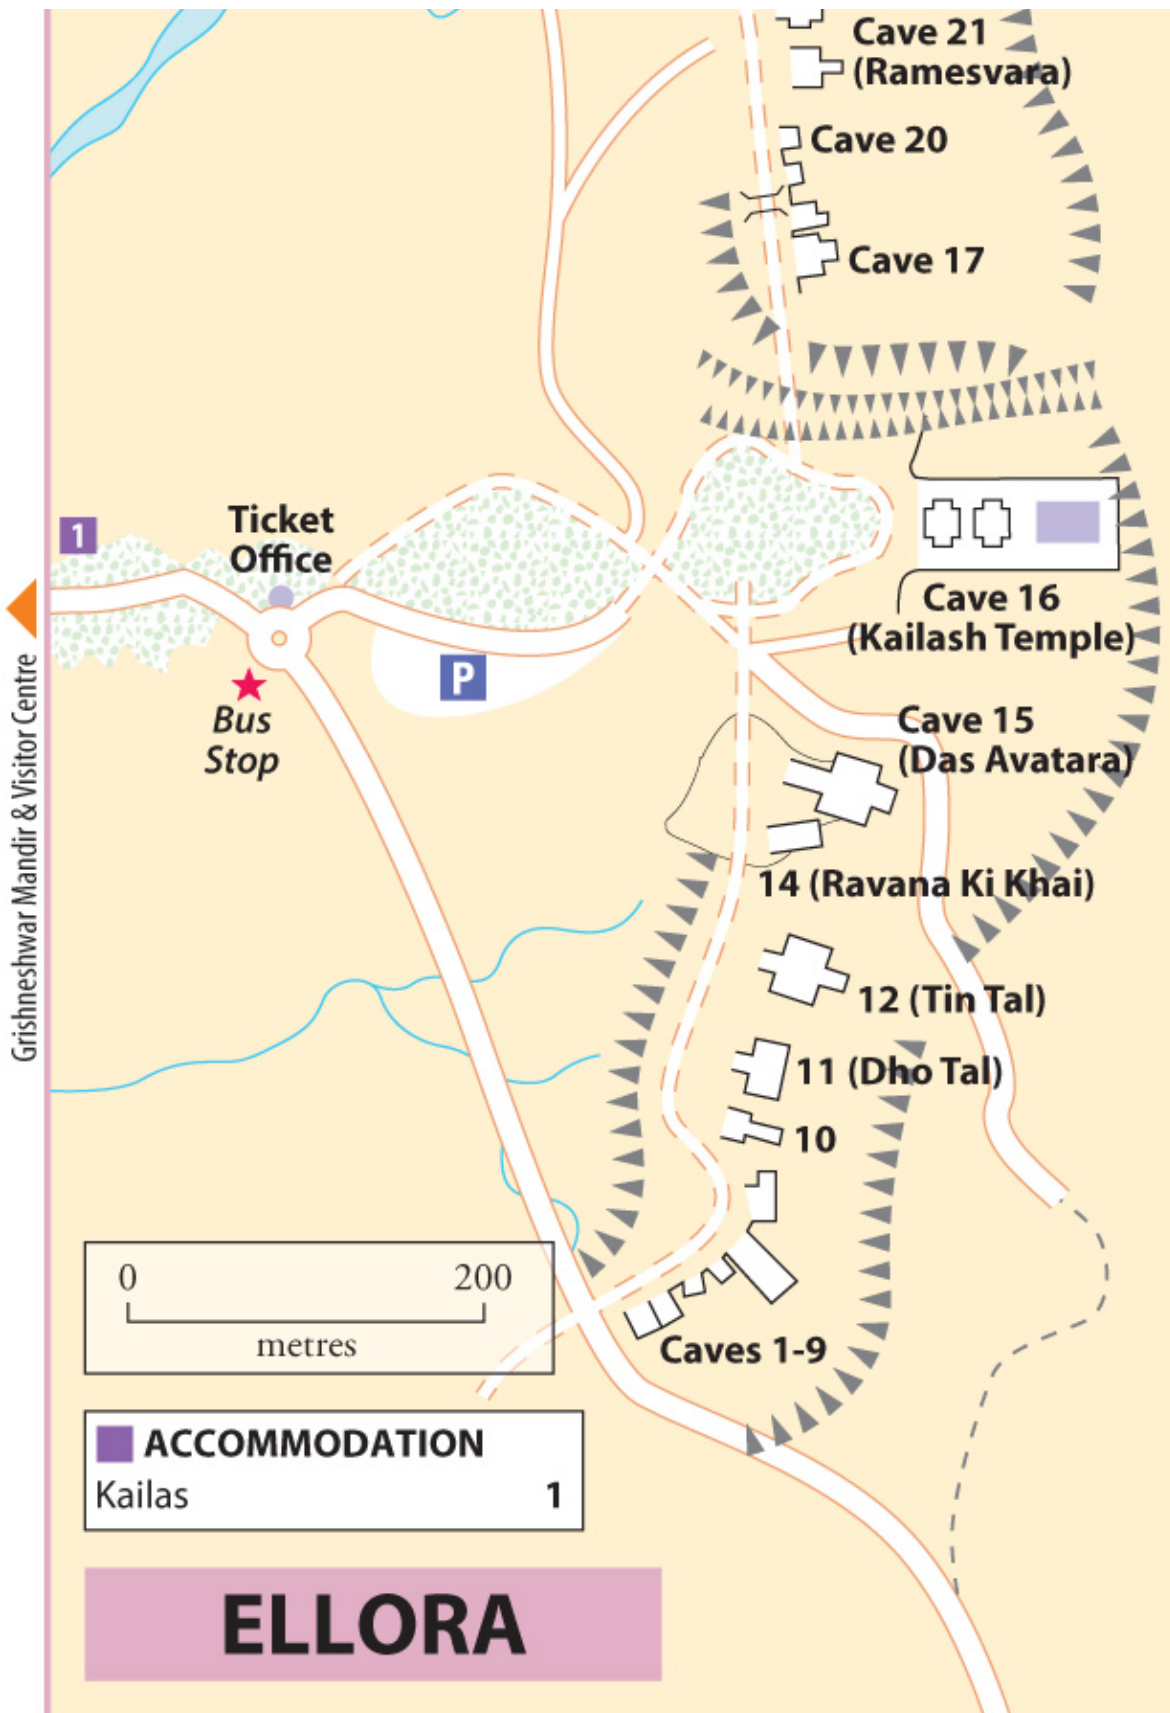

The Buddhist group The Buddhist caves line the sides of a gentle recess in the Chamadiri escarpment. All except Cave 10 are viharas, or monastery halls, which the monks would originally have used for study, solitary meditation and communal worship, as well as the mundane business of eating and sleeping. As you progress through them, the chambers grow steadily more impressive in scale and tone. Scholars attribute this to the rise of Hinduism and the need to compete for patronage with the more overtly awe-inspiring Shaivite cave-temples being excavated so close at hand.

Caves 1 to 9

Cave 2 is the first cave of interest, a large central chamber supported by twelve massive, square-based pillars while the aisles are lined with seated Buddhas. The doorway into the shrine room is flanked by two giant, bejewelled dvarapalas, or guardian figures: an unusually muscular Padmapani, the bodhisattva of compassion, on the left, and an opulent Maitreya, the “Buddha-to-come”, on the right. Both are accompanied by their consorts. Inside the sanctum itself, a stately Buddha is seated on a lion throne, looking stronger and more determined than his serene forerunners in Ajanta.

Caves 3 and 4 lack the artifice of Cave 2, though the latter retains some fine capital work. Cave 5 is the largest single-storey vihara in Ellora. Its enormous 36m-long rectangular assembly hall is thought to have been used by the monks as a refectory, and has two rows of benches carved from the stone floor.

Caves 6–9 were excavated at roughly the same time in the seventh century, and are reached via a single door and stairwell cut into the rock. On the walls of the antechamber at the far end of the central hall in Cave 6 are two of Ellora’s most famous and finely executed figures: Tara, the buxom female consort of the bodhisattva Avalokitesvara, stands to the left; on the opposite side, the Buddhist goddess of learning, Mahamayuri, is depicted with her emblem, the peacock, while a diligent student sets a good example at his desk below. From Cave 6, a short flight of steps leads up to diminutive Cave 9, with a fine frieze decorating the facade.

Caves 10, 11 and 12

Excavated in the early eighth century, Cave 10 is one of the last and most magnificent of the Deccan’s rock-cut chaitya halls. Steps lead from the left of its large veranda to an upper balcony, where a trefoil doorway flanked by flying threesomes, heavenly nymphs and a frieze of playful dwarfs leads to an interior balcony. Inside the long apsidal hall (which you may need to ask to be unlocked), the rib-vaulting effect on the ceiling imitates the beams that would have appeared in earlier freestanding wooden structures. A slender Buddha sits enthroned in front of a votive stupa, the hall’s devotional centrepiece.

In spite of the rediscovery in 1876 of its hitherto hidden basement, Cave 11 continues to be known as the Dho Tal, or “Two Floors” cave. Its top storey is a long, columned assembly hall housing a Buddha shrine and, on its rear wall, images of Durga and Ganesh, the elephant-headed son of Shiva – evidence that the cave was converted into a Hindu temple after being abandoned by the Buddhists. Cave 12 next door – the Tin Tal, or “three floors” – is another triple-storey vihara, approached via a large open courtyard. Again, the main highlights are on the uppermost level. The shrine room at the end of the hall, whose walls are lined with five large bodhisattvas, is flanked on both sides by seven Buddhas – one for each of the Master’s previous incarnations.

The Hindu group Ellora's seventeen Hindu caves are grouped around the middle of the escarpment, to either side of the majestic Kailash temple. Excavated at the start of the Brahmanical revival in the Deccan during a time of relative stability, the cave-temples throb with a vitality absent from their restrained Buddhist predecessors. In place of benign-faced Buddhas, huge bas-reliefs line the walls, writhing with dynamic scenes from the Hindu scriptures. Most are connected with Shiva, the god of destruction and regeneration (and the presiding deity in all of the Hindu caves on the site), although you'll also come across numerous images of Vishnu (the Preserver) and his various incarnations.

The same tableaux crop up time and again, a repetition that gave Ellora's craftsmen ample opportunity to refine their technique over the years leading up to their greatest achievement, the Kailash temple (Cave 16). Covered separately, the temple is the highlight of any visit to Ellora, but you'll appreciate its beautiful sculpture all the more if you visit the earlier Hindu caves first. Numbers 14 and 15, immediately south, are the ones to go for if you're pushed for time.

Cave 14

Dating from the start of the seventh century AD, and among the last of the early excavations, Cave 14 was a Buddhist vihara converted into a temple by the Hindus. The entrance to the bare sanctum is guarded by two impressive river goddesses, Ganga and Yamuna, while lining the ambulatory wall behind and to the right, seven heavy-breasted fertility goddesses, the Sapta Matrikas, dandle chubby babies on their laps. Shiva's son, Ganesh, sits to their right beside two cadaverous apparitions, Kala and Kali, the goddesses of death. Superb friezes adorn the cave's long side walls.

Cave 15

Like its neighbour, the two-storey Cave 15, reached via a long flight of steps, began life as a Buddhist vihara but was hijacked by the Hindus and became a Shiva shrine. Behind the Natya Mandapa ("Hall of Dance") in the centre of the courtyard, make for the upper level of the main structure to find some of Ellora's most magnificent sculpture. The cave's name, Das Avatara, is derived from the sequence of panels along the right wall, which show five of Vishnu's ten incarnations (avatars).

A carved panel in a recess to the right of the antechamber shows Shiva emerging from a lingam. Brahma and Vishnu stand before the apparition in humility and supplication – symbolizing the supremacy of Shaivism in the region at the time the conversion work was carried out. Finally, halfway down the left wall of the chamber as you're facing the shrine, the cave's most elegant piece of sculpture shows Shiva as Nataraja, poised in a classical dance pose.

Caves 17 to 29

Only three of the Hindu caves strung along the hillside north of the Kailash temple are really worth exploring in depth. Cave 21 – the Ramesvara – was excavated late in the sixth century. Thought to be Ellora's oldest Hindu cave, it harbours some well-executed sculpture, including a fine pair of river goddesses on either side of the veranda, two wonderful door guardians and some sensuous loving couples, or mithunas, dotted around the walls of the balcony. Cave 25, further along, contains a striking image on the exterior ceiling of the main shrine of the sun god Surya speeding in his chariot towards the dawn.

From here, the path picks its way past two more excavations, then drops steeply across the face of a sheer cliff to the bottom of a small river gorge. Once under the seasonal waterfall, the trail climbs the other side of the gully to emerge beside Cave 29, the huge Dhumar Lena. Dating from the late sixth century, the cave boasts an unusual cross-shaped floor plan similar to the Elephanta cave in Mumbai harbour. Pairs of rampant lions guard its three staircases while, inside, the walls are covered with huge friezes. On the right-hand side of the (southern) entrance, a dice-playing scene shows Shiva teasing Parvati by holding her arm back as she prepares to throw. Left of the exit, Shiva skewers the Andhaka demon, while in the opposite wall panel he foils the many-armed Ravana's attempts to shake him and Parvati off the top of Mount Kailash; look for the cheeky dwarf baring his bum to taunt the evil demon.

The Kailash temple (Cave 16) Cave 16, the colossal Kailash temple, is Ellora's masterpiece. Here, the term "cave" is not only a gross understatement but a complete misnomer. For although the temple was, like the other excavations, hewn from solid rock, it bears a striking resemblance to earlier freestanding structures in south India. The monolith is believed to have been the brainchild of the Rashtrakuta ruler Krishna I (756–773). One hundred years and four generations of kings, architects and craftsmen elapsed, however, before the project was completed. Climb up the track leading along the lip of the compound's north-facing cliff to the ledge overlooking the squat main tower, and you'll see why.

The sheer scale is staggering. Work began by digging three deep trenches into the top of the hill using pickaxes and lengths of wood which, soaked with water and stuffed into narrow cracks, expanded to crumble the basalt. Once a huge chunk of raw rock had been exposed in this way, the royal sculptors set to work. In all, around a quarter of a million tonnes of chippings and debris were cut from the hillside, with no room for improvisation or error. The temple was conceived as a giant replica of Shiva and Parvati's Himalayan abode, the pyramidal Mount Kailash. Today, all but a few fragments of the thick coat of white-lime plaster that gave the temple the appearance of a snowy mountain have flaked off, to expose elaborately carved surfaces of grey-brown stone beneath. Around the rear of the tower, these have been bleached and blurred by centuries of erosion, as if the giant sculpture is slowly melting in the fierce Deccan heat.

Nearby within walking distance is a tiny lake with a trickling waterfall worth visiting called Sita Ki Nahani.

The temple The main entrance to the temple is through a tall stone screen, intended to mark the transition from the profane to the sacred realms. After passing between two guardian river goddesses, Ganga and Yamuna, you enter a narrow passage that opens onto the main forecourt, opposite a panel showing Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth, being lustrated by a pair of elephants. Custom requires pilgrims to circumambulate clockwise around Mount Kailash, so descend the steps to your left and head across the front of the courtyard towards the near corner.

From the top of the concrete steps in the corner, all three principal sections of the complex are visible: first, the shrine above the entrance housing Shiva's vehicle, Nandi, the bull; next, the intricate recessed walls of the main assembly hall, or mandapa, which still bear traces of the coloured plaster that originally coated the whole edifice; and finally, the sanctuary itself, surmounted by the stumpy, 29m pyramidal tower, or shikhara (best viewed from above). These three components rest on an appropriately huge raised platform, borne by dozens of lotus-gathering elephants. As well as symbolizing Shiva's sacred mountain, the temple also represented a giant chariot. The transepts protruding from the side of the main hall are its wheels, the Nandi shrine its yoke, and the two life-sized, trunkless elephants in the front of the courtyard (disfigured by Muslim raiders) are the beasts of burden.

Most of the main highlights of the temple itself are confined to its side walls, which are plastered with vibrant sculpture. Lining the staircase that leads up to the north side of the mandapa, a long, lively narrative panel depicts scenes from the Mahabharata, and below this the life of Krishna. Continuing clockwise, the majority of the panels around the lower sections around the temple are devoted to Shiva. On the south side of the mandapa, in an alcove carved out of the most prominent projection, you'll find the finest piece of sculpture in the compound. It shows Shiva and Parvati being disturbed by the multiheaded Ravana, who has been incarcerated inside the sacred mountain and is now shaking the walls of his prison with his many arms. Shiva is about to assert his supremacy by calming the earthquake with a prod of his toe. Parvati, meanwhile, nonchalantly reclines on her elbow as one of her handmaidens flees in panic.

From here, head up the steps at the southwest corner of the courtyard to the Hall of Sacrifices, with its striking frieze of the seven mother goddesses, the Sapta Matrikas, and their ghoulish companions Kala and Kali (shown astride a heap of corpses). The sixteen-columned assembly hall is shrouded in a gloomy half-light designed to focus worshippers on the presence of the deity within. Using a portable arc light, the chowkidar will illuminate fragments of painting on the ceiling, where Shiva, as Nataraja, performs the cosmic dance.

The Jain group Ellora's small cluster of four Jain caves is north of the main group, just a five-minute walk north along the path from Cave 29 or, alternatively, reachable from the Kailash temple via a curving asphalt road.

Excavated in the late ninth and tenth centuries, after the Hindu phase had petered out, the Jain caves are Ellora's swansong, featuring some fine decorative carving and a few exquisite paintings. Of principal interest is Cave 32, the Indra Sabha ("Indra's Assembly Hall"), a miniature version of the Kailash temple. The lower of its two levels is plain and incomplete, but the upper storey, guarded by huge yaksha and yakshi figures facing each other across the veranda, is crammed with elaborate stonework, notably the ornate pillars and the two tirthankaras guarding the entrance to the central shrine. The naked figure of Gomatesvara, on the right, is fulfilling a vow of silence in the forest. He is so deeply immersed in meditation that creepers have grown up his legs, and animals, snakes and scorpions crawl around his feet.

The Grishneshwar Mandir Rising above the small village west of the caves, the cream-coloured shikhara of the eighteenth-century Grishneshwar Mandir pinpoints the location of one of India's oldest and most sacred deities. The lingam enshrined inside the temple's cavernous inner sanctum is one of the twelve "self-born" jyotirlingas ("linga of light"), thought to date back to the second century BC. Non-Hindus are allowed to join the queue for darshan, but men have to remove their shirts before entering the shrine itself.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION MOST VISITORS USE ELLORA AURANGABAD AS A BASE FOR DAY-TRIPS TO THE CAVES; IF YOU PREFER TO TAKE IN THE CAVES AT A MORE LEISURELY PACE AND CLIMB DAULATABAD HILL, EITHER SPEND THE NIGHT AT ELLORA OR LEAVE AURANGABAD EARLY IN THE MORNING.

By bus There are regular MSRTC buses (every 30min; 40min) from Aurangabad to Ellora.

By tour Travel agencies in Aurangabad offer tours, though these tend to be rather rushed.

By auto-rickshaw/taxi An auto-rickshaw for the round trip from Aurangabad costs about ₹800, including waiting time; a taxi costs around ₹1500.

Guides Official multilingual guides are on hand to take you on a tour of the most interesting caves (groups of up to five people around ₹850).

Tourist information There's a good visitor centre (same opening times as the caves) with displays on the caves, plus temporary exhibitions.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Apart from the mediocre MTDC canteen inside the complex and the roadside dhabas opposite the bus stand, the only place to eat is at the restaurant inside the Kailas hotel.

Kailas Opposite the entrance to the caves www.hotelkailas.com. This small, peaceful hotel has a mix of simple rooms close to the road and smarter cottages (₹-₹₹) facing the caves themselves. There's a decent restaurant, and a range of activities on offer, including trips to local markets, hikes, massages and even paragliding. ₹₹

Ajanta Hewn from the near-vertical sides of a horseshoe-shaped ravine, the caves at AJANTA occupy a site worthy of the spectacular ancient art they contain. Less than two centuries ago, this remote spot was known only to local tribespeople; the shadowy entrances to its abandoned stone chambers lay buried deep under a thick blanket of creepers and jungle.

The chance arrival in 1819 of a small detachment of East India Company troops, however, brought the caves' obscurity to an abrupt end. Led to the top of the precipitous bluff that overlooks the gorge by a young "half-wild" scout, the tiger-hunters spied what has now been identified as the facade of Cave 10 protruding through the foliage.

The British soldiers had made one of the most sensational archeological finds of all time. Further exploration revealed a total of 28 colonnaded caves chiselled out of the chocolate-brown and grey basalt cliffs lining the River Waghora. More remarkable still were the immaculately preserved paintings writhing over their interior surfaces. For, in addition to the rows of stone Buddhas and other sculpture enshrined within them, Ajanta's excavations are adorned with a swirling profusion of murals, depicting everything from battlefields to sailing ships, city streets and teeming animal-filled forests to snow-capped mountains. Even if you aren't wholly familiar with the narratives they portray, it's easy to see why these paintings are regarded as the finest surviving gallery of art from any of the world's ancient civilizations.

Brief history Located close enough to the major trans-Deccan trade routes to ensure a steady supply of alms, yet far enough from civilization to preserve the peace and tranquility necessary for meditation and prayer, Ajanta was an ideal location for the region's itinerant Buddhist monks to found their first permanent monasteries. Donative inscriptions indicate that its earliest cave excavations took place in the second century BC.

In its heyday, Ajanta sheltered more than two hundred monks, as well as a sizeable community of painters, sculptors and labourers employed in excavating and decorating the cells and sanctuaries. Sometime in the seventh century, however, the site was abandoned – whether because of the growing popularity of nearby Ellora, or the threat posed by the resurgence of Hinduism, no one knows. By the eighth century, the complex lay deserted and forgotten, overlooked even by the Muslim iconoclasts who wrought such damage to the area's other sacred sites during the medieval era.

The caves Tues–Sun 9am–5pm • Charge plus an “amenities fee” • Entry tickets are sold at the booth at the main entrance, a 4km bus ride from the Ajanta T-junction An obvious path leads up from the ticket booth to the grand Mahayana viharas; if you'd prefer to see the caves in chronological order, however, start with the smaller Hinayana group of chaitya halls at the bottom of the river bend (caves 12, 10 and 9), then work your way back up, via Cave 17. For help getting up the steps, sedan-chair bearers (around ₹550), or dhooli-wallahs, stand in front of the stalls below, while porters (around ₹200) are on hand to carry bags. Official guides make two-hour tours (around ₹1400) which can be arranged through the ticket office; most deliver an interesting spiel but you may well feel like taking in the sights again afterwards at a more leisurely pace.

Cave 1

There's always a queue for Cave 1, which contains some of the finest and stylistically most evolved paintings on the site. By the time work on it began, late in the fifth century, viharas served not only to shelter and feed the monks, but also as places of worship in their own right. In common with most Mahayana viharas, the extraordinary murals lining the walls and ceilings depict episodes from the Jatakas, tales of the birth and former lives of the Buddha.

Left of the doorway into the main shrine stands another masterpiece. Padmapani, the lotus-holding form of Avalokitesvara, is surrounded by an entourage of smaller attendants, divine musicians, lovers, monkeys and a peacock. His heavy almond eyes and languid hip-shot tribhanga (or “three-bend”) pose exudes a distant and sublime calm. Opposite, flanking the right side of the doorway, is his counterpart, Vajrapani, the thunderbolt holder. Between them, these two bodhisattvas represent the dual aspects of Mahayana Buddhism: compassion and knowledge.

The real focal point of Cave 1, however, is the large sculpted Buddha seated in the shrine room – the finest such figure in Ajanta. Using portable electric spotlights, guides demonstrate how the expression on the Buddha's exquisitely carved face changes according to where the light is held.

ROCK-CUT CAVES OF THE NORTH-WESTERN DECCAN THE ROCK-CUT CAVES SCATTERED ACROSS THE VOLCANIC HILLS OF THE NORTHWESTERN DECCAN RANK AMONG THE MOST EXTRAORDINARY RELIGIOUS MONUMENTS IN ASIA. RANGING FROM TINY MONASTIC CELLS TO ELABORATELY CARVED TEMPLES, THEY ARE REMARKABLE FOR HAVING BEEN HEWN BY HAND FROM SOLID ROCK. THEIR THIRD-CENTURY-BC ORIGINS SEEM TO HAVE BEEN AS TEMPORARY SHELTERS FOR BUDDHIST MONKS WHEN HEAVY MONSOON RAINS BROUGHT THEIR TRAVELS TO A HALT. MODELLED ON EARLIER WOODEN STRUCTURES, MOST WERE SPONSORED BY MERCHANTS, FOR WHOM THE CASTELESS NEW FAITH OFFERED AN ATTRACTIVE ALTERNATIVE TO THE OLD, DISCRIMINATORY SOCIAL ORDER. GRADUALLY, ENCOURAGED BY THE EXAMPLE OF THE MAURYAN EMPEROR ASHOKA, THE LOCAL RULING DYNASTIES ALSO BEGAN TO EMBRACE BUDDHISM. UNDER THEIR PATRONAGE, DURING THE SECOND CENTURY BC, THE FIRST LARGE-SCALE MONASTERY CAVES WERE CREATED AT KARLA, BHAJA AND AJANTA.

THE HINAYANA SCHOOL AROUND THIS TIME, THE AUSTERE HINAYANA (“LESSER VEHICLE”) SCHOOL OF BUDDHISM PREDOMINATED IN INDIA. CAVES CUT IN THIS ERA WERE MOSTLY SIMPLE WORSHIP HALLS, OR CHAITYAS – LONG, RECTANGULAR CHAMBERS WITH BARREL-VAULTED ROOFS AND TWO NARROW COLONNADED AISLES CURVING GENTLY AROUND THE BACK OF A MONOLITHIC STUPA. SYMBOLS OF THE BUDDHA’S ENLIGHTENMENT, THESE HEMISPHERICAL BURIAL MOUNDS PROVIDED THE PRINCIPAL FOCUS FOR WORSHIP AND MEDITATION, CIRCUMAMBULATED BY THE MONKS DURING THEIR COMMUNAL RITUALS.

THE MAHAYANA SCHOOL BY THE FOURTH CENTURY AD, THE HINAYANA SCHOOL WAS LOSING GROUND TO THE MORE EXUBERANT MAHAYANA (“GREATER VEHICLE”) SCHOOL. ITS EMPHASIS ON AN EVER-ENLARGING PANTHEON OF BODHISATTVAS (MERCIFUL SAINTS WHO POSTPONED THEIR ACCESSION TO NIRVANA TO HELP MANKIND TOWARDS ENLIGHTENMENT) WAS ACCOMPANIED BY A TRANSFORMATION IN ARCHITECTURAL STYLES. CHAITYAS WERE SUPERSEDED BY LAVISH MONASTERY HALLS, OR VIHARAS, IN WHICH

THE MONKS BOTH LIVED AND WORSHIPPED, AND THE ONCE-PROHIBITED IMAGE OF THE BUDDHA BECAME FAR MORE PROMINENT. OCCUPYING THE CIRCUMAMBULATORY RECESS AT THE END OF THE HALL, WHERE THE STUPA FORMERLY STOOD, THE COLOSSAL ICON ACQUIRED THE 32 CHARACTERISTICS, OR LAKSHANAS (INCLUDING LONG DANGLING EARLOBES, CRANIAL PROTUBERANCE, SHORT CURLS, ROBE AND HALO) BY WHICH THE BUDDHA WAS DISTINGUISHED FROM LESSER DIVINITIES. THE PEAK OF MAHAYANA ART CAME TOWARDS THE END OF THE BUDDHIST AGE. DRAWING ON THE RICH CATALOGUE OF THEMES AND IMAGES CONTAINED IN ANCIENT SCRIPTURES SUCH AS THE JATAKAS (LEGENDS RELATING TO THE BUDDHA'S PREVIOUS INCARNATIONS), AJANTA'S EXQUISITE WALL PAINTING MAY, IN PART, HAVE BEEN DESIGNED TO REKINDLE ENTHUSIASM FOR THE FAITH, WHICH WAS, BY THIS POINT, ALREADY STARTING TO WANE IN THE REGION.

THE VAJRAYANA SECT ATTEMPTS TO COMPETE WITH THE RESURGENCE OF HINDUISM, FROM THE SIXTH CENTURY ONWARDS, EVENTUALLY LED TO THE EVOLUTION OF ANOTHER, MORE ESOTERIC RELIGIOUS MOVEMENT. THE VAJRAYANA, OR "THUNDERBOLT" SECT STRESSED THE FEMALE CREATIVE PRINCIPLE, SHAKTI, WITH ARCAINE RITUALS COMBINING SPELLS AND MAGIC FORMULAS.

BRAHMANISM ULTIMATELY, HOWEVER, SUCH MODIFICATIONS WERE TO PROVE POWERLESS AGAINST THE GROWING ALLURE OF BRAHMANISM. THE ENSUING SHIFT IN ROYAL AND POPULAR PATRONAGE IS BEST EXEMPLIFIED BY ELLORA WHERE, DURING THE EIGHTH CENTURY, MANY OLD VIHARAS WERE CONVERTED INTO TEMPLES, THEIR SHRINES HOUSING POLISHED SHIVALINGA INSTEAD OF STUPAS AND BUDDHAS. HINDU CAVE ARCHITECTURE, WITH ITS DRAMATIC

MYTHOLOGICAL SCULPTURE, CULMINATED IN THE TENTH CENTURY WITH THE MAGNIFICENT KAILASH TEMPLE, A GIANT REPLICA OF THE FREESTANDING STRUCTURES THAT HAD ALREADY BEGUN TO REPLACE ROCK-CUT CAVES. IT WAS HINDUISM THAT BORE THE BRUNT OF THE ICONOCLASTIC MEDIEVAL DESCENT OF ISLAM ON THE DECCAN, BUDDHISM HAVING LONG SINCE FLED TO THE COMPARATIVE SAFETY OF THE HIMALAYAS, WHERE IT STILL FLOURISHES.

On the way out, you should be able to spot this cave's other famous trompe l'oeil, crowning one of the pillars (on the fourth pillar on the left as you face the exit): the figures of four apparently separate stags that, on closer inspection, all share the same head.

Cave 2

Cave 2 is another impressive Mahayana vihara, dating from the sixth century. Here, the ceiling is decorated with complex floral patterns, including lotus and medallion motifs. Sculpted friezes in the small subsidiary shrine to the right of the main chapel centre on a well-endowed fertility goddess, Hariti, the infamous child-eating ogress, and Kubera, the god of wealth. The side walls teem with lively paintings of the Jatakas and other mythological episodes. A mural on the left veranda shows the birth of the Buddha, emerging from under his mother's arm, and his conception when a white elephant appeared to her in a dream (bottom left).

Caves 3 to 9

Cave 3 is inaccessible but unfinished Cave 4, the largest vihara in the complex, is worth a quick look for its 28 pillars and huge Buddha. It's also worth popping into Cave 6, a two-storey vihara with a finely carved doorjamb and lintel around the entrance to its shrine room. Cave 8 is always closed; it contains the generator for the lights.

Cave 9, which dates from the first century BC, is the first chaitya you come to along the walkway. Resting in the half-light shed by a characteristic peepal-leaf-shaped window in the sculpted facade, the hemispherical stupa, with its inverted pyramidal reliquary, forms the devotional centrepiece of the 14m-long hall. The fragments of painting that remain, including the procession scene on the left wall, are mostly superimpositions over the top of earlier snake deities – nagarajas.

Cave 10

Although, like Cave 9, marred by the unsightly wire meshing used to keep out bats, the facade of Cave 10, a second-century-BC chaitya hall – the oldest of its kind in the ravine – is still a grand sight. The cave's main highlights, however, are far smaller and more subdued. Along the left wall, you may be able to pick out the fading traces of painting (now encased in glass) that depict a scene in which a raja and his retinue approach a group of dancers and musicians surrounding a garlanded bodhi tree – a symbol of the Buddha (the Hinayanas preferred not to depict him figuratively); it's believed to be the earliest surviving Buddhist mural in India. Elsewhere on the walls is graffiti scrawled by the British soldiers who rediscovered the caves in 1819.

VISITING AJANTA IN SPITE OF ITS COMPARATIVE REMOTENESS, AJANTA RECEIVES AN EXTRAORDINARY NUMBER OF VISITORS. IF YOU WANT TO ENJOY THE SITE IN ANYTHING CLOSE TO ITS ORIGINAL SERENITY, AVOID COMING ON A WEEKEND OR PUBLIC HOLIDAY – IT TAKES A FERTILE IMAGINATION INDEED TO PICTURE BUDDHIST MONKS FILING SOFTLY AROUND THE ROUGH STONE STEPS WHEN HUNDREDS OF RIOTOUS SCHOOLCHILDREN AND THRONGS OF TOURISTS ARE CLAMBERING OVER THEM. AMONG MEASURES TO MINIMIZE THE IMPACT OF THE HUNDREDS OF VISITORS WHO DAILY TRUDGE THROUGH IS A BAN ON FLASH PHOTOGRAPHY – THOUGH THE INTRODUCTION OF LOW-IMPACT LIGHTING HAS AIDED CLOSE VIEWING – AND STRICT LIMITS ON THE NUMBERS ALLOWED INTO

THE MOST INTERESTING CAVES AT ANY GIVEN TIME. ANOTHER SIGNIFICANT MOVE TO REDUCE THE ECOLOGICAL IMPACT ON THE AREA HAS BEEN THE CREATION OF THE AJANTA T-JUNCTION.

The best seasons to visit are either during the monsoon, when the river is swollen and the gorge reverberates with the sound of the waterfalls, or during the cooler winter months between October and March. At other times, the relentless Deccan sun beating down on the south-facing rock can make a trip around Ajanta a real endurance test. Whenever you go, take a hat, some sunglasses, a good torch and plenty of drinking water.

The apsidal-ended hall itself, divided by three rows of painted octagonal pillars, is dominated by a huge monolithic stupa at its far end. If there's no one else around, test out the chaitya's amazing acoustics.

Caves 16 and 17

The next cave of interest, Cave 16, is another spectacular fifth-century vihara, with the famous painting known as the Dying Princess near the front of its left wall. The "princess" was actually a queen named Sundari, and she isn't dying, but fainting after hearing the news that her husband, King Nanda (Buddha's cousin), is about to renounce his throne to take up monastic orders. The opposite walls show events from Buddha's early life as Siddhartha.

Cave 17, dating from between the mid-fifth and early sixth centuries, boasts the best-preserved and most varied paintings in Ajanta. While you wait to enter, have a look at the frescoes on the veranda. Above the door, eight seated Buddhas, including Maitreya, the Buddha-to-come, look down. To the left, an amorous princely couple share a last glass of wine before giving their worldly wealth away to the poor. The wall that forms the far left side of the veranda features fragments of an elaborate "Wheel of Life". Inside the cave, the murals are, once more, dominated by the illustrations of the Jatakas, particularly those in which the Buddha takes the form of an animal to illustrate certain virtues. This is also where you'll find the exquisite and much-celebrated portrait of a sultry, dark-skinned princess admiring herself in a mirror while her handmaidens and a female dwarf look on. The chowkidars will demonstrate how, when illuminated from the side, her iridescent eyes and jewellery glow like pearls against the brooding, dark background.

Cave 19

Excavated during the mid-fifth century, when the age of Mahayana Buddhism was in full swing, Cave 19 is indisputably Ajanta's most magnificent chaitya hall, its facade teeming with elaborate sculpture. Inside, the faded frescoes are of less note than the sculpture around the tops of the pillars. The standing Buddha at the far end, another Mahayana innovation, is even more remarkable. Notice the development from the stumpier stupas enshrined within the early chaityas (caves 9 and 10) to this more elongated version. Its umbrellas, supported by angels and a vase of divine nectar, reach right up to the vaulted roof.

Caves 21 to 26

Caves 21 to 26 date from the seventh century, a couple of hundred years after the others, and form a separate group at the far end of the cliff. Apart from the unfinished Cave 24, whose roughly hacked trenches and pillars give an idea of how the original excavation was carried out here, the only one worth a close look is Cave 26. Envisaged on a similarly grand scale to Cave 19, this impressive chaitya hall was never completed. Nevertheless, the sculpture is among the most vivid and sensuous at Ajanta. On the left wall as you enter the cave, the colossal image of Parinirvana (Siddhartha reclining on his deathbed) is the essence of tranquility. Note the weeping mourners below, and the flying angels and musicians above, preparing to greet the sage as he drifts into nirvana. Two panels down, and in dramatic contrast, the Temptation of Mara frieze depicts Buddha ensconced under a peepal tree as seven tantalizing sisters try to seduce him. Their father, the satanic Mara, watches from astride an elephant in the top left corner. The ruse to lead the Buddha astray fails, of course, eventually (bottom right) forcing the evil adversary and his daughters to retreat.

The viewpoint The climb to the viewpoint from where the British hunting party first spotted the Ajanta caves is well worth the effort – the panorama over the Waghora gorge and its surrounding walls of bare, flat-topped mountains is spectacular. From the far side of the iron footbridge beneath Cave 8, steps lead up the opposite side of the ravine to a small tin-roofed shelter, where the full majesty of the sheer-sided gorge becomes clear in a horseshoe like pattern. From here it's a stiff twenty-minute climb straight ahead to the clearly visible viewpoint at the ridge of the hill.

CAVE PAINTING TECHNIQUES THE BASIC PAINTING TECHNIQUES USED BY THE ARTISTS OF AJANTA TO CREATE THE CAVES' LUSTROUS KALEIDOSCOPES OF COLOUR CHANGED LITTLE OVER THE EIGHT CENTURIES THE SITE WAS IN USE, FROM 200 BC TO 650 AD. FIRST, THE ROUGH STONE SURFACES WERE PRIMED WITH A THICK COATING OF PASTE MADE FROM CLAY, COW-DUNG, ANIMAL HAIR AND VEGETABLE FIBRE. NEXT, A FINER LAYER OF SMOOTH WHITE LIME WAS APPLIED. BEFORE THIS WAS DRY, THE ARTISTS QUICKLY SKETCHED THE OUTLINES OF THEIR PICTURES USING RED CINNABAR, WHICH THEY THEN FILLED IN WITH AN UNDERCOAT OF TERRE-VERTE. THE PIGMENTS, ALL DERIVED FROM NATURAL WATER-SOLUBLE SUBSTANCES - KAOLIN CHALK FOR WHITE, LAMP SOOT FOR BLACK, OCHRE FOR YELLOW AND IMPORTED LAPIS LAZULI FOR BLUE FROM CENTRAL ASIA AND GLAUCONITE FOR GREEN (THOUGH SOME HISTORIANS BELIEVE THAT GREEN WAS A RESULT OF MIXING LAPIS LAZULI WITH INDIAN YELLOW OCHRE) WERE THICKENED WITH GLUE AND ADDED ONLY AFTER THE UNDERCOAT WAS COMPLETELY DRY. THUS, THE AJANTA PAINTINGS ARE NOT, STRICTLY SPEAKING, FRESCOES (ALWAYS EXECUTED ON DAMP SURFACES), BUT TEMPERA. FINALLY, ONCE DRY,

THE MURALS WERE PAINSTAKINGLY POLISHED WITH A SMOOTH STONE TO BRING OUT THEIR NATURAL SHEEN. THE ARTISTS' ONLY SOURCES OF LIGHT WERE OIL-LAMPS AND SUNSHINE REFLECTED INTO THE CAVES BY METAL MIRRORS AND POOLS OF WATER (THE EXTERNAL COURTYARDS WERE FLOODED EXPRESSLY FOR THIS PURPOSE), A CONSTRAINT THAT MAKES THEIR EXTRAORDINARY MASTERY OF LINE, PERSPECTIVE AND SHADING – WHICH ENDOW AJANTA'S PAINTINGS WITH THEIR CHARACTERISTIC OTHERWORLDLY LIGHT – ALL THE MORE REMARKABLE.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS ALL MSRTC BUSES AJANTA (EVERY 30MIN; THE LAST ONE RETURNS AROUND 5PM) BETWEEN AURANGABAD (2HR 30MIN–3HR), 108KM SOUTHWEST, AND THE NEAREST RAILHEAD AT JALGAON (1HR), 58KM NORTH, STOP ON REQUEST AT THE AJANTA T-JUNCTION, WHICH IS 4KM FROM THE CAVES ON THE MAIN ROAD. PROVIDED THAT YOU CATCH AN EARLY ENOUGH SERVICE UP HERE, IT'S POSSIBLE TO SEE THE CAVES, GRAB A BITE TO EAT, AND THEN HEAD OFF AGAIN IN EITHER DIRECTION (THERE ARE FACILITIES FOR STORING YOUR LUGGAGE HERE).

By taxi A taxi for the round trip from Aurangabad, with waiting time, costs around ₹3000; from Jalgaon you can expect to pay roughly ₹1700.

By tour Travel agencies in Aurangabad offer rather rushed tours of Ajanta.

GETTING AROUND AND INFORMATION THE AJANTA T-JUNCTION ALL VEHICLES (INCLUDING TAXIS AND TOUR BUSES) MUST TERMINATE AT THE AJANTA T-JUNCTION, WHERE YOU'LL FIND A TOURIST COMPLEX WITH SNACK JOINTS, TOILETS AND HAWKER STALLS. THERE IS ALSO A VERY GOOD VISITOR CENTRE (TUES–SUN 9AM–5.30PM) THAT HOUSES A MUSEUM WITH REPLICAS OF FOUR OF THE CAVES, PLUS THREE RESTAURANTS. AFTER PAYING A ₹10 “AMENITIES FEE” TO ENTER THE COMPLEX, YOU CATCH ONE OF THE SUPPOSEDLY ECOFRIENDLY GREEN BUSES THAT REGULARLY PLY THE ROUTE TO AND FROM THE CAVES (NON-A/C ₹16, A/C ₹22 ONE WAY).

ACCOMMODATION AS THE FIRST BUS FROM THE T-JUNCTION TO THE CAVES DOESN'T LEAVE UNTIL 9AM, THERE'S LITTLE ADVANTAGE IN STAYING LOCALLY, THOUGH THERE ARE SOME REASONABLE ACCOMMODATION OPTIONS. FOR FOOD, APART FROM THE UNINSPIRING MTDC DINING HALLS JUST OUTSIDE THE ENTRANCE TO THE CAVES AND AT THE MTDC AJANTA TOURIST RESORT, YOU HAVE A CHOICE OF PADMAPANI PARK'S PURE-VEG RESTAURANT AND THE NEARBY STRING OF DHABAS THAT LINE THE MAIN HIGHWAY.

MTDC T-Junction Guest House Close to the tourist complex 📍 maharashtratourism.gov.in. Set in attractive gardens a short wander from the tourist complex and the bus stop, this faded guesthouse has five spacious, split-level rooms, all a/c, with small verandas. The main drawback is that, apart from the nearby snack stalls, there's nowhere to eat. ₹₹

Padmapani Park Fardapur 📍 hotelpadmapaniparkajanta.com. At the edge of Fardapur, a 1km walk from the MTDC Ajanta Tourist Resort, is this just-about-adequate, low-cost alternative to the MTDC hotels: extremely shabby rooms, but a possible stop for lunch at the decent restaurant. ₹

Lonar

Few travellers reach the crater at LONAR but those who do find this meteorite-formed lake an amazing and tranquil place. Referred to as “Taratirth” in a Hindu legend that correctly claimed it was created by a shooting star, the gigantic hole in the ground was formed about 50,000 years ago when a lump of space rock survived its fiery descent through the atmosphere to bury itself here. As the only such crater formed in basalt rock in the world, the site is not just a geological curiosity but also highly valuable to scientists – NASA has made extensive studies due to its apparent similarity to some lunar and Martian landscapes; though many of the lake's mysteries, such as the extreme alkalinity of its thick, sulphurous water, continue to baffle.

Numerous steep paths lead down to the lake from the rim, the principal one starting around 500m from the MTDC Holiday Resort and emerging in the basin near a twelfth-century temple dedicated to Shiva. A complete circuit of the lake, surrounded by forest and home to a rich array of birdlife, takes around three hours. En route you will discover numerous other seemingly lost Shaivite shrines. While huddling along a ravine etched into the crater's north-eastern slope – an alternative path back up – is a fascinating cluster of temples, fed by a spring, or dhar, supposedly originating from the Ganges. Before leaving, it's well worth searching out the tenth-century Chalukyan Daitya Sudana temple in Lonar village, its walls inside and out crawling with a profusion of exquisite carvings of mythological scenes.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TAXI THE EASIEST LONAR WAY TO GET TO LONAR IS BY TAXI FROM AURANGABAD, WHICH COSTS AROUND ₹3500 FOR A DAY-TRIP.

By bus There are two morning buses direct from Aurangabad (4hr), with the last bus back around 4pm; services stop in the centre of Lonar village, around 2km from the lake.

Guides For more on the crater, it's worth hiring a local guide; Gajanan Kharat (☎07260 221428) is recommended.

ACCOMMODATION MTDC HOLIDAY RESORT OPPOSITE THE CRATER ☎MAHARASHTRATOURISM.GOV.IN. THE ONLY ACCOMMODATION IN LONAR IS THIS RATHER GHOSTLY HOTEL BUILT FOR A TOURIST RUSH THAT NEVER CAME. THE ATTACHED ROOMS ARE COMFORTABLE, THOUGH UNINSPIRING, BUT THE RESTAURANT HAS A SUPERBLY SITED TERRACE WITH STUNNING VIEWS OF THE LAKE. ₹₹

Jalgaon Straddling an important junction on the Central and Western Railway networks, as well as the main trans-Deccan trunk road, NH-6, JALGAON is a prosperous market town for the region's cotton and banana growers, and a key jumping-off point for travellers heading to or from the Ajanta caves, 58km south. Even though the town holds nothing of touristic interest, you may find yourself obliged to hole up here to be well placed for a morning departure.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN THE RAILWAY JALGAON STATION, ON STATION RD, APPROPRIATELY ENOUGH, IS WELL SERVED BY MAINLINE TRAINS BETWEEN DELHI, KOLKATA AND MUMBAI, AND CONVENIENT FOR MOST CITIES TO THE NORTH ON THE CENTRAL RAILWAY. EXPRESS SERVICES ALSO PASS THROUGH EN ROUTE TO JOIN THE SOUTHEASTERN RAILWAY.

Destinations Agra (6–7 daily; 14–18hr); Aurangabad (1–3 daily; 4hr 15min–5hr 50min); Bengaluru (1–2 daily; around 24hr); Bhopal (9–10 daily; 7–9hr); Chennai (1–2 daily; 22hr 40min–23hr); Delhi (6 daily; 17hr 15min–21hr 30min); Gwalior (6–7 daily; 12hr 15min–16hr); Mumbai (hourly; 6hr 15min–9hr 20min); Nagpur (11–16 daily; 5hr 10min–8hr 20min); Nashik (20–23 daily; 2hr 30min–4hr); Pune (5–7 daily; 8hr 30min–11hr 10min); Wardha Junction (for Sevagram; 10–16 daily; 5hr 20min–6hr 30min); Varanasi (5–7 daily; 18hr 40min–24hr 40min).

By bus The busy MSRTC Bus Stand is 1.5km across town from the railway station (around ₹40–50 in an auto-rickshaw). There are frequent buses to Aurangabad (every 30min; 3hr 30min–4hr), 160km away, all of which stop at the Ajanta T-junction (1hr). MSRTC also runs buses to Mumbai (1–2 daily; 9–11hr), Nagpur (1–2 daily; 9–10hr) and Pune (4–5 daily; 9–10hr), but preferable are the (generally overnight) buses run by the private companies such as Red Bus (☎0257 222 8124, redbus.in) and Uncle Travels (☎0257 224 1294); tickets can be booked at the travel agents on Station Rd.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ★PLAZA STATION RD, 2MIN WALK FROM THE RAILWAY STATION ☎093700 27354. BY FAR THE BEST PLACE TO STAY IN JALGAON – IN FACT ONE OF THE BEST BUDGET HOTELS IN MAHARASHTRA – IS THIS WELCOMING AND VERY SPRUCE HOTEL. IMMACULATELY CLEAN ROOMS FEATURE A COOL, WHITE MINIMALIST DESIGN; THE HUGE A/C “DELUXE” ROOM IS PARTICULARLY GOOD. THE OWNER IS VERY FRIENDLY AND WELL INFORMED, AND STAFF WILL PROVIDE TEA IN YOUR ROOM IF YOU’RE LEAVING EARLY IN THE MORNING. ₹₹

Royal Palace Mahabal Rd, 10–15min auto-rickshaw ride from the railway station hotelroyalpalace.in. The grand marble lobby, decorated with a glitzy chandelier, a reproduction of the Mona Lisa and fountain filled with fish, raise expectations that the mid-range rooms fail to match; still, they are comfortable enough, and there’s a good restaurant. Book online for the best price. ₹₹

Nagpur Capital of the “land of oranges”, NAGPUR is the focus of government attempts to develop industry in the remote northeastern corner of Maharashtra – most foreign visitors come for business rather than pleasure. In the city itself, the most prominent landmark is the Sitabuldi Fort, standing on a saddle between two low hills above the railway station, though it's closed to the public. North and west of the fort, the pleasantly green Civil Lines district holds some grand Raj-era buildings, dating from the time when this was the capital of the vast Central Provinces region.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE GEOGRAPHICALLY AT NAGPUR
THE VIRTUAL CENTRE OF INDIA, NAGPUR IS HANDILY PLACED FOR CONNECTIONS ALL ACROSS THE COUNTRY – THOUGH A LONG WAY FROM ANYWHERE.

By plane The airport is around 8km southwest of the centre (around ₹300 by auto-rickshaw, more by taxi).

Destinations Delhi (4 daily; 1hr 30min); Kolkata (3 daily; 1hr 30min); Mumbai (8 daily; 1hr 20min); Pune (3 daily; 1hr 15min).

By train Nagpur's busy central mainline railway station is a short auto-rickshaw (around ₹40–50) ride from the main hotel district along Central Ave. The quickest train to Mumbai is the #12290 Nagpur CSMT Duronto (daily 8.40pm; 11hr 25min).

Destinations Bhopal (every 1–2hr; 5hr 15min–8hr 10min); Chennai (9–11 daily; 15hr–19hr 45min); Delhi (every 1–2hr; 13hr 30min–22hr 15min); Hyderabad (6–11 daily; 8hr 25min–11hr 35min); Jabalpur (4–5 daily; 8hr–11hr 10min); Jalgaon (11–16 daily; 5hr 10min–8hr 20min); Kolkata (8–10 daily; 15hr 30min–22hr 15min); Mumbai (every 1–2hr; 11hr–22hr 15min);

Nashik (8–10 daily; 9hr 20min–20hr 15min); Pune (3–5 daily; 15hr 10min–27hr 35min); Wardha Junction (for Sevagram; 16–19 daily; around 1hr).

By bus MSRTC buses pull in at the State Bus Stand, 2km southeast of the railway station.

Destinations Aurangabad (6 daily; 12hr); Jabalpur (2–3 daily; 7–8hr); Jalgaon (2–3 daily; 9hr); Pune (4–5 daily; 16hr); Ramtek (every 30min; 1hr 30min); Wardha (every 30min; 2–3hr).

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE MTDC TOURIST OFFICE (MON–SAT 10AM–6PM; ☎0712 253 3325, 🌐 MAHARASHTRATOURISM.GOV.IN) IS 2.5KM WEST OF THE CENTRE ON WEST HIGH COURT RD IN CIVIL LINES, BUT IS ONLY USEFUL FOR BOOKING ACCOMMODATION. IF YOU'RE HEADING TO MADHYA PRADESH, YOU CAN GET INFORMATION FROM THE HELPFUL MP TOURISM OFFICE ON THE FOURTH FLOOR OF THE LOKMAT BUILDING, WARDHA RD (MON–SAT 10AM–5PM EXCEPT 2ND & 3RD SAT OF MONTH; ☎0712 244 2378).

Banks and exchange The State Bank of India on Kingsway, near the railway station, changes foreign currency.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING GRAND JUST OFF CENTRAL AVE, AROUND 1KM EAST OF THE BUS STAND ☎0712 661 7850. THE GRAND IS ONE OF THE BETTER BUDGET HOTELS ON CENTRAL AVE, THOUGH AS STANDARDS ARE GENERALLY LOW, THIS ISN'T A RINGING ENDORSEMENT. THE CLEAN(ISH), FAN-COOLED ROOMS HERE ARE A BIT SHABBY, BUT PASSABLE FOR A NIGHT. ₹

Naivedhyam 198 Rani Jhansi Chowk, Sitabuldi ☎0712 256 3070. This swish, first-floor restaurant, right in the centre of town, is a Nagpur institution, serving up delicious veg Indian/Chinese food and sizzlers. There are various good-value meal combos, especially at lunchtime. Daily 11am–11pm. ₹

Pride Wardha Rd, opposite the airport 🌐pridehotel.com. One of Nagpur's best top-end hotels, the Pride often plays host to visiting cricket teams. The rooms are spacious and well equipped, though some have rather kitsch 1970s-era decor. Facilities include a pool and gym, a clutch of fine cafés/restaurants and an appealing bar. Good online discounts available. ₹₹

Radisson Blu Nagpur 7, Wardha Rd, Samarth Nagar  radissonhotels.com. Near Seminary Hills and the gardens alongside Ambazari Lake, the Radisson offers upmarket rooms and spa facilities. Rates fluctuate, so hunt around online for the best deal before booking. ₹₹

Tuli International 1km northwest of the railway station  tulihotels.com. Of Nagpur's numerous business-traveller-oriented hotels, this hotel in the quiet Sadar district probably has the most charm; its chandeliered lobby, carpeted corridors and chintzy decor give it an endearingly old-fashioned feel. Rooms are comfort-able and there's a good restaurant, coffee shop and bar. If you want a bit more luxury, try sister boutique hotel Tuli Imperial. ₹₹₹

Around Nagpur The trickle of visitors who pass through Nagpur tend to visit en route to Madhya Pradesh, or the Gandhian ashrams at Sevagram and Paunar, a two-hour journey southwest. The other worthwhile excursion is the ninety-minute bus ride northeast to the hilltop temple complex at Ramtek.

Ramtek The picturesque cluster of whitewashed hilltop temples and shrines at RAMTEK, 40km northeast of Nagpur on the main Jabalpur Road (NH-7), is one of those alluring apparitions you spy from afar on long journeys through central India. According to the Ramayana, this craggy, scrub-strewn outcrop was the spot where Rama, Sita and Lakshmana paused on their way back from Lanka. Although few traces of these ancient times have survived, the site's old paved pilgrim trails, sacred lake, tumbledown shrines and fine views across the endless plains more than live up to its distant promise.

Ram Mandir and the Kalidas Smarak Around 4.5km from the bus stand • Kalidas Smarak daily sunrise–sunset • Charge On the fringes of the town a flight of stone steps climbs steeply up the side of Ramtek hill to the Ram Mandir. Built in 1740, the temple stands on the site of a fifth-century structure, of which only three small sandstone shrines remain. Just beneath the temple complex stands the circular Kalidas Smarak, a modern memorial to the great Sanskrit poet, Kalidasa. The pavilion's interior walls are decorated with painted panels depicting scenes from his life and works.

Ambala Lake Just off the road that runs between the bus stand and the Ram Mandir Another of Ramtek's sacred sites is Ambala Lake, a holy bathing tank that lies 1.5km along a pilgrims' trail at the bottom of the gully, enfolded by a spur of parched brown hills. Many locals also release the ashes of their loved ones here. Its main attractions are the temples and ghats clinging to its muddy banks. More energetic visitors can combine a look with a parikrama, or circular tour of the tank, taking in the semi-derelict cenotaphs and weed-choked shrines scattered along the more tranquil north and western shore.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS FREQUENT RAMTEK BUSES SHUTTLE BETWEEN NAGPUR AND RAMTEK (EVERY 30MIN; 1HR 30MIN). FROM THE BUS STAND, AN AUTO-RICKSHAW WILL TAKE YOU THE 4.5KM TO THE RAM MANDIR VIA AMBALA LAKE FOR AROUND ₹200.

Sevagram 9km east of Wardha • Main ashram compound Daily 6am–6pm • Free • Visitors' centre Daily except Tues 10am–6pm

• Free • www.gandhiashramsevagram.org

SEVAGRAM, Gandhi's model "Village of Service", is deep in the serene Maharashtra countryside. The Mahatma moved here from his former ashram in Gujarat during the 1936 monsoon, on the invitation of his friend Seth Jamnalal Bajaj. At the centre of the Subcontinent, within easy reach of the Central Railway, it made an ideal headquarters for the national, nonviolent Satyagraha movement, combining seclusion with the easy access to other parts of the country Gandhi needed in order to carry out his political activities.

These days, the small settlement is a cross between a museum and living centre for the promulgation of Gandhian philosophies. Interested visitors are welcome to spend a couple of days here, helping in the fields, attending discussions and prayer meetings, and learning the dying art of hand-spinning. The older ashramites, or saadhaks, are veritable founts of wisdom when it comes to the words of their guru, Gandhiji.

Once past the absorbing visitors' centre, which documents Gandhi's life, the real focal point of the ashram is the sublimely peaceful main compound entered a few hundred metres along the road. These modest huts – among them the Mahatma's main residence – have been preserved exactly the way they were when the great man and his disciples lived here in the last years of the Independence struggle. A small shop sells handloomed cloth and other products made on site.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN WARDHA SEVAGRAM JUNCTION RAILWAY STATION, 77KM SOUTH-WEST OF NAGPUR AND 9KM WEST OF SEVAGRAM, HAS REGULAR SERVICES TO/FROM NAGPUR (16-19 DAILY; AROUND 1HR)AND JALGAON (10-16 DAILY; 5HR 20MIN–6HR 30MIN).

By bus Local buses (every 30min; around 20min) run between Wardha and the crossroads outside the Kasturba Gandhi Hospital, from where it's a 1km walk to the ashram. Buses also connect Nagpur and Wardha (every 30min; 2–3hr).

By auto-rickshaw An auto-rickshaw from the bus stand to Sevagram and Paunar (see below) costs around ₹350.

ACCOMMODATION RUSTAM BHAVAN GUEST HOUSE IN THE MAIN ASHRAM COMPOUND

GHANDIASHRAMSEVAGRAM.ORG. IF YOU WANT TO SPEND SOME TIME AT THE ASHRAM, YOU CAN STAY IN THE BASIC
BUT SPOTLESS RUSTAM BHAVAN GUEST HOUSE, THOUGH YOU WILL BE EXPECTED TO DO A COUPLE OF HOURS' COMMUNAL WORK A DAY. SIMPLE, SUPER-HEALTHY VEG MEALS ARE ON OFFER. ₹

Paunar Vinoba Bhave's ashram at PAUNAR, 3km from Sevagram has a more dynamic feel than its more famous cousin at Sevagram. Bhave (1895–1982), a close friend and disciple of Gandhi, best remembered for his successful Bhoodan, or land gift, campaign to persuade wealthy landowners to hand over farmland to the poor, founded the ashram in 1938 to develop the concept of swarajya, or “self-sufficiency”. Consequently, organic gardening, milk production, spinning and weaving have an even higher profile here than the regular meditation, prayer and yoga sessions. Another difference between this institution and the one up the road is that the saadhaks here are almost all female.

In the living quarters, Bhave's old room is kept as a shrine. Stone steps lead down from the upper level to a small terrace looking out over the ghats, where two small memorials mark the spots where a handful of Gandhi's, and later Bhave's, ashes were scattered onto the river. Every year, on January 30, the ghats are inundated with half a million people who come here to mark the anniversary of Gandhi's death.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS PAUNAR CAN BE PAUNAR REACHED BY BUS FROM WARDHA (EVERY 30MIN; 2–3HR); HOP OFF AT THE OLD STONE BRIDGE, WHICH IS CLOSE TO THE ASHRAM.

On foot Alternatively, you can walk the 3km from Sevagram. The path, a cart track that runs over the hill opposite the hospital crossroads, comes out in the roadside village 1km west of the Paunar ashram.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING PAUNAR ASHRAM 3KM FROM SEVAGRAM ☎07152 288388. AS WITH SEVAGRAM, IT IS POSSIBLE TO STAY IN ONE OF THE VISITORS' ROOMS AT THE ASHRAM, THOUGH YOU SHOULD CALL IN ADVANCE TO CHECK THERE'S SPACE. MEALS, MADE FROM ORGANIC, HOME-GROWN PRODUCE, ARE AVAILABLE ON REQUEST. ₹

Tadoba Andhari Tiger Reserve Daily except Tues: March & April 5.30–10am & 3–6.30pm; May & June 5–9.30am & 3.30–7pm; Oct & Nov 6–10am & 2.30–6.30pm; Dec–Feb 6.30–11am & 2–6pm; closed rest of year Visitor numbers are slowly increasing at the Tadoba Andhari Tiger Reserve, 140km south of Nagpur, but it remains a great place to spot a big cat (there are an estimated forty-plus tigers here) without the crowds you get at some of India's other parks. The forests and lakes of the reserve, which spans over 625 square kilometres, are also home to mugger crocodiles, leopards, hyenas, and honey badgers, plus 195 species of birds.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY CAR THE PARK IS A 2HR DRIVE FROM NAGPUR; A TADoba ANDHARI TIGER RESERVE TAXI/RENTAL CAR AND DRIVER COSTS ₹3500–4500.

By bus There are buses (3–4 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr) from Nagpur to the city of Chandrapur, around 5km from the reserve.

Safaris The following prices are all per safari: ₹350 per guide per safari. Vehicle numbers are restricted, so book ahead. Many lodges will do this for you; if not visit mahaecotourism.gov.in. A range of other activities are available, including hikes in the “buffer zone” around the park, and canoe and boat trips. Book via your lodge.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING MTDC TADOBA MOHARLI GATE 🌐MTDC.CO/EN. THE BEST BUDGET OPTION NEAR THE PARK, BESIDE A LAKE, THIS LODGE HAS SIMPLE, CLEAN BUT RATHER AUSTERE ROOMS WITH EITHER FAN OR A/C. THERE'S A RESTAURANT AND STAFF CAN HELP ORGANIZE SAFARIS. ₹₹

Tadoba Vanya Villas 🌐tadobavanyavillas.com. Just north of the park gates, this top-end resort has luxury suites, a pool and a splendid spa amid expansive grounds. Rates include full board, and the well-informed staff can organize safaris and transfers for you. ₹₹₹₹

The Konkan coast Despite the gradual appearance of a string of resorts aimed at wealthy urbanites, the coast stretching south from Mumbai, known as the Konkan, remains relatively unspoilt. Empty beaches, backed by casuarina and areca trees and coconut plantations, regularly slip in and out of view, framed by the distant Western Ghats, while little fortified towns preserve a distinct coastal culture, with its own dialect of Marathi and fiery cuisine. The number of rivers and estuaries slicing the coast meant that for years this little-explored area was difficult to navigate, but the Konkan railway, which winds inland between Mumbai and Kerala via Goa, now renders it more easily accessible; proposals for a seaplane service from Mumbai have rumbled on for years – check the latest with the MTDC.

Murud-Janjira The first interesting place to break the journey south is the small port of MURUD-JANJIRA, 165km south of Mumbai. A traditional trade centre that once belonged to a dynasty of former Abyssinian slaves known as the Siddis, it still has plenty of attractive wooden houses, some brightly painted and fronted by pillared verandas. The gently shelving beach is wide and generally safe for swimming, though the sea is more inviting further south or north. Currents throughout the region, however, can be strong, and people have drowned here in recent years.

In Murud, the 1661 Kasa Fort sits in the open sea 2km off the beach but cannot be visited, nor can the impressive nineteenth-century palace of the last nawab, which dominates the northern end of the bay. Fine views of the coast and surrounding countryside can be had, however, from the hilltop Dattatreya Temple, sporting an Islamic-style tower but dedicated to the triple-headed deity comprising Brahma, Vishnu and Shiva.

Janjira Fort 5km south of Murud • Daily dawn–dusk • Free • Local hodka boats (20min) sail to the fort from the Rajpuri jetty, a short auto-rickshaw ride away, though, since they seat twenty and only leave when full, at quiet times you may have to charter the boat yourself (around ₹600) Just offshore some 5km south of Murud-Janjira stands the imposing sixteenth-century Janjira Fort, one of the few the Marathas failed to penetrate, and now a picture of majestic dereliction. The boat trip to the fort is a serene one, and once there you're given an hour to explore the formidable battlements, though the interior lies mostly in ruins. This also makes for an excellent spot for aerial photography.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS AND MURUD-JANJIRA CATAMARAN OR FERRY THE NEAREST RAILHEAD IS ROHA, A 2HR BUS RIDE AWAY, WHICH IS WHY MOST TRAVELLERS STILL REACH THE TOWN VIA ONE OF THE HYDROFOIL CATAMARANS OR REGULAR FERRIES (ROUGHLY HOURLY; 1HR) FROM THE GATEWAY OF INDIA IN MUMBAI TO MANDAWA, ON THE SOUTHERN SIDE OF MUMBAI HARBOUR. BUSES MEET THE BOATS AND SHUTTLE PASSENGERS TO ALIBAG (45MIN), FROM WHERE YOU CAN CATCH A BUS TO MURUD (EVERY 1-2HR; 2HR). MOST DIRECT BUS SERVICES (EVERY 1-2HR) FROM MUMBAI CENTRAL TAKE 6HR; THERE ARE ALSO TWO FASTER BUSES (4HR 30MIN) WHICH MUST BE BOOKED IN ADVANCE. BUSES STOP ALONG MURUD'S MAIN STREET, DURBAR RD, PARALLEL TO THE COAST.

Banks and exchange Bring enough cash to cover your stay – at the time of writing there was no ATM or currency exchange facilities.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING GOLDEN SWAN RESORT ON THE EDGE OF TOWN, 1KM NORTH OF THE CHOWK ④ GOLDENSWAN.COM. THIS RESORT IS THE MOST COMFORTABLE OPTION, WITH A/C COTTAGES (₹-₹₹) SLEEPING UP TO SIX PEOPLE AND SMART A/C ROOMS (SOME WITH VIEWS OF THE SEA AND THE FORT); WEEKEND RATES (GIVEN HERE) INCLUDE FULL BOARD; PRICES DROP BY ABOUT A THIRD DURING THE WEEK, BUT ONLY BREAKFAST IS INCLUDED. BICYCLE AND TWO-WHEELER RENTAL IS AVAILABLE. ₹₹₹

Sea Shell Resort Darbar Rd, next to the police station ④ seashellmurud.com. This centrally located, resort-style hotel has decent if rather plain rooms (with fans or a/c) overlooking the sea and a small pool shaded by palm trees, and a restaurant. Staff can arrange dolphin-spotting boat trips. ₹₹

Raigad Fort 100km southeast of Murud-Janjira • Daily 8am-5.30pm • Charge Around 100km southeast of Murud-Janjira are the impressive remains of the sixteenth-century Raigad Fort. Once the capital of Maratha king Shivaji, the fort was sacked by the British in 1818. Described by some as the “Gibraltar of the East”, the fort is perched on top of an 820m verdant but rocky hill. It is accessed via some 1450 steps (a 3hr–3hr 30min climb) or a “ropeway” (see below).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TAXI RAIGAD RAIGAD FORT IS A CHALLENGE TO GET TO WITHOUT YOUR OWN WHEELS; THE EASIEST OPTION IS TO HIRE A TAXI IN MURUD-JANJIRA (AROUND ₹2500–3000 RETURN, WITH WAITING TIME).

Ropeway If you don’t fancy climbing the 1450 odd steps, a ropeway (cable car) runs to the peak (daily 8am–5pm; ₹300 return; ☎02145 202122, 🌐 raigadropeway.com).

Ganpatipule Some 215km south of Murud-Janjira lies GANPATIPULE, a tiny village centred on a modern Ganapati temple. Approached via a long, covered walkway, the temple is built around a Ganapati omnar, a naturally formed – though hardly accurate – image of the elephant god, which attracts thousands of Indian pilgrims each year. Much more impressive is Ganpatipule’s spectacular white-sand beach, which extends for several kilometres either side of the village. The sea is generally safe for swimming, though you should exercise caution between June and October, when currents can be particularly strong.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN/BUS TO GANPATIPULE
GET TO GANPATIPULE, EITHER MAKE YOUR WAY TO RATNAGIRI (ON THE KONKAN RAILWAY AND WELL CONNECTED BY BUSES TO OTHER CITIES IN THE STATE) AND TAKE A LOCAL BUS (EVERY 30MIN–1HR; 1HR 30MIN) THE LAST 32KM, OR CATCH ONE OF THE DIRECT MSRTC SERVICES FROM MUMBAI (1–2 DAILY; 10HR) OR KOLHAPUR (EVERY 2–3HR; 4HR). BUSES USUALLY STOP OUTSIDE THE MTDC RESORT, THOUGH AT FESTIVAL TIMES YOU MAY BE DROPPED ALONG THE MAIN ROAD AT THE EDGE OF THE VILLAGE, A 1.5KM WALK OR RICKSHAW RIDE FROM THE BEACH.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ★ATITHI PARINAY 12KM SOUTH OF GANPATIPULE  ATITHIPARINAY.COM. OWNED BY AN INTERIOR DESIGNER AND HER MOTHER, THIS DELIGHTFUL HOMESTAY IS A GREAT PLACE TO UNWIND. CHOOSE TO STAY IN A COMFORTABLE “SWISS” TENT, COTTAGE, BUNGALOW, OR VERY ATMOSPHERIC TREEHOUSE. HOME-COOKED VEG MEALS ARE ON OFFER, AS ARE YOGA, HIKING, BEACH AND RIVER VISITS, AND TRIPS TO LOCAL PALACES, TEMPLES AND A TRADITIONAL BOAT-MAKING CENTRE. ₹₹

Beach and around In the far south of the Konkan coast, 195km south of Ganpatipule, the scenic town of MALVAN is a relaxing place to spend a few days. Just offshore lies the eye-catching Sindhudurg Fort, and 6km to the south is the palm-fringed Tarkali Beach, where the Karli River meets the sea. Boat cruises along the river and dive trips to the nearby coral reefs are both popular activities; try the Indian Institute of Scuba Diving and Aquatic Sports (see below); alternatively, staff at the MTDC Tarkali Beach Resort (see below) can advise on reputable companies (there are several unscrupulous and inexperienced dive shops in and around Malvan).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN/BUS THE NEAREST RAILWAY STATION ISMALVAN, TARKALI BEACH AND AROUND 40KM AWAY IN

KUDAL, FROM WHERE THERE ARE REGULAR BUSES (EVERY 1–2HR DURING THE DAY; 1HR). THERE ARE ALSO BUSES TO KOLHAPUR (5–6 DAILY; 4HR 30MIN–6HR).

Diving The Indian Institute of Scuba Diving and Aquatic Sports has a centre in Tarkali, offering dives (from ₹2500) and a range of PADI courses (from ₹18,000), as well as accommodation: book via Maharashtra Tourism (www.maharashtratourism.gov.in).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING MTDC TARKALI BEACH RESORT TARKALI BEACH www.MAHARASHTRATOURISM.GOV.IN. ONE OF THE MORE COMFORTABLE OPTIONS IN THE AREA, RIGHT ON THE BEACH, HAS ATTACHED CABINS – LARGE AND CLEAN BUT DECORATED IN THE TYPICALLY UNIMAGINATIVE MTDC STYLE – AS WELL AS A DECENT RESTAURANT SERVING INDO-CHINESE FARE. ₹₹

The Windmill Resorts Devbag Sangam Rd, Bhanji Wadi, Devbag www.maharashtratourism.gov.in. One of the more comfortable options in the area, right on the beach, has attached cabins – large and clean but decorated in the typically unimaginative MTDC style – as well as a decent restaurant serving Indo-Chinese fare. ₹₹₹

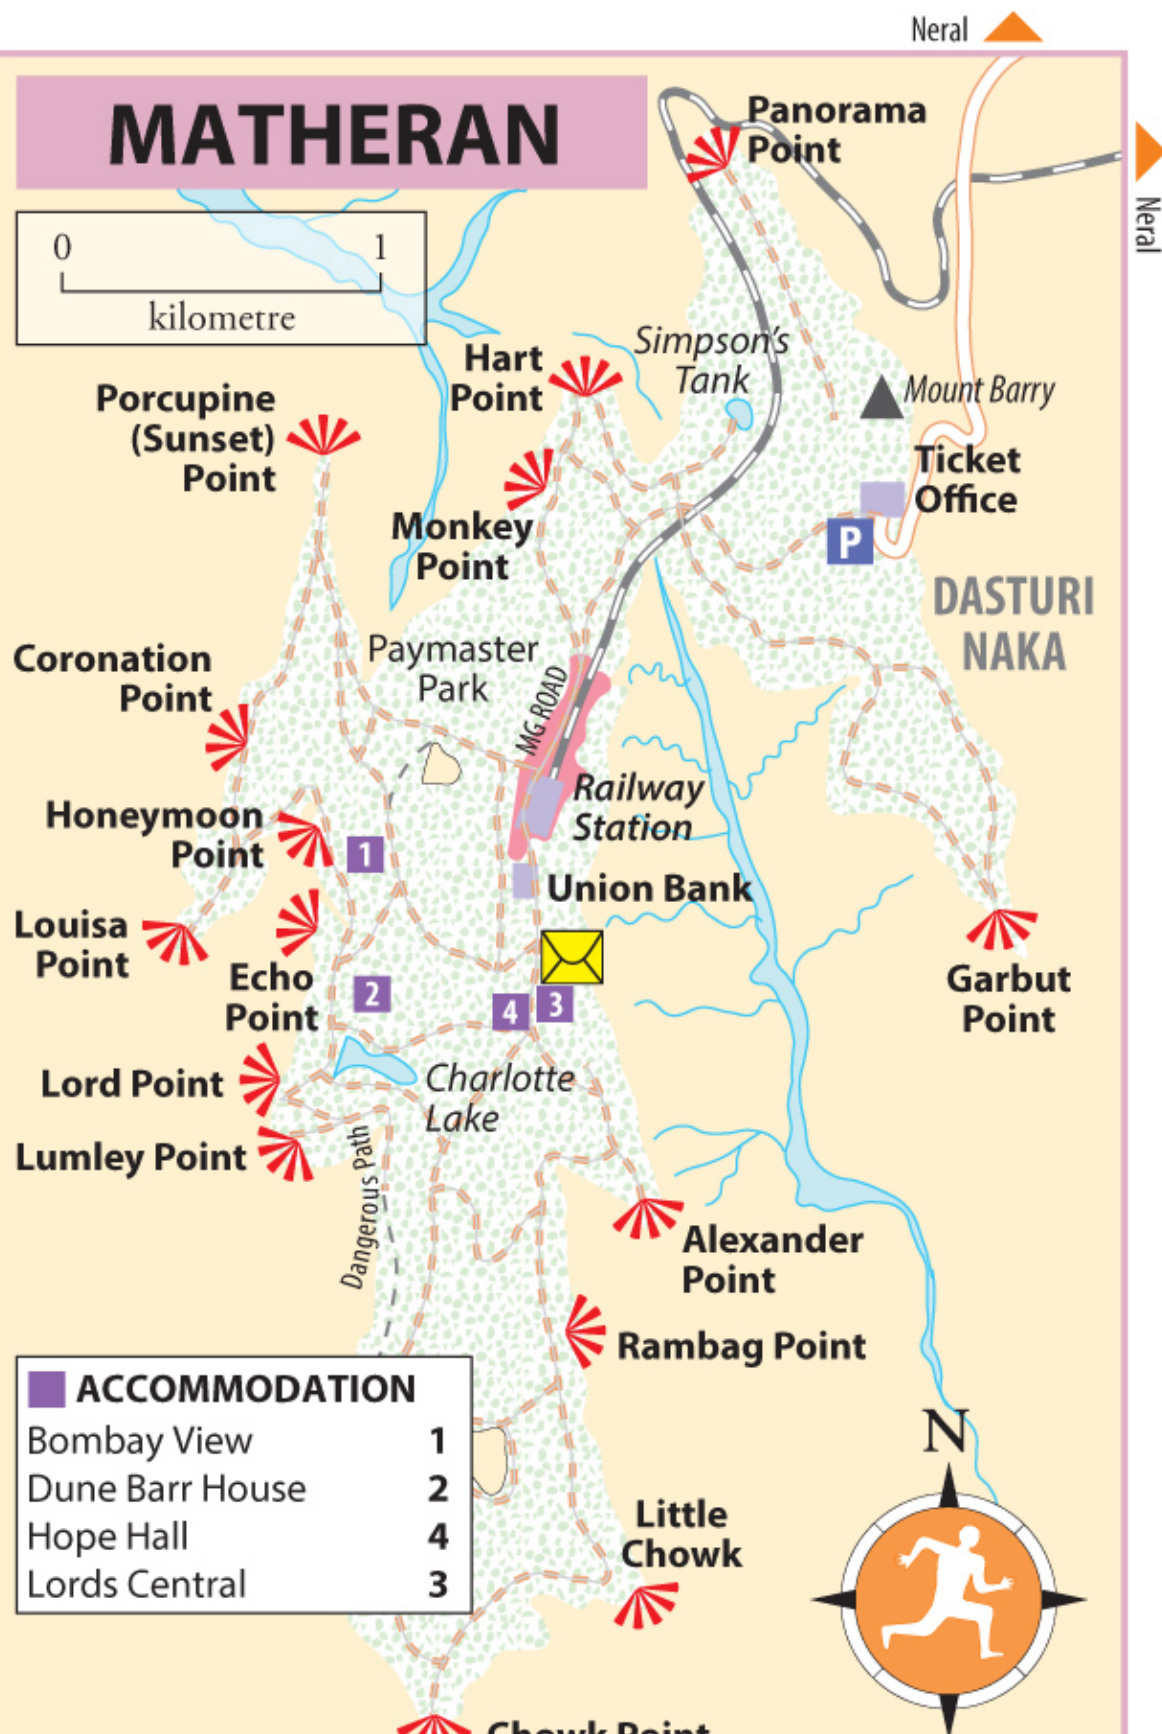

Matheran The hill station of MATHERAN, 108km east of Mumbai, is set on a narrow north–south ridge at an altitude of 800m in the Sahyadri Range. From evocatively named viewpoints, at the edge of sheer cliffs that plunge into deep ravines, you can see way across the hazy plains – on a good day, so they say, as far as Mumbai. The town itself, shrouded in thick mist for much of the year, has, for the moment, one unique attribute: cars, buses, motorbikes and auto-rickshaws are banned. That, added to the journey up, on a miniature train that chugs its way through spectacular scenery to the crest of the hill, gives the town an agreeably quaint, time-warped feel.

Matheran (“forest on the forehead”) has been a popular retreat from the heat and humidity of Mumbai since the nineteenth century. These days, few foreign visitors venture up here, and those who do only hang around for a couple of days, to kill time before a flight or to sample the charms of Matheran’s colonial-era hotels. The tourist season lasts from mid-September to late-May (at other times it’s raining or misty), and is at its most hectic around Diwali and Christmas, in April and May, and over virtually any weekend. There’s really nothing to do but relax, explore the woods on foot or horseback and enjoy the views.

As the crow flies, Matheran is only 6.5km from Neral on the plain below, but the train climbs up on 21km of track with no fewer than 281 curves, said to be among the sharpest on any railway in the world. Sadly, the steam engines that once handled the demanding haul puffed their last in 1980, to be replaced by cast-off diesels from hill stations like Darjeeling, Shimla and Ooty. The train ride is a treat, especially if you get a window seat, but be prepared for a squash unless you travel first class.

MATHERAN

The points and forest walks Matheran occupies a long, narrow, semi-circular plateau, bounded for most of its extent by sheer cliffs. These taper at regular intervals into outcrops, or points, revealing through the tree canopy wonderful panoramas of distant hills and plains.

For a quick taster, head south from the main bazaar past Lords Central hotel on Matheran's eastern flank to Alexander Point, pressing on beyond it to Chowk Point – the most southerly of the mountain's spurs. This shouldn't take more than a couple of hours return. Another enjoyable route on an old cart track winds around the western rim, past a series of gorgeous British-era bungalows to Louisa, Coronation and Sunset (or Porcupine) points, the last regarded as the choicest place to see the sun go down.

Accurate topographical maps of the mountain and its many paths are all but impossible to come by, although there's a wonderful old British one proudly on display in the dining room of Lords Central Hotel which walkers are welcome to consult.

All the viewpoints are walkable, and horses and rickshaws are available (see Arrival and Information below).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN TO MATHERAN REACH MATHERAN BY RAIL YOU MUST FIRST GET TO NERAL JUNCTION, SERVED BY TRAINS FROM MUMBAI (2–3 DAILY; AROUND 1HR 30MIN); OTHER TRAINS TRAVEL BETWEEN MUMBAI AND KARJAT, FROM WHERE YOU CAN BACKTRACK TO NERAL ON SUBURBAN SERVICES. ONE OR TWO DAILY FAST TRAINS (2HR 40MIN) TRAVEL BETWEEN NERAL AND PUNE; THERE ARE MORE FREQUENT SERVICES BETWEEN PUNE AND KARJAT. FROM MID-OCT TO MID-JUNE, NARROW-GAUGE TRAINS CHUG UP FROM NERAL TO MATHERAN (2–5 DAILY; 2HR). DURING THE MONSOON SERVICES ARE WEATHER DEPENDENT AND UNRELIABLE. ALL TRAINS ARE TIMED TO TIE IN WITH INCOMING MAINLINE EXPRESSES, SO DON'T WORRY ABOUT MISSING A CONNECTION IF THE ONE YOU'RE ON IS DELAYED – THE TOY TRAIN SHOULD WAIT.

NEVERTHELESS IT'S WORTH BOOKING A DAY IN ADVANCE AT WEEKENDS. MATHERAN RAILWAY STATION IS IN THE TOWN CENTRE ON MG RD, WHICH RUNS ROUGHLY NORTH-SOUTH.

By minibus or taxi A taxi from Mumbai (2hr 30min–3hr) to Matheran costs from around ₹2400, one to Pune costs from around ₹2500 (2hr 30min–3hr). Shared taxis and minibuses (both 30min) shuttle regularly between Matheran and Neral. All motorized transport parks at the taxi stand next to the MTDC Resort at Dasturi Naka, 2km from central Matheran.

Banks and exchange Neither of Matheran's banks offers foreign exchange, though the ATM at the Union Bank, just south of the station, accepts foreign cards; nevertheless, it is worth bringing some cash with you just in case.

GETTING AROUND BY PORTER, HORSE AND RICKSHAW FROM THE TAXI STAND – AFTER PAYING THE ENTRY TOLL (₹50 ADULTS, ₹25 CHILDREN) – YOU CAN WALK WITH A PORTER (AROUND ₹150–300), BE LED BY A RATHER FRAIL-LOOKING HORSE (AROUND ₹350) OR TAKE A HAND-PULLED RICKSHAW (AROUND ₹500) TO YOUR HOTEL; YOU ARE EXPECTED TO HAGGLE. IF YOU'RE HAPPY TO CARRY YOUR OWN BAGS, FOLLOW THE RAIL TRACKS, WHICH CUT STRAIGHT TO THE MIDDLE OF MATHERAN, RATHER THAN THE MORE CONVOLUTED DIRT ROAD. TRIPS TO THE TOWN'S VARIOUS VIEWPOINTS COST FROM ₹350 BY HORSE AND ₹500 BY RICKSHAW.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Matheran has plenty of hotels, though all are pricey – particularly at weekends, when rates almost double (book ahead), and during peak periods when they become astronomical. Most are near the railway station on MG Road. Note that 10–11am checkouts are standard, and many places close down during the rainy off-season. The town's hoteliers almost universally refuse beds to “stags” (single male travellers). Most places only have hot water in the morning. Many provide full or half-board at reasonable rates; there are also numerous thali joints near the station.

Bombay View Southwest of Paymaster Park, 1.5km from the station 📍 bombayviewhotelmatheran.com. Housed in a huge, converted colonial-era mansion and annexe, this establishment is a notch pricier than the more basic places down by the station, but just about worth the extra. The rooms are dated, but most have plenty of space, as well as forest or garden views. Gujarati and Jain food is on offer. ₹₹₹

★Dune Barr House 2km southwest of station 📍 dunewellnessgroup.com. Hidden away in the woods, just above Charlotte Lake, this sumptuously restored nineteenth-century bungalow is reason enough to visit Matheran. As well as period decor and furnishings, its greatest asset is a huge west-facing veranda smothered in foliage – one of the most perfect spots in India for lunch (₹₹) or afternoon tea and biscuits (though beware the pilfering monkeys). ₹₹₹

Hope Hall MG Rd, opposite Lords Central 📍 hopehallmatheran.com. Situated at the quiet end of town and open since 1875, Hope Hall has decent-sized, clean, attached “small” and “large” rooms (sleeping up to four and five people respectively; the better ones come with high ceilings and a shared veranda) scattered across a secluded yard. Badminton and table-tennis facilities available. ₹₹₹

Lords Central MG Rd 📍 matheranhotels.com. Though worn at the edges – its wonky verandas, poinsettias, hard beds and tasty (and copious) set meals give it the feel of a 1930s boarding house – eccentric, Raj-era Lords is one of Matheran’s best-loved institutions, thanks in no small part to its irreverent, anecdote-loving Parsi owners. It also boasts spectacular views from its poolside terrace garden. ₹₹₹

Lonavala and around Forty years ago, LONAVALA (also spelt Lonavla), 110km southeast of Mumbai and 62km northwest of Pune, was a quiet town in the Sahyadri Hills. Since then, the place has mushroomed to cope with hordes of weekenders and second-home owners from the state capital, and is now only of interest as a base for the magnificent Buddhist caves of Karla and Bhaja, some of the finest rock-cut architecture in the northwest of the Deccan region. Though not as impressive as Ajanta and Ellora, they have some beautifully preserved ancient sculpture. It is also a popular choice for many of Mumbai's corporate offices to organise retreats and team building exercises in Lonavala.

Bhaja

9km east of Lonavala • Daily 9am-5pm • Charge • Local trains run roughly hourly from Lonavala (20–30min) to Malavli railway station, 2km from the caves; from here follow the road south of the station until it peters out (1.5km), from where it's a steep 10min climb up to the caves The excavations at caves at BHAJA are among India's oldest, dating from the late second to early first century BC, during the earliest, Hinayana, phase of Buddhism. You enter the complex opposite Bhaja's apsidal chaitya hall, which contains a stupa but no figures. Its 27 plain bevelled pillars lean inwards, mimicking the style of wooden buildings, and sockets in the stone of the exterior arch reveal that it once contained a wooden gate or facade. Most of the other caves consist of simple halls – viharas – with adjoining cells that contain plain shelf-like beds; many are fronted by rough verandas. Further south, beyond a mysterious dense cluster of fourteen stupas, the veranda of the last cave, a vihara, is decorated with superb carvings, which scholars have identified as the figures of the Hindu gods, Surya and Indra.

VISITING BHAJA AND KARLA THE TWO SITES LIE SOME 6KM APART, TO THE EAST OF LONAVALA, AND CAN BE COVERED BY BUS AND/OR TRAIN IN A DAY, IF YOU ARE PREPARED FOR A GOOD WALK (BRING PLENTY OF WATER), THOUGH IT IS EASIER TO HIRE AN AUTO-RICKSHAW (AROUND ₹600) OR TAXI (AROUND ₹1500) FOR THE TOUR, BOTH OF WHICH CAN USUALLY BE FOUND AT LONAVALA RAILWAY STATION. AVOID WEEKENDS IF YOU WANT TO ENJOY THE CAVES IN PEACE; KARLA, IN PARTICULAR, GETS SWAMPED WITH NOISY DAY-TRIPPERS TO ITS HINDU SHRINE.

Karla

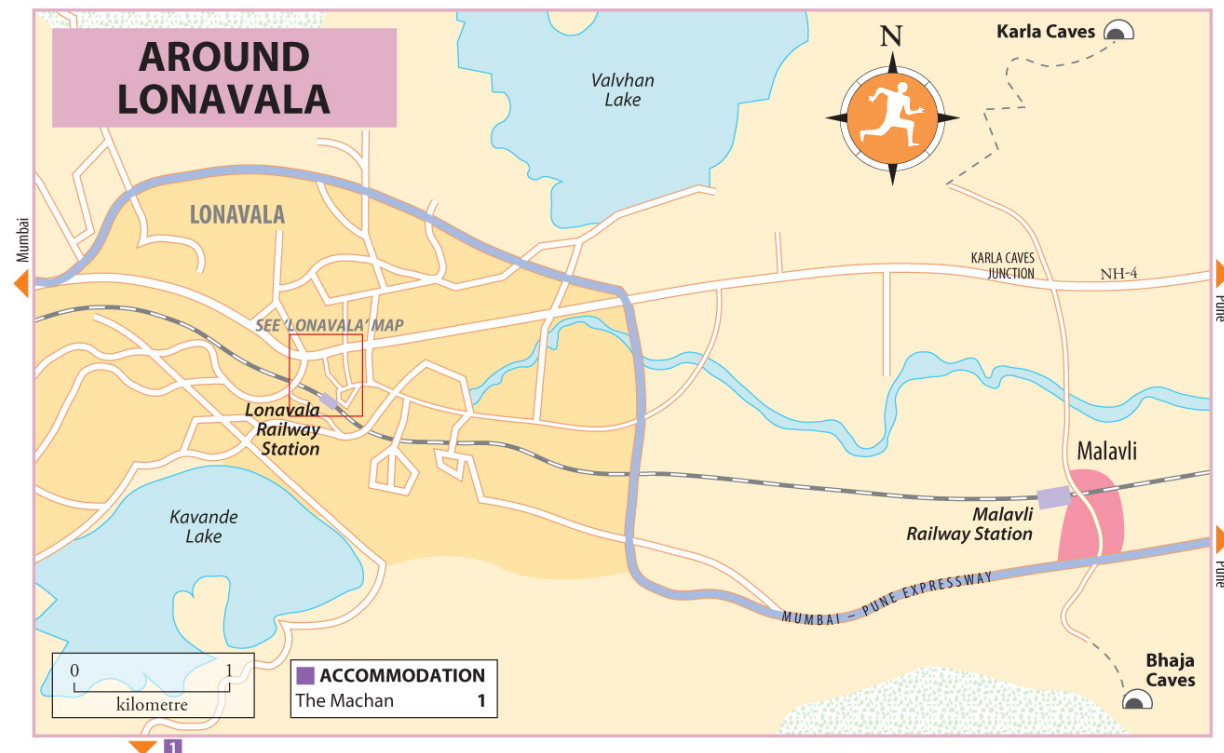

3km north of the Karla Caves junction on the Mumbai–Pune Road and 11km from Lonavala • Daily 9am–5.30pm • Charge • Three morning buses (generally 9am, 10am & 11.30am; 30min) head for the caves directly from Lonavala, with the last bus returning from Karla at 5pm The rock-cut Buddhist chaitya hall at KARLA (also Karli), reached by steep steps that climb 110m, is the largest and best preserved in India, dating from the first century AD. Though partially obstructed by a modern Hindu temple housing a shrine to Ekviri, the enormous 14m-high facade of the hall, topped by a horseshoe-shaped window, is still an impressive sight. To the left of the entrance stands a simhas stambha, a tall column capped with four lions, while in the porch of the cave, dividing its three doorways, are panels of figures in six couples, presumed to have been the wealthy patrons of the hall. With their expressive faces and sensuous bodies, it's hard to believe these figures were carved around two thousand years ago.

Two rows of octagonal columns with pot-shaped bases divide the interior into three, forming a wide central aisle and, on the outside, a hall that allowed devotees to walk around the monolithic stupa at the back. Above each pillar's fluted capital kneel a pair of finely carved elephants, each mounted by two riders, one with arms draped over the other's shoulders. Amazingly, some of the timber rafters supporting the arched roof appear to date from the time when the hall was in use.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS LONAVALA AND AROUND THE CENTRAL BUS STAND IS JUST OFF THE OLD MUMBAI–

PUNE ROAD, BUT THE TRAIN IS AN INFINITELY PREFERABLE WAY TO TRAVEL.

By train The railway station is in the south of town, a 10min walk from the bus stand. Lonavala is on the main railway line between Mumbai (every hour or so; 2hr–2hr 30min) and Pune (every hour or so; around 1hr), and most express trains stop here.

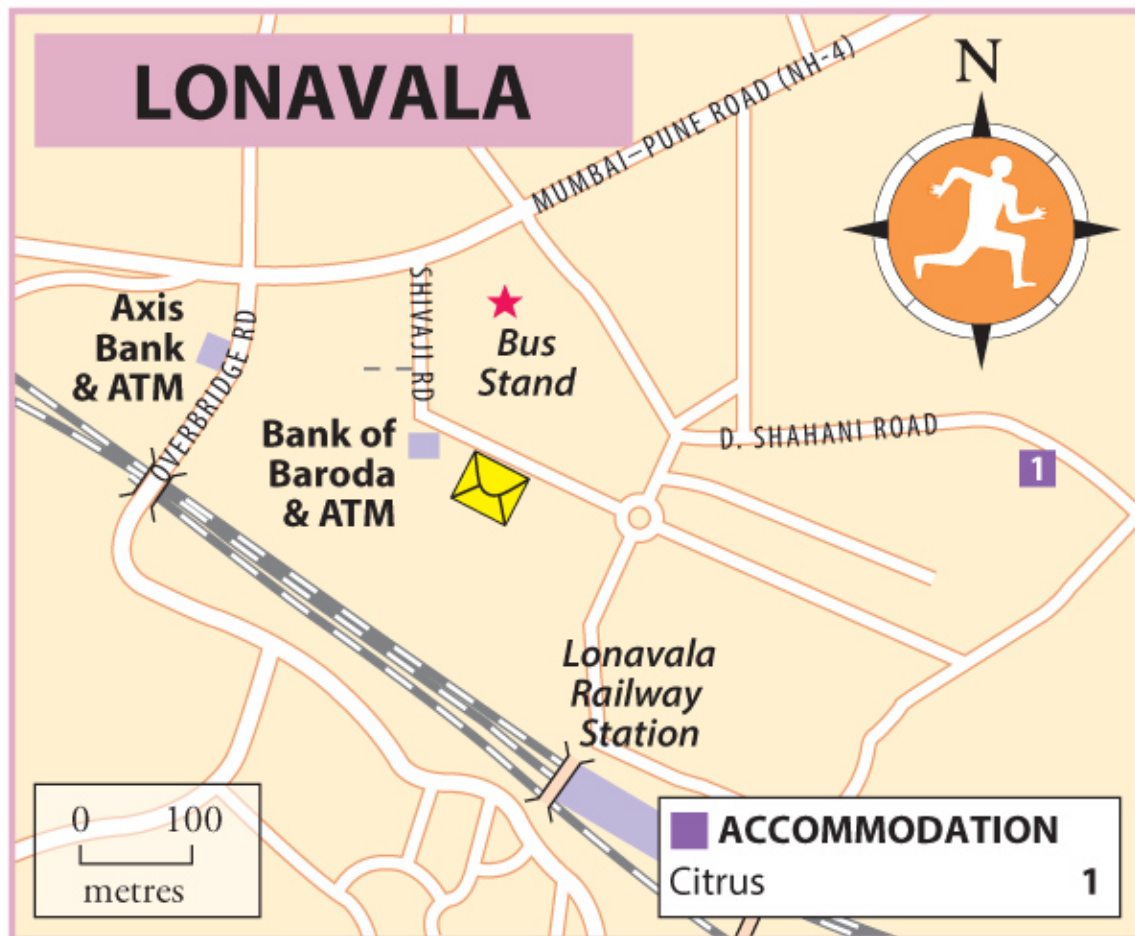

ACCOMMODATION

MAP AND THIS MAP

With the odd exception, Lonavala's limited accommodation offers poor value, mainly because demand well outstrips supply for much of the year. Rates drop between Oct and March. Numerous shops sell the local sweet specialty, chikki – a moreish caramelisation of solid jaggery mixed with peanuts, sesame seeds or coconut.

Citrus D Shahani Rd, a 5min auto-rickshaw ride from the bus or railway station citrushotels.com. Slick, business-traveller-focused hotel, somewhat incongruously tucked into a sleepy backstreet. The minimalist rooms are arranged within lemon-fragranced blocks. There's a spa, tiny cinema, chic courtyard, and excellent Italian/Mediterranean restaurant. ₹₹₹

The Machan Jambulne, 17km south of Lonavala @ themachan.com. Easily the best place to stay in the area (for those who are looking to increase their green credentials), the Machan is an “off-grid” (all the electricity is generated by solar and wind power) eco-friendly resort in a rural location surrounding by 25 acres of grounds. Accommodation is provided in luxurious treehouses high above the canopy, making them a haven for birders, as well as in a charming cabin. Massages are available and rates include half-board. ₹₹₹₹

Pune

At an altitude of 598m, the sophisticated city of PUNE (sometimes anglicised as Poona), Maharashtra’s second largest, lies close to the Western

Ghat mountains (known here as the Sahyadri Hills), on the edge of the Deccan plains as they stretch away to the east. Capital of the Marathas' sovereign state in the sixteenth century, its rulers were deposed by the Brahmin Peshwa family. Pune was – thanks to its cool, dry climate – chosen by the British in 1820 as an alternative headquarters for the Bombay Presidency. Since the colonial days, Pune has continued to develop as a major industrial city and is one of India's fastest growing business and tech centres. Signs of prosperity abound, from multistorey apartment blocks and gated estates, to coffee shops, air-conditioned malls and hip boutiques. Pune, recently voted India's most "liveable city", also has a couple of spiritual claims to fame: Koregaon Park is home to the famous Osho ashram, while on the outskirts is yogarcharya BKS Iyengar's illustrious yoga centre.

Pune's centre is bordered to the north by the River Mula and to the west by the River Mutha – the two join in the northwest to form the Mutha-Mula, at Sangam Bridge. The principal shopping area, and the greatest concentration of restaurants and hotels, is in the streets south of the railway station, particularly Connaught and, further south, MG Road. The old Peshwa part of town, by far the most interesting to explore, is towards the west between the fortified Shaniwarwada Palace and fascinating Raja Dinkar Kelkar Museum; old wooden wadas – palatial city homes – survive on these narrow, busy streets, and the Victorian, circular Mahatma Phule Market is always a hive of activity.

Raja Dinkar Kelkar Museum 1378 Shukrawar Peth • Daily 10am–5.30pm • Charge • 020 2446 1556

Dinkar Gangadhar Kelkar (1896–1990), aside from being a celebrated Marathi poet published under the name Adnyatwasi, spent much of his life travelling and collecting arts and crafts from all over the country. In 1975, he donated his collection to the Maharashtra government for the creation of a museum dedicated to the memory of his son, Raja, who died at the age of 12. Housed in a huge old-town mansion, the Raja Dinkar Kelkar Museum is a wonderful potpourri in which beauty and interest is found in artistic and everyday objects, though the sheer scale of the collection – 21,000 pieces strong – means that only a fraction can be shown at any one time. Paraphernalia associated with paan, the Indian passion, includes containers in every conceivable design: some mimic people, animals or fish, others are egg-shaped and in delicate filigree.

Also on show are musical instruments, superb Marathi and Gujarati textiles and costumes, domestic shrines, puppets, ivory games and a model of Shaniwarwada Palace; while curiosities include a suit of fish-scale armour, a collection of intricate noodle-makers and an entire cabinet full of “erotic nut cutters”.

Shaniwarwada Palace 1km north of the Kelkar Museum • Palace Daily 9.30am–5.30pm • Charge • Sound-and-light show Daily except Tues 8pm In the centre of the oldest part of town only the imposing high walls of the Shaniwarwada Palace survived a huge conflagration in 1828. The chief residence of the Peshwas from 1732, built by Bajirao-I until it was captured by the British in 1817, the building has little to excite interest today, though there’s a sound-and-light show in English. The entrance is through the Delhi gate on the north side, one of five set into the perimeter wall, whose huge teak doors come complete with nasty elephant-proof spikes. The interior of the palace is now grassed over, the seven-storey building entirely absent. A popular Bollywood film Bajirao Mastani was based on the illustrious king and his second wife Mastani.

Aga Khan Palace and Gandhi Memorial 5km northeast of the city centre • Daily 9am–5.30pm • Charge • An auto-rickshaw costs around ₹100–120 from the city centre In 1942, Mahatma Gandhi, his wife Kasturba and other key figures of the freedom movement were interned at the grand Aga Khan Palace, which is set in quiet leafy gardens across the river, 5km northeast of the centre. The Aga Khan donated the palace to the state in 1969, and it is now a small Gandhi Museum, typical of many all over India, with captioned photos and simple rooms unchanged since they were occupied by the freedom fighters. A memorial behind the house commemorates Kasturba, who died during their imprisonment.

Tribal Museum Koregaon Rd, 1.5km east of the railway station • Daily 10am–5pm • Charge The Tribal Research and Training Institute, which runs the Tribal Museum, is dedicated to the protection and documentation of Maharashtra’s forty-plus tribal groups, who number around ten million. The museum’s photos, artefacts and outdoor dioramas serve as an excellent introduction to this little-known world, but the highlights are the wonderful collections of dance masks and unique Worli paintings.

Osho International Meditation Resort 17 Koregaon Park Rd, 2km northeast of the railway station • www.osho.com • Welcome Center Daily 9am–1pm & 2–4pm • Charge • Osho Teerth Daily 7–9am & 3–6pm • Free with day-pass Pune is the headquarters of the infamous Osho International Meditation Resort. Set amid 28 acres of landscaped gardens and woodland, the ashram of the now-deceased New Age guru, Shri Bagwan Rajneesh, aka “Osho”, comprises a dreamy playground of cafés, marble walkways, Olympic-size swimming pool, spas, tennis courts and clinics, with a shop selling Osho paraphernalia. Courses at its multiversity are offered in a variety of therapies and meditation techniques, alongside more offbeat workshops.

This eco-friendly bubble follows a strict door policy, with security beefed up following the revelation of visits to Osho by Mumbai 26/11 conspirator

David Headley, and in the wake of Pune's own attack in 2010. If you're interested in taking a course, you must take your passport to the Welcome Center, where you'll have to take an on-the-spot HIV test in order to register. You'll need two robes (maroon for daywear, white for evenings), on sale at the ashram's "mini-mall". It is also possible to stay inside the resort at the pricey Osho Guest House.

The beautiful gardens laid out to the east of the main Osho complex, the Osho Teerth, are open to day-pass holders. They make a serene place for a stroll, with babbling streams, stands of giant bamboo, mature trees and Zen sculpture artfully placed amid the greenery.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE PUNE IS VERY WELL PUNE CONNECTED, BUT DEMAND FOR SEATS ON PLANES, TRAINS AND BUSES FAR EXCEEDS SUPPLY; BOOK ONWARD TRANSPORT AS SOON AS YOU CAN.

BY PLANE PUNE INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT, 10KM NORTHEAST OF THE CITY CENTRE, IS A MAJOR HUB, WITH REGULAR DIRECT FLIGHTS TO CITIES THROUGHOUT INDIA.
IT'S A 30MIN JOURNEY TO/FROM THE CITY CENTRE, DEPENDING ON TRAFFIC; A TAXI COSTS ₹400–500.

BY TRAIN PUNE RAILWAY STATION THE RAILWAY STATION IS IN THE CENTRE OF THE CITY, SOUTH OF THE RIVER; AN AUTO-RICKSHAW TO/FROM KOREGAON PARK COSTS
AROUND ₹70–90. IT IS ONE OF THE LAST STOPS FOR NUMEROUS LONG-DISTANCE TRAINS TO AND FROM MUMBAI, SO RAIL SERVICES ARE EXCELLENT – DESPITE MANY OF THEM DEPARTING IN THE EARLY MORNING; SOME TERMINATE AT DADAR OR (WORSE STILL) KURLA, SO
ALWAYS CHECK FIRST. SOME SERVICES ARE MUCH MORE CONVENIENT THAN OTHERS (SEE BOX BELOW).
RESERVATIONS FOR ALL TRAINS SHOULD BE MADE AS FAR IN ADVANCE AS POSSIBLE ONLINE, VIA A TRAVEL AGENCY OR AT THE RESERVATION CENTRE NEXT TO THE STATION ITSELF (MON–SAT 8AM–8PM, SUN 8AM–2PM).

Destinations Bengaluru (6–8 daily; 17hr 30min–25hr 15min); Chennai (3–4 daily; 19hr 30min–24hr); Delhi (2–4 daily; 19hr 34min–28hr); Ernakulam (for Kochi; 1–2 daily; 27hr 50min–33hr 40min); Hyderabad/Secunderabad (5–9daily; 9hr–13hr 20min); Jalgaon (5–7 daily; 8hr 30min–11hr 10min); Kolhapur (5–6 daily; 6hr 50min–8hr); Lonavala (roughly hourly; 1–2hr); Madgaon (for Goa; 1-2 daily; 12hr 25min-17hr 20min); Mumbai (1–2 hourly; 2hr 30min–5hr); Nagpur (3–5 daily; 15hr 10min–27hr 35min)); Nashik (1 daily; 6hr 20min).

OSHO IT IS ALMOST HALF A CENTURY SINCE FOLLOWERS BEGAN TO CONGREGATE AROUND BHAGWAN RAJNEESH (1931–90), THE SELF-PROCLAIMED NEW AGE GURU BETTER KNOWN TO HIS TENS OF THOUSANDS OF ACOLYTES WORLDWIDE AS OSHO. UNDERPINNED BY A PHILOSOPHICAL MISHMASH OF BUDDHISM, SUFISM, SEXUAL LIBERATION, TANTRIC PRACTICES, ZEN, YOGA, HYPNOSIS, TIBETAN PULSING, DISCO AND UNABASHED MATERIALISM, THE FIRST RAJNEESH ASHRAM WAS FOUNDED IN PUNE IN 1974. IT RAPIDLY ATTRACTED DROVES OF WESTERNERS, AND SOME INDIANS, WHO ADOPTED NEW SANSKRIT NAMES AND A UNIFORM OF ORANGE OR MAROON COTTONS AND A BEAD NECKLACE (MALA) WITH AN ATTACHED PHOTO OF THE ENLIGHTENED GURU, IN CLASSIC STYLE, SPORTING LONG GREYING HAIR AND BEARD.

FULFILMENT, UTOPIANISM AND TAX EVASION FEW EARLY ADHERENTS DENIED THAT MUCH OF THE ATTRACTION LAY IN RAJNEESH’S NOVEL APPROACH TO FULFILMENT. HIS DISMISSAL OF CHRISTIANITY (“CROSSTIANITY”) AS A MISERABLY OPPRESSIVE OBSESSION WITH GUILT STRUCK A CHORD WITH MANY, AS DID THE ESPOUSAL OF

LIBERATION THROUGH SEX. RAJNEESH ASSURED HIS DEVOTEES THAT MATERIAL COMFORT WAS NOT TO BE SHUNNED. WITHIN A FEW YEARS, SATELLITE ASHRAMS WERE POPPING UP THROUGHOUT WESTERN EUROPE, AND BY 1980 AN ESTIMATED 200,000 DEVOTEES HAD LIBERATED THEMSELVES IN 600 MEDITATION CENTRES ACROSS 80 COUNTRIES.

To protect itself from pollution, nuclear war and HIV/AIDS, the organization poured money into a utopian project, Rajneeshpuram, on 64,000 acres in Oregon, US. It was at this point that the media really got interested in Rajneesh, now a multimillionaire. Infiltrators leaked stories of strange goings-on at Rajneeshpuram and before long its high-powered female executives became subject to police interest. Charges of tax evasion, drugs, fraud, arson and a conspiracy to poison several people in a neighbouring town to sway a local election vote provoked further sensation. Although he claimed to know nothing of this, Rajneesh pleaded guilty to breaches of US immigration laws and was deported in 1985. Following protracted attempts to resettle in 21 different countries, Rajneesh returned home to Pune, where he died in 1990, aged 59.

POST-RAJNEESH THE ASHRAM WENT THROUGH INTERNAL SQUABBLES AND FINANCIAL TROUBLE IN THE 1990S. AT HIS DEATH, RAJNEESH APPOINTED AN INNER CIRCLE TO MANAGE THE GROUP, THOUGH SEVERAL DEPARTED AND THE OSHO “BRAND” – WHICH SELLS MILLIONS OF BOOKS EACH YEAR, SUPPLEMENTED BY CDS, DVDS, PAINTINGS AND PHOTOS – IS NOW CONTROLLED FROM ZURICH AND NEW YORK. THE PUNE ASHRAM WASN’T SEEING ENOUGH OF THIS TO MEET ITS COSTS AND CONSEQUENTLY HAS HAD TO RELAUNCH AND RESTYLE ITSELF AND THE PATTERN OF LIFE INSIDE ITS WALLS; IN ITS HEYDAY AN AVERAGE STAY WAS THREE TO SIX MONTHS, TODAY PEOPLE TYPICALLY STAY NO MORE THAN TWO WEEKS.

It was partly due to Osho’s enduring popularity with foreigners that the nearby German Bakery, Koregaon Park’s erstwhile hippie hangout, was targeted for a Mumbai-style terrorist attack in February 2010, which left seventeen dead and around sixty injured – a huge shock for this normally peaceful little enclave. Resolutely, the café itself reopened in 2013.

The 2018 Netflix documentary Wild Wild Country provides an illuminating insight into Osho, particularly the controversial Rajneeshpuram years.

TRAINS TO AND FROM PUNE OF THE MYRIAD RAIL SERVICES FEEDING IN AND OUT OF PUNE, THE FOLLOWING ARE RECOMMENDED AS THE FASTEST AND/OR MOST CONVENIENT:

Destination	Name	No.	Frequency	Departs	Arrives
Bengaluru	Vivek Express	#19568	Fri	10.30pm	4.04pm+
Chennai	Chennai Express	#12163	Daily	00.10am	7.45pm
Delhi	Jhelum Express	#11077	Daily	5.20pm	8.26pm +
Goa	Goa Express	#12780	Daily	4.35pm	5.40am+
Hyderabad/ Secunderabad	Shatabdi Express	#12025	Daily except Tues	5.50am	1.39pm
Kolhapur	Sahyadri Express	#11023	Daily	10.05pm	6.05am
Mumbai	Deccan Queen Express	#12124	Daily	7.15am	10.03am

+ next day

BY SHARED TAXI FOR MUMBAI, 24HR SHARED TAXIS LEAVE FROM AGENCIES AT THE TAXI STAND IN FRONT OF PUNE

RAILWAY STATION – THEY’RE QUICKER THAN THE BUSES, BUT ONLY TAKE YOU AS FAR AS DADAR.

BY BUS PUNE HAS THREE MAIN BUS STANDS. IF YOU’RE UNSURE WHICH STATION YOU REQUIRE FOR YOUR DESTINATION, ASK AT THE ENQUIRIES HATCH OF THE CITY BUS STAND OR AT THE MTDC COUNTER AT THE RAILWAY STATION. MORE COMFORTABLE PRIVATE BUSES DEPART FROM OFFICES THROUGHOUT PUNE; TICKETS CAN BE BOUGHT FROM TRAVEL AGENCIES IN KOREGAON PARK.

City Bus Stand Next to the railway station, City Bus Stand is split into two sections, one serving Pune itself (with signs and timetables only in Marathi), the other for destinations south and west. Regular buses to Mumbai (via Lonavala) also leave from here.

Destinations Goa (3–4 daily; 11hr); Kolhapur (hourly; 5–6hr); Mahabaleshwar (hourly; 3hr 30min–4hr); Mumbai (every 15min; 3hr 15min).

Swargate and Shivaji Nagar stands The Swargate Bus Stand, about 5km south, close to Nehru Stadium, services Karnataka and some of the same destinations as City, while the stand next to Shivaji Nagar railway station, 3km west of the centre, runs buses every 30min to points north, such as Aurangabad (5hr) and Nashik (4–5hr).

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE MTDC TOURIST OFFICE (MON–FRI PLUS 1ST & 3RD SAT OF MONTH 10AM–5.45PM; ☎020 2612 6867, 🌐MAHARASHTRATOURISM.GOV.IN) IS INSIDE “I” BLOCK OF CENTRAL BUILDING (ENTER BETWEEN AMBEDKAR CHOWK AND SADHU VASWANI CIRCLE). IT ALSO HAS AN INFORMATION COUNTER (OFFICIALLY THE SAME TIMES) OPPOSITE THE RAILWAY STATION’S FIRST-CLASS BOOKING OFFICE AND AT THE AIRPORT (OPENS TO MEET INCOMING FLIGHTS).

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Top-end hotels are springing up all over Pune, but there’s a chronic shortage of budget and mid-range places, which explains why prices are high and vacancies like gold dust: book as far in advance as possible.

Grand MG Rd, near the Dr Ambedkar statue 📞020 2636 0728. Set behind a dimly lit beer garden, the colonial-era Grand doesn't live up to its name, but is an acceptable budget choice: the high-ceilinged doubles in the rear annexe are pretty clean, though scruffy; the bathroom-less, wood-partitioned singles, however, are best avoided. ₹

Lotus Plot No. 356, Lane No.5, Koregaon Park 📞078880 41253. In an unassuming salmon-pink block in tranquil, leafy surroundings, this is Koregaon's Park's best-value hideaway. Bright, clean rooms with big windows, comfy beds and balconies. A basic breakfast (included) is served to the rooms, and the location is handy for the city's best restaurants/bars. ₹

★O Hotel North Main Rd 🌐ohotelsindia.com. Goa chic in Pune: outside, a forbidding sandstone-coloured tower block; inside, a designer playground of bold textures, shades and shapes. Rooms are suitably zen-like, blending simple lines and stylish details with warm, muted tones and natural materials, and facilities include a gorgeous spa and spectacular rooftop infinity pool and bar, plus Indian and Japanese restaurants. Book online for special discounts. ₹₹₹

Osho Guest House Osho International Meditation Resort, 17 Koregaon Park Rd 🌐osho.com. Part of the Osho ashram, and open only to attendees, this luxury hotel offers stylish minimalist rooms – though be warned that the hotel is situated above the main auditorium, which, as the ashram likes to put it, can make the 6am meditation session “very hard to resist”. Room rates do not include the various registration and pass fees. ₹₹₹

Sheraton RBM Rd, just northwest of the railway station 🌐marriott.com. Previously under the Le Meridien banner, this vast cathedral of marble still feels like its most opulent and luxurious. Spacious rooms come with thick honey-coloured carpets and huge beds; the rooftop bar (complete with two-tiered pool) is one of the city centre's most heavenly spaces for an evening drink and is open to non-guests. Rates vary wildly online, and there are often good deals to be had. ₹₹₹₹

Shree Panchratna 7 Tadiwala Rd 🌐hotelschreepanchratna.in. Aimed at business travellers and located on a quiet side street close to the railway station, Shree Panchratna is well maintained and efficiently run, if unexciting. The plain rooms all have a/c, kettles, mini-fridges, and a fresh feel; some also have balconies (though no views). There are a couple of onsite restaurants when hunger strikes. ₹₹₹₹

Sunderban 19 Koregaon Park  tghotels.com. Attractive Art Deco mansion, set behind an immaculate expanse of lawn, and sited beside the Osho ashram. The older rooms in the main house, furnished in swathes of leather and acres of teak and mahogany, are better value than those in the flashier modern garden block; there are often discounts April–Sept. There's a great Italian restaurant (see below) and a spa. ₹₹₹

Surya Villa 294/1 Koregaon Park  078880 41252. Under the same management as Lotus (see above) and slightly cheaper, Surya Villa has sizeable if somewhat spartan rooms (with fans or a/c) spread over four floors in a suburban block close to Osho. It's very popular, mainly with long-staying foreign ashramites, and has a good restaurant filled with traveller favourites. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Pune's affluent young things have money to burn these days, and new, innovative places to eat and drink open up every month to relieve them of their tech salaries, the largest concentration of them up at the eastern end of Koregaon Park. Advance booking is advisable at the smarter places at weekends. In addition to those listed below, several of the hotels also have good restaurants, including Surya Villa and O Hotel (see above); Shisha Café also does some excellent food.

★ Café One O Eight Precious Gem, Lane 6, Koregaon Park  facebook.com/oneoeightcafe. Hip Aussie-style café and yoga studio that's an easy place to while away a few hours. As well as excellent coffee – including a proper flat white – smoothies and fresh juices, there are top-notch all-day-breakfast options, toasted sandwiches (including one with Vegemite), inventive breakfasts and pasta dishes. The food's mostly organic and there are plenty of veggie, vegan and gluten-free options. ₹₹

French Window Patisserie Bungalow 4 Lane 5, Koregaon Park  facebook.com/thefrenchwindowpatisserie. This cosy spot is a great choice for a sweet treat at any time of day. In addition to flaky croissants, cream-filled choux buns and decadent cakes, this gem serves savoury snacks and meals, as well as excellent coffee and hot chocolate. ₹-₹₹

German Bakery 291 Koregaon Park 📞082378 43125. Open again after the 2010 terrorist attack, German Bakery is a good spot to grab a bite to eat throughout the day with plenty of breakfast options. Main meal options range from thin-crust pizzas to bangers and mash, and – of course – there are plenty of delicious cakes to choose from, including sachertorte and lamingtons. On the downside, it's right on the main road, and the music choices can be questionable. ₹₹

Great Punjab 5 Jewel Tower, Lane 5, Koregaon Park 📞020 2614 5060. One of Koregaon Park's most popular north Indians, offering generous kebabs, grills and tandoori dishes – and a long list of cocktails and spirits – in smart if subdued surroundings. Dedicated carnivores should sample the array of kebabs - succulent tandoori chicken stuffed with a robust mix of minced meat and herbs. ₹₹₹

Malaka Spice Lane 5, Koregaon Park 🌐malakaspice.com. This Southeast Asian specialist serves up pretty authentic dumplings, stir-fries and noodle dishes in arty surroundings. The restaurant sources its produce from their own farm. It's relaxed at lunchtime and intimate in the evening when the candlelit covered veranda and garden terrace twinkle with fairy lights. It's also a good spot for a drink. There are a couple of other branches, but this is the most convenient. ₹₹₹

The Place (Touché the Sizzler) 7 Moledina Rd 📞020 2613 4632. Huge, succulent sizzlers (veg, fish, pork, mutton or beef), steaks, fish and chips, and veal escalope are among the house specialties of this Parsi-run old-timer in the city centre (somewhat bizarrely, the founder of the restaurant later opened a sizzler restaurant on the Isle of Man). ₹₹

Prem's Main Rd, Koregaon Park 🌐facebook.com/PremResto.Pune. Tucked away from the main road, this cool, modern restaurant-bar is a hit for both its spot-on Indian and Chinese dishes (there are also a few decent Continental options) and its range of beers (including draught Hoegaarden) and spirits – plus “detox” drinks if you've overindulged. ₹₹

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP

Independence Brewing Co Mulik Palace, Wadgaon Sheri Rd 📞091564 92337, 🌐independencebrewco.com. At the forefront of Pune's burgeoning craft beer scene, this swish microbrewery-run bar has an excellent range of bottles and pints, plus good snacks such as scotch eggs, live sport and a highly convivial atmosphere.

★Minnus Bar O Hotel 🌐ohotelsindia.com. High over the cityscape, the O's lantern-lit rooftop bar is Pune's most elegant spot for a sundowner. Sink into a low-slung, white-cushioned sofa, settle onto a beanbag or dip your toes in the infinity pool as you choose from an enterprising list of cocktails (beers are cheaper) and soak up the views.

★Shisha Café ABC Farms, Koregaon Park 🌐facebook.com/shishajazzcafe. One of Pune's most congenial watering holes: a cavernous restaurant-bar filled with plants and capped with a huge thatched roof hung with Persian carpets. Indo-Iranian food, notably kebabs dominate the menu, and they serve a good range of beers, wines and spirits, plus hookahs and Turkish coffee. The walls are lined with posters of jazz greats, and live jazz and blues bands often play in the evenings.

SHOPPING

MAP

The Koregaon Park area has several quality – if pricey – clothes and craft shops, especially in the area between Lane 7 and Lane 5. For less expensive options – and a considerably more bustling environment – head to the streets south of the railway station, especially Connaught, which have a wide range of shops and stalls.

Crossword Koregaon Park Plaza mall, Main Rd 🌐crossword.in. This bookshop chain has numerous stores around town: this one, on the second floor of the mall, is one of the most convenient. It has an extensive range of English-language fiction and non-fiction.

Either Or 24 Sohrab Hall, Sassoon Rd 🌐facebook.com/eitherorindia. This classy shop is an excellent place for souvenir shopping, with an extensive range of textiles, jewellery, household furnishings, crafts and music.

Tribes Kamdhenu Building, Senapati Bapat Marg 🌐tribesindia.com. This government-backed shop stocks a wide range of crafts and artworks – including paintings, pottery, textiles, home furnishings and food items – that have been produced by the country's tribal groups.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE FOR CHANGING CURRENCY, THOMAS COOK IS AT 13 THACKER HOUSE, JUST

OFF GENERAL THIMMAYA RD (☎020 2634 6171, 🌐 THOMASCOOK.IN).

Post office The efficient GPO is on Sadhu Vasavani (Connaught) Rd.

Mahabaleshwar and around The former capital of the Bombay Presidency, the hill station of MAHABALESHWAR, 250km southeast of Mumbai, is easily reached from Pune, 120km northeast. The highest point in the Western Ghats (1372m), it is subject to extreme weather conditions.

Early June brings heavy mists and a dramatic drop in temperature, followed by a deluge of biblical proportions. Tourists tend only to visit between October and early June; during April and May, at the height of summer, the place is packed.

For most foreign visitors, Mahabaleshwar's main appeal is its location midway between Mumbai and Goa, but it has some good hiking trails, and a boating lake, and is close to the Pratapgadh fort (see below). Otherwise, the main activity is to amble up and down the pedestrianised main bazaar (Dr Sabne Road) and feast on the locally grown strawberries for which the town is famous.

Pratapgadh Around 24km west of Mahabaleshwar • Daily dawn–dusk • Free • Taxis Charge around ₹1000 for the return trip to Pratapgadh, with waiting time; state buses (1hr) also do the journey each day, leaving the bus stand around 9.30am and returning around 11am The seventeenth-century fort of PRATAPGADH stretches the full length of a high ridge affording superb views over the surrounding mountains. Reached by a flight of five hundred steps, it is famously associated with the Maratha chieftain, Shivaji, who lured the Mughal general Afzal Khan here from Bijapur (now Vijayapura) to discuss a possible truce. Neither, it would seem, intended to keep to the condition that they should come unarmed. Khan attempted to knife Shivaji, who responded by killing him with the gruesome wagnakh, a set of metal claws worn on the hand. Today visitors can see Afzal Khan's tomb, a memorial to Shivaji, and views of the surrounding hills.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS THE STATE BUS STAND IS AT THE NORTHWEST END MAHABALESHWAR AND AROUND OF THE BAZAAR. THERE ARE REGULAR MSRTC BUSES TO/FROM MUMBAI (5–6 DAILY; AROUND 7HR), PUNE (EVERY 30MIN–1HR; 3HR 30MIN) AND KOLHAPUR (4–5 DAILY; 5HR 30MIN), AND ONE TO PANAJI IN GOA (12HR); FOR THE LATTER, NUMEROUS AGENTS IN THE BAZAAR SELL TICKETS FOR MORE COMFORTABLE PRIVATE BUSES.

Entry fees There is a ₹20 entry fee for visitors, collected at toll booths at each end of town.

GETTING AROUND BY TAXI AUTO-RICKSHAWS ARE BANNED IN MAHABALESHWAR BUT TAXIS LINE UP AT THE WEST END OF THE BAZAAR, CHARGING ₹50–100 FOR SHORT HOPS IN AND AROUND TOWN.

By bike Bikes can be rented from a stall at the Dreamland hotel (see below).

ACCOMMODATION DESPITE AN ABUNDANCE OF HOTELS, AT PEAK TIMES PRICES IN MAHABALESHWAR ARE WELL ABOVE AVERAGE. ROOM RATES ARE A MOVEABLE FEAST, PARTICULARLY AT THE LOWER END OF THE SCALE, BUT FALL ROUGHLY INTO THREE CATEGORIES: PEAK MONTHS ARE APRIL AND ESPECIALLY MAY, WHEN AS AT DIWALI, CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR, RATES AT THE CHEAPER PLACES DOUBLE OR EVEN TREBLE AND THE PLACE IS WELL WORTH AVOIDING. PRICES QUOTED ARE FOR OFF-SEASON, WHICH BROADLY COVERS MOST OF THE REST OF THE YEAR, BAR LONG WEEKENDS ("MID-SEASON"). THE CHEAPEST PLACES TO STAY ARE ON THE MAIN BAZAAR AND THE ROAD PARALLEL TO IT, MURRAY PETH. TWO POINTS TO NOTE: HOTELIERS IN MAHABALESHWAR REFUSE TO TAKE IN SINGLE MALE TRAVELLERS ("STAGS"), AND MANY PLACES CLOSE DURING THE MONSOON.

Le Meridien Satara-Medha-Mahabaleshwar Rd, Mahabaleshwar  marriott.com. A tranquil area with spacious suites and two pools, though the rooftop swimming pool has excellent views; a fifteen minute walk from Wilson Point. ₹₹₹₹

MTDC Holiday Resort 2km southwest of the centre  maharashtra.gov.in. A sprawling campus with a wide choice of accommodation, ranging from austere economy rooms through high-ceilinged standard rooms to family-sized suites in a peaceful location; a 10min walk from Mumbai Point. ₹₹-₹₹₹

EATING AND DRINKING GRAPEVINE WESTERN END OF MASJID RD, WHICH IS PARALLEL WITH THE MAIN BAZAAR  02168 261100. FOR SOMETHING A BIT DIFFERENT, MAKE FOR THE IDIOSYNCRATIC GRAPEVINE, WHERE A DECENT LIST OF WINES, BEERS AND SPIRITS COMPLEMENTS A DELIGHTFULLY ECLECTIC MENU RANGING FROM PARSI HOME-COOKING TO LAMB BURGERS AND FISH AND CHIPS. ₹
₹

Kolhapur KOLHAPUR, on the banks of the River Panchaganga 225km south of Pune, is thought to have been an important centre of the Tantric cult associated with Shakti worship since ancient times. The city probably grew around the sacred site of the present-day Mahalakshmi temple, still central to the life of the city, although there are said to be up to 250 other shrines in the area. Today it is a major industrial centre, but has retained enough Maharashtran character to make it worthy of a stopover. It is also here that the state's famous Kolhapuri chappals (slippers) are manufactured.

Mahalakshmi temple In the centre of the old town, overlooking the town square • Daily dawn–10.30pm • Free The Mahalakshmi temple, whose cream-painted sanctuary towers embellish the centre of Kolhapur's old town, is thought to have been founded in the seventh century, though what you see here today mostly dates from the early eighteenth century. The devout queue around the block from the complex's east gate is for darshan, a look at the image of the goddess Mahalakshmi, beneath the largest of five domed towers; tourists are welcome to join them.

Rajwada (Old Palace) Near the Mahalakshmi temple • No fixed opening times • Free The Rajwada, or Old Palace, is still occupied by members of the former ruling Chhatrapati family, though its entrance hall is usually busy with worshippers to its Bhawani temple – you can access it by passing under the pillared porch that extends out into the town square.

Wrestling pit (Motibaug) Close to the Rajwada • Wrestler training June–Sept daily except Sat 6–9am & 4–6pm • Free Kolhapur is famous as a centre for traditional wrestling, or kushti. On leaving the Old Palace gates, turn right and head through the low doorway in front of you, from where a path picks its way past a couple of derelict buildings to the motibaug, or wrestling pit. You can watch wrestlers training; matches take place at the nearby Khasbag Maidan stadium.

New Palace Shahaji Chhatrapati, 2km north of the town centre • Tues–Sun 9.00am–1pm & 2.30–6pm • Charge The maharaja's New Palace was built in 1884, following a fire at the Rajwada. Designed by Major Mant, founding father of the Indo-Saracenic school of so much British colonial architecture, it fuses Jain and Hindu influences with local touches from the Rajwada while remaining indomitably Victorian, with a prominent clock tower. The present maharaja lives on the first floor, while the ground floor houses the Shahaji Chhatrapati Museum, a dozen or so rooms crammed with fascinating memorabilia that demonstrates above all else the Chhatrapati family's extraordinary history of bloodlust: among the maharaja's collection of portraits, costumes, embroidery, riding paraphernalia and old Raj-era photos is an astonishing array of swords (including one that belonged to Mughal emperor Aurangzeb), rifles and torture equipment, a gruesome display cabinet of a huntsman's homeware – fans fashioned from tails, an elephant's-foot table – and, in the final room, a scandalous Who's Who of stuffed endangered species. Rather less macabre is the spectacular church-like Durbar Hall, with its superb carvings and mosaic floor.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN THE KOLHAPUR RAILWAY STATION IS 400M WEST FROM THE BUS STAND ON STATION RD, NEAR THE CENTRE OF TOWN. THERE ARE SERVICES TO PUNE (5–6 DAILY; 6HR 50MIN–10HR) AND MUMBAI (3 DAILY; 9HR 40MIN–11HR 40MIN).

Tourist information The MTDC tourist office (Mon–Fri plus 1st & 3rd Sat of month 10am–5pm; ☎0231 269 2935, 🌐maharashtratourism.gov.in) is on Assembly Rd, a 15min walk north of the railway station (ask locally for the Collector's Office).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING THERE'S NO SHORTAGE OF DECENT, GOOD-VALUE ACCOMMODATION IN KOLHAPUR, WHICH IS FAMOUS FOR ITS FIERY CUISINE. IN ADDITION TO THE HOTEL RESTAURANTS – NOTABLY WOODLAND AND PADMA – THERE ARE GOOD, INEXPENSIVE PLACES TO EAT AROUND STATION SQUARE.

Padma Guest House Near Padma Talkies, Laxmipuri 🌐 padmakolhapur.com. A reliable budget hotel but better considered as a dining option with an excellent restaurant specializing in Kolhapuri cuisine – the tongue-tingling mutton curries are not to be missed. ₹

Sayaji Hotel E Ward, Old Pune-Bangalore Highway, 🌐sayajihotels.com High-end hotel with spacious rooms, an impressive buffet breakfast and leafy rooftop restaurant along with barbecues dishes. 24hr checkout. ₹₹₹₹

★Woodland 204 “E” Ward, Tarabai Park @ hotelwoodland.net. Decent-value and welcoming mid-range hotel, in a peaceful suburb 2km north of the railway and bus stations. It has spacious and bright a/c rooms, plus a terrific non-veg garden/veranda restaurant, Sunderban, and a bar. 24hr checkout. ₹₹₹

< Back to Maharashtra

Shutterstock
PALACIO DO DEÃO, IN SOUTHERN GOA

Goa

Central Goa

North Goa

South Goa

Goa

The former Portuguese enclave of Goa, midway down India's southwest coast, has been a holiday destination since colonial times, when British troops and officials used to travel here from across the country for a spot of "R&R". Back then, the three Bs – bars, brothels and booze – were the big attractions. Now it's the golden, palm-fringed beaches spread along the state's 105km coastline that pull in the tourists – around two million of them each winter. Cheap air travel has made it a major package tour destination for Europeans, and there has been a dramatic rise in the number of domestic visitors in recent years. Luckily, in spite of the increasing chaos of Goa's main resorts, it's still possible to find the odd quiet corner if you're prepared to explore and can avoid the busy Christmas/New Year period. If you know where to go, Goa can still be a wonderful place.

Serving as the linchpin for a vast trade network for more than 450 years, Goa was Portugal's first toehold in Asia. However, when the Portuguese empire began to flounder in the seventeenth century, so too did the fortunes of its capital. Cut off from the rest of India by a wall of mountains and hundreds of kilometres of unnavigable alluvial plain, it remained apart from the wider Subcontinent until 1961, when the exasperated prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, finally gave up trying to negotiate with the Portuguese dictator, António de Oliveira Salazar, and sent in the army.

It was shortly after the "Liberation" (or "Occupation" as some Goans still regard it), that the first hippie travellers came to the region on the old overland trail. They found a way of life little changed in centuries: back then Portuguese was still very much the lingua franca of the well-educated elite, and the coastal settlements were little more than fishing- and coconut-cultivation villages. Relieved to have found somewhere culturally undemanding to party, the travellers got stoned, watched the mesmeric sunsets over the Arabian Sea and danced like lunatics on full-moon nights. The rave scene reached its peak in the 1990s, with “Goa trance” becoming a fully-fledged musical genre.

Since then, the state has been at pains to shake off its reputation as a druggy drop-out zone, although the dance music scene is still very much in evidence, and its beaches have grown in popularity year on year. Around two dozen stretches of soft white sand indent the region’s coast, from spectacular 25km sweeps to secluded palm-backed coves. The level of development behind them varies a great deal; while some are lined by swanky Western-style resorts, the most sophisticated structures on others are palm-leaf shacks.

Which beach you opt for largely depends on what sort of holiday you have in mind. Developed resort towns such as Calangute and Candolim in the north, and Colva and Benaulim in the south, offer more accommodation than elsewhere. Anjuna, Vagator and Chapora, where places to stay are generally harder to come by, are the places to aim for if you’ve come to Goa to party. However, the bulk of budget travellers taking time out from tours of India end up around Palolem in the far south, beyond the reach of the charter transfer buses – though be warned that it too has become a major resort over the past decade, attracting literally thousands of long-stay visitors in peak season. For a quieter scene, you could head for Patnem, just over the headland from Palolem, or Agonda, further up the coast, where development is limited to a string of more upmarket “hut” camps and family guesthouses. The only place where the hippie scene endures to any significant extent is Arambol, in the far north of the state, where you can dip in to any number of yoga sessions and holistic therapies between spells on the beach.

BEST TIME TO VISIT THE BEST TIME TO COME TO GOA IS DURING THE DRY, RELATIVELY COOL
WINTER MONTHS BETWEEN LATE NOVEMBER AND MID-MARCH. AT OTHER TIMES, EITHER THE SUN IS TOO HOT FOR COMFORT, OR THE HUMIDITY, CLOUDS AND RAIN MAKE LIFE MISERABLE.
DURING PEAK SEASON, FROM MID-DECEMBER TO

THE END OF JANUARY, THE WEATHER IS PERFECT, WITH TEMPERATURES RARELY NUDGING ABOVE 32°C. FINDING A ROOM OR A HOUSE TO RENT AT THAT TIME, HOWEVER – PARTICULARLY OVER CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR WHEN TARIFFS DOUBLE, OR TRIPLE – CAN BE A REAL HASSLE.

Shutterstock

COLOURFUL TEXTILES AT THE SATURDAY NIGHT MARKET, ARPORA HIGHLIGHTS

- ① Old Goa The belfries and Baroque church facades on the banks of the Mandovi River are all that remain of this colonial city.
- ② Saturday Night Market, Arpora Cooler and less frenetic than the flea market at Anjuna, with appealing goods for sale and a fun atmosphere.
- ③ Flea market, Anjuna Goa's famous tourist bazaar is the place to pick up the latest party gear, shop for souvenirs and simply enjoy watching the hustle and bustle of the crowds go by.
- ④ Aswem The hippest spot on the north Goan coast to swim, fine-dine and dance under the stars, with the stars.
- ⑤ Palacio do Deão An extravagant, colonial-era mansion in south Goa, where you can do lunch on a leafy terrace.
- ⑥ Beach shacks Tuck into a fresh kingfish, lobster or tandoori pomfret, washed down with an ice-cold beer.
- ⑦ Sunset stroll, Palolem Tropical sunsets don't come much more romantic than at this idyllic palm-fringed cove in the hilly deep south.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

FESTIVALS IN GOA WITH ITS DIVERSE CULTURAL MIX, GOA'S FESTIVALS RANGE FROM CHRISTIAN

AND HINDU CELEBRATIONS TO HEDONISTIC PARTIES AND ARTY EVENTS. THE CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR PERIOD ATTRACTS MANY THOUSANDS TO ELECTRONIC DANCE MUSIC PARTIES – OF WHICH SUNBURN IS THE LARGEST. OUTSIDE THIS PERIOD, HOWEVER, LESS TOURISTY, MORE AUTHENTIC DRAWS – CARNIVAL OR NARKASUR PARADES, FOR EXAMPLE – GO TO SHOW THAT GOA IS NOT ALL BEACHES AND WESTERN DANCE MUSIC.

Goa Carnival (Pre-Lent). Four-day party held throughout the state with parades of colourful floats surrounded by masked revellers (especially in Panjim) as well as live music and street stalls.

Shigmotsav/Gulalotsav (March). Goa's answer to Holi; the state's biggest spring festival. Huge dance troupes perform folk dances in the streets through the night.

Sao Joao (24 June). A Catholic festival celebrated around the world, as a tribute to St John the Baptist. In Goa it occurs during the monsoon season and is marked by colourfully-dressed devotees jumping into drinking wells.

Damodar Saptah (August). More than a hundred years old, this 7-day festival sees thousands of street vendors from across India descend on Vasco de Gama as well as processions, traditional dances and devotional singing.

Narkasur Parades (Oct; eve of Diwali). A festival unique to Goa, when giant demon effigies (narkasurs) dance through the streets before being burned to mark the festival of lights. The main parades are in Panjim, Margao, Mapusa, Vasco and Ponda.

International Film Festival of India (IFFI) (Late Nov; www.iffi.nic.in). A lively, glittering, contemporary event held in Panjim.

St Francis Xavier's Feast (Dec 3). Ceremonies to commemorate the saint's death attract thousands of pilgrims to Old Goa.

Mary Immaculate Conception Church Feast (Early Dec). One of the major festivals in Panjim, this three-day event sees street stalls set up around the church, and firework displays.

Christmas/New Year (Dec 25/Jan 1). Celebrated in Goa more than anywhere else in the country. The state heaves with foreign and domestic tourists set to party – and accommodation prices can double or triple.

Sunburn (Dec 27–30; ☎sunburn.in). The biggest techno/house party of the year in Goa (if not Asia) at five arenas in Vagator..

Some 10km from the state capital, Panjim, the ruins of the former Portuguese capital at Old Goa are foremost among the attractions away from the coast – a sprawl of Catholic cathedrals, convents and churches that draw crowds of Christian pilgrims from all over India. Another popular day excursion is to Anjuna’s Wednesday flea market, a sociable place to shop for souvenirs and dance gear. In the south, the district of Salcete, and its main market town, Margao, is also littered with distinctively hybrid buildings in the form of Portuguese-era mansions, churches and seminaries. Finally, wildlife enthusiasts may be tempted into the interior to visit the nature reserves at Cotigao and Netravali in the far south, as well as Dudhsagar Waterfalls further east.

Brief history

Goa’s sheer inaccessibility by land has always kept it outside the mainstream of Indian history; on the other hand, its control of the seas and the lucrative spice trade made it a much-coveted prize for rival colonial powers. Until a century before the arrival of the Portuguese, Goa had belonged for more than a thousand years to the kingdom of the Kadamba dynasty. They, in turn, were overthrown by the Karnatakan Vijayanagars, the Muslim Bahmanis, and Yusuf Adil Shah of Bijapur, but the capture of the fort at Panjim by Afonso de Albuquerque in 1510 signalled the start of a Portuguese occupation that was to last 451 years.

Goa Dourada (“Golden Goa”) As the colony expanded, its splendid capital (dubbed as “Goa Dourada”, or “Golden Goa”, due to its incredible prosperity) came to hold a larger population than Paris or London. Though the king of Bijapur laid siege for ten months in 1570, and the Marathas came very close to seizing the region, the greatest threat came from other European maritime nations, principally Holland and France. Meanwhile, conversions to Christianity, started by the Franciscans, gathered pace when St Francis Xavier founded the Jesuit mission in 1542. The Portuguese Inquisition also introduced laws that censored literature and banned any faith other than Catholicism. Hindu temples were destroyed, and converted Hindus adopted Portuguese names, such as Da Silva, Correa and De Sousa, which remain common in the region. Thereafter the Portuguese colony, whose trade monopoly had been broken by its European rivals, fell into a gradual decline which was hastened by the unhealthy, disease-ridden environment of its capital.

“Liberation”

Despite certain moves towards independence, such as the restoration of Hindus’ right to worship and the final abolition of the dreaded Inquisition in 1820, the nineteenth century saw widespread civil unrest. During the British Raj many Goans moved to Bombay, and elsewhere in British India, to find work.

The success of the post-Indian Independence Goan struggle for freedom owed as much to the efforts of the Indian government, which cut off diplomatic ties with Portugal, as to the work of freedom fighters such as Menezes Braganza and Dr Cunha. After a “liberation march” in 1955 resulted in a number of deaths, the state was blockaded. Trade with Bombay ceased, and the railway was cut off, so Goa set out to forge international links, particularly with Pakistan and Sri Lanka: that led to the building of Dabolim Airport, and a determination to improve local agricultural output. In 1961, Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru finally sent in the armed forces. Mounted in defiance of a United Nations resolution, “Operation Vijay” met only token resistance, and the Indian army overran Goa in two days. Thereafter, Goa (along with Portugal’s other two Indian enclaves, Daman and Diu near Gujarat) became part of India as a self-governing Union Territory, with minimum interference from Delhi. In 1987 Goa eventually became an official Indian state while Diu and Daman functioned as independent Union Territories.

Goa today

After Independence Goa continued to prosper, bolstered by iron-ore exports and a booming tourist industry. However, dominated by issues of statehood, the status of Konkani (Goa's official language) and the ever-rising levels of immigration, its political life has been dogged for decades by chronic instability, with frequent changes of government and chief ministers, interrupted by occasional periods of “President's Rule” when the state had to be governed directly from New Delhi.

At the start of the 21st century, renewed fears over the pace of change on the coastal strip started to dominate the news. A sudden influx and just as sudden disappearance of Russian charter tourists has now been replaced by high-rolling property developers from Delhi and Mumbai who have provoked a backlash from successive ruling coalitions, with a state-sponsored land grab of expatriate property. Hundreds of resident Europeans had their assets confiscated, and fled. A series of high-profile attacks on, and unexplained deaths of foreigners has done little to improve the state's image abroad. Meanwhile, as ever-improving infrastructural links with the rest of India render Goa's borders more porous, the survival of the region as a culturally distinct entity continues to hang in the balance.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE TO AND FROM MUMBAI BY GOA PLANE A COUPLE OF DOZEN FLIGHTS SHUTTLE BETWEEN MUMBAI AND GOA'S DABOLIM AIRPORT DAILY, WITH FARES FROM AS LOW AS ₹3000 IF YOU BOOK WELL IN ADVANCE WITH ONE OF THE NO-FRILLS AIRLINES – OR AS MUCH AS ₹40,000 ON NEW YEAR'S EVE. TRY SPICEJET, INDIGO, GO AIR OR JETLITE. FLYING WITH AIR INDIA WILL SET YOU BACK AROUND ₹4000–8000 EACH WAY. THE CHEAPER FLIGHTS ARE USUALLY AT INCONVENIENT TIMES.

By train Seven or so more trains run daily on the scenic Konkan Railway from Mumbai, the most convenient being the overnight Mangalore Junction Express (#12133), which departs from CST at 10pm and arrives in Goa at 7.05am the following morning. Travelling to Mumbai, the service to go for is the overnight Konkan Kanya Express (#10112), which departs from Margao/Madgaon at 6pm (or Karmali, near Old Goa, 11km west of Panjim, at 6.32pm), arriving at Mumbai CST at 5.50am the following day. The other fast train from Goa to CST, the Mandovi Express (#10104), departs Margao/Madgaon at 9.15am (or Karmali at 9.50am) and arrives at 9.40pm the same evening. Note that all Konkan trains book up within days of the seats being released.

By bus A fleet of night buses covers the 500km between Goa and Mumbai – a terrible 16hr journey, best avoided. If you have to go this way, choose Paulo Travels, which offers a range of services from no-frills buses for ₹600 to swisher a/c Volvo coaches with berths (₹1500). For tickets, contact their office just north outside the Kadamba bus stand, Panjim (☎0832 2277036, www.paulobus.com). In south Goa, the firm's main outlet is just north of the bus station in Margao (☎0832 273 3355). Information on all departures and fares is available online.

TO AND FROM HAMPI BY TRAIN THE MOST STRESS-FREE AND ECONOMICAL WAY TO TRAVEL BETWEEN GOA AND HOSAPETE, THE JUMPING-OFF PLACE FOR HAMPI, IS THE THE HOWRAH–VASCO DA GAMA AMARAVATI EXPRESS (#18048), WHICH DEPARTS VASCO DA GAMA EVERY TUES, THURS, FRI AND SUN AT 7.10AM (MARGAO/MADGAON 7.50AM), ARRIVING 7HR 38MIN LATER. FARES RANGE FROM ₹235 FOR A SEAT IN A SECOND-CLASS SLEEPER COMPARTMENT TO ₹890 FOR SECOND-CLASS A/C – THE COMFIEST OPTION. TICKETS CAN BE BOUGHT ON THE DAY BUT ARRIVE AT MARGAO/MADGAON BY AT LEAST 6.30AM, AS THE QUEUES ARE INVARIABLY MORE LIKE RUGBY SCRUMS. THERE ARE ALSO TRAINS FROM HOSAPETE TO GOA VIA HUBBALLI.

EASY RIDING

Zippering round Goa on a rented motorbike is very much part of the Goa experience for most people, but before you take to the road there are a few things to consider. Officially, you need an international driver's licence to rent and ride anything, but in practice a standard licence will probably suffice if you're stopped and asked to produce your papers by the local police. All rented motorcycles should carry special yellow-and-black licence plates; make sure yours does, to avoid harassment by Goa's notoriously corrupt traffic cops. Although recent changes mean that police checks on foreigners have reduced considerably, if you are caught without a licence the bike owner will be fined ₹10,000 so they are very unlikely to rent to you without seeing one. Make sure the lights and brakes are in good shape, wear a helmet, and be especially vigilant at night. Rates for motorbikes vary according to season, duration of rental and vehicle; most owners also insist on a deposit and/or passport as security. The cheapest bike, a scooter-style Honda Activa 100cc which has automatic gears, costs ₹250–350 per day. Other options include the perennially stylish Enfield Bullet 350cc, although these are heavy and – at upwards of ₹700-1000 per day – the most expensive bike to rent. It's worth bearing in mind that road traffic accidents are the biggest cause of death of foreigners in India, so if you're not an experienced motorcyclist they are best avoided. Fuel is sold at service stations around the state (known locally as "petrol pumps"). None of the fuel stations are self-serviced and staff will approach you asking how much fuel you would like to fill in litres. In smaller settlements, including the resorts, it's sold in mineral-water bottles at general stores or through backstreet suppliers – but you should avoid these as some bulk out their petrol with low-grade kerosene or industrial solvent, which makes engines misfire and smoke badly.

By bus The bus journey covering the same route is no cheaper than the train (sleeper class) and is far more gruelling. Two or three clapped-out government services leave Panjim's Kadamba stand (platform #9) each morning for Hosapete, the last one at 10.30am. Brace yourself for a long, hard slog; all being well, it should take 9 or 10hr, but delays and breakdowns are frustratingly frequent.

TO AND FROM GOKARNA BY TRAIN THE FASTEST AND MOST CONVENIENT WAY TO TRAVEL ALONG THE COAST BETWEEN GOA AND GOKARNA IS ON THE KONKAN RAILWAY. THE MADGAON–MANGALURU PASSENGER (#56641) LEAVES MARGAO/MADGAON AT 1PM, PASSING THROUGH THE MARKET TOWN OF CANACONA/CHAUDI AT 1.52PM EN ROUTE TO GOKARNA RD, THE TOWN'S RAILHEAD, WHERE IT

ARRIVES AT 3.35PM. THE RETURN TRAIN (#56640) LEAVES GOKARNA RD AT 10.11AM, STOPPING AT CANACONA/CHAUDI AT 11.38PM, AND ARRIVING AT MARGAO/MADGAON AT 12.40PM. AS THIS IS CLASSED AS A PASSENGER SERVICE, YOU DON'T HAVE TO BUY TICKETS IN ADVANCE; JUST TURN UP AT THE STATION 30MIN BEFORE DEPARTURE AND PAY AT THE REGULAR TICKET COUNTER.

GETTING AROUND BY LOCAL BUS ALTHOUGH OFTEN CROWDED, LOCAL BUSES CAN GET YOU MOST PLACES IN GOA, AND FOR SHORTER JOURNEYS COST ONLY ₹10–15. MOST SERVICES RUN FROM AROUND 6AM UNTIL AROUND 7PM, THOUGH OFTEN LATER FOR INTER-URBAN ROUTES.

By taxi Most foreign visitors travel around Goa in white or yellow-and-black Maruti van taxis or the slightly cheaper auto-rickshaw. Fares are often posted at ranks and the official per-kilometre rates for all taxis and rickshaws can be found at goatourism.gov.in/inside-go – you should always clearly settle the fare before you start your journey. Uber is also widely available and is cheap and safe to use to get around in Goa.

By motorcycle taxi If you're not weighed down with luggage, motorcycle taxis – known throughout Goa as “pilots” – offer a faster alternative and generally cost less than half the taxi rate. Just remember that with motorcycle taxis there are old pilots and there are bold pilots, but no old, bold pilots – it's always best to choose a more mature driver (as well as haggle hard on the rate).

By bike A cheaper alternative is to rent a bicycle (gearless, Indian-made cycles) which are on offer in all the resorts for around ₹150–200/day.

By motorbike Many people travel around Goa by motorbike, but there are a number of issues to bear in mind.

Central Goa

Known as the Velhas Conquistas (“Old Conquests”), the land wedged between the Mandovi and Zuari rivers in Central Goa was the first territory to be colonized by the Portuguese in the early sixteenth century, and still retains a more Christian feel than outlying districts. Gabled, whitewashed churches dominate most village squares, and you'll see plenty of old-style Portuguese dresses worn by Catholic women.

The Lusitanian atmosphere is most discernible of all in the older districts of the state capital, Panjim, and although the town attracts far fewer visitors than the coastal resorts, it certainly deserves a day or two's break from the beach, if only to visit the remains of Old Goa, a short bus ride away upriver. Further inland, the forested lower slopes of the Western Ghats, cut through by the main Panjim–Bengaluru (Bangalore) highway, shelter the impressive Dudhsagar falls, reachable only by 4WD jeep, and a small, but beautifully situated, medieval Hindu temple at Tambdi Surla.

Panjim

Stacked around the sides of a lush terraced hillside at the mouth of the River Mandovi, PANJIM (also known by its Marathi name, Panaji – “land that does not flood”) was for centuries little more than a minor landing stage and customs house, protected by a hilltop fort and surrounded by stagnant swampland. It only became state capital in 1843, after the port at Old Goa had silted up, and its rulers and impoverished inhabitants had fled the plague.

Today, the town ranks among the least congested and hectic of any Indian capital. Conventional sights are thin on the ground, but the backstreets of the old quarter, Fontainhas, have retained a faded Portuguese atmosphere, with their colour-washed houses, azulejo-tiled street names and Catholic churches.

Panjim's annual hour in the spotlight comes at the end of November each year when it hosts the International Film Festival of India, or IFFI (iffi.nic.in), during which a galaxy of Bollywood glitterati, and a few international directors, turn up to strut their stuff.

Fontainhas

The town's oldest and most interesting district, Fontainhas, comprises a dozen or so blocks of Neoclassical houses nestled at the foot of leafy Altinho Hill on the eastern edge of Panjim, across the creek from the bus stand. Many have retained their traditional coat of ochre, pale yellow, green or blue – a legacy of the Portuguese insistence that every Goan building (except churches, which had to be white) should be colour-washed after the monsoons. While some have been restored, the majority remain in a state of charismatic decay.

One of the district's oldest structures is the Chapel of St Sebastian, which stands at the centre of Fontainhas, at the head of a small square. The eerie crucifix inside, brought here in 1812, formerly hung in the Palace of the Inquisition in Old Goa. Unusually, Christ's eyes are open – allegedly to inspire fear in those being interrogated by the Inquisitors.

Just off the bottom of the square is a small workshop where you can watch traditional Goan azulejos being made. The main sales room, Velha

Goa Galeria (Mon–Sat 10am–9pm; ☎0832 2711468, 🌐velhagoa.net), is a couple of blocks away at 191 Rua de Ourem.

Church Square

The leafy rectangular park opposite the India Government tourist office, known as Church Square or the Municipal Gardens, forms the heart of Panjim's commercial district. Presiding over its southeast side is the town's most distinctive landmark, the whitewashed Baroque facade of the Church of Our Lady of the Immaculate Conception. The church conducts mass every day in English, Konkani and Portuguese. At the head of a crisscrossing laterite walkway, the church was built in 1541 for the benefit of sailors arriving here from Lisbon. The weary mariners would stagger up from the quay to give thanks for their safe passage before proceeding to the capital at Old Goa – the original home of the enormous bell that hangs from its central gable.

Secretariat

Avda Dom João Castro

Running north from the church, Rua José Falcão brings you to the riverside, where Panjim's main street, Avenida Dom João Castro, holds the town's oldest surviving building. With its sloping tiled roofs, carved-stone coats of arms and wooden verandas, the stalwart Secretariat looks typically colonial. Yet it was originally the summer palace of Goa's sixteenth-century Muslim ruler, the Adil Shah. Later, the Portuguese converted it into a temporary resthouse for the territory's governors (who used to overnight here en route to and from Lisbon) and then a residence for the viceroy. Today, it houses municipal offices, though plans are afoot to transform it into a museum.

A hundred metres east, a peculiar statue of a man holding his hands over the body of an entranced reclining woman represents Abbé Faria (1755–1819), a Goan priest who emigrated to France to become one of the world's first professional hypnotists.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE EUROPEAN PANJIM CHARTER PLANES AND DOMESTIC FLIGHTS ARRIVE AT DABOLIM AIRPORT (☎0832 254 0796, 🌐GOANAIRPORT.COM), 29KM SOUTH OF PANJIM ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF VASCO DA

GAMA, GOA'S SECOND CITY. PREPAID TAXIS INTO TOWN (45MIN; ₹800), BOOKED AT THE OFFICE DIRECTLY OPPOSITE THE MAIN EXIT, CAN BE SHARED BY UP TO FOUR PEOPLE, THOUGH IF YOU TURN RIGHT AS YOU EXIT AND GO DOWN THE HILL, YOU CAN GET ONE FOR ₹500–600. MOTORCYCLE TAXIS ARE ABOUT ₹300–350. UBER IS ABOUT ₹400 BUT FARES FLUCTUATE.

Destinations Bengaluru (8 daily; 1hr); Chennai (1 daily; 1hr 35min); Delhi (13 daily; 2hr 30min); Hyderabad (2 daily; 1hr 30min); Kolkata (1 daily; 3hr); Mumbai (16–18 daily; 1hr 15min).

By train There's no railway station in town itself; the nearest one, on the Konkan Railway, is at Karmali (11km east of Panjim near Old Goa). State buses to central Panjim await arrivals. Bookings can be made in town at the KRC Reservations Office, on the first floor of the Kadamba bus stand, Panjim (Mon–Fri 8am–6pm; ₹10 booking fee). Book as far in advance as possible.

Destinations Gokarna Rd (3–4 daily; around 2hr); Hosapete for Hampi (4 weekly; 7hr); Mumbai (6–8 daily; 8hr 35min–11hr 40min); Pune (1–3 daily; 12hr 30min–14hr 40min).

By bus Long-distance and local buses work out of Panjim's busy Kadamba bus stand, 1km east of the centre in the district of Pato. Tickets can be bought in advance at the booking counters here (daily 9–11am & 2–5pm). Trips for private services are sold by the many travel agents immediately outside the station. Buses tend to depart in the afternoon/evening, and arrivals are in the morning. Within Goa, note that KTC shuttle buses are always faster than normal services.

Destinations Arambol (3–4 daily; 1hr 45min); Calangute (every 30min; 45min); Gokarna (2 daily; 5hr 30min); Hampi (1 nightly; 10hr); Mapusa (every 15min; 25–40min); Margao (every 15min; 45–55min); Mumbai (12 daily/nightly; 16hr); Pune (7–8 daily; 12hr).

GETTING AROUND AND INFORMATION BY AUTO-RICKSHAW AUTO-RICKSHAWS ARE THE MOST CONVENIENT WAY OF GETTING AROUND PANJIM; FLAG ONE DOWN AT THE ROADSIDE OR HEAD FOR ONE OF THE RANKS AROUND TOWN. MOST RICKSHAW DRIVERS UNDERSTAND AND SPEAK

ENGLISH, THE TRIP FROM THE BUS STAND TO FONTAINHAS COSTS AROUND ₹50.

Tourist information The Government of Goa tourist information counter, inside the concourse at the main Kadamba bus stand (daily 9am–5pm; ☎ 0832 2437430 🌐goatourism.gov.in) is useful for checking train and bus timings, but little else. The more reliable India Government tourist office is across town on Church Square (Mon–Fri 9.30am–6pm, Sat 9.30am–1pm; ☎ 0832 222 3412, 🌐incredibleindia.org).

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

The heritage properties in the atmospheric and peaceful Fontainhas are the best places to stay, while more modern and expensive hotels cluster in the area around 18th of June Rd. Finding a room can be a problem during Dussehra (Sept & Oct), Diwali (mid-Nov), the IFFI film festival in late Nov, and over Christmas and New Year. Note that checkout times vary.

Abrigo de Botelho Rua de Natal, Fontainhas 🌐hadbgoa.com. The newest of the district's heritage boutique hotels, set on a quiet corner in one of the prettiest backstreets. Its rooms, which come in three categories, are all a/c, large and tastefully decorated, with beautiful wood and tiled floors. Complimentary breakfast is served in a secluded rear garden. ₹₹₹

★Afonso St Sebastian Chapel Square, Fontainhas 🌐afonsoguesthouse.com. This refurbished colonial-era house in a picturesque square is a safe bet if you can't quite afford the Panjim Inn down the road. Spotless attached rooms, friendly owners and leafy rooftop terrace with views and cool ceramic mosaic floors – though someone's gone overboard with the textured wall paint. There is no breakfast but there are popular restaurants close by. ₹₹₹

Bharat Lodge Sao Tome Rd, near the GPO 📧thebharatlodge@gmail.com. Good-value budget guesthouse, located at the heart of the old quarter in a terracotta-washed, 150-year-old building that has retained many of its original features despite extensive modernization. The ten rooms are large for the price, have quiet fans and good-sized bathrooms: ask for no. 106 or 102 if they're vacant. A/c. No breakfast. ₹₹

★Panjim Inn/Panjim Pousada E-212, Rua 31 de Janeiro, Fontainhas 📍 panjiminn.com. Grand three-hundred-year-old townhouse, managed as a homely heritage hotel, with period furniture, antique photos, balconies and a veranda where meals and drinks are served. Their adjacent three-storey wing overlooking the river is in the same style, but with better views, while the Pousada annexe over the road has two lovely rear side rooms sharing a wooden balcony that overlooks a secret courtyard. Buffet breakfast available. ₹₹₹

Welcom Heritage Panjim People's Rua 31 de Janeiro, Fontainhas 📍 panjiminn.com. Sister to the Panjim Inn, in a former high school opposite the original house. It's more upmarket than their other two buildings, with rooms fitted with antique rosewood furniture, gilded pelmets, lace curtains and bathtubs. Rates include buffet breakfast. ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

Catering for the droves of tourists who come here from other Indian states, as well as fussy, more price-conscious locals, Panjim is packed with good places to eat. Most are connected to a hotel, but there are also plenty of other independently-run establishments offering quality food for far less than you pay in the coastal resorts. If you're unsure about which regional cooking style to go for, head for The Fidalgo Food Enclave, in the Hotel Fidalgo on 18th June Rd, which hosts six different outlets, from Goan to Gujarati.

Café Bhonsle Cunha Rivara Rd, near National Theater 📞99991 08684. This Panjim restaurant from a bygone era serves a combination of Goan, north Indian and Chinese fare. Popular and always bustling with hungry diners, it's known for its hearty and value-for-money food, especially the breakfast. The menu also features local dishes such as pata bhaji, as well as north Indian paneer dishes. ₹

GOAN FOOD AND DRINK NOT UNNATURALLY,
AFTER 451 YEARS OF COLONIZATION, GOAN
COOKING ABSORBED A STRONG PORTUGUESE INFLUENCE – PALM VINEGAR (UNKNOWN ELSEWHERE IN INDIA), COPIOUS AMOUNTS OF

COCONUT, TANGY KOKUM AND FIERCE LOCAL CHILLIES ALSO PLAY THEIR PART. GOA IS THE HOME OF THE FAMOUS VINDALOO (FROM THE PORTUGUESE VINHO D'ALHO, LITERALLY “GARLIC WINE”), ORIGINALLY AN EXTRA-HOT AND SOUR PORK CURRY, BUT NOW MADE WITH A VARIETY OF MEAT AND FISH. OTHER PORK SPECIALITIES INCLUDE SPICY CHOURIÇO SAUSAGES; SORPOTEL, A HOT CURRY MADE FROM PICKLED PIG’S LIVER AND HEART; LEITÃO, SUCKLING PIG; AND BALCHAO, PORK IN A RICH BROWN SAUCE. ANOTHER TRADITIONAL GOAN CATHOLIC DISH IS XACUTI, MADE WITH A SAUCE OF LEMON JUICE, PEANUTS, COCONUT, CHILLIES AND SPICES. ASK ANY GOAN AND THEY’LL CONFIRM THAT EVERY XACUTI TASTES DIFFERENT AS EACH HOUSEHOLD HAS ITS OWN SECRET RECIPE. THE CHOICE OF SEAFOOD, OFTEN COOKED IN FRAGRANT MASALAS (SUCH AS THE SOUR AND SPICY AMBOTIK), IS EXCELLENT – CLAMS, MUSSELS, CRAB, LOBSTER, GIANT PRAWNS – WHILE FISH, DEPENDING ON THE TYPE, IS EITHER COOKED IN WET CURRIES, GRILLED, OR BAKED IN A TANDOOR. CHICKEN DISHES INCLUDE CAFREAL A SPICY STEW WITH ORIGINS IN AFRICA. SANNA, LIKE THE SOUTH INDIAN IDLI, IS A STEAMED CAKE OF FERMENTED RICE FLOUR, BUT HERE SWEETENED WITH PALM TODDY OR SOMETIMES BAKING SODA IS ADDED FOR EXTRA FLUFFINESS. SUGAR FIENDS WILL ADORE BEBINCA, A RICH, DELICIOUS, SOLID EGG CUSTARD WITH COCONUT, AND THE TOFFEE-LIKE DODOL. FOR BREAKFAST, DON’T MISS THE ROS

OMELETTE WHICH HAS REMNANTS OF A XACUTI GRAVY POURED OVER AN OMELETTE.

As for drinks, locally produced wine, spirits and beer are cheaper than anywhere in the country, thanks to lower rates of tax. The most famous and widespread beer is Kingfisher, which tastes less of glycerine preservative than it does elsewhere in India, but you'll also come across pricier Fosters, brewed in Mumbai and nothing like the original. Goan port, a sweeter, inferior version of its Portuguese namesake, is ubiquitous, served chilled in large wine glasses with a slice of lemon. Local spirits – whiskies, brandies, rums, gins and vodkas – come in a variety of brand names for less than ₹50–150 a shot, but, at half the price, local speciality feni, made from distilled cashew or from the sap of coconut palms, offers strong competition. Cashew feni is usually drunk after the first distillation, but you can also find it double-distilled and flavoured with ginger or cumin, producing a smooth liqueur. The excellent Goan Paul John single malt whisky is worth trying for any whisky enthusiast.

George's Emilio Gracia Rd 📞098224 87722. This great little Goan-Catholic café serves proper local food on cramped tables near the Immaculate Conception church. Grab a seat under a fan and tuck into calamari chilli fry, prawn-curry-rice, or the superb and spicy beef tongue roast. They also do good-value fish curry rice meals. ₹-₹₹

Kokni Canteen Near Mahalaxmi Temple. Dada Vaidya Road, Panaji 🌐 koknikanteen.in. This authentic Goan restaurant, a local favourite serves a thali full of regional delicacies including rice and seafood and a small bowl of the pink-hued sol kadi (a digestive drink) which helps wash it all down. ₹₹

★Mum's Kitchen Dr D Bandodkar (DB) Marg (Panjim–Miramar Rd) 🌐 mumskitchengoa.com. The owners of this great Goan restaurant in the suburb of Miramar, 10min by auto from the centre of Panjim, collected old family recipes from mothers, grandmas and aunties across the state in an attempt to revive disappearing culinary traditions. The results, such as kombdecham sukhem (spicy boneless chicken) are as authentic and flavour packed as any you'll encounter in Goa. Daily 11am–11pm. ₹₹

★Viva Panjim 178 Rua 31 de Janeiro, behind Mary Immaculate High School, Fontainhas 📞0832 2422405. Award-winning traditional Goan home-cooking – xacutis, vindaloo, prawn balchao, cafreal, ambotik and delicious freshly grilled fish – served by a charming local woman, Linda de Souza, in a pretty colonial-era backstreet. This place should be your first choice for dinner if you’re staying in Fontainhas. ₹₹

SHOPPING

MAP

The main shopping area in the city is on and around 18th June Rd, though there are a few more interesting shops in Fontainhas.

Lembranca Gift and Souvenirs 7 Durga Chambers, 18th June Road 📞0832 2421779. Souvenirs, gifts, knick-knacks and a variety of crafts including ceramics and tiles are available here.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE NEARLY ALL THE BANKS IN TOWN HAVE ATMS, WHERE YOU CAN MAKE WITHDRAWALS USING VISA OR MASTERCARD. THE MOST EFFICIENT PLACE TO CHANGE CURRENCY IS THOMAS COOK, NEAR THE AIR INDIA/INDIAN AIRLINES OFFICE AT 8 ALCON CHAMBERS, DR D BANDODKAR (DB) MARG (APRIL–SEPT MON–SAT 9AM–6PM; OCT–MARCH ALSO SUN 10AM–5PM; 📞832 663 9257).

British Consular Assistant The British High Commission of Mumbai has a Consular Section in Panjim – a useful contact for British nationals who’ve lost passports, got into trouble with the law or need help dealing with a death. It’s on the far western end of town, opposite the five-star Marriott Hotel at 303–304 Casa del Sol, Miramar (Mon–Thurs 9.30am–3pm, Fri 9.30am–12.30pm; 📞832 6636777).

Cinema Panjim’s swanky multiplex, the 1272-seater INOX, is in the northwest of town on DB Marg (📞80802 11111 🌐inoxmovies.com). It screens all the latest Hindi blockbusters and some Hollywood movies.

Hospital The state’s main medical facility is the new Goa Medical College, aka GMC (📞0832 245 8700, 🌐gmc.goa.gov.in), 7km south on NH-17 at Bambolim, where there’s also a 24hr pharmacy. Ambulances (📞102) are likely to get you there a lot less quickly than a standard taxi. Conditions are grim by Western standards. Less serious cases can receive attention at the Vintage Hospital, next to the fire brigade headquarters in Panjim's St Inez district (☎0832 564 4401 to 4405). Better medical facilities are available in Margao, less than an hour away by road.

Pharmacies Hindu Pharma, near the tourist office on Church Square (Mon–Sat 9am–8pm; ☎0832 222 3176), stocks a phenomenal range of Ayurvedic, homeopathic and allopathic medicines.

Old Goa

Just 10km from Panjim, and at one time a byword for oriental splendour, Portugal's former capital in India, OLD GOA, was virtually abandoned following malaria and cholera epidemics from the seventeenth century onwards. Today, despite its UNESCO World Heritage Site status, you need considerable imagination to picture the once-great city at its zenith, when it boasted a population of several hundred thousand. The maze of twisting streets, piazzas and ochre-washed villas has vanished, and all that remains is a score of cream-painted churches and convents. Foremost among the surviving monuments is the tomb of St Francis Xavier, the legendary sixteenth-century missionary, whose desiccated remains are enshrined in the Basilica of Bom Jesus – the object of veneration for Catholics from across Asia and beyond.

Viceroy's Archway

Old Goa's grandest mansions formerly lined the riverfront, and the best direction from which to approach the site is still from the north. Begin your tour at the Viceroy's Archway (1597), which would have been the first structure to greet new arrivals in the seventeenth century. Constructed to commemorate Vasco da Gama's first landfall in India, it features a Bible-toting figure resting his foot on the cringing figure of a "native" on one side, and a statue of Da Gama himself on the other.

Church of St Cajetan A short way up the lane from the Archway, the spectacular domed Church of St Cajetan (1651) was modelled on St Peter's in Rome by monks from the Theatine Order. While it boasts a Corinthian exterior, non-European elements are also evident in the decoration, such as the cashew-nut designs in the carving of the pulpit.

The Sé (St Catherine's Cathedral) The Portuguese viceroy Redondo (1561–64) commissioned the Sé, or St Catherine's Cathedral, southwest of St Cajetan's, to be "a grandiose church worthy of the wealth, power and fame of the Portuguese who dominated the seas from the Atlantic to the Pacific". Today it stands larger than any church in Portugal, although it was beset by problems, not least a lack of funds and the motherland's temporary loss of independence to Spain. It took eighty years to build and was not consecrated until 1640.

On the Tuscan-style exterior, the one surviving tower houses the Golden Bell, cast in Cuncolim (south Goa) in the seventeenth century. During the Inquisition its tolling announced the start of the gruesome autos-da-fé that were held in the square outside, when suspected heretics were subjected to public torture and burned at the stake. The scale and opulence of the Corinthian-style interior is overwhelming; no fewer than fifteen altars are arranged around the walls, among them one featuring a Miraculous Cross, said to heal the sick. The staggeringly ornate, gilded main altar is surrounded by panels depicting episodes from the life of St Catherine of Alexandria (died 307 AD).

Convent of St Francis of Assisi Archaeological Museum Daily except Fri 7.30am–6.30pm On the north side of Old Goa's central square stands the Convent of St Francis of Assisi, built by Franciscan monks in 1517. Today, the core of the Archaeological Museum inside consists of a gallery of portraits of Portuguese viceroys, painted by local artists under Italian supervision. Other exhibits include coins, domestic Christian wooden sculpture, and downstairs in the cloister, pre-Portuguese Hindu sculpture. Next door, the Church of St Francis of Assisi (1521) features fine decorative frescoes, hidalgos' tombstones in the floor paving and paintings on wood showing the life of St Francis.

Basilica of Bom Jesus Site of the world-famous mausoleum of St Francis Xavier, the Basilica of Bom Jesus, on the south side of the main square, is India's most revered and architecturally accomplished church. Work on the building was started in 1589 and took sixteen years to complete. In 1964, it became the first church in South Asia to be promoted to a Minor Basilica, by order of Pope Pius XII, and today forms the main focus for Christian worship in the old colonial capital.

Is it believed that the design of the basilica is derived from the Gesù, the Jesuits' headquarters in Rome, and, with its idiosyncratic blend of Neoclassical restraint and Baroque extravagance, is typical of the late Renaissance. The sumptuous facade, the most ornate in Goa, is dominated by the IHS motif, standing for Iesus Hominum Salvator ("Jesus Saviour of Men") – a feature of all Jesuit churches.

The interior

The interior is positively plain by comparison to the exterior, but no less impressive, dominated by a massive gilt altarpiece and a huge central statue of St Ignatius Loyola, founder of the Jesuit Order, accompanied by the Infant Jesus. Swathed in lush gold leaf, the gigantic reredos filling the far end of the nave remains the basilica's most arresting feature. Its undisputed treasure, however, is to be found in the south transept: the mausoleum of St Francis was installed in 1698, a century and a half after his death, gifted to the Jesuits by the last of the Medicis, Cosimo III (1670–1723), Grand Duke of Tuscany, in exchange for the pillow on which the saint's head was laid to rest. It took Florentine sculptor Giovanni Batista Saggini a decade to design and was made from precious marble and coloured jaspers shipped from Italy.

ST FRANCIS XAVIER FRANCIS XAVIER, THE “APOSTLE OF THE INDIES”, WAS BORN IN 1506 IN THE OLD KINGDOM OF NAVARRE, NOW PART OF SPAIN. WHEN THE PORTUGUESE KING, DOM JOAO III (1521–57), RECEIVED REPORTS OF CORRUPTION AND DISSOLUTE BEHAVIOUR AMONG THE PORTUGUESE IN GOA, IT WAS XAVIER WHOM THE JESUIT ORDER SELECTED TO RESTORE THE MORAL CLIMATE OF THE COLONY.

Arriving after a year-long journey, the young priest embarked on a programme of missionary work throughout southern India, converting an estimated thirty thousand people – primarily by performing such miracles as raising the dead and curing the sick with a touch of his beads. Subsequent missions took him further afield to Sri Lanka, Malacca (Malaysia) and Japan, before his death from dysentery on the island of San Chuan (Sancian), off the Chinese coast in 1552.

Although credited with converting more people to Christianity than anyone other than St Paul, Francis Xavier owes his subsequent canonization principally to the legend surrounding the fate of his mortal remains, which, when exhumed in China a year after burial, were found to be in a perfect state of preservation. His body was later removed and taken to Old Goa, where it has remained ever since, enshrined in the Basilica of Bom Jesus.

PLUNDERED RELICS ST FRANCIS'S INCORRUPTIBLE CORPSE, HOWEVER, HAS NEVER RESTED ENTIRELY IN PEACE. CHUNKS OF IT HAVE BEEN REMOVED OVER THE YEARS BY RELIC HUNTERS AND CURIOUS CLERICS: IN 1614, THE RIGHT ARM WAS DISPATCHED TO THE POPE IN ROME (WHERE IT ALLEGEDLY WROTE ITS NAME ON PAPER); A HAND WAS SENT TO JAPAN, AND PARTS OF THE INTESTINES TO SOUTHEAST ASIA. ONE PORTUGUESE WOMAN, DONA ISABEL DE CARON, EVEN BIT OFF THE LITTLE TOE OF THE CADAVER; APPARENTLY, SO MUCH BLOOD SPURTED INTO HER MOUTH, IT LEFT A TRAIL TO HER HOUSE AND SHE WAS DISCOVERED.

Every ten years (the next is due in 2024), the saint's body is carried in a three-hour ceremony from the Basilica of Bom Jesus to the Sé cathedral, where visitors file past, touch and photograph it. Around a quarter of a million pilgrims flock to view the corpse, these days a shrivelled and somewhat unsavoury spectacle.

Holy Hill

If the heat hasn't got the better of you, head west up the lane leading from the bus stand to take in the cluster of monuments on Holy Hill, some of which date from the earliest phase of Christian building in Goa.

Convent of Santa Monica The lane winds uphill, passing the weed-choked Convent of Santa Monica on the right. This was the only Goan convent at the time of its construction in 1627, and the largest one in Asia in its era. It housed around a hundred nuns and offered accommodation to women whose husbands were called away to other parts of the empire. As they had to remain away from the public gaze, the nuns attended Mass in the choir loft of the adjacent chapel, where a Miraculous Cross rises above the figure of St Monica at the altar.

Museum of Christian Art Daily 10am–5pm •

museumofchristianart.com • charge Next door to the Convent of Santa Monica stands Goa's foremost Museum of Christian Art. Exhibits include processional crosses, ivory ornaments, damask silk clerical robes and some finely sculpted wooden icons dating from the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, among them an unusual statue of John the Baptist wearing a tiger-skin wrap.

Chapel of Our Lady of the Rosary Crowning the very top of the Holy Hill, the Chapel of Our Lady of the Rosary, constructed in 1526 in the Manueline style (after the Portuguese king Manuel I, 1495–1521), features Ionic plasterwork with a double-storey portico, cylindrical turrets and a tower that commands fine views across the river from the terrace where Albuquerque surveyed the decisive battle of 1510. Its cruciform interior is unremarkable, except for the marble tomb of Catarina a Piró, believed to have been the first European woman to set foot in the colony. A commoner, she eloped here to escape the scandal surrounding her romance with Portuguese nobleman Garcia de Sá, who later rose to be governor of Goa. Under pressure from no less than Francis Xavier, Garcia eventually married her, but only in articulo mortis as she lay on her deathbed. Her finely carved tomb, set in the wall beside the high altar, incorporates a band of intricate Gujarati-style ornamentation, probably imported from the Portuguese trading post of Diu.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE GIVEN HOW SHORT THE OLD GOA TRIP IS, AND THE HIGH EACH-WAY CHARGES LEVIED BY LOCAL TAXIS (₹400) AND AUTO-RICKSHAWS (₹250), THIS IS ONE EXCURSION THAT'S EMINENTLY DOABLE BY PUBLIC TRANSPORT. JUST 15–20MIN BY ROAD FROM THE STATE CAPITAL, OLD GOA IS SERVED BY BUSES EVERY 10MIN FROM PANJIM'S KADAMBA BUS STAND (₹10).

Tambdi Surla

Six or seven hundred years ago, the Goan coast and its hinterland were littered with scores of richly carved stone temples. Only one, though, made it unscathed through the Muslim onslaught and the religious bigotry of the Portuguese era. Erected in the twelfth or thirteenth century, the tiny Mahadeva temple at TAMBDI SURLA, 65km from Panjim and deep in the interior of Goa, owes its survival to its remote location in a tranquil clearing deep in the forest at the foot of the Western Ghats, which enfold the site in a wall of impenetrable vegetation.

The temple, dedicated to Shiva, was built from the finest weather-resistant grey-black basalt, carried across the mountains from the Deccan Plateau and richly carved in situ by the region's most accomplished craftsmen.

Despite its remoteness, Tambdi Surla sees large numbers of visitors, especially on weekends, when it becomes the target for numerous school trips – so if you want to enjoy the site's essential tranquility come during the week.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS A SINGLE TAMBDI SURLA DAILY BUS LEAVES PANJIM'S KADAMBA BUS STAND AT 10.50AM AND ARRIVES AT THE TEMPLE AT 1.10PM. THE RETURN BUS LEAVES LATE AFTERNOON.

By taxi To get to Tambdi Surla you have to follow the course of NH-4 east from the central Goan town of Ponda, which, used by streams of iron-ore trucks, is a nightmare on a scooter or motorbike. Go by taxi if you can afford it: drivers charge around ₹3000 for a return trip from the coast.

Dudhsagar waterfalls Measuring a mighty 600m from head to foot, the famous Dudhsagar waterfalls (meaning the sea of milk), on the Goa–Karnataka border, are some of the highest in India, and a spectacular enough sight to entice a steady stream of visitors from the coast into the rugged Western Ghats. The Konkani name for the falls, which literally translated means “sea of milk”, derives from clouds of foam kicked up at the bottom when the water levels are at their highest. Overlooking a steep, crescent-shaped head of a valley carpeted with pristine tropical forest, Dudhsagar is set amid impressive scenery that is only accessible on foot or by jeep.

The best time to visit is immediately after the monsoons, from October until mid-December, when water levels are highest, although the falls flow well into April.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY DUDHSAGAR WATERFALLS
JEEP THE ONLY PRACTICAL WAY TO GET TO DUDHSAGAR AND BACK IS BY 4WD JEEP FROM COLEM/KULEM (GET TO COLEM BY TRAIN FROM VASCO, MARGAO AND CHANDOR, OR BY TAXI FROM THE NORTH COAST RESORTS FOR AROUND ₹3000). LOOK FOR THE “CONTROLLER OF JEEPS” IN COLEM, NEAR THE STATION. THE COST OF THE ONWARD 30– 40MIN TRIP FROM COLEM TO THE FALLS, ACROSS ROUGH FOREST TRACKS AND THREE RIVER FORDS, IS ₹2100/SIX-PERSON JEEP (YOU MAY HAVE TO WAIT FOR THE VEHICLE TO FILL UP); THE DRIVE ENDS WITH AN ENJOYABLE 10MIN HIKE.

Entrance fee The park entrance fee is ₹400, with an extra charge for a camera.

North Goa

Development in North Goa is concentrated mainly behind the 7km strip of white sand that stretches from the foot of Fort Aguada, crowning the peninsula east of Panjim, to Baga creek in the north. Encompassing the resorts of Candolim, Calangute and Baga, this is Goa’s prime charter belt and an area that most independent travellers steer well clear of.

Since the advent of mass tourism in the 1980s, the alternative “scene” has drifted progressively north away from the sunbed strip to Anjuna and Vagator – site of some of the region’s loveliest beaches – and scruffier Chapora, which still has the feel of a fishing village (although overfishing means few boats actually go out these days). Further north still, Arambol has thus far escaped any large-scale development, despite the completion of the new road bridge across the Chapora River. Aswem and Mandrem, just south of Arambol, are this stretch of coast’s hot tips: still reasonably off-track, though rapidly filling up.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE NORTH GOA'S NORTH GOA MARKET TOWN, MAPUSA, IS THE AREA'S MAIN JUMPING-OFF PLACE IF YOU'RE ARRIVING OVERLAND FROM OUT OF STATE. TRAVELLING HERE BY TRAIN VIA THE KONKAN RAILWAY, GET OFF AT TIVIM (THIVIM), 12KM EAST OF MAPUSA, FROM WHERE YOU'LL HAVE TO JUMP IN A BUS OR TAXI FOR THE REMAINING LEG.

Mapusa

MAPUSA (pronounced "Mapsa") is the district headquarters of Bardez taluka. A dusty collection of dilapidated, mostly modern buildings ranged around a busy central square, the town is of little more than passing interest, although it does host a lively daily fresh produce market. Anjuna's market may be a better place to shop for souvenirs, but Mapusa's is much more authentic. Local specialities include strings of spicy Goan sausages (chouriço), bottles of toddy (fermented palm sap) and large green plantains from nearby Moira.

Whatever you're looking for in the Mapusa market, it's a good idea to arrive as early in the morning as possible to beat the heat. After 11am temperatures can be stifling.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN TIVIM MAPUSA (THIVIM), THE NEAREST RAILWAY STATION TO MAPUSA, IS 12KM EAST IN THE NEIGHBOURING BICHOLIM DISTRICT.
BUSES SHOULD BE ON HAND TO TRANSPORT PASSENGERS
INTO TOWN. THE KONKAN RAILWAY'S KONKAN KANYA EXPRESS #10111 ARRIVES IN TIVIM FROM MUMBAI'S CST AT AROUND 9AM, LEAVING PLENTY OF TIME TO FIND ACCOMMODATION IN THE COASTAL RESORTS WEST OF MAPUSA.

Destinations Cancona (for Palolem; 3 daily; 1hr 30min–2hr); Gokarna Rd (Fri; 2hr 30min); Mumbai (5–7 daily; 8hr 20min–11hr 30min).

By bus You can pick up local services to Calangute, Baga, Anjuna, Vagator, Chapora and Arambol. These leave from the Kadamba bus stand, a 5min walk west of the main square, where all state-run services from Panjim also pull in.

SWIMMING IN GOA: A WARNING BE VERY CAREFUL WHERE YOU SWIM IN GOA. MANY PLACES ARE SUBJECT TO VICIOUS CURRENTS (EVEN IN RELATIVELY SHALLOW WATER) AND DURING THE SEASON AT LEAST ONE TOURIST A WEEK DROWNS HERE – OFTEN AFTER THEY HAVE CONSUMED DRUGS OR ALCOHOL. IT'S SAFEST TO STICK TO THE BEACHES WITH LIFEGUARDS AND FLAGS INDICATING THE SAFE AREAS TO SWIM. SWIMMING ANYWHERE DURING THE MONSOON IS EXTREMELY DANGEROUS AND BEST AVOIDED.

Destinations Anjuna (hourly; 30min); Arambol (every 30min; 1hr); Calangute (every 30min; 30min); Chapora (every 30min; 30–40min); Mumbai (24 daily; 16hr); Panjim (every 10–15min; 25min); Pernem (6 daily; 1hr 45min); Vagator (every 30min; 25–35min).

By taxi Motorcycle taxis hang around the square to whisk lightly laden shoppers and travellers to the coast for around ₹150. Taxis charge considerably more (around ₹300), but you can split the fare with up to five people.

EATING

Café SF Xavier Municipal Market ☎8322262229. For quick, authentic Goan food, you won't do better than Café SF Xavier, which has been here since the Portuguese era. It serves scrumptious veg patties and beef “chops” (rissoles), as well as spicy meals of fish, prawn, pork and chicken curry, and other local standards such as cafreal, sorpotel and xacuti. Vegetarians can try the local pav or pao (bread) with bhaji, a spicy and tangy curry doused in plenty of butter. ₹

Ruchira Fifth floor, Hotel Satyaheera, by the roundabout, past the taxi stand ☎832 226 3869. The best and most comfortable of the eating options around the main intersection, serving decent but pricey local and Indian dishes such as Goan chicken chilli fry and prawn biryani. ₹₹₹

SHOPPING OTHER INDIA BOOKSTORE ABOVE THE MAPUSA CLINIC ☎0832 226 3305, 🌐OTHERINDIABOOKSTORE.COM.

HIDDEN AWAY ABOVE THE MAPUSA CLINIC, THIS BOOKSTORE IS A TREASURE TROVE WITH A VAST RANGE OF TITLES RELATING TO ECOLOGY, THE ENVIRONMENT AND GOA IN GENERAL; A FULL STOCK LIST IS AVAILABLE ONLINE.

Candolim and around CANDOLIM is prime package-tourist country, and not a resort that sees many backpackers, but, with a few pleasant places to stay in the village by the fort, it can make a good first stop if you've just arrived in Goa – and its predominantly more mature clientele make it much less rowdy than Calangute/Baga. The busy strip running through the middle of town holds a string of banks and handy shops where you can stock up with essentials before moving further afield, and there are some great places to eat and drink, frequented mostly by boozy, middle-aged Brits and, increasingly, domestic tourists.

Fort Aguada

The one sight worth seeking out in the area is Fort Aguada, crowning the rocky flattened headland to the south, at the end of the beach. Built in 1612 to protect the northern shores of the Mandovi estuary from Dutch and Maratha raiders, the bastion encloses several natural springs, the first source of drinking water available to ships arriving in Goa after the long sea voyage from Lisbon. The ruins of the fort can be reached by following the main drag south from Candolim as it bears left, past the turning for the Vivanta Resort; keep going for 1km until you see a right turn, which runs uphill to a small car park. Panoramic views extend from the top of the hill where a four-storey Portuguese lighthouse, erected in 1864 and the oldest of its kind in Asia, looks down over the vast expanse of sea, sand and palm trees.

Sinquerim Beach

From the base of the walled Vivanta Resort on the northern flank of the headland, a rampart of red-brown laterite juts into the bay at the bottom of what's left of Sinquerim Beach, which was virtually wiped out by a series of particularly heavy monsoon storms in 2009. This was among the first places in Goa to be singled out for upmarket tourism. The Taj group's Vivanta resort, among the most expensive hotels in India, lords it over the sands from the slopes below the battlements.

ARRIVAL AND GETTING AROUND CANDOLIM AND AROUND BY BUS BUSES FROM AND TO PANJIM AND CALANGUTE STOP EVERY 10–15MIN OR SO AT THE CROSSROADS IN THE MIDDLE OF CANDOLIM AND A FEW HEAD SOUTH HERE TO THE SINGERIM TERMINUS BY THE FORT; YOU CAN ALSO FLAG THEM DOWN FROM ANYWHERE ALONG THE MAIN ROAD TO CALANGUTE.

Destinations Calangute (every 15min; 15min); Panjim (every 15min; 25min).

By motorbike During the season there is often a dearth of motorcycles for rent, in which case search for one in Calangute. The nearest petrol pump lies 5km east on the main Panjim road, just beyond Nerul.

INFORMATION AND ACTIVITIES BANKS AND EXCHANGE THERE ARE LOTS OF ATMS DOTTED ALONG THE MAIN DRAG AND YOU CAN CHANGE MONEY AT ANY NUMBER OF PRIVATE EXCHANGE PLACES IN CANDOLIM, ALTHOUGH THEIR RATES ARE UNLIKELY TO BE AS COMPETITIVE AS THOSE IN CALANGUTE.

Scuba diving Dive Goa, at the SinQ Beach Club, offers diving trips (☎ 93250 30110, 🌐 divegoa.com). One introductory dive along with training session in the pool costs ₹5500. They also conduct diving certification courses.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Candolim is charter-holiday land, so accommodation tends to be expensive for most of the season. That said, if bookings are down, you can find some great bargains here, and Sinquerim, east of the fort, is a genuinely nice place to stay.

★ Dona Florina Monteiro's Rd, Escrivao Waddo ☎ 8322489398. Large guesthouse in a superb location, overlooking the beach in a secluded corner of the village. Its friendly owner has added a breezy rooftop terrace with ceramic mosaic floors where guests can practise yoga. Non a/c single rooms are cheaper but it's well worth paying the extra for an a/c double with idyllic sea views. No car access but parking is 500 metres away. ₹₹

Marbella Sinquerim 🌐 marbellagoa.com. Individually-styled suites and spacious rooms in a beautiful house built to resemble a traditional Goan mansion. There are six rooms; everything is gorgeous, especially in the top-floor "Penthouse", and the whole place is screened by a giant mango tree. Unashamedly romantic. ₹₹₹-₹₹₹₹

Pretty Petals Camotim Waddo 🌐 prettypetalsgoa.com. Thirteen very large modern rooms, all with fridges, good mattresses, balconies and relaxed communal areas overlooking lawns. Their top-floor apartment, with windows on four sides and a huge balcony, is the best choice, though more expensive. Use of swimming pool included which is about half a km away on foot. ₹₹

Shanu's Seaside Inn Escrivao Waddo 🌐 shanu.in. Eighteen good-sized, well-furnished rooms with narrow balconies right overlooking the dunes, some of them with uninterrupted views of the sea. The a/c rooms cost double. Ask the hospitable owners for no. 120 or 110 (or failing that 111, 107). Breakfast is served in your room. ₹

EATING

MAP

Candolim's numerous beach cafés are a cut above your average seafood shacks, with lots of plants, high-tech sound systems and prices to match. The further from the Vivanta complex you venture, the lower the prices become. Fancier places serving more ambitious cuisine line busy Fort Aguada Rd, alongside a string of enduringly popular local joints.

★Bomra's 247 Fort Aguada Rd, Souza 097675 91056. Understated, relaxed place, on a dimly-lit gravel terrace by the roadside. From the outside you'd never know this was one of Goa's gastronomic highlights, but the food – contemporary Burmese and Kachin cuisine with fusion food– is superb. The menu is reassuringly short; try their aromatic-flavoured pickle tea-leaf salad for a starter, and tamarind pork curry or chicken curry or snapper with lemongrass and galangal for a main. They also do fantastic cocktails and, for dessert, delicious ginger crème brûlée. ₹₹₹

Café Chocolatti 409 Fort Aguada Rd, Dando Waddo 093261 12006. Nazneen, the British-raised owner of this delightful café in south Candolim, has conjured up a chocoholic heaven. Order a perfect cup of freshly ground coffee or a milkshake to drink in the garden, and indulge in gourmet Belgian-style truffles, tinged with chilli, mocha and orange, a succulent marmalade brownie, or crunchy almond-flavoured Italian biscuits. ₹

★Pete's Shack Sequeira Beach 098230 25281. One beach shack that deserves singling out, because it's always professional and serves great healthy salads with real olive oil, mozzarella and balsamic vinegar (₹280–430). All the veg is carefully washed in chlorinated water first, so the food is safe and fresh. The same applies to their seafood sizzler and barbecue grilled dishes all in the range of ₹300–500. For dessert, try the wonderful home-made matka kulfi (served in an earthenware pot) or a cooling mint lassi. Daily 8am–10pm.

Viva Goa! Fort Aguada Rd, Ana Waddo 00832 248 9677. Tasty, no-nonsense Goan food fresh from the market – mussel-fry, barramundi (chonok), lemonfish (modso) and sharkfish steaks fried rechado style in chilli paste or in millet (rawa) – served on a roadside terrace. It used to be a locals' place, but the customers are mostly tourists these days, and although not as authentic as it used to be, it's good value. ₹₹ to-do Goans would come for their annual mudança, or change of air, in May and June, when the pre-monsoon heat made life in the towns insufferable. It remains the state's busiest resort, but has changed beyond recognition since the days when straw-hatted musicians in the beachfront bandstand would regale smartly dressed strollers with Lisbon fados and Konkani dulpods. Mass package tourism, combined with a huge increase in the number of Indian visitors (for whom this is Goa's number-one beach resort), has placed an impossible burden on the town's rudimentary infrastructure. Hemmed in by four-storey buildings and swarming with traffic, the market area, in particular, has taken on the aspect of a typical makeshift Indian town of precisely the kind that most travellers used to come to Goa to get away from. That said, the south end of the beach around Maddo Waddo is quite mellow and there are marginally fewer domestic lager louts than in Baga to the north.

Calangute and Baga A 45-minute bus ride up the coast from Panjim, CALANGUTE was, in Portuguese times, where well-

Baga

BAGA is pretty much an extension of Calangute, though the scenery in the far north is somewhat more varied and picturesque. Overlooked by a rocky headland draped in vegetation, a small tidal river flows into the sea at the top of the village, past a spur of soft white sand where ranks of brightly coloured fishing boats are moored.

Since the package boom, Baga has developed more rapidly than anywhere else in the state and today looks less like the Goan fishing village it was in the early 1990s and more like a small-scale resort on the Spanish costas, with a predominantly young, male, Indian clientele. These "stags", lured to Goa by advertising hinting at cheap booze, hard partying and erotic encounters with exotic foreign women, can be annoying. Beyond the rowdy bars where they hang out, however, you'll find a crop of excellent restaurants and some lively nightlife.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS CALANGUTE AND BAGA
BUSES FROM MAPUSA (EVERY 30MIN; 30MIN) AND PANJIM
(EVERY 15MIN; 45MIN) PULL IN AT THE SMALL BUS-STAND-CUM-MARKET-SQUARE IN THE CENTRE OF CALANGUTE.
SOME CONTINUE TO BAGA, STOPPING AT THE CROSSROADS
BEHIND THE BEACH EN ROUTE.

By taxi From Mapusa a taxi should cost around ₹400 and from Panjim around ₹500, with motorcycle taxis costing around half that and rickshaws somewhere in between.

Banks and exchange There are more than 27 ATMs along the main streets, all of which will give cash with Visa or MasterCard. Private currency changers on the same street (many of which also do money wiring) include Wall Street Finances (Mon–Sat 9.30am–6pm), opposite the Plantain Leaf and in the shopping complex on the beachfront, who exchange cash at bank rates.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

In spite of the encroaching mayhem, plenty of travellers get hooked on Calangute's mix of market town and beach resort, returning year after year to stay in little family guesthouses. Nowhere is far from the shore, but sea views are a rarity. Accommodation is harder to find in Baga, as even rooms in smaller guesthouses tend to be booked up well before the season gets under way. The majority of family-run places lie around the north end of the beach, where nights have been a lot more peaceful since Goa's premier club, Tito's, acquired soundproofing.

Cavala Baga Rd 📍cavala.com. Modern hotel in tastefully traditional laterite, with a pool in a plot across the road, surrounded by banana groves. Some rooms have separate balconies front and back; and most of the views look across open fields. Rooms range from simple non a/c doubles to luxurious suites. ₹₹₹

★CoCo Banana 1195 Umta Waddo 📍cocobananagoa.com. Very comfortable, spacious chalets, all with bathrooms, fridges, fans, mosquito nets, kettles and extra-long mattresses. It is run by a welcoming Goan-Swiss couple, Walter and Marina Lobo, who have been here for more than 35 years – a chat with the former about the cultural history of Goa is reason enough to stay here. They also have a few quieter rooms closer to the beach. ₹₹

Indian Kitchen Behind Our Lady of Piety Church 📍indian-kitchen-go.com. Highly decorated guesthouse with crazy mosaic tiling, brightly patterned walls and lanterns. The rooms, all attached, have fridges and TV – and, amazingly for a budget hotel, there's a little pool to the rear. They also have more expensive a/c rooms and quieter chalets round the back. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

This has long been a destination where people come to eat as much as to stroll on the beach, and even if you stay in resorts elsewhere, you'll probably be tempted down here for a meal.

A Reverie Near Goan Heritage Resort, Gauro Waddo ☎98231 74927 or ☎98235 05550. Over-the-top gourmet place on the south side of Calangute, centred on a grand, multilevel, terracotta-tiled canopy. Both the gastronomic menu and ambience are about as extravagant as Goa gets, but the prices aren't top whack. Signature dishes include the little BBQ (beef or lamb steak cooked at the table), and lobster cooked in a risotto, poached or with spices. Reservations recommended. ₹₹₹

Baba au Rhum Anjuna Calangute–Anjuna Road ☎98228 66366. This cool French patisserie-cum-pizzeria hidden deep in the expat enclave of

Arpora is a bit off the beaten track, but worth hunting out for its flaky croissants, baguettes, pain au raisin, fruit salads, juices and perfect café au lait, served on heavy wood tables, with infectious World grooves playing in the background. To find it, turn left off the main Calangute–Anjuna road when you see their signboard. ₹₹

Fiesta Tito's Lane 📞 fiestagoa.com. Baga's most sumptuously decorated restaurant is nestled inside an old 1930s mansion by the sea – but you only get views of a lush garden. The contemporary Italian and Mediterranean food is as delectable as the decor. Try their carpaccio of beef for starters, followed by the succulent wood-fired pizzas. Reservations recommended. ₹₹

Florentine's 4km east of St Alex's Church at Saligao, next door to the Ayurvedic Natural Health Centre 📞 93732 82436. It's well worth venturing inland to taste Florence D'Costa's legendary chicken cafreal made to a jealously guarded family recipe that pulls in crowds of locals and tourists from across north Goa. The restaurant is a down-to-earth place, with prices to match, serving only chicken, some seafood and only a couple of vegetarian snacks, including mushroom and gobi (cauliflower) manchurian. ₹₹

Infantaria Bar and Restaurant Next to St John's Chapel, Baga Rd 📞 9222 02526. A bakery that also morphs into a popular bar and restaurant with live music every evening. It gets packed out for its stodgy croissants, freshly baked apple pie and traditional Goan sweets (such as dodol and home-made bebinca). Top of the savouries are the prawn, chicken and veg patties, which locals buy by the box-load. ₹-₹₹

★ Le Poisson Rouge Baga Creek 📞 gregorybazire.com. An established fixture on north Goa's gastronomic map, this Gallic-run restaurant is situated in an elegantly styled palm garden lit by pretty tea lights. An ever-changing menu mixes classic French technique with local flavour – check the website for the latest offerings. Reservations recommended. ₹₹

Plantain Leaf Market area 📞 7387876957. The best Udupi-style restaurant outside Panjim, if not all Goa, where waiters in matching shirts serve the usual range of delicious dosas and other spicy snacks in a clean, cool marble-lined canteen. Try their definitive idli and vada breakfasts, delicious masala dosas, or the cheap and filling set thalis. ₹

NIGHTLIFE

MAP

Nightlife is centred around Baga and the various bars and clubs along Tito's Lane, named after Tito's club, the most famous club in Goa, if not India. This is where the Indian "stags" come to fulfil their Goa fantasies, so single women may feel uncomfortable with the level of attention –the flipside is that single women will rarely have to pay for entry or drinks. Otherwise, take your pick from the string of shacks lined up along the beach or bars on Baga Road, which stay open until the last punter staggers home. There are other old clubs like Mambos who serve the same purpose but newer swanky clubs like Hammerzzz that have tighter security.

SEXUAL HARASSMENT IN GOA WHILE THE VAST MAJORITY OF HARASSMENT OF FEMALE TOURISTS IN GOA IS RELATIVELY HARMLESS (THOUGH UNACCEPTABLE) – THE SURREPTITIOUS USE OF CELL PHONES TO TAKE PHOTOS OF SCANTILY CLAD WOMEN ON BEACHES, FOR EXAMPLE (REPORT THEM TO THE BEACH POLICE AND THEY'LL BE FORCED TO DELETE THE PICTURES), OR UNWANTED ATTEMPTS AT CONVERSATION BY LARGE GROUPS OF MEN – THERE HAVE BEEN MORE SERIOUS CASES OF SEXUAL CRIMES. WOMEN SHOULD AVOID WALKING ALONE IN REMOTE PLACES (OR ON THE BEACH), ESPECIALLY AFTER DARK, AND NEVER ACCEPT DRINKS FROM STRANGERS.

SATURDAY NIGHT BAZAARS ONE OF THE FEW GENUINELY POSITIVE IMPROVEMENTS TO THE NORTH GOA RESORT STRIP OVER THE LAST FIFTEEN YEARS HAS BEEN THE SATURDAY NIGHT MARKET (@SNMGOA.COM), HELD ON A PLOT

INLAND AT ARPORA, MIDWAY BETWEEN BAGA AND ANJUNA. ORIGINALLY THE BRAINCHILD OF AN EXPAT GERMAN CALLED INGO, IT'S RUN WITH GREAT EFFICIENCY AND A SENSE OF FUN THAT'S PALPABLY LACKING THESE DAYS FROM THE ANJUNA FLEA MARKET. THE BALMY EVENING TEMPERATURES AND PRETTY LIGHTS ARE ALSO A LOT MORE CONDUCTIVE TO RELAXED BROWSING THAN THE BROILING HEAT OF MID-AFTERNOON ON ANJUNA BEACH. ALTHOUGH FAR MORE COMMERCIAL THAN ITS PREDECESSOR IN ANJUNA, MANY OLD GOA HANDS REGARD THIS AS FAR TRUER TO THE ORIGINAL SPIRIT OF THE FLEA MARKET. A SIGNIFICANT PROPORTION OF THE STALLS ARE TAKEN UP BY FOREIGNERS SELLING THEIR OWN STUFF, FROM REPRODUCTION OF INDIAN POP ART TO ANTIQUE PHOTOS, THE LATEST TRANCE PARTY GEAR, STUNNING ANTIQUE AND COCONUT-SHELL JEWELLERY AND TECHNO DJ DEMOS. THERE'S ALSO A MOUTH-WATERING ARRAY OF ETHNIC FOOD AND A STAGE FEATURING LIVE MUSIC FROM AROUND 7PM UNTIL 3AM, WHEN THE MARKET WINDS UP, AS WELL AS A COUPLE OF TRENDY BARS WITH LIVE MUSIC OR DJS. ADMISSION IS FREE.

The night market from which Ingo's splintered – Mackie's (www.mackiesnitebazaar.com) – lies nearby, close to the riverside in Baga. Spurned by the expatriate designers and stallholders, it is not quite as lively as its rival, though in recent years has made an effort to close the gap, with better live acts and more foreign stallholders.

Club Cubana Arpora 📍clubcubanagoacom. Cubana, which occupies a hilltop just inland from the strip, is the most civilized nightspot in the area, especially for women. Only couples are admitted; and there's even a ladies-only dance floor. The music's so-so, but the vibe is much more chilled than male-dominated Tito's. Jeeps shuttle punters up the hill, and you can wallow in a swimming pool.

Tito's/Mambo's Tito's Lane, Saunta Waddo 📍titos.in. Baga's legendary nightlife is largely attributable to Tito's and its various offspring, including the latest, more techno-orientated, Mambo's. Every night hundreds of revellers, many of them single men from other states, are lured in by TV images of women in skimpy dancewear and a thumping sound-and-light system. This can make for an uncomfortably loaded atmosphere for women. Biggest nights are Fri and Sat; music genre is lounge till 11pm, then hip-hop, house, techno and, at Tito's, Bollywood hits. At both, entry and drinks are usually free for women.

SHOPPING

MAP

Star Magic Shop Tito's Ln, opp. Kamaki Restaurant 📞91581 83113. It rains magic in this colourful shop, which is filled with tricks and treats. Plenty of quirky gifts like "magic" cards, lights, notebooks and other souvenirs.

Anjuna

ANJUNA, the next sizeable village up the coast from Baga, was, until a few years back, the last bastion of alternative chic in Goa – where the state's legendary full-moon parties were staged each season, and where the Beautiful Set would rent pretty red-tiled houses for six months at a time, make trance mixes and groovy dance clothes, paint the palm trees fluorescent colours and spend months lazing on the beach. A small contingent of fashionably attired, middle-aged hippies still turn up, but thanks to a combination of the Y2K music curfew and overwhelming growth in popularity of the flea market, Anjuna has seriously fallen out of fashion with the party crowd.

As a consequence, the scattered settlement of old Portuguese houses and whitewashed churches, nestled behind a long golden sandy beach, nowadays more closely resembles the place it was before the party scene snowballed than it has for a decade or more. There is, however, a downside to staying here: levels of substance abuse, both among visitors and locals, remain exceptionally high, and the village suffers more than its fair share of dodgy characters.

The beach

The north end of Anjuna beach, just below where the buses pull in, is no great shakes by Goan standards, with a dodgy undertow and lots of even dodgier people selling hash, as well as parties of whisky-filled day-trippers in constant attendance. The vibe is much nicer at the far, southern end, where a pretty and more sheltered cove accommodates a mostly twenty-something tourist crowd. A trance soundtrack thumps from the shacks behind it, cranking up to become proper parties after dark, when Curlie's and neighbouring Shiva Valley take turns to max their sound systems, hosting international DJs through the season. Chai ladies and food stallholders sit in wait on the sands, just like in the raves of old, and on Thursdays, when they seem to have come to an arrangement with authorities, the party continues till daylight. Every other night things grind to a halt at 10pm sharp.

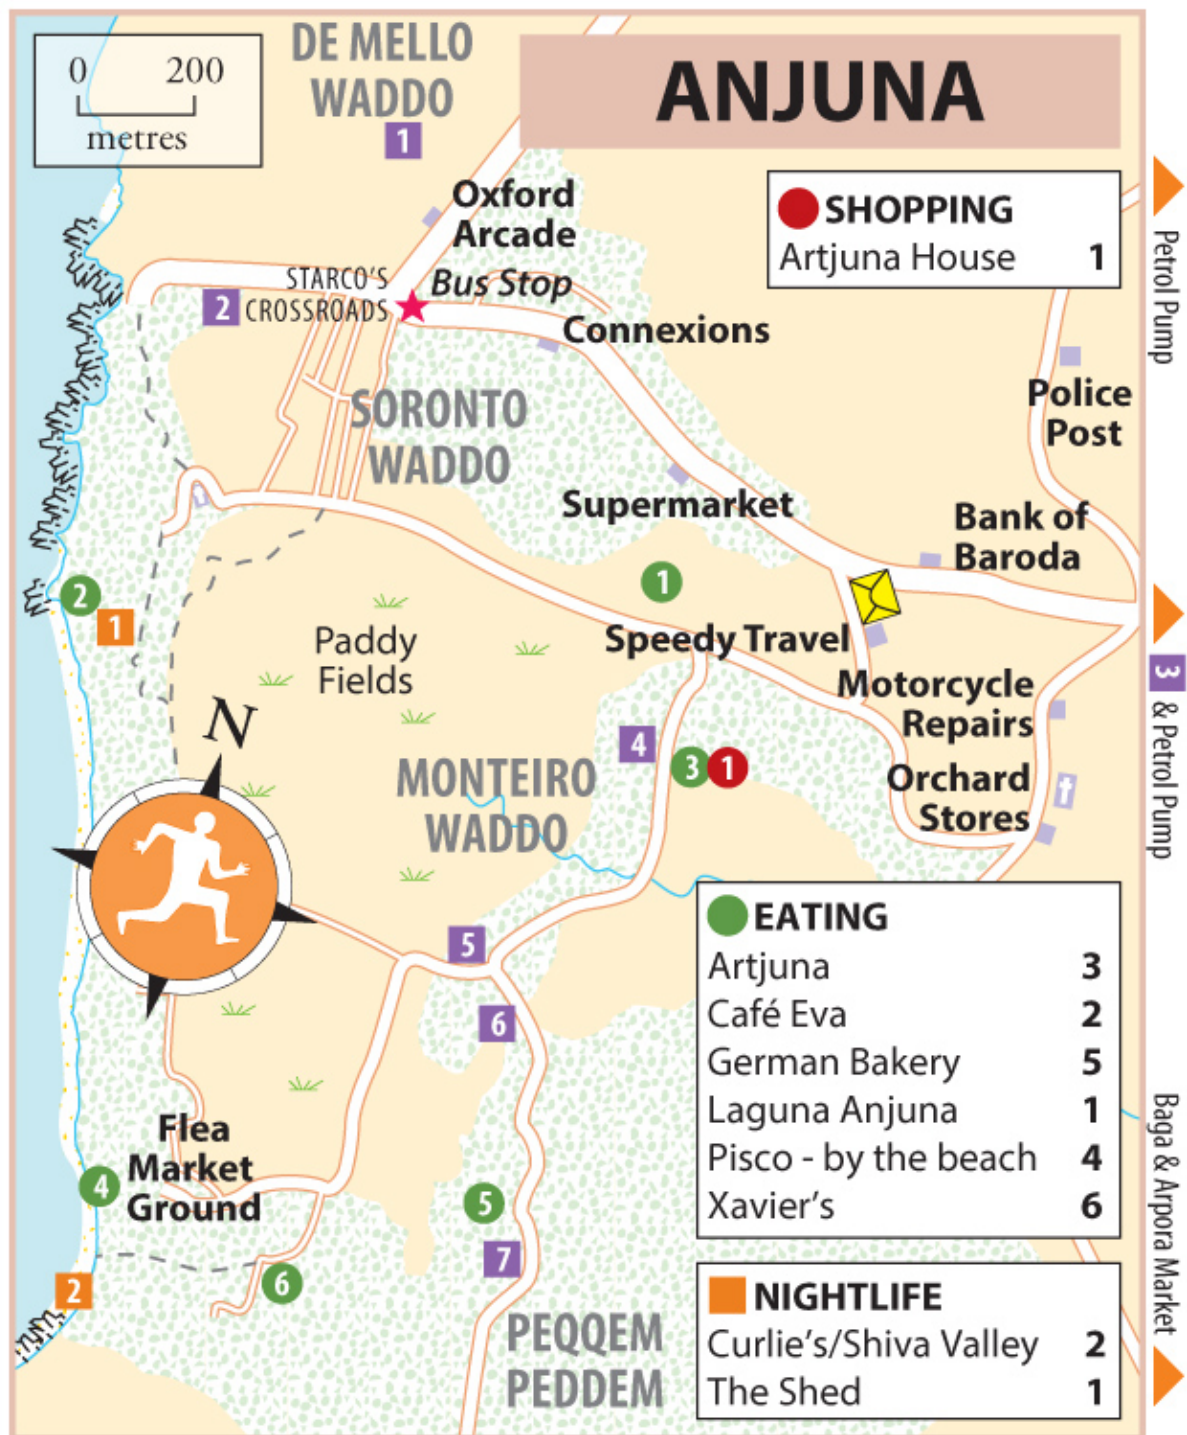

Flea market

The biggest crowds gather on Wednesdays after Anjuna's flea market, held in the coconut plantation behind the southern end of the beach, just north of Curlie's. Along with the Saturday Night Market at Arpora, this is the place to indulge in a spot of souvenir shopping. Two decades or so ago the weekly event was the exclusive preserve of backpackers and the area's seasonal residents, who gathered here to smoke chillums and to buy and sell party clothes and jewellery. These days, however, it's more mainstream. Pitches are rented out by the metre, drugs are banned and the approach roads to the village are choked all day with air-conditioned buses and Maruti taxis ferrying in tourists from resorts further down the coast. Even the beggars have to pay baksheesh to be here. The mayhem is, however, fun to experience at least once.

What you end up paying for the exotic merchandise on offer – from Rajasthani handicrafts to south Indian stone carving and everything in between – largely depends on your ability to haggle. Prices are fairly high by Indian standards. Be persistent, though, and cautious, and you can usually pick things up for a reasonable rate (except from the Western designers, who are not so fond of haggling).

Even if you're not spending, the flea market is a good place just to sit and watch the world go by. Mingling with the suntanned masses are bands of strolling musicians, mendicant sadhus and fortune-telling bulls. And if you happen to miss the show, rest assured that the whole cast reassembles every Saturday at Baga/Arpora's night markets.

ACCOMMODATION

Anjuna Beach Resort	1	Pebbles Guest House	5
Banyan Soul	7	Renés Guesthouse	4
Casa Aniuna	2	Whooners Boutique

Casa Anjuna
Granpa's Inn

3

Whisper Boutique
Hotel

6

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS BUSES FROM ANJUNA MAPUSA (HOURLY; 30–40MIN) DROP PASSENGERS AT VARIOUS POINTS ALONG THE TARMAC ROAD ACROSS THE TOP OF THE VILLAGE, WHICH TURNS NORTH TOWARDS CHAPORA AT THE MAIN STARCO'S CROSSROADS. IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR A ROOM ON SPEC, GET OFF HERE AS IT'S CLOSE TO MANY OF THE GUESTHOUSES.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Anjuna Beach Resort De Mello Waddo @anjunabeachresort.com. This place offers 23 spacious, comfortable rooms with balconies, fridges, attached bathrooms and solar-heated water in two concrete blocks ranged around a pool. Those on the upper floors are best. There's also a block of apartments for long-stayers; both are very good value, though the complex is showing signs of age. There is a restaurant as well. ₹₹-₹₹₹

Banyan Soul Peqqem Peddem, off Flea Market Rd @thebanyansoul.com. Leafy, chic hotel on the quiet, southeastern fringes of the village, near the German Bakery. Shaded by an old banyan tree, the twelve rooms are attractively decorated – though small for the price – and each has a private outdoor sit out that's well screened from the neighbours. Some travellers find this place a bit overpriced and boxed-in, others love its tucked-away feel. Breakfast is extra. ₹₹₹

YOGA IN ANJUNA THANKS TO THE PRESENCE ON ITS FRINGES OF TWO WORLD-CLASS CENTRES, ANJUNA IS A GREAT PLACE TO DEVELOP YOUR YOGA SKILLS.

Purple Valley 142 Bairo Alto Assagoa @yogagoa.com. If you're looking for a fully-fledged retreat or course, you won't do better than Purple Valley, which has accommodation for up to forty guests and what must be one of the loveliest yoga shalas (practice areas) in India. Their teachers were all students of the late Ashtanga guru, Shri K. Pattabhi Jois. Just 15 minutes by car from Anjuna.

Satsanga Retreat Verla Canca, 4km inland from Anjuna 📞95275 31783, 🌐satsangaretreat.com. Offering retreats, yoga holidays and teacher training, Satsanga describes itself as a “home away from home” – but with palm trees, tropical gardens and a swimming pool, located in a small village between Anjuna and Mapusa. The yoga space is beautiful and there are plenty of chill-out areas and hammock spots. Ayurvedic food and massage are on offer too.

Casa Anjuna D’Mello Waddo 🌐casaboutiquehotels.com. Set in a sprawling space surrounded by bougainvillea and coconut trees, the Anjuna branch of the Casa group is a serene choice to completely relax and unwind. Breakfast options are basic such as pancakes and sausages but there are many fantastic cafes nearby. ₹₹

Granpa’s Inn Gaunwadi, Mapusa Rd 🌐granpasinn.com. Granpa’s occupies a lovely 200-year-old house set in half an acre of lush gardens, with a kidney-shaped pool and shady breakfast terrace. They offer three categories of rooms: standard rooms and suites in the main house and poolside routes. Very popular despite the high tariffs, so book well ahead. ₹₹

Pebbles Guest House Anjuna Flea Market Rd, Monterro Waddo 🌐anjunapebblesgoa.com. Barely 700 metres from the beach, this simple no frills guest house has ten large and spacious a/c rooms with attached bathrooms. There is also a slightly bigger room that they call a penthouse which has a kitchenette and attached bathroom and can house a family or a group of three. ₹₹

Rene’s Guesthouse Monteiro Waddo 📞099235 72775. This is a little gem of a guesthouse. Swathed in greenery, welcoming and family run, it holds just eight rooms, most of them surprisingly spacious, with garden-facing balconies. A few have simple kitchenettes and fridges. It’s a tad pricier than the competition but worth it. ₹

Whoopers Noutique Hotel, Chappel Rd, Monteiro Vaddo 🌐whoopers.in. Brightly coloured charming hotel tucked away amidst coconut trees, with a bar, a swimming pool and terrace. A short walk to Anjuna and Baga beach. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Responding to the tastes of its visitors, Anjuna boasts a good crop of quality cafés and restaurants, many of which serve healthy vegetarian dishes and juices. If you're hankering for a taste of home, call in at Orchard Stores on the south-eastern side of the village, or the rival Oxford Arcade, on the opposite, north side, which both serve the expatriate and tourist community with a vast range of pricey imported delights and organic produce from around India.

Artjuna 972 Monteiro Waddo, on the flea market road 📍artjuna.com. Pretty little garden café serving delicious salads, pesto omelettes, sandwiches of all varieties, a few sweet treats and great coffee. There's a play area for kids, yoga, and a beautiful shop. ₹

Café Eva Anthony St, De Mello Waddo 📞073500 56717. Cosy and comfortable beach café serving breakfast dishes throughout the day besides seafood. Their homemade desserts are excellent. ₹₹

★German Bakery South Anjuna, on the road to Nirvana Hermitage 📍german-bakery.in. The original and inimitable outlet of this much-copied wholefood café-restaurant, hidden away in a tree-shaded garden on the south side of the village, is Goa's ultimate travellers' hangout. Sitting beneath old trees strung with Tibetan prayer flags and Pipli lanterns, you can eat lovely salads. There is a full menu of Italian, Indian and Asian dishes and seafood, and, of course, the bakery's famous cakes and coffee. There is accommodation available as well. ₹

Laguna Anjuna De Mello Waddo, close to the flea market 📍lagunaanajuna.com. Pretty poolside restaurant in a chic little boutique hotel, offering large Goan fish thalis and a full range Parsi-Indian delights such as chicken dhansak. ₹₹

Pisco - By the Beach St Michael Waddo 📍piscobythebeach.com. This classy LGBTQIA+ friendly bar and restaurant can entice any epicurean with gorgeous views of the sea, especially at sunset. There are local cocktails and a constantly changing menu offering seafood and tacos. ₹₹₹

Xavier's South Anjuna 📞99231 33200. Nestled in the palm forest just inland from the flea market, Xavier's has formed the hub of the south Anjuna alternative scene for decades, and is still going strong. Most people come for the seafood, kebabs, tikkas and tandoori dishes, but they also serve tasty Indo-Chinese grub. Look for the sign on the left off the market lane. ₹

NIGHTLIFE

MAP

Anjuna is far from being the rave spot it once was, but at least one big party is still held in the area around the Christmas/New Year full-moon period. The rest of the time, serious tranceheads make the trek up to Vagator or Aswem.

Curlie's/Shiva Valley South beach, Anjuna 🌐curliesgoa.com. A pair of adjacent shacks that together form the focus of a rather heavy, druggy scene, with large, mixed crowds of both Indian and Western tourists gathering from sunset until 10pm. A small dance area between the two hosts trance parties every Thurs from sunset till very late. Drinks at regular shack prices; admission free.

The Shed Pinto Heritage Villa, Dmello Vaddo 📞78383 58568. A place that takes pride in being just that spot where friends can catch up over cocktails, watch the world go by and most of all, feel safe and very much at home in Goa. There is live music on certain nights promoting local artists.

SHOPPING

MAP

Artjuna House 972 Monteiro Vaddo 🌐artjuna.com. Chock full of everything from cute kids' clothes to antique furniture, Artjuna's delightful boutique offers an eclectic mix of jewellery by expat designers, as well as tribal adornments. They also do a fantastic collection of women's clothes and create unique leatherwork – all displayed in a lovely Portuguese villa. There's a nice little café too.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE ATMS ARE CLUSTERED ALONG THE MAPUSA RD NEAR THE BANK OF BARODA, WHICH ITSELF WILL MAKE ENCASHMENT AGAINST VISA CARDS, BUT DOESN'T OFFER FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Post office The village post office is on the Mapusa Rd near the bank.

THE DARK SIDE OF THE MOON LOTS OF VISITORS COME TO GOA EXPECTING TO BE ABLE TO PARTY

ON THE BEACH EVERY NIGHT AND ARE DISMAYED WHEN MOST PLACES TO DANCE TURN OUT TO BE MAINSTREAM CLUBS THEY PROBABLY WOULDN'T LOOK TWICE AT BACK HOME. THE TRUTH IS THAT THE FULL-ON, ELBOWS-IN-THE-AIR BEACH PARTY OF OLD, WHEN TENS OF THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE WOULD SPACE OUT TO HUGE TECHNO SOUND SYSTEMS UNDER NEON-PAINTED PALM TREES, IS – FOR NOW – PRETTY MUCH A THING OF THE PAST IN GOA.

Goa's coastal villages saw their first big parties back in the 1960s with the influx of hippies to Calangute and Baga. Much to the amazement of the locals, the preferred pastime of these wannabe sadhus was to cavort naked on the sands together on full-moon nights, amid a haze of chillum smoke and loud rock music. At first the villagers took little notice of these bizarre gatherings, but with each season the scene became better established, and by the late 1970s the Christmas and New Year parties, in particular, had become huge events, attracting travellers from all over the country.

In the late 1980s, the local party scene received a dramatic shot in the arm with the coming of Acid House and techno. LSD and ecstasy became the preferred dance drugs as the rock and dub scene gave way to rave culture, with ever-greater numbers of young clubbers pouring in for the season on charter flights. Goa soon spawned its own distinctive brand of psychedelic music, known as Goa Trance, cultivated by artists such as Goa Gill, Juno Reactor and Hallucinogen.

The golden era for Goa's party scene, and Goa Trance, was in the early 1990s, when big raves were held two or three times a week in beautiful locations around Anjuna and Vagator. For a few years the authorities turned a blind eye. Then, quite suddenly, the plug was pulled: during the run-up to the Y2K celebrations a ban on amplified music was imposed between 10pm and 7am. Nearly twenty years later, the curfew is still officially in place but routinely flaunted: some places pay backhanders to stay open until the early hours, while during an election year it's early to bed for everyone again. Today's rave scene is limited to a few established, above-board clubs – notably the Nine Bar and Hilltop in Vagator, and Marbela Beach at Aswem. The recent drop in foreign tourist numbers, however, has led to talk of the legislation being changed.

Vagator

Barely a couple of kilometres of clifftops and parched grassland separate Anjuna from the southern fringes of VAGATOR. Spread around a tangle of winding back lanes, this is a more chilled, undeveloped resort that appeals, in the main, to southern European beach bums who come back year after year.

With the red ramparts of Chapora fort looming above it, Vagator's broad sandy beach – known as “Big Vagator” – is undeniably beautiful. However, a peaceful swim or lie on the sand is out of the question here as it's a prime stop for bus parties of domestic tourists. A much better option, though one that still sees more than its fair share of day-trippers, is the next beach south. Backed by a steep wall of crumbling palm-fringed laterite, Little (or “Ozran”) Vagator beach is actually a string of three contiguous coves. To reach them you have to walk from where the buses park above Big Vagator, or drive to the end of the lane running off the main Chapora–Anjuna road (towards the Nine Bar), from where footpaths drop sharply down to a wide stretch of level white sand (look for the mopeds and bikes parked at the top of the cliff). Long dominated by Italian tourists, the southernmost – dubbed “Spaghetti Beach” – is the prettiest, with a string of well-established shacks, at the end of which a face carved out of the rocks, staring serenely skywards, is the most prominent landmark. Relentless racquetball, trance sound systems and a particularly sizeable herd of stray cows are the other defining features.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS BUSES FROM VAGATOR PANJIM AND MAPUSA, 9KM EAST, PULL IN EVERY 15MIN OR SO AT THE CROSSROADS ON THE FAR NORTHEASTERN EDGE OF VAGATOR, NEAR WHERE THE MAIN ROAD PEELS AWAY TOWARDS CHAPORA. FROM HERE, IT'S A 1KM WALK OVER THE HILL AND DOWN THE OTHER SIDE TO THE BEACH.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Bethany Inn Just south of the main road ☎98223 85154. Ten immaculate, self-contained rooms with minibar fridges, balconies and attached bathrooms; plus four additional a/c options in a new block, with big TVs, larger balconies and more spacious tiled bathrooms. ₹₹

★Boon's Ark Near Bethany Inn 🌐boonsark.com. Honest, clean, family-run place offering modern rooms with excellent beds, stone shelves, fridges and pleasant little verandas opening on a well-tended courtyard garden. Owners Peter and Jessie Hungu also offer room service, money exchange and bikes to rent. ₹₹

Dolrina Vagator Beach Rd ☎7774075583. Nestled under a lush canopy of trees near the beach, Vagator's largest budget guesthouse has 12 rooms and two dorms set amidst the greenery. There are three categories of non a/c rooms, including a couple of larger family options and dorms for up to six people. There are also rooms given to travellers for long-term stays at discounted prices. Breakfast can be served in your room. ₹

★Jackie's Daynite Beach Rd ☎0832 227 4320 or ☎98221 33789. The best all-round budget place in the village, perfectly placed within easy reach of both the Nine Bar and Hilltop. Jackie De Souza has been running a shop here for almost forty years, and added rooms behind. Room rates depend on the season and there are four categories, with a/c more expensive. They're clean and great value, though often booked, so reserve in advance. ₹

Vista Mare Little Vagator clifftop 🌐vistamarevagator.com. Lovely big rooms behind a (quiet-ish) restaurant on the cliff top, boasting a/c, king-size beds, spacious attached bathrooms, marble-topped tables and huge verandas. A top location and they also have a six-person room for ₹₹

Yellow House Big Vagator ☎9899937508. Henriquita Moniz and son Jubert renovated this guesthouse behind Big Vagator beach, which now looks better than ever after more than twenty years in business. It's peaceful and secluded, despite the proximity of the surf, and the 13 rooms are neat and pleasantly furnished. There is a restaurant that serves breakfast but it isn't complimentary. ₹-₹₹

EATING

MAP

Bean Me Up Near the petrol pump 📍beanmeup.in. North Goa's only raw and vegan joint – the last word in Goan gourmet healthy eating. Design-your-own salads and fresh juices, various tofu, tempeh and combos steeped in creamy sauces, and pizzas from a real wood-fired oven. Mains come with steamed spinach, fresh brown bread and hygienically-washed greens. ₹

China Town Chapora crossroads, next to Bethany Inn 📞98221 42230. This small roadside restaurant, tucked away just south of the main drag, is perennially popular for its budget eats. The menu includes tasty in addition to a large Chinese selection and all the usual Goa-style travellers' grub. ₹

Olive Bar and Kitchen 📞78880 37772. Part of the Olive group, the décor at this branch feels like Santorini meets Barcelona. The hill-top spot serves sangria, local Paul John whisky and signature cocktails to accompany some moreish seafood pasta dishes. Booking recommended. ₹₹₹

★Thalassa (Mariketty's) Ozran clifftop 📍thalassagoa.com. Stylish and hospitable, Thalassa serves high-end, flavoursome and scrupulously authentic Greek food, with excellent service, against a backdrop of swaying palms and rippling ocean. Try to get there in time for the stunning sunset from the large (and popular) terrace. Especially recommended are the kebabs – you can often see them spit-roasting a whole lamb as you enter. Booking essential. ₹₹

VAGATOR & CHAPORA

EATING
Bean Me Up	7
China Town	5
Jai Ganesh Juice and Ice Cream Café	1
Olive Bar and Kitchen	4
Piccola Roma	2
Sakana	3
Thalassa (Mariketty's)	6

ACCOMMODATION
Bethany Inn	4
Boon's Ark	5
Dolrina	3
Jackie's Daynite	8
Shettor Villa	1
Vista Mare	7
White Flower Cottages	6
Yellow House	2

SHOPPING
Thalassa	1

NIGHTLIFE
Hilltop	2
Nine Bar	1

NIGHTLIFE

MAP

Hilltop Vagator @facebook.com/hilltopgoa. Hilltop's big night is Sun, when bumper crowds take to its pretty, circular dancefloor, set in a coconut grove just back from the clifftop. The PA is heavy duty, the palm trunks painted regulation neon, chai mamas ring the arena with their flickering kerosene lamps and freshly baked nibbles, and overseas DJs do the honours on stage. They also host their own night market on Fri. Admission ₹1000–1500, though occasionally free.

Nine Bar Above Small Vagator beach @club9bar.com. The spiritual home of Goa trance, where you can space out on a large open-air dancefloor as the sun sets behind a curtain of palm trees and DJs spin beats from a chest-thumping rig. It's got a very welcoming vibe and admission is free – but note that photography is strictly prohibited. They play trance every Mon, with different dance genres on one or two other nights a week during the season.

SHOPPING

MAP

Thalassa Ozran clifftop @thalassago.com. Attached to the popular Greek restaurant of the same name, this boutique offers a range of stylish beach and evening wear, from beautiful floaty dresses to hand-made textiles. There is also a selection from resident designer Martino Caramia, who favours light cotton and bright colours – perfect attire for sipping sundowners.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE BETHANY INN, ON THE NORTH SIDE OF THE VILLAGE, HAS A FOREIGN EXCHANGE LICENCE (FOR CASH AND TRAVELLERS' CHEQUES), AND AN EFFICIENT TRAVEL AGENCY (VIKINGS TRAIL; 03222 73731) IN THE OFFICE ON THE GROUND FLOOR. THE NEAREST ATM IS IN ANJUNA.

Chapora

Huddled in the shadow of a Portuguese fort on the opposite, northern side of the headland from Vagator is CHAPORA, north Goa's main fishing port. The anchorage and boatyard below its brown-walled citadel – where you can see the mostly now disused boats drawn up on the shore – used to form the backbone of the village's economy, but there's always been a hard-drinking, heavy-smoking hippie tourist scene alongside it, revolving around the coffee shops and bars on the main street. For a brief period a few years back, Russian mafia types took over and squeezed the hippies out, but like migrating turtles they've returned to their old hangout in numbers undiminished by Goa's recent changes. Today Chapora remains the commuter dormitory for those on the party scene in Vagator and Anjuna – many rent houses or rooms long-term here, year after year.

Chapora fort

Chapora's chief landmark is its venerable old fort, most easily reached from the Vagator side of the hill. At low tide, you can also walk around the bottom of the headland, via the anchorage and the secluded coves beyond it to Big Vagator, then head up the hill from there. The red-laterite bastion, crowning the rocky bluff, was built by the Portuguese in 1617 on the site of an earlier Muslim structure (thus the village's name – from Shahpura, "town of the Shah"). Deserted in the nineteenth century, it lies in ruins today, although the views up and down the coast from the weed-infested ramparts are still superb.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS BUSES RUN CHAPORA BETWEEN CHAPORA AND PANJIM (3 DAILY), AND FROM MAPUSA (EVERY 15MIN), WITH DEPARTURES UNTIL 7.30PM. MOST DROP PASSENGERS AT THE OLD BANYAN TREE AT THE FAR END OF THE MAIN STREET, WHERE THE MOTORCYCLE PILOTS ALL HANG OUT.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Chapora specialises in long-term rentals of rooms and houses (by the week or month) to repeat visitors; these economical options can be found by asking around the village.

Shettor Villa Off the west side of the main street ⓘ brianlive@hotmail.com. Slightly basic with five attached rooms with fans, ranged around a sheltered backyard; there's also a (sometimes noisy) rooftop restaurant where you can use the wi-fi. ₹

White Flower Cottages Coutinho Vaddo, 93599 83588. Modern amenities in the bathrooms and with a pool, White Flowers offers a step up from the basic accommodation in the area and is popular with local Indian tourists. In terms of dining options, there's Goan, Mediterranean and North Indian cuisine on offer. ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

Jai Ganesh Juice and Ice cream Centre Just up from the banyan tree 9823686262. The focal point of the tourist scene, where Chapora's resident Westerners watch the world go by over fresh fruit juices and milkshakes and perhaps a cheese or chocolate croissant. ₹

Piccola Roma 1km southwest of Chapora on the Mapusa Rd 5078 06821. One of the few restaurants in the area that stays open year-round, this Indian-run joint serves very good Italian food with particularly good wood-oven pizza. They also deliver within 5km. ₹

Sakana 1km southwest of Chapora on the Mapusa Rd, opposite Piccola Roma 98901 35502. Generally considered one of the best Japanese places in Goa, this smart and stylish joint decorated with paper lanterns and red tablecloths serves fresh sashimi veg and non-veg sushi and a set menu of king fish or tuna teriyaki. ₹₹₹

Morjim

Relatively isolated, the village of MORJIM was where Goa's first Russian tourists headed in the early noughties. Once dubbed "Morjimograd" by other foreign visitors, it has now reverted to a mixed resort, attracting more middle-aged Brits and Indians than Russians. That said, the atmosphere in the guesthouses and restaurants along and behind the beach can feel less than friendly (probably as few Russians speak any English), and most Western travellers find the experience of staying here disconcerting – not to mention eye-wateringly expensive. Many prefer to continue north to the more culturally-mixed resorts of Aswem and Mandrem.

Morjim beach itself is dramatic and well worth at least a walk, especially in the early morning, when you may see teams of fishermen hauling giant nets from the surf. The spit at its southern end, opposite Chapora fort, is also a great birding hot spot.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS HALF A DOZEN MORJIM BUSES A DAY SKIRT MORJIM EN ROUTE TO PANJIM, THE FIRST AT 7AM; HEADING THE OTHER WAY, YOU CAN PICK UP A DIRECT BUS FROM PANJIM AT 5PM, AND THERE ARE HOURLY SERVICES FROM MAPUSA VIA SIOLIM AFTER 11AM. THEY'LL DROP YOU ON THE MAIN ROAD, A 5MIN WALK FROM THE BEACHFRONT AREA AT VITHALDAS WADDO.

ACCOMMODATION BECAUSE OF THE UNWELCOMING VIBE, THE HOTELS AND GUESTHOUSES IMMEDIATELY BEHIND THE BEACH, IN THE DUNES AND ALONG THE BEACHFRONT ROAD, ARE BEST AVOIDED. ONE REALLY NICE OPTION, HOWEVER, STANDS ON THE RIVERFRONT SOUTH OF THE VILLAGE.

★Jardin d'Ulysse Facing the riverbank on the village's south side ③ ulysemorjim@gmail.com. Delightful Goan/French-run place comprising five a/c "cottages" with tiled roofs, ochre-washed floors and kitchenettes. Down in the front garden, a small restaurant whips up an eclectic menu of steaks, scrumptious lasagne, Tibetan momos and salads for mostly French and British travellers. Owners Fleur and Gilbert are charming hosts, always on hand to help arrange excursions, boat trips and scooters. ₹₹₹

EATING

★Sublime Morjim beach ④ facebook.com/SublimeMorjim. Run by celebrity chef, Chris Saleem Agha Bee, this funky little gastro beach shack in the heart of Morjim rustles up stylish, innovative cuisine deploying novel combos of fresh local ingredients: try the fish carpaccio or ginger battered calamari for starters, and Asiatic beef with wasabi mashed potatoes for mains. Ample veggie options include the popular mega organic salad. Booking essential. ₹₹₹

Aswem

Pretty ASWEM, the next settlement north of Morjim, could hardly be described as a proper resort. Officially inside the Coastal Protection Zone, its beachfront holds few permanent buildings and most of the accommodation is in temporary structures. And yet, over the past few seasons, the strip of soft white sand nestled beneath its mand of slender palms has become the place to see and be seen by India's hip set – Mumbai millionaires, Bollywood A-listers and international celebs are regularly spotted in the swanky resorts and clubs in the dunes. A more down-to-earth scene holds sway around the headland to the south, which is family friendly, with lots of children playing on the beach. How long this stretch can hold out against the rising tide of bling, however, is anyone's guess.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS BUSES FROM ASWEM PANJIM (3 DAILY; 1HR 30MIN) COVER THE QUIET STRETCH OF ROAD RUNNING PARALLEL TO THE BEACH INLAND, FROM WHERE A 5MIN WALK ACROSS PADDY FIELDS BRINGS YOU TO THE SHACKS AND HUT CAMPS ATTACHED TO THEM. MORE FREQUENT BUSES CAN BE CAUGHT FROM THE STOP 2KM AWAY IN MORJIM.

ACCOMMODATION WITH ACCOMMODATION EITHER ULTRABASIC OR STAGGERINGLY EXPENSIVE, MOST VISITORS RIDE UP TO ASWEM FOR THE DAY ON SCOOTERS AND DECAMP AFTER SUNSET. A HANDFUL OF PLACES, HOWEVER, OFFER REASONABLE VALUE.

Anahata 🌐 anahataretreat.com. This spot, in the coconut plantation under the Ajoba temple just north of La Plage restaurant, is arguably the finest place on the coast here. The place holds sixteen octagonal huts made from dark mango wood and five rooms described as “Anahata Villas”. The cheapest are in the garden, with some on the beach and others with sea views. They're large, well-spaced, have wraparound verandas, and are naturally cross-ventilated, with quality beds and simple, relaxing decor. There is also a yoga space and a great restaurant and lounge area on the beach. ₹₹₹₹

Leela Cottages Near La Plage 🌐 leelacottage.com. Beautiful designer huts, cottages, suites and beach houses of various sizes and prices, grouped in a gated property under the palms. The interiors are furnished with antiques collected from all over India. It's just a stone's throw from the beach, but far enough away from the restaurants to remain quiet (and free from cooking smells). There is a yogashala, a spa and a couple of restaurants serving both Indian and Continental cuisine. ₹₹₹

Otter Creek Tents www.i-escape.com. You have to cross a rickety footbridge to reach these three luxury tents, nestled on the riverbank just behind the dunes, in the thick of a coconut plantation. Each rustic tent is fitted with a bamboo four-poster, with a fridge and mini bar, attached bathroom, verandah and a jetty facing the creek. The rates vary according to low and high seasons and they are also closed during the monsoons in the months of May to October. You are right near the seashore and there are five beach houses as well. All details on the website. ₹₹

EATING

Elevar Leela Cottages 91303 52188. Nestled inside Leela Cottages, this chic restaurant serves European and Italian cuisine with a dash of Indian flavour and a focus on seafood. Try their mustard marinated fish or their mezze platter. While the liquid centred chocolate cake is highly recommended, you can also opt for the chef's special, which is a personalised dessert served at your table after a consultation with the chef. ₹

★La Plage Aswem beach 98221 21712. Nestled in a shady coconut grove, La Plage does a brisk trade in Gallic-Mediterranean snacks and drinks, served up by Nepali waiters in black lunghis. The menu changes a little each season and the restaurant is reworking its entire menu for the next festive season along with the rates. Their chocolate thali with five choco-rich desserts is not to be missed. Booking essential for dinner and Sun lunch. ₹₹₹

Roma Aswem beach road, before Anahata 92268 93536. Pretty, Italian-run garden restaurant with delicious wood-fired pizzas and an interesting (and similarly priced) selection of home-made pasta, including very good ravioli with mushroom sauce. A cut above the usual Italian dishes, and they have a children's play area too. ₹

The Tibet Cafe Ashvem Beach Road 73784 42936. Colourful two storeyed café serving Tibetan delicacies from momos to soups but also Indian tandoori dishes all budget friendly too. Though not right on the beach, it is a short walk from Ashvem beach and one of the best eateries in the area. ₹

NIGHTLIFE ASWEM HAS EMERGED AS A NEW FACE OF GOAN NIGHTLIFE, WITH A FEW CHIC BEACHFRONT CLUBS WHERE YOU CAN JUMP OFF THE DANCEFLOOR STRAIGHT ON TO THE SAND. IN ADDITION TO MARBELA BEACH THERE ARE A COUPLE OF OTHER CHOICES – SUCH AS CLUB FRESH – BUT WHETHER THEY ARE GOOD OR NOT DEPENDS VERY MUCH ON WHICH CREW ARE ON THE DECKS IN ANY ONE YEAR.

Marbela Beach Aswem  marbelabeach.com. Probably the chicest club in Goa, this white-themed resort on the beachfront features a lounge bar, champagne bar and three open-air dancefloors blasting dance mixes into the night air from outsized PAs. At the time of writing, only the accommodation, with the bar and night club under renovation. Check the website for more details.

SHOPPING VIBRANT MARCHÉ DES CRÉATEURS ASWEM BEACH, NORTH AFTER MORJIM. AN AMALGAMATION OF SHACKS SELLING FLOWY BEACHWEAR, BAGS, JEWELLERY AND ALSO PAINTINGS BY LOCAL ARTISTS ON THE SANDY STRETCH OF ASWEM BEACH.

Mandrem

From the far side of the creek bounding the edge of Aswem, a magnificent and largely empty beach stretches north towards Arambol – the last unspoiled stretch of the north Goan coast. Whether or not MANDREM can continue to hold out against the developers remains to be seen, but for the time being, nature still has the upper hand here. Olive ridley marine turtles nest on the quietest patches, and you're more than likely to catch a glimpse of one of the white-bellied fish eagles that live in the casuarina trees – their last stronghold in the north of Goa.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS CONNECTED MANDREM BY REGULAR BUSES FROM MAPSUA (9 DAILY; 1HR 30MIN), THE MARKET AREA AT MADLAMAZ IS EASY TO REACH BY PUBLIC TRANSPORT, BUT GETTING TO THE BEACH AREA IS TRICKIER AS AUTO-RICKSHAWS ARE FEW AND FAR BETWEEN. ASK YOUR GUESTHOUSE OR HUT CAMP FOR HELP.

Services A couple of small grocery stores, internet cafés, ATMs and travel agents are on hand.

ACCOMMODATION MOST OF THE VILLAGE'S ACCOMMODATION IS TUCKED AWAY INLAND AT JUNASA WADDO, WHERE A GROWING NUMBER OF SMALL GUESTHOUSES, HOTELS AND YOGA RETREATS CATER TO A MIXED, PEACE-AND-QUIET-LOVING CROWD – COSTS ARE GENERALLY HIGHER THAN AT ARAMBOL, HOWEVER.

Ashiyana Junasa Waddo @ashiyana-yoga-goa.com. If you like your yoga retreats to be drop-dead gorgeous, look no further than here. Perched on the banks of the Mandrem River facing the sea from the middle of an old coconut mand, the centre offers world-class yoga, massage, meditation and satsang tuition with accommodation in Indonesian-style boutique treehouses and ecolodges. Some of them boast glorious sea views, and there's a wholefood-Ayurvedic-veg restaurant on site (guests only). Rates vary depending on accommodation and they include workshop sessions and meals. There is also a separate rate for only a yoga session or a meal. ₹₹₹₹

Preksha Yoga Junaswada, Mandrem, @prekshayoga.com. With Ayurveda as their main focus, this retreat has won many hearts. There's yoga teaching and training sessions for those aspiring to a career in teaching yoga but there are many sessions in this blissful wellness retreat spot. ₹₹₹₹

Villa River Cat @villarivercat.com. Quirky riverside hotel, screened from the beach by the dunes, with distinctive hippie-influenced décor and furniture. The fifteen rooms including wooden cottages are all individually designed: mosaics, shells, devotional sculpture and hammocks set the tone. Host Rinoo Seghal is an animal lover, so brace yourself for the menagerie of cats and dogs. ₹₹₹₹

EATING

★Café Nu Junnaswada, small track before D'Souzas Residency 98506 58568. Lovely open-sided restaurant in a pretty garden, serving sublime, light gourmet bites. There are plenty of fish dishes, a popular and for the health-conscious, a copious variety of salads. The Bonbon dessert is legendary. Booking essential for dinner. ₹₹

O'Saiba Mandrem beach. Great views from this beach shack, which serves up high-quality versions of the usual Indian and tandoori food. Expect delicious seafood including hariyali king prawn and fish curry, fish tikka with fresh mint sauce and a flavoursome palak paneer and a fair number of Western favourites. ₹

Arambol

ARAMBOL, 32km northwest of Mapusa, is easily the most populous village in the far north, and the area's main tourist hub. Traditionally a refuge for a hard-core hippie fringe, it nowadays attracts a lively and eclectic mix of travellers, the majority of whom stick around for the season, living in rented rooms, hut camps and small houses scattered behind the magnificent white sand beach. As in most of north Goa, there's also a showing of young, often quite alternative, Russians here, joining the spiritually inclined types from northern Europe who have long formed Arambol's mainstay. The overall vibe is inclusive and positive, with plenty of live music, lots of relaxed places to eat and drink, and more opportunities to learn new yoga poses and reshuffle your chakras than you could get through in several lifetimes. Beach life is generally laidback too – except on weekends, when day-tripping drinkers descend en masse in SUVs from nearby Maharashtra.

■ ACCOMMODATION		● EATING
Arun Huts	3	Cheeky Monkey	6
Go-Ym	6	Double Dutch	7
Ivon's	4	Dylan's (Toasted and Roasted)	9
The No Name		Eyes of Buddha	1
Guest House	2	Lamuella	5
Om Ganesh Naik		The No Name Guest House	4
Guest Hosue	1	Relax Inn	3
The Surf Club	7	Rice Bowl	2
		Sai Deep	8

The village and beaches Arambol's main drag is a winding road lined cheek-by-jowl with clothes and bedspread stalls, travel agents, internet cafés and souvenir shops. The lane bends downhill to the main beach – one of the most picturesque in south India, dotted with wooden outriggers. The best view of it is from the crucifix and small Parasurama shrine on the hilltop to the north, which is an especially serene spot at sunset. After dark, when the Hula-Hoopers, fire jugglers and bhajan singers have turned homewards, the candles and fairy lights of the shacks illuminate the beachfront to magical effect.

Swimming is possible here during the daytime, but less inspiring than around the headland at Paliem or "Lakeside" beach, reached by following the track through a series of rocky-bottomed coves. The path emerges at a broad strip of soft white sand hemmed in by cliffs. Behind here a small freshwater lake extends along the bottom of the valley into the jungle, lined with sulphurous mud, which, when smeared over the body, dries to form a surreal, butter-coloured shell.

Keep following the path around the back of the lake and you'll soon come to Paliem's famous banyan tree, a monster specimen with giant runners extending more than 60m – a popular chillum-smoking spot. Keen walkers can continue over the cliffs immediately north – Arambol's prime parascending venue – to reach the generally quiet Kerim beach.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS BUSES RUN ARAMBOL BETWEEN PANJIM AND ARAMBOL, VIA MAPUSA'S MAIN TOWN STAND, EVERY 30MIN UNTIL NOON, AND EVERY 90MIN TILL 8PM, TERMINATING AT THE SMALL BUS STOP ON THE MAIN ROAD IN ARAMBOL. A FASTER PRIVATE MINIBUS SERVICE FROM PANJIM BUS STAND ARRIVES DAILY OPPOSITE THE CHAI STALLS AT THE BEACH END OF THE VILLAGE. IF YOU'RE HEADING FOR THE CHAPORA/VAGATOR/ANJUNA AREA, TAKING THE SAME BUS TO SIOLIM AND A TAXI (₹300) OR RICKSHAW (₹200) FROM THERE WILL SAVE YOU CHANGING AT MAPUSA.

By taxi Taxis charge ₹1500–1650 for the run from Dabolim airport to Arambol, and ₹700–800 for the 30min trip from the nearest railhead at Tivim (Thivim).

YOGA IN ARAMBOL YOGIS AND YOGA CLASSES ARE UBIQUITOUS IN ARAMBOL, AND OF VARYING QUALITY. HERE ARE TWO OF OUR FAVOURITES.

Himalayan Iyengar Yoga Centre Modlo Waddo @ hiyogacentre.com. Iyengar yoga teacher Sharat holds five-day sessions (Nov–March, courses start on Wed; ₹5500) in his studio. To find it, head for the Priya Guest House and follow the “HIYC” signs from there. Accommodation, in a comfortable tent with attached bathroom, is ₹750 a night for single occupancy and ₹900 for double. There are also luxurious rooms available named after the five elements and prices range from ₹750–1200 for single occupancy and ₹1500–1800 for double occupancy.

ACTIVITIES POSTERS PINNED TO PALM TREES AND CAFÉ NOTICEBOARDS AROUND ARAMBOL ADVERTISE AN AMAZING ARRAY OF ACTIVITIES, FROM KITESURFING TO REIKI. GOOD PLACES TO GET A FIX ON WHAT'S HAPPENING ARE THE NOTICEBOARD AT LAMUELLA AND DOUBLE DUTCH'S "BULLSHIT INFO" CORNER, WHICH DISPLAYS DETAILS FOR JUST ABOUT EVERYONE WHO DOES ANYTHING – INCLUDING THEIR OWN POPULAR DOKRA BRONZE-CASTING WORKSHOPS, HELD ANNUALLY EACH JANUARY.

Dance Temple of Dance Girkar Waddo, signposted off the road close to the Kundalini Rooftop Garden, offers tribal fusion to contemporary, salsa, Bollywood and belly dance styles, and hosts a festival (Feb 9–11) with workshops and performances.

Paragliding Tandem rides from the clifftops above Lakeside beach, run by an ever-changing combination of Indian and international fliers. Costs include all equipment and full instruction. For more information, go to the Western India Paragliding Association shack, just in front of the lake.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

The cost of accommodation in Arambol has risen sharply over the past few seasons, reflecting the village's popularity with more affluent hippies, but it's still nearly all pitched at budget travellers: no-frills, Goan-run guesthouses and expat-inspired hippie-chic predominate here.

Arun Huts Near Narayan Temple ☎81919 00095. Quirky little hut camp, run by local beautician, Mrs Mala Singh, in the thick of Arambol village. Just 60m from the sea, it comprises two rows of neatly painted wood huts, fitted with decent mattresses, attached shower toilets and fans. The whole earth-floored compound is smothered in banana trees, palms and flowers, and very atmospheric, especially in the evening. ₹

Go-Ym Bag Waddo, close to Atman ☎go-ym.com. Large mid-range resort with fifteen tiled, vibrantly-coloured cottages close to the beach. The tastefully decorated rooms have comfortable beds. ₹₹₹

Ivon's Girkar Waddo ☎0832 224 2672 or 98221 27398. The pick of the budget bunch: immaculately clean, tiled 25 rooms, all with attached bathroom (with hot water) some fronted by good-sized tiled balconies opening onto the dunes or a well-groomed family compound. Wi-fi in their restaurant next door. Rates increase during peak season. ₹

The No Name Guest House Main Street Kalcha Waddo 🌐 thenonamebrand.com. Open since 1989, this cheerful guesthouse has 12 large clean non a/c rooms in different categories and for both single and double occupancies. Breakfast included. There is an open kitchen and you can even watch your dishes being prepared. Grab a coffee and a sandwich and you can even have a co working space here with thatched roof and comfortable tables and stools. ₹₹

Om Ganesh Naik Guest House Rooms and cottages in the cove between the village and Lakeside beach 📞94212 57688, or book at the Om Ganesh stores on the main drag 📞0832 229 7614. There are 25 rooms in the main guesthouse and the cottages, located just south of Lakeside beach have superb sea views from the verandas. Rates vary wildly according to demand, and advance booking with a deposit is all but essential by mid-season. Rates double during peak season. ₹

The Surf Club Kepker Vado Dando South end of the beach 🌐 thesurfclubgoa.com. Simple, clean, very good eight rooms at the quietest end of the beach, located both on the ground and first floor. The rooms upstairs are much larger and lighter than those downstairs and one of them offers a great view of sunset. There is also a restaurant and bar with live music. Email for rates. ₹

EATING

MAP

Thanks to its annually replenished pool of expat gastronomic talent, Arambol harbours a handful of unexpectedly good restaurants – not that you'd guess from their generally lacklustre exteriors. The village's alternative, Western European contingent cares more about flavours than fancy decor, and prices in the village reflect this. The more affluent short-term visitors, meanwhile, tend to gravitate towards the fancier seafood joints along the beachfront, where the day's catch is displayed on cold trays for selection, then grilled alfresco in front of you. Prices can be eye-popping, so get a quote before you order.

Cheeky Monkey Arambol beach 📞98508 23926. A cut above your average beach shack, offering a great variety of salads, home-made pastas and stir-fried noodle dishes. Try the beetroot salad mushroom ravioli and the only dessert on the menu, a knockout chocolate pudding with cinnamon ice cream. ₹₹₹

★Double Dutch Main St, halfway down on the right (look for the yellow signboard) ☎70838 89420. Spread under a palm canopy in the heart of the village, this laidback café is the hub of alternative Arambol. Renowned for its melt-in-the-mouth apple pie it also offers a tempting range of home-bake buttery biscuits, cakes, healthy salads and sumptuous main meals including popular dishes like Indonesian noodles and perennially popular “mixed stuff” (stuffed mushrooms and capsicums with sesame pesto). ₹₹

Dylan’s (Toasted and Roasted) Behind Kinara restaurant and Golden Hands jewellers ☎96047 80316. Owner Raj insists that it’s not just about the coffee and the cookies, but both are exceptional – he also sells ground coffee and beans. In the evening, as well as serving a decent veg thali, he hosts regular concerts and art shows. ₹

Fellini’s Main St ☎98814 61224. Italian-run place serving delicious wood-fired pizzas and authentic pasta or gnocchi with a choice of more than twenty sauces. It gets horrendously busy in season, so get here early if you want snappy service. ₹₹

★Lamuella Main St ☎98224 86314. Hiding behind the boutique of the same name, Lamuella serves healthy breakfasts, toasties, hummus plates and filling salads during the day, as well as energizing juice combos and herb teas. After sunset you can order from an eclectic menu with amazing home-made mushroom ravioli and fish and cheese with chocolate fondant ice cream for dessert. ₹₹

The No Name Guesthouse Main Street Kalcha Waddo ☎ thenonamebrand.com. This guest house has a lovely open kitchen that serves European and Mediterranean cuisine that is vegetarian and vegan. Try their salads, homemade pasta, hummus and paella. They have a set menu every day and breakfast is served from 9am till 1pm. ₹₹

Relax Inn North end of beach. Top-quality seafood straight off the boats, and authentic pasta (you get even more expat Italians in here than at Fellini’s) – try the vongole (clam) sauce. Inexpensive, but expect a wait as they cook to order. ₹₹

Rice Bowl North end of beach ☎70306 07427. This cliffside place serves the best Chinese food in Arambol, with a perfect view of the beach to match, and a pool table. Any of their tasty noodle dishes are safe bets, as are the Japanese and Tibetan specialities. ₹₹

Sai Deep At the bottom end of the village ☎90490 51266. This little dhaba has a devoted following. They serve copious fruit salads as well as a good travellers' breakfast menu of pancakes, eggs and curd all at rock bottom prices. ₹

NIGHTLIFE

MAP

Many of the shacks on the beach have occasional live music, though Dylan's has the most going on, with some kind of (usually) low-key performance most nights.

Ash Girkar Waddo ☎885509 60772. With amazing artwork, this Russian-run open-air venue hosts two or three events a week during the season, with everything from Russian shamanic singers to gypsy folk musicians and Sufi bands – the musicianship is of a consistently high standard.

Surf Club South end of the beach ☎99750 54051, thesurfclubgoa.com. Secret little hippie drinking establishment decorated with some trippy tiles, this place has a great vibe and hosts some very good psychedelic rock acts every week or so on its small stage.

SHOPPING

MAP

Lamuella Opposite Shiv Krupa Store, Main St. In the heart of Arambol, Lamuella holds a great collection of clothes for women and children – with a few options for men – mostly from expat local designers. They also stock beautiful jewellery for every budget and homeware from fair-trade collectives in India. There's a café in the back garden.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE THERE IS AN ATM CLOSE TO THE BUS STAND, AND SEVERAL PLACES ALONG THE MAIN VILLAGE LANE CHANGE MONEY AND DO CASH ADVANCES ON DEBIT AND CREDIT CARDS: TRY SS TRAVELS, OPPOSITE OM GANESH GENERAL STORE.

Post office On the east side of the village, 1km out on the Querim–Arambol–Agarwada Rd, just before the petrol pump.

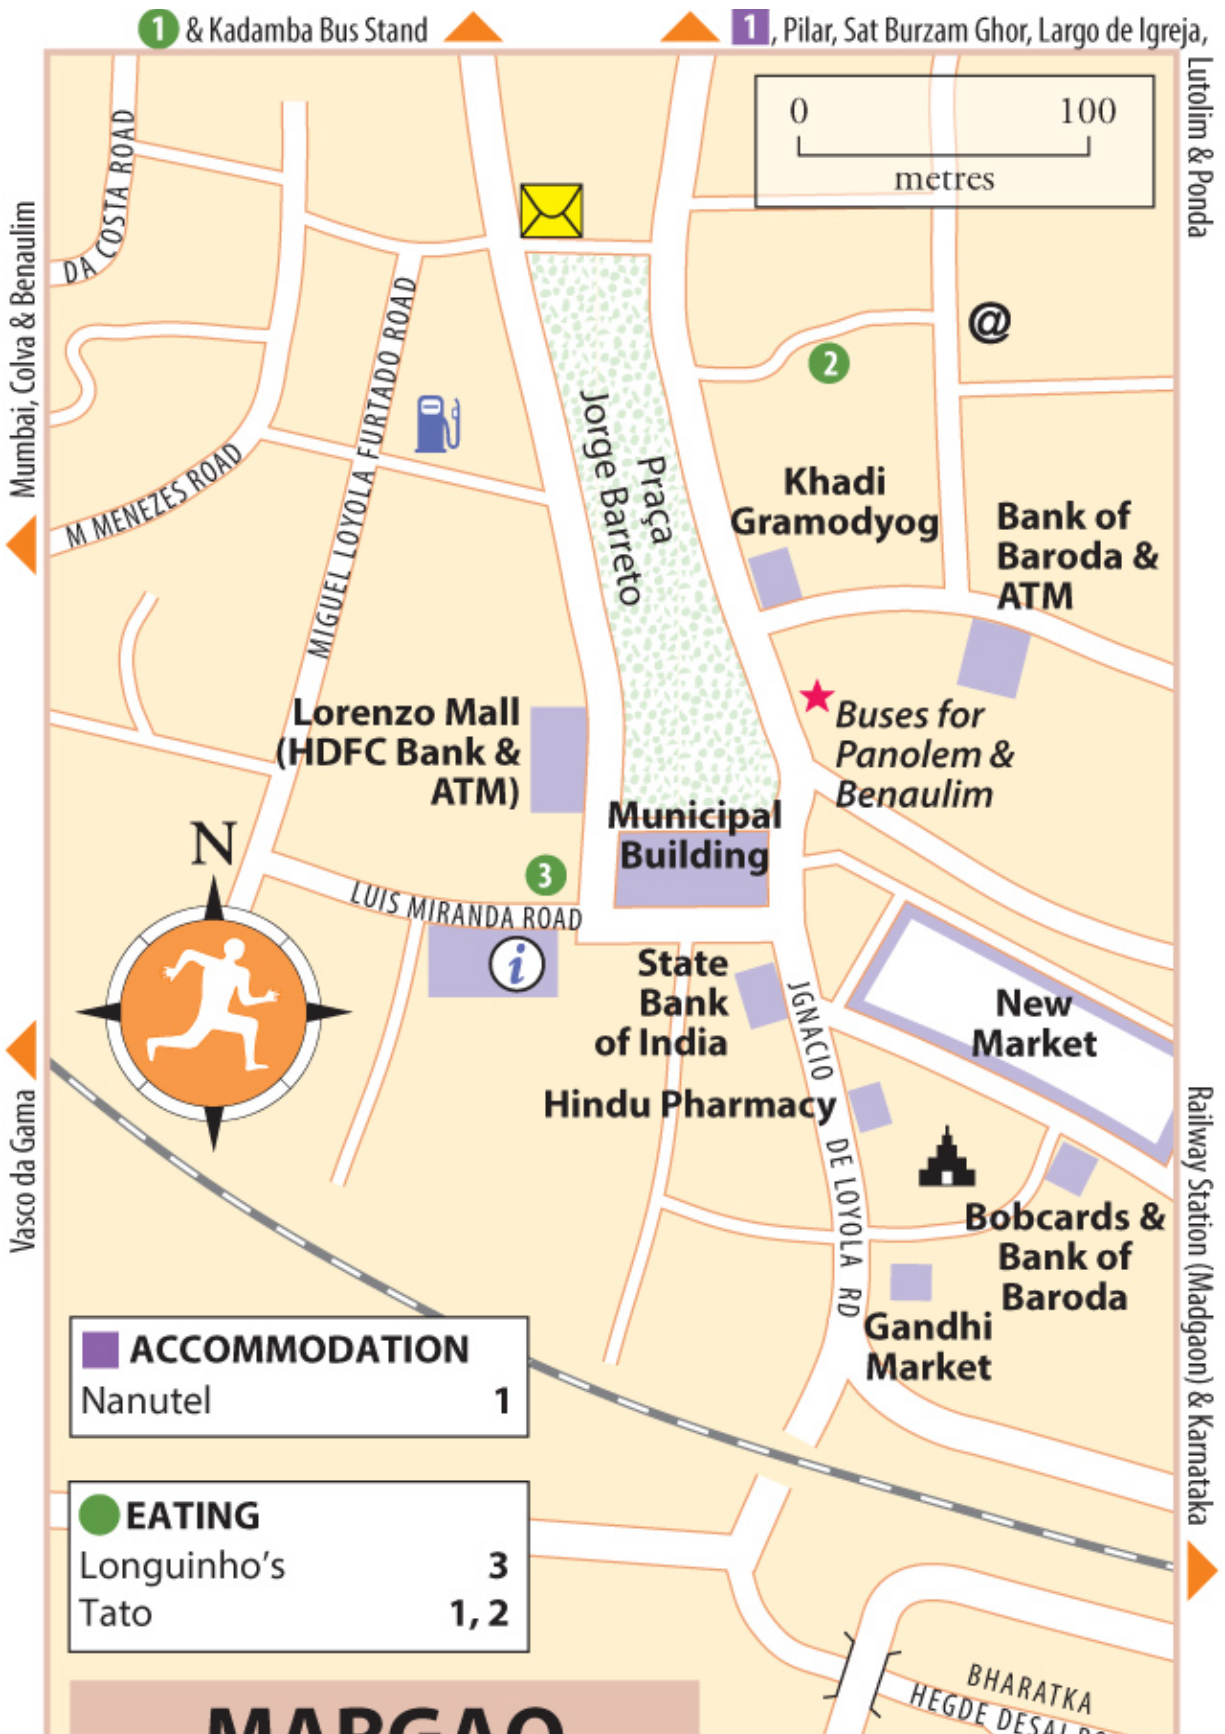

South Goa

Backed by a lush band of coconut plantations and green hills, Goa's south coast is fringed by some of the region's finest beaches. An ideal first base if you've just arrived in the region is Benaulim, 6km west of the state's second city, Margao. The most traveller-friendly resort in the area, Benaulim stands slap in the middle of a spectacular 25km stretch of pure white sand. Although increasingly carved up by Mumbai time-share companies, low-cost accommodation here remains plentiful and of a consistently high standard. Nearby Colva, by contrast, has degenerated over the past decade into an insalubrious sink resort. Frequented by huge numbers of day-trippers, and boasting few discernible charms, it is best avoided.

With the gradual spread of package tourism down the coast, Palolem, a ninety-minute drive south of Margao along the main highway, is Goa's most happening beach, attracting droves of sun seekers from November through March. Set against a backdrop of forest-cloaked hills, its bay is spectacular, though the crowds can feel overwhelming in high season. For a quieter scene, try Agonda, just up the coast, or Patnem, immediately south of Palolem. Among the possible day-trips inland, a crop of Portuguese-era mansions at Chandor and Quepem are your best options; and in the far south, the Cotigao Wildlife Sanctuary affords a rare glimpse of unspoiled forest and its fauna.

Margao

The capital of prosperous Salcete taluka, MARGAO – referred to in railway timetables and on some maps by its official government title, Madgaon – is Goa's second city, and if you're arriving in the state on the Konkan Railway, you'll almost certainly have to pause here to pick up onward transport by road. Surrounded by fertile rice paddy and plantain groves, the town has always been an important agricultural market, and was once a major religious centre, with dozens of wealthy temples and dharamshalas – however, most of these were destroyed when the Portuguese absorbed the area into their Novas Conquistas ("New Conquests") during the seventeenth century. Today, Catholic churches still outnumber Hindu shrines, but Margao has retained a cosmopolitan feel due to a huge influx of migrant labour from neighbouring Karnataka and Maharashtra.

Largo de Igreja and around It's a short auto-rickshaw ride from the centre to Largo de Igreja (Church Square), at the north end of town, where Church of the Holy Spirit is the main landmark of Margao's dishevelled colonial enclave. Built by the Portuguese in 1675, the church ranks among the finest examples of late Baroque architecture in Asia, with an interior dominated by a huge gilt reredos dedicated to the Virgin.

Just northeast, overlooking the main Ponda Road, stands one of the state's grandest eighteenth-century palacios, Sat Burzam Ghor ("Seven Gables house"). Just three of its original seven high-pitched roof gables remain, but the mansion is still an impressive sight, its facade decorated with fancy scrollwork and huge oyster-shell windows.

Market area

Colonial-era vestiges aside, the main reason to come to Margao is to shop at the town's market, the hub of which is a labyrinthine covered area and shopping centre, and the open-air Gandhi Market just south. Just up the road, on the southeast side of the town's hectic main square, Praça Jorge Barreto, stands the little government-run Khadi Gramodyog shop, which sells the usual range of hand-spun cottons and raw silk by the metre, as well as ready-made traditional Indian garments.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN MARGAO'S MARGAO HUGE RAILWAY STATION, MADGAON JUNCTION, LIES 3KM
SOUTH OF THE CENTRE, ITS RESERVATION OFFICE (MON– SAT 8AM–4.30PM, SUN 8AM–2PM; ☎0832 271 2940) DIVIDED BETWEEN THE GROUND AND FIRST FLOORS. TICKETS FOR TRAINS TO MUMBAI ARE IN SHORT SUPPLY, SO MAKE YOUR RESERVATION AS FAR IN ADVANCE AS POSSIBLE. IF YOU'RE CATCHING THE TRAIN TO HOSAPETE (FOR HAMPI) GET HERE EARLY TO AVOID LONG QUEUES. SEVERAL PRINCIPAL TRAINS STOP IN MARGAO AT UNSOCIABLE TIMES OF NIGHT, BUT THERE'S A 24HOUR INFORMATION OFFICE AND A

ROUND-THE-CLOCK PREPAID AUTO-RICKSHAW AND TAXI STAND OUTSIDE THE EXIT.

Destinations Canacona/Chaudi (6–7 daily; 30–45min); Gokarna (2 daily; 1hr 30min–2hr 30min); Hosapete (4 weekly; 7hr); Mangaluru (4–5 daily; 5–6hr); Mumbai (3 daily; 9hr 30min–11hr 50min).

By bus All interstate and state buses arrive at and depart from the Kadamba bus stand, 3km north of the centre, with auto-rickshaws charging around ₹100 to get into town. Buses to destinations on the south coast also stop in front of the Kamat Hotel, on the east side of Praça Jorge Barreto. Paulo Travel's deluxe coach to and from Hampi works from a lot 300m or so north of the Kadamba bus stand, on the left just before the large yellow government building.

Destinations Agonda (4 daily; 2hr); Benaulim (every 30min; 15min); Chandor (hourly; 45min); Canacona/Chaudi (every 30min; 1hr 40min); Gokarna (2 daily; 4hr 30min); Hampi (1 nightly; 10hr); Mangaluru (5 daily; 7hr); Mapusa (10 daily; 2hr 30min); Mumbai (2 daily; 16–18hr); Panjim (every 30min; 50min); Panolem (every 30min; 2hr); Pune (1 daily; 12hr).

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Nanutel Rua Padre Miranda 📞 nanuhotels.in. With Colva and Benaulim so close, it's hard to think of a reason why you'd want to stay in Margao, but if you're stuck then this three-star multi-storey block, north of Praça Jorge Barreto, is a possibility. Pitched at visiting businesspeople, it has 55 comfortable central a/c rooms and a small pool with friendly staff. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

After a browse around the market, most visitors make a beeline for Longuinho's, once the hangout of Margao's English-speaking middle classes (now it's mostly tourists), before heading home. If you are on a tight budget, try one of the south Indian-style pure-veg cafés along Station Road.

Longuinho's Luis Miranda Rd 📞 0832 2739908. Old-fashioned café serving meat, fish and veg mains with cheaper freshly baked savoury snacks, cakes and drinks. The food isn't up to much these days – though they do a decent Bombay duck– and the 1950s Goan atmosphere has dwindled with the tourist trade, but it's a pleasant enough place to catch your breath over a beer. ₹₹

Tato Tucked up an alley off the east side of Praça Jorge Barreto, and opposite the yellow government building north of the Kadamba bus stand ☎97654 98690. The town's brightest and best south Indian café chain serves the usual range of hot snacks (including especially good samosas at breakfast, and masala dosas from noon). For a proper meal, climb the stairs to their cool a/c floors, where you can order wonderful thalis veg, fish and north Indian dishes, as well Udupi nibbles. ₹₹

DIRECTORY CINEMA MARGAO BOASTS SOUTH GOA'S PRINCIPAL CINEMA, THE INOX OSIA MULTIPLEX (☎080802 11116), OUT IN THE NORTH OF TOWN IN THE OSIA COMMERCIAL ARCADE. IT SCREENS HOLLYWOOD AS WELL AS BOLLYWOOD RELEASES; TICKETS COST ₹120–300.

Hospitals Hospicio (☎0832 270 5664 or 0832 270 5754), Rua Do Miranda, and the Apollo Victor Hospital, in the suburb of Malbhat (☎0832 272 8888, www.apollovictorhospital.com).

Post office The GPO is at the top of Praça Jorge Barreto.

Around Margao

For a good dose of quirky colonial architecture, head inland from Margao, where villages such as Loutolim and Chandor are littered with decaying old Portuguese houses, most of them empty – the region's traditional inheritance laws ensure that old family homes tend to be owned by literally dozens of descendants, few of whom are willing or can afford to maintain them.

Braganza-Perreira/Menezes-Braganza house Chandor • Daily except holidays, no set hours – just turn up 10am–noon or 3–6pm, go through the main entrance, up the stairs and knock at either of the doors • Free, donation suggested • ☎0832 278 4201 or ☎98221 60009 house, regarded as the grandest of Goa's colonial mansions. Dominating the dusty village square, the house, built in the 1500s by the wealthy Braganza family for their two sons, has a huge double-storey facade, with 28 windows flanking its entrance. Braganza de Perreira, the great-grandfather of the present owner, was the last knight of the king of Portugal; more recently, Menezes Braganza (1879–1938), a journalist and freedom fighter, was one of the few Goan aristocrats actively to oppose Portuguese rule. Forced to flee Chandor in 1950, the family returned in 1962 to find their house, amazingly, untouched. The airy tiled interiors of both wings contain a veritable feast of antiques.

Thirteen kilometres east of Margao across Salcete district's fertile rice fields lies sleepy Chandor village, a scattering of tumbledown villas and farmhouses ranged along shady tree-lined lanes. The main reason to venture out here is to see the splendid Braganza-Perreira/Menezes-Braganza

Exploring the house The house is divided into two separate wings, owned by different (and contrasting) branches of the old family. Furniture enthusiasts and lovers of rare Chinese porcelain, in particular, will find plenty to drool over in the Menezes-Braganza wing (to the right as you face the building). Next door, in the Braganza-Perreira wing, an ornate oratory enshrines St Francis Xavier's diamond-encrusted toenail, retrieved from a local bank vault. The house's most famous feature, however, is its ostentatiously grand ballroom, or Great Salon, where a pair of matching high-backed chairs, presented to the Braganza-Perreiras by King Dom Luís of Portugal, occupy pride of place.

Fernandes House

Chandor • Mon–Sat 10am–5pm; phone in advance • Free, but donation expected • 📞0832 278 4245

An air of charismatic dilapidation hangs over the Fernandes House, on the south side of Chandor village. One of the oldest surviving palacios in Goa, its core is of pre-conquest Hindu origin, overlaid by later accretions. Sara Fernandes, the present owner, receives visitors in the wonderful salon that extends the length of the building's first floor, abutting a bedchamber containing its original, ornately carved four-poster. Hidden in the bowels of the building below, a narrow passage fitted with disguised gun holes was where the family used to shelter when attacked by Hindu rebels and bandits such as the Ranes.

Palacio do Deão

Quepem • Guided tours daily except Wed 10am–5pm • Free • palaciododeao.com

A superb colonial-era palacio stands at Quepem, a thirty-minute drive southeast of Margao on the fringes of the state's iron-ore belt. In 1787, a high-ranking member of the Portuguese clergy, Father José Paulo de Almeida, built a country house in the town. Known as the Palacio do Deão, it grew to become one of the grandest in the colony, and later served as a retreat for its viceroys. The palacio was recently restored to its former glory, and what you see today is a faithful approximation of how the house would have looked in José Paulo's day. The engaging guided tour lasts around half an hour, winding up on the lovely rear terrace overlooking the river where you can enjoy a delicious Goan lunch, dinner or afternoon tea (by prior arrangement, at least a day in advance; around ₹500).

Colva

A hot-season retreat for Margao's moneyed middle classes since long before Independence, COLVA is the oldest and largest – and least appealing – of south Goa's resorts. Its outlying waddos are pleasant enough, dotted with colonial-style villas and ramshackle fishing huts, but the beachfront is dismal: a lacklustre collection of concrete hotels, souvenir stalls and flyblown snack bars strewn around a bleak central roundabout. The atmosphere is not improved by the heaps of rubbish dumped in a rank-smelling ditch that runs behind the beach, nor by the stench of drying fish wafting from the nearby village. Benaulim, just a five-minute drive further south, has a far better choice of accommodation and range of facilities, and is altogether more salubrious.

Benaulim

The predominantly Catholic fishing village of BENAULIM lies in the dead centre of Colva beach, scattered around coconut groves and paddy fields 7km west of Margao. Two decades ago, the settlement had barely made it onto the backpackers' map. Nowadays, though, affluent holiday-makers from metropolitan India come here in droves, staying in the huge resort and time-share complexes mushrooming on the outskirts, while long-staying, heavy-drinking Brit pensioners and thirty-something European couples taking time out of trips around the Subcontinent make up the bulk of the foreign contingent.

Benaulim's rising popularity has certainly dented the village's old-world charm, but time your visit well (avoiding Diwali and the Christmas peak season), and it is still hard to beat as a place to unwind. The seafood is superb, accommodation and motorbikes cheaper than anywhere else in the state, and the beach is breathtaking, particularly around sunset, when the brilliant white sand and churning surf reflect the changing colours to magical effect. Shelving away almost to Cabo da Rama on the horizon, it is also lined with Goa's largest, and most colourfully decorated, fleet of wooden outriggers, which provide welcome shade during the heat of the day.

Goa Chitra

Tues–Sun 9.15am–6pm, last tour 5.15pm • charge • goachitra.com • To get to Goa Chitra by bike or motorcycle, head east from Maria Hall crossroads towards Margao, and take the first turning on your left at a fork after 1.5km; when you reach the T-junction ahead, turn sharply right – the museum lies another 500m on your right. Conventional sights are thin on the ground along this stretch of coast, though one exception stands out on the eastern fringes of Benaulim: a splendid new ethnographic museum, Goa Chitra. Set against a backdrop of a working organic farm, the exhibition comprises a vast array of antique agricultural tools and artefacts, ranging from giant cooking pots and ecclesiastical robes to tubas and sugar-cane presses. The idea is to promote appreciation of the region's traditional agrarian lifestyle – a world of knowledge and skills fast disappearing.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS BUSES FROM BENAULIM MARGAO RUN EVERY 20MIN OR SO FROM THE KADAMBA BUS STAND TO THE MARIA HALL CROSSROADS IN BENAULIM. THERE IS A TAXI AND AUTO-RICKSHAW RANK AT THE CROSSROADS, FROM WHERE YOU CAN PICK UP TRANSPORT TO THE BEACH, 1.5KM WEST.

By motorbike or bicycle Signs offering motorbikes for rent are dotted along the lanes off Maria Hall crossroads: rates are standard, descending in proportion to the length of time you keep the vehicle (₹250–350/day is about average for a Honda Activa). Worth bearing in mind if you're planning to continue further south is that motorbikes are much cheaper to rent (and generally in better condition) here than in Palolem. Bicycle rental costs around ₹100/day.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Aside from the unsightly time-share complexes and five-stars that loom in the fields around the village, most of Benaulim's accommodation consists of small budget guesthouses, scattered around the lanes 1km or so back from the beach.

Anthy's Sernabatim @anthysguesthouse@rediffmail.com. Nicely furnished rooms right on the sea, with high ceilings, tiny bathrooms and breezy verandas. It also boasts a restaurant and bar. ₹₹

Blue Corner Sernabatim @blue-corner-goia.com. Popular hut camp on the beach, run by an enthusiastic young crew. Large palm-leaf structures with fans, mosquito nets, attached shower-toilets and plywood sit outs. Quiet and secure, and the bar-restaurant is one of the most lively places on the beach in the evenings ₹₹

★Heaven Goa 1 Ambeaxir, Sernabatim @heavengoia.in. Welcoming Swiss-run guesthouse in a block of a dozen or so rooms occupying a plum spot, 10min back from the sea beside a lily pond alive with frogs, egrets and water buffalo. The rooms are spacious and well set up (with wooden shelves, mosquito nets, shiny tiled floors and balconies overlooking the water). Eight rooms offer a/c for a little extra. Unbelievable value in this bracket. ₹₹

L'Amour Beach Rd @lamourbeachresortgoia.com. Benaulim's oldest hotel comprises a comfortable 21-room complex; the rooms are fan-only but chalets are spacious, a/c and cool, with ceramic tiled floors and little verandas opening onto a central garden. Reasonable rates (a/c rooms cost extra). ₹₹-₹₹₹

Lloyd's 1554/A Vas Waddo @lloydtouristrooms@gmail.com. With its garish yellow exterior, this place on the beach side of the village stands out in more ways than one. The rooms are really big for the price, with high ceilings, quality beds and fans, plus neat mozzie screens over the windows. Also various-sized a/c apartments upstairs for longer stays. ₹

O Mangueiro House 1685/A, Vas Waddo (next to Carina Beach Resort) @mangogrovegoia.com. One of the oldest budget guesthouses in Benaulim, run by the affable Mr Caetano. Just 400m from the beach, the rooms are on the small side, but neat and clean, freshly painted each season, and with quality mattresses. Some have tiny balconies opening onto a sandy courtyard; others face the road. No wi-fi or breakfast. ₹

Oshin Mazil Waddo oshinsholidaycare@rediffmail.com. Large complex of old-style budget rooms set well back from the road. Opening onto leafy terraces, they're spacious and clean with attached bathrooms, balconies, fresh towels and complimentary soap; those on the top floor afford views over the treetops. A notch above most places in this area, and good value, but quite a walk from the beach. ₹₹

Palm Grove Tamdi-Mati, 149 Vas Waddo 📞 palmgrovegoa.com. Secluded hotel surrounded by beautiful gardens, offering three classes of a/c rooms, ranging from ropy to luxurious. A 10- to 15min walk (or bike ride) back from the beachfront, but very pleasant and the management is welcoming. Rates vary based on categories. ₹₹₹

Simon Cottages Ambeaxir, Sernabatim 📞 simoncottages@yahoo.com. Perennially among the best budget deals in Benaulim, in a quiet spot 1km from the beach at the unspoiled north side of the village. Twelve huge rooms on three storeys, all with shower-toilets and verandas, opening onto a sandy courtyard. ₹

Tansy Cottages Beach Rd 📞 tansycottages@yahoo.in. Not the best of locations, and the shocking green-and-purple paintwork is hard to live with, but the rooms are some of the nicest budget options in Benaulim: a generous size, with tiled floors and attached bathrooms. There is a restaurant where you can have breakfast and meals. ₹

★ Xavier's Sernabatim 📞 jovek@vsnl.in. Well-maintained, large rooms arranged around a lovely garden, virtually on the beach but within easy walking distance of the village centre. All the rooms have private terraces, extra-thick king-sized mattresses, and low-slung cane chairs to lounge on, and the local owners, who have been here for decades, are genuinely hospitable. There is also a kitchen where you can cook your own meals, as well as family rooms, two-bedroom apartments and studio apartments alongside standard and deluxe a/c and non a/c rooms. A peaceful, perfectly-situated option – and great value. Contact the owners for rates.

EATING

MAP

Benaulim's proximity to Margao market, along with the presence of a large Christian fishing community, means its restaurants serve some of the tastiest, most competitively priced seafood in Goa. The largest and busiest shacks flank the beachfront area, where Johncy's catches most of the passing custom. However, you'll find better food at lower prices at places further along the beach, which seem to change chefs annually; wander by and see who has the most customers.

Blue Corner Sernabatim 📞 73500 14885 or 📞 98504 55770. Great little beachside joint specializing in seafood and authentic Chinese dishes. House favourites include “fish tomato eggdrop soup”, scrumptious “dragon potatoes” and, best of all, their “Dave’s steak. Also featured on the eclectic menu are tasty Italian dishes, sizzlers and, for homesick veggies, a pretty good cauliflower cheese. ₹

Menino Jesus Tea Stall Sernabatim 0832 2789697. If you’ve ever wondered what beach shacks were like thirty years ago, check this place out. It’s where the local rickshaw drivers refuel on spicy fish-curry-rice plates piping-hot slices of millet-fried mackerel and pao bhaji at pocket-friendly prices. Rough and ready, but the food’s delicious, and the sea view is perfect. ₹

Palmira’s Beach Rd 0832 277 1309. Benaulim’s best breakfasts: wonderfully creamy and fresh set curd, copious fruit salads with coconut, real espresso warm local bread (bagri) and the morning paper. For a light lunch, try their delicious prawn toast or tomato or ginger-carrot soups ₹

The People Shack South end of beach 98221 84936. Nadia and Vinod from Himachal Pradesh have run this welcoming little shack for more than a decade, and can claim one of the most loyal clienteles in the village, most of whom come for the Italian dishes, prepared with home-made pasta, fresh herbs, olive oil and proper cheese. The prawn lasagne and moussaka also get the thumbs up and they do a zingy, fresh-mint mojito During the day, a kids’ play area is an additional attraction. They also run a restaurant called Garden Retreat. ₹₹₹

Satkar Maria Hall Crossroads 93261 29443. No-frills locals’ Udupi canteen that’s the only place in the village where you can order regular Indian snacks – samosas masala dosas hot pakoras and spicy chickpea stew (channa) – and full thalis – at regular Indian prices. The pav bhaji breakfast is a must. ₹

Sucorina Beach Shack Sernabatim 98224 82456. Very popular among locals and tourists, they are virtually round the clock serving full English breakfast with toast, omelette and bacon. They specialise in Goan curries and cuisine, alongside seafood. Try their shredded beef and their king fish and prawn curries. ₹₹

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE THE BANK OF BARODA
(MON–FRI 9AM–2PM, SAT 9–11.30AM) ON MARIA HALL
CROSSROADS HAS AN ATM, AS DOES THE UTI BANK.
CURRENCY MAY BE CHANGED AT THE TWO TRAVEL AGENTS

GK TOURIST CENTRE, AT THE CROSSROADS IN THE VILLAGE CENTRE, AND NEW HORIZONS, DIAGONALLY OPPOSITE. IT'S WORTH COMPARING RATES AT THE TWO.

General stores You'll find a couple of well-stocked general stores near the Maria Hall crossroads.

Internet GK Tourist Centre and New Horizons each have broadband connections (₹50/hr).

Laundry Annie's, opposite Palm Grove hotel, offers an inexpensive same-day laundry service. The Frank Bela laundry on the Maria Hall crossroads charges slightly more.

Pharmacy There is a pharmacy at the Maria Hall crossroads.

Agonda

AGONDA, 10km northwest of the market town of Chaudi (known to outsiders as Canacona), comes as a pleasant surprise after the chaos elsewhere in Goa. Accommodation in this predominantly Catholic fishing village is in small-scale, family-run guesthouses and upper-end hut camps, the restaurant scene is relatively unsophisticated, and the clientele easy-going and health-conscious. Granted, you don't get a dreamy brake of palm trees as a backdrop, but the surrounding hills and forest are exquisite, and the sand is as clean as any in the state.

The smart money says Agonda could all too soon go the way of Palolem, but for the time being the village deserves to be high on the list for anyone seeking somewhere quiet and wholesome, with enough amenities for a relaxing holiday and plenty of local atmosphere.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS AGONDA IS SERVED BY FOUR DAILY BUSES FROM THE NEAREST MARKET TOWN, CANACONA/CHAUDI (20–30MIN); TWO RUN TO MARGAO (2HR). MOST SERVICES STOP AT THE JUNCTION ON THE MAIN PALOLEM ROAD, 1KM EAST (YOU CAN USUALLY FIND A RICKSHAW FOR THE TRIP INTO THE VILLAGE), BUT A COUPLE GO AS FAR AS THE CHURCH IN THE CENTRE OF AGONDA.

ACCOMMODATION AGONDA GETS PACKED IN PEAK SEASON, AND OVER CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR YOU'LL BE LUCKY TO FIND A BED ANYWHERE ON SPEC. TARIFFS ROCKET BY FIFTY PERCENT OR MORE AT THIS TIME, BUT AFTER JAN 15 SETTLE BACK DOWN AGAIN AND REMAIN ON A PAR WITH THOSE IN PATNEM AND PALOLEM. EXCEPT FOR THE UPSCALE CAMPS (WHICH REQUIRE PAYMENT IN ADVANCE ONLINE) FEW PLACES ACCEPT ADVANCE BOOKINGS SO YOU'LL PROBABLY HAVE TO PLOD AROUND TO FIND SOMEWHERE THAT SUITS, OR ELSE PHONE AHEAD FROM THE COMFORT OF A CAFÉ TABLE (THOUGH NOTE THAT MOBILE COVERAGE TENDS TO BE PATCHY HEREABOUTS).

★Agonda White Sand Beach Huts 90m north of St Anne's Church 📍 agondavillas.com. This campus of stylish huts has raised the bar in Agonda. Made of local wood, thatch and bamboo, with stone-tiled floors, the cottages are furnished like chic hotel rooms – though ranged around a busy bar-restaurant – and there's a minimum stay of three nights. For greater seclusion, and unparalleled luxury on the beach, treat yourself to a stay in one of their gorgeous villas – huge, five-star boutique chalets in Balinese and Keralan styles, with decadent open-to-sky bathrooms and uninterrupted sea views from private terraces. Standard a/c doubles ₹₹₹

Chris-Joana Just south of St Anne's Church 📍 chrisjoana92@ahoo.com. Smart modern house on the roadside. Its bargain rooms are clean, light and airy, with decent beds – two have a/c. Go for one on the rear side, overlooking the rooftops and creek toward coconut plantations; the front ones get warm in the afternoons. ₹₹

Jardim A Mar Doval Kazan 📍 jardim-a-mar.com. Professionally run “palm-tree-garden resort”, offering both rustic and seaside rooms and cosy beachside huts including those that can accommodate a family of four. They are nicely decorated with Rajasthani quilts and block print throws. Partly German-owned, it has a slicker feel than most of the competition. You can email them for the rates.

★Kaama Kethna Ecovillage 2km southeast of Agonda, off the Palolem road 📍 kaamakethna.com. This German-run ecotourism and permaculture project just outside the village – a 15min cycle from the beach – offers simply furnished treehouses, built high in the cashew canopy from palm leaf panels and wood, plus a few bamboo huts with spacious terraces at ground level. The site is wonderfully quiet, with colourful birds and monkeys flitting through the branches. Food grown on the farm is served in their little restaurant; they also offer yoga and meditation courses and natural therapies. ₹₹

Monsoon Guesthouse 1km north of St Anne's Church ☎96733 63235. Low-slung thatched huts (prices vary depending on size and season) and rooms in a secluded, peaceful setting behind the north end of the beach. Efficiently run by the resident German owner, it offers a pleasant parachute-shaded chill out terrace and dining area with a tiled roof. Family-friendly (no bar). Prices are especially high over Christmas. ₹₹

EATING AGONDA'S RESTAURANTS ARE AS MUCH HANGOUTS AS PLACES TO EAT. MOST ARE FURNISHED WITH RELAXING CANE CHAIRS, PRETTY HIMALAYAN LANTERNS AND LOUNGE AREAS WITH BOLSTERS, AND ARE ON OR NEAR THE BEACH.

Agonda White Sand 900m north of St Anne's church. 🌐 agondawhitesand.com. One of the more sophisticated menus including eggs rösti for breakfast, steaks with peppercorn or blue cheese sauce seafood, tandoori chicken and cashew brown rice with beetroot raita for lunch and dinner, as well as a good range of cocktails ₹₹₹

Fatima Corner and Thali Opposite the bank at the main junction. The place for tourists to get a local-food fix, this little restaurant has a pleasant vibe and serves the usual mix of Indian and Continental dishes as well as excellent thalis. Also popular for its set breakfasts ₹

Jardim A Mar Doval Kazan 🌐 jardim-a-mar.com. A café-restaurant that ticks all the boxes: it's right on the sand, well shaded (under palms and a Ladakhi parachute), with comfy cane chairs and silk cushions scattered on lounge mats. And it's a great breakfast spot, churning out fresh fruit juices, proper coffee, grilled baguettes and, the house speciality, rice pudding, as well as a popular all-day menu. ₹₹

Madhu's North side of beach. ☎94238 13442. For years the best tandoori outfit on the beach: great for fresh local fish and Indian dishes alike. It's inexpensive and always busy, so get here early. The chicken tikka malai kebab is especially good. ₹₹

Monsoon Guesthouse 1km north of St Anne's Church ☎96733 63235. One for the healthy eaters: great houses and copious fresh salads for breakfast, pasta, Tibetan momos, seared fish steaks and a focused selection of curries the rest of the day. Served on a small sandy terrace on the beach.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE THERE ARE ATMS AT THE JUNCTION OPPOSITE ST ANNE'S CHURCH.

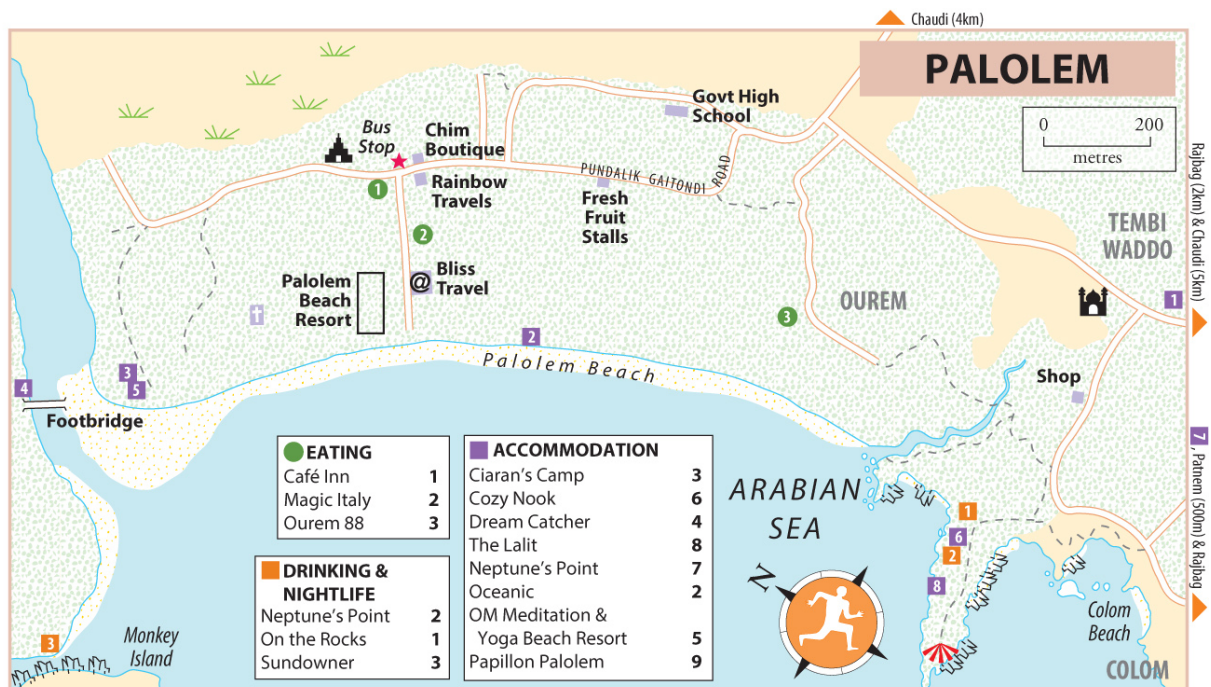

Internet A string of places along the tarmac lane leading north of the church offer internet access.

Palolem

Nowhere else in peninsular India conforms so obediently to the archetypal image of a paradise beach as PALOLEM, 35km south of Margao. Lined with a swaying curtain of coconut palms, the bay forms a perfect curve of golden sand, arcing north from a giant pile of boulders to a spur of the Sahyadri Hills, which tapers into the sea draped in thick forest. Palolem, however, has become something of a paradise lost over the past decade. It's now the most popular resort in Goa among independent foreign travellers, and is deluged from late November. Visitor numbers become positively overwhelming in peak season, when thousands of people spill across a beach backed by an unbroken line of shacks and Thai-style hut camps.

Basically, Palolem in full swing is the kind of place you'll either love at first sight or want to flee from as quickly as possible. If you're in the latter category, try smaller, less frequented Patnem beach, a short walk south around the headland, where the shack scene is more subdued and the sands marginally emptier.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS REGULAR PALOLEM BUSES RUN BETWEEN MARGAO AND PALOLEM, STOPPING AT THE END OF THE LANE LEADING FROM THE MAIN STREET TO THE BEACHFRONT. FREQUENT SERVICES ALSO RUN BETWEEN MARGAO AND KARWAR (IN KARNATAKA) VIA THE NEARBY MARKET TOWN OF CANACONA/CHAUDI (EVERY 30MIN; 2HR), 2KM SOUTHEAST ACROSS THE RICE FIELDS.

By train Canacona/Chaudi is also the nearest railhead to Palolem; the station lies a short way north of the main bazaar. Rickshaws charge ₹80–100, taxis ₹200–250, for the ride to the beach.

GETTING AROUND AND ACTIVITIES BIKE RENTAL A STALL HALFWAY ALONG THE MAIN STREET CHARGES AROUND ₹50–100/DAY.

Surf canoes Available for rent at various places along the beach for ₹200/hr – great for paddles to Monkey Island at the top of the bay, or, weather permitting, around the headland to “Butterfly Beach”.

Trekking Goa Jungle Adventure (☎98504 85641, www.goajungle.com or facebook.com/goajungleadventure) runs guided treks to natural swimming sites and features a mix of trekking, canyoning, swimming and abseiling in the mountain area inland from Palolem. You will need to be reasonably fit. Full-day trips ₹1990–3690, including transport and equipment.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

The local municipality’s strict enforcement of a rule banning new concrete construction in Palolem (it went so far as to bulldoze without warning the entire resort a few years back) has ensured that most of the village's accommodation consists of simple palm-leaf huts.

Ciaran's Camp Centre of Palolem beach 📞ciarans.com. "Camp" understates the sophistication of this compact resort whose coir, coconut wood and terracotta-tiled chalets are ranged around a neatly manicured central lawn. You've a choice of sea-facing or super-plush a/c rooms. Also available are jungle huts with sea views. The whole place is exceptionally well run, with a popular double-decker bar-restaurant on site, safe lockers and a pair of friendly large hounds. ₹₹₹

Cozy Nook North end of the beach, near the island 📞cozynookgoa.com. One of the most attractive set-ups in Goa, comprising bamboo huts in three styles. The nicest are the Robinson Crusoe-esque deluxe options, which have balconies. The sea-facing ones are ramshackle and jazzy, decked out in Rajasthani furniture; the semi-deluxe only have upper-floor rooms. Opening onto the lagoon on one side and the beach on the other, the site occupies a prime spot at the scenic north end of the bay. Email the hosts for current rates, which change on a regular basis. ₹₹₹

Dream Catcher North end of the beach behind Cozy Nook 📞dreamcatcher.in. Individually styled, very glam Keralan-style huts in a neatly swept, sandy compound, with more space, better mattresses, nicer textiles, bigger windows and sturdier foundations than most, in a plum position by the riverside. There's also a shaded yoga shala for classes and a "chillout-ambient bar". ₹₹₹

The Lalit #196, near Government High School 📞0832 2645767, 📞thevillageresortpalolem.com. This boutique guesthouse, on the fringes of Palolem and 10mins from the beach, is the most comfortable and stylish place to stay in the area. Furnished with four-posters and vibrant silk bed covers, the a/c rooms are either "cosy" or large (costing up to ₹4500 during peak season) and the designer bathrooms palatial. A shady rear garden serves as a common breakfast area, and you can enjoy your tea on the verandah. ₹₹

Neptune's Point South Palolem 📞neptunepoint.com. Neptune's occupies the sweet spot atop the boulder headland dividing Palolem and Patnem, and its huts, stacked up on the hillside under giant coconut palms, make the most of the stupendous views. They're basic by today's standards, but comfortable enough, and having the sea on three sides is a unique selling point. The only downside is the Saturday night party, held on the premises, which brings in big crowds. ₹₹₹

Oceanic Tembi Waddo 🌐hotel-oceanic.com. A 10min walk inland from the beach (and also reachable via the backroad to Canacona/Chaudi), Oceanic is a popular hotel. Its marble-floored rooms are stylishly designed, fresh, cool and relaxing, with large mosquito nets, block-printed bedspreads and bedside lamps. There's also a pool and a good restaurant. ₹₹

★OM Meditation & Yoga Beach Resort Far northern end of Palolem beach, on the far side of the creek (look for the rickety footbridge to the right as you head for the island) ☎cozynook.goa@gmail.com. Run by the guys at Cozy Nook (where you can access wi-fi), this isolated tent camp is a silent space with music and noise prohibited – there's also a small yoga area. The tents are quite well equipped, with comfortable beds, and the attached bathrooms are open to the sky. Email the hosts at Cozy Nook for room rates.

Papillon Palolem Qurem Rd 🌐papillonpalolem.com. Run by Heaven, this beach bar and restaurant on the beach offers accommodation as well. Cosy and quiet, there are 20 comfortable wooden huts, of which four of them are deluxe beach front huts. Hot showers, mosquito nets, ceiling fans are provided in all the huts. ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

Palolem's restaurants reflect the cosmopolitan make-up of its visitors. Each year, a fresh batch of innovative, ever more stylish places opens, many of them managed by expats.

Café Inn Pundalik Gaitondi Rd ☎0750 732 2799. The best coffee in Palolem, made with a proper Italian coffee machine, is served here. They get packed out for an international range of set breakfasts and have a small but eclectic menu, including tasty smoked chicken sandwiches tortilla wraps, cakes and pastries. The best reason to come here, though, is for the Belgian waffles ₹₹₹

Magic Italy Beach Rd ☎88057 67705. Italian-run and on the busy approach to the seafront, this is in the running to be south Goa's number-one Italian restaurant, serving authentic home-made ravioli and tagliatelle and scrumptious, large wood-fired pizzas. Reservation recommended. ₹₹₹

★Ourem 88 On a lane running behind south side of beach (behind Rococo Pelton Bar) ☎86988 27679. Tiny garden restaurant run by Brit expats Jodie and Brett, serving cleverly-thought-out Euro gastro dishes made from fresh local ingredients. Try their superb steak with béarnaise sauce, melt-in-the-mouth chicken Kiev or oven-baked barramundi filet in a herb and parmesan crust, leaving room for the divine chocolate fonduta. Absolutely the finest dining in Palolem, though prices are reasonable given the quality of the cuisine. By reservation only (several days beforehand in peak season). ₹₹₹₹

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP

Goa's 10pm amplified music ban is officially observed in Palolem, although On the Rocks has found a way of circumventing the rule and Neptune's Point has seemingly come to an arrangement with the authorities.

Neptune's Point South side of beach. A dreamy location for a sundowner. On Saturdays, they host techno dance parties (9pm–4am) Drinks won't break the bank either.

On the Rocks Southern end of the beach @ silentnoise.in. On the rocky promontory at the far south end of the bay, the Silent Noise collective stages weekly headphone parties here on Sat nights where the music is broadcast digitally to individual headsets instead of through PAs. You've a choice of house, electro and big beats on three separate channels, synced with live AV screens, lights and lasers. Can be a bit weird when you don't have headphones on, but many people seem to enjoy it. They also run a Wed afternoon market and other events.

Sundowner Opposite Monkey Island, across the estuary at the north of the beach ☎78875 67384. As indicated by the name, this eco-friendly open-air bar is the top spot for a sunset tipple with its sweeping view across the bay, although you may have to wade across the estuary to get there – there is a rickety bridge slightly inland and you can clamber around the rocks if you can't find the crossing point. They have a new restaurant specialising in Western food such as stone-baked pizzas. Yoga and massages available as well as four accommodation huts.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE SEVERAL AGENTS IN PALOLEM ARE LICENSED TO CHANGE MONEY; LKP FOREX

IN THE PALOLEM BEACH RESORT OFFERS COMPETITIVE RATES. SAI BABA, SUN MOON TRAVEL AND RAINBOW TRAVELS ON THE MAIN STREET ALL DO CASH ADVANCES AGAINST VISA AND MASTERCARD. THE NEAREST ATMS ARE 2KM AWAY TOWARDS THE MARKET TOWN OF CANACONA/CHAUDI ON THE MAIN ROAD.

Doctor Dr Sandheep, at the private Dhavalikar Hospital (☎88888 88888 or ☎0832 2643910), 2km out of Palolem at Devabag on the road to Agonda.

Internet Among a few cybercafés along the main road, Bliss Travel, on the left near the main entrance to the beach, charges ₹50/hr for the village's fastest broadband.

Pharmacy Palolem's main pharmacy is 1km out of the village on the Chaudi Rd, to your right just after the Agonda turning. It's closed on Sun, but out of hours you can call at the pharmacist's house immediately behind the shop.

South of Palolem

If the bright lights of Palolem start to lose their allure, wander around the headland to the south, where the Hindu fishing hamlet of Colom offers a more sedate scene. The shacks and bar strip resurfaces in earnest once around the next promontory at Patnem, but even in peak season the beach here rarely gets packed. Finally, to the south of Patnem, Rajbag is a worthwhile destination for a hike, but little more, thanks to the massive luxury resort behind it.

Colom

Once across the creek and boulder-covered spur bounding the south end of Palolem beach, you arrive at COLOM, a largely Hindu fishing village scattered around a series of rocky coves. Dozens of long-stay rooms, leaf huts and houses are tucked away under the palm groves and on the picturesque headland running seawards. This is the best place in the village to start an accommodation hunt – the lads at the Boom Shankar bar will know of any vacant places – but be warned that most of the rooms here can be basic.

Patnem

A string of hut camps and shacks lining the beach south of Colom, PATNEM is one of the mellower spots in these parts. The beach, curving for roughly 1km to a steep bluff, is broad, with little shade, and shelves quite steeply at certain phases of the tide, though the undertow rarely gets dangerously strong. On the headland dividing Patnem from Colom, the Harmonic Healing & Eco Retreat Centre (☎98225 12814, 🌐 harmoniclingoa.com) hosts daily yoga, reiki, pilates and Thai massage classes, as well as lessons in Bollywood dance and classical Indian singing, in a greenery-swathed site with panoramic views of the beach.

Rajbag and beyond At low tide, you can walk around the bottom of the steep-sided headland dividing Patnem from neighbouring RAJBAG, another kilometre-long sweep of white sand. Once quite remote, the arrival of a massive five-star hotel a few years back completely changed the vibe.

It's possible to press on even further south from Rajbag by crossing the Talpona River via a hand-paddled ferry, which usually has to be summoned from the far bank (fix a return price in advance). Once across, a short walk brings you to Talpona beach, backed by low dunes and a line of straggly palms. From here, you can cross the headland at the end of the beach to reach Galjibag, a remote white-sand bay that's a protected nesting site for olive ridley marine turtles. A strong undertow means swimming isn't safe here.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN SOUTH OF PALOLEM THE NEAREST RAILWAY STATION IS CANACONA/CHAUDI.

By auto-rickshaw or taxi Most beaches can be reached by auto-rickshaw from Canacona/Chaudi for around ₹75. Auto-rickshaws and taxis for the return trip hang around along the beachfront lane.

By bus Patnem's bus stop is 1km or so closer to Canacona/Chaudi than Palolem's, with buses starting at the Kadamba bus stand at the north end of Chaudi's bazaar and dropping passengers at the end of the short lane leading to Patnem beach.

ACCOMMODATION APRIL 20 NORTH END OF PATNEM BEACH 🌐 GOYAM.NET. LUXURY, TWO-STOREY WOODEN BUNGALOWS

PAINTED PRETTY PASTEL COLOURS, WITH TARIFFS RANGING, DEPENDING ON SIZE AND TIME OF YEAR. PARTLY SCREENED BY CASUARINA TREES, EACH IS SMARTLY FURNISHED AND FITTED WITH BATHROOMS, MOSQUITO NETS AND SWINGS ON SEA-FACING BALCONIES; THOSE AT THE FRONT ARE THE VILLAGE'S NUMBER-ONE DES RESES. ₹
₹-₹₹₹

Boom Shankar Colomb 📞97651 87294 or 📞9986773345. Simply furnished, clean, attached rooms on the southern edge of the village, with lots of lounging space and fine views across the cove. They can also help you root out longer-term rentals in houses nearby. The restaurant is right on the beach. ₹₹

Home Middle of Patnem beach 🌐homebeachresort.com. A chic little local-run guesthouse within sight of the beach, comprising an annexe of attached rooms under Mangalorean tiles, pleasantly decked out with textiles, coconut mats, lampshades and other touches to justify their tariffs. There are four category rooms starting with family garden view rooms to partial sea view rooms. No wi-fi. ₹₹

★Laguna Vista Just east of Colomb beach 📞agunavistapatnem@gmail.com. Basic but beautifully located thatched huts on their own quiet cove, with fans, loos, comfy mattresses, mozzie nets, fresh towels, safe lockers and perfect sunset views. There's a lovely yoga shala on site and a relaxing lounge-resto. ₹₹₹

Namaste Patnem 📞97642 43700. A standout choice among the string of budget traveller camps in Patnem, this dependable, lively budget option is run by the amiable Satay. Fan rooms can vary in cost depending on size and comfort of the hut, time of year and how far back you are from the sand, and there are also a/c options and service apartments close by. ₹₹-₹₹₹

Papaya's Patnem 🌐papayasgoa.com. A delightfully green oasis, where water is recycled to keep the plants in their prime and power comes from solar panels. The eco-huts have four-posters, thick mattresses, breezy little sit outs and shaggy palm-frond fringes made from locally-sourced materials. ₹₹

EATING AND DRINKING IT'S A SAFE BET YOU'LL SPEND A FEW HOURS EACH DAY IN ONE OR OTHER OF THE CAFÉS IN

COLOM OR BEHIND PATNEM BEACH, AND A COUPLE OF COMMENDABLE PLACES ARE TUCKED AWAY JUST INLAND.

April 20 North end of Patnem beach 📞99609 16989. This swanky beachside restaurant, an offshoot of the popular Dropadi in Palolem, does superb seafood prepared in rich north Indian tandoori style: crab makhni, avocado prawns and tandoori sea bass are their signature dishes. ₹₹

Boom Shankar Colom. Boom Shankar does a great range of food – including its perennially-popular fresh mozzarella and tomato salads and inexpensive seafood dishes and, with a terrace overlooking the bay and gorgeous views, is the perfect place for a sundowner. They are located right on the beach. ₹₹

Capital Patnem beach, opposite Patnem Chai Shop 📞99235 33015. It's worth ambling up the lane from the beach for a meal at Capital. The roadside location isn't up to much, but they do fantastic salads and a knockout spinach-mushroom cheeseburger to name but two of the healthy, freshly prepared dishes on an extensive multicuisine menu. ₹₹

Casa Fiesta Patnem beach 📞98239 28548. Popular place near the centre of the beach, offering an appetizing menu of world cuisine: hummus, Greek salad, Mexican specialities and fish pollichathu. Mains come with delicious roast potatoes. They also have one of the most impressive selections of fresh fish on the beach, though for considerably more. ₹₹₹

★Home Middle of Patnem beach. Patnem's nicest beach café, serving meze, freshly baked bread, Swiss röstis, fresh salads, proper Italian espresso and wonderful desserts (banoffee pie, warm apple tart with cream and legendary brownies). It's a particularly pleasant option for breakfast, with Chopin on the sound system and sparrows chirping in the palms. ₹₹₹

Laguna Vista Colom 📞99230 94676. Full-flavoured, healthy, organic meals made from local ingredients and served on a dreamy, wave-lapped terrace by a young crew. The menu is eclectic and international – bruschetta, crunchy salads, wraps, falafels and Indian dishes – and prices restrained. ₹₹

Papaya Middle of Patnem beach. Italian, Indian and Asian cuisine with a speciality in seafood. Succulent grilled seafood steaks and potato wedges are the big hit at Papaya, but they also do a roaring trade in zingy Thai

curries and prawns with more- roasted potatoes and mushrooms There is a bar as well which serves beers, cocktails and wines. ₹₹₹

Patnem Chai Shop At the end of the lane leading from Patnem beach, on the corner. ☎99234 90794. The village chai shop is famous hereabout for its crunchy samosas, pao bhaji banana bread and delicious tea, attracting as many discerning expats as locals to its tiny interior. ₹

Cotigao Wildlife Sanctuary The Cotigao Wildlife Sanctuary, 10km southeast of Canacona/Chaudi, was established in 1969 to protect a remote and vulnerable area of forest lining the Goa–Karnataka border. Best visited between October and March, Cotigao is a peaceful and scenic park that makes a pleasant day-trip from Palolem, 12km northwest.

Encompassing 86 square kilometres of mixed deciduous woodland, the reserve is certain to inspire tree lovers, but less likely to yield many wildlife sightings: its tigers and leopards were hunted out long ago, while the gazelles, sloth bears, porcupines and hyenas that allegedly lurk in the woods rarely appear. You do stand a good chance of spotting at least two species of monkey, a couple of wild boar and the odd gaur (Indian bison), as well as plenty of birdlife.

A network of trails winds from the trailhead 3km beyond the centre to various named sites in the forest but aren't waymarked and are very hard to follow. Some visitors complain about walking for hours without seeing anything of interest.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS ANY OF THE BUSES RUNNING SOUTH ON THE COTIGAO WILDLIFE SANCTUARY NH-17 TO KARWAR VIA CANACONA/CHAUDI WILL DROP YOU WITHIN 2KM OF THE GATES. HOWEVER, TO EXPLORE THE INNER REACHES OF THE SANCTUARY, YOU REALLY NEED YOUR OWN TRANSPORT.

Interpretative Centre You have to pay entry fees (₹20, plus ₹100 for a car, ₹30 for a motorbike; ₹30 for a camera permit) at the reserve's small interpretative centre. The wardens here will show you how to get to a 25m-high treetop watchtower, overlooking a waterhole that attracts a handful of animals around dawn and dusk.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING COTTAGES ⓘ

GOATOURISM.GOV.IN. BOOK THROUGH THE DEPUTY CONSERVATOR OF FORESTS IN MARGAO. YOU CAN STAY IN THE SANCTUARY AT ONE OF FOUR COTTAGES, IN THE COMPOUND BEHIND THE MAIN RESERVE GATES. ₹

Eating Food and drink available by prior arrangement (at least 4hr), and there's a shop at the nearest village, 2km inside the park.

< Back to Goa

Shutterstock
VICTORIA MEMORIAL, KOLKATA

Kolkata and West Bengal

Kolkata

Around Kolkata

The Sundarbans and the Gangetic Delta

Central Bengal

Darjeeling and North Bengal

Kolkata and West Bengal Unique among Indian states in stretching all the way from the Himalayas to the sea, West Bengal is nonetheless explored in depth by few foreign travellers. That may have something to do with the exaggerated reputation of its capital, Kolkata (Calcutta), an enthralling, sophisticated and friendly city that belies its popular image as humid, poverty-stricken and chaotic. The rest of Bengal holds an extraordinary assortment of landscapes and cultures, ranging from the dramatic hill station of Darjeeling, within sight of the highest mountains in the world, to the vast mangrove swamps of the Sundarbans, prowled by elusive Royal Bengal tigers. The narrow central band of the state is cut across by the huge River Ganges as it pours from Bihar into Bangladesh and here the Farakka Barrage controls the movement of south-flowing channels such as the River Hooghly, the lifeline of Kolkata. In India, Kolkata has often been considered as the birthplace of Indian nationalism and modern Indian literature. Bengali cinema has also produced many arthouse films that have won international acclaim.

At the height of British rule, in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, Bengal flourished both culturally and materially, nurturing a uniquely creative blend of West and East. The Bengal Renaissance produced thinkers, writers and artists such as Bankim Chandra Chatterjee and Rabindranath Tagore, whose collective influence still permeates Bengali society more than a century later. Social reformer Raja Ram Mohan Roy who played an active role in bringing significant positive changes within practices of Hindu Brahmins is largely attributed to the birth of the Bengal Renaissance.

Not all of Bengal is Bengali, though; the Nepalese-led separatist movement for the creation of an autonomous “Gurkhaland” in the Darjeeling area has focused on sharp differences in culture. Here, the Hindu Nepalese migration eastward from the nineteenth century onwards has largely displaced the indigenous tribal groups of the north, though Lamaist Tibetan Buddhism continues to flourish. In the southwest, on the other hand, tribal groups such as the Santhals and the Mundas still maintain a presence, and itinerant Baul musicians continue the region's traditions of song and dance, most often heard around Tagore's university at Shantiniketan; Tagore's own musical form, Rabindra Sangeet, is a popular amalgam of influences including folk and classical. Other historical specialities of Bengal include its ornate terracotta temples, as seen at Bishnupur, and its silk production, concentrated around Murshidabad, the state's last independent capital. Throughout India, Bengal's sweets are popular and remain a staunch favourite of the locals.

BEST TIME TO VISIT THE CLIMATE OF KOLKATA – AND MUCH OF WEST AND LOWLAND NORTH BENGAL – IS AT ITS BEST DURING THE SHORT WINTER (NOV–FEB), WHEN THE DAILY MAXIMUM TEMPERATURE HOVERS AROUND 27°C, AND THE MARKETS ARE FILLED WITH FRESH VEGETABLES AND FLOWERS. BEFORE THE MONSOONS, HOWEVER, THE HEAT HANGS UNBEARABLY HEAVILY; THE ARRIVAL OF THE RAINS IN LATE JUNE BRINGS RELIEF, BUT USUALLY ALSO FLOODS THAT TURN THE STREETS INTO A QUAGMIRE. AFTER A BRIEF PERIOD OF POST-MONSOON HIGH TEMPERATURES, OCTOBER AND NOVEMBER ARE QUITE PLEASANT; THIS IS THE TIME OF THE CITY'S BIGGEST FESTIVAL, DURGA PUJA.

The best seasons to visit Darjeeling and the mountainous areas of north Bengal are after the monsoons and before winter (late Sept to late Nov), and spring (mid-Feb to May).

① Victoria Memorial This monument to the British Empire in Kolkata is a dizzying blend of Mughal and Italian architecture and one of the most striking buildings in India.

② Eden Gardens Enjoy the chaos and spectacle of a match at Kolkata's legendary cricket ground.

③ Kumartuli A fascinating warren of lanes in Kolkata where artisans model lavish images of goddesses and demons out of straw, clay and pith.

④ Sundarbans Float through the endless mangrove forests, home to a profusion of wildlife, including the majestic Bengal tiger.

⑤ Shantiniketan This tranquil university town exudes the spirit of its founder, the poet and philosopher Rabindranath Tagore.

⑥ Darjeeling A charming hill station with Raj-era relics, spectacular views and – of course – famously fine tea.

⑦ Toy Train Take a leisurely journey on this Victorian railway, partly steam-driven, past the tea gardens that carpet the steep hillsides around Darjeeling.

⑧ Singalila trek This trek, close to Darjeeling, features unforgettable mountain vistas, especially beautiful in April and May, when the rhododendrons are in bloom.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

KOLKATA & WEST BENGAL

0 50
kilometres

The International boundaries on this map are neither purported to be correct nor authentic by Survey of India directives. Publisher.

HIGHLIGHTS

- 1 Victoria Memorial
- 2 Eden Gardens
- 3 Kumartuli
- 4 Sundarbans
- 5 Shantiniketan
- 6 Darjeeling
- 7 Toy Train
- 8 Singalila trek

Bengal's own brand of Hinduism emphasizes the mother goddess, who appears in such guises as the fearsome Kali and Durga, the benign Saraswati, goddess of learning, and Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth. The most mysterious of all is Tara, an echo of medieval links with Buddhism; her temple at Tarapith is perhaps the greatest centre of Tantrism in the entire country.

Brief history

Although Bengal was part of the Mauryan Empire during the third century BC, it first came to prominence in its own right under the Guptas in the fourth century AD. So dependent was it on trade with the Mediterranean that the fall of Rome caused a sharp decline, only reversed with the rise of the Pala dynasty in the eighth century.

After a short-lived period of rule by the highly cultured Senas, based at Gaur, Bengal was brought under Muslim rule at the end of the twelfth century by the first Sultan of Delhi, Qutb-ud-din-Aibak. Sher Shah Suri, who briefly usurped power from the Mughals in the mid-sixteenth century, developed the infrastructure and built the Grand Trunk Road, running all the way to the Northwest Province on the borders of his native Afghanistan. Akbar reconquered the territory in 1574, before the advent of the Europeans in the eighteenth century that began with trade.

The arrival of the Europeans The Portuguese, who were the first to set up a trading community beside the Hooghly, were soon joined by the British, Dutch, French and many others. Rivalry between them eventually resulted in the ascendancy of the British, with the only serious indigenous resistance coming from the tutelary kingdom of Murshidabad, led by the young Siraj-ud-Daula. His attack on the fledgling British community of Calcutta in 1756 culminated in the infamous Black Hole incident, when British prisoners suffocated to death. Vengeance, in the form of a British army from Madras under Robert Clive, arrived a year later. The defeat of Siraj-ud-Daula at the Battle of Plassey paved the way for British domination of the entire Subcontinent. Bengal became the linchpin of the British East India Company and its lucrative trading empire, until the company handed over control to the Crown in 1858.

Twentieth-century Bengal Up to 1905, Bengal encompassed Orissa (now Odisha) and Bihar; it was then split down the middle by Lord Curzon, leaving East Bengal and Assam on one side and Orissa, Bihar and West Bengal on the other. The move aroused bitter resentment, and the rift it created between Hindus and Muslims was a direct cause of the second Partition, in 1947, when East Bengal became East Pakistan. During the war with Pakistan in the early 1970s that resulted in the creation of an independent Bangladesh, up to ten million refugees fled into West Bengal. Shorn of its provinces, and with the capital moved from Calcutta to Delhi in 1911, the story of West Bengal in the twentieth century was largely a chronicle of decline.

The state's political life has been dominated by a protracted – and sometimes violent – struggle between the Congress and, more recently, the breakaway Trinamool Congress, against the major left-wing parties: the Marxist Communist Party of India, or CPI(M), and the Marxist-Leninist Naxalites (Communist Party of India [ML]). In the 1960s and 1970s, the latter launched an abortive but bloody attempt at revolution. Bolstered by a strong rural base, the CPI(M) and allies emerged victorious in 1977 under the enigmatic Jyoti Basu, weathering the collapse of world communism, and heralding the decades-long dominance by the Left Front.

FESTIVALS IN KOLKATA AND WEST BENGAL MOST OF BENGAL'S HINDU FESTIVALS ARE DEVOTED TO FORMS OF THE MOTHER GODDESS, SHAKTI.

Jaidev Mela (early Jan). Baul minstrels gather to commemorate Joydeb, the revered author of the Gita Govinda, held in the village of Kendubilwa (Kenduli), near Shantiniketan..

Ganga Sagar Mela (mid-Jan). During the winter solstice of Makar Sankranti, thousands of Hindu pilgrims and sadhus gather for a three-day festival at Sagardwip, 150km south where the Ganges meets the sea..

Dover Lane Music Festival (Jan/Feb). A week-long festival in south Kolkata, attracting many of the country's best musicians.

Saraswati Puja (Jan/Feb). Popular and important festival, dedicated to the goddess of learning and staged throughout Bengal.

Calcutta Book Fair (Jan/Feb). With a total footfall of around two million visitors, the book fair dates back to 1976. It is held on a grand scale showcasing the best of local literature and has become synonymous with the culture of Kolkata.

Chinese New Year (Jan/Feb). Celebrated with a week-long festival of dragon dances, firecrackers and fine food, concentrated around Chinatown and the suburb of Tangra.

Muharram (dates determined by the lunar calendar; see www.when-is.com). Shi'ite Muslims mark the anniversary of the martyrdom of Hussein by severe penance.

Durga Puja (Sept/Oct). At the onset of winter, Durga Puja (known elsewhere as Dasara or Dussehra) is the Bengali equivalent of Christmas. It climaxes on Mahadashami, the tenth day, when the images of goddess Durga are immersed in the river..

Lakshmi Puja (Oct/Nov). Held five days after Mahadashami on the full moon, to honour the goddess of wealth.

Christmas (Dec 25). Park Street and New Market are adorned with fairy lights and the odd Christmas tree in urban areas.

Poush Mela (late Dec). Held in Shantiniketan, the mela brings in Bauls, the wandering minstrels who attract large audiences.

Bengal today

This long dominance by the CPI(M) came to a dramatic end in 2011, when the firebrand politician, Mamata Banerjee, who had honed her political skills supporting the oppressed poor in two notorious campaigns against industrialisation, swept to power. While she inherited a state of political and industrial turmoil, Didi, or “Sister” as she is commonly known, has yet to redress the imbalance in the infrastructure and there are many who feel that she has been neither able to transcend the grassroots struggle that brought her to prominence, nor to comprehend the complexities of what was once, and still is, a dynamic industrial powerhouse.

In Kolkata – booming with expatriate wealth and a surge in business confidence, though nothing like in Delhi or Mumbai – political turmoil can seem a world away. Meanwhile in the north of the state, ethnic political groups are calling for autonomy from Bengal.

Kolkata

One of the four great urban centres of India, KOLKATA is, to its proud citizens, the equal of any city in the country in charm, variety and interest. As the showpiece capital of the British Raj, it was the greatest colonial city in Asia, and descendants of the fortune-seekers who flocked from across the globe to participate in its eighteenth- and nineteenth-century trading boom remain conspicuous in its cosmopolitan blend of communities. Despite this, there has been a rise in Bengali nationalism over the last twenty years, and in 2001 the city was officially renamed as Kolkata (its precolonial Bengali name).

Since Indian Independence, mass migrations of dispossessed refugees caused by twentieth-century upheavals within the Subcontinent have tested the city’s infrastructure to the limit. The resultant suffering – and the work of Mother Teresa in drawing attention to its most helpless victims – has given Kolkata a reputation for poverty that sells the city short. Although it undoubtedly faces huge challenges, they are no greater than in other cities of comparable size in India and around the world. In fact, though Kolkata’s mighty Victorian buildings stand peeling and decaying, and its central avenues are choked by traffic, the city exudes a warmth and buoyancy that leaves few visitors unmoved. Kolkata is expanding rapidly, with more shopping malls, hip cafés and restaurants, and satellite towns springing up all around the city. The downside of all this development, however, partly resulting from the huge increase in traffic, is some of the worst air pollution in the world, with one of the most chaotic road systems in the country.

In terms of the city's cultural life, Kolkata's Bengalis exude a pride in their artistic heritage and like to see themselves as the intelligentsia of India. The city is home to a multitude of galleries, several Indian classical music festivals and a thriving Bengali-language theatre scene and a cinematic tradition brought world renown by filmmaker Satyajit Ray. It also has an enviable literary tradition, hosting a world-famous book fair and producing a string of award-winning authors.

Visitors still experience Kolkata first and foremost as a colonial city with the chief bastion of imperialism at its heart – the Writers' Building, the seat of state government – little changed over the decades. Grand edifices in a profusion of styles litter the old city and several venerable Raj-era institutions continue to survive, such as the racecourse, the reverence for cricket and several exclusive gentlemen's clubs. Kolkata's crumbling, weather-beaten buildings and slightly anarchic streets can create an intimidating first impression. With time and patience, though, this huge metropolis unravels its secrets, providing a fascinating conglomerate of styles and influences.

The River Hooghly, spanned by the remarkable cantilever Howrah Bridge, is prominent in the life of the city. Its heart however, lies in the green expanse of the Maidan, which attracts locals from all walks of life for recreation, sports, exhibitions and political rallies. At its southern end stands the white marble Victoria Memorial, and close by rise the tall Gothic spires of St Paul's Cathedral. Next to the busy New Market area looms the eclectic Indian Museum housing one of the largest collections in Asia, ranging from natural history to art and archeology. Further north, the district centred on BBD Bagh is filled with reminders of the heyday of the East India Company, dominated by the bulk of the Writers' Building, built in 1780 to replace the original structure that housed the clerks or "writers" of the East India Company; nearby stand St Andrew's Kirk and the pillared immensity of the GPO.

DURGA PUJA

She has no specific temple but the two-week Durga Puja is Kolkata's most lavish festival (Sept/Oct). A symbol of victory over evil, the ten-armed Durga goddess is commonly depicted sitting on a lion slaying the demon Mahisasura who assumed the shape of a buffalo. During the celebrations images of the goddess are placed in elaborate marquees called pandals, supported by large donations and the local communities, which block off small streets for days. After the puja, the idols are taken to the river for immersion, before being quickly fished out again with cranes to avoid pollution caused by the materials and paints used in the statuary. Pandals worth visiting during Durga Puja, beside the popular one at Kumartuli, include those at Mohammed Ali Park near Chittaranjan Avenue, MG Marg crossing and the nearby College Square. Baghbazaar's pandal is the oldest, and renowned for its simple elegance.

The city's old Chinatown, a short walk north of BBD Bagh, is a sad reminder of a once flourishing community, while on the edge of the frenetic, labyrinthine markets of Barabazaar, synagogues and the Armenian church are remnants of a once thriving cosmopolitan trade. The renowned temple of Kalighat is away to the south. Across the river, south of the marvellous Howrah railway station, lies the tranquillity of the Botanical Gardens.

Brief history

By the time Job Charnock established the headquarters of the East India Company at Sutanuti on the east bank of the Hooghly in 1690, the riverside was already dotted with trading communities from European countries. A few years later, Sutanuti was amalgamated with two other villages to form the town of Calcutta, whose name probably originated from kalikutir, the house or temple of Kali (a reference to the Kalighat shrine). With trading success came ambitious plans for development; in 1715 a delegation to the Mughal court in Delhi negotiated trading rights, creating a territory on both banks of the Hooghly of around 15km. Later, it became entangled in the web of local power politics, with consequences both unforeseen, as with the Black Hole, and greatly desired, as when the Battle of Plassey in 1758 made the British in control of Bengal. Recognized by Parliament in London in 1773, the company's trading monopoly led it to shift the capital of Bengal here from Murshidabad, and Calcutta became a clearing house for a vast range of commerce, including the lucrative export of opium to China.

At first, the East India Company brought young bachelors out from Britain to work as clerks or “writers” and accommodated them in the Writers' Building. Many took Indian wives, giving rise to the new Eurasian community known as the Anglo-Indians. Merchants and adventurers – among them Parsis, Baghdadi Jews, Afghans and Indians from other parts of the country – contributed to the melting pot after the East India Company's monopoly was withdrawn. The ensuing boom lasted for decades, during which such splendid buildings as the Court House, Government House and St Paul's Cathedral earned Calcutta the sobriquet “City of Palaces”. In reality, however, the humid and uncomfortable climate, putrefying salt marshes and the hovels that grew haphazardly around the metropolis created unhygienic conditions that were a constant source of misery and disease. The death of Calcutta as an international port finally came with the opening of the Suez Canal in 1869, which led to the emergence of Bombay, and the end of the city's opium trade. In 1911, the days of glory drew to a definitive close when the imperial capital of India was transferred to New Delhi.

The Maidan and around One of the largest city-centre parks in the world, the Maidan – literally translating to “field” – stretches from the Esplanade in the north to the racecourse in the south, and is bordered by Chowringhee Road to the east, the Strand and river to the west and to the north, Raj Bhavan, the residence of the British governors-general and the viceroys of India until 1911 and now the official home of the governor of Bengal. This vast open area, the lungs of Kolkata, stands in utter contrast to the chaotic streets of the surrounding city, and is big enough to swallow up several clubs, including the Calcutta Ladies Golf Club and the immaculate greens of the Calcutta Bowling Club. It was created when Fort William, now home to the military headquarters of the Eastern Command, was laid out near the river in 1758; Robert Clive cleared tracts of forest to give its guns a clear line of fire. Originally a haven for the elite, with a strict dress code, today the Maidan is a favourite spot for ordinary citizens to come to exercise each morning and riders canter along the old bridleways. In the late afternoons, the Maidan plays host to scores of impromptu cricket and football matches, as well as games of kabaddi.

Esplanade and Chowringhee Road Northeast corner of the Maidan

The 46m column of Shahid Minar (Martyrs' Memorial) towers over the busy tram and bus terminals and market stalls at the northeast corner of the Maidan, known here as Esplanade. It was originally built in 1828 to commemorate David Ochterlony, who led the East India Company's troops to victory in the Nepalese Wars of 1814–16. On the east side of Esplanade, the once-elegant colonnaded front of Chowringhee Road is perpetually teeming with hawkers and shoppers. Behind the facade the Victorian Grand Hotel (now the Oberoï Grand), its palm court inspired by the famous Raffles of Singapore.

New Market

Lindsay St

The single-storey New Market has barely changed inside since it opened in 1874 and has plenty of old-world charm. Beneath its Gothic red-brick clock tower, the market stocks a vast array of household goods, luggage, garments, textiles, jewellery, knick-knacks and books as well as meat, vegetables and fruit and a booming flower market. Chamba Lama sells Tibetan curios, silver jewellery and bronzes while Sujata's is known for its silk, and Nahoum & Sons is a renowned Jewish bakery and confectioner. Further up the corridor, condiment stalls offer dried fruit, miniature rounds of salty Bandel cheese (both smoked and unsmoked) and amshat, blocks of dried mango; the produce, poultry, fish and meat market nearby is unmistakable by its aroma. Coolies, hoping for commission, eagerly offer assistance to any shopper who shows even a flicker of uncertainty.

Indian Museum

Corner of Chowringhee Rd and Sudder St • Tues–Sun: March–Nov 10am–5pm; Dec–Feb 10am–4.30pm • Charge  indianmuseumkolkata.org

The stately Indian Museum is the oldest and largest museum in India, founded in 1814. Visitors come in their thousands, many of them referring to it as the jadu ghar or “house of magic”. The main showpiece is a collection of sculptures obtained from sites all over India, which centres on a superb Mauryan polished-sandstone lion capital dating from the third century BC. One gallery houses the impressive remains of the second-century BC Buddhist stupa from Bharhut in Madhya Pradesh, partly reassembled to display the red-sandstone posts, capping stones, railings and gateways. Carvings depict scenes from the Jataka tales of the Buddha's many incarnations. Along with a huge collection of Buddhist sculptures, dating from the first to the third centuries, you'll also see stone sculpture from Khajuraho and Pala bronzes, and archeological finds from other sites.

There is an excellent exhibit of Tibetan thangkas and Kalighat pat and paintings by the Company school, a group of mid-nineteenth-century Indian artists who emulated Western themes and techniques. Finally, there's a spectacular array of fossils and stuffed animals, most of which look in dire need of a decent burial.

Victoria Memorial Southern end of the Maidan • Memorial Tues–Sun 10am–5pm, closed 2nd Sat of month • Gardens Daily: March–Sept 5.30am–6.15pm; Oct–Feb 5.45am–5.45pm • Charge •

victoriamemorial-cal.org

The dramatic white-marble Victoria Memorial at the southern end of the Maidan, with its formal gardens and watercourses, continues to be Kolkata's pride and joy. Other colonial monuments and statues throughout the city have been renamed or demolished, but attempts to change the name of the "VM" have come to nothing. This extraordinary hybrid building designed by Sir William Emerson, with Italianate statues over its entrances, Mughal domes in its corners, and elegant open colonnades along its sides, was conceived by Lord Curzon to commemorate the empire at its peak, though by the time it was completed in 1921, twenty years after Queen Victoria's death, the capital of the Raj had shifted to Delhi.

The main entrance, at the Maidan end, leads into a tall chamber beneath the dome. The 25 galleries inside still contain mementoes of British imperialism including statues of Queen Mary, King George V and Queen Victoria. Well worth seeing, the Calcutta Gallery provides a fascinating insight into the history and life of the Indians of the city and the Independence struggle through paintings, documents and old photographs.

St Paul's Cathedral Just east of the Victoria Memorial • Daily 10am–6pm Close to the Victoria Memorial, beyond the Birla Planetarium, stands the Gothic edifice of St Paul's Cathedral, erected by Major W.N. Forbes in 1847. Measuring 75m by 24m, its iron-trussed roof was then the longest span in existence. For improved ventilation, the lancet windows inside extend to plinth level, and tall fans hang from the ceiling. The most outstanding of the many well-preserved memorials and plaques to long-perished imperialists is the stained glass of the west window, designed by Sir Edward Burne-Jones in 1880 to honour Lord Mayo, assassinated in Port Blair in the Andaman Islands. The original steeple was destroyed in the 1897 earthquake; after a second earthquake in 1934 it was remodelled on the Bell Harry Tower at Canterbury Cathedral.

The Academy of Fine Arts Cathedral Rd • Daily 3–8pm • Free

South of the cathedral, the Academy of Fine Arts is a showcase for Bengali contemporary arts. As well as temporary exhibitions, it holds permanent displays of the work of artists such as Jamini Roy and Rabindranath Tagore. A café and pleasant grounds enhance the ambience.

The Cultural Centre: Rabindra Sadan, Nandan and Sisir Mancha 1
AJC Rd • Daily 9am–8pm

Immediately south of the Academy of Fine Arts, the Cultural Centre features the large auditorium of Rabindra Sadan which, occasionally and especially in winter, features programmes of Indian classical music. Next door, Nandan, designed by Satyajit Ray, is a lively film centre and pays homage to the rich tradition of Bengal's film-making. Also, within the complex, Bengali theatre is celebrated with its own auditorium, Sisir Mancha.

Park Street

Renamed by the CPI(M) as Mother Teresa Sarani – though few locals use this name – Park Street is packed with restaurants, cafés and bars, and has long been the hub of cosmopolitan and even hedonistic Calcutta. Once famous for its live music, including a renowned jazz club now sadly gone, the western or Maidan end of the strip continues to support some of the liveliest nightlife in the city. The street also has been important in the history of the city, housing the Asiatic Society, the Survey of India and the iconic Raj-era monoliths of the Park Street Cemetery.

Asiatic Society 1 Park St • Reading Room Mon–Fri 10am–8pm, Sat 10am–5pm • Free • www.asiaticsocietykolkata.org

Close to Chowringhee Road, the Asiatic Society, established in 1784 by Orientalists including Sir William Jones, houses a huge collection of around 150,000 books and 60,000 manuscripts, some dating back to the seventh century. The society has a reading room open to the public as well as a gallery of art and antiquities that holds paintings by Rubens and Reynolds, a large coin collection and one of Ashoka's stone edicts.

KOLKATA'S ART GALLERIES BENGAL HAS A LIVELY TRADITION OF CONTEMPORARY ART, AND WITH

INCREASED PROSPERITY AND SPECULATION IN FINE ART, GALLERIES SHOWING A HIGH STANDARD OF WORK ARE BURGEONING THROUGHOUT THE CITY. EXHIBITIONS ARE LISTED IN THE TELEGRAPH'S SUNDAY SUPPLEMENT, GRAPHITI, AND EXPLOCITY, A FREE LISTINGS MAGAZINE AVAILABLE AT THE TOURIST OFFICE, SOME HOTELS AND ONLINE (☎EXPLOCITY.COM). BESIDES THE ACADEMY OF FINE ARTS AND THE ASHUTOSH MUSEUM, THE FOLLOWING ARE WORTH CHECKING OUT.

Aakriti Art Gallery 1st floor, Orbit Enclave, 12/3A Hungerford St ☎ 033 2289 3027, ☎aakritiartgallery.com. A well-designed modern Indian art gallery with big-name exhibitions and a shop. Mon–Sat noon–7pm.

Birla Academy of Art and Culture 108 Southern Ave ☎birlaart.com. Ancient and modern art with regular exhibitions of contemporary Indian artists. Tues–Sun 4–7pm.

Galerie 88 28B Shakespeare Sarani ☎033 2290 2274, ☎galerie88.in. Private gallery specializing in contemporary Indian paintings plus specialist exhibitions and some big names. Also stocks art supplies. Mon–Sat 10am–7pm.

Rabindranath Tagore Centre ICCR, 9A Ho Chi Minh Sarani ☎tagorecentreiccr.org. Art and craft exhibitions in this government-run, cultural establishment with a number of galleries. Mon–Sat 10am–7pm.

Park Street Cemetery Around 2km east of the Maidan • Mon–Fri 8am–4.30pm, Sat 8–11am • Donation or buy guide pamphlet Charge The disused Park Street Cemetery is one of the city's most haunting memorials to its imperial past. Inaugurated in 1767, it is the oldest in Kolkata, holding a concentration of pyramids, obelisks, pavilions, urns and headstones, beneath which many well-known figures from the British Era lie buried including Sir William Jones of the Asiatic Society. The epitaphs make poignant reading.

Central Kolkata The commercial and administrative hub of both Kolkata and West Bengal is BBD Bagh, which die-hard Kolkatans still refer to as Dalhousie Square. The new official name, in a fine piece of irony, commemorates three revolutionaries hanged for trying to kill Lieutenant-Governor General Lord Dalhousie.

Beyond the headquarters of Eastern Railways on Netaji Subhash Road, you come to the heart of Kolkata's commercial district, clustered around the Calcutta Stock Exchange at the corner of Lyon's Range, which started out as a gathering of traders under a neem tree in the 1830s. It's an interesting walk around the warren of buildings here that houses all sorts of old colonial trading companies, including some still bearing Scottish names.

St John's Church Just south of the GPO • Daily 8am–5pm • Charge • 033 2243 6098

Of the eighteenth- and nineteenth-century British churches dotted around central Kolkata, the most interesting is St John's, just south of the GPO. Erected in 1787, it houses memorials to British residents, along with an impressive painting of The Last Supper by Johann Zoffany, in which prominent Calcuttans are depicted as apostles. In the grounds, Kolkata's oldest graveyard holds the tomb of Job Charnock, who earned eternal notoriety for marrying a Hindu girl he saved from the funeral pyre of her first husband; he is one of the few colonialists still cherished among Bengalis.

Eden Gardens

West of Esplanade Bus Stand • Daily dawn–dusk • Free Eden Gardens, the imposing site of the world-famous cricket ground (officially known as the Ranji Stadium), lies near the river close to Chandpal Ghat and has been described as the “Coliseum of Cricket”. Watching a test match here is an unforgettable experience as the 66,000-seat stadium resounds to the roar of the crowd. Next to the stadium, towards the river, the pleasant palm-fringed gardens are a picture of tranquillity with a Burmese pagoda set against a little lake.

The synagogues of BethEl and Magen David Pollock St and Synagogue St (both off Brabourne Rd) • Mon–Thurs & Sun 10am–5pm • Gain permission from Nahoum & Sons in New Market; staff can arrange a guide to visit either of the synagogues Now protected monuments, a short distance north of BBD Bagh and on the edge of Barabazaar, the synagogues of BethEl and Magen David are reminders of the once flourishing community that played such an important role in the commercial life of the city. While the Jewish community has all but disappeared from Kolkata, the two synagogues remain lovingly preserved. Buried in the heart of a busy electrical goods market, BethEl's exterior, emblazoned with the Star of David, hides an immaculate, lofty hall with aisles awaiting a lost congregation. A short distance away, Magen David's church-like appearance is similar. Both feature striking stained glass, common throughout the synagogues of India.

North Kolkata

The amorphous area of north Kolkata, long part of the “native” town rather than the European sectors of the “white town”, was where the city's prosperous nineteenth-century Bengali families created their little palaces, or raj baris, many of which are now in advanced and fascinating states of decay.

Barabazaar

North of BBD Bagh

The area known as Barabazaar has hosted a succession of trading communities; the Portuguese were here before Job Charnock landed at the fishing village that stood close by, and it later became home to Marwari and Gujarati merchants. The small, hectic lanes south of MG Road are lined with shops and stalls selling everything from glass bangles to textiles.

At the northwest corner of Barabazaar, near Howrah Bridge, is Kolkata's oldest church, the Armenian Church of Our Lady of Nazareth (Sun 9am–11pm). Founded in 1724 by Cavond, an Armenian from Persia, it was built on the site of an Armenian cemetery in which the oldest tombstone dates to 1630. The Armenian community was already highly influential at the courts of Bengal by the time the British arrived, and played an important role in the early history of the East India Company. Later they helped start the lucrative jute industry and still have a small community in the city.

THE BLACK HOLE OF CALCUTTA BUILT IN 1868 ON THE SITE OF THE ORIGINAL FORT WILLIAM – DESTROYED BY SIRAJ-UD-DAULA IN 1756 – THE GPO ON THE WEST SIDE OF THE SQUARE HIDES THE SUPPOSED SITE OF THE BLACK HOLE OF CALCUTTA. ON A HOT JUNE NIGHT IN 1756, 146 BRITISH PRISONERS WERE FORCED BY SIRAJ-UD-DAULA'S GUARDS INTO A TINY CHAMBER WITH ONLY THE SMALLEST OF WINDOWS FOR VENTILATION; MOST HAD SUFFOCATED TO DEATH BY THE NEXT MORNING. BY ALL ACCOUNTS, THE GUARDS WERE UNAWARE OF THE TRAGEDY UNFOLDING AND, ON HEARING THE NEWS, SIRAJ-UD-DAULA WAS DEEPLY REPENTANT. A MEMORIAL TO THE VICTIMS THAT FORMERLY STOOD IN FRONT OF THE WRITERS' BUILDING WAS MOVED IN 1940 TO THE GROUNDS OF ST JOHN'S CHURCH, SOUTH OF THE GPO.

Nakhoda Masjid East of Barabazaar on Rabindra Sarani (formerly Chitpore Rd) The huge red Nakhoda Masjid, whose two lofty minarets rise to 46m, is the great Jama Masjid (Friday Mosque) of the city. Completed in 1942, it was modelled on Akbar's Tomb at Sikandra near Agra; its four floors can hold ten thousand worshippers. The traditional Muslim market sells religious items along with clothes, dried fruit and sweets such as firni, which is a creamy rice pudding.

Chinatown

Rabindra Sarani

Until relatively recently, the chaotic jumble of streets to the south along Rabindra Sarani housed a thriving Chinatown, restaurants, temples, markets, opium dens and all. A handful of Chinese families continue to live around the decaying environs of Chhatawala Gully, where a small early-morning Tiretta Bazar (or Teriti Bazar) street market (daily 6–7am) offers home-made pork sausages, bao buns, noodles and jasmine tea. The Sunday Breakfast Market usually starts at 5am and is over by 8am. Today, the main focus of the city's Chinese community is at Tangra on the eastern edge of the city, where dwindling numbers continue to nurture some of its customs and industries.

Marble Palace

North of MG Rd, on tiny Muktaram Babu St off Chittaranjan Ave • Tues, Wed & Fri–Sun 10am–3pm • Free; no photography The ornate Marble Palace holds a lavish collection of statues, European antiques, Ming vases, and paintings by Rubens and Gainsborough. To join one of the free guided tours of this extraordinary pile, get a pass from the tourist offices at BBD Bagh or Shakespeare Sarani. To the north of Marble Palace, Sonagachi's warren of lanes is one of Kolkata's red-light districts.

Rabindra Bharati Museum (Tagore's House) Dwarkanath Tagore Lane

• Tues–Sun 10.30am–5pm • Charge • rbu.ac.in

A short walk northeast of the Marble Palace, the small campus of Rabindranath Tagore's liberal arts university, Rabindra Bharati, preserves the house where he was born and died as the Rabindra Bharati Museum, or Tagore's House. A fine example of a nineteenth-century raj bari, the museum holds a large collection of Tagore's paintings.

College Street The heart of Calcutta University and surrounded by its hallowed institutions, College Street is famed for its book vendors – forming one of the largest second-hand book markets in the world. While the emphasis is primarily on textbooks, browsing unearths far more. No trip is complete without a visit to the frenetic Indian Coffee House, which maintains its reputation as a meeting place for the intelligentsia.

Asutosh Museum of Indian Art Centenary Building • Mon–Fri 11am–4pm • Charge In the Centenary Building just inside Calcutta

University's College Street gateway, the Asutosh Museum of Indian Art is dedicated to the arts of Bengal, with a superb collection from eighth-century Pala-dynasty sculpture to nineteenth-century painted scrolls and contemporary art. Few people come this way; you are more than likely to have the museum to yourself and a few officious staff.

River Hooghly

Until silting rendered it impractical for large ships, the River Hooghly, a distributary of the Ganges, was responsible for making Calcutta a bustling port. The ghats that line the river's east bank serve as landings and places for ritual ablutions. Around 2km north of Howrah Bridge, beyond the cremation grounds of Nimtolla Ghat, lies Kumartuli Ghat and its community of artisans and sculptors. A short distance further north lies Baghbazaar Ghat where overladen barges of straw arrive for the artisans of Kumartuli. Baghbazaar, the Garden Market, stands on the original site of Sutanuti, its grand but decaying mansions epitomizing the long-vanished lifestyle of the Bengali gentry, the bhadra log (lampooned by Rudyard Kipling in The Jungle Book, whose monkey troupe he called the "bandar log").

HOWRAH BRIDGE ONE OF KOLKATA'S MOST FAMOUS LANDMARKS (OFFICIALLY CALLED RABINDRA SETU, THOUGH FEW PEOPLE USE THIS NEW NAME), HOWRAH BRIDGE IS 97M HIGH AND 705M LONG, SPANNING THE RIVER IN A SINGLE LEAP TO MAKE IT THE WORLD'S THIRD LONGEST CANTILEVER BRIDGE. ERECTED WITH A MAZE OF GIRDERS DURING WORLD WAR II IN 1943 TO GIVE ALLIED TROOPS ACCESS TO THE BURMESE FRONT, IT WAS THE FIRST BRIDGE TO BE BUILT USING RIVETS. JOINING THE STREAMS OF PEDESTRIANS WHO WALK ACROSS IT EACH DAY IS A MEMORABLE EXPERIENCE. VIDYASAGAR SETU, THE SECOND HOOGHLY BRIDGE, BUILT 3KM SOUTH TO RELIEVE THE STRAIN, WAS 22 YEARS IN THE MAKING. IT'S A VAST TOLL BRIDGE WITH SPAGHETTI JUNCTION-STYLE APPROACHES HIGH ENOUGH TO LET SHIPS PASS BELOW.

The ghats

South of Howrah Bridge • Boat trips from Princep Ghat around ₹300/hr South of Howrah Bridge, in its shadow, set behind the busy flower market of Mullick Ghat, the Armenian Ghat is most animated at the first light of dawn, when traditional gymnasts and wrestlers, devotees of Hanuman the monkey god, come to practise. As the Strand – separated from the river by the Circular Railway line – heads south, it passes several warehouses, Millennium Park and Fairlie Place and comes to another cluster of ghats. Frequent ferries (7.30am–8pm) from Chandpal Ghat provide an easy alternative to Howrah Bridge and connect with several other useful ghats such as Shibpur (for the Botanical Gardens) and Shobabazaar (for Kumartuli). Babu Ghat, near a messy bus terminus and identified by its crumbling colonnade, is used for early morning bathing, attended by pujaris (priests) and heavy-handed masseurs. Further south towards Princep Ghat, between Fort William and the river, the Strand comes into its own as a leafy promenade, pleasant during the early evenings with cafés, food stalls and boat rides from the small jetty near Scoops café.

Kumartuli

Just north of Shobabazaar

A short walk north of Shobabazaar Ghat, lies the warren of Kumartuli, where a community of kumars or “potters” hand-craft lavish statues of goddesses with large eyes used for the city’s religious festivals. In the days leading up to the great pujas, especially that of Durga Puja, Kumartuli is a fascinating hive of activity. Statues take form from straw and river clay before being spray-painted and then clothed in all their finery. Although pith (banana tree marrow) is still used to decorate the statues, modern materials have made an impact. The community is also accessible from Shobabazaar Metro Station – emerge from the west exit and walk west along a lane to Rabindra Sarani and an entrance to Kumartuli.

Botanical Gardens Shibpur, 10km south of Howrah station • Tues–Sun 5.30am–5pm • Charge • bgci.org • Buses #C6 (from Esplanade), #T9 (from Park St), #6 minibus (from Dharamtala via Howrah); taxis from the central Sudder St area cost approximately ₹300–350 one way The Botanical Gardens at Shibpur, on the west bank of the Hooghly, are populated by countless bird species. These huge gardens are best seen in the winter and spring, and early in the morning, before the heat of the day sets in. Their most famous feature is the world’s largest banyan tree, 24.5m high and an astonishing 420m in circumference. The Orchid House, the Herbarium and the Fern Houses are also worth seeing, and there’s an attractive riverside promenade.

South Kolkata

South of the Maidan and Park Street, Kolkata spreads towards posh and rapidly expanding suburbs such as Alipore and Ballygunge, which are both within easy distance of the centre. The thoroughfare that starts life as Chowringhee at Esplanade proceeds past Kalighat to Tollygunge, following the Metro line that terminates near the luxurious Tollygunge Club, the mansion of an indigo merchant now surrounded by immaculate golfing fairways and bridle-paths; note that only members or their guests are allowed to stay at the club. Northeast of Tollygunge, beyond a white-tiled mosque built in 1835 by descendants of Tipu Sultan, lies the parkland of Rabindra Sarobar, known locally as “the Lakes”, a popular spot for early evening walks.

Alipore

Around 3km southwest of Park St • Zoo Daily except Thurs 9am–5pm • Charge • www.kolkatazoo.in • National Library Mon–Fri 9am–8pm, Sat & Sun 9.30am–6pm • Free In the suburb of Alipore, which starts around 3km southwest of Park Street, elegant triple-arched gates just south of the popular zoo and aquarium lead to Belvedere, the former residence of the lieutenant-governor of Bengal, presented to Warren Hastings by Mir Jafar, and now serving as the National Library. When the capital shifted to Delhi, this library was left behind; today it houses a huge collection of books, periodicals and reference material, as well as rare documents in an air-conditioned chamber. Day-membership to the reading room is available with ID and two photographs.

Kalighat

5km south of Park St off Ashutosh Mukherjee Rd (an extension of Chowringhee Rd) Kolkata's most important temple, Kalighat, stands at the heart of a diverse and animated area, part residential, part bazaar. The destitute, hoping for charity from pilgrims, line the temple approaches and prostitutes linger on the thoroughfares and bridges, offering their services in tragic, grimy circumstances. The typically Bengali temple itself, built in 1809 of brick and mortar but capturing the sweeping curves of a thatched roof, is dedicated to Kali, the Divine Mother, a form of Shakti. According to legend, Shiva went into a frenzy after the death of his wife Sati, dancing with her dead body and making the whole world tremble. In an attempt to stop him, Vishnu took his solar discus and chopped the disintegrating corpse into 51 bits. The spot where each piece fell became a pitha, a sacred site for the female principal of divinity – Shakti. The shrine here marks the place where her little toe fell.

KALIGHAT PAINTINGS EARLY IN THE NINETEENTH CENTURY, KALIGHAT WAS IN ITS HEYDAY, DRAWING PILGRIMS, MERCHANTS AND ARTISANS FROM ALL OVER THE COUNTRY. AMONG THEM WERE SCROLL PAINTERS FROM ELSEWHERE IN BENGAL, WHO DEVELOPED THE DISTINCTIVE STYLE NOW KNOWN AS KALIGHAT PAT. ADAPTING WESTERN TECHNIQUES, USING PAPER AND WATER-BASED PAINTS INSTEAD OF TEMPERA, THEY MOVED AWAY FROM RELIGIOUS THEMES TO DEPICT CONTEMPORARY SUBJECTS. BY 1850, KALIGHAT PAT HAD TAKEN A DYNAMIC NEW DIRECTION, SATIRIZING THE MIDDLE CLASSES IN MUCH THE SAME WAY AS TODAY'S POLITICAL CARTOONS. THEY SERVE AS A WITTY RECORD OF THE PERIOD, FILLED WITH IMAGES OF EVERYDAY LIFE, AND CAN

BE FOUND IN GALLERIES AND MUSEUMS AROUND THE WORLD, AND IN THE INDIAN MUSEUM AS WELL AS THE BIRLA ACADEMY AND ASHUTOSH MUSEUM IN KOLKATA.

MOTHER TERESA CANONIZED BY POPE FRANCIS IN SEPTEMBER 2016, MOTHER TERESA (1910–97) IS UNDOUBTEDLY KOLKATA’S MOST FAMOUS CITIZEN. BORN AGNES GONXHA BOJAXHIU TO ALBANIAN PARENTS, SHE GREW UP IN SKOPJE IN THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA. JOINING THE SISTERS OF LORETO, AN IRISH ORDER, SHE WAS SENT AS A TEACHER TO DARJEELING, WHERE SHE TOOK HER VOWS IN MAY 1931 AND BECAME TERESA. WHILE WORKING IN KOLKATA, SHE WAS MOVED BY THE TERRIBLE POVERTY AROUND HER; IN 1948 SHE CHANGED HER NUN’S HABIT FOR THE SIMPLE BLUE-BORDERED WHITE SARI THAT BECAME THE UNIFORM OF THE MISSIONARIES OF CHARITY.

The best known of their many homes and clinics is Nirmal Hriday at 251 Kalighat Rd, a hospice for the destitute. Despite local resistance, Mother Teresa chose its site by Kalighat temple in the knowledge that many poor people come here to die next to a holy tirtha or crossing-place. Her piety and single-minded devotion to the poor won her international acclaim, and she was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1979. However, she also attracted significant controversy thanks to her fierce anti-abortion stance and was accused of disregarding advances in medicine in favour of saving souls. The late journalist and author Christopher Hitchens wrote a searing polemic, The Missionary Position, describing her as “a fanatic, a fundamentalist, and a fraud”, alleging misappropriation of donations, questioning her choice of friends (including the likes of brutal Haitian dictator Papa Doc), and challenging her regressive attitudes to contraception and reproductive rights.

If you're interested in the work of the Missionaries of Charity, they can be contacted at Mother House, near Sealdah Station at 54A AJC Bose Rd (closed Thurs; 🌐motherteresa.org). Mother Teresa is buried here, and along with her tomb there is a small museum dedicated to her life. They run orientation workshops (a brief introduction to their work) on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 3pm to 5pm at nearby Shishu Bhavan, 78 AJC Bose Rd, which is an orphanage and a dispensary for children.

The appalling poverty highlighted by Mother Teresa has led to a number of NGO charities developing in the city. Established in 1979, Calcutta Rescue is a nonreligious organization that runs clinics, schools and a creche in Kolkata, as well as an outreach programme to help people in need further afield in West Bengal. For more information visit them online at 🌐calcuttarescue.org or call ☎033 2217 5675.

An organisation dedicated to the welfare and rehabilitation of street and slum children, Hope relies on volunteers and donors for its many projects throughout the city and further afield. For more information visit 🌐hopefoundation.ie.

Open all hours, the temple is tended by avaricious priests who will try to whisk you downstairs to confront the dramatic monolithic image of the terrible goddess with her huge eyes and bloody tongue. The courtyard beyond the main congregational hall is used for sacrificing goats on special occasions. Nirmal Hriday, Mother Teresa's home for the destitute and dying, is on the northwest corner of the complex.

Ballygunge

East of Kalighat is Ballygunge, one of the most sought-after neighbourhoods in Kolkata for the city's wealthier residents. Alongside scores of expensive houses are a series of shopping malls, an increasing number of art galleries (including the Birla Academy of Art and Culture), and an array of fancy restaurants and Western-style coffee shops. Head here if you want a break from the chaos of the city centre, or a glimpse into the lives of wealthy Kolkatans.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE NETAJI KOLKATA SUBHASH BOSE INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT KOLKATA'S

AIRPORT (☎033 2511 8787), 20KM NORTH OF THE CITY CENTRE, IS OFFICIALLY CALLED NETAJI SUBHASH BOSE INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT, BUT IS STILL UNIVERSALLY KNOWN BY ITS OLD NAME OF DUM DUM. ITS KEY AMENITIES INCLUDE MONEY-EXCHANGE AND A PREPAID TAXI BOOTH, AN ACCOMMODATION BOOKING COUNTER, A RAILWAY RESERVATION DESK, USEFUL TAXI COUNTERS AND A CITY COACH COUNTER.

Flights Kolkata has excellent domestic services to cities across the country on AirAsia, Vistara, IndiGo, SpiceJet and other companies. Check Graphiti, The Telegraph's Sunday supplement, for current flight (and train) information.

GETTING INTO TOWN BY TAXI A PREPAID TAXI FROM THE AIRPORT TO THE CENTRAL SUDDER ST AREA COSTS AROUND ₹500 (EXPECT TO PAY MORE IF YOU'RE TRAVELLING IN THE OPPOSITE DIRECTION); SEVERAL OTHER OPERATORS OFFER SMARTER (AND MORE EXPENSIVE) A/C CARS INTO TOWN. THE TRANSPORT COUNTERS AT THE DOMESTIC TERMINAL ARE CLUSTERED TOGETHER NEAR THE EXIT IN THE ARRIVALS LOUNGE.

By bus Express Volvo a/c coach services connect the airport with various points in the city, the most useful being the V1, which travels to Esplanade, handy for accessing the metro and the Sudder St area. Luggage allowance is one bag plus hand luggage per person, as these are essentially commuter coaches.

By Metro and Circular Railway An alternative is to take a taxi (around ₹300) or shuttle bus to the Dum Dum Metro station (5km), and then the Metro into town; Sudder St is a short walk from Park Street station. Bear in mind that you can't take large items (bikes, bulky suitcases, etc.) onto the Metro system. Dum Dum is also a terminus for the Circular Railway to Eden Gardens (Chandpal Ghat) (daily 7.50am–6.45pm) from where Sudder St is a short taxi ride away. There is also an official Metro rail app that can be downloaded to smartphones for timetables.

BY TRAIN KOLKATA HAS THREE MAIN RAILWAY STATIONS: HOWRAH, KOLKATA AND SEALDAH, WITH TWO OTHERS, SANTRAGACHI AND SHALIMAR, AS SUBSIDIARY HUBS. THERE ARE METRO STATIONS AT HOWRAH AND SEALDAH.

Howrah Howrah – the point of arrival for most major trains from the south and west – stands on the far bank of the Hooghly, 2km west of the centre. To reach the central downtown area, traffic has to negotiate Howrah Bridge – the definitive introduction to the cacophony of the city. Avoid the touts and taxis outside the station building, and head straight for the prepaid taxi booth, from where the fare to the central Sudder St and Park St areas is ₹150–200. Minibuses and buses also operate from Howrah to destinations all over the city, but tend to be very crowded. A good alternative is to follow the signs from the station gate and take a ferry across the Hooghly to Babu Ghat or the adjacent Chandpal Ghat, close to BBD Bagh, and pick up a metered taxi or bus from there. Uber also operates in Kolkata and is reliable, cheap and safe.

Kolkata Kolkata station (or Terminus, also known as Chitpur station) lies 1km from Shyambazaar Metro station, from where it is a convenient seven stops south to Park St (for Sudder St hotels). There isn't a prepaid booth but auto-rickshaws to Shyambazaar are available and there is a taxi rank. The Circular Railway connects the station with Eden Gardens (handy for the Sudder St area).

RECOMMENDED TRAINS FROM KOLKATA

Destination	Name	No.	From	Departs	Arrives
Bhubaneswar	Falaknuma Express	#12703	Howrah	7.25am	1.50pm
Bolpur	Kanchenjunga Express	#15657	Sealdah	6.35am	9.14am
Chennai	Coromandel Express	#12841	Howrah	2.50pm	5.20pm+
Delhi	Rajdhani Express*	#12301	Howrah	4.55pm	10am+
Gaya	Mumbai Mail	#12321	Howrah	10.00pm	5.22am+
Guwahati	Saraighat Express	#12345	Howrah	3.50pm	9.35am+
Mumbai	Howrah Mumbai	#12262	Howrah	8.20pm	10.30am+

	Duronto Express*
New Jalpaiguri	Darjeeling Mail	#12343	Sealdah	10.05pm	3.24pm+
Prayagraj	Kalka Mail	#12311	Howrah	7.40pm	9.25am+
Puri	Puri Express	#12837	Howrah	10.35pm	7.10am
Raxaul (for Birganj in Nepal)	Mithila Express	#13021	Howrah	3.45pm	8.30am+
Varanasi	Amritsar Mail	#13005	Howrah	7.10pm	9.12am+
*A/c only
Connect here for transport to Siliguri, Darjeeling, Kalimpong, Sikkim and Gangtok.
+ next day

Santragachi Several major trains stop here in transit but the station, 7km to the west of Howrah, is also the terminus for a few long-distance trains on the Southeastern Railways network. Taxis and buses are available and there is an a/c Volvo bus (V2) all the way to the airport via Park Circus.

Shalimar Shalimar, the city's newest station, lies 5km to the south of Howrah and across Vidyasagar Setu Bridge from central Kolkata, with a handful of trains along the Southern Railways network. There is an occasional and irregular ferry service to Garden Reach and Babu Ghat, plus plenty of taxis.

Sealdah Sealdah station, with its own prepaid taxi booth in the car park, is on the eastern edge of the centre close to the Sudder St area. Once the main terminus for trains from the north, Sealdah now shares this role with Kolkata station.

BOOKING TICKETS CENTRALIZED INFORMATION ON TRAIN CONNECTIONS IS AVAILABLE ON MTP.INDIANRAILWAYS.GOV.IN. YOU CAN ALSO BOOK ONLINE OR THROUGH AGENTS AROUND SUDDER ST – THE LATTER IS BY FAR THE EASIEST AND QUICKEST OPTION.

Railway Reservation Offices Of the numerous computerized booking offices throughout the city the convenient ones are: Fairlie Place (BBD Bagh), Howrah and Sealdah stations, Bentinck St (Esplanade) and Alexandra Court, 61 Chowringhee Rd, Rabindra Sadan (Mon–Sat 8am–8pm, Sun & hols 9am–2pm).

Foreign Tourist Office The tourist office on the first floor of the Eastern Railways office, in the northwest corner of BBD Bagh at 6 Fairlie Place, books tourist quota train tickets (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun & hols 10am–2pm; ☎033 2222 4206). You’ll need to bring proof of encashment (an exchange or ATM receipt) to reserve a berth if paying in rupees.

BY BUS WHILE THE MAIN HIGHWAYS AND EXPRESSWAYS TO THE WEST AND NORTHWEST OF THE CITY ARE RELATIVELY QUICK, HAVING UNDERGONE MODERNIZATION IN RECENT YEARS, MUCH OF THE STATE’S ROADS ARE IN APPALLING CONDITION. BUSES ARE GENERALLY CHEAPER BUT CAN BE A PAINFUL EXPERIENCE, ESPECIALLY ON THE NORTHERN ROUTE TO SILIGURI (FOR DARJEELING).

Esplanade bus stand The largest, the most chaotic but also most convenient of Kolkata’s bus terminals less than 500m north of the tourist hub of Sudder St, Esplanade is not a single terminal but rather a collection of bus services to numerous points throughout the state. These include the Rocket Bus travelling the 560km route to Siliguri (7pm; 13hr; Santanu Booking Counter ☎9331062749), which offers reclining seats as well as a sleeper section (single travellers will be required to share). Among the most efficient and luxurious services from the terminus is Royal Cruiser (☎033 2252 1415, www.royalcruiser.com), which has its office within the Esplanade Metro station (entrance opposite Grand Hotel), with a/c Volvo buses to Siliguri (7pm) and Puri (9pm) among other key destinations. Several buses from here head to Basanti and the Sundarbans (especially early morning) and for points south to Diamond Harbour and beyond.

Babu Ghat bus stand Some long-distance buses from the south, including Puri and Ranchi, terminate at Babu Ghat bus stand, not far from Fort William on the east bank. State transport companies (Odisha Roadways ☎943 314 34280; West Bengal State Transport ☎033 241 6388) have their booths here. Among the private companies, the Dolphin (☎94332 36077, www.dolphinbusservice.com) service to Puri departs at 9pm and arrives in Puri at 7am; the bus is a basic “sleeper” but some sleeper coaches offer separate bunk sections – do check first; others have reclining seats.

GETTING AROUND THE METRO, INDIA'S FIRST AND KOLKATA'S PRIDE AND JOY, PROVIDES A FAST, CLEAN AND EFFICIENT WAY TO GET AROUND. THE RIVER IS ALSO USED FOR TRANSPORT, WITH THE GHATS NEAR EDEN GARDENS AT THE HUB OF A FERRY SYSTEM. YOU CAN BEAT THE TRAFFIC BY JUMPING ON ONE OF THE FREQUENT FERRIES FROM CHANDPAL GHAT TO HOWRAH STATION, THOUGH THEY'RE CROWDED AT RUSH HOUR. METERED TAXIS REMAIN THE MOST CONVENIENT MODE OF TRANSPORT AND RADIO CABS (PRIVATE TAXIS) PROVIDE MORE COMFORT AT A PRICE. THERE IS A BEWILDERING PLETHORA OF BUSES PLYING THE CITY AND THE FEW TRAMS LEFT ARE A REMINDER OF BYGONE DAYS. WHILE USING PUBLIC TRANSPORT, BE WARY OF PICKPOCKETS, ESPECIALLY ON CROWDED BUSES.

By Metro The Russian-designed Metro (www.kmrc.in), inaugurated in 1984, is still every bit as good as its inhabitants proudly claim, with trains operating punctually every few minutes. Services run 7am–9.45pm Mon–Sat and 3–9.45pm on Sun. Tickets are inexpensive, starting at ₹5. Single tickets work on a token system and are valid for 90min from purchase – touch the token on the turnstile to enter and drop into the slot to exit. Smart Cards allow multiday travel and cost ₹100 (refundable) plus charges from ₹100. Recharge machines are available at certain stations including Park Street.

By bus Kolkata supports a vast and complicated bus network (for route information, check www.calcuttayellowpages.com/busroute.html), in operation each day roughly between 5am and 11pm, and subject to overcrowding and the occasional pickpocket. Most buses stop far from the kerb, making getting on and off a hazard. Useful routes include: #S8 from Howrah via Esplanade to Gariahat; #S17 from Chetla near Kalighat via Esplanade to Dakshineswar; and #5 and #6, which both travel via Howrah and the Esplanade–Chowringhee area, and stop at the Indian Museum at the head of Sudder St. Buses with an “S” prefix denote special express buses, which charge marginally more. The a/c Volvo buses run on several useful routes including the #VS1 from Esplanade to the airport and the #V1 between Tollygunge (via Gariahat) and the airport. These are commuter buses, so getting on with luggage mid-route can be a problem when the buses are full. In addition, there are private brown-and-yellow minibuses which travel at inordinate speeds. Their destinations are painted boldly in Bengali and English on their sides and route numbers are occasionally visible; #128 connects Howrah with Esplanade.

ONWARD TRAVEL: TO BANGLADESH AND THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS TO BANGLADESH KOLKATA IS THE MAIN GATEWAY TO BANGLADESH FROM INDIA. THE BANGLADESH CONSULATE IS AT 9 CIRCUS AVE (MON–FRI 9AM–5PM; ☎033 2247 5208, EXT 207 FOR VISA SECTION, 🌐BDHC-KOLKATA.ORG). VISAS ON ARRIVAL CAN NOW BE OBTAINED AT THE PETRAPOLE-BENAPOLE BORDER FOR USD50, BUT YOU MAY EXPERIENCE DELAYS. YOU CAN ALWAYS OBTAIN A VISA IN ADVANCE, WHICH WILL GENERALLY BE ISSUED ON THE SAME DAY IF YOU SUBMIT YOUR PASSPORT BEFORE 10AM. YOU CAN REACH BANGLADESH BY TRAIN OR ROAD OR A COMBINATION OF THE TWO, AND THERE ARE SEVERAL DAILY FLIGHTS FROM KOLKATA TO DHAKA.

Departing Kolkata station, the Maitree Express (#13108/9; departs Tues, Sat & Sun 7.10am, arrives 6pm) – buy tickets from the Foreign Tourist Bureau, Fairlie Place – is the only direct train to Dhaka and you need a visa to book. An alternative is to take an early train from Sealdah to Bangaon (₹20) and cross the border to take another train from Benapole. Numerous travel agents around Sudder and Marquis streets sell tickets for private buses to Dhaka, which depart from the Esplanade stand, but some involve a change at the border.

Private buses such as Shyamoli Paribahan, 10 Marquis St (☎033 2252 0693, 🌐shyamolibusservice.com), to Dhaka depart from Esplanade while government-run WBSTC and BRTC buses operate from Esplanade and Salt Lake International Karunamoyee terminal (☎033 2359 8448), a roughly ₹200 taxi ride from the centre, to Dhaka (Tues, Thurs & Sat from 5.30am; 12hr); you will need to show your visa to book, or you can use these services to reach the border (₹300) and catch an onward bus to Dhaka in Benapole.

TO THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS FLIGHTS WITH AIR INDIA, GO AIR AND SPICEJET SERVE PORT BLAIR. TO GO BY SHIP (THERE ARE THREE TO FOUR SAILINGS A MONTH), YOU'LL NEED TO BOOK THROUGH THE SHIPPING CORPORATION OF INDIA, 13 STRAND RD (☎033 2248 2354, 🌐SHIPINDIA.COM); THE JOURNEY TAKES THREE TO FIVE DAYS, SO BRING PLENTY TO READ AND FOOD TO SUPPLEMENT THE DULL MEALS. FREE THIRTY-DAY PERMITS ARE GRANTED ON ARRIVAL.

TO ARUNACHAL PRADESH

Kolkata is a good place to apply for a Restricted Area Permit. The Deputy Resident Commissioner, Govt. of Arunachal Pradesh is at CE-109, Sector-1, Salt Lake City, Kolkata. (Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, ☎033 2334 1243 and 2358 9865). Permits take up to five working days to be issued, but can generally be sent to your email as you travel. Bring two photographs and ₹3500 in cash.

By tram Kolkata's cumbersome trams, barely changed save for a lick of paint since they started operating in 1873, have been largely phased out, but certain routes linger on and a "new" model has been introduced with high glass windows. Female travellers can take advantage of the rush-hour women-only coaches. Routes include, among many others, #1, Esplanade to College St.

By taxi Painted either yellow or black and yellow, taxis in Kolkata are extremely good value, especially on long journeys (around ₹400 from the airport to Sudder St), but a few drivers can be unwilling to take you on short journeys or to areas they don't like the sound of. There's a 25 percent night-time surcharge (10pm–6am). Up to two pieces of luggage are free, but there's an additional charge for further pieces and for placing bags in the boot. Most cabs have working meters and tend to use them in conjunction with the conversion charts they are obliged to carry. Prepaid taxis are available at some railway stations and the airport.

Private taxis Several private taxi companies, also referred to as radio cabs, with vehicles at the airport and railway stations as well as the major hotels, provide more safety and luxury with a/c and printed receipts. Firms include Bengal Cabs (☎99035 95337, 🌐bengalcabs.com) and Mega Cabs (☎90909 09090, 🌐megacabs.com).

By rickshaw Despite efforts to ban them, Kolkata still has human-drawn rickshaws, though they're only available in the central areas of the city, especially around New Market where some pullers supplement their meagre income by acting as touts and pimps. Most of the rickshaw-pullers are Bihari pavement-dwellers, who live short and very hard lives. Haggle for a realistic price but feel free to give a handful of baksheesh too.

By ferry The ferry system provides a pleasant alternative to the city's manic roads. The most useful ferry terminal is Chandpal Ghat near Eden Gardens and a short taxi ride from Sudder St, from where, along with Howrah station, you can get ferries downriver to Shibpur for the Botanical Gardens and upriver to Shobabazaar, useful for visiting Kumartuli.

INFORMATION INDIA TOURISM OFFICE 4 SHAKESPEARE SARANI, OFF CHOWRINGHEE RD (MON–FRI 9AM–6PM, SAT 9AM–1PM; ☎033 2282 5813, 🌐INCREDIBLEINDIA.ORG). PROVIDES GENERAL INFORMATION ON KOLKATA, WEST BENGAL AND DESTINATIONS FURTHER AFIELD, AND CAN ASSIST WITH ITINERARIES. GET YOUR MARBLE PALACE PASS HERE.

West Bengal Tourist Bureau (WBTDC) 3/2 BBD Bagh East (Mon–Sat 10.30am–4.30pm; ☎033 2248 5168). Arranges tours of Kolkata and package trips throughout West Bengal; also issues permits and books tours and accommodation in WBTDC lodges across the state.

State tourist offices The most useful of the many offices representing other states in Kolkata are those that cover the northeastern states and assist in securing permits for these areas and the Andaman and Nicobar islands. Andaman and Nicobar, 2nd Floor, DP-7, Sector 5 (☎033 2357 4897); Arunachal Pradesh, Block CE, 109 Sector 1, Salt Lake (☎033 2321 3627); Assam, 8 Russel St (☎033 2229 5094); Manipur, 26 Rowland Rd (☎033 2475 8075); Meghalaya, 120 Shantipally, EM Bypass (☎033 2441 2159); Mizoram, 24 Old Ballygunge Rd (☎033 2461 5887); Nagaland, 11

Shakespeare Sarani (☎033 2282 5247); Odisha, 41 & 55 Lenin Sarani (☎033 2249 3653); Sikkim, 41 Middleton St (☎033 2281 5328); Tripura, 1 Pretoria St (☎033 2282 5703).

Listings Newspapers such as The Telegraph and The Statesman remain the primary source of information on what's on. Explocity Kolkata (🌐explocity.com) is a free listings magazine available at the tourist office and some hotels (and online).

TOURS WALKING TOURS IF YOU WANT TO DEVISE YOUR OWN WALKING ITINERARIES, THE A–Z OF THE CITY, EICHER KOLKATA CITY MAP, MAKES AN EXCELLENT COMPANION.

Calcutta Walks 9A Khairu Place, Chandni Chowk ☎98301 84030, 🌐calcuttawalks.com. Very well organized and well-informed high-end agency that concentrates on walks and tours of the city (including one on the back of a Royal Enfield motorbike; from ₹2000).

Help Tourism 67A Kali Temple Rd, Kalighat ☎033 2455 0917, 🌐helptourism.com. Help's walking tours provide a great insight into the historic heart of the city. They are 4–5hr long and prices start at ₹1500.

Kali Travel Home 5A Ishwar Chakraborty Lane, Burtola ☎94321 45532, 🌐traveleastindia.com. A welcoming agency, run by two Australian aficionados of the old city. Tours (from ₹700) give you an in-depth view of Kolkata, warts and all.

Walks of Kolkata F25, 1st floor Kamalalaya Centre, 156A Lenin Sarani ☎98317 61003, 🌐walksofkolkata.com. Themed walks and tailor-made itineraries with lots of flexibility, including tours for individuals, from ₹3000.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Though most of the old British street names in Kolkata were officially changed years ago, habits die hard and some of the original names continue to be widely used in tandem with the new. The most important of these is Chowringhee or Jawaharlal Nehru Road (still called Chowringhee). Other name changes to note are BBD Bagh (still often referred to by its old name of Dalhousie Square or simply “Dalhousie”), Mirza Ghalib Street (Free School St), Dr Mohammed Ishaque Road (Kyd St), Muzaffar Ahmed Street (Ripon St), Ho Chi Minh Sarani (Harrington St), AJC Bose Road (Lower Circular Rd), Shakespeare Sarani (Theatre Rd), Rabindranath Tagore Street (Camac St), Lenin Sarani (Dharamtala) and Rabindra Sarani (Chitpore Rd).

RIVER CRUISES ASSAM BENGAL NAVIGATION COMPANY 3B DIRANG ARCADE, GNB RD, GUWAHATI ☎0361 266 7871, 🌐 ASSAMBENGALNAVIGATION.COM. LUXURIOUS OPERATORS WITH AN INTERNATIONAL NETWORK PROVIDING MULTIDAY CRUISES ALONG THE HOOGHLY AS WELL AS IN ASSAM AND ELSEWHERE ON CONVERTED RIVER STEAMERS.

Vivada Cruises 14 Southern Ave ☎033 2463 1990 or ☎98839 33033, 🌐 vivadacruises.com. Along with cruises along the Hooghly, Vivada also provides a multiday cruise to Varanasi and wildlife cruises on the Sundarbans; it also charts boats.

TOUR OPERATORS HELP TOURISM. ETHICALLY MINDED, THIS PIONEERING AGENCY HAS HELPED ESTABLISH SEVERAL WILDLIFE PROJECTS AND OFFERS A WIDE RANGE OF TOURS, INCLUDING TO THE SUNDARBANS AND WILDLIFE-VIEWING IN NORTH BENGAL.

Himalayan Footprints 77 Netaji Subhas Rd ☎98300 33896, 🌐 abouthimalayas.com. Informative and flexible wildlife tours, nature treks and trips to the Sundarbans, Sikkim and Darjeeling.

Kali Travel Home. This knowledgeable Australian agency is keen to share its enthusiasm for the city and for Bengal with tailor-made guided tours, cooking classes and farm stays.

TRAVEL AGENT THOMAS COOK 1ST FLOOR, 19B SHAKESPEARE SARANI ☎033 6652 6241, 🌐 THOMASCOOK.IN. DEALS WITH DOMESTIC TOURS AND INTERNATIONAL FLIGHTS AND FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

ACCOMMODATION AS SOON AS YOU ARRIVE IN KOLKATA, TAXI DRIVERS ARE LIKELY TO ASSUME THAT YOU'LL BE HEADING FOR SUDDER ST, NEAR NEW MARKET, WHERE

YOU'LL FIND A HEADY MIX OF TRAVELLERS, BUSINESSMEN AND BANGLADESHIS IN TRANSIT. AS THE MAIN TRAVELLERS' HUB IN KOLKATA AND CLOSE TO ALL AMENITIES, THE AREA IS A SOCIABLE PLACE TO STAY, WITH NUMEROUS HOTELS, THOUGH IF YOU'RE AFTER MORE LUXURY, YOU MAY HAVE TO LOOK FURTHER AFIELD. NOTE THAT BUDGET HOTELS IN KOLKATA ARE GENERALLY PRETTY POOR QUALITY: IT IS WELL WORTH SPENDING A BIT MORE HERE TO AVOID THE GROTTIEST ROOMS.

SUDDER STREET, NEW MARKET, ESPLANADE AND AROUND, MAP AND THIS MAP

Broadway 27A Ganesh Chandra Ave 🌐broadwayhotel.in. Established in 1937, this is one of the oldest hotels in the city, near Chandni Chowk Metro station, offers basic non-a/c rooms on the edge of the commercial district; cheaper rooms come with shared baths. The Art Deco restaurant and bar downstairs, with its high ceilings and lazy fans, exudes a faded atmosphere. The bar serves Indo-Chinese fare and beer. 24hr checkout. ₹₹

★The Elgin Fairlawn 13A Sudder St 🌐elginhotels.com/fairlawn.php. Chock-full of memorabilia, this famous and old-fashioned family-run hotel exudes a charmingly faded and eccentric Raj atmosphere. The rooms are large and clean, though a little bare. Non-residents can drink in the lush garden bar, which is a very popular spot for a sundowner. Breakfast is included. ₹₹₹

Emirates 11/1 Kyd St 📞033 2217 8487. New budget boutique hotel boasting a series of clean, large and luminous rooms with all the bells and whistles the category commends. There's a rooftop, a restaurant, and a new wing was being built when we visited. This is best saved as an option for a short stay and if you are on a shoestring budget. Breakfast included. ₹₹

Kempton 3 Marquis St, 🌐hotelkempton.in. Just around the corner from Sudder St, this business-traveller-oriented hotel, with its smart modern design and decor, is very good value, given the quality on offer. Facilities include a 24hr coffee shop and a multicuisine restaurant. ₹₹₹

★Lalit Great Eastern 123 Old Court House St 🌐thelalit.com. In a historic building, which first opened in the 1840s and subsequently became known as “The Savoy of the East” the Lalit Great Eastern has been restored to its former glory, with Victorian, Edwardian and “contemporary” wings. A lovely pool and spa, an array of eating and drinking options, and smart service make it an excellent choice. ₹₹₹

The Lindsay 8A & 8B, Lindsay St, Opp. New Market ☎thelindsay.in. A relatively new addition to the strip, this chain hotel offers comfortable and tastefully decorated rooms, Blue and Beyond restaurant on its rooftop serves cocktails overlooking Park Street. ₹₹

Oberoi Grand 15 Chowringhee Rd, ☎oberoihotels.com. If money is no object, this is the place to stay. The white Victorian facade of this luxurious hotel, established in 1938, is very much part of the fabric of the city. Service is attentive, and the interior has an elegant modern-meets-traditional style; facilities include a swimming pool, spa, and excellent Thai and Indian restaurants; security is very tight. ₹₹₹₹

Hotel VIP International 51 Mirza Ghalib St ☎vip-international.hotels-kolkata.com. Ideally situated in walking distance to both the New Market and Park Street, this mid-range hotel has large rooms with comfortable beds and was being upholstered at time of research. There's a restaurant downstairs, whose Lucknowi-style kebabs and biryanis are excellent, yet a bit overpriced. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Windsor Suites 5 Stephen Court ☎windsorsuiteskolkata@gmail.com. This small, economical hotel, with a handful of rooms of varying degrees of modernity, is clean and good value. There is a small eatery in the hotel offering Burmese delicacies. ₹₹

PARK STREET, CHOWRINGHEE AND AROUND, MAP

The Park 17 Park St ☎theparkhotels.com. Modern five-star hotel, recently renovated, in a good location on cosmopolitan Park St; as well as comfortable, stylish rooms, there is a pool, gym, spa, and good food at the three restaurants, plus a popular nightclub and a bar with live music. ₹₹₹₹₹

Sunflower Guest House 7 Royd St ☎033 2229 9401, ☎sunflowerguesthouse.com. A large, well-maintained coral painted old building managed by one of the city's rajbari families; most of its spotless rooms – all with attached bathrooms – are on the top four floors, with the penthouse rooms providing good views; there's a small roof garden. ₹

YWCA 1 Middleton Row ☎033 2229 7033. Open to both female and male travellers, and especially good for longer stays, this clean, central hostel with plain but adequate rooms, some a/c, off Park St, is built around a pleasant courtyard with a tennis court. Book well in advance. Breakfast included. ₹₹

SOUTH KOLKATA, MAP

★Bodhi Tree Guest House 48/44 Swiss Park ☎bodhitreekolkata.in. A stunning little boutique guesthouse, with just six impeccably designed rooms, across the tracks from the lakes and close to the Rabindra Sarovar Metro station; there's a tranquil garden courtyard, and plenty of contemporary art on display. ₹₹

Central B&B Flat 28, 7th floor, Lansdowne Court, 5B Sarat Bose Rd ☎98364 65400, ☎centralbnb.com. The rooms and apartment here are as functional as the name: clean, spacious, well-equipped (TVs, kettles, a/c and so on; the apartment has a kitchenette), and good views from the seventh floor. Good location too, a short walk from Park St and Ballygunge. Rooms and apartments ₹₹₹

Corner Courtyard 92 Sarat Bose Rd ☎99039 99567, ☎thecornercourtyard.com. An immaculately decorated boutique hotel, situated in a colonial-era house close to Kalighat, with seven charming rooms – each has a different colour scheme, but all have four-poster beds and period furnishings. There's a lush roof terrace and a fine restaurant. ₹₹₹

Motisarai 259 Darga Rd, Park Circus ☎motisarai.com. Small and homely boutique hotel set half an hour walk south of the New Market. Rooms are luminous and squeaky-clean, with a/c, coffemakers and LED TVs, and surround an intimate common room where meals are served. Breakfast is included, and guests can also use the kitchen for self-catering. ₹₹

★The Penthouse 52d Hindustan Park Rd ☎98301 35801. This homestay exceeds all expectations with its homely, well-furnished and large ensuite rooms. There is a pretty rooftop strewn with sofas, chairs, and dim lights that's perfect to rest after a day trawling the city. Breakfast included. ₹₹

The Residency 50/1C Purna Das Rd ☎98300 94188. This welcoming place is located in a residential area just off Gol Park and within walking distance of the lakes and Gariahat. Rooms are spotless and come with a/c, TV and all mod cons. ₹₹

Wiseowl Comfotel 66/2B Purna Das Rd, ☎033 2464 6422, 🌐 wiseowlcomfotel.com. Situated in a pleasant part of town, handy for Kalighat, the lakes and Gariahat, and increasingly lively with good restaurants and trendy shops, this guesthouse has spacious rooms in classic Kolkata style; there is a popular coffee shop downstairs and the top floor hosts an American-style steak house. Breakfast is included and served in the room. ₹₹

ELSEWHERE IN THE CITY, MAP

★Calcutta Bungalow 5 Radha Kanta Jew St, Fariapukur, Shyam Bazar 🌐 calcuttabungalow.com. Carefully renovated by the people behind Calcutta Walks, this heritage boutique hotel offers beautifully furnished rooms, some with exposed bricks and terraces, housed in a historical home on the edge of a park. Bicycle rental is available and continental breakfast is included. ₹₹₹

★Rajbari Bawali Hasnecha, Bawali 🌐 therajbari.com. This is one of Kolkata's most luxurious heritage properties. The large, high-ceilinged rooms, all fitted with four poster beds and antiques, dot the perimeter of the residence, overlooking a beautiful garden and water pond. The restaurant, an open-air verandah, is surrounded by trees and set next to a charming swimming pool. It's the perfect getaway from Kolkata's hustle, and yet only about an hour drive from the city centre. Full board included. ₹₹₹

Swissotel City Centre, New Town 🌐 swissotel.com/kolkata. Modern luxury hotel with all the usual amenities and very well placed for the airport. There are a number of good restaurants, cafés and bars, a health centre and a rooftop swimming pool from where you can watch the planes fly by. The shopping mall next door offers alternative dining and designer brands. ₹₹₹₹

Taj Bengal 24B Belvedere Rd, Alipore 🌐 taj.tajhotels.com. Opulent show-piece hotel and still one of the prime addresses in the city, attempting to amalgamate Bengali features with the usual Taj grandeur. Excellent range of restaurants, including Chinese and Indian, and a pool and nightclub. Peak season rates can be high like most five-star properties across the globe but it's still affordable when factoring in the exchange rate with the rupee. You can find good deals online, too. Buffet breakfast included. ₹₹₹₹ EATING ALTHOUGH LOCALS LOVE TO DINE OUT, TRADITIONAL BENGALI COOKING WAS, UNTIL RELATIVELY RECENTLY, RESTRICTED TO THE HOME; HOWEVER, SOME EXCELLENT RESTAURANTS NOW OFFER THE CHANCE TO TASTE THIS WONDERFUL FISH- AND SEAFOOD-BASED CUISINE; KEWPIE'S IS A GREAT PLACE TO GET AN OVERVIEW. INDO-CHINESE, SPICED AND COOKED TO LOCAL TASTES, IS ALSO POPULAR: THE CITY HAS A RICH TRADITION INCLUDING ITS OWN CHINATOWN AT TANGRA ON THE ROAD TO THE AIRPORT. YOU'LL ALSO FIND SEVERAL GOOD INDIAN RESTAURANTS, NUMEROUS JOINTS OFFERING VARYING STANDARDS OF WESTERN CUISINE, AS WELL AS RICH MUGHAL COOKING AND THE NOT-TO-BE-MISSED KATI ROLL (SOMETIMES REFERRED TO AS "KATHI ROLL" OR JUST "ROLL"; THEY ARE PARATHAS STUFFED WITH CHICKEN, MUTTON, PANEER, EGG OR SPICED POTATO, SPIKED WITH CHILLI AND LIME, AND ROLLED IN A SHEAF OF PAPER), WHICH IS AN INTEGRAL PART OF KOLKATA'S CUISINE; KUSUM AND NIZAM'S ARE CLASSIC PLACES TO SAMPLE THEM. MISHTI DOI, A FERMENTED, SWEETENED YOGHURT IN CLAY POTS IS FAMOUS ACROSS THE STATE AND PROVIDES A WELCOMING RESPITE FROM THE HUMIDTY AND HEAT. NUMEROUS PATISseries AND CONFECTIONERIES WORK HARD TO KEEP UP WITH DEMAND. RESTAURANTS AND CAFÉS AROUND SUDDER ST CATER FOR WESTERN TRAVELLERS WHILE ROADSIDE CHAI SHOPS AND STREET FOOD STALLS AROUND BBD BAGH ARE EXTREMELY POPULAR FOR LUNCH. NO TRIP TO KOLKATA IS COMPLETE WITHOUT TRYING MACHER JHOL, A TRADITIONAL SPICY CONCOCTION WITH THE STATE'S BELOVED FISH AS WELL AS THE KOSHA MANGSHO, A RICH MUTTON CURRY. FOR BREAKFAST YOU WILL SEE MANY SPOTS OFFERING THE LOCAL LUCHI WITH ALOO TORKARI- A HEARTY, CARB HEAVY COMBINATION OF DEEP-FRIED BREAD AND LIP-SMACKING POTATO CURRY.

SUDDER STREET, NEW MARKET, ESPLANADE AND AROUND,
MAP AND THIS MAP

Amber 11 Waterloo St 📞033 2248 6746. A Kolkata landmark that refuses to fade away, the dimly lit Amber spreads out across three floors, with a bar downstairs. The menu focuses on Mughal and tandoori cuisine, try the mutton reshmi kebab or the barbecued prawns. If you're feeling more adventurous, go for the brain curry. Amber has a sister café in south Kolkata. Daily noon–11pm.

Arsalan 119A Ripon St 📞033 2227 7493, 🌐arsalanrestaurants.com. Large restaurant that serves a selection of Chinese and other food; you're best-off sticking to its Mughal cuisine (mains ₹140–265) – such as the kebabs and excellent biryanis (try the rich mutton Lucknow biryani) – for which it is famous. There are several other branches dotted around the city. Daily 10am–10pm.

Baan Thai Oberoi Grand hotel, 15 Chowringhee Rd 📞033 2249 2323, 🌐oberoihotels.com. Although expensive – expect to pay upwards of ₹2600 per person – this restaurant offers by far the best Thai cooking in town, with dishes such as Kai yang (barbecued chicken with lemongrass) and yam phet yang (roast duck salad with rambutan and water chestnuts), as well as standards such as red, green and penang curries, satay and tom yum soup. Mon–Fri 7–11.30pm, Sat & Sun 12.30–3pm & 7–11.30pm.

Blue Sky Café Sudder St 📞033 2252 2958. Budget travellers' haunt halfway down the strip on a corner, providing all the old favourites, including good breakfasts (₹35–190). Clean and well run, with a/c, it's a popular meeting place. Daily 6.30am–11pm.

Eau Chew P32 Mission Row Extension, Ganesh Chandra Ave 📞033 2237 8260. A legendary family-run restaurant and a remnant from the heyday of Chinatown: ignore the unprepossessing location – above a petrol station – and gloomy interior, and focus on the authentic, reasonably priced food (mains ₹150–230). The “chimney soup”, cooked slowly around a metal coal-burning container, is especially good; alternatives include roast duck or pork. Daily 11.30am–2.30pm & 6–10pm.

Indian Coffee House 15 Bankim Chatterjee St, just off College St 📞09007 798519. Atmospheric, historic café in the heart of the university area where students and intellectuals continue to meet. It's good for a snack or light meal (₹25–70) and a break from trawling the bookshops of College St, though the coffee itself isn't great. Daily 8am–8pm.

★Nahoum & Sons F-20, New Market 📞033 6526 9936. Hidden away in the New Market, surrounded by sari and pashmina stores, this legendary Jewish bakery and confectioner sells delicious fruitcakes and buns, cashew macaroons, lemon tarts, cheese straws and chicken puffs. Mon–Sat 8am–8pm. ₹

Nizam's 22–23 Hogg St 📞98361 94669. The owners of Nizam's invented the legendary kati roll. They moved to the current location in the 1930s, and while the current surroundings are grotty, to say the least, the signature dishes are seriously good. If you want something a bit more substantial – or in addition to your kati roll – go for the other house speciality, biryani. Daily 10am–11pm. ₹

★Raj's Spanish Café 7 Sudder St 📞033 2252 3456, 🌐 facebook.com/rajspanishcafe. Tucked away in the far right corner of the courtyard, this is the most traveller-friendly place on the strip, with the usual breakfast menu and great coffee; there is a good selection of Spanish, Mexican and Italian dishes including burritos, veg lasagne, and gazpacho. Daily 7.30am–10pm. ₹₹

PARK STREET, CHOWRINGHEE AND AROUND, MAP

Amber Café 2A Middleton Row 📞033 4000 7490. Bright and popular family restaurant run by the owners of celebrated Amber; no alcohol and disappointing coffee, but the food is good, with sandwiches, platter meals and specialities such as chicken tikka masala wrap. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹

Bar-B-Q 43 Park St 📞033 2229 9345. A long-standing favourite, offering competent Chinese and much-lauded tandoori cuisine (mains ₹140–390) in pleasant a/c surroundings with a bar downstairs the special lunch menu includes Persian delicacies such as chelo kebabs on rice. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹

Bistro by the Park 2A Middleton Row 📞033 2229 6494. Tasteful and fresh decor in this popular modern bistro with a varied menu including chicken satay, Caesar salad, and bhetki fish in a yogurt, lime, ginger and chilli marinade, a great lunch spot. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹

Fire and Ice Kanak Building, 41 Chowringhee Rd 📞033 2288 4073, 🌐 fireandicepizzeria.com. A trendy bistro and bar – the offshoot of a famous

Kathmandu restaurant – serving some of the best Italian cuisine in Kolkata, including authentic thin-crust pizzas, pasta, risottos, and – for dessert – tiramisu and gelato. There’s a good range of cocktails too. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹₹

Flury’s 18 Park St, on the corner of Middleton Row ☎033 4064 6053, 🌐flurys.com. A Kolkata landmark, this once-legendary Swiss teashop and patisserie, founded in 1927, has been completely revamped. Little of the old atmosphere remains, but it’s still a popular place and worth visiting for all-day English breakfasts or cakes, patties, home-made chocolates and pastries – try the rum balls. Other branches at Alipur, South City Mall and Salt Lake, Sector 3. Daily 8am–9pm. ₹₹

Jyoti Vihar 3A/1 Ho Chi Minh Sarani ☎033 2282 9791. One of the most popular south Indian joints in town can get packed, especially at lunchtime. It is an eat-and-run place, split between two cramped floors, but its reputation is justified with excellent dosas. Daily noon–8pm. ₹

★Kusum Rolls Just off Park St ☎ 98310 66077. Since 1971 this street-side stall serves some of the best kati rolls in Kolkata, and has a loyal following of lunching office workers and students. It’s a three-man operation: the first one cooks the parathas, another adds the filling – chicken, mutton, paneer, omelettes or liver, or a combination thereof – while a third takes the money and hands out napkins. Mon–Sat noon–7/8pm. ₹

Mocambo 25B Park St, entrance around the corner on Mirza Ghalib St ☎033 2265 4300. A Kolkata institution, dating back to the 1950s, with a hugely varied menu featuring everything from steak in mushroom sauce to chicken kiev, lobster thermidor to fish florentine. Smart, yet relaxed.. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹₹

One Step Up 18A Park St ☎033 2229 5339. Modern, conveniently located restaurant whose menu jumps from Italy to Burma, Thailand to Morocco; all are well prepared, though inevitably the Indian food stands out. Good for an early evening drink too. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹

The Park 17 Park St ☎033 2249 3121, 🌐theparkhotels.com. This top-end hotel has a well-deserved reputation for some of the finest dining in town. Zen, a Terence Conran restaurant, serves dishes from Thailand, China, Japan and Indonesia, while Saffron specializes in contemporary Indian cuisine; Someplace Else, meanwhile, has a fun pub atmosphere. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹₹₹

SOUTH KOLKATA, MAP

6 Ballygunge Place 6 Ballygunge Place 📞033 2460 3922, 🌐savourites.in. Located in an atmospheric old townhouse, 6 Ballygunge Place specializes in quality Bengali cuisine. Dishes include posto narkel bora (coconut and poppy seed dumplings) and kankrar jhal (spicy crab curry). Daily 12.30–3.30pm & 7–10.30pm. ₹

SWEETSHOPS BENGALIS HAVE A NOTORIOUSLY SWEET TOOTH, AND MILK-BASED TREATS SUCH AS THE SMALL AND DRY SANDESH ARE A REGIONAL SPECIALITY. THOUGH THE WHITE ROSOGULLA, THE OFF-WHITE (DEEP-FRIED) PANTUA AND THE DISTINCTIVE BLACK KALAJAM, ALL IN SYRUP, ARE FOUND ELSEWHERE IN NORTH INDIA, THE BEST EXAMPLES ARE MADE IN KOLKATA. OTHERS WORTH TRYING ARE LAL DOI – A DELICIOUS RED STEAMED YOGURT MADE WITH JAGGERY – OR WHITE MISHTI DOI, YOGURT MADE WITH SUGAR. SWEETSHOPS SERVE SAVOURY SNACKS IN THE AFTERNOONS SUCH AS DEEP-FRIED PASTRY STRIPS CALLED NIMKI (LITERALLY “SALTY”); SHINGARA, A DELICATE BENGALI SAMOSA; AND DALPURI, PURI-LIKE BREAD MADE WITH LENTILS.

Ganguram 46C Chowringhee Rd 📞80134 10402, 🌐ganguram.com; see map page 727. Perhaps the most famous sweets company in town, with this branch close to the Victoria Memorial and several others scattered around the city; try mishti doi and sandesh. Daily 8am–9pm. ₹

KC Das 11 Esplanade East and 57A Ripon St 📞033 2554 4007, 🌐kcdas.co.in; see map page 724. Another famous sweetshop with a

takeout counter, café and a/c mezzanine; try the rosogolla. Other branches include Block B, Laketown. Daily 7.30am–7.30pm. ₹

Sen Mahasay 171H Rashbehari Ave 📞033 2334 8271; see map page 724. Next to Gariahat Market, renowned for its sandesh; there are several other branches throughout the city including Shyambazaar. Daily 11am–11pm. ₹

Vien 34B Shakespeare Sarani 📞033 2297 4810; see map page 727. Small, popular sweetshop, with excellent sandesh among other offerings. Daily 7am–10pm. ₹

★Ammini 21C Monohar Pukur Rd 📞033 3221 6769, 🌐 facebook.com/Amminikolkata. Smart, modern bistro in a residential part of town, serving excellent and great-value south Indian cooking Try the Keralan chicken curry. Tues–Sun 11.30am–10.30pm. ₹₹

Banana Leaf 73 Rashbehari Ave, Lake Market 📞033 2464 1960, 🌐 bananaleaf.in. Plain decor and a fast turnaround for this extremely popular restaurant that cooks up some of the best south Indian food in town. The dosas, uttapams, idlis and vadas are all good. Mon–Fri 8am–10pm, Sat & Sun 7am–10pm. ₹

Bhojohori Manna 18/1A Hindustan Rd 📞033 2466 3941, 🌐 bhojohorimanna.com. A popular local chain serving Bengali food, with a huge menu – highlights include the fish, crab and chingri (prawn) curries, the kosha mangsho (mutton curry), and the thalas (thalis; from ₹160). Expect to queue. There's a small branch on nearby Ekdalia Rd and another at 11A Esplanade next to KC Das. Daily noon–9pm. ₹₹

Bohemian 32/4 Old Ballygunge First Lane, Bondel Rd 📞033 6460 1001. Hip restaurant with a modern take on Bengali cuisine in a simple but chic environment. The extensive menu features creative dishes such as Sundarbans-style barbecued pomfret with onion chutney, braised pork with smoked pineapple and cumin, and Darjeeling tea panna cotta. Mains ₹400–700. Daily noon–3pm & 7–11pm.

Café Paris 1/1 Ashutosh Chowdhury Ave 📞99039 20380, 🌐 facebook.com/pariscafekolkata. A favourite of Ballygunge's wealthy residents, Café Paris is a good spot throughout the day for its superior coffee and hot chocolate, Western-style cakes (from red velvet to macarons), crêpes, paninis, salads and pasta dishes. Mon–Sat 7am–11pm. ₹₹₹

Corner Courtyard 92 Sarat Bose Rd 📞99039 99567, 🌐 thecornercourtyard.com. Inside the hotel of the same name (see above), the sunny, stylishly decorated Corner Courtyard is an elegant place for a lunch or dinner. The creative menu features dishes such as quinoa, bean and coriander croquettes, Jamaican jerk chicken, and spicy lamb sliders; good pizzas and desserts too. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹₹

Dolly's Tea Shop Dakshinapan Shopping Centre, Dhakuria. Run by the eponymous Dolly, India's former "tea ambassador", this small but iconic tea shop lights up this cheerless mall, with rattan furniture, a peaceful ambience and a great selection of teas and snacks including sandwiches and cakes. Mon–Sat 10am–6pm. ₹

★Kewpie's Kitchen 2 Elgin Lane 📞033 2486 1600, 🌐 facebook.com/kewpies.kitchen. Private home with a restaurant annexe, offering traditional Bengali food fit for a jamai babu (son-in-law) first entering his wife's home – try the lucci (puris) and the fish and prawn preparations including malai chingri (prawns in cream) and dab-er-chingri (prawns in green coconut). Prices are relatively high – the set thalas (thalis) are pricey but it's worth every rupee. If you fancy trying some of the dishes at home, pick up a copy of Kewpie's English-language cookbook, Bangla Ranna. Tues–Sun 12.30–3pm & 7–11pm. ₹₹₹

Oh! Calcutta Forum Mall, Elgin Rd 📞033 3099 0301, 🌐 facebook.com/ohcalcuttakol. Considerably less raunchy than the play of the same name, this Kolkata institution, on the fourth floor of a shopping centre, serves top-notch Bengali cuisine– the chingri dishes are particular highlights – in sophisticated surroundings. Daily 12.30–3pm & 7.30–11pm. ₹₹

Suruchi 89 Elliot Rd 📞033 3085 9068. Run by the All Bengal Women's Union, a charity that provides support for sex workers and their families, Suruchi is a good place to taste Bengali home-cooking – try the mocha chingri (prawns with banana flower). There's an unpretentious atmosphere, and reasonable prices recommended for lunch despite its poor location. Mon–Fri 10.30am–5.45pm. ₹

Tea Bush Table 5B Ashton Rd, near the Samilton hotel, off Sarat Bose Rd 📞033 4001 3937. A trendy café with chic design and an inventive menu including an extensive list of teas from the traditional to Oriental exotic varieties, such as Pu-erh from China. They serve all-day breakfasts as well as sandwiches, salads and pasta.. Mon–Fri 11am–11pm, Sat & Sun 9am–11pm. ₹₹₹

ELSEWHERE IN THE CITY, MAP

Beijing 77/1 Christopher Rd, Tangra 0033 3099 0161. Owned by a celebrated restaurateur, this place has an extensive menu featuring favourites such as Peking chicken and steamed fish and Meifoon noodles. The bar is well stocked. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹₹

Kim Fa 47 South Tangra Rd 0033 2325 2895. This small Chinese restaurant is still one of Tangra's best, serving excellent Hakka cuisine and popular with the local community. Try the Thai soup, kung pao chicken or the chilli king prawns, which can be quite potent. Daily 6–11pm. ₹₹

Mainland China 3A Gurusaday Rd 0033 2287 2206. Chic Chinese restaurant with elegant service and excellent seafood; widely considered the city's finest, though it can be a little inconsistent. Daily noon–3pm & 7–11pm. ₹₹₹₹

Royal Indian Hotel Near Nakhoda Masjid, Rabindra Sarani 0033 3099 0251. No trip to this area is complete without a visit to this legendary Muslim restaurant for a biryani or a chicken or mutton champ (chop) cooked in aromatic spices and accompanied by rumali roti (thin “handkerchief” bread). It's basic, but there is an a/c room which charges more. Daily 11am–11pm. ₹₹₹

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP AND THIS MAP

The formerly tense, all-male atmosphere of Kolkata's bars is becoming a thing of the past, with designer-style places attracting a young, professional clientele. As well as the places listed below, several restaurants – notably Bar-B-Q – and many of the big hotels are a good option for a quiet drink; some of the hotels also have nightclubs. Most clubs do not allow single males and charge entry fees (from around ₹500).

Blue and Beyond 9th floor, Lindsay hotel, 8A Lindsay St 0033 7199 8727. The terrace up here is probably the best spot for a relaxing drink. There's a large selection of beer, wine to enjoy with a nibble at dusk, with the bustle of New Market still in earshot. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹₹

Floatel 9/10 Kolkata Jetty, Strand Rd ☎033 2213 7777, 🌐 floatelindia.com. The Anchor Bar at water level is a fine place to languish in a/c splendour and watch crowded ferries passing by. The bar-restaurant upstairs with its expansive deck catches the river breeze, but is sometimes booked for events. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹₹

The Grid Ground Haute Street Corporate Park, 86A Topsia Rd ☎84440 00888, 🌐 jointhegrid.in. Kolkata's first microbrewery is the perfect place to relax with a beer, enjoy the cosy industrial-chic environment, and sample a concoction of local and international titbits. Daily noon–midnight. ₹₹₹

Park 17 Park St ☎1800 102 7275, 🌐 theparkhotels.com. This hotel is brimming with bars and discos. Tantra remains one of the liveliest nightclubs in town, starting at 7pm most days and 4pm on weekends, and attracting a well-heeled crowd with celebrities and fashion shows and live music on Sundays. Other options include Trincas, with food and live music, and the poolside Aqua, which serves food while DJs pump out lounge music in the evenings. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹₹

Peter Cat 18A Park St ☎033 2229 8841. This long-term favourite with diners and drinkers alike maintains a good reputation as a bar, offering drinks from cocktails to beer, as well as for its food including the much-lauded chelo kebab (an Indian-Iranian chicken kebab served on buttered rice). Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹

ENTERTAINMENT CINEMA CINEMAS SHOWING ENGLISH-LANGUAGE FILMS SEVERAL TIMES EACH DAY CAN BE FOUND ALONG CHOWRINGHEE NEAR ESPLANADE AND NEW MARKET. ALL ARE A/C, AND MANY ARE FINE EXAMPLES OF ART DECO. THE KOLKATA FILM FESTIVAL (🌐 KFF.IN) TAKES PLACE IN MID-NOV WITH FILMS SHOWN AT VENUES THROUGHOUT THE CITY.

CLASSICAL MUSIC KOLKATA HAS AN UNASSAILABLE REPUTATION AS THE MOST DISCERNING CENTRE OF CLASSICAL INDIAN MUSIC IN THE COUNTRY. THE MAIN CONCERT SEASON RUNS FROM WINTER TO SPRING, WITH THE HUGE WEEK-LONG DOVER LANE MUSIC CONFERENCE (🌐 DOVERLANEMUSICCONFERENCE.ORG), HELD IN SOUTH

KOLKATA AROUND THE END OF JAN AND EARLY FEB, ATTRACTING MANY OF INDIA'S BEST MUSICIANS. OTHER POPULAR VENUES FOR SINGLE- AND MULTIDAY FESTIVALS INCLUDE RABINDRA SADAN. OF THE MANY NONRELIGIOUS FESTIVALS EACH YEAR, THE GANGA UTSAV, HELD OVER A FEW WEEKS AROUND THE END OF JAN AT DIAMOND HARBOUR, INVOLVES MUSIC, DANCE AND THEATRICAL EVENTS.

Music classes One of the country's leading north-Indian classical music research institutes, Sangeet Research Academy in Tollygunge (☎033 2377 3395, www.itcsra.org) offers long-term courses in various music forms and a three-month short-term residential course. It also hosts free Wednesday-evening concerts as well as occasional concerts on Saturdays.

SHOPPING

MAP AND THIS MAP

Compared to Delhi and Mumbai, Kolkata has a fairly limited tourist shopping scene. However, there are many lively markets, including the wide-ranging New Market, as well as local institutions such as Barabazaar to the north and Gariahat Market, with its produce market best in the early mornings, in south Kolkata. Modern shopping malls – good for books, clothes, designer labels, leather, jewellery and restaurants – include Forum, 10/3 Elgin Rd (☎forumcourtyard.com); Emami Shoppers City at Lord Sinha Rd; South City Mall on Prince Anwar Shah Rd, south Kolkata; City Centre II at Rajarhat near the airport. Typical Bengali handicrafts to look out for include metal dokra items from the Shantiniketan region northwest of the city: animal and bird objects are roughly cast by a lost-wax process to give them a wiry look. Long-necked, pointy-eared terracotta horses from Bankura, in all sizes, have become something of a cliché. Kantha fabrics display delicate line stitching in decorative patterns. Bengal boasts several good centres of cotton and silk weaving, producing legendary saris such as the Baluchari style from Murshidabad.

BOOKS THE MONTH-LONG KOLKATA BOOK FAIR (☎KOLKATABOOKFAIR.NET), HELD AT THE MILAN MELA GROUND OFF THE EM BYPASS IN JAN AND FEB, IS ONE OF

THE BIGGEST OF ITS KIND IN THE WORLD AND IS AN EXCELLENT OPPORTUNITY TO PICK UP BOOKS AT A DISCOUNT. THE SHOPS AND THE ROADSIDE STALLS OF COLLEGE ST ARE WELL WORTH A BROWSE, WITH AN OCCASIONAL RARE GEM TURNING UP AMID STACKS OF SCIENCE AND COMPUTER STUDIES BOOKS.

Earthcare Books 10 Middleton St ☎033 2229 6551, earthcarebooks.com. Tucked away at the back of a yard, this small and modest but focused bookshop specializes in books on green issues, and publishes several titles itself too. Mon–Sat 10am–7pm.

Oxford Books & Stationery 17 Park St ☎033 2229 7662, oxfordbookstore.com. A smart a/c bookshop with a small music section and the Cha Bar café upstairs. Nice atmosphere, but the collection is relatively limited. Mon–Sat 10am–8pm.

Seagull 31A SP Mukherjee Rd ☎033 2476 5869, seagullindia.com. Small bookshop owned by interesting and creative publishers; its resource centre, a block away, has a library and holds special exhibitions and events. Mon–Sat 10am–6pm.

Starmark Emami Shoppers City, 3 Lord Sinha Rd ☎81001 20120, starmark.in. Extensive bookshop with an adequate range from fiction and travel to magazines as well as music and DVDs in a popular shopping complex. Other branches include South City Mall and City Centre, Salt Lake. Mon noon–8.30pm, Tues–Fri 10am–8.30pm, Sat 10am–9pm, Sun 10.30am–9pm.

TEXTILES AND HANDICRAFTS GOOD SELECTIONS OF MOST HANDICRAFTS, INCLUDING TEXTILES AND SARIS, CAN BE FOUND IN VARIOUS STATE EMPORIA, MANY OF WHICH, SUCH AS GUJARI (GUJARAT), ARE LOCATED IN THE LARGE DAKHSINAPAN SHOPPING COMPLEX SOUTH OF DHAKURIA BRIDGE NEAR GOL PARK AND THE LAKES. OFFERING FIXED (IF SLIGHTLY HIGH) PRICES, THESE ARE THE SIMPLEST PLACES TO START SHOPPING.

Assam 8 Russel St ☎033 2229 5094. Part of Assam House, selling handicrafts and textiles from Assam including fabrics in pat and moga, two techniques of silk manufacturing. Mon–Sat 10am–5pm.

Central Cottage Industries 7 Jawaharlal Nehru Rd, Chowringhee ☎033 2228 3205, www.cottageemporium.in. Part of the national chain, with handicrafts, jewellery, silver, and fabrics from all over India, though service is apathetic and the stock is a bit faded. Mon–Sat 9.30am–6pm.

Nagaland 13 Shakespeare Sarani ☎033 2282 1967. A fine assortment of Naga shawls, with red bands and white and blue stripes on black backgrounds. As with Scottish tartan, certain patterns denote particular tribes. Mon–Sat 10am–5pm.

Sasha 27 Mirza Ghalib St ☎033 6458 9421, www.sashaworld.com. This women's self-help group has a good collection of handicrafts and textiles including kantha. Mon–Sat 10am–7pm.

FABRICS AND CLOTHES ALONG WITH SEVERAL DESIGNER BOUTIQUES, A WIDE RANGE OF FABRIC IS AVAILABLE TO BUY AND OUTLETS CAN DIRECT YOU TOWARD GOOD (AND VERY CHEAP) TAILORS; THERE ARE SEVERAL AROUND MIRZA GHALIB ST AND NEW MARKET. YOU CAN STILL GET SHOES MADE TO ORDER AT ONE OF THE FEW REMAINING CHINESE SHOE SHOPS AROUND BENTINCK ST.

Anokhi 2nd Floor, Forum Mall, 10/3 Elgin Rd ☎033 2283 7251, www.anokhi.com. This branch of the national chain is renowned for its chic Rajasthani hand-printed cottons with a wide range from clothing to furnishing, though it's not cheap. Daily 10am–8pm.

By Loom 58B Hindusthan Park ☎033 2419 8727, www.byloom.co.in. A small but stunning selection of handicrafts, textiles and saris fusing traditional handlooms and contemporary design to great effect. Mon–Sat 10am–7pm.

Fabindia 16 Hindusthan Park near Gariahat ☎033 2465 6954, www.fabindia.com. Good selection of hand-printed kurtas and salwar kameez as well as shirts, fabrics and furnishings from this trendy chain boutique; they use natural dyes which run, so use a cool wash and separate colours. There are various other branches around town – check the website for details. Mon–Sat 11am–8.30pm.

Ritu Kumar 4 Woodburn Court Rd ☎033 2283 7310, www.ritukumar.com. Chic boutique for salwar kameez from a designer who started out here in Kolkata before rising to international fame dressing the likes of Princess Diana and Jemima Khan. Mon–Sat 10am–7pm.

Tia Pakhi 49/13 Hindustan Park ☎033 4000 1783, 🌐tiapakhi.com. Small but delightful selection of gifts and home furnishings featuring traditional craft with contemporary design, in this increasingly chic part of town. Mon–Sat 10am–7pm.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS KOLKATA IS RENOWNED FOR ITS SITAR AND SAROD MAKERS – EXPECT TO PAY UPWARDS OF ₹12500 FOR A DECENT INSTRUMENT, MUCH MORE FOR A PREMIUM ONE. SHOPS AROUND SUDDER ST ARE STRONGEST ON WESTERN INSTRUMENTS, BUT THEIR TRADITIONAL INSTRUMENTS ARE INVARIABLY OF INFERIOR QUALITY AND MAY BE BEYOND TUNING; RABINDRA SARANI (CHITPORE RD) HAS A CONCENTRATION OF SHOPS OF VARYING QUALITY, MANY CATERING TO THE WEDDING-BAND TRADE. KOLKATA MUST PRODUCE MORE TABLA PLAYERS THAN ANY OTHER CITY; TABLA MAKERS CAN BE FOUND NEXT TO KALIGHAT BRIDGE AND AT KESHAB SEN ST OFF COLLEGE ST.

Hemen & Co Triangular Park, Rashbehari Ave ☎033 2466 2607. The legendary Hemen & Co has made sarods for some famous musicians and makes pricey instruments to order; it's now run by the son of the original owner. Mon–Sat 10am–8pm.

Monoj Kumar Sardar & Bros 8A Lalbazaar St, opposite the police station ☎033 2237 5835, 🌐monojkrsardar.com. Monoj Kumar Sardar & Bros makes good sitars and sarods to order; it also has a small selection of off-the-shelf instruments. Mon–Sat 10am–8pm.

SPORTS SPORT IS ENTHUSIASTICALLY FOLLOWED IN KOLKATA, WITH FOOTBALL MATCHES (ATLÉTICO DE KOLKATA ARE THE LOCAL INDIAN SUPER LEAGUE TEAM; THEY WON THE FIRST COMPETITION IN 2014) AND CRICKET MATCHES BOTH DRAWING HUGE CROWDS (THE KOLKATA KNIGHT RIDERS ARE THE LOCAL IPL TEAM). THERE ARE TWO MAJOR STADIUM COMPLEXES, RANJI AT EDEN GARDENS AND SALT LAKE ON THE EASTERN EDGE OF THE CITY.

Hindusthan International Hotel 235-1 AJC Bose Rd ☎033 2247 2394, 🌐 hhihotels.com. This hotel allows non-residents to use its swimming pool on a daily basis (₹500).

The Maidan Home to the Calcutta Bowling Club and the Ladies Golf Club, is a favourite venue for impromptu cricket and football matches, and the scene of regular race meets in winter and spring run by the Calcutta Turf Club, which also has polo on the grounds at the centre of the racecourse. The curious sport of kabaddi, a fierce form of tag played by two teams on a pitch the size of a badminton court, can also be seen around here.

Royal Calcutta Golf Club 18, Golf Club Road, Tollygunge ☎033 2473 1352, 🌐 rcgc.in. Across the road from the superbly equipped Tollygunge Club — where (with the right connections) you might get to use the pool and tennis courts — this elite golf club is the world's second oldest after St Andrews in Scotland, dating back to 1829. Daily 6am–11pm.

DIRECTORY AMBULANCE CALL ☎102, OR THE RED CROSS ☎033 2248 3636; ST JOHN'S AMBULANCE BRIGADE ☎033 2476 1935; OR BELLE VUE CLINIC.

Banks and currency exchange Kolkata airport has a 24hr branch of the State Bank of India (SBI), as well as Thomas Cook at the international terminal. There are numerous private foreign-exchange bureaux around Sudder St, New Market and in the vicinity of Park St, some offering very competitive rates. Banks that offer foreign exchange around the centre include SBI, 38B Chowringhee Rd and 1 Strand Rd; Standard Chartered Bank, 41 Chowringhee Rd, and Citibank, 43 Chowringhee Rd. Other currency exchange bureaux include Thomas Cook, 19B Shakespeare Sarani (☎033 6652 6625, 🌐 thomascook.in; other offices at Salt Lake and Lake Gardens), and American Express, 21 Old Court House St, near the West Bengal Tourist Office (☎033 2248 9491, 🌐 americanexpress.com).

Consulates Bangladesh, 9 Circus Ave (Sheikh Mujib Sarani) (☎033 4012 7500); Bhutan, 48 Tivoli Court, 1A Ballygunge Circular Rd (☎033 4012 3999); Canada, Duncan House, 31 Netaji Subhash Rd (☎033 2242 6820); China, EC-72 Sector 1, Salt Lake (☎033 4004 8169); Germany, 1 Hastings Park Rd, Alipur (☎033 2479 1141); Myanmar (Burma), 57K Ballygunge Circular Rd (☎033 2485 1658); Nepal, 1 National Library Ave, Alipore (☎033 2456 1224); Singapore, 8 AJC Bose Rd (☎033 2247 4990); South Africa, 225D AJC Bose Rd (☎033 2247 4107); Sri Lanka, Nicco House, 2 Hare St (☎033 2248 5102); Thailand, 18B Mandeville Gardens (☎033 2440 7836); UK, 1A Ho Chi Minh Sarani (☎033 2288 5172); US, 5/1 Ho Chi Minh Sarani (☎033 3984 2400).

Hospitals Cheap, government-run hospitals are notoriously mismanaged, and private medical care, if expensive by comparison, is infinitely superior. In case of serious illness, you are best advised to contact your consulate. Good private clinics/hospitals include Belle Vue, 9 Loudon St (☎91630 58000, 🌐bellevueclinic.com), Ruby Hospital, EM Bypass, Kasba (☎033 3987 1800, 🌐rubyhospital.com); and Wood-lands Multispecialty Hospital, 8/5 Alipore Rd (☎033 4033 7000, 🌐woodlandshospital.in).

Permits and visas The Foreigners' Registration Office is at 237A AJC Bose Rd (☎033 2247 0549).

Pharmacies Deys Medical Stores, 6 Lindsay St and 20A Nelly Sengupta Sarani (☎033 2249 9810, 🌐deysmedical.com); Dhanwantary Clinic, 65 Diamond Harbour Rd (☎033 2449 1756, 🌐dhanwantary.com).

Police ☎100. The central police station is on Lal Bazaar St, BBD Bagh (☎033 2241 3230). Others include Park St (☎033 2226 8321).

Postal services The GPO, on the west side of BBD Bagh, houses the poste restante and a philatelic department. If you're staying in the Sudder St area, the New Market Post Office, Mirza Ghalib St, is much more convenient. Sending parcels is easiest from the large and friendly post office on Park St, where enterprising individuals will handle the entire process for you for a negotiable fee.

Around Kolkata There are several worthwhile attractions around Kolkata. The Hindu temples of Dakshineswar and Belur Math, and even the great Vaishnavite centres of Nabadip and Mayapur further north, can be taken in as day-trips on local trains from Kolkata's Sealdah and Howrah railway stations.

Dakshineswar 20km north of central Kolkata • Daily: Oct–March 6am–12.30pm & 3–8.30pm; April–Sept 6am–12.30pm & 3.30–9pm • Free • Local trains run from Sealdah to Dakshineswar At the edge of Kolkata, 20km north of Esplanade on the east bank of the river, the popular temple of Dakshineswar stands in the shadow of Bally Bridge. Built in 1855, it was a product of the Bengali Renaissance, consecrated at a time when growing numbers of middle-class Hindus were questioning their faith. Typical Bengali motifs – a curved roof reminiscent of local village huts, nine chhatris and beehive cupolas – dominate the design. The mystic and influential religious philosopher Ramakrishna once officiated here, and his room, beside the main gate, now houses a collection of his personal effects. His life is beautifully portrayed in Romain Rolland's biography, The Life of Ramakrishna. Not far from the main temple, Yogoday Satsanga Math is the headquarters of the Self-Realization Fellowship, founded in California in 1925 by the author of Autobiography of a Yogi, Paramahansa Yogananda.

Belur Math

Across the bridge from Dakshineswar, 3km south along the west bank of the Hooghly • Daily: April–Sept 6–11.30am & 4–7pm; Oct–March 6.30am–noon & 3.30–6pm • Free • ☎033 2654 1144, www.belurmath.org • Belur Math is best visited along with a trip to Dakshineswar; local trains run from Howrah (5 daily; 25min) The serene forty-acre riverfront campus of Belur Math was founded by a disciple of Ramakrishna, Swami Vivekananda, and completed (after his death) in 1938. The monastery houses temples and museums dedicated to the Mission. It incorporates elements from several world religions; the gate is inspired by early Buddhist sculpture, the windows by Islamic architecture, and the ground plan is based on the Christian cross. After the math closes in the evenings, you may stay for aarti (evening worship), held at the Sri Ramakrishna Temple, followed by meditation till around 8pm.

Nabadip and Mayapur An important centre for Vaishnava pilgrimage, the little town of NABADIP (or Nawadip) lies on the west bank of the Hooghly, around 100km north of Kolkata. Once the eleventh-century capital of Bengal under the Sen dynasty, Nabadip was also the home of Hindu sage Sri Chaitanya (1486–1533) and its temples are alive with his devotees singing kirtan (devotional song). A 50km padakrama, or foot pilgrimage, links the various Vaishnava sites spread across nine islands. Nabadip may be a Vaishnava town, but its most atmospheric temple is the Kali Bari at Poramatolla, tucked into the folds of one of the most impressive banyan trees you are ever likely to see.

Across the river from Boral Ghat, the jetty at Nabadip, the Vaishnava centre of Mayapur, run by the Hare Krishna sect of ISKCON, draws huge crowds at weekends, visitors thronging to the labyrinthine temple complex where a gigantic basilica is under construction. One way of exploring the area is on the afternoon boat ride that takes in some of the holy islands, but this is part pilgrimage and is accompanied with lectures.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY NABADIP AND MAYAPUR
TRAIN SEVERAL TRAINS FROM HOWRAH RUN TO NABADIP, 2.5KM FROM THE MAIN BORAL GHAT (AROUND ₹50 BY CYCLE RICKSHAW). AN ALTERNATIVE IS TO TAKE A TRAIN FROM SEALDAH TO KRISHNAGAR, THEN A BUS OR AUTO-RICKSHAW TO MAYAPUR GHAT AND THEN A FERRY.

Tourist information ISKCON's Mayapur Tourism Centre, opposite Gada Bhavan (☎03472 245219, www.visitmayapur.com), also organizes transport from Kolkata and you can book online.

ACCOMMODATION ISKCON'S SHRI MAYAPUR DHAM ☎03472 245219, www.visitmayapur.com. THE WELL-RUN MAYAPUR COMPLEX HAS A HUGE VARIETY OF ACCOMMODATION FROM SIMPLE PILGRIM ROOMS TO A/C SPLENDOUR IN ONE OF SEVERAL GUESTHOUSES. YOU CAN BOOK ONLINE.

BESIDES THE TWO DINING HALLS WITH SET MEAL TIMES, THERE IS A RESTAURANT OPEN TILL 9PM; THE ENTIRE SITE IS VEGETARIAN AND ALCOHOL IS FORBIDDEN. ₹900

The Sundarbans and the Gangetic Delta
South of Kolkata down to the coast, the Hooghly fringes one of the world's largest estuarine deltas, the Sundarbans, a 10,000-square-kilometre expanse of mangrove swamp and forested islets formed by silt swept down from the Himalayas and home to the world's largest population of tigers. Closer to the city, the former colonial port of Diamond Harbour is a popular weekend break and lies en route to Sagardwip, a sacred island where the Ganges reaches the sea. The expansive beaches of the delta provide quiet respite and are within easy reach of Kolkata.

Sundarbans Tiger Reserve Daily Sept–March dawn–dusk • All visitors need to pay an entry fee (₹50) to the national park at Sajnekhali The cluster of mangrove-covered islands known as the Sundarbans or “beautiful forest”, lie in the Ganges Delta, stretching east from the mouth of the Hooghly to Bangladesh. They are home to the legendary Royal Bengal tiger, which has adapted remarkably well to this watery environment, swimming from island to island and covering distances of as much as 40km in one day. The region has been designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site and its abundant wildlife also includes saltwater crocodiles, Gangetic dolphins, otters and monitor lizards. All the half-million or so people sharing this delicate ecosystem, regardless of religion, worship Bonbibi, the goddess of the forest, and her Muslim consort, Dakshin Rai, supreme ruler of the Sundarbans. (Amitav Ghosh's excellent novel The Hungry Tide brings this world vividly to life.) Along with a crocodile and turtle hatchery, the Project Tiger compound at Sajnekhali also houses a shrine to Bonbibi. There is a watchtower here, but others like Dobanki, where an aerial walkway skirts the top of the mangroves, and Netidhopani, which sits near the ruins of a 400-year-old temple, are far more attractive. As getting to the Sundarbans on your own is a laborious process, you might want to opt for an all-inclusive package tour. Be aware, though, that tiger sightings are rare.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY SUNDARBANS TIGER RESERVE ORGANIZED TOUR WBTDc ORGANIZE TWO- AND THREE-DAY PACKAGES WITH THE OPTION OF STAYING EITHER ON THE BOAT, AT THE SUNDERBAN TIGER CAMP OR AT THE SAJNEKHALI TOURIST LODGE (FROM ₹3000). HOWEVER, THE CRUISES CAN GET CROWDED AND NOISY. A BETTER OPTION, IN SEASON, VIVADA CRUISES (☎033 2463 1990, 🌐VIVADACRUISES.COM) OFFERS LUXURY CRUISES TO THE SUNDARBANS. ALTERNATIVELY, YOU CAN ARRANGE YOUR OWN BOAT AT GOSABA GHAT IN GODHKALI (SEE BELOW). TAILOR-MADE TOURS BY PRIVATE OPERATORS (FROM AROUND ₹20,000 FOR A THREE-DAY ITINERARY) ARE MORE PEACEFUL AND

LEISURELY: TRY KALI TRAVEL HOME, OR HIMALAYAN FOOTPRINTS, WHICH RUNS ITS OWN CAMP AND BOATS. HELP TOURISM ALSO HAS A DESERVEDLY GOOD REPUTATION.

By public transport Travelling independently, and not through a pre-arranged tour package, is an adventure in itself – take a train to Canning from Sealdah, a shared taxi from Canning to Godhkali, a ferry to Gosaba Bazaar, a rickshaw or cycle van to Pakhirala Tigar Mor (6km), and finally a ferry to Sajnekhali. Alternatively, take an early bus from Kolkata's Babu Ghat to Basanti (around 6 daily; 3hr; from 6.45am), an auto to Godhkali (Gosaba Ghat), a ferry to Gosaba Bazaar, and then as above. Scheduled ferries cross the estuarine channel from Pakhirala to Sajnekhali (generally 7am & 6pm) or you could negotiate a country boat; boats are also available at Godhkali or Dayapur near Gosaba.

GETTING AROUND BY BOAT ALL TRANSPORT WITHIN THE RESERVE IS BY BOAT, WHICH CAN BE RENTED FROM THE BOATMAN ASSOCIATION WITH THE HELP OF THE LODGE STAFF (FROM ₹1000 DEPENDING ON YOUR ITINERARY). YOU HAVE TO TAKE ALONG A PROJECT TIGER GUIDE (₹800 [₹500]) AND PAY AN ENTRY FEE OF ₹340. THE LOUD DIESEL MOTORS SCARE WILDLIFE AWAY, BUT WHEN THEY CUT THEIR ENGINES THE SILENCE IS AWESOME.

ACCOMMODATION THE ONLY ACCOMMODATION WITHIN THE RESERVE IS AT THE TOURIST LODGE AT SAJNEKHALI. ALL OTHER ACCOMMODATION IS ON THE FRINGES BUT SOME OF THESE ARE WELL MANAGED WITH ATTRACTIVE TOURS ARRANGED FROM KOLKATA.

Sajnekhali Tourist Lodge Sajnekhali; reservations: WBTDCL, 3/2 BBD Bagh, Kolkata ☎97325 09925, wbtdcl.com. This ramshackle lodge, raised on stilts, is devoid of all charm except for its unique access to the core forest; rooms are basic, over-priced and only the most expensive have a/c; rates include basic thali meals. The institutional atmosphere adds to a certain feeling of incarceration and you are best advised to remain upstairs after dark to avoid wild animal encounters. The boat ride option is thoroughly recommended. The compound also houses the Project Tiger office as well as a shrine to Bonbibi, and monitor lizards roam freely. No wi-fi. ₹2500

Sunderbans Jungle Camp & Sundergaon Earth Villa Bali Island 📞033 2455 0917, 🌐helptourism.com. Run by Help Tourism partly in conjunction with conservationist Belinda Wright, the camp on the edge of the reserve is a tasteful mix of rustic tradition and contemporary comfort. It has its own boat and employs local villagers. The all-inclusive package includes engagement with the community along with wildlife tours, and pick-up from Kolkata. ₹32,000

Sunderban Tiger Camp Opposite Sajnekhali, near Gosaba 📞87777 21013, 🌐sunderbantigercamp.com. Well-organized and popular place offering packages that include pick-up from south Kolkata and boat excursions. There are also daily cultural dances, movie screenings and village walks. Accommodation is in tented rooms, modern a/c rooms with verandahs, and more comfortable cottages. All have a/c and hot water, and all meals are included. Tented room ₹5000, huts ₹800, cottages ₹15,000

Along the Hooghly to the sea South of Kolkata the Hooghly merges with the delta, gaining girth rapidly as it approaches Sagardwip and the islands at the river's mouth. The river scenery is particularly popular with city folk at the weekends, who come to enjoy the breeze of Diamond Harbour, 50km south of Kolkata. At the far southern end of the delta, the casuarina-lined beaches provide a welcome retreat from the grime of Kolkata.

Hindus revere Sagardwip, also known as Sagar Island, as the point where the Ganges meets the sea. At the mouth of the Hooghly, it is accessible by ferry from Harwood Point near Diamond Harbour and from Namkhana further south. The confluence is venerated at the Kapil Muni Temple, on an island that bears the brunt of the savage Bay of Bengal cyclones and is gradually being submerged. On Makar Sankranti (mid-Jan), during the Sagar Mela, hundreds of thousands of pilgrims from all over India descend on the island, cramming into the water to bathe. Facilities are limited at the best of times, but alternatives include Diamond Harbour and the island beaches such as Bakkhali at the western reaches of the Sundarbans.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE TO DIAMOND HARBOUR THE TRIP DOWN TO DIAMOND ALONG THE HOOGHLY TO THE SEA HARBOUR FROM THE CITY, BY BUS OR TRAIN FROM SEALDAH STATION, IS A POPULAR DAY'S EXCURSION FOR KOLKATANS WHO COME TO ENJOY THE RIVER CRUISES.

To Sagardwip Direct buses from Esplanade travel to Harwood Point during the mela; the island can also be reached from Namkhana (3hr) on the suburban railway network from Kolkata's Sealdah station, from where the quiet casuarina-lined beach at Bakkhali is easily accessible. Once on Sagardwip, the temple is a further 32km from the ferry, and can be accessed by bus or taxi.

For Sagar Mela WBTDc organize a coach trip as well as a cruise (from ₹5000/person) to visit the mela. The advantage of the cruise is that you can stay on the boat and avoid the crush.

To Bakkhali Trains from Sealdah travel to Namkhana where a rickshaw takes you to a ferry and a bus to Bakkhali.

ACCOMMODATION DIAMOND HARBOUR GANGA KUTIR RESORT & SPA RAICHAK ☎85840 40624, 🌐

RAICHAKONGANGES.COM. LUXURIOUS RESORT FROM ONE OF BENGAL'S LEADING MARWARI DEVELOPERS, GANGA KUTIR IS ALL ABOUT CLASSY ROOMS, ITS SPA AND GOURMET RESTAURANT; NOT TO MENTION A DREAMY SWIMMING POOL THAT BLENDS SEAMLESSLY INTO THE RIVER GANGES SCENERY. THE SISTER PROPERTY, FORT SUITES, IS AN OLDER ESTABLISHMENT, WITH A MORE TRADITIONAL AMBIENCE. ₹7500

SAGARDWIP AND AROUND SAGARDWIP HAS LIMITED ACCOMMODATION, ESPECIALLY DURING THE MELA, WITH ONLY A HANDFUL OF LODGES, ASHRAMS AND DHARAMSHALAS OFFERING BASIC ACCOMMODATION; YOU'LL FIND MUCH GREATER CHOICE AT BAKKHALI. BRING MOSQUITO REPELLENT, AND IF STAYING AT SAGARDWIP, BRING YOUR OWN SLEEPING BAG.

Bakkhali Tourist Lodge Bakkhali 📞97325 10150, 🌐wbtdcl.com. Extensive government-run lodge, with elaborate garden and kitsch sculptures of a flock of flamingos. The a/c rooms and cottages are generously sized, and the lodge is the only accommodation here with direct access to the expansive beach beyond the casuarina trees. It has its own restaurant, and there are other places to eat in the vicinity. No wi-fi. Doubles ₹1900, cottages ₹2500

Bharat Seva Ashram Near Kapil Muni Temple, Sagardwip. Basic dharamshala near the temple, geared towards pilgrims and almost impossible to book during the mela; there are simple rice restaurants nearby for food. You are expected to give a donation, as suggested here, to the caretaker. No wi-fi. ₹300

Mandarmani Beach Some 180km southwest of Kolkata, not far from the Odishan border, is the village of Mandarmani, home to one of the most beautiful beaches in the region. The 13km-long stretch of sand is populated by red crabs and local fishermen but relatively few tourists, though there are several resort-style hotels, restaurants and souvenir stalls.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN MANDARMANI BEACH THE NEAREST RAILHEAD IS DIGHA, LINKED TO HOWRAH BY DAILY TRAINS (2–3 DAILY; 2HR 30MIN–3HR); THE 30KM JOURNEY FROM DIGHA TO MANDARMANI COSTS AROUND ₹600 IN A TAXI.

ACCOMMODATION ANUTRI BEACH RESORT 30KM EAST OF DIGHA 📞93314 28678, 🌐ANUTRIBEACH.COM. SMART RESORT, RIGHT ON THE SAND, IDEAL FOR DAYS OF RELAXATION ON THE BEACH. THE ROOMS ARE COMFORTABLE, IF RATHER BLAND (THE MORE EXPENSIVE ONES HAVE SEA VIEWS), AND THERE'S A SWIMMING POOL (COMPLETE WITH BAR), RESTAURANT AND CHILDREN'S PLAYGROUND; AT THE TIME OF RESEARCH THERE WERE ALSO PLANS FOR A SPA AND ANOTHER BAR. ₹3200

Central Bengal A low-lying rural region where the pace of life is in stark contrast to that of Kolkata, central Bengal has a few sights to tempt tourists off the Kolkata–Darjeeling route. Shantiniketan, built on the site of Rabindranath Tagore's father's ashram, is a haven of peace, and a must for anyone interested in Bengali music, art and culture. The other highlights of the region include a cluster of exquisite terracotta temples in Bishnupur, the ruins of Gaur, the region's seventh-century capital, and the palaces of Murshidabad, capital of Bengal's last independent dynasty. With the Maoist insurgency affecting the borders of Jharkhand and Odisha, the southwestern districts of Bengal have become too dangerous to visit.

Bishnupur

A sleepy backwater town 150km northwest of Kolkata, BISHNUPUR is a famous centre of Bengali learning, renowned above all for its exquisite terracotta temples. It was the capital of the Malla rajas, under whose patronage one of India's greatest schools of music developed. The roots of Bishnupur's long tradition of temple building are in the basic form of the domestic hut translated into temple architecture. Built of brick and faced with finely carved terracotta decoration, the temples combine striking simplicity of form with vibrant texture.

The temples

All daily dawn–dusk • ₹250 (₹10) pass for all sites Several temples lie scattered in a wide area around Bishnupur. Raas Mancha, built in 1587 by Bir Hambir in a unique pyramidal style, is used to display the images of Krishna and Radha during the annual Raas festival. Nearby, the well-preserved Shyamarai, built in 1643, is a particularly fine example of terracotta art, while the smaller Jorbangla has fine detail. The unassuming tenth-century Mrinmoyee temple encloses the auspicious nababriksha, nine trees growing as one. To the north of town and dating from 1694, the Madan Mohan, with its domed central tower and scenes from the life of Krishna, is one of the largest.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN OF THE BISHNUPUR EXPRESS TRAINS THAT CONNECT KOLKATA TO BISHNUPUR, THE RUPASHI BANGLA EXPRESS (#12883, RETURNING #12884) IS THE MOST CONVENIENT FOR A DAY-TRIP, DEPARTING SANTRAGACHI AT 6.25AM, ARRIVING AT 9.37AM.

ACCOMMODATION BASUDAH 16KM OUTSIDE BISHNUPUR, @ TRAVELEASTINDIA.COM. A RURAL IDYLL IN AN ADOBE FARMHOUSE, DEVOTED TO ORGANIC FARMING, CONSERVATION AND RESEARCH. THIS IS THE BEST WAY TO SEE BENGALI VILLAGE LIFE IN ALL ITS SIMPLICITY. KALI TRAVEL HOME ARRANGES THE RECOMMENDED THREE-DAY PACKAGE FROM KOLKATA, WHICH INCLUDES TRANSPORT. ₹ ₹ ₹

Bishnupur Tourist Lodge Near Raas Mancha wbtdcl.com, reserve via the WBTDCL. Sprawling, state-run complex, with a range of fair-sized plain rooms from basic doubles to larger a/c options, is the most convenient for visiting the sites. The restaurant serves standard Bengali meals. Book well ahead during the festival season. ₹

Shantiniketan Despite rapid growth and encroachment into the tribal Santhal habitat, the peaceful haven of SHANTINIKETAN, 136km northwest of Kolkata, remains a world away from the clamour and grime of the city. Founded by Nobel Laureate Rabindranath Tagore in 1921 on the site of his father's ashram, both the settlement and its liberal arts university Visva-Bharati were designed to promote the best of Bengali culture. Towards the end of the Bengali Renaissance, Tagore's vision and immense talent inspired a whole way of life and art; the university and school still operate under this momentum.

Centred around the Uttarayan complex of buildings, designed by Tagore, the university is very much in harmony with its surroundings, despite its recent growth as Kolkatans have settled or built holiday homes nearby. Well-known graduates include Indira Gandhi and Satyajit Ray, and departments such as Kala Bhavan (art) and Sangeet Bhavan (music) still attract students from all over the world.

The renowned Bauls, Bengal's wandering minstrels, who play a unique style of folk music, gather during the afternoon at the informal shanibarer haat (Saturday market) held under the trees by Shantiniketan's canal, where Shantal tribals also gather to sell their crafts. The large fair of Poush Mela, between December 22 and 25, attracts numerous Bauls each year.

Kala Bhavan Archive Daily except Tues 10am–5pm • Free, with special permission from the head of department The Kala Bhavan Archive houses twentieth-century Bengali sculpture and painting, including works by eminent artists such as Abanendranath and Gaganendranath Tagore, Nandalal Bose and Rabindranath Tagore himself, as well as a collection of Chinese and Japanese art.

Vichitra Museum Uttarayan • Mon & Thurs–Sun 10.30am–1pm & 2–4.30pm, Tues 10.30am–1pm • Charge Also known as the Rabindra Bhavan Museum, the Vichitra Museum captures the spirit of Rabindranath Tagore's life and work with a collection of his paintings, manuscripts and personal effects, though it's probably only really of interest to aficionados.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN SHANTINIKETAN
BOLPUR, 3KM SOUTH OF SHANTINIKETAN, IS THE NEAREST RAILWAY STATION, ON THE MAIN LINE BETWEEN KOLKATA AND DARJEELING, SERVED BY SEVERAL TRAINS VIA BURDDHAMAN (OR BURDWAN). THE BEST TRAIN FOR BOLPUR FROM KOLKATA IS THE SHANTINIKETAN EXPRESS #12337, WHICH LEAVES HOWRAH AT 10.10AM AND TERMINATES AT BOLPUR AT 12.25PM, RETURNING TO HOWRAH AGAIN SOME 30MIN LATER. BAUL SINGERS OCCASIONALLY BUSK IN SECOND-CLASS CARRIAGES. IF YOU'RE HEADING ON FROM SHANTINIKETAN TO DARJEELING, THE BEST OF THE DAILY EXPRESS TRAINS IS THE DARJEELING MAIL #12343, WHICH STOPS LATE AT NIGHT (12.28AM) IN BOLPUR BUT ARRIVES IN NEW JALPAIGURI (NJP) AT 8AM THE NEXT MORNING. THE BEST DAYTIME TRAIN IS THE KANCHENJUNGA EXPRESS #15657, WHICH DEPARTS AT 9.14AM AND ARRIVES AT NJP AT 6.15PM. RESERVATIONS ARE AVAILABLE FROM THE SHANTINIKETAN RESERVATIONS COUNTER (MON–SAT 10AM–3PM) NEAR THE POST OFFICE, THOUGH THIS HAS LIMITED QUOTAS; THE COMPUTERIZED RESERVATIONS COUNTER AT BOLPUR STATION OFFERS MORE CHOICE.

RABINDRANATH TAGORE THE BENGALI POET AND LITERARY GIANT RABINDRANATH TAGORE (1861–1941) HAS INSPIRED GENERATIONS OF ARTISTS, POETS AND MUSICIANS. HE DEVELOPED AN EARLY INTEREST IN THEATRE, AND SET HIS POEMS TO

MUSIC – THIS WAS TO BECOME, AS RABINDRA SANGEET, ONE OF THE MOST POPULAR MUSICAL TRADITIONS IN BENGAL. INTRODUCED TO ENGLAND AND THE WEST BY THE PAINTER WILLIAM ROTHENSTEIN AND THE POET W.B. YEATS, TAGORE HAD HIS COLLECTION OF POEMS, GITANJALI, FIRST PUBLISHED IN TRANSLATION IN 1912, AND THE FOLLOWING YEAR WAS AWARDED THE NOBEL PRIZE FOR LITERATURE. THOUGH HE PREFERRED TO WRITE IN BENGALI, AND ENCOURAGED AUTHORS IN OTHER INDIAN LANGUAGES, HE WAS ALSO A MASTER OF ENGLISH PROSE. NOT UNTIL HE WAS IN HIS 70S DID HIS TALENT AS AN ARTIST AND PAINTER EMERGE, DEVELOPED FROM SCRIBBLINGS ON THE BORDERS OF HIS MANUSCRIPTS. TAGORE WAS AN ENORMOUS INSPIRATION TO MANY, INCLUDING HIS STUDENTS, THE ILLUSTRIOUS PAINTER NANDALAL BOSE, AND LATER THE FILM-MAKER SATYAJIT RAY, WHO BASED SEVERAL OF HIS FILMS ON THE WORKS OF THE MASTER.

By bus The main bus stand is at Jamboni, 2km west towards Surul with connections to Kendubilwa (Kenduli) and Rampurhat (Tarapith) among other destinations.

By cycle rickshaws or bike Cycle rickshaws are the chief means of transport in the area and generally very reliable, but the best way to experience Shantiniketan is to cycle – ask at your hotel or at one of the bicycle shops along the main road.

ACCOMMODATION THE SHANTINIKETAN AREA HOLDS A REASONABLE AMOUNT OF ACCOMMODATION, WITH SEVERAL OPTIONS ALONG THE NOISY MAIN

SHANTINIKETAN–BOLPUR RD, AND MORE APPEALING PLACES AROUND THE FRINGES OF THE CAMPUS AND ESPECIALLY SHYAMBATI WHERE THERE IS A SMALL CHOICE. EXPECT TO PAY A LOT MORE DURING POUH MELA, WHEN YOU ARE ADVISED TO BOOK WELL AHEAD.

★Rare Earth Farms & Homestay Bautijole, Bolpur 080173 20752 and 98301 19546, Set amid peaceful countryside, this rustic yet modern farmhouse offers impeccable and charming rooms paired with very attentive service. Meals (₹400) are prepared in a firewood oven, using their own organically grown vegetables, and it's a delight to kick back at night, enjoying nature and the sound of crickets. They organise pickups at Bolpur railway station. Breakfast included. ₹₹

Shantiniketan Tourist Lodge Bolpur Tourist Lodge Rd 097321 00920, reservations 033 2334 4062, wbtdcl.com. Large state-run place midway between Bolpur and Shantiniketan, with some a/c rooms, good-value cottages, a pleasant garden and a restaurant. The a/c rooms, however, are a bit overpriced. ₹₹

EATING ALCHA RATAN PALLI 083730 60755, ALCHASHOP.COM. A DELIGHTFUL LITTLE GARDEN CAFÉ THAT COMBINES A BOOKSHOP, A LIBRARY (REFUNDABLE DEPOSIT), A GALLERY AND A SMALL BUT EXCELLENT BOUTIQUE SELLING CLOTHES AND FURNISHINGS; IT'S ALSO GOOD FOR BREAKFASTS, GRILLED SANDWICHES, SNACKS AND CAKES DAILY 8–10.30AM & 4–8PM. ₹

Ghare Baire Gitanjali Complex, Siuri Rd 099325 88220. This is as smart as it gets in Shantiniketan, with a pleasant ambience and an eclectic menu including mocktails, Chinese dishes for when you need to get away from dhal bhaat, and south Indian food. But the Bengali cuisine is best – try the special thali with fish or mutton or the more economical vegetarian version. Daily noon–8pm. ₹₹₹

Tarapith

One of the most important centres of Tantric Hinduism, TARAPITH is easily visited on a day-trip and features in William Dalrymple's book Nine Lives. The temple and the cremation ground, in a grove beside the river littered with shrines 50km north of Shantiniketan, are popular with Tantric sadhus, and it's not uncommon to witness rituals involving skulls and cremation ashes. The temple, in a perpetually busy courtyard, is dedicated to the mysterious and feared goddess Tara, who appears here with a silver face and large eyes. The lanes leading to the temple are a hive of activity where pilgrims procure offerings and liaise with temple priests (panda) to officiate in deeply personal ceremonies.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN THE TARAPITH
GANADEVTA EXPRESS #13017 DEPARTS HOWRAH AT 6.05AM,
PASSING THROUGH BOLPUR NEAR SHANTINIKETAN (8.44AM)
AND ARRIVING AT RAMPURHAT RAILWAY STATION, 8KM
NORTH OF TARAPITH, AT 10.12AM; THE 4.35PM RAMPURHAT
EXPRESS #12348 RETURNS VIA SHANTINIKETAN. BUY TICKETS
IN ADVANCE – AS THE TIME OF DEPARTURE APPROACHES, THE STATION AND THE FOOTBRIDGES BECOME UNCOMFORTABLY CHAOTIC.

By auto-rickshaw Shared tempos (auto-rickshaws), the main mode of public transport, regularly ply the path between Tarapith and Rampurhat station (around ₹50).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING AMANTRAN RAMPURHAT
RD, 3KM FROM THE TEMPLE ☎03461 253133, 🌐
AMANTRANGROUPTARAPITH.COM. THIS WELCOMING
PLACE OFFERS A WIDE SELECTION OF SLEEPING OPTIONS INCLUDING ECONOMICAL, SMALL NON-A/C COTTAGES.
THERE'S A GOOD RESTAURANT AND BAR, PLEASANT
GARDEN WITH A SMALL LAKE AND A NON-CHLORINATED
SWIMMING POOL. ₹

Sonar Bangla Rampurhat Rd ☎97321 27224, 🌐 hotelsonarbangla.com/tarapith. This is the most luxurious hotel in the town centre with an incongruous resort-like atmosphere, with a large landscaped garden and pool. The non-a/c rooms are overpriced; the best, and most expensive, rooms are those clustered around the pool; all are rather garish. The restaurant has an extensive menu but service is slow. ₹₹

Kendubilwa

The town of KENDUBILWA, also known as Kenduli, 42km west of Shantiniketan on the bank of a wide shallow river, is the birthplace of Jaidev, the author of Gita Govinda, and the spiritual home of the Bauls. Its small terracotta temple is engulfed each year in mid-January when the Jaidev Mela attracts streams of pilgrims, as well as a collection of yogis and sadhus who gather among the banyan trees to hear the Bauls perform through the night. Over the years the mela has grown to include a wide range of stalls and a funfair. During the mela, special buses leave regularly from Bolpur (2hr).

Murshidabad

Set in the brilliant green landscape of rural Bengal and close to the commercial town of Behrampur, MURSHIDABAD, 219km north of Kolkata, represents the grand and final expression of independent Bengal before the arrival of the British. Several eighteenth-century monuments along the banks of the Hooghly stand as melancholic reminders of its days as the last independent capital of Bengal.

Established early in the eighteenth century by the Nawab Murshid Quli Khan, Murshidabad was soon eclipsed when the forces of Siraj-ud-Daula were defeated by Robert Clive at the Battle of Plassey in 1757, as a result of which the British came to dominate Bengal from the new city of Calcutta. Clive described Murshidabad as equal to London, with several palaces and seven hundred mosques; today most of its past glory lies in ruins, though it is still renowned for cottage industries, especially silk weaving.

Murshidabad's intriguing mixture of cultures is reflected in its varied architectural styles, which range from the columned Hazarduari to the Katra Mosque, built by Murshid Quli Khan in the style of the mosque at Mecca. A large oxbow lake, the Moti Jheel or Pearl Lake, guards the desolate ruins of Begum Ghaseti's palace, where Siraj-ud-Daula reigned before his defeat, and which was subsequently occupied for a while by Robert Clive. To the south and across the river, Khushbagh, the Garden of Delight, holds the tombs of many of the nawabs and their families, including Alivardi Khan and Siraj-ud-Daula.

Hazarduari

Lalbagh • Mon–Thurs & Sat 10am–4.30pm • ₹250 (₹10) • www.murshidabad.net

Hazarduari, the nawab's Italianate palace, designed by General Duncan Macleod of the Bengal Engineers, with its mirrored banqueting hall, circular durbar room, armoury and library of fine manuscripts, is now a museum; some of the paintings are in dire need of restoration, but the portrait collection is excellent.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE THE MAIN MURSHIDABAD TRANSPORT HUB FOR MURSHIDABAD IS BEHRAMPUR, 11KM
TO THE SOUTH. AUTO-RICKSHAWS (AROUND ₹50), CYCLE
RICKSHAWS AND FERRIES PROVIDE ACCESS TO THE SITES OF MURSHIDABAD.

By train Trains run to Behrampur from stations in Kolkata (up to 11 daily; 4–6hr), including the Hazarduari Express #13113 (6.50am from Kolkata station) which also stops at Murshidabad (10.42am); there is more choice from Azimganj, 20km and around ₹800–1000 taxi-ride away.

By bus Most long-distance buses arrive and depart from Behrampur station with connections to Kolkata's Esplanade (every 1–2hr; 5–6hr), as well as Malda (every 1–2hr; 3hr 30min).

By ferry A regular short ferry service (daily 1–2 hourly 8am–5pm; around 20min) from near Hazarduari in Lalbagh is the only direct means of access to places across the river, including Khushbagh.

ACCOMMODATION MANJUSHA NEAR HAZARDUARI ☎03482
70321, www.hotelmanjusha.com. THIS IS A WELCOMING PLACE, BEAUTIFULLY SITUATED, OVERLOOKING THE TIMELESS RIVER. HOWEVER, THE ROOMS ARE DISAPPOINTINGLY DINGY. THE CATERING IS POOR BUT A SHORT WALK ALONG THE RIVER LEADS TO RESTAURANTS.
HOWEVER, THE EARLY MORNING BOAT RIDE, WHICH CAN BE ARRANGED HERE, TO KHUSHBAGH IS THOROUGHLY
RECOMMENDED. ₹700

Sunshine Panchanantala, Behrampur ☎94752 27453, www.hotelsunshine3star.com. With a handy location close to the main highway and away from the chaos of central Behrampur, yet not far from

Murshidabad if you have transport. It's been recently renovated, and now boasts comfortable, large rooms, and there's a good restaurant too. ₹2200

Malda and around Famous for its delicious mangoes, the large, rather unattractive commercial town of MALDA, located some 340km north of Kolkata, makes a good base to explore the historic sites of Gaur and Pandua, both of which were once capitals of Bengal.

Gaur

Spread across a landscape of lush paddy fields, Gaur, 16km south of Malda, was the seventh-century capital of King Sasanka, and then successively belonged to the Buddhist Palas and the Senas. The latter, the last Hindu kings of Bengal, were violently displaced by the Muslims at the start of the thirteenth century. Gaur was sacked in 1537 by Sher Shah Suri, and its remaining inhabitants wiped out by plague in 1575.

The city lay buried in silt for centuries, but a series of excavations have revealed the extensive remains of a city that once boasted more than a million inhabitants. Recent finds include a vast brick palace complete with waterways and a mint. A ghat with chains for anchoring barges suggests that the River Ganges may have once flowed past the palace. Elsewhere, Gaur's sites include various large tanks, such as the 1.5km long Sagar Dighi from 1126, and the extensive embankments. Dakhil Darwaza, an impressive red-brick gateway built in 1425 during the Muslim period, leads into the Fort, in the southeast corner of which a colossal wall encloses the ruins of the old palace. The Qadam Rasul Mosque nearby was built in 1531 to contain the Prophet's footprint in stone.

Pandua

The splendid Adina Masjid at PANDUA, 18km north of Malda, was built around 1370 and was the largest mosque in the Subcontinent in its day. It now lies in ruins, but these still betray the origin of much of the building materials – carved basalt masonry from earlier Hindu temples was used to support 88 brick-built arches and 378 identical small domes, the design following that of the eighth-century mosque of Damascus. Other monuments include the Eklakhi mausoleum – one of the first square brick tombs in Bengal, with a carved Ganesh on the doorway, and Qutb Shahi Masjid, or the Golden Mosque.

ARRIVAL AND GETTING AROUND BY MALDA AND AROUND TRAIN MALDA TOWN RAILWAY STATION, NEAR THE CENTRE, IS ON THE MAIN LINE BETWEEN KOLKATA AND NORTH BENGAL, SERVED BY SEVERAL GOOD TRAINS SUCH AS THE KANCHENJUNGA EXPRESS #15657/15658 (FROM SEALDAH; DAILY 6.35AM, ARRIVES 1.35PM, AND THEN CONTINUES ON TO NEW JALPAIGURI AT 6.15PM).

By taxi Taxis to both Gaur and Pandua charge around ₹3000 for the day.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING GOLDEN PARK NH-34, 8KM NORTH OF TOWN ☎03512 262251, 🌐HOTELGOLDENPARK.COM. MALDA'S SMARTEST HOTEL, OUTSIDE TOWN BUT CONVENIENT FOR A VISIT TO PANDUA, OFFERS CLEAN, COMFORTABLE ROOMS, A/C AND A DECENT RESTAURANT, COFFEE SHOP AND BAR; FACILITIES INCLUDE A TRAVEL DESK. THE HOTEL IS POPULAR FOR EVENTS INCLUDING WEDDINGS, BUT AT OTHER TIMES CAN FEEL SOULLESS. ₹₹

Purbanchal NH-34 ☎03512 266183. One of a clutch of budget business hotels dotted around the town centre, with a range of rooms including some a/c; choose one away from the highway to avoid noise. The hotel has one of the better restaurants in town but the dimly lit bar is best avoided as it attracts a seedy crowd in the evenings. ₹

Darjeeling and North Bengal North Bengal, where the Himalayas soar from the flat alluvial plains towards Nepal, Sikkim and Bhutan, holds some magnificent mountain panoramas, as well as a number of India's most attractive hill stations. Most visitors pass as quickly as possible through Siliguri en route to Darjeeling, Kalimpong and the small, mountainous state of Sikkim. If you've time on your hands, it's worth making a detour east of Siliguri to explore the sub-Himalayan Dooars, with its patchwork of tea gardens and forests that encompasses the Jaldapara Wildlife Sanctuary, home to the one-horned rhino, bison and wild boar.

The region has its fair share of political turmoil. The Gurkhaland movement, centred around Darjeeling, and the Kamtapuri Liberation Front, which purports to represent most of north Bengal south to Malda, has called for a complete break from the state of West Bengal. Occasional strikes can paralyse the Darjeeling hills and affect traffic. Tourist traffic is usually allowed to exit the district, but you may have to pay an exorbitant fee to the taxi driver. You should check the press and with your hotel before travelling to the region.

Siliguri and New Jalpaiguri A major commercial hub and Bengal's second city, ever-expanding SILIGURI has a thriving tea-auction centre and serves as the gateway to Darjeeling, Kalimpong, Sikkim and Bhutan. Together with its main railway station, New Jalpaiguri – commonly referred to as NJP – and the airport at Bagdogra, it forms an unavoidable link between the rail and air connections to Kolkata and Delhi, and the roads up into the mountains. The border with Nepal at Kakarbitta nearby is open to tourists, though the bus journey from here to Kathmandu is an arduous one. Most tourists pass straight through Siliguri, but travel connections may mean that you have to stop overnight. Besides teeming bazaars such as Bidhan Market, there's little of interest to see save the impressive Tashi Gomang Stupa (daily 5am–noon & 1–5pm) inside the Salugara Monastery in the small Tibetan enclave 2km or so from the centre on Sevoke Road. The Darjeeling Himalayan Railway's route to Darjeeling leaves at 8.30am daily, climbing up the Himalayan foothills all the way to Ghoom.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE SILIGURI AND NEW JALPAIGURI BY PLANE OR HELICOPTER BAGDOGRA AIRPORT, 12KM WEST OF SILIGURI, IS SERVED BY FLIGHTS FROM DELHI, KOLKATA, GUWAHATI, BHUTAN AND BANGKOK. HELICOPTERS TO GANGTOK (DAILY 11AM & 2.30PM; ₹3500) LEAVE FROM BAGDOGRA, WEATHER PERMITTING, ONLY WITH A FULL LOAD OF FIVE PASSENGERS AND WITH A MAXIMUM BAGGAGE ALLOWANCE OF 10KG; RESERVE IN ADVANCE VIA THE SIKKIM TOURISM DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION, WHICH HAS A COUNTER AT THE AIRPORT (☎ 03592 201372, www.sikkimstdc.com), OR AT THE TOURIST SERVICE AGENCY (TSA) IN PRADHAN NAGAR, THE LANE OPPOSITE SILIGURI BUS TERMINAL (☎ 0353 251 0872 OR 09434 467236).

BY TRAIN NEW JALPAIGURI (NJP) STATION SILIGURI HAS ITS OWN RAILWAY STATION, BUT THE NEW JALPAIGURI (NJP) STATION, 4KM EAST, IS THE MAIN RAIL JUNCTION IN THE REGION, WITH TRAINS TO AND FROM KOLKATA, DELHI AND ASSAM. RESERVATIONS CAN BE MADE ONLINE, AT THE STATION ITSELF, OR AT THE CENTRAL RAILWAY BOOKING OFFICE (DAILY 8AM–4PM), BIDHAN RD, NEAR KANCHENJUNGA STADIUM IN SILIGURI. THE BEST TRAIN TO KOLKATA IS THE DARJEELING MAIL #12344 (DEPARTS 5.35PM; 10HR 36MIN), WHICH TERMINATES AT SEALDAH. THE MOST CONVENIENT TRAIN FOR DELHI IS THE EFFICIENT RAJDHANI EXPRESS #12423 (DEPARTS 1.15PM; 21HR); IT ALSO PASSES THROUGH PATNA (8HR 35MIN), WHICH HAS CONNECTIONS FOR GAYA/BODHGAYA. THE RAJDHANI #12435 (MON & FRI; DEPARTS 12.15PM; 13HR 25MIN) STOPS AT VARANASI; ON OTHER DAYS TAKE THE RAJDHANI #12423 (DEPARTS 1.15PM) AND CHANGE AT MUGHAL SARAI (11HR 52MIN). FOR GUWAHATI, YOU'LL WANT TO TAKE THE SARAIGHAT EXPRESS #12345 (DEPARTS 2.00AM; 7HR 55MIN).

Auto-rickshaws and taxis Cycle and auto-rickshaws (around ₹60 and ₹150) ply the route between NJP and Siliguri, battling through the often-gridlocked market, while shared Vikrams (auto-taxis) are an even cheaper alternative; totos (e-rickshaws) will charge ₹100-150, and taxis charge around ₹500. Use the prepaid booth outside the main station for local and long-distance journeys in auto-rickshaws as well as taxis.

BY TAXI TAXIS BOOKED THROUGH THE PREPAID COUNTER AT BAGDOGRA AIRPORT OFFER ROUTES DIRECTLY TO SILIGURI (FROM ₹500), DARJEELING (FROM ₹2000), KALIMPONG (FROM ₹2000) AND GANGTOK (FROM ₹2400), THOUGH YOU CAN OFTEN NEGOTIATE CHEAPER FARES FROM THE STAND OUTSIDE THE GATES WITH RETURNING TAXIS.

BY BUS OR SHARED JEEP TENZING NORGAY BUS TERMINAL MOST BUSES ARRIVING AT SILIGURI TERMINATE AT THE TENZING NORGAY BUS TERMINAL ON HILL CART RD AT PRADHAN NAGAR, CLOSE TO MOST HOTELS AND TAXIS TO DARJEELING. OVERNIGHT VOLVO “LUXURY” BUSES TO KOLKATA (12HR) ARE AN ALTERNATIVE TO THE TRAIN AND HAVE THE ADVANTAGE OF DEPOSITING YOU IN ESPLANADE, NEAR THE CENTRAL SUDDER ST AREA. HOWEVER, THE ROADS ARE DIRE, SO BE PREPARED FOR A SEVERE

RATTLING. GUPTA TOUR & TRAVELS (☎97331 08246, 🌐GUPTATRAVELSAGENCY.CO.IN), OPPOSITE THE HERITAGE HOTEL, PRADHAN NAGAR, ARE MORE COMFORTABLE BUT USUALLY NEED PRIOR BOOKING; CHEAPER ALTERNATIVES INCLUDE THE ROCKET BUS, BOOKED AT TNBT (☎0353 251 8879). STANDARD BUSES RUN FROM SILIGURI TO KOLKATA, PATNA AND GUWAHATI, ALTHOUGH THE TRAIN IS FAR MORE COMFORTABLE. FREQUENT BUSES ALSO TRAVEL TO CHALSA AND MADARIHAT, CONVENIENT FOR THE WILDLIFE SANCTUARIES.

To Darjeeling and Kalimpong The easiest way to get to Darjeeling is by shared jeep. These depart from in front of NJP station, and Sevoke More and Tenzing Norgay Bus Terminal in Siliguri, where jeep transport syndicates have their own ticket booths and the prices are fixed. Shared taxis to Darjeeling depart when full (3–5hr; ₹200-250). For a bit more comfort, take two seats up in front or a whole taxi (negotiate with returning taxis for reduced rates). Shared taxis to Kalimpong (3–5hr) depart from Panitanki More across the bridge while buses to Kalimpong depart from around the bus terminal.

To Sikkim Regular buses and shared jeeps run to Gangtok from around the bus terminus in Pradhan Nagar. Sikkim Nationalized Transport, opposite the bus terminus (daily 6am–4pm; ☎0353 251 1496, 🌐sntd.in), runs bus services to Gangtok (several departures between 8.30am–3.00pm), and other points in Sikkim. Get a Sikkim permit from Sikkim Tourism next door or get one at the border (carry two photographs and photocopies of your passport and Indian visa); shared jeeps are also obtainable here and on the main road outside the gates. There are also helicopter flights from Bagdogra.

To Kathmandu To reach Kathmandu in Nepal, travel to Panitanki, the crossing (24hr) on the Indian side of the border, and use a cycle rickshaw (around ₹50) to get to the Nepalese side at Kakarbitta (daily 7am–7pm), where there is a decent choice of accommodation if you arrive late. Shared taxis, regular buses from the terminal or outside it and taxis (around ₹1000) travel to Panitanki, where you can pick up a Nepalese visa for US$25/40/100 in cash for 15, 30 or 90 days. Kakarbitta offers a greater choice of onward buses to Kathmandu (17hr), or you could make a stop at the tea estates of Ilam and Dhankuta nearby. For a lot more luxury, take a Buddha Air (about US$140; book online; www.buddhaair.com) flight from Bhadrapur (25km and a 45min taxi ride from Kakarbitta) to Kathmandu.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST INFORMATION WEST BENGAL'S TOURIST OFFICE (WBTDC; MON–FRI 10.30AM–4PM; ☎0353 251 7561), OPPOSITE THE TENZIN NORGAY BUS STATION, BOOKS ROOMS IN TOURIST LODGES IN PLACES SUCH AS JALDAPARA WILDLIFE SANCTUARY AND OFFERS WILDLIFE PACKAGE TOURS; AT THE NEXT DESK, THE FOREST DEPARTMENT OFFICER BOOKS FOREST LODGES SUCH AS AT LAVA NEAR NEORA VALLEY. THERE ARE INFORMATION-ONLY TOURIST COUNTERS AT NJP STATION AND BAGDOGRA AIRPORT.

Sikkim Tourism Opposite the bus stand in the same compound as Sikkim Nationalized Transport, the Sikkim Tourist Office (SNT Colony, Hill Cart Rd; Mon–Sat 10am–4pm; ☎0353 251 2646, www.sikkimtourism.gov.in), provides information and Sikkim permits.

Tour operators Siliguri's best private tour operator, Help Tourism, 1st Floor, Malati Bhavan, 143 Hill Cart Rd (☎0353 253 5896, helptourism.com), organizes wildlife tours, village homestays, and treks and tours off the beaten track.

ACCOMMODATION IT IS WORTH NOTING THAT SOME OF THE CHEAP HOTELS AROUND THE BUS TERMINAL – THE DELHI AND THE SHERE-E-PUNJAB IN PARTICULAR – HAVE DUBIOUS REPUTATIONS, ESPECIALLY IN THEIR TREATMENT OF FEMALE GUESTS.

Marina's Motel Naxalbari Rd, Bagdogra, www.marinasmotel.com. A pleasant mid-range option, handy both for the airport (free transfers are provided) and the Nepal border at Kakarbitta. It offers comfy rooms, a peaceful garden, and several places to eat and drink. ₹₹₹

Nirvana 18 Patel Rd, Pradhan Nagar ☎9832 014001. Right behind Khana Khazana restaurant, this conveniently located multistorey block offers a bit more comfort than the similar Apsara next door. The small, carpeted rooms come with private bathrooms. Best suited for a one night stay. ₹

Sinclairs Pradhan Nagar 📞sinclairshotels.com/siliguri. Smart old hotel that remains popular for its convenient location near the cross-roads to Darjeeling and for all points including the airport. Comfort-able, if a bit overpriced, with large refurbished rooms, a good restaurant, a garden and a (summer only) swimming pool. ₹₹₹

Vinayak Hill Cart Rd, 📞vinayakonline.com. A reliable low-cost hotel conveniently located in the centre of town yet close to the taxi stands, with a choice of small but adequate rooms; the cheapest options only have fans. The restaurant downstairs serves good Bengali food. ₹

EATING HASHTAG THE PLANET, SEVOKE RD 📞098320 99995, A VERY PLEASANT PUB AND EATERY AND A GOOD STOP FOR TRAVELLERS AS IT SERVES EVERYTHING FROM KEBABS TO FRIED RICE TO A GOOD SELECTION OF COCKTAILS. DAILY NOON–11.30PM. ₹₹₹

★Punjabi Kadhai Siddhi Arcade, Sevoke Rd 📞0353 254 5678, 📞punjabikadhai.in. Perhaps the best place to eat in Siliguri, situated around 1km from the centre, this restaurant serves top-notch Punjabi cuisine (as well as less-good Chinese and “fusion” food): the award-winning kebabs – marinated overnight and then fired in the tandoor – are not to be missed. Daily noon–10pm. ₹₹₹

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE STATE BANK OF INDIA, MANGALDEEP BUILDING, HILL CART RD, OR COX & KINGS, GANESHAYAN BUILDING, SEVOKE RD (📞98510 00802, 📞COXANDKINGS.COM) HOSPITALS NEOTIA GETWEL, UTTORAYON (📞0353 305 3030, 📞NEOTIAGETWELSILIGURI.COM). WITH STATE-OF-THE-ART FACILITIES, THIS IS BY FAR THE BEST HOSPITAL IN THE REGION, SERVICING THE HILLS AND SIKKIM AS WELL.

Post office The main post office is on Kacheri Rd, with branches near the Central Railway Booking Office and the bus terminal.

Jaldapara Wildlife Sanctuary Daily mid-Sept to mid-June dawn–dusk • A ₹200 (₹50) fee is payable at the entrance to the park (charge for camera) • Jeep safaris are also available from ₹2200/jeep maximum 6 people • Access to Gorumara is via Lataguri (₹200 [₹80]) by jeep Apart from the Darjeeling hills, most of North Bengal is well off the beaten track, and few travellers make detours from the Darjeeling–Sikkim–Nepal route. Probably the best reason to do so is to visit one of a string of wildlife sanctuaries that, along with tea gardens, carpet the Dooars along the southern approaches to the Himalayas.

The largest of these, Jaldapara Wildlife Sanctuary, 124km from Siliguri, was established in 1943 to protect wildlife from the encroachment of tea cultivation. Set against a backdrop of forested foothills on the banks of the River Torsa, Jaldapara's 216 square kilometres hold large tracts of tall elephant grass, are best explored at dawn, but we do not recommend taking an elephant ride. Around fifty highly endangered one-horned rhinoceros, as well as wild elephants, sambar and hog deer reside in the sanctuary.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN THE CLOSEST RAILWAY STATION IS AT JALDAPARA WILDLIFE SANCTUARY MADARIHAT, 7KM FROM THE RESERVE AND 1KM FROM THE SANCTUARY GATES, WITH A LIMITED SERVICE FROM BOTH SILIGURI AND NJP. FROM HERE TAXIS RUN TO HOLLONG IN THE HEART OF THE FOREST FOR AROUND ₹200. ALTERNATIVELY, MORE TRAINS TRAVEL VIA NEW MAL JUNCTION TO HASIMARA 18KM FROM THE RESERVE INCLUDING KANCHAN KANYA (#13149; DEPARTS SILIGURI JUNCTION 8AM, ARRIVES 10.23AM). THE NEAREST STATION TO LATAGURI, THE ENTRY POINT TO GORUMARA IS NEW MAL JUNCTION (30KM), WITH A CHOICE OF TRANSPORT INCLUDING BUSES AND TAXIS.

By bus A handful of buses and trains run from Siliguri and NJP to Madarihat and in season there is a handy tourist bus departing NJP around 8.30am via Siliguri, Gorumara and Lataguri to arrive around 2.20pm at Jaldapara Tourist Lodge. Enquire at the tourist office at Siliguri.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING YOU CAN BOOK THE HOLLONG FOREST LODGE AND THE JALDAPARA TOURIST LODGE THROUGH THE WBTDCL TOURIST OFFICES IN KOLKATA OR SILIGURI (DIRECTLY ONLINE AT WBTDCL.COM). THE WBTDCL ALSO OFFERS ALL-INCLUSIVE PACKAGES FROM SILIGURI INCLUDING TRANSPORT, ACCOMMODATION, MEALS (AND ELEPHANT RIDES – WHICH WE DON'T RECOMMEND).

Hollong Forest Lodge 📞03563 262228, 🌐northbengaltourism.com. Extremely popular due to its location – it's the only lodge within the sanctuary itself – the state-run Hollong Forest Lodge has a handful of simple, fan-cooled rooms and a communal veranda that's great for wildlife spotting. Book well in advance. No wi-fi. ₹₹

Jaldapara Jungle Camp Birpara, Madarihat 📞09733 267517, 🌐jaldaparacamp.com. A welcoming place around 3km from the sanctuary, with comfortable wood-built jungle cabins, a well-ordered campus and the Aranya Restaurant serving good Bengali home-style cooking. Staff will arrange safaris and transport. No wi-fi. ₹₹

Jaldapara Tourist Lodge 📞03563 262230, 🌐wbtdcl.com. An extensive state-run complex. Rooms (with either fan or a/c) in the newer block are more comfort-able than those in the more atmospheric old wing. There are also some cottages. Book well in advance. Doubles ₹1600, cottages ₹₹₹

Kurseong

Around 30km southeast of Darjeeling and about 37km north of Siliguri, connected by both road and rail, is bustling KURSEONG. Less touristy and with a slightly warmer climate than its more famous neighbour – though, admittedly, less picturesque – the town is a pleasant place to break your journey. Surrounded by tea estates, the hill station still has a sprinkling of Raj-era buildings, most notably a clutch of English-style boarding schools, as well as several Buddhist monasteries.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN/TAXI KURSEONG
KURSEONG IS LINKED TO DARJEELING AND TO SILIGURI BY THE TOY TRAIN. A TAXI FROM SILIGURI COSTS IN THE REGION OF ₹2000.

By jeep There are two daily direct sumos to Gangtok (7.30am and 1pm; ₹300) and several to Siliguri and Darjeeling.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING IN ADDITION TO THE OPTION LISTED BELOW, YOU CAN ALSO STAY AT THE MAKAIBARI TEA ESTATE, LOCATED AROUND 3KM BELOW
THE BAZAAR.

Cochrane Place 1 km below the bazaar ☎099320 35660, 🌐 cochraneplacehotel.com. If you want to stay the night in Kurseong, try Cochrane Place, a rambling old villa with grand views, plenty of railway and Raj memorabilia, atmospheric if creaky rooms, and good Anglo-Indian food. Good tours of local villages and tea estates are on offer. ₹₹₹

Darjeeling

Part Victorian holiday resort, part major tea-growing centre, DARJEELING (from Dorje Ling, “the place of the thunderbolt”) straddles a ridge 2200m up in the Himalayas, almost 600km north of Kolkata. Over seventy years since the British departed, the town remains as popular as ever with holiday-makers from the plains, and promenades such as the Mall and the Chowrasta still burst with life. The greatest appeal for visitors has to be its stupendous mountain vistas – with Kanchenjunga (the third highest mountain in the world) and a vast cohort of ice-capped peaks dominating the northern horizon. However, the infrastructure created under the Raj has been unable to cope with the ever-expanding population, leading to acute shortages of water and electricity, and chaos on the hopelessly inadequate roads. Still, Darjeeling remains a colourful and lively, cosmopolitan place, with good shopping and dining, plenty of walks in the surrounding hills, and attractions such as the Toy Train and colourful Buddhist monasteries.
The best seasons to visit – and to attempt the magnificent trek to Sandakphu to see Everest – are after the monsoons and before winter (late Sept to late Nov), and spring (mid-Feb to May).

Brief history Until the nineteenth century, Darjeeling belonged to Sikkim. However, in 1817, after a disastrous war with Nepal, Sikkim was forced to concede the right to use the site as a health sanatorium to the British, who had helped to broker a peace settlement. Darjeeling soon became the most popular of all hill resorts, especially after the Hill Cart Road was built in 1839 to link it with Siliguri. Tea arrived a few years later, and with it an influx of Nepalese labourers and the disappearance of the forests that previously carpeted the hillsides. The town's growing economic significance led Britain to force a treaty on the Sikkimese in 1861, thereby annexing Darjeeling and Kalimpong. In the early 1900s, Darjeeling's reputation grew as one of the most glamorous and far-flung outposts of the British Empire. Subsequently it became a mountaineering centre and played a key role in the conquest of the greater Himalayas.

After Independence, the region joined West Bengal, administered from Calcutta, but calls for autonomy grew, taking shape in the Gurkhaland movement of the 1980s, led by the Gurkha National Liberation Front (GNLF). The subsequent violent campaign ended a decade later and, once in power, GNLF politicians grew complacent, fuelling discontent and leading to their overthrow by the Gorkha Jana Mukti Morcha (GJMM) in 2007. The GJMM victory reinvigorated the push for an autonomous Gurkhaland, employing wildcat strikes designed to cripple West Bengal's hold on the region. Despite unhappiness with the West Bengal government, support for the GJMM, who administer through Gurkhaland Territorial Administration (GTA), is far from unanimous. In the past local opposition was vigorously and sometimes violently put down. Today, however, the situation is much calmer.

The Chowrasta and Clubside The heart of Victorian Darjeeling is the Chowrasta, an expansive traffic-free promenade resplendent with a bandstand, high above the busy bazaar on Hill Cart Road. One of the four main roads leading off it is the Nehru Road (also called the Mall), it descends from Chowrasta to Clubside, the area below the prestigious Planters' Club, otherwise known as the Darjeeling Club. Established in 1868, this venerable institution was the centre of Darjeeling high society. Today, visitors are welcome to stay and sample the faded ambience and facilities such as the bar and snooker room, as long as they buy temporary membership.

Observatory Hill and around Taking the right fork from the northern end of the Chowrasta, near the bandstand, brings you to the viewpoint from where you can survey the Kanchenjunga massif and almost the entire state of Sikkim. From near the Windamere Hotel steps, ascend the pine-covered hillside to the top of Observatory Hill, the original site of the Bhutia Busty monastery. Streaming with prayer flags, the shrine at the summit, dedicated to the wrathful Buddhist deity Mahakala, whom Hindus worship as Shiva, reflects a garish hybrid of styles. Another faded Raj-era -institution, the Gymkhana Club, stands near Observatory Hill; temporary memberships are available.

DARJEELING TEA ALTHOUGH THE ORIGINAL APPEAL OF DARJEELING FOR THE BRITISH WAS AS A HILL RESORT WITH EASY ACCESS FROM THE PLAINS, INSPIRED BY THEIR SUCCESS IN ASSAM THEY SOON REALIZED ITS POTENTIAL FOR GROWING TEA. TODAY, THE DARJEELING TEA INDUSTRY CONTINUES TO FLOURISH, PRODUCING CHINA JAT, CHINA HYBRID AND HYBRID ASSAM. A COMBINATION OF FACTORS, INCLUDING ALTITUDE AND SPORADIC RAINFALL, HAVE RESULTED IN A RELATIVELY SMALL YIELD – ONLY THREE PERCENT OF INDIA’S TOTAL – BUT THE DELICATE BLACK TEA PRODUCED HERE IS CONSIDERED TO BE ONE OF THE FINEST IN THE WORLD. IT IS ALSO SOME OF THE MOST EXPENSIVE WITH VARIETIES FETCHING MORE THAN ₹18,000 A KILO AT AUCTION.

Grades such as Flowery Orange Pekoe (FOP) or Broken Orange Pekoe (BOP) are determined by quality and length of leaf as it is withered, crushed, fermented and dried.

Happy Valley Tea Estate off Lebong Cart Rd 📞80177 00700, 🌐 ambootia.com. To watch the process for yourself, call in at the Happy Valley Tea Estate; it’s a 30min walk from town. Just follow the signs from the Hill Cart Rd near the District Magistrate’s office; it’s worth phoning ahead to make sure there is someone to show you round. Tues–Sat 8am–noon & 1–4.30pm, Sun 8am–noon.

BUYING TEA AS FOR BUYING, NUMEROUS SHOPS ON THE MALL, AT CHOWRASTA AND THE RINK MALL OFFER TRY-BEFORE-YOU-BUY, WITH THE MENU SET CLEARLY BY THE SEASONS (OTHERWISE KNOWN AS “FLUSHES”). SEE THE “SHOPPING” SECTION FOR WHERE TO MAKE YOUR PURCHASE; EXPECT TO PAY ₹300–600 FOR 100G OF A GOOD-QUALITY TEA. YOU CAN TASTE LIFE ON A TEA

PLANTATION EITHER THROUGH THE LUXURIOUS GLENBURN TE OR AT MAKAIBARI.

A steep but pleasant walk down from near Government House, or a circuitous taxi ride, leads to the Tibetan Refugee Self-Help Centre (Mon–Sat 9am–4.30pm). Founded in 1959 after the Chinese invasion of Tibet, it houses around seven hundred refugees, most of whom make carpets or Tibetan handicrafts. The community also has a hospital and a school. Tourists are welcome to watch the activities; the shop sells handicrafts and carpets, which they will ship for you. Around the same altitude, and a short distance away, is the small, picture-postcard Bhutia Busti Monastery (daily 8am–6pm) re-established here from its original site on Observatory Hill. An alternative approach is the pleasant 1km walk downhill along the steep CR Das Road from the Chowrasta. Linked to Phodong in Sikkim, the dukhang (prayer hall) houses a venerated copy of the Tibetan Book of the Dead – the Bardo Thodol.

Darjeeling Zoo (Padmaja Naidu Zoological Park) Birch Hill • Daily except Thurs 8.30am–4pm • Charge along with extra for camera usage.

The promenade north from the Chowrasta leads to Darjeeling's well-maintained zoo. Its snow leopard breeding centre (closed to the public), established in 1986, is the only place in the world to have successfully bred this endangered species, while Project Panda has produced a number of red pandas.

Himalayan Mountaineering Institute Birch Hill • Museum Daily except Thurs 8.30am–4.30pm • Included in zoo ticket price The Himalayan Mountaineering Institute (HMI), reached via the zoo and covered by the same ticket, is one of India's most important training centres for mountaineers. Its first director was Sherpa Tenzing Norgay, Sir Edmund Hillary's climbing partner on the first successful ascent of Everest, who lived and died in Darjeeling, and is buried in the Institute's grounds. In the heart of the leafy complex, the HMI Museum is dedicated to the history of mountaineering, with equipment old and new, a relief map of the Himalayas, and a collection of costumes of hill people.

The Everest Museum in the annexe recounts the history of ascents on the world's highest peak, from Mallory and Irvine's ill-fated 1924 expedition to Tenzing and Hillary's triumph in 1953 and the record-breaking 20hr 24min climb by Kaji Sherpa in 1998.

Northpoint and the Ropeway Northpoint, a 10–15min walk beyond the zoo • Daily in season 10am–2pm • Charge Below the HMI at Northpoint, where the views of Sikkim open out, and near the Gothic ramparts of St Joseph's College, the cable car or Ropeway has restarted its operation after a terrible accident in 2003. A popular day-trip destination, the cable car (20min one way) travels down past tea gardens to Tukvar Tea Estate towards Singla and the Sikkim border.

Lloyd Botanical Gardens Chowk Bazaar • Mon–Sat 8am–5pm • Free Lochnagar Road winds down from the bus stand in the bazaar to enter the Lloyd Botanical Gardens, resplendent with pines, willows and maples that cover the hillside. A quiet spot with tended flowerbeds and meandering walkways, the gardens were established in 1878 and feature a central glasshouse filled with ferns and orchids and other flowers.

Nipponjan Myohoji Buddhist Temple (Peace Pagoda) AJC Bose Rd • Daily 4.30am–7pm • Prayers 4.30–6am & 4.30–6pm Heading out of town on AJC Bose Road, just past Lal Kothi, you come to the discreetly hidden Nipponjan Myohoji Buddhist Temple, usually referred to as the Peace Pagoda, a peaceful spot for meditation, yoga or tai chi, with great views over the valley to Kanchenjunga. The temple itself has a small museum upstairs.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE VIRTUALLY ALL DARJEELING TRAVELLERS ARRIVING IN DARJEELING FROM THE PLAINS COME VIA SILIGURI, WHETHER BY THE TOY TRAIN (SEE BOX OPPOSITE) OR BY ROAD. JEEPS AND BUSES STOP AT THE BUS STAND IN THE LOWER HALF OF THE TOWN, FROM WHERE IT'S A BIT OF AN UPHILL TREK TO THE MAIN HOTEL AREA. MOST TAXIS AND SOME JEEPS DROP YOU OFF AT CLUBSIDE NEAR THE MALL (OFFICIALLY NEHRU RD), AT THE UPPER END OF TOWN. PORTERS ARE AVAILABLE (FROM ₹100) AT THE BUS STAND AND BAZAAR, BUT BE AWARE THAT SOME ACT AS TOUTS. DARJEELING IS BEST EXPLORED ON FOOT – IN FACT, MUCH OF IT IS CLOSED TO ALL VEHICLES.

By plane The nearest airports to Darjeeling are Bagdogra, 100km to the south — allow at least 3hr to get there by taxi – and Pakyong, 79km away, in Sikkim.

By train Darjeeling is famous for its spectacular Toy Train (see box). Railway reservations (daily 8am–2pm) for selected main-line trains out of NJP can be made at Darjeeling's station a couple of days before departure, though booking online or via one of the town's travel agencies is easier.

DARJEELING TOUR AND ADVENTURE OPERATORS
DARJEELING IS BRIMMING WITH TOUR AND TREK
OPERATORS, AND SOME OF THE BUDGET HOTELS PROVIDE COST-EFFECTIVE TREKKING SERVICES FOR THE SINGALILA RIDGE.

Adventures Unlimited 142 Dr Zakir Hussein Rd 📞99330 70013, 🌐 adventuresunlimited.in. This excellent agency offers both motorbike and mountain-bike tours, as well as motorbike and mountain-bike rental; it also organizes rafting and kayaking on the Teesta River, rock climbing and trekking, plus homestays.

Himalayan Mountaineering Institute 📞0354 225 4087, 🌐 hmidarjeeling.com. Basic and advanced mountaineering courses, including a women-only expedition. Basic trips, centred around the Institute's Chaurikhang Base Camp at the foot of Rathong Glacier in Sikkim, are run with military precision and last 28 days. However, this is an economical and unique introduction to Himalayan mountaineering. The more rewarding advanced course requires previous mountaineering experience; to join either course, you must be aged between 17 and 40 and should be fit. Apply at least three months in advance.

Himalayan Travels 18 Gandhi Rd 📞0354 225 6956 or 94342 09847, 🌐 facebook.com/HimalayanTravelsDarjeeling. An efficient organization run by the affable K.K. Gurung, one of the first and most experienced operators in town, offering tours and treks throughout Darjeeling, Sikkim and Bhutan.

By bus Due to poor road conditions, it is best to avoid the handful of buses and minibuses that run to Siliguri from the bus stand near Chowk Bazaar. For overland bus travel to Kathmandu, head to the border town of Kakarbitta in Nepal to get a choice of coaches.

By taxi/jeep In the mornings, jeeps run regularly to Gangtok (for Sikkim; foreigners need two photographs and photocopies of their passport information page and Indian visa to get permits at the border), Siliguri, Mirik, and Kalimpong, and are by far the most efficient way to travel, especially if you pay for two front seats for yourself. Book in advance if you can at the jeep stand (next to the bus stand); each route has its own syndicate, and some have two or three. A private taxi to either Bagdogra and Pakyong airports, or Kalimpong, costs around ₹2000/2500.

THE DARJEELING HIMALAYAN RAILWAY: THE TOY TRAIN COMPLETED IN 1881, THE SMALL-GAUGE (610MM) DARJEELING HIMALAYAN RAILWAY (COMMONLY KNOWN AS THE TOY TRAIN) WAS DESIGNED AS AN EXTENSION OF THE NORTH BENGAL STATE RAILWAY, CLIMBING FROM NEW JALPAIGURI, VIA SILIGURI, FOR A TORTUOUS 88KM UP TO DARJEELING. GIVEN UNESCO WORLD HERITAGE STATUS IN 1999, THE TOY TRAIN FOLLOWS THE HILL CART ROAD, CROSSING IT AT REGULAR INTERVALS AND EVEN SHARING IT WITH TRAFFIC. ALTHOUGH NO LONGER AN ESSENTIAL MODE OF TRANSPORT, THE TRAIN IS CERTAINLY A TOURIST ATTRACTION, AND CURRENTLY RUNS DAILY FROM NEW JALPAIGURI AT 8.30AM, REACHING DARJEELING AT 3.35PM. DIESEL ENGINES ARE NOW DE RIGUEUR ON THE LONG ROUTE.

Weather permitting, coaches with large viewing windows provide magnificent vistas as the journey progresses and the scenery gradually unfolds; second class can be fun but crowded.

Some travellers may find the entire route from Siliguri painfully slow. The section from Kurseong is well worth the time, however; alternatively you could take the short (“Joy”) ride from Darjeeling to Ghoom.

“JOY RIDES” TO GHOOM IN SEASON (MARCH–MAY, OCT & NOV), SIX STEAM-DRIVEN “JOY RIDE” TOURIST TRAINS LEAVE DARJEELING AT 9.40AM, 10AM, 12.10PM, 12.20PM, 4.05PM AND 4.10PM; THEY THEN TRAVEL UP TO GHOOM, WHERE THEY STOP FOR JUST 15MIN (NOT ENOUGH TIME TO VIEW THE MONASTERIES). AT ITS HIGHEST POINT AT JOREBUNGALOW NEAR GHOOM (2438M), 7KM SHORT OF DARJEELING, THE DRAMATIC PANORAMA OF THE KANCHENJUNGA RANGE IS SUDDENLY REVEALED. JUST BEYOND GHOOM, THE TRAIN DOES A COMPLETE CIRCLE AT THE BATASIA LOOP (ANOTHER METHOD USED TO GAIN RAPID HEIGHT IS THE REVERSING STATIONS WHERE THE TRACK FOLLOWS A “Z” SHAPE) WITH ANOTHER BRIEF STOP FOR VIEWS OF THE HIMALAYAS. ALTHOUGH SOLD AS A PACKAGE, YOU COULD RETURN ON THE REGULAR DIESEL SERVICE. ALTERNATIVE TRANSPORT BACK TO DARJEELING INCLUDES BUSES OR SHARED JEEPS, OR YOU CAN TAKE THE TOP ROAD FOR A QUIET WALK BACK, ENJOYING STUPENDOUS VIEWS ALONG THE WAY AND A VISIT TO THE PEACE PAGODA IN THE WOODS ABOVE THE DALI GOMPA.

JUNGLE SAFARI FROM SILIGURI TO TINDHARIA AN ON-DEMAND, DIESEL-HAULED JUNGLE SAFARI SPECIAL TRAIN DEPARTS SILIGURI JUNCTION AT 10.30AM, TRAVELING TO TINDHARIA VIA RONGTONG AND BACK TO SILIGURI JUNCTION (ARRIVAL AT 3.20PM). IT PASSES

THROUGH MAGNIFICENT MAHANANDA WILDLIFE SANCTUARY, ROLLING OVER THE CHUNBHATTI LOOP, AND THREE Z-REVERSES. FOR MORE INFORMATION AND BOOKINGS, CONTACT DARJEELING HIMALAYAN RAILWAY (☎90020 41955, 🌐DHR.IN.NET).

INFORMATION TRAIN TIMES AT THE TIME OF RESEARCH, PASSENGER TRAIN #52541 LEFT NEW JALPAIGURI DAILY AT 8.30AM, STOPPING AT KURSEONG AT 12.46PM, GHOOM AT 2.51PM, AND THEN ARRIVING AT DARJEELING AT 3.35PM. FROM DARJEELING, TRAIN #52540 LEFT DAILY AT 8AM, REACHING NEW JALPAIGURI AT 3.10PM. THE REGULAR TOY TRAIN (#52587) DEPARTED KURSEONG DAILY AT 6.30AM, STOPPING AT GHOOM AT 8.30AM AND THEN ARRIVING IN DARJEELING AT 9.05AM. FOR THE RETURN JOURNEY, SERVICES LEFT DARJEELING AT 10.15AM (#52544) AND 3.35PM (#52588). CHECK THE LATEST SCHEDULES AT 🌐DHR.IN.NET/TRAIN-SCHEDULE.PHP.

Booking tickets For more information on the Toy Train, contact the Darjeeling Himalayan Railway Society (🌐dhr.in.net) or, in India, the Director at Elysia Building, near Himali School, Kurseong 734203 (☎0354 200 5734, 🌐dhr.in.net). Book ahead as there are rarely more than three coaches on a train.

INFORMATION PERMITS FOREIGNERS PLANNING TO HEAD ON TO SIKKIM NEED A PERMIT. YOU CAN APPLY ONLINE (🌐SIKKIMPTS.AZUREWEBSITES.NET) OR THROUGH A PAINLESS FORMALITY AT THE RANGPO BORDER CHECKPOINT, WHERE ALL GANGTOK-BOUND JEEPS STOP. YOU WILL NEED TO BRING A PHOTOCOPY OF YOUR PASSPORT AND VISA PLUS TWO PASSPORT PHOTOS. INITIAL THIRTY-DAY PERMITS ARE EXTENDABLE TO A MAXIMUM OF THREE MONTHS ONCE YOU'RE IN GANGTOK. PERMITS ARE FREE AND SINGLE-ENTRY ONLY; YOU CANNOT RE-ENTER WITHIN THREE MONTHS.

GTA Tourism 4 Silver Fir, Bhanu Sarani, 100m north of Chowrasta (daily: March–May, Oct & Nov 9am–1pm & 2–5pm; rest of year 10am–4.30pm; ☎ 0354 225 4879, gtatourism.com), provides information on treks and tours, transport and whitewater rafting on the Teesta River.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Darjeeling has hundreds of hotels, which places a considerable strain upon the infrastructure, particularly the water supply. Some budget places only provide water in buckets, sometimes charging extra if you want it hot. If you visit during the winter months, make sure your room is adequately heated. Off-season (late June to Sept & late Nov to Feb) discounts can be up to fifty percent.

Aliment 40 Dr Zakir Hussein Rd ☎81163 47274. Popular, low-cost hotel with decent though rather gaudy rooms, all with private bath-rooms and hot water, spread across five floors. The in-house restaurant is one of the best in this part of town with an eclectic menu. ₹₹₹

Andy's Guest House 102 Dr Zakir Hussein Rd ☎0354 225 3125. Run by a retired couple, and essentially a comfortable family home, this is the best of the budget guesthouses: safe, with large, immaculate rooms and great views towards Kalimpong and Bhutan, but no restaurant. Hot water is time-managed and doors close early. It was under renovation at the time of writing, so the price stated here may increase a little. ₹

Bellevue Chowrasta ☎0354 225 4075, bellevuehotel-darjeeling.com. Dominating the Chowrasta, this once-grand hotel, linked to Tibetan nobility, is now rather musty and faded. Still the large, wood-panelled rooms with fireplaces have a certain charm, and its location couldn't be more central. ₹₹

Classic Guest House CR Das Rd ☎0354 225 7025, classicguesthouse.in. This excellent spot, just a couple of minutes below Chowrasta, offers five clean, large and comfortable wood-lined rooms with verandas and dramatic views. Despite its proximity to the centre and good restaurants, it is peaceful and quiet. ₹₹₹

★Dekeling Hotel 51 Gandhi Rd, dekeling.com. In a central location, approached up steep steps, with running hot water, heaters and a range of rooms – some have great views and the timbered ones upstairs are charming (though low-ceilinged). The new wing at the back is the most comfortable and a bit quieter in the early mornings. The Tibetan owners are especially helpful and there is a welcoming log fire in winter; it sits above a fine restaurant, Dekevas, too. Smarter sister property Dekenling Resort, a 10min walk away, has comfortable suites (from ₹3640) with fireplaces, good home-cooking and a garden. ₹₹

★The Elgin Darjeeling 32 HD Lama Rd 📞0354 225 7226, 🌐elginhotels.com/darjeeling.php. Dating back some 125 years, this premier heritage hotel has a rather formal atmosphere that captures the old-fashioned spirit of Darjeeling. There are elegant rooms, a well-equipped spa, and good restaurant and bar. Rates include full board. ₹₹₹₹

Hideout Backpackers 10 A Rock Ville, Near Water Tank 📞97331 18521, 🌐hideoutdarjeeling.business.site. Darjeeling's budget hostel offering clean mixed-dorms with shared bathrooms and water heaters. There's a social atmosphere, friendly owners, and a nice rooftop with superb views of the mountains. A continental breakfast is included, and they offer cycling and walking tours. ₹

Mayfair Below Government House, The Mall 📞0354 225 6376, 🌐mayfairhotels.com. Once a maharaja's summer retreat, now a luxury hotel, whose wood-panelled rooms and suites ooze class. Facilities include restaurants, a bar and health spa; the gardens are immaculate, and the garden restaurant offers great views. Rates include board. ₹₹₹₹

Main Olde Bellevue Above Bellevue, 1 Nehru Rd, Chowrasta 📞0354 225 4178, 🌐bellevueheritagehotel.com. A large property with rooms overlooking Nehru Rd in two new blocks and an old rambling chalet with plenty of atmosphere, wooden rooms and creaky floors. It's on the top of the hill, with great views, and close to all amenities. ₹₹₹

Planters' Club The Mall 📞0354 225 4349 or 📞94340 48572, 📧thedarjeelingplantersclub@rediffmail.com. A local landmark (also known as the Darjeeling Club) with old-fashioned rooms, coal fires, a billiard room, bar, restaurant and library. Residential guests must take temporary membership (₹50); non-guests can use the facilities for a small fee. ₹₹

Revolver 110 Gandhi Rd 📞98000 05455, 🌐revolver.in. A delightful oddity, this Beatles-themed hotel has five rooms, four named after the bandmates and one after manager Brian Epstein; rooms are simple and comfortable, and the owners have avoided being kitsch. The restaurant, meanwhile, specializes in the food of Nagaland (and Lavazza coffee) and there's a library of books, music and films (many devoted to the Fab Four) to delve into. There is a sister café in Gangtok. ₹₹

Tibet Home Manjushree Centre, 12 Gandhi Rd ☎0354 225 2977. This non-profit Tibetan cultural centre and museum offers eight large, comfortable and well-appointed rooms with attached bathrooms and hot water. Students of the centre get discounts. Book well in advance of your visit. ₹₹

Windamere Observatory Hill ☎0354 225 4041, 🌐windamerehotel.com. The most iconic and celebrated of Darjeeling's hotels has accommodated a pantheon of rich and famous guests in its old-world cottages decked out with Raj memorabilia; it also has a modern wing with comfortable suites but less character. Rates include full board. Even if you're not staying here, it's worth visiting for high tea (see opposite). Doubles and cottages available. ₹₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

Chekey's House Dr Zakir Hussain Rd, blue door opposite Kalden Café. This hole in the wall local eatery, catered to locals, has been serving delicious Tibetan food for years. Chekey and her family cook fresh momos, thukpas, thentuk and juicy meat-filled sha phaley, served with a fiery-hot, homemade chutney, that are cheap and authentic. Daily 8am–9.30pm. ₹

Glenary's The Mall ☎0354 225 4122, 🌐facebook.com/glenarysdarjeeling. One of Darjeeling's most reputable eating places, with a patisserie and tearoom on the ground floor, a restaurant upstairs serving tasty sizzlers, great tandoori and Raj-era dishes such as shepherd's pie and a pub-bar-coffee shop downstairs. Look out for the red British telephone box near the entrance. Daily 8am–9pm. ₹

Hasty Tasty The Mall. Tasty? Yes. Hasty? Not so much. Regardless, this veg Indian joint is rightly popular, often packed with Indian holiday-makers. You can get a good meal which is as cheap as chips – thalis are among the highlights. Daily 11am–8pm. ₹

★Himalayan Java The Mall ☎0354 225 4731, 🌐himalayanjava.com. A long-standing Kathmandu favourite, now expanding overseas, Himalayan Java serves the best coffee in town – from ristrettos to iced caramel macchiatos all produced from organic Nepalese beans. There's also a tasty array of cakes, pastries and snacks. A fine spot to spend an afternoon. Daily 8am–8pm. ₹₹

Keventers Clubside 📞98320 41448. A landmark café serving fried, British-style breakfasts that include sausages and bacon, as well as toasted sandwiches, plus milk-shakes, hot chocolate and coffee. The terrace above the crossroads is excellent for people-watching (if the weather is amenable), though service is notoriously poor. A delicatessen downstairs sells cheese, ham and sausages. Daily 8am–8pm. ₹

Kunga Gandhi Rd 📞96798 89365. Tiny Tibetan restaurant, popular with locals and tourists, and serving excellent momos (dumplings filled with chicken, pork, beef or veg, steamed or fried, and served with a fiery chilli sauce and thick thukpa soups. The salted butter tea, however, is very much an acquired taste. Daily 8am–9pm. ₹

The Park 41 Laden La Rd 📞0354 225 4989. The Park offers some of the finest north Indian and tandoori dishes in Darjeeling, as well as decent Thai food, and tasty chicken momos. Prices are reasonable. Daily noon–3pm & 6–11pm. ₹

Windamere Observatory Hill 📞0354 225 4041, 🌐windamerehotel.com. The classic place to sample a British-style afternoon tea which is taken on the lawn or in one of the stately sitting rooms in front of the fire and surrounded by photos of Darjeeling in its colonial heyday. As well as a pot of tea, you'll get a platter along the lines of the following: two types of sandwiches, a scone with cream and jam, a slice of sponge cake, a couple of coconut macaroons, and some biscuits. Daily 4–6pm. ₹₹₹

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP

In addition to the options here, the Windamere and Planters' Club are both atmospheric places for a drink, especially the veranda at the latter.

Gatty's Café Dr Zakir Hussain Rd 📞99330 70013. The closest one gets to a nightclub in Darjeeling with a lively motorbike theme (the owner Gautam also runs motorbike tours), this café-bar is a great place for a beer in the evening, and the tempo picks up after 9pm, when there's often live music (cover charges sometimes apply). There's also a large screen to watch the football. Daily 6–11.30pm. ₹₹₹

Joey's Opposite Rink Plaza, 092326 92573, facebook.com/joeyspubdarjeeling. Run by musician Puran Gongba – a mean guitarist and something of a local celebrity – this small and intimate pub is a popular rendezvous for visitors, expats and locals alike. Not renowned for its food but rather its beer ambience and chat. Daily noon–10pm (though sometimes stays open an hour or so later). ₹₹₹

ENTERTAINMENT CINEMA INOX RINK MALL 0354 225 7183. A MODERN MULTIPLEX WITH THREE AUDITORIUMS AND THE LATEST FROM BOLLYWOOD AND HOLLYWOOD; IT CAN BE LOUD SO, DEPENDING ON THE FILM, YOU MIGHT WANT TO TAKE EARPLUGS.

Gymkhana Club Just north of Observatory Hill, near St Andrew's Church 0354 225 4342, www.darjeelinggymkhanaclub.com. Visitors can buy temporary memberships (charge) at this grand Raj-era club, dating back over 100 years, and take advantage of an array of facilities, including a gym, tennis, badminton and squash courts, table tennis, billiards and – bizarrely – roller skating, plus a library and bar. Daily 7am–9.30pm.

SHOPPING

MAP

Hayden Hall 42 Laden La Rd 0354 225 3228, www.haydenhall.org. Run by an NGO that supports women who have fled abusive relationships, this shop sells a range of hand-made carpets, jumpers, bags and other items. A colourful statue of the Virgin Mary stands by the entrance. Mon–Sat 10am–6pm.

Life & Leaf Chowrasta. An excellent place to pick up quality souvenirs, this fair-trade shop sells a strong selection of handicrafts and produce from the local area, including organic tea and honey. Mon–Sat 10am–7pm.

Nathmulls Suite 21, Chachan Mansions, Laden La Rd Chowrasta 0354 225 6437, www.nathmulltea.com. This family-run tea business was founded in 1931, so they know their stuff: there are scores of varieties on offer here (if you can't decide ask for a tasting) as well as an array of tea paraphernalia (pots, cups and so on). Mon–Sat 10am–8pm.

Oxford Books & Stationery Chowrasta 0354 225 4325, mayaprimlani@gmail.com. Easily the best-stocked bookshop in town, with a strong selection of novels, maps, non-fiction and coffee-table books, with northeast India titles particularly well represented. If you buy more than you intended, they will even ship books home for you. Daily 10am–7pm.

Rope NB Singh Rd (below Clubside). A good selection of trekking gear (much of it genuine), including jackets and sleeping bags, but it's on the expensive side. Inexpensive knock-offs, mainly made in Nepal and varying in quality, are available from stores across town. Daily 9am–5pm.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE THE STATE BANK OF INDIA ON LADEN LA RD AND HDFC AT RINK MALL OFFER FOREIGN EXCHANGE. LICENSED PRIVATE FOREIGN-EXCHANGE VENDORS OFFER AN ALTERNATIVE BUT CHARGE A BIT MORE THAN THE BANK RATE. AMONG THESE, THE MOHIT AND SEVEN SEVENTEEN HOTELS ARE BOTH ON HD LAMA RD. PODDAR'S, 8 LADEN LA RD NEAR THE GPO, IS ALSO GOOD FOR CASH ADVANCES ON CREDIT/DEBIT CARDS.

Hospital Planters' Hospital, Planter's Club, The Mall (☎0354 225 4327) is the best bet in an emergency.

Post office The main post office (Mon–Fri 9am–5pm, Sat 9am–noon) is on Laden La Rd.

Tibetan studies The Manjushree Centre of Tibetan Culture, 12 Gandhi Rd (☎0354 225 2977, 🌐manjushree-culture.org), founded in 1988 to preserve and promote Tibetan culture, offers part-time Tibetan language classes (Mon–Sat 4–6pm) and more intensive three-, six- and nine-month courses and holds seminars, talks, video shows and exhibitions. The Chagpori Medical Institute at Takdah (en route to Teesta) runs excellent long courses in Tibetan medicine; ask at the Manjushree Centre.

Around Darjeeling An unmissable part of the Darjeeling experience is the early-morning mass exodus to Tiger Hill to watch the sunrise. This can easily be combined with a visit to the old monastery of Ghoom, and the huge monastery at Sonada on Hill Cart Road towards Siliguri.

Tiger Hill

7.5km southeast of Ghoom, 9.5km southeast of Darjeeling • Viewing tower ₹20–40 • Jeeps from ₹100/seat or around ₹1200 for the whole vehicle, reserved from Clubsides In good weather and in the high season a couple of hundred jeeps and taxis packed with tourists leave from Clubsides in Darjeeling around 4am each morning, careering 12km through Ghoom to catch the dramatic sunrise at Tiger Hill. This incredible viewpoint (2585m) on the eastern extremity of the Singalila Range provides a 360-degree Himalayan panorama, with the steamy plains bordering Bangladesh to the south, the Singalila ridge with Everest beyond to the west, Kanchenjunga and Sikkim to the north, and the Bhutan and Assam Himalayas trailing into the distance to the northeast. From left to right, the peaks include: Lhotse (which actually looks higher than Everest); Everest itself; Makalu; then, after a long gap, the rocky summit of Kang on the Sikkim–Nepal divide; the prow of Jannu in Nepal; Rathong; tent-like Kabru south and north; Talung; Kanchenjunga main, central and south; Pandim; Simvo; horned Narsing; and the fluted pyramid of Siniolchu. If you're feeling energetic you could opt to walk back from Tiger Hill visiting the gompas of Ghoom on the way.

Senchal Wildlife Sanctuary Senchal, 8.5km southeast of Darjeeling • Daily dawn–dusk • ₹100 • ☎0354 54308

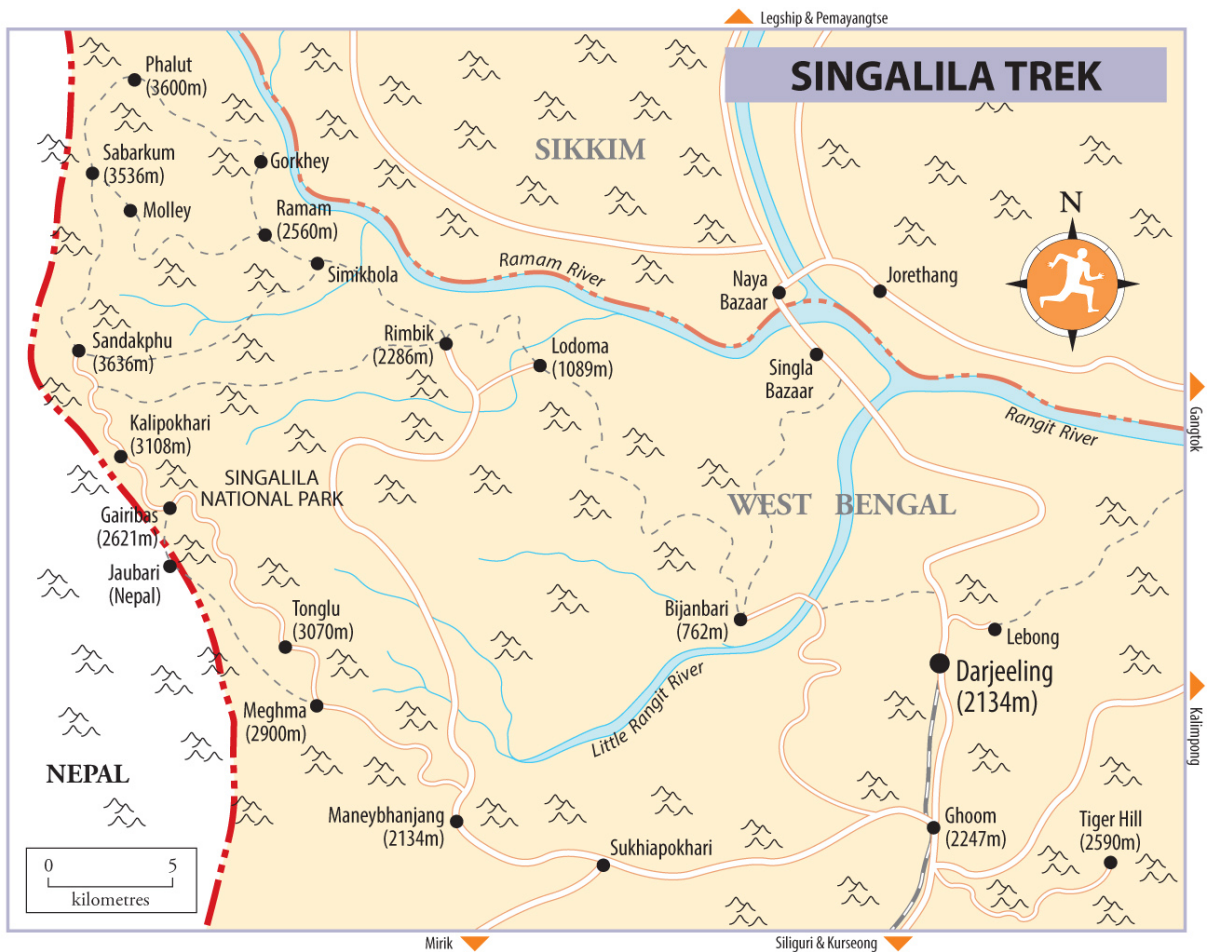

Tiger Hill also gives access to the small Senchal Wildlife Sanctuary, which, at just 38 square kilometres is home to a variety of fauna including barking deer, jackals, wild boar, the occasional black bear and a leopard. It is best to explore on foot or by mountain bike – Adventures Unlimited rents out bikes and can give advice or arrange a trip to the sanctuary.

Ghoom and other monasteries Often obscured in cloud, Ghoom (or Ghum; 2438m), 8km south of Darjeeling, with its charming little railway station and tiny bazaar on the edge of Jorebangla, holds several interesting monasteries. The most venerated of these is Yiga Choling, or the Old Ghoom Monastery (signposted from the bazaar), tucked off the main thoroughfare above a brash resort. Built in 1850 by Sharap Gyatso, a renowned astrologer, the monastery consists of a single chambered temple and a few residential buildings. Inside the prayer hall is a huge figure of Maitreya, the Buddha of the future – a statue of an exceptionally high standard of workmanship, with fine detail above and around the bronze face.

Back on the main road, the Shakya Choling gumpa has expanded in recent years; while Samten Choling, a small but colourful gumpa on a bend in the main road to Darjeeling, is sometimes included on the jeep tours to Tiger Hill.

Thupten Sanga Choling Midway between Ghoom and Darjeeling • No fixed opening times • Free Halfway between Ghoom and Darjeeling on the main road stands the imposing Thupten Sanga Choling, otherwise known as the Dali Gumpa, inaugurated by the Dalai Lama in 1993. This is a very active Drukpa Kagyu gumpa with two hundred monks. The huge meditation hall is richly decorated with exquisite murals and ceiling mandalas.

Sonada Monastery 2km south of Ghoom • No fixed opening times • Free • ☎0354 246 6716, www.paldenshangpa.org

SINGALILA TREK: THE MANEYBHANJANG–PHALUT TRAIL THE SINGLE RIDGE OF THE SINGALILA RANGE RISES NEAR DARJEELING AND EXTENDS ALL THE WAY TO THE SUMMIT OF KANCHENJUNGA. UNFORTUNATELY, ALTHOUGH SOME LONGER TRAILS HAVE BEEN OPENED IN SIKKIM, THERE IS CURRENTLY NO PROVISION TO LINK THEM TO THE INITIAL LOWER SECTIONS OF THE RIDGE TO SANDAKPHU (3636M) AND PHALUT (3600M) IN DARJEELING DISTRICT.

Easily accessible from Darjeeling, the later stages of the Maneybhanjang–Phalut trail provide magnificent views of the higher ranges; lightweight expeditions are possible as there are trekking huts and lodges (₹150–1000) and simple food stalls along the way. The walking is demanding and you should bring your own sleeping bag and warm clothes as the weather can be unpredictable.

Maneybhanjang, a small town and roadhead 27km from Darjeeling, is the usual starting point for the route, with the finest views found along the Sandakphu–Phalut section of the trail while trekking north. You will need to get an entry fee from the Forestry Department (₹300 [₹100]) to enter the Singalila National Park, and regulation states that you have to take a guide (around ₹1200/day) – available through the Highlander Guides and Porters Welfare Association (📞97340 56944, 🌐 highlanderguidesandporters.com). Take an early shared jeep to Maneybhanjang from Chowk Bazaar in Darjeeling to start the trek the same day.

Several organizations arrange porters, from ₹900/day as well as guides, from ₹1200 (more for an English-speaking guide), as part of all-inclusive packages (from ₹2000/day); most will also rent out equipment. The best time to trek is after the monsoon (Oct & Nov), and during spring (Feb–May). It gets hot at the end of April and into May, but this is an especially beautiful season, with the rhododendrons in bloom. Several permutations are possible, including a trek to the Sikkim border at Jorethang.

THE CLASSIC ROUTE DAY 1 START FROM MANEYBHANJANG WITH A SHARP CLIMB TO MEGHMA; THE TRAIL EASES TO THE HUT AT TONGLU (3070M). ONE VARIATION BYPASSES TONGLU TO TUMLING WHERE THERE ARE LODGES, INCLUDING THE SHIKAR LODGE, BUT MOST STRONG WALKERS SHOULD BE ABLE TO PRESS ON TO GAIRIBAS, OR TO KALIPOKHARI WHERE THERE ARE A COUPLE OF LODGES INCLUDING SHERPA.

Day 2 From Tonglu head on to Kalipokhari and Bikhebbhanjang. The trail then rises steeply to Sandakphu (3636m), which has a trekkers' hut and lodges such as the friendly Sherpa Chalet.

Day 3 The panorama opens out as you leave Sandakphu en route to Sabarkum. There's no shelter or food here, but if you drop down to the right for thirty minutes to Molley, you'll find a trekkers' hut.

Day 4 Retrace your steps to Sabarkum and continue along the ridge to Phalut (3600m), where there is a trekkers' hut. The panorama from here is particularly impressive.

Day 5 Either retrace your steps to Sandakphu or follow the trail from Phalut via Gorkhey, where there is plenty of choice of accommodation including Pasang or Shanti Lodge. You could walk on to Ramam (2560m), home of the welcoming Sherpa hotel, among others, or descend from Sabarkum to the pleasant riverside village of Sirikhola where accommodation is available at Goparma Lodge. A road is being constructed to Sirikhola which when open will allow access back to Darjeeling.

Day 6 The final day leads to Rimbik (2286m); check with locals before setting off as the route is confusing. In Rimbik there's the warm and cosy Sherpa, where they'll help arrange bus tickets to Darjeeling; alternatives include the Sherpa Tenzing. Rimbik is a roadhead served by buses and jeeps (daily 6–7am & noon–1pm) heading to Darjeeling; you could also set off by taxi or on foot to Karmi Farm near Bijanbari.

Down the Hill Cart Road towards Kurseong, the influential Sonada Monastery or Samdrub Darjay Choling, founded in the 1960s, was the seat of Kabje Kalu Rinpoche, who developed a large American and French following. Today the monastery continues under the tutelage of his incarnate Yangsi Kalu Rinpoche. Rooms are occasionally available for those looking for a retreat.

ACCOMMODATION GLENBURN TEA AROUND DARJEELING ESTATE OFF THE ROAD TO KALIMPONG, 35KM NORTHEAST

OF DARJEELING ☎033 2288 5630, 🌐

GLENBURNTEAESTATE.COM. YOU CAN GET A TASTE OF THE OPULENCE OF A TEA-MANAGER'S LIFESTYLE – AT A PRICE – WITH A STAY AT THIS ESTATE, WHICH OFFERS ALL-INCLUSIVE PACKAGES INCLUDING AIRPORT TRANSFERS, TOURS, TASTINGS AND ALL MEALS. THE EXTENSIVE ESTATE, EN ROUTE TO KALIMPONG, STRETCHES DOWN THE HILLSIDE TO THE RANGEET RIVER, AND OFFERS RIVERSIDE CAMPING AND FISHING. ₹₹₹₹

Makaibari Tea Estate Pankhabari Rd, Kurseong ☎033 2248 6017, 🌐 makaibari.com. The pioneering owner of this organic tea estate offers homestays around the plantation in the workers' houses. Expect rustic but comfortable rooms and meals, and a family atmosphere; rates go directly to the host family and the community. Plenty of activities, including trekking, tea picking (and tasting) and birdwatching, and there are also opportunities to volunteer. No wi-fi. ₹₹

Kalimpong

Though it may seem a bit grubby at first, the quiet hill station of KALIMPONG, 50km east of Darjeeling, has much to offer, including a colourful market, an extraordinary profusion of orchids and other flowers, great views of Kanchenjunga, several monasteries and lots of potential for walks in the surrounding hills, which are still home to the original Lepcha community. Like Darjeeling, Kalimpong once belonged to Sikkim, and later to Bhutan. Unlike Darjeeling, however, this was never a tea town or resort but a trading centre on the vital route to Tibet.

Despite a large military presence, Kalimpong's recent history has been one of neglect, decaying infrastructure and water shortage. A deep-rooted dissatisfaction has simmered for several years, spearheaded by the Gurkhaland movement (something documented in Kiran Desai's excellent Booker Prize-nominated novel The Inheritance of Loss, but political uncertainties and wildcat strikes have not detracted from Kalimpong's charm. The 2011 earthquake devastated parts of the town, but today its quiet leafy avenues offer a breath of fresh air after the razzmatazz of Darjeeling.

Tenth Mile

Market area

Kalimpong spreads along a curving ridge to either side of its main market area, known as Tenth Mile. Though there are few of the curio and tourist emporia so abundant in Darjeeling, there are plenty of places selling Buddhist handicrafts and religious paraphernalia, which attract wholesale buyers from all over India. Silk brocade, Tibetan incense, made-to-order monks' attire and silver bowls predominate.

Rinkingpong Hill 4km southwest of town

Rinkingpong Hill, also known as Durpin Dara, looms above Kalimpong and is best visited at dawn. At its highest point, Zong Dog Palri Phodrang Gompa, also known as Durpin ("telescope") Monastery, built in 1957 to house three copper statues brought from Tibet in the 1940s, was modelled on Guru Rinpoche's mythical "pure realm" palace and consecrated by the Dalai Lama. Despite the communication masts and the army campus next door, the gompa's roof is a great place to take in the sunrise accompanied by the chanting of the monks below; you are welcome to stay and sit in for the prayers too which makes for an atmospheric visit.

The wooded roads leading up Rinkingpong Hill hide several interesting old manor houses. Morgan House was built for a British jute merchant but now serves as a tourist lodge, where tea on the lawn captures the atmosphere of the period; the views are stunning.

St Teresa's Church 2km above town

St Teresa's Church was built in 1929 by a Swiss missionary and borrows heavily from vernacular Buddhist monastic architecture, mimicking a Bhutanese gompa. There's beautiful carving inside and out: take note in particular of the doors, adorned with the eight sacred Buddhist symbols.

KALIMPONG

● SHOPPING

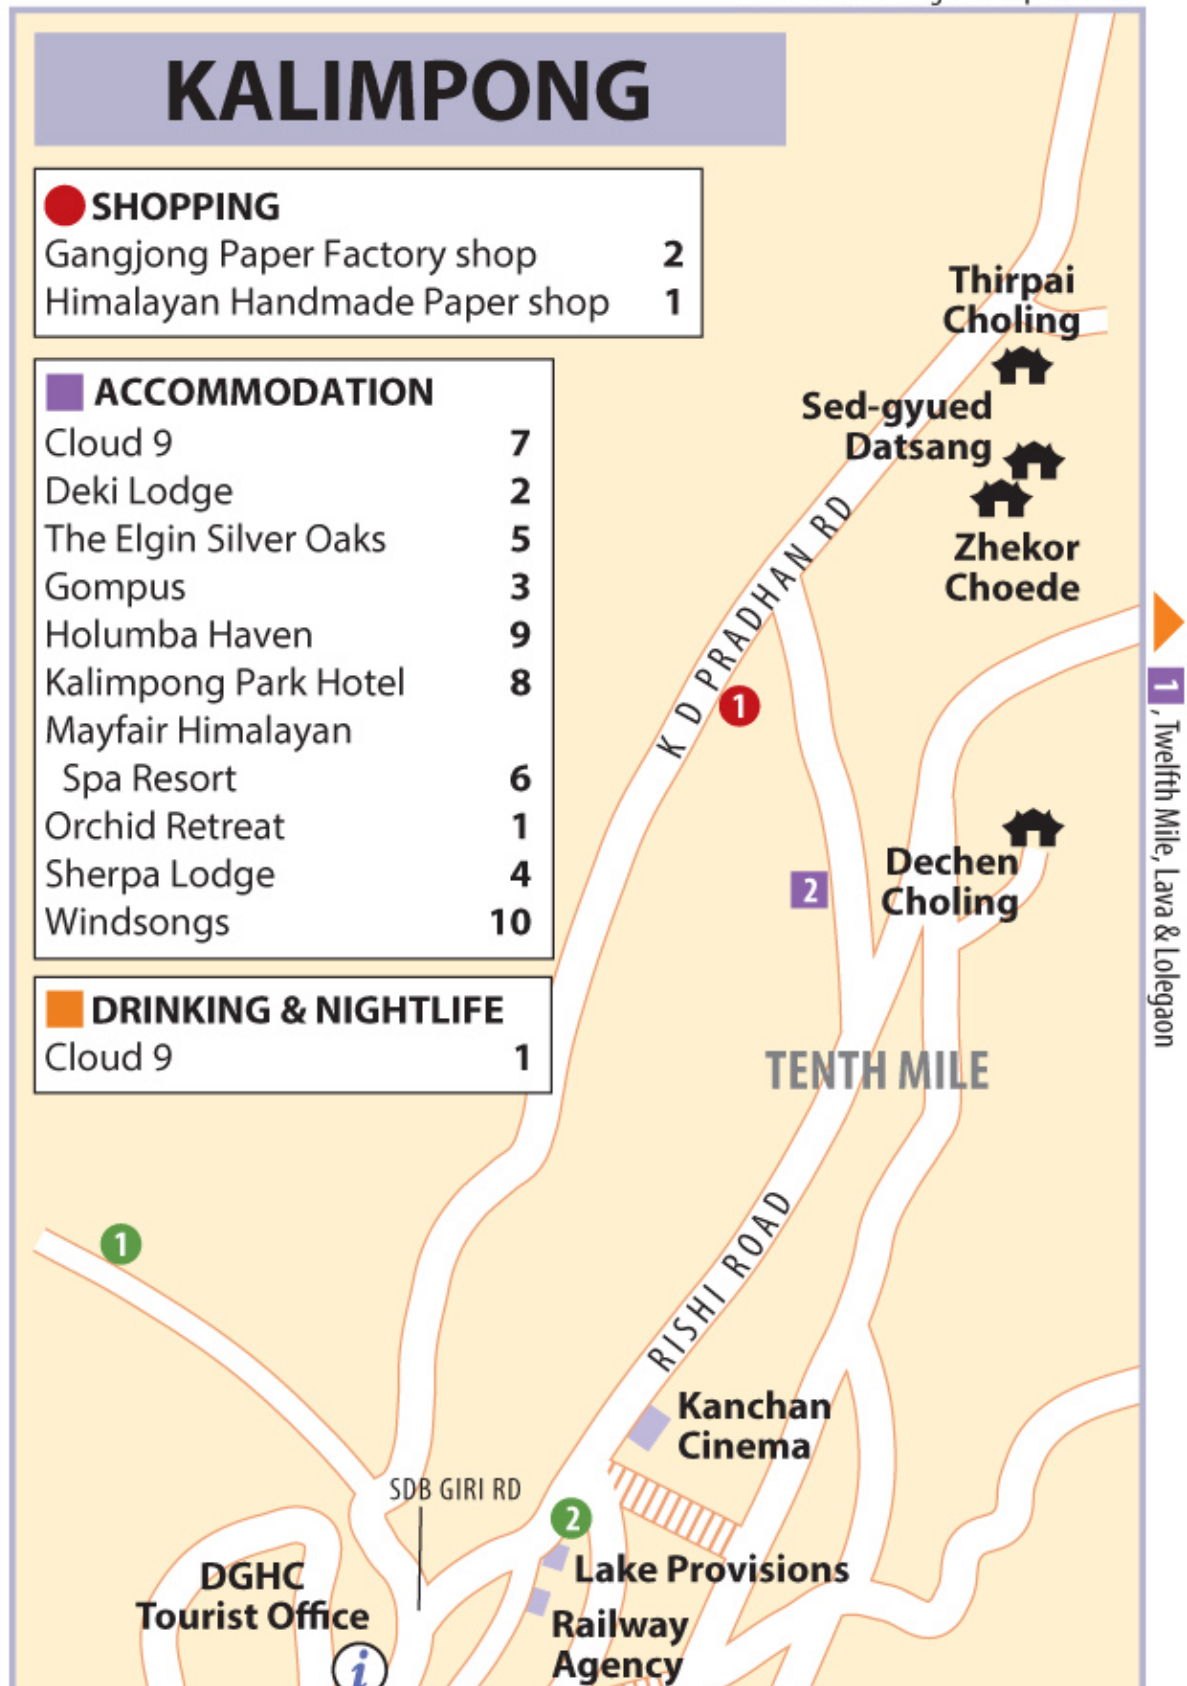

Gangjong Paper Factory shop	2
Himalayan Handmade Paper shop	1

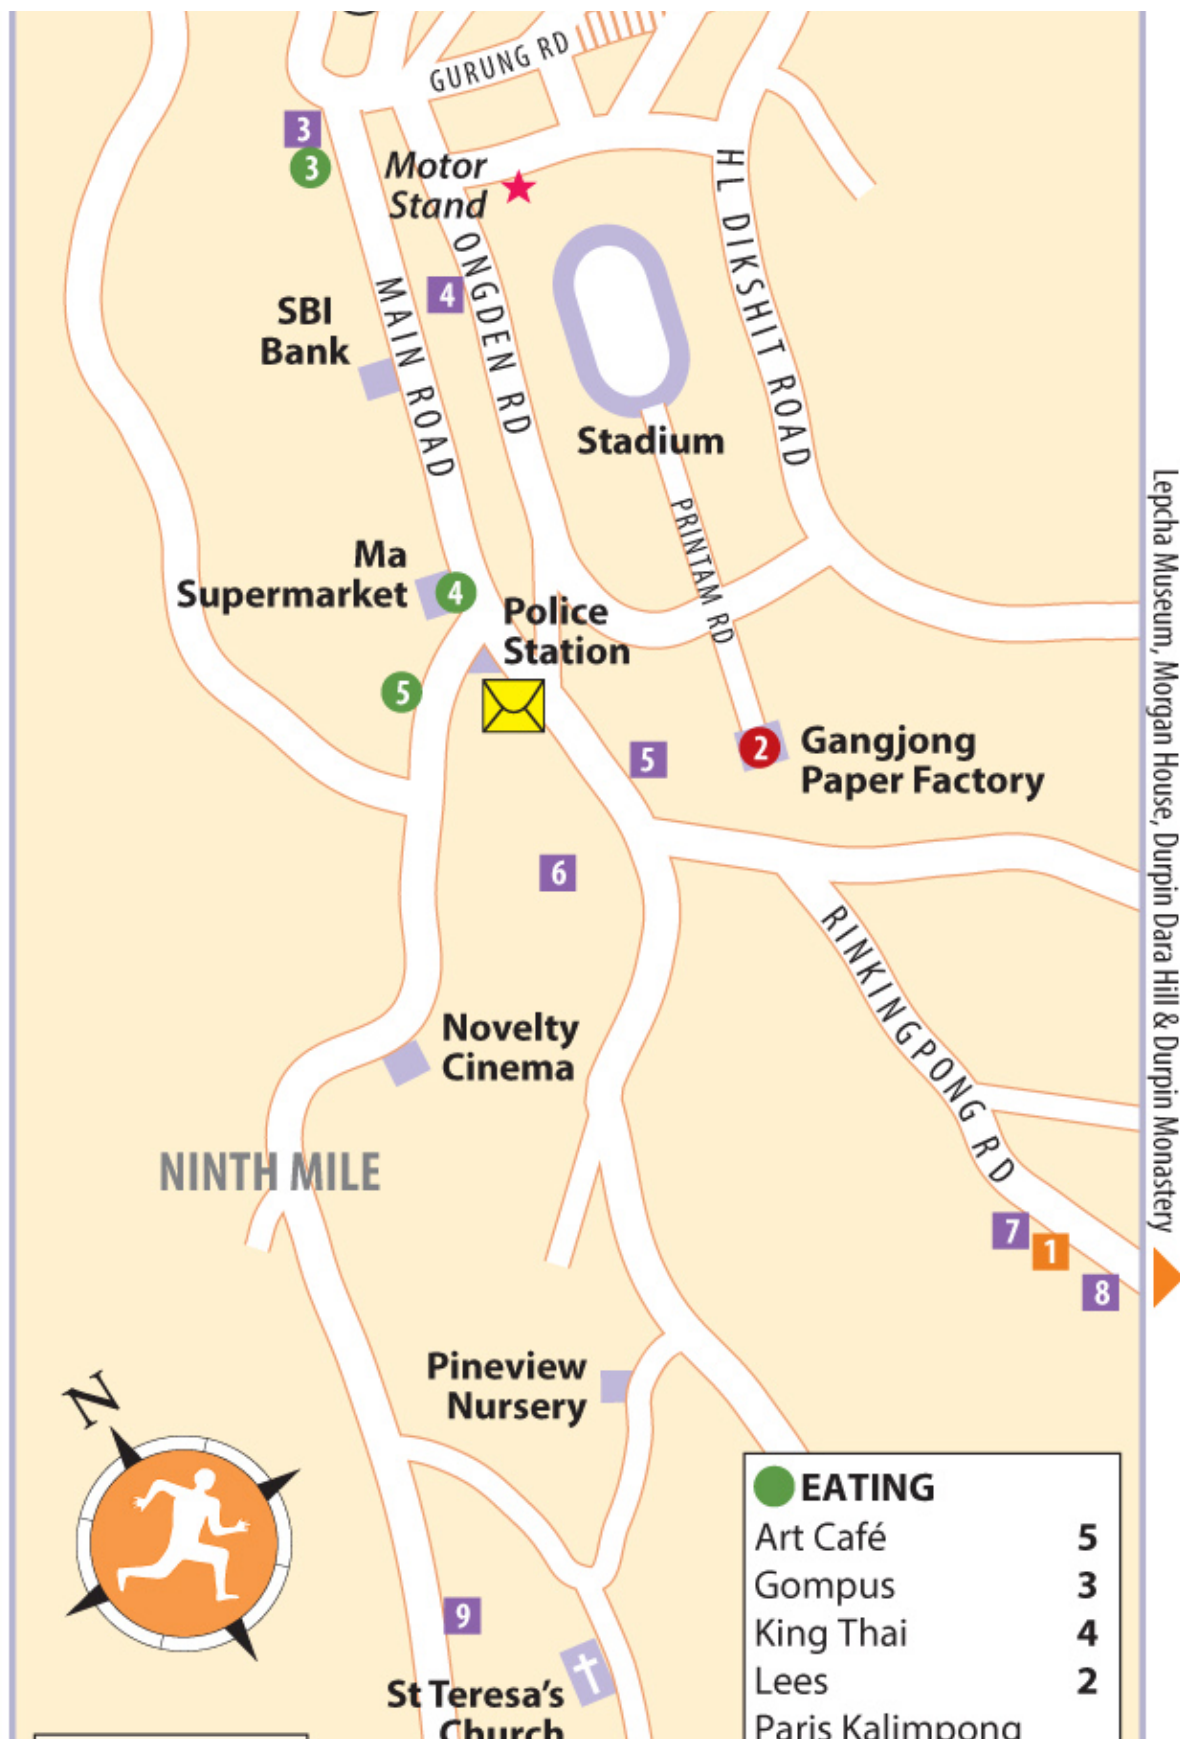

■ ACCOMMODATION

Cloud 9	7
Deki Lodge	2
The Elgin Silver Oaks	5
Gompus	3
Holumba Haven	9
Kalimpong Park Hotel	8
Mayfair Himalayan
Spa Resort	6
Orchid Retreat	1
Sherpa Lodge	4
Windsongs	10

■ DRINKING & NIGHTLIFE

Cloud 9	1
---------	---

Lepcha Museum, Morgan House, Durpin Dara Hill & Durpin Monastery

Thirpai Choling Gompa and Thongsa Gompa Above Tenth Mile, to the east of town A short walk up Deolo Hill brings you to the Thirpai Choling Gompa, a breakaway Gelugpa monastery founded in 1892 and fairly recently renovated, which once venerated the controversial image of Dorje Shugden, a deity proscribed by the Dalai Lama.

Also near Tenth Mile and below the main road, the meditation halls of Thongsa Gompa, a small Bhutanese monastery founded in 1692, also completely renovated, are covered with a series of beautiful murals. Some of these are sexually explicit, depicting yabyum, the coupling of divine opposites.

Deolo Hill

9.5km north of town • Daily 9am–6pm The summit of Deolo Hill (1704m) is a popular picnic spot and for good reason. While it has a lodge and restaurant, the real draw is of course the superb vista that encompasses the steamy Teesta Valley far below all the way to the summit of Kanchenjunga, with the frontier ridge and the passes of Nathula and Jeleppla that leads into Tibet clearly visible.

Lepcha Museum 1km southeast of the town centre, off HC Dixit Rd • Officially Mon–Fri 10.30am–4.30pm, though opening hours are a little erratic • Free The small but worthwhile Lepcha Museum has a collection of exhibits that illuminate the culture, music and religious beliefs of the Lepcha indigenous community. Little English is spoken, however, so if you can find someone to interpret for you, your visit will be much more rewarding. Some travellers have been lucky to have met Padmashree Sonam Tshering Lepcha who single-handedly ran the Lepcha school and the museum. He was a talented musician and played various wind instruments.

HORTICULTURE KALIMPONG IS RENOWNED FOR ITS HORTICULTURE, ESPECIALLY ITS ORCHIDS, CACTI, AMARYLLIS, PALMS AND FERNS. THERE ARE AROUND FIFTY NURSERIES, SUCH AS PINEVIEW ON ATISHA ROAD (MON–SAT 9AM–5PM; ₹10), WHICH

SPECIALIZES IN EXOTIC CACTI. ALTHOUGH KALIMPONG BLOSSOMS ALL YEAR LONG, THE BEST TIME TO SEE ORCHIDS IN BLOOM IS BETWEEN MID-APRIL AND MID-MAY, WHEN A FLOWER FESTIVAL IS USUALLY HELD.

Gauripur Niwas Around 2km southwest of the town centre, en route to the army golf course Built in the Arts and Crafts style in the 1930s, Gauripur Niwas was a summer residence of Rabindranath Tagore. The Nobel Laureate wrote several poems here, but today the house is badly dilapidated, partly as a result of the 2011 earthquake. There are hopes that it will be restored one day.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE KALIMPONG, ONLY KALIMPONG ACCESSIBLE BY ROAD, IS SERVED BY REGULAR BUSES, TAXIS AND JEEPS FROM DARJEELING, SILIGURI AND GANGTOK. MOST BUSES AND JEEPS RUN FROM THE MOTOR STAND IN THE CENTRAL MARKET AREA.

By jeep A shared jeep (1pm) to the NJP railway station, booked in advance through the Railway Agency on Rishi Rd (☎03552 259954), is especially useful for evening train departures such as the Darjeeling Mail to Kolkata. Each route has its own syndicate and ticket office; vehicles depart when full. Bear in mind that the last reliable transport links are mid-afternoon.

Destinations Darjeeling (2hr 30min–4hr); Gangtok (3hr); Siliguri (2hr 30min). Other destinations include NJP, Lava, Kakarbitta (Nepal border), Pelling and Ghezing.

By taxi Himalayan Travellers (☎94341 66498) is good for reserved taxis and the Motor Transport Syndicate (☎99327 66064) runs services to Darjeeling (7am–3pm).

By bus Although slower than jeeps, buses to Siliguri are generally more comfortable; similarly, the bus to Gangtok is worth considering, rather than a shared jeep (around 7am; 3–4hr).

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST INFORMATION THE ERRATICALLY STAFFED GTA TOURIST OFFICE, JUST OFF

DAMBER CHOWKH (DAILY 9.30AM–5PM; ☎03552 257992), PROVIDES GENERAL INFORMATION. A BETTER BET IS THE HELPFUL TRAVEL HELP DESK AT SHERPA LODGE (SEE OPPOSITE; ☎89720 29913).

Tour operators Gurudongma Tours and Treks (☎03552 255204, 🌐astonishingindiatours.com) specializes in ornithological, culinary, birdwatching, rafting and trekking trips and has its own farmhouse (see box). Travel Help Desk organizes village tours, local walks, trips to the Neora Valley and mountain-bike tours. Mondo Challenge, an educational charity that welcomes volunteers, also runs one-, two- and three-day village treks (☎03552 255423, 🌐mondochallenge.wix.com/kalimpong). Not for the faint-hearted, the Swedish-run Himalayan Eagle (Himalayan Eagle Resort, Lower Chibbo village, 3km outside Kalimpong; ☎9635 156911, 🌐himalayaneagle.in) offers tandem paragliding flights from near Deolo. Its sister agency, Himalayan Bike Tours (🌐himalayanbiketours.se), organizes motorbike tours of the region.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Cloud 9 Ringkingpong Rd ☎98320 39634, 🌐cloudbinekalimpong.weebly.com. This guesthouse, above the lively bar-restaurant of the same name, has five simple but well-kept rooms with grand views across the distant town. The real draw, however, is the welcoming owner Binodh, a great source of local knowledge. ₹₹

Deki Lodge Tirpai Rd ☎03552 255095, 🌐dekilodge.yolasite.com. A 10min walk from the Motor Stand, this clean and very friendly Tibetan-run hotel offers a wide choice of rooms, all of which have attached hot-water bathrooms. There's a small book exchange and laundry facilities. ₹₹

The Elgin Silver Oaks Ringkingpong Rd 🌐elginhotels.com. One of the grandest addresses in Kalimpong, with a central location, spacious, classically decorated rooms, and a good restaurant. The garden is a pleasant setting for tea in the afternoon or something a little stronger in the evenings. Rates include full board. ₹₹₹₹

Gompus Damber Chowk ☎72101 01502, 📧gompuskpg@gmail.com. This popular place bang in the centre of town has been completely revamped into a smart, mid-range business hotel with large rooms all with TV and modern plumbing. It's spread across three floors above a popular restaurant-bar. ₹₹

★Holumba Haven 8.5 Mile, near the Fire Station 03552 256936, holumba.com. Beautifully presented cottages set in a plant nursery resplendent with tree ferns and complete with a menagerie of birds. Some cottages come with their own kitchens, or you can have home-cooked meals (₹200–350) with the informative and extremely welcoming owners. This is essentially a homestay and so doesn't provide all the amenities of a hotel. ₹

Kalimpong Park Hotel Ringkingpong Rd 080164 80665, kalimpongparkhotel.com. This charming mid-range option, surrounded by gardens and located 1km uphill from the town centre, is based in a former maharaja's summer palace and retains many period features. Rooms are comfortable and good value, and the lovely bar is an atmospheric spot for an evening drink. ₹₹₹

Mayfair Himalayan Spa Resort Upper Cart Rd 03552 255248, mayfairhotels.com/mayfair-kalimpong. In a house once owned by explorer and author David Macdonald – who served on Sir Francis Younghusband's mission to Lhasa and helped the thirteenth Dalai Lama to escape from Tibet in 1910 – this historic hotel is full of Tibetan memorabilia and set amid exquisite, leafy gardens in an unspoilt spot above town. The modern cottages are luxurious but lack the ambience of the old house with its large wood-panelled rooms. ₹₹₹

Orchid Retreat 12 Mile 03552 274517, theorchidretreat.com. A family-run plant nursery that has been partly converted into a comfortable homestay; beyond the initial modern buildings the grounds drop steeply away into a lush garden decorated with tree ferns and exotic flora, where a handful of wooden chalets built in vernacular style provide a quiet haven. Some 65 species of bird have been spotted here. ₹₹

Sherpa Lodge Ongden Rd 089720 29913. In a convenient – if noisy and fume-filled – central location, this extreme cheapie has reasonable budget rooms, though hot water is only provided via a bucket. The owner runs an information and travel desk on the ground floor. ₹

★Windsongs 8 Mile 03552 255387, windsongskalimpong.com. A palm nursery and family home with a handful of comfortable attached rooms. However, the cottage (₹5500) in the manicured garden is the best spot here (and in town): from the bathtub you can gaze through the window at the most impressive view in the hills – from the Teesta to the top of Kanchenjunga (a distance of around 8000m). ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

Art Café Just off the main road 📞97495 48034, 🌐facebook.com/artcafekalimpong. Run by a fashion designer and florist, this hip café-boutique-plant-shop is a peaceful spot for a coffee, tea, a snack or light meal. It is located on the first floor of a shopping complex, surrounded by banks. Mon–Sat 10am–6pm. ₹

Gompus Damber Chowk. A popular restaurant and bar right in the centre of town, with a wide-ranging menu but best known for its Tibetan momos and thukpa. Daily 8am–9pm. ₹

King Thai Ma Supermarket, near the police station 📞87592 65948. Despite the name, this restaurant-bar serves up reasonable Chinese and Indian food, rather than authentic Thai cuisine. In the evenings it doubles up as a bar; local bands occasionally play, though it can get rowdy, and fights sometimes break out. The decor consists of an Americana mural, Beatles photos, Jimi Hendrix and classic film posters. Daily noon–9/10pm. ₹₹

Lees Above Maya Liang, SBG Rd. Authentic Chinese restaurant owned by and named after the chef. Try the steamed golden chicken or spare ribs; it's best to come for lunch as he closes early in the evenings. ₹

VILLAGE TOURISM AND HOMESTAYS OFFERING THE CHANCE TO EXPLORE THE RURAL LANDSCAPE AND EXPERIENCE LOCAL CULTURE, ORGANIZED VILLAGE TOURISM IS BECOMING INCREASINGLY POPULAR. THE MAIN OPERATORS INCLUDE GURUDONGMA AND HOLUMBA IN KALIMPONG, HELP TOURISM IN SILIGURI, AND HIMALAYAN FOOTPRINTS IN GANGTOK.

Farm House and Wise Elephant Samthar Plateau, 80km from Kalimpong 📞94340 47372, 🌐awakeandshine.org. These homestays, run by Gurudongma, are in tranquil and rustic yet luxurious developments on the beautiful Samthar Plateau, an 80km drive from Kalimpong. The rate shown here is for full board. There are also a number of less expensive and luxurious homestays available in the region; visit the website for more details. ₹₹

Gurung Guest House Tinchuley Village, near Takdah ☎9733 326309, tinchuley.com. Situated 28km from Kalimpong near Takdah, this well-run guesthouse, with some delightful wood-lined rooms plus a modern block and a cottage, provides a comfort-able retreat with a small tea and cardamom plantation and nature trails nearby. ₹₹₹

Turuk Kothi Sikkim, 35km from Kalimpong ☎89673 89545, turukkothiheritage.com. Across the border into Sikkim, 35km from Kalimpong, this grand manor house has six attractive cottages set in an idyllic plantation that dates back to the late nineteenth century. Rates are for full board. ₹₹₹

Daily noon–6pm.

★Paris Kalimpong French Bakery SDB Giri Rd ☎80167 51311. This French-run bakery and coffee shop is a very welcome surprise: delicious, authentic baguettes, croissants, pains au chocolat and quiches, as well as proper Lavazza coffee. It also provides work – as waiters – for local hearing-impaired youths. Daily 8am–6.30pm. ₹

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP

In addition to Cloud 9, several of the restaurants and hotels have good bars, notably Gompus and the Kalimpong Park Hotel. King Thai also doubles up as a bar.

Cloud 9 Ringkingpong Rd ☎98320 39634. Below the guesthouse of the same name (see above), this welcoming bar-restaurant has occasional live music (the Beatles feature heavily) and a charming owner, Binodh. The food's good too: beyond the standard menu, the chef can – with notice – produce a special Bhutanese feast. Daily noon–10pm.

SHOPPING

MAP

Markets On Wednesdays and Saturdays, Tenth Mile gets very lively as villagers flock in from the surrounding areas for the principal weekly markets.

Traditional paper workshops The Gangjong Paper Factory (Mon–Sat 9am–4.30pm) welcomes visitors to its handmade paper workshop down steps off Printam Rd; access to Himalayan Handmade Paper, on KD Pradhan Rd near Thirpai, is easier and it also has a shop. Mon–Sat 9am–5pm.

DIRECTORY HOSPITAL ADARSHA NURSING HOME, SD GIRI RD (☎89679 68474), IS ONE OF THE BEST MEDICAL CENTRES FOR EMERGENCIES.

Post office The main post office is near the town centre, above the bazaar area just behind the police station.

Around Kalimpong Although the Lepchas, the original inhabitants of the area, have lost their traditional way of life in most parts of Darjeeling and Sikkim, their lifestyle has remained relatively untouched in the unspoilt forest-covered hills and deep river valleys to the south of Kalimpong.

Lava and Neora Valley National Park 35km east of Kalimpong • Daily Oct–May dawn–dusk • Travel agencies in Kalimpong can arrange guides and permits as well as transport for a multiday trek through the sanctuary staying at remote forest resthouses; they can also advise on treks around Lava • The Forest Department (☎03561 24907), 1km above Lava on the Kalimpong road also manages permits Lying on an old trade route to Bhutan, the small town of Lava (2184m) with a colourful Tuesday market, 35km from Kalimpong and accessible by shared jeep, makes an ideal base for exploring the nature trails of Neora Valley National Park. An 88-square-kilometre reserve stretching along a narrow river valley, with a huge variation in wildlife and abundant orchids and birds, the park has been designated a tiger reserve but sightings are extremely rare. As well as black bear and red panda Neora Valley is home to packs of wild dogs.

Lava is also convenient for approaching the Rachela Pass (3152m) on the Sikkim–Bhutan border, which provides excellent views of the Chola Range including Chomalhari (7314m), the sacred mountain of Bhutan.

Walking around Lava Pleasant trails lead west from Lava towards Budhabare, a market town in the Git River Valley, which has a sprinkling of Lepcha, Gurkha and Bhutia villages. The track continues through forest to Kafer Lolegaon where the sunrise is legendary and there is a Heritage Forest walk along a canopy trail. You can get here via a rough road from Kalimpong, but if you're fit, you could walk the trail that crosses the Relli River near the village of the same name and climbs directly to Kalimpong. Alternatively, you could cycle through the area – ask at the Travel Help Desk in Kalimpong for routes.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY JEEP OR BUS THE CROSSROADS AT LAVA AND NEORA VALLEY NATIONAL PARK THE CENTRE OF LAVA SERVES AS A SHARED TAXI STAND WITH REGULAR CONNECTIONS TO KALIMPONG AND ALSO TO SILIGURI; BUSES MAKE THE SAME JOURNEY. THE TURN-OFF TO KAFER LOLEGAON IS 5KM AWAY ON THE KALIMPONG ROAD. THERE IS LESS TRANSPORT ON THIS ROUTE AND SO IT IS BEST TO TRAVEL EARLY. JEEPS FROM LAVA TO THE GATE OF NEORA VALLEY NP (15KM) CHARGE THE AROUND ₹3000–3500) INTO THE PARK THE ROAD INTO THE PARK IS TOO RUTTED TO TAKE ORDINARY VEHICLES. IF YOU'RE DRIVING, LEAVE THE VEHICLE BY THE PARK GATES WHERE THERE IS A CAFÉ AND THE CHECKPOST TO REGISTER YOUR PERMIT. ACCESS INTO THE PARK IS ON FOOT.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING LAVA HAS LIMITED ACCOMMODATION WITHIN THE TOWN BUT THE SURROUNDING AREA OFFERS A CHOICE FROM FOREST BUNGALOWS TO PLACES WITH A BIT MORE LUXURY. FURTHER AFIELD, LOLEGAON HAS A HANDFUL OF HOTELS TO CHOOSE FROM. THERE ARE A FEW BASIC RESTAURANTS AROUND THE TAXI STAND IN THE CENTRE.

Forest Rest House Lava 📞wbfdc.com. On the edge of town and a short drive off the main Kalimpong road, this state-run lodge is a pleasant and quiet place to stay. Booking can be a pain: it is theoretically possible online, though often easier if you book in at the tourist office in Siliguri, the WBFDC office in Kalimpong (off Rinkingpong Rd) or the West Bengal tourist office in Kolkata. No wi-fi. ₹₹

Neora Valley Jungle Camp Kolakham, Lava 📞0353 253 5896, 📧helptourism.net. The most luxurious accom-modation in the vicinity of the park, and run by experienced wildlife experts, this is hardly a camp but rather a collection of tasteful stone and wood cottages with expansive views of Sikkim. Transport there from Lava is extra. ₹₹₹

Paradise Lava Bazaar, Lava 📞paradisegroupofhotels.net/lava/. One of Lava's better hotels, with partially wood-panelled rooms with TV and attached bathrooms (and hot water when electricity allows); there is also a decent restaurant. The owners also have a similarly priced branch at Rishyap, a pleasant 4km walk away through the woods. ₹₹

< Back to Kolkata and West Bengal

Shutterstock

BUDDHIST MONKS VISIT THE MAHABODHI TEMPLE

Bihar and Jharkhand

Patna

Around Patna

The road to Nepal

Gaya

Bodhgaya and around

Rajgir

Nalanda and around

Jharkhand

Bihar and Jharkhand Bihar occupies the flat eastern Ganges basin, south of Nepal, between Uttar Pradesh and West Bengal. To its south, Jharkhand, occupying the hilly Chotanagpur plateau north of Odisha, was hewn out of Bihar in 2000, following agitation by its tribal majority. Both states are beset by poverty, lack of infrastructure, inter-caste violence, corruption and general lawlessness.

Although visitors are usually unaffected by the banditry and guerrilla war, tourists and Buddhist pilgrims have on occasion been robbed and few travellers spend much time here, which is a shame, because the region offers a fascinating mix of religious history. The safety situation has improved significantly, but check with your government's foreign ministry and the local press (www.patnadaily.com and www.bihartimes.in are good sources of information) before travel; local state and tourist authorities tend to downplay safety concerns.

Patna

PATNA, Bihar's capital, dates back to the sixth century BC, but shows few signs today of its former glory as the centre of the Magadhan and Mauryan empires. A sprawling metropolis hugging the south bank of the Ganges, Patna stretches for around 15km in a shape that has changed little since Ajatasatru (491–459 BC) shifted the Magadhan capital here from Rajgir. The first Mauryan emperor, Chandragupta, established himself in what was then Pataliputra in 321 BC, and pushed the limits of his empire as far as the Indus; his grandson Ashoka (274–237 BC), one of India's greatest rulers, held sway over even greater domains. To facilitate Indo-Hellenic trade, the Mauryans built a Royal Highway from Pataliputra to Taxila, Pakistan, which later became the Grand Trunk Road. The city experienced two revivals, first when the first Gupta emperor, Chandra Gupta, made it his capital early in the fourth century AD, and then again when it was rebuilt in the sixteenth century by Afghan ruler Sher Shah Suri.

Buddha Smirti Park Fraser Rd • Tues–Sun 9am–7pm • Park charge; Pat Kaman Stupa charge; museum charge; meditation centre free Slap-bang in the middle of town, the 22-acre Buddha Smirti Park stands on the site once occupied by Bankipur Central Jail. The park was inaugurated by the Dalai Lama in 2010, and its trees include saplings taken from the Bodhi tree in Bodhgaya. The big stupa in the middle houses an urn supposedly containing ashes from the body of Buddha himself, which were unearthed at Vasihali. This being a Buddhist site, there's also a meditation centre, and a museum illustrating the life of Buddha and the history of Buddhism.

BEST TIME TO VISIT THE MONSOON HITS BIHAR AND JHARKHAND IN EARLY JUNE, LASTING UNTIL SEPTEMBER, AND THE VERY BEST TIME TO VISIT IS IMMEDIATELY AFTER THAT, IN OCTOBER AND NOVEMBER. NOVEMBER IS ALSO THE TIME OF THE SONEPUR MELA. BIHAR AND JHARKHAND CAN GET QUITE CHILLY FROM DECEMBER THROUGH FEBRUARY, ESPECIALLY AT NIGHT, ALTHOUGH

DAYTIME TEMPERATURES REMAIN COMFORTABLE. FROM MARCH, TEMPERATURES START TO RISE AND THE HEAT THEN GETS PROGRESSIVELY STICKIER AND MORE DEBILITATING UNTIL THE MONSOON BREAKS IT.

Shutterstock

ELEPHANT BATHS DURING SONEPUR MELA

Highlights

- ① Sonepur Mela This month-long festival and cattle fair is a spectacular gathering of pilgrims, sadhus and animals.
- ② The Mahabodhi Temple A cutting from the tree under which the Buddha attained enlightenment is the focal point of Bodhgaya's renowned temple, which really does have an air of calm, meditative holiness about it.
- ③ Mahakala Caves Climb a path to see the caves where Buddha underwent years of bodily mortification before coming to the realization that this was not the true path to enlightenment.
- ④ Rajgir A dusty Buddhist pilgrimage town filled with shrines, as well as therapeutic hot springs, and a chairlift to take you up to the Peace Pagoda on a hill.
- ⑤ Nalanda The site of a fifteen-hundred-year-old university, from the days when Buddhism dominated India, strewn with the remains of ancient stupas and monasteries.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

Golghar Danapur–Banikpur Rd • Tues–Sun 9am–6pm • Laser show: Fri, Sat & Sun 6.15pm • Charge Patna's most notable monument is the Golghar, also called "the round house", a huge colonial-era grain store built in 1786 to avoid a repetition of 1770's terrible famine; thankfully, it never needed to be used. Overlooking the river and Gandhi Maidan, its two sets of stairs spiralling up to the summit were designed so indentured workers could carry grain up one side, deliver their load through a hole at the top, and descend down the other.

Sightseers now clamber up for mighty views of the river and the city. On Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, there's a sound-and-light laser show illustrating the history of Bihar and the Golghar.

FESTIVALS IN BIHAR AND JHARKHAND MAKAR SANKRANTI MELA (MID-JAN). PILGRIMS FROM ACROSS INDIA GATHER IN RAJGIR TO BATHE IN THE HOT SPRINGS AND HERALD THE COMING OF SPRING.

Sarhul (March). Popular village celebration among the Adivasi peoples of Jharkhand, welcoming the new blossom on the sal trees with music and dancing.

Pataliputra Mahotsava (March). Patna celebrates its illustrious history with music, dancing and public events.

Chatth Puja (March/April and Oct/Nov). An ancient festival dedicated to the Vedic sun god Surya, celebrated twice a year.

Patna Sahib Mahotsav (May). Annual cultural festival put on by Bihar Tourism around Patna's Harimandir Sahib.

Rajgir Mahotsav (Nov). Three-day festival of dance and music in Rajgir.

Sonepur Mela (Nov/Dec). Huge annual sadhu gathering at the confluence of the Gandak and the Ganges at Sonepur.

Gandhi Museum Ashok Rajpath, just northwest of Gandhi Maidan • Daily except Sat 10am–5pm • Free •

gandhisangrahalayapatna.org

Patna's Gandhi Museum is really more like a book in museum format, consisting largely of text and photos illustrating, in one room, the Mahatma's life, and in another, the history of the Independence movement in Bihar. One or two of Gandhi's personal effects are also on display, but are labelled in Hindi only.

Patna Museum Buddha Marg • Tues–Sun 10.30am–4.30pm • Charge • Phone/camera/video camera charge The Patna Museum (Jadu Ghar), although faded and run down, has an excellent collection of sculptures. Among its most famous exhibits is a polished sandstone female attendant, or yakshi, holding a fly-whisk, dating back to the third century BC. There are also Jain images from the Kushana period, a group of Buddhist bodhisattvas from Gandhara (in northwest Pakistan), some freakishly deformed stuffed animals and a gigantic fossilized tree thought to be two hundred million years old.

Harimandir Sahib Harimandir Gali (off Ashok Rajpath), Haji Ganj In Haji Ganj, an old part of town 10km east of Gandhi Maidan, congested lanes lead to Harimandir Sahib, the second holiest of the four great Sikh shrines known as takhts (thrones). Set in an expansive courtyard off the main road, the dazzling white onion-domed marble temple is dedicated to Guru Gobind Singh, born in Patna in 1660. Visitors can explore the courtyard and even venture inside where devotional music is often playing. Remove your shoes and cover your head before entering. Shared auto-rickshaws cost less than a thousand rupees from Gandhi Maidan Bus Stand.

Qila House Jalan Ave • Visits by appointment only (visiting times Mon–Sat 9–11am, Sun 10am–4pm; call or email 48hr ahead on ☎0612 222 5070 or ✉jalanmuseum@gmail.com • 🌐 jalanmuseum.com

A short way northeast of Harimandir Sahib, the private Qila House (or Jalan Museum) holds a fine collection of art, including Chinese paintings and Mughal filigree work in jade and silver. Among the antiques are porcelain items that once belonged to Marie Antoinette, and Napoleon's four-poster bed.

LALU AND THE CASTE WARS: POLITICS IN BIHAR FOR YEARS, BIHAR LANGUISHED AT THE BOTTOM OF ALMOST EVERY MEASURE OF DEVELOPMENT, FROM LITERACY RATES TO GDP. AUTHOR WILLIAM DALRYMPLE DESCRIBED IT AS, “THE MOST UNGOVERNABLE AND ANARCHIC STATE IN INDIA”, EVEN THOUGH IT IS BLESSED WITH AMPLE COAL AND IRON DEPOSITS AND LARGE TRACTS OF ARABLE LAND. THE PROBLEM WAS CAUSED BY A DISASTROUS COMBINATION OF VIRULENT INTER-CASTE CONFLICT AND CRIMINAL MISGOVERNANCE.

After Indian Independence, Bihar was ruled by a mafia of high-caste landowners, with the lower castes – who together with the dalits and tribal people make up more than seventy percent of the state’s population – marginalized to the point of persecution. All that seemed set to change in 1991 when a rabble-rouser from a lowly caste of buffalo milkers, Lalu Prasad Yadav, united the “backward castes”, the Muslims and the dalits under a banner of social justice, winning that year’s state election by a landslide. In power, Lalu delighted with his common touch; he spontaneously unclogged traffic congestion in Patna by walking the streets with a megaphone and filled the grounds of his official residence with buffalo.

Unfortunately, Lalu proved little better than his predecessors. His cabinet of caste brethren included men wanted for murder and kidnapping, and violence remained the main tool of political persuasion – as one election candidate said: “Without one hundred men with guns you cannot contest an election in Bihar.” Much of the state degenerated into virtual civil war as the upper castes, lower castes, Maoist (Naxalite) guerrillas, police and private armies clashed violently.

Lalu’s career appeared to be over in 1997, when he was imprisoned for a short spell for embezzling billions of rupees. He responded by getting his illiterate wife Rabri Devi proclaimed chief minister. Even though his RJD party was toppled in the 2005 state elections, Lalu went on to serve as minister for railways from 2004 to 2009.

At state level, however, things changed. In 2005 a Janata Dal (U)–BJP coalition under Lalu’s chief opponent Nitish Kumar took power, and the situation began to improve, with less obvious domination by organized crime.

Nitish held power for ten years, during which things did improve in the state (literacy went up and unemployment down, for example), with Lalu his main opponent. But in the 2014 Lok Sabha election the BJP swept the board and it looked like the 2015 state elections would herald the end of Nitish’s rule. He subsequently joined together with Lalu and the local Congress Party, and divvied up the state assembly seats in an anti-BJP block, so that each candidate had a straight run against the BJP. Thus united, Nitish and Lalu swept jointly into power, giving the BJP its first major electoral setback since the 2014 general election, and beginning a new chapter in Bihar’s chequered political history.

Saif Khan’s Mosque Midway between Harimandir Sahib and Gandhi Maidan stands Saif Khan’s Mosque, also called “the mosque of stone”. That is indeed what it is made from, but the stone is hidden behind layers of whitewash, with pretty green highlights. The mosque was commissioned in 1621 by the son of the Mughal emperor Jahangir, Parwez Shah, who was governor of Bihar at the time (although it doesn't actually look very Mughal).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE PATNA'S PATNA AIRPORT IS 5KM WEST OF TOWN. FLIGHTS SERVE DELHI (10 DAILY WITH AIR INDIA, INDIGO AND GO AIR), KOLKATA (4 DAILY WITH GO AIR AND INDIGO), RANCHI (3 DAILY WITH GO AIR AND INDIGO) AND LUCKNOW (2 DAILY WITH INDIGO).

By train All mainline train services arrive either at Patliputra or at Patna Junction station, 10km apart, both set in the west of the city. Patna Junction is the most important railway station in the region, and has a foreigners' reservation window (No. 7) on the upper floor of the booking office. The best train to Kolkata (Howrah) is the a/c Janshatabdi Express #12024 (Mon–Sat; dep. 5.45am, arr. 1.25pm); overnight services include the Vibhuti Express #12334 (daily; dep. 10.35pm, arr. 7.30am). For destinations beyond Kolkata, the Northeast Express #12506 leaves Patna at 10.20pm daily, reaching New Jalpaiguri (for Darjeeling) at 8.20am and Guwahati at 4.50pm. In the other direction, to Varanasi, the Shramjeevi Express #12391 (daily; dep. 10.50am, arr. just after 3pm) is a good option. The Rajdhani Express #12309 at 7.25pm (arr. 7.40am next day) and the Sampark Kranti Express #12393 at 6pm (arr. 8.35am next day) are the pick of several daily trains to New Delhi. For Mumbai, the Rajendra Nagar #12142 leaves daily at 11.10am, arriving at 3.30pm the next day. Seven daily trains cover the 2–3hr journey to Gaya, of which the fastest is the 6am Janshatabdi #12365 (arr. 7.55am), which continues on to Ranchi (arr. 1.55pm). Only one inconvenient weekly train links Patna directly with Puri, and no trains arrive in Gaya at a convenient time for the daily Purshottam Express #12802 (which leaves Gaya at 1.30pm, arriving in Puri at 5.25am), so take a bus to Gaya for that, or change at Howrah instead.

By bus For all destinations it's wise to stick to daytime services. State-run buses to Sonapur, Muner and Hajipur (for Vaishali) use the Gandhi Maidan Bus Stand. Private buses leave from the chaotic Mithapur Bus Stand, 2km south of the railway station (shared autos connect the two), where there is no enquiry office or departure board, and you'll have to depend on touts to guide you to a bus. For Nalanda and Rajgir, you usually have to change at Bihar Sharif. Private companies offer bus tickets to Kathmandu with a voucher for the bus across the border, but it's better to make your own way to Raxaul, cross the border, and find a bus on the Nepali side. The best services to Raxaul and Ranchi are the twice daily a/c buses run by Bihar State Roadways (BSRTC) from their stand in Bir Chand Patel Path (📍 9798047742, 🌐 bsrtc.co.in). They also offer handy tours to Nalanda and Rajgir leaving at 7am and returning at 8pm.

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE BIHAR STATE
TOURISM DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION IS AT KAUTILYA
VIHAR TOURIST BUNGALOW (MON–SAT 10AM–5PM; 🌐
BSTDC.BIHAR.GOV.IN. BIHAR TOURISM CAN ARRANGE TOURS AND CAR RENTAL. INDIA TOURISM PATNA ARE IN THE INSTITUTION OF ENGINEERS BUILDING, NEAR R-BLOCK ROUNDAABOUT, HARDINGE RD 🌐 TOURISM.GOV.IN.

Internet Internet Point, G-6, ground floor, Hem Plaza, Fraser Rd (Mon–Sat 10am–10.30pm, Sun noon–6pm); Windsornet at the Windsor hotel (daily 7am–9.30pm).

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Amalfi Grand Opp Pillar No. 4, Bailey Road Behind 🌐 amalfigrand.com; map p.782. One of Patna's newest 4-star hotels has well-appointed rooms clad in wood, with facilities including a meeting room and a restaurant. It's not far from the airport and Patliputra Junction. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Chanakya Bir Chand Patel Path 🌐 chanakyapatna.com. This looming hotel has tastefully furnished beige- and apricot-coloured attached rooms. There's also a currency exchange and two good restaurants, one serving Indian and Chinese, and Takshila, serving Mughal and Afghan dishes. ₹₹₹

Clark Inn Jamal Rd 📍 124 620 1185. Best of the cheapies near the station; looks quite grand from the outside and the rooms are quite a reasonable size, with attached bathrooms and hot water. ₹₹

Kautilya Vihar Tourist Bungalow Bir Chand Patel Path 🌐 hotel-kautilya-vihar-patna.wchotels.com. The Bihar State Tourism

Development Corporation's rambling hotel has grimy corridors but large double rooms, if rather bare, and a relaxed rooftop restaurant. Avoid the grotty dorms (₹) unless you are really broke. ₹₹

Maurya Patna Fraser Rd, South Gandhi Maidan 📞maurya.com. Service can be impersonal at this five-star, but the luxurious rooms – decorated in a range of styles, from colonial to oriental – swimming pool and fine restaurants tend to make up for it. ₹₹₹₹

President Off Fraser Rd 📞0612 220 9203. Its decor may not have been updated since the 1970s, but President remains a good option. Although the rooms are a little stuffy, they're clean and quite a decent size, and the management is also a good source of transport information. ₹₹

Windsor Exhibition Rd 📞hotelwindsorpatna.com. A reassuringly well-run mid-range hotel, good value, with nicely furnished, modern attached rooms, an internet café and the excellent Bellpepper restaurant (see below). ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

There are several decent restaurants strung along Fraser Rd. Keep an eye out for littis – baked balls of spiced chickpea dough – a Bihari speciality sold by street vendors. Alcohol was banned in Bihar in April 2016.

Bansi Vihar Fraser Rd 📞0612 222 4804. A low-ceilinged, dimly lit dining hall packed with locals, who come to sample tasty south Indian snacks, primarily dosas, of which there are 23 varieties, as well as uttapams and the odd Chinese dish. Daily 11am–10.30pm. ₹

★Bellpepper Hotel Windsor, Exhibition Rd 📞hotelwindsorpatna.com. A cosy and intimate little place serving excellent tandoori dishes such as chicken malai tikka and kebabs such as chicken seekh kebab. Daily 10am–11pm. ₹₹

Indian Summer Café Satya Narain Building, Exhibition Rd 📞74886 02318. A modern diner, with its own bakery, serving Western, Chinese and Indian dishes — with yummy fusions like butter chicken phulka tacos — trendily-decorated with exposed brick walls and naked bulbs. Their locally-produced lychee honey makes for a great souvenir. Daily noon–11pm. ₹

Sanwara Om Complex, S.P. Verma Rd 📞93041 16049. Vegetarian Indian plus the obligatory Chinese dishes in a modern, clean restaurant with cloths on the tables. Tasty offerings include malai kofta or paneer pasanda. Daily 9.30am–10.30pm. ₹

Takshila Hotel Chanakya, Bir Chand Patel Path  chanakyapatna.com/takshila. A top-notch restaurant specializing in Mughlai and Afghan meat dishes, with kebabs, Peshwari-style tandoori chicken, and in the evenings, set menus veg, or non-veg. Daily 7.30–10.30pm. ₹₹

Tandoor Hut BSFC Building, Fraser Rd  93868 51333. Popular takeaway restaurant with a full range of veg and non-veg curries and Chinese dishes. They do meal boxes (effectively, thalis in a box) veg, non-veg, or Chinese. Daily 11am–11pm. ₹

Around Patna Patna is a good base for exploring Nalanda, Rajgir and Vaishali, and Sonapur, north of Patna, is worth visiting for its mela, usually held in November.

Vaishali Set amid paddy fields 55km north of Patna, the quiet village of VAISHALI was the site of the Buddha's last sermon. Named after King Visala, who is mentioned in the Ramayana, Vaishali is also believed by some historians to have been the first city-state in the world to practise a democratic, republican form of government. After leaving his family and renouncing the world, Prince Gautama (Buddha) studied here, but eventually rejected his master's teachings and found his own path to enlightenment. He returned to Vaishali three times and on his last visit announced his final liberation – Mahaparinirvana – and departure from the world, in around 483 BC. A hundred years later, the second Buddhist Council was held in Vaishali and two stupas erected.

A small but well-presented archeological museum (Sat-Thurs 9am–5pm; Charge; asivaishalimuseum.com) provides a glimpse into the ancient Buddhist world. A short path next to the Coronation Tank (Abhishekh Pushkarni) leads off to the remains of the stupa where the ashes of the Buddha were reputedly found in a silver urn.

Two kilometres north among the ruins of Kolhua (daily sunrise–sunset; Charge), the remarkably well-preserved Ashokan Pillar was erected by the Mauryan emperor (273–232 BC) to commemorate the site of Buddha’s last sermon. Known locally as Bhimsen-ki-lathi (Bhimsen’s Staff), the 18.3m-high pillar, made of polished red sandstone, is crowned by a lion sitting on an inverted lotus, which faces north towards Kushinagar, where Buddha died.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE MOST PEOPLE TAKE IN VAISHALI VAISHALI AS A DAY-TRIP FROM PATNA, AND THE BEST WAY TO DO THAT IS TO HIRE A TAXI (BIHAR TOURISM CAN SORT YOU ONE FOR AROUND ₹). YOU COULD TAKE A BUS FROM GANDHI MAIDAN BUS STAND TO HAJIPUR, THEN ONE TO LALGANJ AND ONE FROM THERE TO VAISHALI, BUT THAT WOULD TAKE TOO LONG TO DO THE ROUND TRIP IN ONE DAY, AND BUSES BACK TO PATNA DRY UP EARLY. THERE IS NO ACCOMMODATION IN VAISHALI AS SUCH, BUT HAJIPUR HAS A HANDFUL OF VERY SIMPLE HOTELS.

SONEPUR MELA IF YOU’RE IN BIHAR BETWEEN EARLY NOVEMBER AND EARLY DECEMBER, DON’T MISS THE SONEPUR MELA, STAGED 25KM NORTH OF PATNA, ACROSS THE GANDHI BRIDGE, AT THE CONFLUENCE OF THE GANDAK AND THE GANGES. CATTLE, ELEPHANTS, CAMELS, PARAKEETS AND OTHER ANIMALS ARE BROUGHT FOR SALE, PILGRIMS COMBINE BUSINESS WITH A DIP IN THE

GANGES, SADHUS CONGREGATE, AND FESTIVITIES ABOUND. THE EVENT IS MEMORABLY DESCRIBED BY MARK SHAND IN HIS QUIXOTIC TRAVELS ON MY ELEPHANT. THE BIHAR STATE TOURISM DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION IN PATNA ORGANIZES TOURS AND MAINTAINS A TOURIST VILLAGE AT SONEPUR DURING THE MELA.

The road to Nepal Some 55km north of Vaishali, KESARIYA (Kessaputta) has an impressive five-terraced eighth-century stupa said to have been built on top of another erected by the Buddha's Licchavi disciples after he announced he was about to attain nirvana and gave them his begging bowl as a souvenir. To get to Kesariya, take a bus (3hr) from Vaishali to Chakia, 20km away, then a taxi or rickshaw to the site.

In 1917, MOTIHARI, a poor and lawless town 298km north of Patna, was the site of one of Gandhi's first acts of civil disobedience – he refused bail after being arrested for protesting the plight of local farmers, who were being forced to grow indigo for the British textile industry. There's a small museum with photos and items such as Gandhi's walking stick and slippers. Motihari was also the birthplace of George Orwell, whose father worked here as a government opium agent; the house where he was born is now a museum. For those wanting to stay, Motihari has dharamshalas.

Raxaul The border crossing for Nepal is at RAXAUL, a grubby, mosquito-infested town with limited amenities. There's a mosque and a couple of temples and cinemas here, but you're much better off staying over the border in Birganj.

ARRIVAL AND ACCOMMODATION BY TRAIN ON RAXAUL THURSDAYS AND SATURDAYS THERE'S AN OVER-NIGHT SERVICE, THE RAXAUL–HOWRAH EXPRESS (DEP. 8.15PM, ARR. 12.15PM). OTHERWISE, THE MITHILA EXPRESS #13022 LEAVES RAXAUL FOR HOWRAH (KOLKATA) AT 10AM DAILY, ARRIVING AT 4AM. COMING THE OTHER WAY, IT'S MORE CONVENIENTLY TIMED, LEAVING HOWRAH AT 3.45PM TO REACH RAXAUL AT 8.30AM. FOR DELHI, THE SATYAGRAH EXPRESS #15273 LEAVES RAXAUL DAILY AT 9.05AM, PULLING INTO OLD DELHI AT 9.20AM THE NEXT DAY.

By bus Gaurav (abhibus.com/operator/129/Gaurav-Travels) run an a/c bus from Ranchi via Gaya and Patna, where it can be picked up at the BSRTC bus stand at 6.05am, arriving at 12.20pm.

Crossing the border The border between Raxaul and the Nepalese town of Birganj, 5km away (cheap transport by auto-rickshaw), is open 6am to 10pm, but if you need to buy a Nepalese visa you must arrive by 6pm, plus two passport photos. From Birganj bus park (1km east of town) there are frequent buses to Kathmandu (9hr), and less frequently to Pokhara (11hr), and jeeps to Kathmandu (6hr). Simara airport, north of Birganj, has flights to Kathmandu. The foreign exchange bureaux in Birganj will change Indian to Nepalese rupees or vice versa, and most will change US dollars to local currency.

Kaveri Main Rd 06255 221148. If you do have to spend the night, this functional hotel is about the best Raxaul has to offer. ₹₹

Gaya

GAYA, 100km south of Patna, is a transit point for visitors to Bodhgaya, 13km away. Gaya has no real tourist attractions but many Hindus come here to honour their parents a year after death by offering pinda – funeral cakes – at the massive Vishnupad temple (no entry to non-Hindus). Pilgrims also bathe at the riverside ghats. Brahmajuni Hill, 1km southeast of the Vishnupad temple, is said to be where Buddha preached his fire sermon.

ARRIVAL AND ACCOMMODATION BY TRAIN MOST GAYA PEOPLE ARRIVE BY TRAIN. AUTO-RICKSHAWS WILL TAKE YOU TO BODHGAYA FROM THE STATION (₹, THOUGH YOU MAY FIND A SHARED ONE), OR YOU CAN TAKE A CYCLE RICKSHAW TO KACHERI BUS STAND AND CONTINUE TO BODHGAYA BY SHARED AUTO (₹). IF YOU ARRIVE AFTER DARK, STAY OVERNIGHT IN GAYA AS THE ROUTE BETWEEN THE TWO CAN BE UNSAFE.

Ajatsatru Station Rd (opposite the station) 0631 222 2962, ajatsatruhotel.com. The standard rooms are quite basic, although they have attached bathrooms with water heaters, and there are cleaner and more cheerful (but still overpriced) a/c rooms (₹₹₹). The downstairs restaurant has decent Indian and Chinese food (daily 7am–midnight; veg biryani and chicken biryani). ₹₹

Akash Close by on Laxman Sahay Rd 0631 222 2205. Simple rooms with attached bathrooms, but hot water comes in a bucket (free on request). The place looks like it's half-built, but it's been like that for some years. They have their own generator, so there's electricity even during Gaya's frequent power cuts, but no wi-fi. ₹₹

MADHUBANI PAINTINGS JITWARPUR, A VILLAGE ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF THE SMALL TOWN OF MADHUBANI, IN NORTHERN BIHAR, IS HOME TO A VIBRANT TRADITION OF FOLK ART. MADHUBANI PAINTINGS BY LOCAL WOMEN WERE ORIGINALLY DECORATIONS FOR THE OUTSIDE OF VILLAGE HUTS. ILLUSTRATING MYTHOLOGICAL THEMES –

INCLUDING IMAGES OF LOCAL DEITIES AS WELL AS HINDU GODS AND GODDESSES – THE PAINTINGS WERE EVENTUALLY TRANSFERRED ONTO HANDMADE PAPER, OFTEN USING BRIGHT PRIMARY COLOURS TO FILL THE STRONG BLACK LINE DRAWINGS. FABRICS PRINTED WITH MADHUBANI DESIGNS HAVE BECOME VERY CHIC; THESE DAYS THEY TEND TO BE PROFESSIONALLY MADE ELSEWHERE, AND ARE SOLD IN THE EXPENSIVE BOUTIQUES OF INDIA’S MAJOR CITIES, ALTHOUGH YOU CAN STILL PICK THEM UP CHEAPLY IN MADHUBANI ITSELF.

Buses connect Patna to Madhubani (5hr 30min), where there are some basic hotels; rickshaws can take you on to Jitwarpur.

Bodhgaya and around The world’s most important Buddhist pilgrimage site, BODHGAYA, 13km south of Gaya, is wonderfully relaxed, with an array of monasteries, temples and retreats. Its focal point is the Mahabodhi Temple, where Buddha attained enlightenment.

The temple dates from the seventh century AD and flourished up to the sixteenth century, when it fell into the hands of Hindu priests, who professed to be baffled by its origins. In the early nineteenth century, British archeologists rediscovered its significance, and Bodhgaya has since been rejuvenated by overseas Buddhists, who have built monasteries, temples and shrines on the site. From November to February, Bodhgaya is home to an animated community of exiled Tibetans, often including the Dalai Lama, as well as a stream of international Tibetophiles. Meditation courses attract others, while large monasteries from places like Darjeeling bring their followers to attend ceremonies and lectures. From mid-March to mid-October, the region becomes oppressively hot and Bodhgaya returns to its quiet ways.

The Mahabodhi Temple is also sacred to Hindus, who regard Buddha as an incarnation of Vishnu, and dominate the management, despite protests from the Buddhist world. The dispute is exacerbated by the contrasting forms of worship: Buddhists have a solitary inward approach; Hindus prefer spectacle and noisy ceremony.

Mahabodhi Temple Daily 5am–9pm www.bodhgayatemple.com • Charge for camera or video camera • Shoes, bags and phones must deposited at a cloakroom near the entrance The elegant single spire of the Mahabodhi Temple rises to a lofty height of 55m, and is visible throughout the surrounding countryside. Within the temple complex, which is liberally sprinkled with small stupas and shrines, the main brick temple stands in a hollow encircled by a stone railing dating from the second century BC. Shoes are tolerated within the grounds but not inside the temple (so best leave them at the cloakroom before entering the site). Unlike most popular temples in India, this UNESCO World Heritage Site exudes an atmosphere of peace and tranquillity. Extensively renovated during the nineteenth century, it is supposed to be a replica of a seventh-century structure that in turn stood on the site of Ashoka's original third-century-BC shrine. Inside the temple, a single chamber holds a large gilded image of the Buddha, while upstairs is a balcony and a small, plain meditation chamber.

The Bodhi Tree At the rear of the temple to the west, the large Bodhi Tree grows out of an expansive base, attracting scholars and meditators in their droves, but it is in fact only an off-shoot of the one under which the Buddha attained enlightenment. Many legends surround the destruction of the original, but it is generally thought that Ashoka, when he sent his daughter Sangamitra to Sri Lanka as an emissary of Buddhism, had sent a cutting with her. This cutting was then planted at Anuradhapuram, and it was a cutting from that tree that was later brought back to Bodhgaya and replanted. Pilgrims tie coloured thread to its branches and Tibetans accompany their rituals with long lines of butter lamps. A sandstone slab with carved sides next to the tree is believed to be the Vajrasana, or “thunder-seat”, upon which Buddha sat facing east.

Animesh Lochana Temple The small white Animesh Lochana Temple to the right of the compound entrance marks the spot where Buddha stood and gazed upon the Bodhi Tree in gratitude. Numerous ornate stupas from the Pala period (seventh to twelfth centuries) are littered around the grounds and next to the temple compound to the south is a rectangular lotus pool where Buddha is believed to have bathed.

Archaeological Museum Daily except Fri 9am–5pm • Charge Bodhgaya's Archaeological Museum, west of the Mahabodhi Temple complex, has a collection of locally discovered sculptures. Its prize exhibit is the stone balustrade that once surrounded the Bodhi Tree in the Mahabodhi Temple. The pink-sandstone parts date from the first or second century BC, but the granite ones are newer, dating from the sixth or seventh century AD.

Mahakala Caves 12km northeast of Bodhgaya • No buses: access by auto-rickshaw from Bodhgaya In remote, almost desert-like surroundings on the far side of the Falgu River, sit the Mahakala (or Dungeshwari) Caves, where Buddha did the severe penance that led him to see the futility of extreme asceticism. Realizing that the key to enlightenment was a “middle path” between self-denial and self-indulgence, he walked down to Bodhgaya, where he achieved nirvana. A short climb from the base of the impressive cliff leads to a Tibetan monastery and the three caves.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BODHGAYA AND AROUND PLANE GAYA'S INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT (☎0631 221 0129) IS AROUND 12KM WEST OF BODHGAYA, AND IS CONNECTED BY AIR INDIA TO VARANASI (DAILY; 35MIN), KOLKATA (2 WEEKLY; 1HR 5MIN) AND DELHI (WEEKLY; 1HR 40MIN).

By auto There are auto-rickshaws to Bodhgaya from outside Gaya railway station (₹; less if you can find a shared one), and shared autos from Kacheri Bus Stand, a couple of kilometres south (₹). An auto from the airport is around ₹₹.

By bus From Bodhgaya, you'll need to travel back to Gaya for most onward services, although, especially in season, there are private buses from Kalchakra Maidan to destinations such as Ranchi, Raxaul, Varanasi, Siliguri and even Thimpu.

Tourist information The main tourist office in the Bihar State Tourism Corporation complex (daily 10am–5pm; ☎0631 220 0672) is distinctly unenlightening but has a computerized train reservation booth next door (Mon–Sat 8am–noon & 12.30–2pm). Middle Way Travels 🌐 facebook.com/middleway.travels, near the entrance to the temple, can arrange local tours and car rental, and book train, bus and flight tickets.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Outside the pilgrimage season (Nov–Feb) discounts of up to fifty percent are available in most hotels. Many monastery guesthouses welcome tourists, subject to the same rules as the pilgrims – in particular no smoking, alcohol or sex.

MONASTERIES MAHABODHI SOCIETY PILGRIM REST HOUSE
BODHGAYA RD ☎0911 559 7001, 📧
MBSIBUDDHAGAYA@GMAIL.COM. VERY POPULAR WITH PILGRIMS AND OFTEN FULL. ROOMS TAKE THREE OR SIX PEOPLE AND HAVE ATTACHED BATHROOMS AND HOT WATER. IN HIGH SEASON (DEC–JAN) PRICES CAN GO UP TO ₹ ₹₹. WI-FI ONLY AVAILABLE ON THE GROUND FLOOR. THREE-PERSON ₹₹, SIX-PERSON ₹₹₹

Root Institute for Wisdom Culture 🌐rootinstitute.com. The simple but charming little double rooms are normally booked up from Dec–Feb, but there's usually dorm space, although people doing courses at the institute take priority. Note that members of opposite sexes may not share rooms even if married, and there is no wi-fi access. Dorms ₹; doubles ₹₹

HOTELS ★BODGHAYA HOTEL SCHOOL KATORVA ROAD, BEHIND THE GREAT BUDDHA STATUE 🌐
THEBODHGAYAHOTELSCHOOL.COM. EXCELLENT VALUE AT THIS CHARMING MINIMAL-CHIC GUESTHOUSE ON THE EDGE OF TOWN – PART OF THE AGRAGAMI INDIA PROJECT TO TRAIN UNEMPLOYED LOCALS IN HOSPITALITY. ROOMS ARE LARGE, SQUEAKY-CLEAN AND LIGHT, THERE'S A RESTAURANT SERVING INDIAN AND CONTINENTAL FOOD, AND A NICE ROOFTOP WITH GOOD VIEWS OVER THE SURROUNDING COUNTRYSIDE. BREAKFAST IS INCLUDED. ₹₹

Deep Hotel Gaya Rd, near the Burmese Vihar 🌐deep-hotel-bodhgaya.business.site. One of Bodhgaya's best budget lodges, offering a warm welcome and sociable atmosphere. Rooms are reasonably spacious and clean, with attached bathrooms and 24hr hot water. ₹₹

Kirti Guest House Close to Kalchakra Maidan 📞0631 220 0744. The Dalai Lama beams benevolently over the reception at this serene guest-house run by the Tibetan Monastery and accessed over a short bridge. The rooms are fresh and bright, with discounts off season. ₹₹

MEDITATION COURSES IN BODHGAYA DHAMMA BODHI INTERNATIONAL MEDITATION CENTRE 🌐
BODHI.DHAMMA.ORG. A VIPASSANA CENTRE WITH REGULAR COURSES THROUGHOUT THE YEAR, RUN ON A DONATION BASIS.

International Meditation Centre 📞0631 220 0707. Vipassana courses for beginners and advanced students; the courses are free, but you pay for food and lodging (₹₹/day).

Root Institute for Wisdom Culture 🌐rootinstitute.com. A real haven, offering residential courses, drop-in meditation classes, one-day workshops, and longer courses on Buddhism, yoga and meditation between October and March; book well in advance.

Om Guest House Bodhgaya Rd 📞99344 26674. A long-standing travellers' hotel, Om delivers spick-and-span, if rather small, rooms with attached bathrooms and salmon pink walls in a central location, but no wi-fi. ₹₹

Rainbow Guest House Gaya Rd, near the Burmese Vihar 📞94312 80810, 📧rainbowbodhgaya@hotmail.com. Not very central, with attached but otherwise spartan rooms, (reasonably) hot water and friendly staff, at monastery guesthouse prices but without the religious strictures. ₹₹

★Royal Residency Domuhan Rd (Bodhgaya Rd) 📞theroyalresidencyhotels.com. An immaculate but pricey option favoured by well-heeled Japanese visitors. The rooms boast sleek wooden floors and fittings, cream-coloured walls and minimalist decor. There's also excellent dining and, for a minimum of thirty takers, they'll heat up a Japanese-style communal bath. ₹₹₹

Siddhartha Vihar Bihar State Tourism Corporation complex 📞0631 220 0445, 📧bodhgaya.bstdc@gmail.com. The state-run hotel is pretty decent value, with spacious if rather plain, attached doubles, all with a/c. ₹₹

Thataghat off a side road near the Mahabodi Society 📞92644 27601, 🌐hoteltathagatbodhgaya.com. Good mid-range choice in the midst of town, with classy rooms and a dimly lit, bamboo-furnished boutique ambience. Breakfast included. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

During November and February, Tibetan tent restaurants spring up throughout town – follow the crowds to find the best ones.

Alice in Gaya Arya Complex (south side, downstairs) 📞72960 28888, 🌐facebook.com/aliceingaya. Hip cafe serving an interesting, if slightly overpriced, mix of Thai and Western food, strong coffees, cakes and pastries. Daily 9am–10pm. ₹₹

Fujiya Green Kalchakra Maidan 📞631 220 0048. An ever-popular Tibetan restaurant housed in a cross between a hut and a tent, with a vast array of momos (stuffed dumplings) and hearty thukpa (noodle soup). Daily 7am–9.30pm. ₹

Gautam Gaya Rd, opposite the Burmese Vihar 📞9934 432090. Hole-in-the-wall restaurant serving traveller-oriented food, with big breakfasts, banana pancakes and cinnamon rolls as well as real oat porridge, Indian veg curries and thalis. Daily 7.30am–8pm. ₹

Gautam Lassi Corner Happy Place, Kundan Bazar 99342 90977. A bustling, low-key refreshment kiosk, relocated after the 2013 bomb destroyed its original premises, which does a brisk trade in refreshing lassis (flavoured with syrups such as rose and pineapple), coffee, and freshly squeezed juices. Daily 8am–9.30pm. ₹

Nirvana the Veg Café Opposite the Thai temple, ground floor of Maya Heritage Hotel 0631 220 0071. Mid-range restaurant serving an eclectic menu of North and South Indian, Chinese, sandwiches and decent pizzas in a sleek, high-ceilinged sala. Daily 9am–10.30pm. ₹

Tirupati South Café Arya Complex, tirupatisouthcafe.business.site. The place to go for a healthy dose of simple, tasty South Indian veg delicacies, including big dosas, thalis, plus a selection of Chinese and North Indian favourites. Daily 7.30am–10.30pm. ₹

DIRECTORY BANKS AND BOOKS MIDDLE WAY TRAVELS IS AMONG TRAVEL AGENTS WHO'LL CHANGE CASH; IT ALSO SELLS NEW AND USED BOOKS IN ENGLISH.

Bicycle rental The Raja Cycle Store, next door to the Embassy hotel (99317 11505).

Internet Computer World, Arya Complex (daily 9am–9pm); Shivam Internet Café, Bodhgaya Rd (daily 9am–9pm).

Rajgir Eighty kilometres northeast of Bodhgaya, the small market town of RAJGIR nestles in rocky hills that witnessed the meditations and teachings of both the Buddha and Mahavira, the founder of Jainism. The capital of the Magadha kingdom before Pataliputra (Patna), Rajgir was also where King Bimbisara converted to Buddhism. Rajgir is also regarded as a health resort because of its hot springs, 1km south of town, which can get unpleasantly crowded, especially as the neighbouring Laxmi Narayan Temple has become a popular destination for Hindus not wishing to miss out on Rajgir's Buddhist and Jain pilgrimage fest.

At Venuvana Vihara, a Japanese shrine marks the spot where a monastery was built for Buddha to live in, while at Griddhakuta (Vulture's Peak), on Ratnagiri Hill, 4km south of the town centre (buses can drop you at the turn-off), Buddha set in motion his second "Wheel of Law". The massive modern Vishwashanti Stupa (Peace Pagoda), built by the Japanese, dominates Ratnagiri Hill and can be reached by a rickety chairlift (daily 8.15am–1pm & 2–5pm, last ticket 4.30pm). Griddhakuta is actually halfway down the hill, so you may prefer to wander down from here rather than climb back up to take the chairlift. Look out for the 26 Jain shrines on top of these hills, reached by a challenging trek attempted almost solely by Jain devotees. On an adjacent hill, in the Saptaparni cave, the first Buddhist council met to record the teachings of the Buddha after his death.

The Jains also have a shrine at Virayatan, 1km east of Venuvana Vihara, beyond Griddhakuta, which was established in 1973 to commemorate the 2500th anniversary of the birth of Mahavira. They run courses here but the main attraction for casual visitors is the gallery of diorama tableaux (daily 8am–6.30pm) illustrating the lives of the 24 tirthankaras.

ARRIVAL AND GETTING AROUND CONSIDER VISITING ON WEEKDAYS, WHEN THE SITE IS LESS CROWDED.

RAJGIR

By train There are three daily trains from Patna, one of which starts in Delhi.

By bus Rajgir is connected by bus to Gaya (2hr), Nalanda (15min) and sometimes Patna (2hr 30min direct, although you usually have to change at Bihar Sharif, 25km away).

By tonga A popular way to visit the sights in Rajgir is to take a tonga (horse-drawn carriage) for up to six people (eight at a pinch). Costs are typically around a few hundred rupees for a half-day tour, but you'll have to haggle, and make it clear to the driver exactly which sights you want to visit and how long you'll want to spend at each.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING GREEN HOTEL OPPOSITE THE JAPANESE TEMPLE COMPLEX, 1.5KM SOUTH OF THE BUS STAND @ GREEN-HOTEL-RAJGIR.BUSINESS.SITE. A SMALL RESTAURANT ("HOTEL" DOES NOT IMPLY ACCOMMODATION) WITH A RELAXED ATMOSPHERE, SERVING REASONABLY-PRICED FOOD INCLUDING A CHOICE OF THALIS VEG OR NON-VEG). DAILY 7AM–10.30PM. ₹-₹₹

★Indo Hokke 4km west of the bus stand @ theroyalresidencyhotels.com/indo-hokke-hotel-rajgir. A unique hotel fusing Japanese and Indian architectural influences. It has Japanese- and Western-style rooms, a communal Japanese bath (if there's sufficient demand), and the outstanding Lotus restaurant, which serves Indian, Chinese and Japanese dishes. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Nalanda Regency 200m east of the bus stand @ hotelnalandaregency.in. Well-maintained mid-range hotel with neat, decent sized a/c and non-a/c rooms, and large bathrooms. There's a restaurant and a relaxing garden whose selling point is the Olympic-sized swimming pool. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Raj By the bus stand @631 214 5245. Cheapest of the hotels by the bus stand, with a choice of rooms at the front (brighter but noisier) or back

(quieter but darker), small and simple but attached, with hot water in a bucket on request. Non a/c ₹, a/c ₹₹

Nalanda and around Daily 9am–5pm • nalanda.nic.in • Charge • video camera charge Founded in the fifth century AD by the Guptas, the great monastic Buddhist university of NALANDA attracted thousands of international students and teachers until it was sacked by the Afghan invader Bhaktiar Khilji in the twelfth century. Courses included philosophy, logic, theology, grammar, astronomy, mathematics and medicine.

Excavations have revealed nine levels of occupation on the site, dating back to the time of the Buddha and Mahavira in the sixth century BC. The site is strewn with the remains of stupas, temples and eleven monasteries, their thick walls impressively intact. Nalanda is now part of the modern Buddhist pilgrimage circuit, but even casual tourists will appreciate taking the time to walk through the extensive site, or climb its massive 31m stupa for commanding views. Informative booklets available at the ticket booth render the numerous guides unnecessary.

Nalanda Museum (daily except Fri 9am–5pm tourism.bihar.gov.in/en/destinations/nalanda/nalanda-museum; Charge) houses antiquities found here and at Rajgir, including Buddhist and Hindu bronzes and a number of undamaged statues of the Buddha. Nava Nalanda Mahavihara, the Pali postgraduate research institute, houses many rare

Buddhist manuscripts, and is devoted to study and research in Pali literature and Buddhism.

ARRIVAL AND GETTING AROUND BY NALANDA AND AROUND TRAIN THE RAILWAY STATION, 2KM EAST OF THE BUS STOP, IS SERVED BY THREE DAILY TRAINS EACH WAY BETWEEN RAJGIR AND PATNA.

By bus Buses every 30min or so between Rajgir and Bihar Sharif (25km northeast, change here for Patna) stop at the turning to Nalanda, from where rickshaws are available for the remaining 2km to the gates of the site. From Patna, Bihar State Roadways (BSRTC) runs tours to Nalanda and Rajgir leaving at 7am and returning at 8pm from their stand in Bir Chand Patel Path 📞abhibus.com/operator/129/Gaurav-Travels.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING HOTEL SHUBAM INTERNATIONAL 700M WEST OF NALANDA ROAD'S JUNCTION 📞HOTELSHUBHAMNALANDA.COM. IN THE MIDDLE OF PEACEFUL COUNTRYSIDE, AWAY FROM NALANDA'S TRAFFIC-CLOGGED MAIN ROAD, THIS NEW HOTEL HAS LARGE AND AIRY ROOMS THAT ARE VERY GOOD VALUE FOR THE AREA. THERE'S A RESTAURANT SERVING VEG AND NON-VEG INDIAN MAINS, AND NICE VIEWS OF NALANDA AND THE SURROUNDING PADDY FIELDS FROM THE ROOFTOP. NON A/C ₹₹, A/C ₹₹₹

Tourist Cafeteria (also known as Subham Cafeteria) By the site entrance 📞99736 19507 📞hotelshubhamnalanda.com/Restaurant.html. This canteen run by the Bihar State Tourism Development Corporation serves veg and non-veg food, both Indian and Western, including chicken biryani, or American chop sue. Daily 8am–10pm. ₹

Jharkhand Carved out of Bihar in 2000, after years of agitation by its largely Adivasi population, JHARKHAND yields

almost forty percent of India's minerals, but suffers from extreme poverty, lawlessness and Naxalite (Maoist guerrilla) activity, and is rarely visited by tourists. Although the area around the capital, Ranchi, and the main tourist attraction, Palamau (Betla) National Park, are now safe to visit, it's vital to check the security situation before venturing out of those areas, and you should avoid travelling at night by road anywhere in the state.

Ranchi Jharkhand's capital, RANCHI was Bihar's summer capital under the colonial regime, and must be the most laidback state capital in the country. Its main hub is Firayalal Chowk, two kilometres north of the train station, a busy road junction now renamed Albert Ekka Chowk after a hero of the 1971 Indo-Pakistani War whose statue now stands in the middle of it. Ranchi's top shopping and commercial thoroughfare, Main Road (officially Mahatma Gandhi Marg), runs north and south from here, crossing the rail line some 500m west of the station. Ranchi itself isn't exactly thick with sights, but there are a couple of places worth seeing within easy striking distance.

Jagganathpur Temple 11km southwest of town (a few hundred rupees by auto for the round trip) • Daily 5.30am–9pm 📍

bhubaneswartourism.in/shree-jagannath-temple-puri

Like its more famous counterpart in Puri, the Jagganathpur Temple is dedicated to the triad of Jagganath, Balabhadra and Subhadra, and like the one in Puri, it has a Rath Yatra festival in June or July in which their images are hauled out on chariots, attracting thousands of devotees. Built on a hilltop and originally dating from 1691, the temple even looks like a smaller version of the one in Puri, with a 30-metre-high daul (main tower). Unlike the one in Puri, however, non-Hindus are allowed to go inside.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN THE RANCHI RAILWAY STATION, 2KM SOUTH OF THE CITY CENTRE, HAS THREE DAILY TRAINS TO GAYA, FOUR TO PATNA, AND TWO TO KOLKATA. THE #18109 ROURKELA–JAMMU TAWI EXPRESS TRUNDLES UP TO OLD DELHI DAILY, BUT SOME DAYS OF THE WEEK HAVE FASTER TRAINS TO DELHI.

By air Birsa Munda Airport, 7km southeast of town, has flights to Patna (with IndiGo), Kolkata (IndiGo), Delhi (Air India, IndiGo and Go Air) and Mumbai (IndiGo and Go Air).

Tours The tourist office is at 5 Main Road 📞 tourism.jharkhand.gov.in; Mon–Sat 10am–5pm), but you're better off going to Suhana Travels on Station Rd (📞 0651 329 3808, Daily 7am–8pm), a travel agency whose proprietor is happy to dish out information and offers overnight trips to Palamau (Betla) National Park or the Jain temples at Parasnath.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ★ CHANAKYA BNR HOTEL 📞 CHANAKYABNRRANCHI.COM; THE BEST ACCOMMODATION IN RANCHI IS AT THIS BEAUTIFUL OLD LOW-RISE RAILWAY HOTEL SET AROUND LAWNS, BUILT AT THE BEGINNING OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY AND NOW COMPLETELY REFURBISHED AND SUPER-ELEGANT. BREAKFAST INCLUDED. ₹₹₹₹

Eat Hotel Beena Inn, Station Rd 📞 95344 1111. Bright, modern café where you can get espresso-based coffees, cappuccino, teas, shakes, smoothies, and also snacks and good food. veg or chicken noodles. Daily 7.30am–11pm. ₹

Sunny Station Rd ☎0651 246 1359. Reliable diner offering a range of veg curries, south Indian veg snacks, masala dosa and thalis, with ice cream for afters. Daily 8.30am–10pm. ₹

Yatri Niwas At the railway station (up the stairs to the left of the main entrance) ☎hotelsinranchi.net/yatri-niwas-hotel-ranchi.html. The best-value cheapie near the station – and it's very near indeed – offering clean and bright attached and non-attached rooms as well as dorm beds, but hot water comes by the bucket and there's no wi-fi. 24hr checkout. Dorm ₹; double ₹₹

Palamau (Betla) National Park 170km west of Ranchi • ₹ per vehicle, compulsory guide ₹/hr per vehicle, camera permit ₹ video camera permit ₹ jeep rental ₹₹/hr (up to 8 people), elephant safari ₹₹ per elephant (up to 4 people) • 🌐 palamu.nic.in

In a remote corner of Jharkhand, the beautiful sal forests of the PALAMAU NATIONAL PARK cover around eight hundred square kilometres of hilly terrain. Although part of Project Tiger, Palamau has been hard hit by drought, and at the time of writing, there were no tigers or leopards. If lucky, you may still see elephants, nilgai (antelope), gaur (bison) and wild boar. The park is open all year, but October to April is the best time to visit, although it can be rather chilly then, especially in the morning. Most visitors take a jeep safari to explore the park. However, make sure you check the situation before you visit — in recent years, Palamau has seen movements of local guerrillas who spill in from the troubled north-eastern forests of bordering Chhattisgarh, and the park can sometimes be closed to tourists.

ARRIVAL AND ACCOMMODATION PALAMAU NATIONAL PARK BY TRAIN AND BUS THE NEAREST RAILWAY STATION IS AT DALTONGANJ, BUT TRAIN TIMINGS ARE NOT TREMENDOUSLY CONVENIENT AND IT'S BETTER TO GET THERE FROM RANCHI BY BUS (EVERY 30MIN; 5HR). FROM DALTONGANJ YOU NEED TO TAKE A SHARED JEEP, A BUS OR AN AUTO FOR THE 25KM JOURNEY TO THE PARK'S ENTRY POINT AT BETLA.

★Tree House inside the park entrance @palamautigerreserve.in. Can be booked up months ahead so reserve well in advance. This wonderful two-room lodge is, as stated, in a tree house. No wi-fi. ₹₹

Van Vihar outside the park entrance @tourism.jharkhand.gov.in/hotelBookingDetails/3. State-run lodge offering a choice of rooms. It's recently been given a facelift, but is still a bit rustic, although the staff are very helpful. No wi-fi. ₹₹

< Back to Bihar and Jharkhand

Shutterstock
TIBETAN MONKS IN A MONASTERY IN GANGTOK

Sikkim

Gangtok

Around Gangtok

South Sikkim

West Sikkim

North Sikkim

Sikkim The tiny and beautiful state of Sikkim lies to the south of Tibet, sandwiched between Nepal to the west and Bhutan to the east. Measuring just 65km by 115km, Sikkim's landscape ranges from swelteringly hot valleys just 300m above sea level, to lofty snow-capped peaks such as Kanchenjunga (Kanchendzonga to the locals) which, at 8586m, is the third-highest mountain in the world. A small but growing network of tortuous roads penetrates this rugged and beautiful Himalayan wilderness. In 2018, Sikkim became a role-model for India, and the world, by becoming the first-ever organic state, and earning a Future Policy Gold Award from the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organisation.

For centuries, Sikkim was an isolated, independent Buddhist kingdom, until war with China in the early 1960s led the Indian government to realize the area's strategic importance as a crucial corridor between Tibet and Bangladesh. As a result of its annexation by India in 1975, Sikkim has experienced dramatic changes. Now a fully-fledged Indian state, it is predominantly Hindu, with a population made up of 75 percent Nepalese Gurungs, and less than twenty percent Lepchas, its former rulers. Smaller proportions survive of Bhutias, of Tibetan origin, and Limbus, also possibly of Tibetan origin, who gave the state its name – sukh-im, “happy homeland”. Nepali is now the lingua franca, and the Nepalese are socially and politically the most dominant people in the state. However, the people of Sikkim continue to jealously guard their freedom and affluence and remain untouched by the Nepalese Gurkhas' autonomy movement in neighbouring Darjeeling. Although only Sikkimese can hold major shares in property and businesses, partnerships with Indian (non-Sikkimese) entrepreneurs and subsidies to indigenous Sikkimese industry have led to prosperity – fuelled by its special status within the union.

Historically, culturally and spiritually, Sikkim's strongest links are with Tibet. The main draws for visitors are the state's off-the-beaten-track trekking and its many monasteries, more than two hundred in all, mostly belonging to the ancient Nyingmapa sect. Pemayangtse in West Sikkim is the most historically significant, and houses an extraordinary wooden mandala depicting Guru Rinpoche's Heavenly Palace. Tashiding, a Nyingmapa monastery built in 1717, surrounded by prayer flags and chortens and looking across to snow-capped peaks, is considered Sikkim's holiest. Rumtek is the seat of the Gyalwa Karmapa – head of the Karma Kagyu lineage – and probably the wealthiest monastery in Sikkim. The capital, Gangtok, a colourful, bustling cosmopolitan town, is home to a bewildering array of trekking agents only too happy to take payment (in dollars) and arrange the necessary permits.

BEST TIME TO VISIT

Summer, from April to mid-June, is characterized by warm weather and clear skies, but no mountain views. From late September to November, temperatures are moderate, cherry blossoms are in bloom and the skies intermittently clear for views of Kanchenjunga — which can be seen up to mid-January, despite fog from mid-December. An influx of tourists during these two high spells means higher hotel rates, especially in Gangtok and Pelling. Discounts are possible during low season, from December to March, when it's freezing and the fog plays spoilsport. The monsoon lasts from June to September, when road conditions deteriorate and landslides are common. Winter can be bitterly cold in the northern reaches, but still a good time to travel. Check for road closures when it snows.

Shutterstock

RED PANDA IN SIKKIM

Highlights

- ① Chaam Experience this mysterious and colourful lama dance, held in most monasteries around the harvest festival of Losung (early Dec).
- ② Rumtek One of Sikkim's most venerated monasteries, Rumtek is home to the Black Hat sect and hosts a spectacular festival in February.
- ③ Pemayangtse A wonderful, highly venerated seventeenth-century monastery perched on a commanding ridge with glorious views.
- ④ Varshey Rhododendron Sanctuary Magnificent views and gentle trails through a botanical paradise.
- ⑤ Dzongri and Singalila trails High-altitude treks through rhododendron forests, meadows and past remote lakes with breathtaking views of mighty Kanchenjunga.
- ⑥ Monastery Trail: West Sikkim You won't need porters or special permits to walk this rewarding circuit from Pelling to Khecheopalri, Yuksom and Tashiding, staying at village homestays en route.
- ⑦ Tashiding An especially sacred monastic complex on a conical hill with marvellous views.
- ⑧ Yumthang Walk through this spectacular rhododendron-filled valley with icy pinnacles towering overhead.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

Sikkim's soaring mountain walls and steep wooded hillsides, carved by torrential rivers such as the Teesta and the Rangit, are a botanist's dream. The lower slopes abound in orchids, sprays of cardamom carpet the forest floor, and the land is rich with apple orchards, orange groves and terraced paddy fields (to the Tibetans, this was Denzong, "the land of rice"). At higher altitudes, monsoon mists cling to huge tracts of lichen-covered forests, where countless varieties of rhododendron carpet the hillsides and giant magnolia trees punctuate the deep verdant cover. Higher still, approaching the Tibetan plateau, larch and dwarf rhododendron give way to meadows abundant with gentians and potentilla. Sikkim's forests and wilderness areas are inhabited by a wealth of fauna, including extremely elusive snow leopards, tahr (wild goat on the Tibet plateau), bharal (blue sheep), black bear, flying squirrels and the symbol of Sikkim – the endangered red panda.

FESTIVALS IN SIKKIM MAGHEY MELA (JAN). ONE OF SIKKIM'S MOST FAMOUS FESTIVALS, CELEBRATED IN JORETHANG WITH GRAND SHOWS OF ARCHERY, PARAGLIDING, HOT AIR BALLOONING AND RIVER RAFTING.

Losar (in/around Feb). The Tibetan New Year, celebrated with grand monastic dances.

Bumchu Festival (Feb/March). Lamas gather at Tashiding, where a vessel containing holy water is opened and examined – the water level indicates the future of the state.

Pang Lhabso (Aug/Sep – 15th day of 7th Tibetan month).

Commemoration of the consecration of Mount Kanchenjunga as the guardian deity of Sikkim, celebrated with colourful Tibetan masked dances (chaams) and Sikkimese pangtoed (warrior dance).

Dasain (Dussehra; Sept–Oct). The Nepali community celebrates this ten-day Hindu festival marking the victory of good over evil; the goddess Durga is worshipped and her idol immersed in a river.

Namchi Mahotsav (Oct). Three-day South Sikkim festival with folk dances, flower exhibitions, handicraft markets and food stalls.

Tihar (Diwali; Oct–Nov). The Nepali version of Diwali, this is an elaborate five-day affair, when houses are cleaned, adorned with marigolds and lit up.

Temi Autumn Carnival (Nov). Three days of traditional dances, music and adventure sports in Sikkim's only historical tea garden.

Losung (Dec). Marks the end of the harvest season. Spectacular masked dances, or chaam, take place at various monasteries.

Red Panda Winter Festival (Dec/Jan). A nine-day food and culture fiesta set in Gangtok's Titanic Park, MG Marg.

Brief history No one knows quite when or how the Lepchas – or the Rong, as they call themselves – came to Sikkim, but their roots can be traced back to the animist Nagas of the Indo-Burmese border.

Buddhism, which arrived from Tibet in the thirteenth century, took its distinctive Sikkimese form four centuries later, when three Tibetan monks of the old Nyingmapa order, disenchanted with the rise of the reformist Gelugpas, migrated south and gathered at Yoksum in western Sikkim. Having consulted the oracle, they sent to Gangtok for a certain Phuntsog Namgyal, whom they crowned as the first chogyal or “righteous king” of Denzong in 1642. Both the secular and religious head of Sikkim, he was soon recognized by Tibet, and set about sweeping reforms. His domain was far larger than today’s Sikkim, taking in Kalimpong and parts of western Bhutan.

Over the centuries, territory was lost to the Bhutanese, the Nepalese and the British. Sikkim originally ceded Darjeeling to the East India Company as a spa in 1817, but was forced to give up all claim to it in 1861 when the kingdom was declared a protectorate of the British. Tibet, which perceived Sikkim as a vassal state, objected and invaded in 1886, but a small British force sent in 1888 to Lhasa helped the British consolidate their hold. By importing a Nepalese labour force to work the tea plantations of Sikkim, Darjeeling and Kalimpong, the British sought to diminish the strong Tibetan influence and helped alter the ethnic make-up of the region, with the new migrants soon outnumbering the indigenous population.

After Indian Independence, the reforming and intensely spiritual eleventh chogyal, Tashi Namgyal, strove hard until his death in 1962 to prevent the dissolution of his kingdom. Officially Sikkim was a protectorate of India, and the role of India became increasingly crucial, with the Chinese military build-up along the northern borders that culminated in an actual invasion early in the 1960s. His son Palden Thondup, the last chogyal, married twice; his second wife was an American, Hope Cook, whose reforms as gyalmo (queen) did not prove popular at home and irritated the Indian government. The embattled chogyal eventually succumbed to the demands of the Nepalese majority, and Sikkim was annexed by India in 1975 after a referendum with an overwhelming 97 percent majority. The chogyal remained as a figurehead until his death in 1981.

EARTHQUAKES, LANDSLIDES AND DAMS
ALTHOUGH EARTHQUAKES ARE A COMMON OCCURRENCE THROUGHOUT THE HIMALAYAS, THE ONE THAT STRUCK IN SEPTEMBER 2011 – WITH ITS EPICENTRE AT MANGAN, 42KM NORTHWEST OF GANGTOK – WAS PARTICULARLY DESTRUCTIVE, LEAVING AROUND SIXTY PEOPLE DEAD AND A

TRAIL OF DEVASTATION AS FAR AWAY AS GANGTOK. THE EFFECTS OF THE MAGNITUDE 6.9 QUAKE WERE FELT THROUGHOUT THE REGION, IN NEPAL AND AS FAR AWAY AS KOLKATA. MUCH OF THE DESTRUCTION TOOK PLACE AROUND HYDROELECTRIC PROJECTS AND LED TO DISRUPTED ROADS AND INFRASTRUCTURE. TO COMPOUND THE STATE'S COMMUNICATION NIGHTMARE, UNSEASONAL RAINS IN 2012 RESULTED IN DEADLY LANDSLIDES AND LOSS OF LIFE, AND NORTH SIKKIM WAS VIRTUALLY CUT OFF FROM THE REST OF THE STATE FOR SEVERAL WEEKS.

Industrialization and the construction of dams and numerous hydroelectric projects on Sikkim's rivers, such as the Teesta, have brought pressure on the state's diminishing indigenous population, threatening their lifestyle and heritage, particularly in Dzongu, the heartland of Lepchas. Although the voice of their protest is now all but lost, the destruction of habitat and the extraordinary strain on the state's fragile road system is self-evident.

The state continues to be treated with care by the Indian government, partly through a lingering sense of unease among the disaffected Sikkimese minority and an increasingly complex ethnic patchwork but, more importantly, because Sikkim remains a bone of contention between India and China. Today, the Sikkim Democratic Front forms the government of Sikkim; generous government subsidies and loans have helped to ensure that people remain generally contented, while extensive road building is bringing benefits to remote communities despite the many landslides in recent years.

Gangtok Capital of Sikkim, the overgrown and colourful hill-town of GANGTOK (1870m) occupies a rising ridge in the southeast of the state, on what used to be a busy trade route into Tibet. Today, rapid development means an ugly assortment of concrete multi-storey buildings is growing virtually unchecked, and the urban sprawl retains only a few traditional Sikkimese architectural elements. However, a short amble soon leads you away from the congested centre to bring you occasional glimpses of the snow-capped Himalayas, and on a good day you can see Kanchenjunga, the horned peak of Narsing (5825m) and the fluted pyramid of Siniolchu (6887m) poking above the surrounding hills.

While modern Gangtok epitomizes the recent changes in Sikkimese culture, politics and society, its Buddhist past is the root of its appeal for visitors, evident in the collection at the Institute of Tibetology and the charming Enchey Monastery, as well as the impressive Rumtek Monastery, 24km west of town. However, the palace on the tree-lined promenade, the Ridge above town, used by the chogyals between 1894 and 1975, is now out of bounds, part-occupied by the government and a closed chapter in Sikkim's heritage. Sikkim's pride and joy, orchids, are nurtured at several sites in and around Gangtok, and celebrated at the Flower Show Complex, also on the Ridge.

Most of the town itself looks west; one explanation for the lack of development east of the ridge is that tradition dictates that houses face northwest, towards Kanchenjunga, Sikkim's guardian.

Enchey Monastery 3km northeast from the centre • Daily daylight hours until 5pm • Free • A picturesque hour-long walk heading north from the Ridge and Flower Show Complex Right at the top of town and just below a colossal telecom tower, sits Enchey Monastery, a small two-storey Nyingmapa gompa. Visitors are welcome; the best time to go is between 7am and 8am, when the monastery is busy and the light is good.

The monastery was built in the mid-nineteenth century on a site blessed by the Tantric master Druptob Karpo, who was fabled for his ability to fly. Surrounded by tall pines, and housing more than a hundred monks, the building suffered some damage in the 2011 earthquake, but remains a gem of a place. Built by the chogyal on traditional Tibetan lines, the prayer hall's beautifully painted porch is filled with murals of protective deities and the wheel of law, while the conch shells that grace the doors are auspicious Buddhist symbols. Enchey holds an annual masked chaam, during the Losung festival, usually held in early December.

PERMITS AND TREKKING IN SIKKIM STATE ACCESS PERMIT FOREIGNERS NEED TO OBTAIN A RESTRICTED AREA PERMIT (RAP; PREVIOUSLY KNOWN AS AN INNER LINE PERMIT OR ILP) TO VISIT SIKKIM (🌐)

SIKKIMTOURISM.GOV.IN/PUBLIC/TRAVELLERESSEN

TIALS/PAP). PERMITS CAN NOW BE OBTAINED ONLINE, OR IN ADVANCE ALONG WITH YOUR INDIAN VISA, BUT AGENCIES ABROAD CHARGE EXORBITANT FEES SO ARE BEST AVOIDED. IF OBTAINED WITHIN INDIA, SIKKIM PERMITS ARE FREE AND CAN BE ARRANGED THROUGH THE TOURISM AGENCIES LISTED BELOW, TREKKING OPERATORS OR AT THE SIKKIM BORDER AT MELLI AND RANGPO IN A DEDICATED OFFICE. IN ORDER TO APPLY, YOU'LL NEED TWO PASSPORT PHOTOGRAPHS, AND PHOTOCOPIES OF YOUR PASSPORT AND INDIAN VISA. CHECK THE LATEST INFORMATION AT www.sikkimtourism.gov.in. PERMITS ARE DATE-SPECIFIC AND INITIALLY VALID FOR THIRTY DAYS FROM ENTRY (NO RETURN WITHIN THREE MONTHS); EXTENSIONS ARE NORMALLY AVAILABLE UP TO A MAXIMUM OF SIXTY DAYS.

As well as Gangtok and its surroundings in East Sikkim, the RAP covers all of South Sikkim and most areas in the east and west of the state, apart from most high-altitude treks. Sensitive border areas, like Tsomgo Lake (also known as Changu or Tsangu) in East Sikkim, most of North Sikkim except for Mangan and its immediate vicinity, and all high-altitude treks including the Singalila Ridge and Dzongri, require the additional Protected Area Permit (PAP); foreigners can only enter these areas in groups of at least two accompanied by representatives of approved travel agents who arrange the permits.

Airport immigration At the four main entry points: Delhi, Mumbai, Kolkata, Chennai.

Foreigners' Regional Registration Offices In Delhi, Mumbai, Kolkata and Chennai (☎011 2671 1384, ☎022 2262 1169, ☎033 2290 0549, or ☎044 2345 4970).

New Sikkim House 14 Panchsheel Marg, Chanakya-puri, New Delhi (☎011 2611 5171).

Sikkim tourist centre SNTC Bus Stand, Hill Cart Rd, Siliguri (☎0354 251 2646).

Sikkim tourist information centre Sikkim House, 4/1 Middleton St, Kolkata (☎033 2281 7905).

TREKKING AND MOUNTAINEERING PERMITS HIGH-ALTITUDE TREKKING IN SIKKIM REMAINS A RESTRICTED AND EXPENSIVE BUSINESS. FIRSTLY, FOREIGNERS HAVE TO ACQUIRE TREKKING PERMITS (AKA PROTECTED AREA PERMITS OR PAP), WHICH ALSO ACT AS ENTRY PERMITS FOR THESE AREAS. THESE ARE ONLY AVAILABLE FROM THE SIKKIM TOURISM OFFICES IN GANGTOK, BUT CAN BE ARRANGED THROUGH TREK OPERATORS.

Carefully check documents and itineraries – you don't want to be rushed, especially at altitude – before you set off. Trekking parties consist of a minimum of two people; tour operators charge an official daily rate of US$60 to US$150 per head per day, depending on group size and route.

While most major peaks require permission from the Indian Mountaineering Foundation (IMF) in Delhi with at least three months' notice, as well as mountaineering permits, the Sikkim government, through the appropriate Gangtok trekking operator, hands out permits for the following treks: Frey's Peak (5830m) near Chaurikhang on the Singalila Ridge; Thingchengkang (6010m) near Dzongri and Jopuno (5935m) in West Sikkim; and Lama Wangden (5868m) and Brumkhangse (5635m) in North Sikkim. Recommended Gangtok agents include Namgyal Treks and Tours (☎namgyaltreks.com).

The high-altitude treks most commonly offered by the operators are the Dzongri–Goecha La route, plus its variation starting from Uttarey and the Singalila Ridge. The exhilarating trek from Lachen to Green Lake is possible, but permission must be obtained from Delhi (most easily arranged through a Gangtok agent) at least two months in advance. At the moment, Dzongri still bears the brunt of the trekking industry in the state, and the pressure is beginning to tell severely on the environment.

Low-altitude hikes often come without the restriction of permits, and makes Sikkim an alluring destination for quiet walks off the beaten track. The rhododendron trails around Varshey, West Sikkim, for example, are particularly pleasant. A word of warning: avoid trekking unaccompanied in forest areas due to the risk of black bears.

Some areas, such as Nathu La on the border with Tibet in East Sikkim, and Gurudongma Lake in North Sikkim remain completely off-limits to foreigners.

Ganesh Tok and around A steep 1km climb past the TV tower from Enchey A spectacular viewpoint festooned with prayer flags, Ganesh Tok provides a sweeping view of the city sprawling below. A further 5km up the road to Tsomgo Lake, Hanuman Tok (2300m) is another viewpoint with vistas of eastern Sikkim, and is the cremation ground of the Royal Family, with chortens containing relics of the deceased; the Hanuman temple after which the spot is named is more recent.

Himalayan Zoological Park Opposite Ganesh Tok, sikkimstdc.com • Daily 8am–3pm • Charge Visitors come to the 506-acre Himalayan Zoological Park in the hope of catching a glimpse of the red pandas (which are especially easy to spot), snow leopards, bears and Tibetan wolves that roam the extensive open-air enclosures.

The Ridge Midway between MG Marg and Enchey The quiet leafy promenade of the Ridge is a popular spot, with the Flower Show Complex and a small park at the northern end, and at the southern end, the Royal Palace. The Secretariat, south of the compound, was devastated by the 2011 earthquake and, at the time of writing, was still being rebuilt.

Tsuklakhang At the far end of the Royal Palace compound, best accessed through the rear gates of the compound Tsuklakhang, the chapel in the Royal Palace, is currently out of bounds. A lama dance, known as kagyat, usually takes place here at the end of December, during which the main gates are open to the public (though some years it's in Pemayangtse). Across the lawns lies the Royal Palace, used by the chogyals (Sikkim's former rulers) until 1975. Following the state's annexation by India, the palace lies mostly abandoned, a prisoner of circumstance.

Institute of Tibetology 2km south of the centre of Gangtok, in Deorali • Mon–Sat 10am–4pm • Charge • www.tibetology.net

South of Gangtok at Deorali, the lower part of town, set in wooded grounds, is the museum-cum-library of the Institute of Tibetology with an impressive and invaluable collection of books and rare manuscripts, as well as religious artefacts such as exquisite thangkas (scrolls) and a photography archive. You can also get here from the upper town via the ropeway cable car.

Do-Drul Chorten About 50m east of the Institute of Tibetology • Daily 9am–5pm • Free Within the same complex as the Institute of Tibetology, an imposing whitewashed chorten, known as the Do-Drul Chorten – one of the most important in Sikkim – dominates a large, lively monastic seminary on the brow of a hill. The chorten is capped by a gilded tower, whose rising steps signify the thirteen steps to nirvana; the sun and moon symbol at the top stands for the union of opposites and the elements of ether and air, surrounded by 108 prayer wheels. Behind the monastic complex, a prayer hall houses a large image of Guru Rinpoche (Padmasambhava) who brought Buddhism to Tibet at the request of King Trisong Detsen in the eighth century AD. He later travelled through Sikkim hiding precious manuscripts (termas) in caves, for discovery at a future date by tertons. Curiously, part of the head of the image projects into the ceiling; belief has it that the image is slowly growing.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY ROAD SHARED GANGTOK
JEEPS AND TAXIS ARE FAR MORE POPULAR AND EFFICIENT THAN BUSES FOR ACCESSING GANGTOK. DUE TO OCCASIONAL AGITATION IN NEIGHBOURING DARJEELING,

THE BUSY ROUTE TO AND FROM SILIGURI IN WEST BENGAL SOMETIMES SEES CLOSURES, THOUGH THE AUTHORITIES ENDEAVOUR TO KEEP IT OPEN.

By jeep Most travellers arrive by jeep from Siliguri (4hr 30min), the current transport centre for the railhead at New Jalpaiguri (NJP; 117km). Jeeps to North Sikkim depart from the Vajra stand until 1pm.

Destinations from Mainline taxi stand: Darjeeling (5hr; around ₹300); Kalimpong (3–4hr; around ₹200), New Jalpaiguri (NJP; around ₹300); Siliguri (5–6hr; around ₹200).

Destinations from taxi stand near MG Marg: Gyalshing (4–5hr; around ₹200); Jorethang (3–4hr; around ₹150); Pelling (5–6hr; around ₹300); Rumtek (1hr; around ₹50).

Destination from Vajra taxi stand: Mangan (3hr; around ₹130).

BY BUS IF YOU'RE DETERMINED TO SUFFER THE BUSES, YOU CAN CHOOSE BETWEEN THE STATE CARRIER, SNT (SIKKIM NATIONALIZED TRANSPORT), OR A NUMBER OF PRIVATE OPERATORS. ALL BUSES RUN BY SNT USE THE SNT BUS STAND ON PALJOR STADIUM RD, BUT PASSENGERS MAY PREFER TO BE DROPPED OFF EARLIER AT METRO POINT, MG MARG, WHICH IS MORE CONVENIENT FOR THE TOURIST OFFICE AND MOST HOTELS. NON-SNT BUSES STOP AT THE MAINLINE STAND, DEORALI, 2KM SOUTH OF THE CENTRE.

Destinations Bagdogra airport, via Siliguri (daily 5.30am; 5–6hr); Kalimpong (daily at 7.30am; 4hr); Namchi (twice daily at 7.30am and 2pm; 3hr); Pakyong (daily at 3.30pm; 1hr); Siliguri (hourly 7.30am to 9.30pm, 1pm and 2pm; 5–6hr); New Jalpaiguri (daily at 7.15am; 5hr).

BY TRAIN THE NEAREST RAILWAY STATION, NEW JALPAIGURI (NJP), IS 117KM AWAY. SNT HAS A TRAIN RESERVATIONS COUNTER (MON–SAT 8AM–2PM), BUT THE RESERVATIONS QUOTA FOR GANGTOK IS HIGHLY INADEQUATE SO YOU ARE ADVISED TO BOOK IN SILIGURI OR ONLINE.

BY AIR

By plane SpiceJet (www.spicejet.com) flies to Pakyong airport, 32km southeast of Gangtok, from Guwahati (1h5min) and Kolkata (1h25min). Coming from elsewhere you must fly to Bagdogra (124km) in West Bengal and reach Sikkim by shared taxi.

By helicopter Sikkim Tourism Development Corporation (STDC; see below) sells tickets for the helicopter flight (subject to weather conditions; Wsikkimstdc.com/HeliServiceGeneral/HeliGeneralReservation.aspx daily 10am and 11am; around ₹3500; 35min; ☎03592 203960) to Bagdogra. Note that the flights only operate with a full load of five passengers and baggage allowance is a mere 10kg.

GETTING AROUND BY TAXI SHARED LOCAL TAXIS ARE THE MOST COMMON WAY OF TRAVELLING THE MAIN HIGHWAY (GANGTOK TO DEORALI AROUND ₹50). AFTER 8PM, TAXIS BECOME SCARCE BUT RESERVED TAXIS ARE AVAILABLE FROM STANDS NEAR THE SNT BUS STAND; THE PRIVATE BUS STAND AT DEORALI; THE LAL BAZAR SUPERMARKET; CHILDREN'S PARK BETWEEN MG MARG AND TIBET RD; AND THE MAIN LINE JEEP STAND. ALL TAXIS CARRY A RATE CHART, AND DRIVERS ARE GENERALLY HONEST.

By the ropeway With terminals at the old Secretariat, Nam Nang and Deorali, the ropeway (daily 8am–4.30pm) provides a spectacular view of the southern city, though it's an expensive way to get around by local standards (₹200 return, no one-way fare) and is not particularly useful for most accommodation. While it's scheduled to run every 12min, in practice it waits to fill up before moving on.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST OFFICE STDC (MON–FRI 10AM–5PM; ☎03592 209090) IS NEXT TO THE TOURIST OFFICE ON MG MARG.

Helicopter flights STDC sell tickets for their spectacular helicopter flights that operate on demand (from ₹9500/15min flight; entire aircraft charter ₹1200/min) over Gangtok and to West Sikkim, Yumthang, Gangtok and, the most breathtaking of them all, a 90min Kanchenjunga trip up the Zemu Glacier. Cameras aren't allowed on some routes.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Gangtok's hotels are expensive in high season (broadly speaking April–June and Sept–Nov), but offer discounted rates at other times. As the town has spread, so has the choice of accommodation, with some excellent hotels and guesthouses springing up along the highway at Deorali, and a growing number of alternatives within striking distance of town.

CENTRAL GANGTOK DENZONG REGENCY CHERRY BANKS, 📍 DENZONGREGENCY.COM. IN A VERY PLEASANT LOCATION WITH QUIET GROUNDS; AWAY FROM THE BUSTLE OF THE BAZAAR BUT YET WITHIN EASY WALKING DISTANCE, THIS LUXURIOUS HOTEL EXUDES A SENSE OF SIKKIMESE HISTORY AND OFFERS LARGE SUITE-LIKE ROOMS WITH BALCONIES. HIGH LEVEL OF SERVICE. ₹₹₹₹

Mist Tree Mountain Tibet Rd, 📍 hotelmisttreemountain.in. Smack in the centre of town, this mid-range hotel clings on the hillside and has large, well-appointed rooms with wooden floor panels, Buthanese rugs, and breathtaking views of Gangtok and the valley. The attached Zaiqa Restaurant is perfect for a romantic meal with 180 degrees views of Kanchenjunga. Breakfast included, and walk-ins get up to a 30 percent discount. ₹₹₹

★Netuk House Tibet Rd, 📍 netukhouse.com. A family home near the centre, which has been extended into a boutique hotel offering an authentic Sikkimese experience. The traditional rooms are warm, atmospheric and beautifully-presented, plus there's a pleasant roof terrace and decent restaurant with home-cooked local meals. ₹₹₹

TREKKING, TOUR AND ADVENTURE OPERATORS
ALL HIGH-ALTITUDE TREKS IN SIKKIM HAVE TO BE CONDUCTED IN GROUPS AND BE ARRANGED THROUGH THE FOLLOWING TRAVEL AGENTS OR TOUR OPERATORS, ALL BASED IN GANGTOK, WHO WILL ALSO SECURE THE NECESSARY PERMITS.

NOTE THAT PAYMENT FOR TREKS IS IN US DOLLARS.

Hub Outdoor Bojoghari, Near Tashi Viewpoint, @huboutdoor.in. Great adventure operator with an outdoor gear outlet that specializes in trekking and mountain-biking adventures. They also rent mountain bikes.

Namgyal Treks & Tours Tibet Rd, @namgyaltreks.com. Namgyal Sherpa is an exceedingly capable and experienced high-altitude trek and expedition operator, recognized by both the Sikkim and Central Government tourist offices.

Adarsh Tours, Treks and Expedition Sikkim PS Rd, @adarshtravels.com. This group offers a taste of authentic Sikkim. Personalized trips, trekking, expeditons – you name it, they have it.

Tag Along Journeys Abhilasha, next to Nepali Sahitya Parishad, Development Area, @tagalong.asia. Tour operator catering to young, adventurous backpackers, offering trekking, mountain biking and road trips with knowledgeable local guides.

Nor-khill Paljor Stadium Rd, @elginhotels.com. Luxurious former royal guesthouse of the chogyal, this landmark hotel is one of the finest addresses in town. Plush rooms in grand Sikkimese style and there's a good restaurant and cosy bar, but the location – overlooking the sports stadium – is poor, and you will need transport. Price includes one meal (lunch or dinner). ₹₹₹

AROUND GANGTOK BOOKMAN'S 1KM NORTH OF METRO POINT, DEVELOPMENT AREA @03592 204336, @BOOKMANS.IN. IN A PEACEFUL LOCATION ABOVE THE ICONIC RACHNA BOOKS AND OPPOSITE THE NEW SECRETARIAT, THIS TRENDY LITTLE B&B HAS JUST THREE ROOMS, ALL WITH ATTACHED BATHS AND COSY INTERIORS. DOWNSTAIRS, CAFÉ FICTION (SEE BELOW) DOES A GREAT WESTERN BREAKFAST. ₹₹₹

★Hidden Forest Middle Sichey Busty, @hiddenforestretreat.org. A 2km taxi ride from the SNT bus terminus and Paljor Stadium brings you to this peaceful idyll, with organic food, a pleasant terrace garden and sublimely comfortable cottages in a family-run nursery that specializes in orchids and azaleas. ₹₹₹

Nettle and Fern Jiwan Theeng Marg, Development Area, 🌐 nettleandfern-hotel.com. A smart little hotel with friendly staff and cosy wood-panelled rooms, all with heating, plush interiors, and tea and coffee facilities. The American-style restaurant and bar is a lively spot, with good desserts and a range of international cuisines. Discounts of up to 30 percent are possible off-season. It's close to the taxi stand and a taxi ride or 20min walk to MG Marg. ₹₹₹

★Tag Along Backpackers Abhilasha, Next to Nepali Sahitya Parishad, Development Area, 🌐 tagalong.asia. Finally Gangtok has a sparkling clean hostel catering to backpackers, run by two energetic, friendly sisters. The colourful dorms are all en suite, bright, with plugs, reading lights, and luggage storage under the bunks. On the ground floor, the eco-friendly Travel Café has a bakery and is a good place to meet like-minded travellers and locals. Breakfast is included. Dorms ₹

EATING

MAP

Though Gangtok has mushroomed into a modern town with hip eateries and bars, most places still wrap up by 9pm.

Absolute Demazong NH-31A, Hungry Jack Complex, 🌐 facebook.com/hungryjackplaza. On the upper floors of a nondescript building, this large restaurant is a good bet for local food and drink. Cane furniture lends a rustic vibe, and traditional set meals include rice, vegetables, a meat curry and local drinks such as so-chang (millet beer) or the Nepali liquor raksi. There's a selection of Bhutanese dishes along with the usual Indian and Chinese. Live music on some evenings. ₹₹

Baker's Café MG Marg, 🌐 facebook.com/bakerscafeindia. Modern patisserie a short walk from the tourist office, with a tempting selection of cakes, croissants and pizzas, as well as good coffee and fruit drinks. ₹

Café Fiction Rachna Books, Development Area 🌐 rachnabooks.com. Below the celebrated bookshop and Bookman's B&B, the bright and airy café is a gathering point for travellers and creative types, with frequent live music and poetry readings. The menu is small but eclectic, with a great

French Press coffee, Vietnamese and Nepalese dishes and good breakfast choices. ₹₹

Khan Uncle's Biryani House MG Marg,  facebook.com/KhanUncleGtk. Popular takeaway restaurant dishing up good, inexpensive Kolkata and Hyderabad-style chicken biryanis, saucy momos, and Chinese food. There's cheap coffee too. ₹

FOOD AND DRINK SIKKIMESE FOOD IS A MELANGE OF NEPALESE, TIBETAN AND INDIAN INFLUENCES; RICE IS A STAPLE, EATEN WITH DHAL, FOREST VEGETABLES AND PICKLES, INCLUDING THE SUPREMELY HOT, FIRE-ENGINE-RED DALLEY CHILLI PICKLE. CHURPI, A FRESH COW-MILK CHEESE, IS GENERALLY MADE WITH A FERN CALLED NINGRO. GYAKHO IS A TRADITIONAL CHIMNEY STEW SERVED ON SPECIAL OCCASIONS. PHING (GLASS NOODLES), SHISNU (NETTLE SOUP), GUNDRUK (FERMENTED SPINACH), GYATHUK (SOUP WITH HANDMADE MACARONI AND LOCAL HERBS; USUALLY WITH BEEF) ARE OTHER TYPICAL SPECIALITIES, ALONG WITH CHICKEN, PORK AND BEEF DISHES. KHODO (MILLET PANCAKE) AND FAFAR ROTI (BUCKWHEAT PANCAKE) ARE GENERALLY EATEN FOR BREAKFAST. TIBETAN DISHES INCLUDING MOMOS AND THUKPA ARE FOUND EASILY.

Restaurants in Gangtok serve alcohol; Hit and Dansberg are the local Sikkimese beer brands. Look out for tomba, a traditional drink usually served in winter, consisting of fermented millet served in a wooden or bamboo mug and sipped through a bamboo straw. The mug is periodically topped up with hot water; once it's been allowed to sit for a few minutes, you're left with a pleasant warm, watery drink that's best on a cold evening. Chaang is a local millet beer, milky and fermented, found more commonly in homestays.

Nimtho New Market, MG Marg, 📍facebook.com/nimthosikkim. This mid-range restaurant, attractively decked out to resemble the kitchen of a rural Nepali mud home, serves good traditional Sikkimese, Nepali and Tibetan cuisine. Try the delicious churpi ko jhol, a Sikkimese special cheese soup. There is also a good selection of beers and spirits. ₹₹

Snowlion Hotel Tibet, Paljor Stadium Rd, 📍leosunhospitality.com. Superb Tibetan and Indian food, with a selection of Sikkimese and Japanese dishes. Expensive by local standards, but highly recommended. Interesting choices include the Tibetan sweet momo and Japanese suriyaki. ₹₹₹

Taste of Tibet MG Marg. At the corner of MG Marg, this upstairs restaurant is very popular with travellers and locals for its reasonable, wholesome local cuisine. There's the ubiquitous momos, thukpa and chow mein, while more uncommon options include the Tibetan shyaphale (meat pie) and beef chilli. ₹₹

DRINKING

MAP

Live & Loud Tibet Rd 📍03592 205024. A hip bar/restaurant with large sofas and live music, particularly busy on weekends when it gets packed-out for bands from around the region. There's both indoor and balcony seating, and the menu features the usual Chinese and Indian fare.

Lounge31A Zero Point, NH31A 📍83718 71883. Long-standing Gangtok American-style bar perched on Zero Point's hilltop, with amazing sunset views over the city. Expect beers on tap, finger food, a few Indian and continental mains, and the odd karaoke night.

SHOPPING

MAP

The town's best shopping areas are the Main Market, stretching for 1km along the pedestrianized MG Marg, and the local produce bazaar in the concrete Kanchenjunga Shopping Complex (Lal Bazar). Here, stalls sell dried fish, dri (female yak) cheese (churpi), and yeast for making the local beer, tomba; on Sundays, there's a haat (bazaar) when people from surrounding areas sell traditional wares from the villages. Curio shops on MG Marg and on Paljor Stadium Rd sell turquoise and coral jewellery, plus religious objects such as silver ritual bowls and beads.

Handloom and Handicraft Emporium NH-31A, north of the centre 📞 03592 203126. Workshops and a retail outlet for traditional Sikkimese handicraft including carpets, hand-loomed fabrics, thangka paintings and wooden objects; prices are fixed and you can visit the workshops.

Rachna Books Development Area, 1km north of Metro Point, 🌐 facebook.com/rachnabooks. This cosy wooden-floored bookshop with couches and large windows invites you to linger over its varied collection of books. The shop hosts poetry and other readings, seminars, art exhibitions and even concerts. The owner, Raman, is a keen jazz aficionado and music is central to the theme, with the great Café Fiction downstairs.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE IF YOU'RE TRAVELLING INTO THE INTERIOR, NOTE EXCHANGE FACILITIES ARE FEW AND FAR BETWEEN BEYOND GANGTOK.

Hospital The STN Memorial Hospital, on the junction of NH-31A and Paljor Stadium Rd, has a 24hr emergency wing and an ambulance service (📞 03592 2222994); Central Referral Hospital, 5th Mile, Tadong (📞 03592 231137), has more facilities. Find pharmacies along MG Marg.

Internet Gangtok has several internet cafés clustered around Tibet Rd.

Police 📞 100.

Post office The main branch is on Paljor Stadium Rd.

Around Gangtok The most obvious destinations for day-trips from Gangtok are the great Buddhist monasteries of Rumtek to the southwest, and Phodong to the north. Indian tourists flock to Tsomgo

Lake and beyond, to the Tibetan border at Nathu La.

Tsomgo Lake and around Tsomgo Lake (pronounced “Changu”), 35km northeast of Gangtok and just 20km from the Tibetan border at Nathu La, is a scenic spot at an altitude of 3750m. It is popular with Indian and foreign visitors alike, all of whom need permits arranged through travel agents. Indian visitors flock here to sample the high-mountain environment and, hopefully, experience the thrill of snow in the colder months. It’s possible to visit the Kyongnosla Alpine Sanctuary (3350m) en route, where a profusion of wild flowers bloom between May and August and migratory birds stop over in winter on their annual migration from Siberia to India. Only Indian nationals are allowed up to the trade post at Serathang and Nathu La (4130m), where, at a motley collection of border buildings, they try to catch a glimpse of Chinese soldiers.

Lingdum (Ranka) 14km west of Gangtok, on the road to Rumtek • Free • Shared taxi charge; taxis only run till mid-afternoon The most rewarding route to Rumtek from Gangtok is via the impressive Zum Gharwang gompa of Lingdum (also called Ranka), completed in 1998. A haven of peace surrounded by deep woodland, Lingdum is a grand example of modern monastic architecture, with an expansive terrace and courtyard. Inside, delicate and detailed murals, with a predominance of pastel colours, depict the life of the Buddha. Adrenaline junkies will find several paragliding outfits here.

Rumtek Visible from Gangtok, and a popular 24km day-trip southwest of the capital, RUMTEK is one of Sikkim’s largest and most impressive gompas and the main seat of the Karma Kagyu lineage – also known as the Black Hat sect – founded during the twelfth century by the first Gyalwa Karmapa, Dusun Khyenpa (1110–93).

Foreigners need to register passport details at the checkpoint off the village bazaar; even Indians and locals are sometimes asked for ID.

The main temple Daily 6am–5pm • charge • ☎03592 252329 • No photography allowed The main temple, with its ornate facade covered in intricate, brightly painted wooden latticework, overlooks the expansive courtyard. Large red columns support the high roof of the prayer hall, where the walls are decorated with murals and thangkas. Visitors may attend daily rituals here, when lines of monks sit chanting.

Karma Shri Nalanda Institute of Buddhist Studies and Golden Stupa The Karma Shri Nalanda Institute of Buddhist Studies, behind the main temple, built in 1984 in traditional Tibetan style, is the most ornate of all the buildings to be found in Rumtek. Monks spend a minimum of nine years studying here, followed by an optional three-year period of isolated meditation. The ashes of the sixteenth Karmapa are contained in a gilded 4m-high chorten or stupa, studded with turquoise and coral, which sits in the Golden Stupa hall opposite the Institute.

THE KARMA KAGYU AND RUMTEK DUSUN KHYENPA ESTABLISHED THE TSURPHU MONASTERY IN CENTRAL TIBET NEAR LHASA, WHICH BECAME THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE KARMA KAGYU FOR EIGHT CENTURIES UNTIL THE CHINESE INVASION OF TIBET IN 1959. THE SIXTEENTH KARMAPA, RANGJUNG RIGPE DORJE, FLED TIBET FOR SIKKIM, WHERE HE WAS INVITED TO STAY AT THE OLD RUMTEK GOMPA. WITHIN A COUPLE OF YEARS, THE KARMAPA HAD BEGUN

BUILDING A MONASTERY AT RUMTEK, WHICH WAS TO BECOME HIS NEW SEAT, ON LAND DONATED BY THE SIKKIMESE KING CHOGYAL TASHI NAMGYAL. ONE OF THE GREAT TIBETAN FIGURES OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY, THE SIXTEENTH KARMAPA WAS VERY INFLUENTIAL IN THE SPREAD OF TIBETAN BUDDHISM TO THE WEST, SETTING UP OVER TWO HUNDRED KARMA KAGYU CENTRES AND RAISING FUNDS FOR THE REBUILDING OF TSURPHU. WHEN HE DIED IN 1981, HE LEFT BEHIND A WEALTHY MONASTERY AND A HUGE AND LUCRATIVE INTERNATIONAL NETWORK, BUT ONE BITTERLY DIVIDED BY AN UGLY SQUABBLE OVER HIS RIGHTFUL SUCCESSOR. TWO REINCARNATE KARMAPAS HAVE NOW EMERGED AS THE MAIN CONTENDERS TO THE THRONE – ONE BLESSED BY THE DALAI LAMA AND ENSCONCED IN DHARAMSALA, THE OTHER IN NEARBY KALIMPONG. A HEAVILY ARMED SECURITY PRESENCE AT RUMTEK KEEPS THE PEACE, BUT IS A SAD INTRUSION INTO THE OTHERWISE IMPRESSIVE MONASTERY.

Old Rumtek gompa From the entry gate to Rumtek, take the path going downhill to the left (15min walk) A flower-and prayer-flag-lined path leads to the simple Old Rumtek gompa, the original monastery, founded in 1740 and recently renovated. The quiet setting, surrounded by empty outbuildings in traditional Sikkimese alpine style, with latticed wooden windows, is a world away from the charged atmosphere of the main complex.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY JEEP IF YOU DON'T RUMTEK ARRANGE YOUR OWN TRANSPORT, THE BEST WAY TO GET

TO RUMTEK IS IN ONE OF THE SHARED JEEPS THAT LEAVE GANGTOK, WHEN FULL, FROM THE PRIVATE TAXI STAND NEAR METRO POINT. FEW SHARED TAXIS TRAVEL AFTER 2PM, AND THOSE THAT DO WILL CHARGE A LOT MORE AFTER DARK.

Destination Gangtok (1hr; approximately ₹50).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING RUMTEK HAS A LIMITED CHOICE OF BUDGET ACCOMMODATION, BUT AN INCREASING NUMBER OF MORE UPSCALE RESORTS OFFERING A QUIET ALTERNATIVE TO CROWDED GANGTOK. IN RUMTEK ITSELF, NOODLES AND CHAI ARE AVAILABLE AT THE TEASHOPS CLUSTERED NEAR THE MONASTERY GATE AND AT THE BAZAAR.

The Bamboo Retreat Sajong, 1km before the monastery gates, @ bambooretreat.in. A boutique hotel where Swiss chic meets formal Sikkimese style, set against a backdrop of forest with views towards Gangtok and Nathu La in the far distance. Each bedroom has a unique colour scheme according to feng shui elements. There's an organic vegetable and herb garden, a library and traditional meditation hall, plus mountain bikes available for hire. Rates include breakfast and taxes. ₹₹₹

Sungay Between the checkpoint and monastery gates @98006 03242 or 86095 76992. A welcoming guest-house, not to be confused with the far more basic Sangay, which is closer to the monastery. This is by far the best of the budget options, boasting large, clean rooms, good home-cooking, an expansive terrace and a garden. All rooms have attached baths with hot water; the more expensive have balconies with views. ₹

Teen Taley Eco Garden Resort Lower Sajong, @sikkimresort.com. Around 2km from Rumtek and spread over six acres, this place is geared towards families, with a small farm and guided walks, mountain bikes for hire, pony riding and a pick-your-own vegetable garden. The wood-lined cottages and suites use a blend of vernacular and modern architecture. ₹₹₹

Phodong and Labrang 38km north of Gangtok on the Mangan road • Free • Shared taxi from Gangtok's Vajra taxi stand The road to Phodong, another living but far less ostentatious monastery, passes Kabi Lunchok, a pleasant, wooded spot marking a historic treaty between the Lepchas and the Bhutias, and some spectacular waterfalls.

On a high spur of 3km above the small Phodong Bazar, Phodong commands superb views, with a simple, square main temple and several outhouses. Built in the early eighteenth century, this was Sikkim's pre-eminent Kagyu monastery until the growth of Rumtek in the 1960s. It too hosts colourful lama dances, similar to the chaam of Rumtek, each December.

A rough road leads a further 4km up from Phodong to another renovated old monastery – the unusual octagonal Labrang. A cluster of chortens between these two monasteries marks the ruins of Tumlong, Sikkim's capital city for most of the nineteenth century.

South Sikkim Ignored by most travellers en route to higher trekking trails and the great gompas of West Sikkim, southern Sikkim nevertheless offers quiet charm, its lichen-covered forests draped with a stunning array of orchids and inhabited by rare and endangered animals. The region is dominated by the great, forested peak of Maenam – towering high above the town of Ravangla – a challenging day-trek and famous for its plants and flowers and for the tremendous view from its summit.

Easier options such as the delightful jungle walk to the lesser heights of Tendong are just as rewarding, while high above the district capital Namchi, the gigantic statuary of Samdruptse and Solophok are clearly visible from as far away as Darjeeling. Sikkim's sole tea garden, the organic Temi Tea Estate, welcomes visitors and provides a good base from which to explore the area and its villages, among which Chalamthang is rising as an interesting eco-tourism destination.

Namchi and around Some 79km southwest of Gangtok and pleasantly situated on a saddle at 1676m above sea level, busy NAMCHI is the administrative centre for South Sikkim. The area around town is a magnet for domestic tourists, but Namchi itself has little to offer save a handful of monasteries, including the Nyingmapa Doling Gompa, Shirdi Sai Baba Mandir, and the impressive statues of Samdruptse and Siddhesvara Dham on nearby Solophuk Hill.

Chalamthang 42km southeast of Gangtok • Private taxis are pretty expensive from Bagdogra airport or New Jalpaiguri. Alternatively, take a shared jeep from Singtam Perched high above Singtam, Chalamthang village put itself firmly on South Sikkim's tourist map by striving to become the state's cleanest village, and promoting community-based homestay tourism with a 100 percent organic, vegetarian lifestyle, where all food is grown in the garden, manned by an 88-year old warden. You can hike to Devi Mandir, a Shiva temple sheltered under a 200-year-old tree, the Ban Jakhri Cave, or the Deorali Dara viewpoint, with breathtaking views of the Teesta River as it snakes into the surrounding valleys and mountain ranges. A 160-year-old traditional Nepali house stands as a memorial to Sikkim's architectural heritage.

Samdruptse 8km north of Namchi • Daily 9am–5.30pm • Charge • Accessed via a steep, gruelling climb past Ngadak Monastery, or an easier jeep ride to the ornamental Rock Garden, from where a scenic ropeway climbs to the statue. • Taxis from Namchi's Central Park to the car park near the statue cost around ₹500

High above town, the gigantic 41m statue of Guru Rinpoche (Padma Sambhava) known as Samdruptse sits on a ridge, gazing south towards Darjeeling. Inaugurated by the Dalai Lama in 2004, the statue cost ₹67,600,000 (around US$16 million) to build, and is large enough to contain a meeting hall.

Siddhesvara Dham 5km southwest of Namchi • Daily 8am–7pm • Charge • taxis from Namchi's Central Park to the entrance cost around ₹500

Also known as Char Dham (“four abodes”), this hilltop temple complex features a towering 33m-high statue of Lord Shiva surrounded by life-size models of the four sacred Vaishnavite Hindu Temples found at Badrinath, Dwaraka, Puri and Rameswaram.

Temi Tea Garden 18km north of Namchi • Daily 8am–5pm • All SNT buses from Siliguri or Gangtok to Namchi stop at Temi Tea Estate en route. Shared jeeps leave from Siliguri SNT bus stand, Singtam, or Namchi Car Parking Plaza Sikkim's only organic tea estate opened in 1969 under direct supervision of the Chogyal of Sikkim, and has delivered top-quality tea worldwide ever since. Temi Tea Garden is sprawled over 177 hectares in a gradient slope between 1450m and 1920m of height, graced by breathtaking views of Kanchenjunga. Visitors can take a tea-making and tasting tour in the factory, soar above the tea gardens on a zipline, paraglide, bike around the estate, and enjoy cultural nights with masked dances and bonfires.

Tendong Hill 15km north of Namchi

Faint forest trails lead north from Samdruptse through the forest to Tendong Hill (2623m) where a small monastery sanctifies the sacred spot revered by the Lepchas, who believe that the hill saved them from the great flood that once submerged the Earth. An easier and more direct route to Tendong than from Namchi starts from the hamlet of Damthang, 14km north of Namchi on the Ravangla road and accessible by shared taxi, from where it's a 6km trek along a pleasant brick-paved trail through dense, protected forest. On a clear day, the views from the Tendong summit stretch from the plains of Bengal to the high Himalayas, and in good weather it's worth camping at the top to catch the sunrise. Beware of black bears – don't go alone.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY JEEP NAMCHI AND AROUND NAMCHI IS WELL CONNECTED TO ALL POINTS IN SIKKIM AS WELL AS SILIGURI, KALIMPONG AND DARJEELING, AND JEEPS ARE FREQUENT BETWEEN 6AM AND 5PM. THE MAIN TRANSPORT HUB IS THE MULTI-STOREY CAR PARKING PLAZA BELOW CENTRAL SQUARE WHERE ALL JEEPS, TAXIS AND BUSES CONVERGE; USE THE PREPAID BOOTHS.

Destinations Darjeeling (2hr30min; ₹250); Gangtok (2hr; ₹190); Kalimpong (3hr; ₹150); Pakyong (3hr; ₹200) Ravangla (40min; ₹150); Singtam (45min; ₹130); Siliguri (3hr; ₹200).

By train The Car Parking Plaza has an advanced railway reservation office, useful for Tatkal tickets from New Jalpaiguri station.

INFORMATION AND TOURS INFORMATION THE SIKKIM TOURISM OFFICE IS ON ALLEY RD, BELOW DAK BUNGALOW (MON–FRI 9AM–5PM), ☎953595 264557.

Services There are several internet cafés in the bazaar.

Tours For tailor-made journeys in South Sikkim, such as food tours covering tea-harvesting and learning how to make traditional meals, or for arts and crafts tours, contact Kamalan (🌐kamalan.travel).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING NAMCHI AND ITS SURROUNDINGS OFFER AN INCREASING CHOICE OF ACCOMMODATION. MOST PLACES ARE CLUSTERED AROUND THE PEDESTRIANIZED MAIN SQUARE, CENTRAL PARK, RESPLENDENT WITH TWO MAGNIFICENT TREES INCLUDING A PIPAL (SACRED FIG, ALSO CALLED THE BODHI TREE) WITH AN AQUARIUM BUILT AROUND IT. FOR MORE ATMOSPHERIC STAYS, HOWEVER, IT'S BEST TO LEAVE THE TOWN BEHIND.

Aansham Kutir Homestay Below Temi Bazaar, Temi, 📞094746 48884. The seven well-appointed rooms — four en suite and three with immaculate shared bathrooms — surround the garden of this lovely Nepali family home. It's an ideal place to relax, hike, and learn about local life. Meals are excluded. ₹₹

Chalamthang Homestay Chalamthang village, 🌐chalamthanghomestay.com. This beautiful homestay sits high on a ridge with fantastic views of the Singtam valley, and fully embodies Chalamthang's village green lifestyle. Rooms are large and comfortable and include two simpler budget options; meals are deliciously home-cooked, and guests are treated as part of the family. Price includes full board. ₹₹₹

Crumbs n Whips 100m from main square on Jorethang Rd, above Sikkim Bank, Namchi, 🌐facebook.com/CrumbsNWhips. Hip and central bakery with a good selection of pizzas, sandwiches, good veggie burgers, and other Western comfort foods — wash it all down with good barista coffee. ₹₹

Dungmali Solophok Rd, 3.5km from Namchi Bazaar, 📞09734126039. To reach this welcoming family-run guesthouse with organic kitchen garden and adjacent woodland, take a taxi from the stand in town. Most rooms benefit from the great views, and the home-cooking is wholesome. It's within walking distance of Siddhesvara Dham, and staff can arrange tours of the region. ₹₹₹

Orchid Villa Gangchung Temi, 97331 54928. The comfortable and clean wood-floored rooms at this homely resort, overlooking two orchid greenhouses, are very good value. The family's home-cooked food is delicious, and the rooftop is a great spot for uncluttered Kanchenjunga views. Breakfast is included. ₹₹

NARSING AND RANGIT TRAILS NUMEROUS TRAILS AND PERMUTATIONS COVER THIS CORNER OF SIKKIM, FORMING THE WATERSHED DOMINATED BY THE ELEGANT PEAK OF NARSING (5825M; CLIMBING NOT PERMITTED) AND OFFERING THE PROMISE OF A HIGH-ALTITUDE TREK WITHOUT THE RESTRICTION OF A SPECIAL PERMIT. THE REGION ABOUNDS WITH HIGH MOUNTAIN LAKES AS WELL AS HOT SPRINGS ALONG THE RANGIT RIVER, BEST ACCESSED VIA RALANG AND THE VILLAGE OF BORONG OR FROM TASHIDING. HOWEVER, THE AREA IS MOST FAMOUS FOR ITS HOLY CAVES INCLUDING L HAR RINCHEN NYING PHUG (3785M), ONE OF THE FOUR IN SIKKIM ASSOCIATED WITH GURU RINPOCHE, WHICH LIES EN-ROUTE TO THE MOUNTAIN LAKES OF PANCHPOKHARI (3–4 DAYS). THE LITTLE-VISITED TREK STARTS AT LABDANG, CONNECTED TO TASHIDING (13KM) BY JEEP. LOCAL GUIDES ARE AVAILABLE AT LABDANG (FROM ₹500/DAY) AND THROUGH SANU HOMESTAY IN TASHIDING, WHILE COMPLETE ITINERARIES ARE AVAILABLE THROUGH HOTEL ZUMTHANG IN RAVANGLA.

Ravangla and around Spread across a high saddle, 65km west of Gangtok and 52km east of Pelling, the sleepy market town of RAVANGLA (also known as Ravang and Rabang) makes for a convenient stopover, especially for anyone interested in trekking through one of the last remaining rhododendron forests in south-central Sikkim. The fabulous Maenam Sanctuary remains a botanist's dream, covering the flanks of the gigantic, forested peak which looms over the town.

Ravangla itself has a sizeable Tibetan settlement, with a handicrafts centre and shop at the Kheunpheling Carpet Centre in the refugee camp to the south. Steps north of the bazaar lead to a completely renovated Nyingmapa monastery and behind it, the lavish Buddha Park. Down the road is Chodzo Lake, a green, manmade pond surrounded by cartoonish statues of Himalayan animals. It hosts a yearly festival, and otherwise sees a number of locals who come to enjoy the paddle boat joyrides and simple restaurants.

Buddha Park (Tathaghata Tsal) 1km north of Ravangla on the way to Ralang • Daily 9am–5pm • Entry charge Dominated by a grandiose 40m-high seated statue of Sakyamuni Buddha, this relatively new well-manicured park was built to celebrate the 2550th birthday of Lord Gautama Buddha. A temple under the main statue houses a glass-covered golden Buddha and murals depicting his life.

Mane Chorkeling Monastery A short, steep walk from the north end of Ravangla Bazaar leads to the lavishly renovated Nyingmapa Mane Chorkeling Monastery with a landscaped garden, which, along with the old chapel within the grounds, is dedicated to Shakyamuni and Guru Rimpoche, accompanied by a host of stucco images of the wrathful protectors. This is the site of the annual three-day Pang Lhabsol festival in late August, which celebrates the worship of Kanchenjunga and draws thousands of Sikkimese to enjoy the traditional sports and Pangtoed Chaam, masked dances that are unique in that they are performed by lay people, not by monks.

Maenem Summit is 10km from Ravangla bazaar • Guide for a day's trek, arranged through hotels in town or at the forest gate 1km above town where you pay an entry fee to the sanctuary The summit of Maenam (3235m) is home to a small chapel to Guru Rinpoche (Padma Sambhava) and boasts superlative views, especially of the horned summit of Narsing (5825m). Feasible as a day-trek, the stiff 1000m ascent of Maenam (2hr 30min–4hr) starts with steps rising from the bazaar up to the gompa before trailing off through the sanctuary where you may even be lucky enough to glimpse wildlife, including the elusive red panda, black bear and a variety of birds. The route through the forest is confusing, so you may want to take a local guide. To catch the sunrise from the dilapidated shelter, bring a good sleeping bag, food and water.

Ralang 13km north of Ravangla • Shared jeeps travel here from Ravangla on demand, though not usually after dark, which can be as early as 4pm. Monasteries in the vicinity of Ravangla include the old and the new gompas at Ralang. The old gompa, Karma Rabtenling, is linked to the ninth Karmapa and was founded in 1730. The new Ralang monastery, Palchen Choeling, built in 1995 in much the same style as Rumtek, is one of the largest temple buildings in Sikkim with numerous resident monks.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE NOTE RAVANGLA AND AROUND THAT YOU CAN'T BE ASSURED OF REGULAR TRANSPORT MUCH AFTER NOON.

By bus The shortest route to Darjeeling is via Namchi, where you may have to change for a jeep or bus.

Destinations Namchi (9am; 1hr); Siliguri (6.30am; 4hr).

By jeep Jeeps leave from the stand at the crossroads towards the southern end of the market. Gangtok jeeps leave at 7am, 8am, 11am, noon; jeeps to other destinations leave intermittently from around 7am till 2pm.

Destinations Gangtok (4hr; ₹200); Namchi (via Legship and Gyalshing; 3hr; ₹70); Pelling (1hr 30min; ₹180).

ACCOMMODATION ANNEXE AT MOUNT NARSING VILLAGE RESORT 3KM WEST OF RAVANGLA, OFF KEWZING RD,
FACEBOOK.COM/NARSINGVILLAGE. A QUIET IDYLL IN A STUNNING LOCATION, A STEEP 20MIN WALK (OR

PRECARIOUS JEEP DRIVE) UP FROM THE MAIN RESORT, ON THE DIRT TRACK VEERING LEFT OFF THE ROAD LEADING TO KEWZING. COMFORTABLE CHALETs, BUILT PARTLY OF LOCAL MATERIALS, ARE RINGED AROUND THE MAIN LODGE, WITH A RESTAURANT BOASTING AN OPEN FIRE. THEIR TOUR OPERATION YUKSOM TOURS & TRAVELS SPECIALIZES IN THIS REGION. FULL BOARD AVAILABLE. ₹₹₹

SIKKIM HOMESTAY TRAIL HOMESTAYS IN RURAL SIKKIM OFFER UNIQUE INSIGHTS INTO VARIOUS ETHNIC CUSTOMS, CUISINES AND LIFESTYLES, SUCH AS THOSE OF THE CHHETRIS, GURUNGS AND BHUTIAS COMMUNITIES. SET WITHIN FORESTED HILLSIDES, THERE'S AMPLE OPPORTUNITY FOR TREKS, VILLAGE WALKS AND BIRDWATCHING, AND YOU'LL EAT HOME-COOKED MEALS, INTERACT WITH LOCALS AND OBSERVE CUSTOMS. A CONVENIENT HOMESTAY TRAIL IS FROM HEE BERMIOK IN WEST SIKKIM TO DARAP, 8KM FROM PELLING, ON TO KEWZING IN SOUTH SIKKIM, COVERING FOREST TREKS VIA KECHEOPALRI, PEMAYANGTSE AND TASHIDING. ECO-TRAVEL AGENT KIPEPEO (📞KIPEPEO.IN) WORKS WITH LOCAL COMMUNITIES AND CAN ORGANIZE TOURS AND HOMESTAY ACCOMMODATION ACROSS RURAL SIKKIM.

ACCOMMODATION DARAGAON VILLAGE RETREAT DARAP, 8KM FROM PELLING, 📞 SIKKIMDARAPHOMESTAY.COM. AWAY FROM PELLING YET EASILY ACCESSIBLE BY A 10MIN DRIVE, DARAP VILLAGE IS HOME TO GURUNG, RAI, LIMBOO AND BHUTIA COMMUNITIES. SHIVA GURUNG'S HILLTOP HOMESTAY

OFFERS WARM, BAMBOO-LINED ROOMS WITH ATTACHED BATHS AND HOT WATER, TWO FRIENDLY DOGS, EVENING BONFIRES ACCOMPANIED BY TOMBA, AND INSIGHTS INTO THE BUDDHIST FAMILY'S WAY OF LIFE. A GOOD BASE FOR THE LOW-ALTITUDE RANI DUNGA TREK AND THE CHALLENGING GOECHALA TREK. ₹₹₹

Dhungay Homestay Hee Bermiok, www.dhungayhomestay.in. A traditional Chhetri household in a Sherpa-dominated village, high on the mountainside with an organic garden. Wooded rooms have attached baths, and local cuisine is eaten in a common dining space. Ganesh arranges day-treks and village walks; handy for the Singalila rhododendron forests. ₹₹₹

Kewzing Homestays Kewzing village, 09733099096. The homestays here, in a lush Bhutia village on the fringes of Ravangla in South Sikkim, operate on a community-based model under the Kewzing Tourism Development Committee (KTDC). Traditional homes set within bamboo forests near the Kewzing monastery have been developed into homestays and accommodate guests on a rotational basis. Rooms range from basic doubles with common baths to more luxurious wood-panelled styles; price includes full board. There are great mountain views, birdwatching opportunities and hikes to Maenam and Tendong, among others. ₹₹₹

Bon Farmhouse Kewzing Busti, 8km west of Ravangla, www.sikkimbonfarmhouse.com. In an idyllic spot surrounded by terraced fields, Chewang Rinchen Bonpo's family farmhouse has well-furnished wood-lined rooms, marrying rustic vernacular style with modern amenities. The Bonpos also offer birding walks and monastic tours. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Buddha Retreat 500m down the road from Buddha Park, www.yangthangheritage.com. Luxe boutique hotel in walking distance to the Sakyamuni Buddha, with 18 large and luminous wooden-floored rooms named after Himalayan peaks, and traditional-chic decorations. The large hall leads to a restaurant and a spa, and breakfast is included. ₹₹₹

Zumthang Kewzing Rd, www.hotelzumthang.webs.com. On the outskirts of Ravangla, this delightful family-run homestay offers warm, clean rooms, some with balconies, and good home-cooked meals. Pema is very informative about the area and can organize Buddhist retreats, day-treks and tours of the region. ₹₹

West Sikkim The beautiful land of West Sikkim, characterized by great tracts of virgin forest and deep river valleys, is home to ancient monasteries such as Pemayangtse and Tashiding and the rapidly developing tourist hub and hill station of Pelling. The old capital, Yoksum, lies at the start of the trail towards Dzongri and Kanchenjunga. In the far west, along the border with Nepal, the Singalila Range rises along a single ridge, with giants such as Rathong and Kabru culminating in Kanchenjunga itself. Only two high-altitude trails are currently easily accessible but require permits, and are expensive; however, several low-altitude treks with numerous variations provide appealing alternatives.

Gyalshing and Legship The bustling market town of GYALSHING (pronounced and also known as Geyzing), 110km west of Gangtok, is the administrative centre and transport hub of western Sikkim, and a good place to stock up on provisions and extend permits, which you can do through the Superintendent of Police (Mon–Sat 10am–4pm) at Tikjuk, midway between Gyalshing and Pelling. There are a handful of hotels around the main square in the centre of Gyalshing should you miss connections. At the bottom of the climb up to Gyalshing, LEGSHIP (14km) is an important regional road junction and the gateway to western Sikkim. Nestling deep in the shadows of the Rangit Valley, Legship is dull with little to see save a temple across the river and grubby hot springs down the road, but you may find yourself here waiting for onward transport.

Pemayangtse 2km east of Pelling • Daily 7am–5pm • Charge • No photography • Shared jeeps from Gyalshing ply regularly until mid-afternoon (10min); from Pelling, book a reserved taxi or walk for around 30min The hallowed monastery of Pemayangtse, perched at the end of a ridge, with a grand panorama of the entire Prek River watershed including the Kanchenjunga massif, is poised high above the Rangit River. It's a 9km journey along the main road from Gyalshing; or you can take a steep, 4km short cut, walking through the woods past a line of chortens and the otherwise uninteresting remains of Sikkim's second capital, Rabdantse (daily 7am–5pm; charge), now made into a pleasant park.

Pemayangtse, the “Perfect Sublime Lotus”, was founded in the seventeenth century by Lhatsun Chempo and is one of the three lamas of Yoksum. Extended in 1705 by his reincarnation, it's one of the most important gompas in Sikkim and belongs to the Nyingmapa sect. The views and the surrounding woods create an atmosphere of meditative solitude.

WEST SIKKIM HIKE THE NUMEROUS TRAILS CRISSCROSSING THROUGH WEST SIKKIM'S WONDERFUL PROFUSION OF ORCHID AND RHODODENDRON FORESTS, WATERFALLS, TERRACED HILLSIDES AND RIVER VALLEYS, GIVE INDEPENDENT WALKERS THE OPPORTUNITY TO EXPLORE THE REGION WITHOUT THE HEADACHE OF RED TAPE (PERMITS) AND THE EXPENSE OF TOUR OPERATORS AND EXPEDITION COSTS. APART FROM THE OCCASIONAL FOREST LODGE OR GUESTHOUSE, A GROWING NETWORK OF HOMESTAYS ALLOWS INTREPID TREKKERS TO WANDER OFF THE BEATEN TRACK, ESPECIALLY ALONG THE MONASTERY TRAIL FROM PELLING. ON THE WESTERN BOUNDARIES OF THE STATE, THE RHODODENDRON FORESTS ARE BEST SEEN AROUND VARSHEY.

RHODODENDRON WALKS THE SINGALILA RANGE'S RHODODENDRON FORESTS, LAUDED BY THE FAMOUS BOTANIST SIR J.D. HOOKER, WHO TRAVELLED HERE IN 1848, ARE BEST VISITED BETWEEN MID-APRIL AND MID-MAY WHEN THE FLOWERS ARE IN FULL BLOOM. OF THESE FORESTS, THE VARSHEY RHODODENDRON SANCTUARY (AKA BARSEY OR VARSEY) COVERS 104 SQUARE KILOMETRES, RANGES IN ALTITUDE FROM 2840M TO 4250M AND IS HOME TO BLACK BEAR, RED PANDA AND PHEASANT. ENTRY TO THE FOREST IS VIA HILLEY, SORENG OR DENTAM AND ENTRY PERMITS FOR THE SANCTUARY ARE AVAILABLE FROM FORESTRY DEPARTMENTS AT HILLEY, SORENG, UTTAREY AND

GANGTOK. THE MOST POPULAR ROUTE IS THE 8KM ROUND TRIP FROM HILLEY TO VARSHEY (3030M), WHICH OFFERS MAJESTIC VIEWS. YOU CAN EXTEND THE WALK TO UTTAREY (3–4 DAYS WITH TENTED ACCOMMODATION), FROM WHERE YOU CAN EITHER TAKE TRANSPORT OUT OR CONTINUE ON FOOT TO THE SMALL TOWN OF DENTAM. FROM DENTAM, A RIVER-VALLEY TRAIL LEADS TO THE QUIET VILLAGE OF RINCHENPONG (4–5HR), A GOOD BASE FOR WEST SIKKIM VILLAGE WALKS; ANOTHER TRAIL FROM DENTAM LEADS EAST UP THE RIDGE TO PELLING (4–5HR).

There are numerous permutations and possibilities for trekking around Varshey including an extension (with prior arrangement with tour operators and the appropriate permits) into the long high-altitude Singalila Ridge trek to Dzongri and beyond.

ACCOMMODATION CHOICE OF ACCOMMODATION BY THE SANCTUARY ITSELF IS LIMITED; IT'S BEST TO LOOK A BIT FURTHER AFIELD SUCH AS AT SORENG, RINCHENPONG BAZAAR AND KALUK, WHERE THERE IS INCREASING CHOICE.

Nagbeli Uttarey ☎09593815700. Above the small Uttarey Bazaar and handy for the rhododendron treks, the hotel, popular with Bengali travellers, has small, comfortable rooms some in a concrete block and others in a wooden chalet set in a colourful garden. Trekking guides and permits can be arranged. ₹₹

★Yangsum Farm Rinchenpong, 🌐yangsumheritagefarm.com. The sylvan environs of this working hill-farm, 3km below the bazaar, provide a quiet retreat with large, comfortable rooms furnished in local Tibetan style with modern amenities and good home-cooking. Thendup can arrange decent village and forest walks and all-inclusive treks including guides for the Singalila trails. Rates include taxes. Full board. ₹₹₹₹

The main gompa Surrounded by outhouses featuring intricate woodwork on the beams, lattice windows and doors, the main gompa itself is plain in comparison. Built on three floors, it centres around a large hall which contains images of Guru Rinpoche and Lhatsun Chenpo (the latter was an enigmatic Tibetan lama who is the patron saint of Sikkim), and an exquisite display of thangkas and murals. On the top floor, a magnificent wooden sculpture carved and painted by Dungzin Rinpoche, a former abbot of Pemayangtse, depicts Sang Thok Palri, the celestial abode of Guru Rinpoche, rising above the realms of hell. The extraordinary detail includes demons, animals, birds, Buddhas and bodhisattvas, chortens and flying dragons, and took him just five years to complete.

Pelling and around The rapidly swelling town of PELLING, situated 2085m above sea level, is most notable for its expansive views north towards the glaciers and peaks of Kanchenjunga. High above forest-covered hills, in an amphitheatre of cloud, snow and rock, the entire route from Yoksum over Dzongri La to the Rathong Glacier can be seen. Frenetic building activity has somewhat detracted from Pelling's quiet charm, and the area is a magnet for Bengali travellers; the main drag from the crossroads to Lower Pelling is chock-full of hotels and not much else. However, on a clear day, you can gaze in awe at the world's third-highest peak from any of the numerous hotel terraces in Upper Pelling, and there's easy access to attractive walks in the hinterland. One noticeable element missing is a bazaar, although a few shops are now beginning to appear.

Sanga Choling 4km north from Upper Pelling • Daily 7am–5pm • Taxis from Pelling charge around ₹300

A new road blasted up the steep ridge from near the helipad just above Pelling makes a good 4km walk to reach the small but highly venerated Nyingmapa monastery of Sanga Choling, one of the oldest gompas in Sikkim and another of Lhatsun Chenpo's creations. Gutted by fire, it was rebuilt in 1948 and houses some of the original clay statues including a stunning Samantha Bhadra. Next to the monastery is the world's tallest statue of Chenrezing — a 42m-high rendition of Amitabha, the earthly manifestation of the eternal Buddha. At the bottom of its grand staircase, a skywalk and a café cater to tourists.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY JEEP SHARED JEEPS PELLING DEPART FROM THE CROSSROADS OF UPPER PELLING, ALSO CALLED ZERO POINT; SHARED JEEPS FROM HERE TO GANGTOK ONLY RUN IN SEASON, AND IT'S ADVISABLE TO BOOK BEFOREHAND THROUGH YOUR HOTEL OR AN AGENT. FATHER TRAVELS (SEE BELOW) RUNS A DIRECT JEEP SERVICE TO GANGTOK AND SILIGURI (BOTH DAILY 7AM). YOU CAN ALSO WAIT FOR 2/3 DAILY YUKSOM-BOUND JEEPS THAT STOP IN PELLING BETWEEN 12 AND 2PM. REASONABLE SHARED TAXIS TO KECHEOPALRI AND YUKSOM CAN BE ARRANGED THROUGH TOUR OPERATORS, WHO WILL PICK UP GUESTS FROM THEIR HOTELS; THE REGULAR ROUTE TO YUKSOM VIA TASHIDING ENTAILS A CHANGE AT GYALSHING – LEAVE AS EARLY AS POSSIBLE TO MAKE THE CONNECTIONS.

Destinations Gangtok (7am; 4hr); Gyalshing (regularly 7am–5pm; 20min); Ravangla (7am; 2hr); Siliguri (7am; 6hr).

By bus A single bus leaves for Siliguri via Gyalshing from Lower Pelling. Book in advance between 6 and 7pm at SNT, Hotel Saredena, Upper Pelling (☎97332 12625).

Destination Siliguri (7am; 6hr).

INFORMATION AND TOURS INFORMATION THE TOURIST INFORMATION CENTRE NEAR THE HELIPAD (DAILY 10AM–4PM) IS GOOD FOR GENERAL AND TRAVEL INFORMATION, AS IS THE EXCELLENT LOCAL WEBSITE, GOPELLING.IN. AVOID THE PRETEND TOURIST INFORMATION CENTRE ABOVE THE CROSSROADS. FOR THE BEST IN LOCAL TREKKING AND TRANSPORT INFORMATION, CONSULT HOTEL GARUDA.

Tours Tour operators such as Destination Treks & Tours (☎96097 76494) at the crossroads and Father Travels in Lower Pelling (☎77972 83512) can arrange day-trips by jeep. Hotel Garuda provides reliable travel services and can arrange local treks, village tours and logistics for the Monastery Trail.

ACCOMMODATION MOST OF PELLING'S HOTELS, WHOSE RATES RISE STEEPLY IN THE HIGH SEASONS (MARCH-MAY & SEPT-NOV) ARE SPREAD ALONG A 2KM STRETCH OF ROAD BETWEEN UPPER, MIDDLE AND LOWER PELLING. LOWER PELLING GEARS ITSELF MORE TOWARDS THE DOMESTIC MARKET, WHILE UPPER PELLING OFFERS THE FINEST VIEWS AND HAS SEVERAL ATTRACTIVE OPTIONS AND NEW LUXURY DEVELOPMENTS AWAY FROM THE CONCRETE JUNGLE.

The Elgin Mount Pandim Just below Pemayangtse Monastery, elginhotels.com. Darjeeling-style elegance has turned this old government hotel into the most luxurious address in western Sikkim. Every room has a view of the snowy peaks, there's a good multicuisine restaurant, and the unspoilt location makes this the ideal base from which to explore the area.

₹₹₹₹

★Garuda The crossroads, Upper Pelling, hotelgarudapelling.com. A long-popular travellers' haunt with a decent restaurant, great travel desk and wi-fi (lobby only), this charming family-run hotel offers a wide range of rooms, from dorms to deluxe balconied suites. The hotel's comments books contain useful trekking information and travellers' tips, and Tshering is full of stories of Pelling in the old days. Thirty percent discount available off-season. ₹

Norbhu Ghang Upper Pelling, norbughang.com. Traditional Sikkimese-style cottages, with Buddhist decor and set in pretty gardens, are spread across this expansive hotel, one of Pelling's plushest resorts. The location high above town promises good views from most of the wood-lined rooms, which are heated and have modern amenities. The new Retreat & Spa is an extension of the original property, with more luxurious offerings. Rates include breakfast. ₹₹₹₹

EATING MANY OF PELLING'S BEST RESTAURANTS ARE IN HOTELS, BUT TRADITIONAL SIKKIMESE FOOD IS RATHER RARER THAN DHAL BHAT DUE TO THE STRONG BENGALI

PRESENCE. UPPER PELLING HAS SEVERAL CAFÉS, AND FOR FINE DINING TRY THE CONSERVATIVE MENU AT THE ELGIN MOUNT PANDIM.

Big Bowl Zero Point 09609776494. A multicuisine restaurant attached to Destination Treks & Tours, where there's comfortable seating and an extensive menu featuring the standard Indian and Chinese fare. Breakfast offerings are varied, including porridge and pancakes. ₹

Garuda The crossroads, Upper Pelling, hotelgarudapelling.com. A popular restaurant and bar on the ground floor of the Garuda hotel, with a cosy fireplace and a view of the street. There's a mix of Indian, Tibetan and Chinese dishes, as well as traditional Sikkimese meals which include cheese soup and meat curries; try the spinach momos. There's beer, too. ₹₹

Lotus Bakery 500mt out of town on the road to Pemayangtse 94745 32034. Run by the Denjong Pema Choeling Academy, this grassroots bakery has good chai, apple rolls, cookies and other baked treats that are great for breakfast or tea time. ₹

Melting Point Middle Pelling 97333 07934. One of the few good restaurants not part of a hotel, this bright and cheerful place has comfortable couches indoors and a pleasant veranda with mountain views, though its popularity means you may not get a seat outside. There's a bar with ample choice, including some Tibetan specialties such as gyathuk (noodle soup), falay (stuffed patty) and thenthuk (soup with noodles, meat and veggies). ₹

DIRECTORY INTERNET THERE'S AN INTERNET CAFÉ AT THE POST OFFICE DURING OFFICE HOURS.

Post office The post office is in Upper Pelling just above the crossroads.

Khecheopalri Lake 32km from Pelling • 6am–6pm • Charge • Regular jeep services from Gyalshing (90min) via Pelling (1hr) drop passengers off at the stand at the bazaar (around 15min walk to the lake) – Deepen Pradhan of Lake View Nest can organize transport to Khecheopalri; guides are available for exploring the area for around ₹500/day Surrounded by forests and hidden in a mountain bowl (2000m) 33km northwest of Pelling, Khecheopalri Lake, known as the “Wishing Lake”, is sacred to the Lepchas. A footpath leading to the right from the police booth at the tiny bazaar and road-head, past the picturesque anni gompa (nunnery), leads to the lake, which attracts pilgrims of all faiths. Legend has it that if a leaf drops onto the lake's surface, a guardian bird swoops down and picks it up, thereby maintaining the purity of the water. The path going left from the police booth in the bazaar leads to the small Khecheopalri Gompa (1km) that serves a scattered farming community occupying the plateau above the lake, with great views of Mount Pandim (6691m).

THE MONASTERY TRAIL YOU WON'T NEED A GUIDE FOR THIS REWARDING CIRCUIT WHICH HAS COME TO BE KNOWN AS THE MONASTERY TRAIL, TAKING IN THE HIGHLIGHTS OF WESTERN SIKKIM INCLUDING SEVERAL HOLY PLACES AND MONASTERIES. DON'T EXPECT A TOTALLY WILD EXPERIENCE, AS PARTS OF THE TRAIL NOWADAYS ARE ALONG PAVED ROADS. DO ASK ADVICE FROM HOTEL GARUDA IN PELLING ON THE MOST SCENIC ROUTE, AND PICK UP A ROUGH MAP OF THE TRAIL. EACH SECTION TAKES BETWEEN FOUR AND SEVEN HOURS, AND THE GROWING NETWORK OF HOMESTAYS ALLOWS TREKKERS TO FIND COMFORTABLE ACCOMMODATION. MOST WALKERS START THE POPULAR THREE-TO-FOUR-DAY TRAIL FROM PELLING VIA DARAP TO KHECHEOPALRI, THEN CONTINUE TO YUKSOM (WITH A STEEP DESCENT AND A KNEE-GRINDING ASCENT TO THE SMALL TOWN) WHERE THERE ARE SOME DECENT HOTELS AND HOMESTAYS. CONTINUING FROM YUKSOM TAKES IN MONASTERIES SUCH AS DUBDI (ABOVE YUKSOM), HONGRI AND SINON BEFORE DESCENDING TO TASHIDING. TO RETURN TO PELLING, WALK DOWN TO SAKYUNG FROM WHERE THERE IS AN UNRELENTING ASCENT TO PELLING. ALONG WITH SEVERAL EXTENSIONS, ALTERNATIVE ROUTES FROM TASHIDING INCLUDE WALKING TO BORONG, RALANG AND RAVANGLA WITH A DIP IN A HOT SPRING ALONG THE RANGIT RIVER; THE ADVANTAGE OF THIS VARIATION IS THAT IT WOULD HELP YOU GET ON TO THE ROAD FOR GANGTOK. FOR TRAIL INFORMATION IN TASHIDING, ASK AT SANU'S HOMESTAY, OR GO THROUGH RED PANDA IN YOKSUM.

The village homestays and natural serenity make Khecheopalri a place to linger for a day or more, and walks include those to sacred caves such as Dufuk.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ★LAKE VIEW NEST HOMESTAY KEICHEOPALRI GOMPA, ❷
FACEBOOK.COM/LAKEVIEWNESTHOMESTAY. WELCOMING HOMESTAY ON THE PLATEAU NEAR THE GOMPA, WITH COMFORTABLE ROOMS AND A MODERN SHARED BATHROOM DOWNSTAIRS. WHOLE-SOME HOME-COOKED FOOD, GREAT VIEWS AND A GLIMPSE OF PASTORAL LIFE ABOUND. CHUMDEN, THE OWNER, WILL ORGANIZE GUIDES, BIRDWATCHING TOURS, AND GIVE ADVICE ON WALKS IN THE REGION. IT'S A 20MIN UPHILL WALK FROM THE JEEP STAND; TURN LEFT FROM THE POLICE BOOTH AND WALK A SLIGHTLY DESCENDING TRAIL FOR 200M. ₹₹

Pala Homestay Kecheopalri Gompa (contact through Lake View Nest Homestay). Near the gompa, the owner – a local lama and father of Lake View Nest's Chumden – offers very basic traditional wooden rooms and shared bathrooms; he also organizes meditation courses. Price includes two meals. ₹

Yoksum The sleepy, spread-out hamlet of YOKSUM at the end of the road which runs north of Pelling and at the entrance to the Rathong Chu gorge, 40km north of Pemayangtse, holds a special place in Sikkimese history. This was the spot where three lamas converged from different directions across the Himalayas to enthrone the first religious king of Sikkim, Chogyal Phuntsog Namgyal, in 1642. Named the “Great Religious King”, he established Tibetan Buddhism in Sikkim. Lhatsun Chenpo is supposed to have buried offerings in Yoksum’s Norbugang Chorten, a vast white stupa built with stones and earth from different parts of Sikkim, to be found in Norbugang Park a kilometre north of Yoksum, which also houses the Coronation Throne, a simple stone throne of the first chogyal. In front of the throne, a large footprint embedded in a rock belongs to one of the lamas. Kathok Lake, a small pond nearby at the top end of town, was also part of the original ceremony, but it’s disappointing and pretty scummy these days.

WEST SIKKIM HIGH-ALTITUDE TREKS TWO HIGH-ALTITUDE TREKS ARE CURRENTLY ALLOWED IN SIKKIM. THE FIRST, FROM YOKSUM TO DZONGRI, IN THE SHADOW OF KANCHENJUNGA, PASSES THROUGH HUGE TRACTS OF FOREST AND PROVIDES INCREDIBLE MOUNTAIN VISTAS; ALL-INCLUSIVE RATES FROM A DECENT AGENCY ARE FROM AROUND US$50 PER HEAD PER DAY INCLUDING PERMITS. THE SECOND, THE SINGALILA RIDGE, EXPLORES THE REMOTE HIGH PASTURES OF THE SINGALILA FRONTIER RANGE WITH BREATHTAKING VIEWS OF THE MASSIF. TREKKERS

FOR EITHER ROUTE MUST HAVE SPECIAL PERMITS, TRAVEL IN GROUPS OF AT LEAST TWO AND ORGANIZE THE TRIP WITH AN AUTHORIZED AGENCY. GENERAL ADVICE ON TREKKING EQUIPMENT AND HEALTH ISSUES IS GIVEN IN BASICS.

THE DZONGRI TRAIL ALTHOUGH DZONGRI IS THE JUNCTION OF SEVERAL TRAILS, THE PRESCRIBED ROUTE ONWARDS LEADS TO GOECHA LA VIA ZEMANTHANG AND SAMITI LAKE. WELL-MARKED AND DOTTED WITH BASIC ACCOMMODATION, THE TRAIL, ALSO USED BY YAK HERDERS, IS AT ITS BEST IN MAY WHEN THE RHODODENDRONS BLOOM.

DAY 1 It takes approximately six hours to climb the 16km from Yoksum (1780m) to Tsokha (3048m). The forested trail begins gently before arriving at the Prek River above its confluence with the Rathong. The next 4.5km involve a knee-grinding ascent, entering the lichen zone and cloud forests, past the Forest Rest House at Bakhim (2684m) to the Tibetan yak herders' settlement of Tsokha where there are a couple of trekkers huts.

DAY 2 This day can be spent acclimatizing to the altitude at Tsokha, perhaps with a 5km trek towards Dzongri, to a watchtower with superb views of Kanchenjunga and Pandim.

DAY 3 The 11km section from Tsokha to Dzongri (4030m) takes at least five hours, rising through beautiful pine and rhododendron forests to Phedang Meadows (3450m), before continuing to the hut at Dzongri.

DAY 4 Once again, it's worth staying around Dzongri for further acclimatization. This gives you the opportunity to climb Dzongri Hill above the hut for views of Kanchenjunga's craggy south summit and the black rocky tooth of Kabur, a holy mountain towering above Dzongri La (4400m), a pass that leads to the HMI base camp, 12km away at Chaurikhang, and the Rathong Glacier (a recommended variation).

DAY 5 The 8km trek from Dzongri to Thangsing (3841m) takes around four hours, descending against an incredible backdrop of peaks to a rhododendron forest, crossing a bridge and continuing through woods to Trekkers Hut at Thangsing at the end of a glacial valley.

DAY 6 The 10km short, sharp shock up to Samiti Lake (4303m) takes around three hours, through alpine meadows traversing glacial moraine before arriving at the emerald-green Samiti Lake (local name Sungmoteng Tso). If you are still going strong, you could continue to Zemanthang (4453m), where there's a trekkers hut.

DAY 7 This is the climax of the trek and its most difficult section by far, due to the high altitude. From Samiti Lake, the 14km round-trip climb takes around four hours up to Goecha La and two to three hours back down again. The trail follows glacial moraine to Zemanthang, before a final grinding rise following cairns and the occasional prayer flag to the narrow defile at Goeche La (5000m), where Kanchenjunga South is visible on a clear day.

DAY 8 Most of the long 24km hike from Samiti Lake back to Tsokha is downhill and takes around eight hours, involving a short-cut after the bridge to avoid Dzongri. There are several variations to this finish.

THE SINGALILA RIDGE ITINERARIES FOR SINGALILA RIDGE TREKS RANGE BETWEEN TEN AND NINETEEN DAYS, AND THOUGH MORE EXPENSIVE DUE TO THE AREA'S REMOTENESS, THEY PROVE EXCEPTIONALLY REWARDING, WITH VIEWS FROM EVEREST TO THE HUGE KANCHENJUNGA MASSIF AHEAD. IT'S BEST DONE FROM SOUTH TO NORTH, FACING THE VIEWS AS THE TRAIL RISES TOWARDS THE SNOWS THROUGH REMOTE ALPINE PASTURES AND PAST HIDDEN LAKES. THE MOST COMMON VARIATION STARTS FROM THE ROAD-HEAD AT UTTAREY (1965M), 28KM TO THE WEST OF PELLING, AND ASCENDS TO CHEWABHANJANG (3170M) ON THE SIKKIM-NEPAL FRONTIER. THEREAFTER, THE TRAIL RARELY DESCENDS BELOW 3500M, HIGH ABOVE THE TREE LINE; THE HIGHEST POINT OF THE TRAIL IS THE DANFEYBHIR TAR, A PASS AT 4400M. THE ROUTE DESCENDS TO GOMATHANG (3725M), A YAK-HERDERS' SHELTER ON THE BANKS OF THE BOKTOCHU, THEN PASSES THROUGH DELIGHTFUL

FORESTS OF SILVER FIR AND RHODODENDRON BEFORE ARRIVING AT THE WELCOME SIGHT OF THE BUNGALOW
AT DZONGRI WHICH CONNECTS WITH THE MAIN TREKKING TRAILS.

The village's main role these days is as the start of the high-altitude Dzongri Trail, but unless you have a trekking permit, you're not supposed to venture any further and the authorities are quite vigilant. So long as you're not carrying a backpack, they may allow a day-trip along the main trail to the Prek River and its convergence with the Rathong – a 28km round trip.

Dubdi Monastery It's best to enquire in the bazaar or the KCC office (see box below) before you set out, as it's often closed High above Yoksum, prayer flags announce the site of the Dubdi Monastery, built in 1701 and one of the oldest of its kind in Sikkim. To get here, walk past the bazaar to the hospital at the top of the village, where the road ends. A path from here threads past waterwheels and a small river, and rises through the forest to arrive at the gompa on an expansive shelf.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY JEEP THERE ARE YOKSUM NO BUSES TO OR FROM YOKSUM ITSELF, BUT THE REGULAR JEEP SERVICES (BOOK THE NIGHT BEFORE AT THE BAZAAR) START EARLY (6.30–7.30AM); YOU'RE UNLIKELY TO GET ANY SHARED TRANSPORT AFTER 1PM.

Destinations Gangtok (4–5hr); Gyalshing (1hr); Pelling (1hr); Ravangla (2.5hr).

Information Kangchendzonga Conservation Committee (KCC), Gompa Rd (daily 10am–4pm; Wfacebook.com/kcc.sikkim), provide information and will assist with homestays and other travel-related enquiries.

Trekking Of the few operators, Dhan Raj Gurung of Red Panda in the bazaar (redpandatreks.weebly.com) is a knowledgeable, enthusiastic and experienced operator who rose through the ranks and knows the area well. He can arrange Dzongri Trail permits with two days' notice and is reasonably priced. He can also arrange local guides and offers internet use. KCC can also help arrange guides.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING MOST OPTIONS ARE AROUND THE SMALL MARKET AREA. THE KCC AT THE VISITORS INFORMATION CENTRE, AT THE HEAD OF TOWN, ORGANIZES SEVERAL HOMESTAYS AROUND THE VILLAGE. BESIDES HOTEL RESTAURANTS, THE ONLY OTHER PLACES TO EAT ARE CAFÉS ALONG THE MAIN DRAG, WHICH SERVE SNACKS AND BASIC MEALS.

Dragon 100m south of the bazaar 097359 34578. On the main drag leading to Yoksum's tiny market, this cosy family-run establishment has a little lawn space and a sunny terrace. Accommodation is simple, but clean and comfortable, with attached rooms upstairs and a shared bathroom for the rooms downstairs. The restaurant offers traditional food and a bar. ₹

Dzongri Bazaar 097331 58258. A centrally located, rustic wood building with a handful of rooms (shared baths) and hot water. Facilities are basic, but there's a restaurant that offers all meals, and staff can arrange guides for trails. Accommodation options include a dorm and single, double and triple rooms. ₹

Tashi Gang Just above the bazaar 099330 07720. The oldest and the best of Yoksum's mid-range hotels tastefully amalgamates traditional Sikkimese style with modern amenities. Rooms are comfortable, with wooden floors and Buddhist art; some have balconies. There's also a decent restaurant and a large lawn with good views. ₹₹₹

Yuksum Residency Bazaar 099331 33330. This central and plush hotel, with a strong Buddhist theme, has a little too much marble for a mountain village and can get rather chilly. It offers a high level of comfort, and the more expensive rooms are wood-lined and thus warmer. ₹₹₹

Tashiding Considered the holiest in Sikkim, the beautiful gompa of Tashiding occupies the point of a conical hill 19km southeast of Yoksum, high above the union of the Rangit and the Rathong rivers. "The Devoted Central Glory" was built in 1717, after a rainbow was seen to connect the site to Kanchenjunga. While a paved road has eaten its way through the forest to the monastery, the climb is still recommended – the well-marked path leaves the main road near an impressive mani wall (inscribed with the Buddhist mantra Om mani padme hum: “Hail the jewel in the lotus” in silver paint) and leads steeply past rustic houses and fields, and along a final flag-lined approach.

On the fifteenth day of the first month of the Tibetan New Year, devotees from all over Sikkim gather in Tashiding for the Nyingmapa Bhumchu festival, when they are blessed with the holy water from an ancient bowl, which – legend has it – never dries up. Oracles consult the water’s level to determine the future.

CONSERVATION AND THE KANCHENJUNGA NATIONAL PARK ESTABLISHED IN 1996 WITH THE HELP OF THE SIKKIM BIODIVERSITY AND ECOTOURISM PROJECT, THE KHANGCHENDZONGA CONSERVATION COMMITTEE (KCC) AIMS TO PROMOTE ECOLOGICAL AWARENESS TO LOCALS AND VISITORS ALIKE. THE KCC’S MAIN CONCERN IS THE IMPACT OF TOURISM ON THE FABRIC OF THE KANCHENJUNGA NATIONAL PARK, AND THEIR INITIATIVES INCLUDE KEEPING TRAILS CLEAN, PLANTING TREES, PROMOTING ECO-AWARENESS, TRAINING LOCAL WORKERS AS PORTERS AND GUIDES AND ORGANIZING SELF-HELP INITIATIVES. CONSERVATION HAS ALSO BEEN EMBRACED BY THE SIKKIM GOVERNMENT, WHICH HAS PUT IN PLACE A CODE OF CONDUCT, BANNING THE USE OF WOOD FOR FUEL IN PREFERENCE TO KEROSENE; HOWEVER, WOOD FIRES CONTINUE TO BE PART AND PARCEL OF THE SIKKIM LANDSCAPE. FOR MORE INFORMATION ON THE KCC, CONTACT THEIR COORDINATOR PEMA CHEWANG BHUTIA AT

VISITORS INFORMATION & BIODIVERSITY CENTRE, GOMPA ROAD, YOKSUM (☎97331 49975, 98324 52527 OR 9733 158268, ✉KCC_SIKKIM@HOTMAIL.COM). THEY ALSO ARRANGE LOW-ALTITUDE TRAIL GUIDES FOR ₹1000 A DAY.

On the popular Monastery Trail, Tashiding provides a good base from which to explore the treks along the watershed of Mount Narsing and the Rangit River, with several holy lakes and caves a few days' walk away.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY JEEP LEAVING TASHIDING FROM THE BOTTOM OF THE MAIN STREET OF TASHIDING'S TINY SINEK BAZAAR, 3KM BELOW THE MONASTERY, ONE OR TWO TIMETABLED JEEPS (7–9AM) AND A HANDFUL OF UNSCHEDULED JEEPS RUN TO THE DESTINATIONS BELOW. THE LAST REGULAR SHARED JEEPS DEPART AT 8AM.

Destinations Gangtok (7.30am & noon; 4–5hr; ₹350); Gyalshing (1hr; ₹200); Legship (40min; ₹100); Siliguri (5–6hr; ₹350); Yoksum (1hr; ₹100).

On foot Several trails through the forests and along stretches of roads make trekking an alternative option to public transport; the route to Yuksom climbs up to Sinon Gompa before traversing high ground, while the route to Pelling descends to Sakyung before a final relentless climb. You can also walk to Ravangla via Borong and Ralang. For more details and numerous other trekking possibilities including guides, consult Sanu at her homestay.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ACCOMMODATION AROUND TASHIDING'S SINEK BAZAAR IS GENERALLY DISAPPOINTING, THOUGH THERE ARE SOME GOOD HOMESTAYS ON THE FOOTPATH UP TO THE MONASTERY AND A FEW IN THE COMPOUND ITSELF. ADDITIONALLY, AT THE TIME OF WRITING, A CLUTCH OF NEW HOMESTAYS WERE DUE TO OPEN.

Mount Siniolchu Guesthouse At the top end of the bazaar ☎97333 42511. This simple guesthouse has just three wooden rooms, with plain beds and shared baths downstairs. It's a welcoming place, close to the bazaar cafés and a short walk from the taxi stand at the crossroads. ₹

★Sanu Homestay 300m uphill through the monastery entrance gates ① 96350 60062. This excellent village homestay in the monastery complex offers a warm welcome and good home-cooking from an organic garden. The shared bathroom outside features hot showers but squat toilets. Sanu is a font of knowledge for the area and can help arrange treks, guides or just directions for those wanting to go it alone. Sanu can also arrange for shared taxis to pick up guests from the doorstep. Her sister next door runs the Sonam homestay, where Sanu accommodates guests if hers is full. ₹₹

Yatri Niwas Tourist Lodge 10min winding walk above the bazaar ① 98326 23654. In a good location, 2.5km from the monastery, this government lodge offers a decent degree of comfort. The large rooms all have attached baths and hot water, and there's food to order and a pleasant garden. ₹₹₹

North Sikkim A fragile road etches its way up the Teesta Valley and splits at Chungthang with one branch bearing northwest to Lachen and beyond, the other due north to Lachung, to the beautiful valley of Yumthang and eventually Zero Point on the high plateau.

The huge earthquake of 2011, with its epicentre near the capital Mangan, severed the roads to North Sikkim and left over sixty people dead. Then, a year later, unexpected late-season rains caused deadly landslides that once again isolated the region for several weeks Travellers to North Sikkim need to show their permits at Tong, from where the stretch of road to Chungthang has greatly improved in recent times.

ESSENTIALS MONSOONS EVERY YEAR NORTH SIKKIM
THROUGHOUT THE MONSOON, LANDSLIDES TAKE OUT STRETCHES OF ROAD – AT THE HEIGHT OF THE TOURIST SEASON AROUND FIVE HUNDRED JEEPS BATTLE THEIR WAY UP AND DOWN THE TORTUOUS AND INADEQUATE ROADS TO AND FROM GANGTOK.

Permits Access to much of North Sikkim is restricted: visitors are only allowed in with the necessary permits, and some areas along the borders remain completely out of bounds. Groups armed with Protected Area Permits can go as far north as Thangu, past Lachen, at the edge of the plateau. Only Indians – similarly armed – can travel further on to the spectacular lake of Gurudongma, on the Tibetan plateau. North of Mangan, foreigners are only allowed up in groups of two or more, and need to book travel through a registered operator. Jeep tours include transport and homestay accommodation. North Sikkim permits (extendable through the Superintendent of Police in Mangan) are only valid for five days and a further seven for trekking.

Mangan Travelling north past Phodong, the highway reaches the town of MANGAN, 67km north of Gangtok, the district capital of North Sikkim and perched high above the Teesta Valley. Recovering after the devastating earthquake of 2011 which all but demolished the bazaar and destroyed Rinzing Gompa, Mangan is nevertheless a convenient stop on an arduous route to the north (note that it's the furthest you can go without a Protected Area Permit. The town itself has little interest other than its busy bazaar, a handful of hotels and the District Collector's office, which is a relatively easy place to get a permit if you haven't already picked one up in Gangtok.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY JEEP SHARE TAXIS MANGAN FROM GANGTOK'S VAJRA STAND DEPART FOR MANGAN 8AM
TO 1PM. FROM MANGAN TO DZONGU AND BEYOND, SHARE TAXIS PLY IRREGULARLY – IT'S BEST TO RESERVE AHEAD.

Destinations Dzongu (1hr; ₹500); Gangtok (2hr 30min; ₹250).

Tours and permits You can get PAPs from the District Collector's office, 2km above town (Mon–Sat 10am–4pm; ☎03592 234856; ₹20 share taxi from bazaar). Khangri Treks & Tours of Gangtok (☎09474649449) arrange treks, permits and tours of the area.

ACCOMMODATION THE PLANTER'S HOME PENTOK, 15MIN WALK ABOVE TOWN, ☎THEPLANTERSHOME.COM. SISTER TO THE SONAM DELEK IN GANGTOK, THIS HOTEL FEATURES VERY COMFORTABLE COTTAGES WITH LARGE WOOD-PANELLED ROOMS ALL WITH ATTACHED BATHS AND TEA- AND COFFEE-MAKERS. THERE'S A RESTAURANT, BAR AND FIREPLACE IN THE MAIN COTTAGE, OFFERING THE USUAL FARE ALONG WITH SOME LOCAL SPECIALITIES. ₹₹₹

Tshana Residency NH-31A, 300m south of the bazaar, ☎03592234239. On the highway, this welcoming family home offers traditional wood-lined rooms with attached baths, hot water and TVs. ₹

Dzongu Few visit the magnificent, untouched valley and pristine heart of Sikkim – the Lepcha homeland of Dzongu, which branches northwest from Mangan towards Kanchenjunga. At the heart of the valley, the ancient gompa of Tholung, devastated by the 2011 earthquake, has been rehoused in a new gompa and is home to ancient treasures of the chogyals; these are displayed every three years to the public with the next exhibition, known as Kamsel, due in 2024. Few roads penetrate Dzongu, and the only way to get to Tholung is on foot from the road-head (20km; 5hr). A few good homestays allow visitors to explore the pastoral life of the region, which is abundant with forest walks, challenging treks and mountain-bike trails.

ACCOMMODATION HOMESTAYS ARE ABLE TO ARRANGE ALL NECESSARY PERMITS FOR YOU AND WILL DZONGU

PROVIDE ALL LOGISTICS FROM MANGAN, INCLUDING TRANSPORT.

Dzongu Lee Lingdong, dzonguleehomestay.yolasite.com. A comfortable Lepcha family home in traditional style but with modern amenities in the non-attached rooms. Wholesome food is on offer, as is a variety of walks and activities. Hot springs nearby are another plus. Rates include three meals, tea and snacks. ₹₹₹

Mayal Lyang Passingdan, mayallyang.com. A traditional mountain home with simple colourful rooms, shared bathroom and a lush garden. Good home-cooked meals are served with fresh vegetables from the family's fields. Camping, treks and walks can be arranged. Rates are all-inclusive. ₹₹₹₹

Lachung and around The road forks at the grubby town of CHUNGTHANG, 40km north of Mangan – the road to the right climbs rapidly to the group of small settlements of LACHUNG, the “big pass”, a mere fifteen kilometres west of Tibet. Across the river from the main cluster of settlement, Lachung Monastery is a two-storey Tibetan-style gompa belonging to the Nyingmapa sect, and worth visiting especially for its wonderful murals.

As the road north ascends past yak pastures, it enters the Shingba Rhododendron Sanctuary, announcing the start of Yumthang (3645m), 25km north of Lachung, with spectacular rock and ice pinnacles towering to 6000m on either side. This beautiful tree-lined valley does not have accommodation but boasts somewhat neglected hot sulphur springs. A pleasant purpose-made walking trail leads 10km along the valley floor, back to the sanctuary gates – due to the high altitude and problems with acclimatization, descent rather than ascent is recommended. Past Yumthang, the road continues up the valley and emerges on the high plateau land at Yumesamdong or Zero Point (the end of the road), at an altitude of 4770m with a backdrop, weather permitting, of the snowy sentinels along the Tibet border.

Lachen and around The road which forks left from Chungthang leads 26km to LACHEN and a further 36km to THANGU, tantalizingly close to the Tibetan plateau and as far as foreign tourists are allowed to go. This is the route to the sacred Gurudongma Lake, considered blessed by Guru Rinpoche and the source of the River Teesta, set against a spectacular backdrop of icy peaks. A short day-hike (5km each way) from Thangu (no special trekking permit needed) leads to the picturesque Chopta Valley (4400m). There are a couple of homestays in Lachen (contact Rinzing on ☎94745 28499), but note that foreign tourists must be travelling through a registered tour operator and with a guide.

Several interesting high-altitude treks are now open to group tours in this isolated region, including the challenging Lachen to Green Lake trek (4850m; 9 days), which offers great views of Mount Siniolchu (6887m) across the Zemu glacier and the gigantic east face of Kanchenjunga. Permits take anywhere from a month or even two to be issued.

< Back to Sikkim

Shutterstock
KAZIRANGA NATIONAL PARK, ASSAM

The Northeast

Assam

Meghalaya

Arunachal Pradesh

Nagaland

Mizoram

Manipur

Tripura

The Northeast The least explored, most mysterious and arguably the most beautiful region of India, the Northeast, known as the “Seven Sisters”, is connected to the rest of the country by a narrow stretch of land between Bhutan and Bangladesh, and was all but sealed off from the outside world until relatively recently. Arunachal Pradesh shares an extremely sensitive frontier with Chinese-occupied Tibet and, together with Nagaland, Manipur and Mizoram, a 1600km-long border with Myanmar.

Many insurgencies, caused by a vast ethnic diversity, have fractured the region since Independence, with tribal groups pushing for autonomy as well as fighting each other. A huge influx of Bangladeshis in the last decade and the displacement of many indigenous people has created further tension. Though there has been improvement in security in some areas, others remain disturbed with occasional clashes and armed conflict on the fringes.

Permits are required for travel in Arunachal Pradesh, while some other areas, such as the Manipur Hills and Nagaland's eastern fringes, may still experience the occasional unrest. However, tourists are not a target of violence, and the extraordinary diversity of peoples and spectacular landscapes make a visit to the region well worth the effort. One of the world's wettest monsoon belts, the area also boasts an astounding array of flora and fauna, estimated to represent fifty percent of India's entire biodiversity.

Until the 1960s, the region comprised just two states, the North East Frontier Agency – now Arunachal Pradesh – and Assam, but separatist pressures further divided it into the seven states, now officially joined by an eighth: Sikkim. Assam consists of the flat Brahmaputra valley. Its capital, Guwahati, has two of India's most important ancient temples and is the gateway to the region, while an encounter with a one-horned rhino in the magnificent Kaziranga National Park is a highlight of any trip to the Northeast.

The other six states occupy the surrounding hills, and are quite distinct from the rest of India in landscape, climate and peoples. Meghalaya has beautiful lakes and includes the wettest places on earth, Cherrapunjee and Mawsynram. Its capital, Shillong, retains some of the colonial atmosphere from its days as east India's summer capital. Majestic Arunachal Pradesh, one of India's most remote states, is inhabited by a fascinating range of peoples, many of Tibetan origin. In the state's northwestern corner, close to Bhutan, lies the Buddhist monastery of Tawang, in sight of the mountainous border with Tibet, while in the far northeast is the remote wilderness of Namdapha National Park. To the south, the lush mountains of Nagaland are home to fourteen distinctive tribal groups. Mizoram, in the Lushai Hills, is predominantly Christian and has one of the highest literacy rates in India.

After years of insurgency and factionalism, Manipur – perhaps the most fractured of all the Northeast states and unsafe for travel off the beaten track – resurfaced as a rewarding destination and a gateway to Southeast Asia. Even Tripura, with its long history of insurgency, is far more settled today, with rail links and a good road system; that said, you are still advised to exercise caution if travelling in the eastern hills. The people of Manipur are closely related to the neighbouring Burmese population. Tripura, bordered by Bangladesh on three sides (having been cut off from the Bangladeshi plains during the 1947 Partition) is distinctly Bengali to the west, while hill tribes make up the majority in the east.

BEST TIME TO VISIT

Weather conditions are best from November to April, although the high-altitude areas of Arunachal, Meghalaya and Nagaland are extremely cold by December, and winter fog can disrupt road journeys. It rains heavily from May to the end of September, particularly in Meghalaya, but travel during this period has its own charm. In major cities such as Guwahati, Tezpur and Shillong, accommodation rates are not affected by the low season, but Kaziranga, Manas and the remote parts of Arunachal, Nagaland and Assam do offer off-season discounts.

Shutterstock
LIVING ROOT BRIDGES AT MEGHALAYA

Highlights

① Kaziranga National Park, Assam Spot the rare one-horned rhino on a dawn jeep safari deep into the jungle where, with luck, you can see wild elephant or even tigers.

② Living root bridges, Meghalaya In India's wettest state, entwined roots of the rubber tree form magnificent natural bridges, some centuries old, across waterways.

③ Tawang Monastery, Arunachal Pradesh In a remote corner that was once Tibet, the largest Buddhist monastery in India maintains an ancient, unbroken tradition. The quiet chapel commemorating the sixth Dalai Lama lies close by.

④ Namdapha National Park, Arunachal Pradesh A beautiful, remote wildlife park, bordering Burma, with habitat from steamy foothills up to the snow line, and home to a huge variety of wildlife including the Hoolock gibbon and elusive big cats.

⑤ Hornbill Festival, Nagaland An unmissable occasion and the highlight of the Northeast calendar, bringing together all the Naga tribes in their finery with music, dance and martial art displays.

⑥ Dzüikou Valley, Nagaland Trek to a remote plateau of rolling green hills that is carpeted with flowers in the wet season.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

THE NORTHEAST

HIGHLIGHTS

- 1 Kaziranga National Park, Assam
- 2 Living root bridges, Meghalaya
- 3 Tawang Monastery, Arunachal Pradesh
- 4 Namdapha National Park, Arunachal Pradesh
- 5 Hornbill Festival, Nagaland
- 6 Dzukou Valley, Nagaland

FESTIVALS IN THE NORTHEAST RELIGIOUS FESTIVALS YAOSHANG (MARCH). MANIPUR'S VERSION OF HOLI IS CELEBRATED WITH THE THABAL CHONGBA FOLK DANCE.

Aoling Monyu (April). Konyak festival in the Mon region of Nagaland marking the arrival of spring.

Bihu (mid-April). The major festival of Assam, celebrated with singing, dancing and feasts in the villages, to mark the New Year and the onset of spring.

Chapchar Kut (March). In spring before the new sowing season begins, this is the biggest harvest festival in Mizoram.

Moatsu (May). Celebrated by the Ao tribe in Nagaland after the sowing season.

Dree (July). The Apatanis of Ziro in Arunachal observe this agrarian festival in which animal sacrifices are common.

Nongkrem (first week Nov). In Meghalaya, the Khasi tribe give thanks for the harvest over five days. Young men and women in traditional attire and heavy ornaments perform songs and dances at Smit, near Shillong.

Raas Leela (Nov). For three days, Majuli Island comes alive with masked performances to celebrate the life of Lord Krishna.

Torgya (Nov/Dec/Jan) and Losar (Tibetan New Year; Feb). Arunachal Pradesh festival of the Monpa people in Bomdila and Tawang, with colourful chaam (masked dances) and religious ceremonies.

MUSIC AND CULTURAL FESTIVALS ZIRO FESTIVAL OF MUSIC (SEPT). FOUR-DAY CENTRAL ARUNACHAL
OUTDOOR MUSIC FESTIVAL WITH APONG (RICE BEER) AND INDIE MUSIC, CAMPING UNDER THE STARS IN THE ZIRO VALLEY (@ZIROFESTIVAL.COM).

Tawang Festival (end of Oct). Three days of tribal performances, masked dances and Buddhist rituals to promote Arunachal's prominent hill station.

NH7 Weekender (Oct/Nov). This popular multiday urban music festival held its first Shillong edition in 2015 and is now slated to be an annual feature. Indian global artists spanning rock, funk, electro and more perform on various stages (www.nh7.in/weekender).

Sangai Festival (21-30 November). Held annually in several locations in Imphal and Moirang, this festival celebrates the rebirth of Manipur with a smorgasbord of dance, sport, polo and an international expo (www.sangaifestival.gov.in).

Hornbill Festival (first week Dec). Held annually in Nagaland at the Naga Heritage Village in Kisama, this is among the Northeast's largest occasion, showcasing the dance, music, food, games and intriguing culture of different local tribes (www.hornbillfestival.com).

Assam

Assam is dominated by the mighty River Brahmaputra, and its vast, lush valley sandwiched between the Himalayan foothills to the north and the Meghalayan hills and plateau to the south. An attractive state carpeted by plantations, forests and paddy fields, Assam is one of India's few oil regions, and produces around sixty percent of the nation's tea. However, the industry is not as profitable as it once was, and for the marginalized baganiyas (tea workers), mainly adivasis – tribal people brought in from central India by the British to work as indentured labourers on the plantations – depressingly little has changed since colonial times.

ACCESS, PERMITS AND TOUR OPERATORS THE INDIAN GOVERNMENT IS CURRENTLY INVESTING TO BOOST BOTH LOCAL AND INTERNATIONAL TOURISM TO THE REGION, AND REGULATIONS HAVE BECOME QUITE RELAXED. HOWEVER, CHECK THE LATEST INFORMATION WITH THE INDIAN EMBASSY, CONSULATE, TOURIST OFFICE OR VISA

AGENCY BEFORE TRAVELLING. IT IS BEST TO GET PERMITS WHILE IN INDIA THROUGH A TOUR OPERATOR (SEE BELOW) OR BY YOURSELF IN GUWAHATI.

PERMITS

Currently Arunachal Pradesh is the only one of the seven states that requires foreign visitors to obtain Restricted or Protected Area Permits (maximum of thirty days) prior to entry. Parties should theoretically consist of a minimum of two, accompanied by a travel agent, though in practice you can get away with saying the second person was “delayed”. Allow up to five working days to obtain the permit. Mizoram and Manipur currently only require registration on arrival at the entry point at the border. Indian nationals do require Inner Line Permits for Nagaland if travelling beyond Dimapur (ilp.nagaland.gov.in), Mizoram (mizoram.nic.in/more/ilp.htm) and Arunachal Pradesh prior to entry. Those Indians travelling to Mizoram by road will also need an ILP, but for those arriving by air, permits are issued on arrival. ILPs for Arunachal can be obtained online at arunachalilp.com.

Make several photocopies of your passport and permits while travelling through the region. To obtain Inner Line Permits, Indian citizens should apply with two passport photographs to representatives of the state governments concerned. Applications should only take a day to process, and can be extended for up to six months in the relevant state capital. Passes are valid for the full period they are allocated for, no matter how many times you enter and exit a state.

RECOMMENDED TOUR OPERATORS EXPLORE NAGALAND MAIN RD, MIDLAND, KOHIMA, NAGALAND EXPLORENAGALAND.COM. WELL-ORGANIZED TOUR OPERATOR WHOSE SERVICES RANGE FROM ARRANGING LOCAL GUIDES TO ENTIRE ITINERARIES.

Greener Pastures First Choice, H. S Road, Dibrugarh thegreenerpastures.com. Experienced tour operator with fixed and tailor-made eco-friendly tours that focus on wildlife, tribes, Buddhism and trekking.

The Holiday Scout Syndicate Press Building, Kakaling Road, Bomdila theholidayscout.com. Arunachal-based tour operator organising a range of excellent customised tours, from rural homestays to photography tours and women-only adventures.

Himalayan Holidays Bomdila himalayan-holidays.net. They focus on western Arunachal and Tawang but have a good network throughout the Northeast and offer a number of treks.

Jungle Travels India GNB Rd, Silpukhuri, Guwahati, Assam jungletravelsindia.com. Offering wildlife and tailor-made tours, including luxury river cruises through its sister outfit, Assam Bengal Navigation.

Purvi Discovery Jalannagar, Dibrugarh, Assam purvidiscovery.com. Upmarket operator that specializes in tea tours as well as wildlife, birding, golf, riding and tribal culture.

Social divisions and ethnic strife have lead to long-term instability in the state. The separatist group United Liberation Front of Asom (ULFA) began an armed struggle for independence in 1985, and in the early 1990s Assamese nationalism sparked opposition from Bodos, Cachars and other ethnic minorities. Bangladeshi migration into Assam has been a bone of contention for indigenous Assamese, resulting in the deadly clashes of 2012 between migrant Bangladeshis and Bodos that left several dead in the western districts of the state. Despite the seemingly insurmountable ethnic tensions, occasional violence reported in the press, bandhs and political infighting, the situation has vastly improved, as has the infrastructure. More and more visitors are enjoying the delights of the local wildlife and tea plantations, as tourists are rarely embroiled in the strife that underlies the social fabric of Assam.

Guwahati

The state capital, GUWAHATI (or Gauhati), lies on the banks of the mighty Brahmaputra. Although some of the old town still retains its character, Guwahati is a sprawling city of shopping malls and bazaars. As the main gateway to the region, you may well need to stay here briefly. Guwahati's main attractions are the Kamakhya, Navagraha and Umananda temples, while northwest of the city are the silk village of Sualkuchi, the pilgrimage site of Hajo and Manas National Park.

As the primary hub for the region's lucrative tea industry, Guwahati's Assam Tea Auction Centre at Dispur is the largest trade centre in the world for the CTC (crush, tear and curl) tea so characteristic of Assam. Elsewhere, the bustling markets of Paltan Bazaar, Pan Bazaar and Fancy Bazaar, Guwahati's main shopping areas, are bunched in the centre on either side of the railway, with the older residential areas north of the tracks spread along the riverside. Assamese silk, wooden rhinos and other crafts are sold at several shops on GNB Road.

Kamakhya maintains a strong tradition of bali (animal sacrifice) which usually takes place around noon.

Navagraha

Navaraha Rd, 3km northeast of the centre / Paltan Bazaar • www.navagrahatemple.com • Daily 6am–12.30pm & 4pm–9pm • Free On a wooded hill popular with monkeys, the single-domed Navagraha temple – the “temple of the nine planets”, an ancient seat of astrology and astronomy – has wonderful acoustics, especially in the mornings when priests chant prayers for clients in search of solace. Housed in a single red dome, the central lingam is encircled by a further eight representing the planets. Outside the temple, fortune-tellers (jyotish) will read your future.

Umananda

Ferries leave regularly from Kachari and Umananda Ghat (10min each way; return) • Daily 9.30am–5.30pm The Shiva temple of Umananda stands on Peacock Island in the middle of the Brahmaputra. Its location atop a steep flight of steps is more dramatic than the temple itself, but you may get to see some rare golden langur monkeys.

WARNINGS AND TRAVEL ADVICE WARNINGS
SPORADIC VIOLENCE DOES PLAGUE ASSAM. IN 2014,
A CURFEW WAS IMPOSED AFTER VIOLENT CLASHES BETWEEN A BODO FACTION AND ADIVASI TRIBES
AROUND THE KOKRAJAR, SONTIPUR AND CHIRANG
DISTRICTS. THE REGION IS PRONE TO STRIKES
KNOWN AS BANDHS (LOCKOUTS) WHEN SHOPS, RESTAURANTS AND PUBLIC TRANSPORT SHUT DOWN – CHECK THE NEWS AND ASK TRAVEL
AGENCIES IN THE NORTHEAST FOR ADVICE
BEFORE AND WHILE TRAVELLING. AVOID DRIVING
ANY DISTANCE AT NIGHT, EVEN THROUGH ASSAM, DUE TO THE THREAT OF BANDITRY OFTEN IN THE GUISE OF INSURGENCY.

TRAVEL ADVICE ALTHOUGH ROADS IN THE ASSAM VALLEY ARE WELL-MAINTAINED ALONG THE BRAHMAPUTRA UP TO PASIGHAT AND ROING, AND THERE IS A GOOD STRETCH FROM TEZPUR TO TAWANG, ELSEWHERE – ESPECIALLY IN THE HILLS OF NAGALAND

AND THE INTERIOR OF ARUNACHAL PRADESH – ROADS ARE GENERALLY IN A TERRIBLE STATE AND JOURNEYS CAN PROVE TEDIOUS AND PAINFULLY SLOW. IF ARRANGING CAR RENTAL, ENSURE YOU RENT A LARGE VEHICLE SUCH AS A SUMO OR BOLERO FOR THE MOUNTAINS OF ARUNACHAL PRADESH.

Trains along the valley from Guwahati to Upper Assam and Dimapur are reasonable, and there is a rail-link to Naharlagun in central Arunachal. At the time of research, the railway was being extended from Dibrugarh to Pasighat, and should be operational by the time you read this.

Flights are the most convenient mode of travel, with major airports at Guwahati, Agartala (Tripura), Aizawl (Mizoram), Dibrugarh, Silchar, Dimapur and Imphal.

Some of the ferries along the Brahmaputra are useful, especially those connecting Majuli Island with the north and south shores of the Brahmaputra, while upmarket cruises provide a languid and leisurely way of discovering the river and surrounding areas (see below).

Money-changing facilities most towns these days have banks and ATMs, but you should travel with enough cash if you plan of striking off in the countryside.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE GUWAHATI
GUWAHATI'S LOK-PRIYA GOPINATH BORDOLOI AIRPORT IS 20KM SOUTHWEST OF THE CITY CENTRE. A TAXI TO THE CENTRE TAKES (45MIN) – BOOK THROUGH THE PREPAID BOOTH IN THE ARRIVALS HALL. ASTC'S A/C AIRPORT BUS (DAILY 6.15AM–3.30PM) CONNECTS WITH FLIGHTS AND RUNS TO VARIOUS POINTS IN TOWN; CHECK THE LATEST SCHEDULES ONLINE (🌐ASTC.ASSAM.GOV.IN).

Destinations Agartala (daily; 50min); Aizawl (daily; 65min); Bagdogra (daily; 1hr); Delhi (daily; 2h50min); Dibrugarh (daily; 55min); Imphal (daily; 55min); Jorhat (2 weekly; 50min); Kolkata (daily; 1hr 25min); Lilabari (4 weekly; 1hr); Mumbai (daily; 3hr 25min); Silchar (daily; 50min).

By train The main station is in the city centre; trains travelling west also stop at Kamakhya Junction, 8km west. The fastest connections are listed below.

Destinations Delhi (Rajdhani Express; daily; 27hr 10min); Dibrugarh (Kamrup Express; daily 3.50pm; 14hr 10min); Dimapur (Jan Shatabdi Express; 6.30am Mon–Sat; 4hr 10min); Jorhat (Jan Shatabdi Express; 6.30am Mon–Sat; 6hr 50min); Kolkata (Howrah; Kamrup Express; daily 7.45am; 22hr); Lumding (Jan Shatabdi Express; 6.30am Mon–Sat; 3hr).

By bus The Interstate Bus Terminus (ISBT) is inconveniently located on NH-37, 9km east of town. Private and public buses leave from here to destinations throughout the Northeast. You can book tickets and check schedules online (www.astcbus.in). A handful of private bus companies are based in hectic and chaotic Paltan Bazaar to the south of the station.

Destinations Bomdila (daily 6am; 9hr); Dimapur (daily; 11hr); Imphal (daily; 12–15hr); Itanagar (daily; 10–11hr); Kaziranga (hourly; 5hr); Siliguri (5–7 daily; 12hr); Tezpur (1–2 hourly; 4–5hr).

By taxi Shared taxis and Sumos to Shillong (3hr 30min) and other destinations depart when full from the old bus stand, opposite Hotel Tibet in Paltan Bazaar.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST OFFICE ASSAM

TOURISM IS ON STATION RD NEXT TO THE TOURIST LODGE (MON–SAT, CLOSED 2ND & 4TH SAT OF THE MONTH: MARCH–OCT 10AM–5PM, www.assamtourism.gov.in). THE STATE'S COMMERCIAL WING, ATDC (4TH FLOOR, ASOM PARYATAN BHAVAN, AK AZAD RD, PALTAN BAZAAR; www.assamtourisonline.com), ALONG WITH THEIR RED RIVER TRAVEL SERVICES DOWNSTAIRS, OFFERS A RANGE OF PRACTICAL SERVICES. NEXT DOOR, THE INDIA TOURISM OFFICE (MON–FRI 9.30AM–5PM; ☎0361 273 7554) PROVIDES INFORMATION ON THE NORTHEAST AND GENERAL TOURISM.

Tours and travel Nature-Hunt, first floor, 96 Barthakur Mill Rd, Ulubari (www.naturehunts.com), arranges wildlife and adventure tours as well as luxury tented accommodation in Kaziranga. Greener Pastures (www.thegreenerpastures.com) offers a range of tours off the beaten track, including food tours in Guwahati and wildlife tours at Manas and Kaziranga. Network Travels, Paltan Bazaar (📞networktravels.com), arranges tours, permits and bus and plane tickets.

Cruises For those with time (and money), the Assam Bengal Navigation Company runs cruises on the Brahmaputra; book direct (📞assambengalnavigation.com), or through Jungle Travels India.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Baruah Bhavan 40 MC Rd, Uzan Bazaar 📞baruahbhavan.com. A comfortable family home close to the river, converted into a luxurious guesthouse with five twin rooms and one double; each room has its own theme. They serve good home-cooked food, and there's a garden and roof terrace, the latter very pleasant in the evenings. ₹₹

Dynasty SS Rd, Fancy Bazaar, Lakhtokia 📞dynastyhotel.in. Expectations are raised by the imposing palm-shaded entrance, water feature and opulent lobby, though not quite met by the smart but overpriced rooms. Of the hotel's four restaurants and bars, Tandoor is the best and the Roof Top barbecue is a good spot to hang out in the evenings. There's a gym and spa. It's bang in the middle of the bazaar, so be prepared for some noise. ₹₹₹

★Prabhakar Homestay House 2, Bylane 2, K. P. Barua Road, Chandmari 📞0361 2650053, 📞prabhakarhomestay.com. A luxurious homestay with five immaculate rooms in the charming villa of Shiela and Mahesh Bora. She's a scholar and daughter of Assam's former Chief Conservator of Forests, while he, a mining engineer, now makes paper from rhino and elephant dung. Clever conversations make guests feel at home, helped by delicious home-made dinners (₹₹). Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Sundarban Guest House Just off Buddha Hall, ME Rd, Paltan Bazaar 📞0361 273 0722, 📞sundarbanguesthouse.com. At the end of a lane off a strip full of small hotels, this popular and friendly place, by a canal, is the pick of the budget lodges with character-less but good-value basic rooms with TVs. The corridors are brightened up with houseplants, framed photos and religious posters. ₹

EATING

MAP

Gam's Delicacy GS Rd, 2km south of the centre 📞82560 20001. Ignore the unprepossessing location beneath an overpass – Gam's Delicacy is the place to come for authentic regional cuisine. Huge portions of duck, pigeon, pork, chicken and freshwater fish are served with banana flowers, sesame seeds and bamboo shoots. Daily 10am–10pm.

Khorikaa GS Rd, opposite Bora Service Petrol Pump 🌐khorikaa.co.in. Legendary Assamese thali restaurant run by celebrated chef Atul Lahkar. Located upstairs, with a canteen-like atmosphere, it gets packed at lunch and is a must for anyone keen to sample authentic local cuisine. Try the duck with bamboo shoots. Daily 11am–10.30pm. ₹

Naga Kitchen GS Rd, opposite Pantaloons (7km southeast of the centre) and RG Baruah Rd, opposite Doordarshan (4km east of the centre) 🌐facebook.com/pages/Naga-Kitchen/137201500299811. Pleasant, relaxed and trendy restaurant with two branches in the city, serving Chinese, seafood and, of course, Naga cuisine. Try their Naga speciality of smoked pork with bamboo shoots and akhuni. Daily noon–10.30pm. ₹–₹₹

★Paradise Maniram Dewan Rd, Krishna Nagar, Silphukuri 🌐facebook.com/paradiseguwahati. Consistently dishing up hearty thalis and Assamese specialties, this simple joint is a popular choice to taste some authentic, less spicy, local food. Punjabi and other North Indian dishes are also available. Daily 11am–11pm. ₹₹

Hajo and Sualkuchi HAJO, 38km northeast of Guwahati, is a pilgrimage site for Hindus, Buddhists and Muslims, with a mix of religious temples, including the Hindu Hayagriba-Madhava Mandir. Muslims believe visiting the Poa Mecca Mosque here four times is equivalent to a pilgrimage to Mecca. Nearby, the town of SUALKUCHI is renowned for its golden muga silk, named after the rich amber colour of the muga cocoon, exclusive to Assam.

Manas National Park Oct–March 9am–5pm • Charge; vehicle charge, camera charge, video camera charge • Contact tourist office at Guwahati for info; 2hr jeep safaris (₹₹₹ for 6 people) can be arranged at the park's headquarters Manas National Park, 80km west of Guwahati on the border with Bhutan, has been on UNESCO's list of endangered World Heritage Sites since 1992. Troubled by insurgency and poachers and plagued by development, the park's population of large mammals had sadly declined – sightings of tigers and elephants are now relatively rare. However, several rhinos have been relocated successfully from Kaziranga and a recent photographic audit between India and Bhutan counted fourteen tigers. Consisting of two ranges, Bansbari and Koklabari, Manas is well worth visiting for its varied natural beauty, with buffalo and rhino grazing on expansive stretches of sand and grass, and sal forests flanking the Manas River.

FOOD AND DRINK MEAT-BASED DISHES, SMOKED, DRIED AND PUNGENT FLAVOURS, A LIBERAL USE OF CHILLI AND THE DISTINCT LACK OF TYPICAL INDIAN MASALA DEFINES CUISINE IN THE NORTHEAST. THE FOOD IS MOSTLY MILD, OWING TO THE LACK OF SPICES THAT GROW IN THE REGION, ASIDE FROM SOME LOCAL HERBS. RICE IS A STAPLE AND THE TIBETAN MOMOS AND THUKPA ARE UBIQUITOUS. FOR DRINKS, SALTY YAK-BUTTER TEA AND LOCAL BREWS (KNOWN BY VARIOUS NAMES INCLUDING RAKSI, CHANG AND APONG) MADE OF MILLET, MAIZE OR RICE ARE RECOMMENDED TO KEEP OFF THE CHILL.

In Assam, try the xaag (leaf vegetables), fish tenga (a souring agent), pitika (a pungent vegetable mash) and khori (meat on a skewer).

Meghalaya tends to go heavy on the pork, with dishes such as doh neiong (pork with black sesame seeds) and the staple jadoh (rice cooked in meat stock with pork). Meghalayan cooking also features liberal use of seasonal mustard leaves and mushrooms.

At local markets in Arunachal you'll find strings of churpi (fermented rock-hard yak's cheese), lai patta (mustard spinach) and dried river fish. Churpa, popular in Arunachal kitchens, is a pungent cheese stew with meat and vegetables.

Naga cuisine consists of smoked, dried meats, bamboo shoot, anishi (dry yam leaves) and akhuni (fermented soy bean); wild herbs are used as flavouring agents. The star, of course, is the bhut jolokia or the king chilli, among the hottest in the world.

Thalis are common in Manipur, with side dishes such as singju (raw papaya and chickpea salad) and iromba (fish and veg chutney) accompanying rice and fish or meat curries.

Mizo cuisine is fairly bland, consisting of forest vegetables and smoked meats; bai (vegetable stew with dry soy bean) is a staple.

Fish is abundant in Tripura, and berma, a pungent fermented fish paste, is used as flavouring.

GETTING AN ARUNACHAL PRADESH PERMIT IN GUWAHATI REGARDLESS OF WHAT MOST TOUR OPERATORS WILL TELL YOU, OFTEN INFLATING THE PRICE, GUWAHATI IS A VERY EASY PLACE TO GET AN ARUNACHAL PRADESH RESTRICTED AREA PERMIT BY YOURSELF. THE DEPUTY RESIDENT COMMISSIONER OFFICE (ITANAGAR.NIC.IN/SERVICE/INNER-LINE-PERMITILP) IS LOCATED ON A SIDE STREET OF G.S. ROAD, ABOUT 30 MINUTES BY BUS SOUTH OF THE TRAIN STATION AND PALTAN BAZAAR, AND NOT FAR FROM NAGA KITCHEN. GET OFF AT THE MANASHA MANDIR STOP AND PROCEED DOWN A TURNOFF TO THE RIGHT, ACROSS FROM THE HDFC BANK. THE OFFICE IS OPEN MON TO FRI 10AM–5PM BUT YOU

CAN APPLY FOR A PERMIT UP TO 2PM. YOU WILL NEED A COPY OF YOUR PASSPORT, INDIAN VISA AND ENTRY STAMP, ONE FILLED-IN APPLICATION FORM (AVAILABLE AT THE OFFICE) AND ₹3,450 IN CASH. PERMITS ARE USUALLY PREPARED WITHIN THREE WORKING DAYS – AND OFTEN DELIVERED TO YOUR ACCOMMODATION BY THE OVERZEALOUS AND COURTEOUS COMMISSIONER – BUT THEY CAN ALSO BE SENT TO YOUR E-MAIL AS YOU TRAVEL. PRINT AND MAKE SEVERAL PHOTOCOPIES FOR THE ENTRY CHECKPOINTS AND THE FEW HOTELS WHICH SOMETIMES REQUIRE THEM FOR REGISTRATION.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN MANAS NATIONAL PARK AND BUS THE MAIN TOWN, SOMEWHAT CONFUSINGLY CALLED BARPETA ROAD, IS 40KM FROM THE PARK AND HAS GOOD TRAIN (DAILY; 3–4HR) AND ROAD (MULTIPLE DAILY; 4–5HR) LINKS TO GUWAHATI.

By taxi Taxis are available at the station in Barpeta Road to take you up to the park.

ACCOMMODATION MANAS HAS A HANDFUL OF LODGES INCLUDING AT MATHANGURI – THE AREA OF THE PARK ON THE BANKS OF THE MANAS RIVER AND THE LAST POINT UP TO WHICH YOU CAN TAKE PERSONAL VEHICLES – AND SOME IN BARPETA ROAD.

Bansbari Lodge  facebook.com/pages/The-Bansbari-Lodge/1133659846768412. The most comfortable of Manas's places to stay and conveniently close to the park gates, Bansbari Lodge offers an all-inclusive package covering meals, two daily jeep safaris, full board, a guide and park entry fees. They can arrange transport to Guwahati airport or train station. Foreign visitors pay a premium; Indians pay around a third. ₹₹₹₹

Tezpur

TEZPUR, 174km northeast of Guwahati, is a busy administrative and commercial hub on the north bank of the Brahmaputra. It is a convenient and sometimes essential stop en route to Arunachal Pradesh and provides good road links to Kaziranga National Park (83km) on the south bank across the 3km long Kolia Bhomora Bridge. Eco-camp Ugroshore, set on an empty river island facing Ganesh Ghat, is a new reason to linger longer.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS STATE BUSES TEZPUR GO FROM TEZPUR'S ASTC BUS STAND IS ON JENKINS RD. AN ALTERNATIVE TRANSPORT HUB FOR THOSE PASSING THROUGH IS MISSION CHARALI 4KM TO THE NORTH. MOST TRANSPORT TO GUWAHATI AND BHALUKPONG IN WEST ARUNACHAL STOPS HERE.

Destinations Guwahati (1–2 hourly; 4–5hr); Jorhat (hourly; 4hr); Itanagar (1–2 daily; 5hr); Kaziranga (hourly; 2hr).

By Sumo/shared taxi Jenkins Rd is lined with Sumo stands, with daily services to the destinations below. If heading to Tawang in West Arunachal, a break at Bomdila or Dirang is recommended; shared taxis also travel to Itanagar (8–10hr). Travel early in the day.

Destinations Bomdila (6am; 5hr); Dirang (6.30am; 6hr); Tawang (10hr).

Tourist information The tourist office (daily except Sun and 2nd & 4th Sat of month 10am–5pm; www.assamtourisonline.com) is in the Prashanti Tourist Lodge (see below) on Jenkins Rd.

ACCOMMODATION KF MISSION CHARALI, 4KM NORTH OF THE BUS STATION www.kfhoteles.com. NEXT TO THE BUSY AND CONVENIENT CROSSROADS, KF IS A WELCOME SURPRISE. IMMACULATE, CONTEMPORARY ROOMS WITH SLICK BATHROOMS, MODERN ART, FLATS SCREEN TVS AND TEA/COFFEE-MAKING FACILITIES MAKE THIS “BOUTIQUE” HOTEL ONE OF ASSAM’S MOST STYLISH. THERE IS A BRIGHT PATISSERIE, DEPARTMENT STORE AND AN ICE-CREAM PARLOUR ON THE GROUND FLOOR, AN A/C MULTICUISINE

RESTAURANT UPSTAIRS (MEALS ₹₹) AND A DIMLY LIT, SMART BAR. ₹₹₹

★Ugroshore 500m south from the ASTC bus stand  facebook.com/ugro.shore. Experience life on a blissful, inhabited riverine island facing Tezpur's main ghat at this eclectic eco-campsite featuring wooden chalets (₹₹₹) and tents (₹ if bringing your own). Prices include boat transfers and activities like morning trekking, water sports, evening river dolphin spotting, yoga classes, and a bonfire. Meals are about ₹₹ for two. They also offer boat transfers to Kaziranga National Park (₹₹ per person). ₹₹

★Wild Mahseer Sonitpur, 30km north of Tezpur  wildmahseer.com. These five luxurious colonial-era bungalows based in the peace and quiet of the Addabari Tea Estate are handy for the journey to Tawang and provide an unparalleled homestay experience. Prices include full board and activities including walks through the tea gardens or cycling and hiking in the area. Good discounts available off-season (May–Oct). Cash only. ₹₹₹₹

Kaziranga National Park A World Heritage Site covering 430 square kilometres on the southern bank of the Brahmaputra, Kaziranga National Park, 217km northeast of Guwahati, occupies a vast valley floor against a backdrop of the Karbi Anglong Hills. Its rivulets, shallow lakes and semi-evergreen forested highlands blend into marshes and flood plains covered with tall elephant grass teeming with deer and wild buffalo. However, the big draw is the park's famous yet highly endangered one-horned rhinos, best observed early on a winter's morning. Tiger sightings are relatively rare, despite the park's official claim to have the highest density of tigers of any park in the world.

We recommend you only stick to jeeps, which take you deeper into the forest than elephants, but are far more humane to ride. The abundant birdlife includes egrets, herons, storks, fish eagles, kingfishers and a grey pelican colony.

During the monsoons (June–Sept), the Brahmaputra bursts its banks, flooding the low-lying grasslands and causing animals to move to higher ground within the park. In 2012, monsoon floods ravaged Kaziranga, leading to a huge death toll among the animals, including several rhinos. Traditional animal migration routes have also been choked by overdevelopment around Kaziranga. To compound the extreme pressures on the park, population growth in the region has led to land encroachment and poaching, the latter of which is now endemic. In 2018 poachers killed six rhinos for their horns, in spite of the park’s deployment of surveillance drones. So far, the authorities have proved incapable of protecting the park’s wild inhabitants.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE KAZIRANGA NATIONAL PARK
KAZIRANGA CONSISTS OF FIVE DIRECTIONAL RANGES, WITH THE ADMINISTRATIVE CENTRE AT KOHORA. MAJOR TOWNS NEARBY INCLUDE JORHAT (100KM), WHICH HAS ACCESS TO THE RAILWAY NETWORK, AND MAJULI AND TEZPUR (54KM) – USEFUL IF YOU’RE TRAVELLING TO WEST ARUNACHAL.

By plane Jorhat is the nearest airport (90km; 1hr 30min).

Destinations Guwahati (2 weekly; 55m); Kolkata (5 weekly; 2hr 30min).

By bus State and private buses all stop at Kohora, the main gate, on the NH-37 (AT Rd), while Network Travels serves as the pick-up and drop-off point.

Destinations Dibrugarh (4–6 daily; 6hr); Guwahati (hourly; 5hr); Jorhat (hourly; 1hr 30min); Tezpur (hourly; 2hr).

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION FOR PARK
INFORMATION, VISIT THE TOURIST OFFICE (DAILY 10AM–5PM; ☎03776 262423) IN BONANI LODGE, IN THE TOURIST COMPLEX, KOHORA. THIS IS WHERE YOU BOOK PARK ENTRY AND RIDES; THEY CAN ALSO BOOK TRANSPORT TO AND FROM THE PARK. THE CURRENT TOURIST OFFICER HAS BEEN VERY PROACTIVE IN DEVELOPING TREKKING AND ECOTOURISM IN THE NEARBY KARBI HILLS. CHECK 🌐 KAZIRANGA.ASSAM.GOV.IN FOR MORE INFORMATION.

Opening hours Kaziranga is open from Nov to early April (daylight hours). Avoid visiting on Sundays, when it gets busy with noisy groups.

Park entry and safaris Entrance charge, vehicle charge, camera charge, video camera charge. The park offers jeep safaris (7.30–10am & 1.30–3pm; ₹₹₹ per jeep/6 persons, depending on which of the four park ranges you visit) and although they can be a bit cramped, they allow you to travel deeper into the park. Book safaris at least the day before at the Tourist Complex at Kohora or ask your hotel to arrange. For the latest rates, visit kaziranga.assam.gov.in.

Travel and tours Himalayan Footprints arranges full packages in Kaziranga and also tours and transport throughout the Northeast. Jungle Travels India provides exclusive, upmarket holidays in and around Kaziranga with multiday cruises on the Brahmaputra. Ugroshore organises boat transfers on the Brahmaputra from Tezpur to the park.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING KAZIRANGA HAS A LARGE SELECTION OF PLACES TO STAY WITH NUMEROUS “RESORTS” CROPPING UP SOUTH OF THE MAIN HIGHWAY. ACCOMMODATION IS NOW REACHING SATURATION POINT; AN ALTERNATIVE IS TO SEEK OUT ONE OF SEVERAL HOMESTAYS AROUND BOGORIJURI. THERE IS A SELECTION OF RESTAURANTS ALONG THE HIGHWAY BUT MOST OF THE LODGES AND RESORTS HAVE THEIR OWN CATERING. IF YOU GET A CHANCE, TRY LOCAL KARBI CUISINE WHICH CONSISTS OF SIMPLE, OIL-FREE MEALS COOKED IN BAMBOO CONTAINERS.

Diphlu River Lodge Kuthuri diphfluriverlodge.com. Slightly difficult to locate but beautifully designed, this place has a rustic look and luxurious feel, with cottages raised up on stilts. There's a high level of service and they offer well-organized tours, safaris and boat rides (booked through the luxury brand of Assam Bengal Navigation). Rates halve for Indians, and are a fraction of the price during the monsoon (May–Oct). The peak-time price includes safaris, park entry and camera fees, transfers, all meals and cultural activities. ₹₹₹₹

Nature-Hunt Eco Camp Kohora naturehunttours.com. A young and enthusiastic team run this small resort tucked into a corner of a tea-garden nursery, where accommodation is in the form of rustic cottages and luxury tents with adjacent bathrooms. There are bonfires in the evenings, a restaurant serving local cuisine and a range of tours and safaris on offer. ₹₹

Tourist Complex Kohora kazirangatourism.in/kaziranga-hotels/aranya-tourist-lodge.php. There are four state-run lodges in this complex. Aranya (₹₹) is the most comfortable, offering a range of cottages with clean rooms, some with balconies, plus they have a decent restaurant and bar. Bonani (₹₹) has a vaguely colonial feel, with large, worn rooms (some with a/c) and – unsettlingly – several animal skulls dotted around. Bonoshree (₹) has tatty but acceptable doubles, and Jonaki Kareng (70867 32356; ₹₹₹), in the same complex but not government run, has large pleasant doubles, good service and is well located near the main entrance gate. ₹

Pobitora Wildlife Sanctuary 40km east of Guwahati • Daily 7am–4pm • Charge, jeep charge, camera charge • Hire a private vehicle from Guwahati for around ₹₹₹/day; local buses from Jagiroad, the nearest railhead, stop nearby The Pobitora Wildlife Sanctuary is located in the flood plains of the Brahmaputra. Though much smaller than Kaziranga, at just 39 square kilometres, the park has a high density of rhinos and possibilities of multiple sightings. The best time to visit is between November to February, and a visit can be done as a day-trip from Guwahati.

Upper Assam

Around 310km northeast upriver from Guwahati, Jorhat has an airport and road connections to Kaziranga, Nagaland, Guwahati, Kolkata and northern Arunachal Pradesh. The city is noteworthy as a transport hub alone – you will almost certainly have to wade through Jorhat at some point on a trip to the Northeast.

The unique Vaishnavite culture of Majuli, reputedly the world's largest river island, and Sibsagar, former capital of the Ahoms, are also close by. Further north, Dibrugarh is full of tea plantations to explore and is the gateway to northern Nagaland and eastern Arunachal Pradesh. There is good birdwatching at Dibru-Saikhowa National Park, while Digboi has an interesting oil museum and war memorial.

Majuli

Within striking distance of Jorhat, MAJULI is often described as one of the largest inhabited river islands in the world, but erosion in recent years is threatening its claim and, indeed in the long run, its future. Regardless of its precise status, Majuli is a fascinating place and a true gem of the Northeast, largely because of its unique Vaishnavite satras (Hindu monasteries), though it is also a haven for birdwatchers.

There are 22 satras – institutions that contain elements of a temple, monastery, school and centre for the arts – on Majuli: each consists of a prayer hall (namghar), surrounded by living quarters for devotees, and ghats for bathing. Music, song and dance are essential elements of the devotional life of the satras, and you may be lucky enough to catch one of the performances which are sometimes arranged for large parties of visitors. The Natun Samaguri Satra is particularly famous for its long tradition of Assamese mask-making. Since the mid-17th century, this satra produced the headgear used in the colourful Raas Leela festival (held for three days in mid-November) and for Bhaona, a style of Assamese street theatre.

Majuli is also home to the Mising, Assam's only riverine tribal community, who still live in traditional bamboo stilt houses.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY FERRY FERRIES FOR MAJULI'S KAMALABARI GHAT LEAVE FROM NIMATIGHAT
(8.30AM, 9.30AM, 10.30AM, 1PM, 2PM, 3PM; 2HR 30MIN, ACCESSIBLE BY BUS OR TAXI (40MIN) AND SHARED TAXI
(1HR) FROM JORHAT. AS THE FERRY TIMINGS ONLY GIVE YOU A FEW HOURS ON THE ISLAND, IT IS INADVISABLE TO VISIT ON A DAY-TRIP. YOU'LL GET MORE OUT OF THE EXPERIENCE IF YOU STAY OVERNIGHT, WITH RETURN
FERRIES TO NIMATIGHAT RUNNING AT 7AM, 7.30AM, 8.30AM, 10.30AM, 12.30PM, 1.30PM, 3PM. A WORD OF WARNING: THE FERRIES CAN GET UNCOMFORTABLY CROWDED, WITH PEOPLE SITTING ON THE CORRUGATED ROOF AND VEHICLES LOADED ON THE BACK, AND THE SINGLE CABIN

CAN FEEL LOW IN THE WATER. IT IS ALSO POSSIBLE TO TRAVEL NORTH FROM MAJULI, WITH TWO MORNING FERRIES FROM LUHITGHAT, 3KM NORTH OF GARAMUR; THEY ARRIVE AT KHABALUGHAT ON THE NORTH BANK, FROM WHERE THERE ARE BUSES TO NORTH LAKHIMPUR, AND FROM THERE, BUSES ON TO ITANAGAR OR TEZPUR, SUMOS TO ZIRO, AND A TRAIN TO GUWAHATI.

By train The closest railhead to Jorhat is Mariani junction, from where buses, taxis and shared taxi ply the 30min route to Jorhat.

Guides Rahul Gam (☎94765 27767) is a reliable tour guide for the area. Jyoti Narayan Sarma of Majuli Tourism, NLK Rd, Garamur (☎94357 97382, 🌐majulitourism.com), is the most organized and commercial of Majuli's tour operators and can coordinate tours beyond the island.

ACCOMMODATION LA MAISON DE ANANDA GOROMUR, BEHIND THE POST OFFICE 🌐

FACEBOOK.COM/LAMAISONDEANANDA. ONE OF MAJULI'S OLDEST TRAVELLER HAUNTS OFFERS RELAXED AND HOMELY BAMBOO COTTAGES, WITH TASTEFULLY DECORATED VERANDAHS FILLED WITH ASSAMESE TERRACOTTAS AND CUSHIONS, AND LUXURY CONCRETE EN SUITE ROOMS WITH A BOUTIQUE FEEL. BREAKFAST IS ₹ EXTRA. ₹

Ygradasill Bamboo Cottage Bamungaon 🌐facebook.com/Bedamajuli. This series of bamboo cottages on stilts, built around a pond and surrounded by Majuli's countryside, are the loving work of Beda, an amiable local who helps the community find work placements through his NGO Amar Majuli. The cottages, albeit rustic, are charming and have en suite bathrooms with hot showers. There's a restaurant and breakfast is included. ₹₹

Meghalaya

Meghalaya, one of India's smallest states, occupies the plateau and rolling hills between Assam and Bangladesh. Its people are predominantly Christian, belonging to three main ethnic groups, the Garos, Jaintias and the matriarchal Khasis – throughout these hills, women do most of the work and the household management. The state has a high literacy rate, and children are taught in English. Much of Meghalaya (“the land of the rainclouds”) is covered with lush forests, rich in orchids; these “blue hills” bear the brunt of the Bay of Bengal’s monsoon-laden winds and are among the wettest places on earth. Stupendous waterfalls are a standard feature of the state, many of them on the outskirts of the capital, Shillong; however, the most dramatic falls plummet from the plateau to the south, around Cherrapunjee.

Meghalaya’s hills rise to almost 2000m, making for a pleasantly cool year-round climate. The Jaintia Hills offer good walking and caving, and the state is laced with historical sites such as Nartiang near Jowai, which has an impressive collection of monoliths. Elsewhere, the sacred forests, crucibles of biodiversity to be found throughout the Khasi Hills, remain jealously protected. To the south of Shillong, walks through pristine forests and across some of the most intriguing features of the region, the living root bridges around the village of Mawlynnong and Nongriat, make the East Khasi Hills one of the highlights of the Northeast. Although the state has seen its share of political turmoil since its inception in 1972, all in all Meghalaya remains a charming land of misty forests and hospitable people, and has become a hit with Indian tourists.

Shillong and around SHILLONG was known to the British as “the Scotland of the East”, an impression first brought to mind by Barapani (or Umiam), the picturesque loch-like reservoir 23km from town on the Guwahati highway, and the sight of the local Khasi women wearing gingham and tartan shawls. At an altitude of around 1500m and with its rolling hills of conifers and pineapple shrubs, Shillong became a popular hill station for the British, who built it on the site of a thousand-year-old Khasi settlement and made it Assam’s capital in 1874.

Sadly, with uncontrolled growth, choking traffic jams and water shortages – despite the rain – the city today has lost much of its charm. Some of the original Victorian town around the centre, known as the European Ward, however, is still preserved, with garden villas and the sylvan environs of Ward Lake. North of the polo ground is one of Asia's oldest golf courses, founded in 1898 by a group of British civil servants.

Siat khnam, a local sport and popular gambling tradition, involves teams of Khasi men firing arrows at a target while punters throughout the city bet on the final two digits of the total. Daily (except Sun) games start around 3.30pm opposite Nehru Stadium. Of the town's markets, including the busy Police Bazaar in the centre, the Iewduh (Mon–Sat) or Bara Bazaar, is Meghalaya's oldest and most traditional market, run mainly by women. For some respite from the city, head to Tripura Castle, from where a short uphill walk takes you into pine-forested hills.

Shillong Peak

10km southwest of the centre

Shillong Peak (1965m), the highest point in Meghalaya, offers panoramic views of the city below from its popular promenade, as well as being home to the last four ilex khasiana, a high-altitude tree on the verge of extinction. At the base, among a handful of teashops and souvenir stalls, throngs of domestic tourists pose for pictures in rented traditional Khasi costumes. It's a short uphill walk to the viewpoint on the peak.

Don Bosco Museum Mawlai, 3km northwest of Police Bazaar • Mon–Sat 9am–5.30pm (Dec & Jan till 4.30pm) • Charge • dbcic.org

Despite the overtly Christian message, the sparkling Don Bosco Museum offers a fascinating insight into the region's tribal groups. Well-organized galleries each have dedicated themes ranging from prehistory, costumes and musical instruments to modern art. The contemporary seven-storey building features an extraordinary, caged Sky Walk on the curving roof, with grand views of the city.

Wankhar Entomology Museum 2km west of Police Bazaar • Mon–Sat 11am–4pm • Charge • 36425 44473

The small family-run Museum of Entomology (or Butterfly Museum) is dedicated to moths and butterflies, with more than ten thousand exhibits lovingly preserved. There's also a sizeable display of endemic insects, including the large rhinoceros beetle.

Mawphlang Sacred Forest

25km southwest of Shillong

The sacred forest at Mawphlang is a prime example of the Khasi sacred grove, preserved from time immemorial to protect the delicate biodiversity. A thick layer of humus harbours a huge diversity of flora, while the trees, draped with lichen, are covered with ferns and orchids. Visitors should not pick anything, not even a fallen leaf. Mawphlang makes a good base from which to trek the picturesque David Scott Trail, a British-built pony track that skirts Cherrapunjee before dropping to the plains of Bangladesh.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS SHILLONG AND AROUND PUBLIC BUSES FOR GUWAHATI DEPART FROM THE MTC BUS STAND ON JAIL RD, WHICH ALSO HAS A RAILWAY RESERVATION COUNTER. PRIVATE BUS FIRMS HAVE OFFICES NEARBY AND RUN SERVICES ALL OVER THE NORTHEAST, OFTEN DEPARTING FROM THE BUS PARK IN FRONT OF SHILLONG'S JAWAHARLAL NEHRU STADIUM, NORTH OF POLICE BAZAR. FOR AIZAWL, YOU MAY PREFER TO TRAVEL TO SILCHAR AND THEN CONTINUE BY JEEP. THE BORDER CROSSING TO BANGLADESH AT DAWKI IS SERVED BY A FEW PRIVATE BUSES AND A FLEET OF TAXIS/SUMOS, WHICH ALSO RUN TO CHERRAPUNJEE AND MAWSYNRAM, FROM BARA BAZAAR.

Destinations Aizawl (1–2 daily; 18hr); Cherrapunjee (2hr); Dawki (4–5hr); Guwahati (hourly; 4hr); Mawsynram (3hr); Silchar (2–3 daily; 10hr); By helicopter Choppers fly from Shillong to Guwahati airport (30min). There's a 10kg luggage allowance, and you pay ₹ for each extra kg. Book at the counter inside the MTC Bus station (Mon–Sat 8am–5pm; 🌐 busindia.com/busindia_MTC.jsp).

By taxi Shared taxis run to Guwahati from Police Bazar and Kacheri Rd (3hr 30min). Private taxis to Guwahati airport run early in the mornings and Guwahati's Paltan Bazaar; rates are much higher in the afternoons. Book through agents around Police Point, at Meghalaya Tourism (see below) or at Khasi Hills Taxi Cooperative on Kacheri Rd. Happy Fleet (🌐 facebook.com/happyfleet6427) run private and shared cars between Shillong, Dimapur and Kohima in Nagaland.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST OFFICES MEGHALAYA TOURISM, JAIL RD, OPPOSITE THE BUS STATION (MON–SAT 8AM–7.30PM; 📞0364 222 6220, 🌐MEGHALAYATOURISM.IN), PROVIDES INFORMATION AND ORGANIZES TOURS; THEY ALSO ARRANGE TAXIS. THE INDIA TOURISM OFFICE IS ON THE CORNER OF GS RD AT THE POLICE BAZAAR CIRCLE (MON–FRI 9.30AM–5.30PM; 🌐TOURISM.GOV.IN).

Tours Cultural Pursuits at Hotel Alpine Continental on Thana Rd, Police Bazaar (🌐culturalpursuits.com), arrange good-value tailor-made tours throughout the region, including homestays in Khasi villages. Their treks and tours include Garo Wangala and the David Scott Trail to Cherrapunjee. Meghalaya Tourism also run good-value yet occasionally hit-or-miss day-trips in tourist buses to Cherrapunjee (8am–4.30pm; from ₹); Mawlynnong, Riwai's root bridge and Dawki (8am–8pm); and a city tour (8.30am–

2.30pm). Meghalaya Adventurers' Association, at the Mission Compound near the Synod Complex (bit.ly/2LzhEbp), offers trips to explore the spectacular caves of the region. Pathfinders Adventures (facebook.com/pathfinderadventuresindia) organise guided, fully customisable tours in private SUVs, highlighting lesser-known attractions and hiking.

Internet Internet cafés are thin on the ground – try the xerox shops along Jail Road and Police Bazaar.

Car and Motorbike rental Visiting Meghalaya by car, scooter or Enfield is an increasingly popular option. Pathfinders Adventures rents well-maintained scooters for day. You can also book cars, Royal Enfields, scooters or chauffeur cabs online through Shillong-based operator Autorides (autorides.business.site).

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Shillong has a wide range of accommodation. Note that staying on GS Rd can be noisy; for a quiet and central location, look around the European Ward area. Further afield, Umiam Lake offers scenic tranquillity, while in the village of Mawphlang you can gain an insight into Khasi life by staying in a homestay.

Earle Holiday Home Oakland Rd ☎98633 02149. Central and popular, with a range of clean but twee rooms (think lino floors and garish bed covers) in a traditional Meghalayan house or a more modern annexe. There's a good restaurant too. ₹

La Chaumiere House Upper Lachaumiere ☎
facebook.com/LachaumiereHouseShillong. A family-run, grand manor house with pleasant lawns and home comforts, and an adjacent cottage in the grounds; set in a residential area yet close to all amenities. ₹₹₹

Lady Bird Hotel Police Bazar, Umsohsun Rd ☎ladybirdhotel.com. Very central and modern hotel, with minimal-chic rooms equipped with warm wood flooring, plush beds, LED TVs, and all the amenities flashpackers expect. It's quiet in spite of being just a 3min walk from Police Bazar. Staff are very friendly, and a continental buffet breakfast is included. ₹₹₹

★Ri Kynjai 20km north of Shillong ☎rikynjai.com. Set in 45 acres of forest in a spectacular location beside Umiam Lake, the region's best hotel has luxury rooms and stunning cottages. The latter are raised on stilts, have traditional “upturned boat” roofs, fire-places and Jacuzzis. The restaurant specializes in northeastern cuisine and there’s a spa. ₹₹₹₹

★Travellers Bed & Breakfast Buddhist Temple Rd, 100mt beyond Buddha Vihar Polo 📞98621 58574. Set in a residential area not far from the Polo Ground, this homely guesthouse has large, neat rooms with hot water, a/c, electric kettles, desks and chairs, and immaculately clean en suite bathrooms. Shoestringers can use the functional 8-bed dorm with shared toilets, one of the best value budget accommodations in town. Breakfast is only included with the doubles. Doubles ₹₹, Dorms ₹

Tripura Castle Tripura Castle Rd, 3km south of town 🌐 tripuracastle.com. Also known as Royal Heritage, this beautiful hotel is set in an inspiring hilltop location, next to the maharaja of Tripura’s former summer home. The charming rooms have wooden floors and brass fireplaces, while the Maharaja Suite has a mahogany bed once slept in by Tagore, an iconic Bengali poet and composer. There’s a decent restaurant and bar. The recently developed annexe next door is equally comfortable. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

City Hut Dhaba Earle Holiday Home, Oakland Rd, 🌐 cityhutdhaba.com. A cabin-like dining room with an extravagant water feature, City Hut Dhaba has a menu of more than three hundred items, including interesting dishes like duck cubes in tawa masala. Daily 11am–9.30pm. ₹₹

Deja Vu Nongkynrih, Laitumkhrach 🌐 facebook.com/people/Deja-Vu-Shillong/100057362961626. A bit out of the way, this Cantonese-style restaurant serves a concoction of Chinese, Thai curries, and Western bar food. At ₹ the combo meals with drinks (think veg fried rice or noodles, pork ribs, French fries and a virgin mojito) are great value. Daily noon–11.30pm.

★Dylan's Café Tripura Castle Rd, Dhankheti 📞03642 500 116, 🌐 www.hotelpolotowers.com/our-cafes/dylans-cafe The Northeast's first tribute café is dedicated to Bob Dylan, who had a huge impact on Shillong's music scene – believe it or not, since 1972 local musicians celebrate the birthday of the American songwriter with a tribute gig. A menu of hearty burgers, all day breakfast platters, pancakes and desserts – together with walls tiled with vintage vinyl records – make it a unique local favourite. Daily 11.30am–10pm. ₹₹

The Grub Laitumkhrach, Main Road  facebook.com/the grub cafe bakery. Among the most popular in Shillong's new wave of Western-style cafés, it's a cosy place to get your cuppas, pastries, burgers and some Italian pastas. Daily 12.30pm–8.30pm. ₹₹

DRINKING AND ENTERTAINMENT

MAP

The flourishing local music scene has earned Shillong the nickname “rock city”. For performances, look out for posters.

The Evening Club The Eee Cee Hotel, Police Bazar  facebook.com/eveningclubshillong. More of a mid-range bistro than a real live music club, this welcoming bar hosts rock, jazz and acoustic bands (cover charge) and has a good selection of beers and spirits. Daily 11am–11pm.

Smoky Falls Tribe Coffee Police Bazar  facebook.com/NaLaBri. This central hole in the wall coffee shop uses strong local brews, all grown by Meghalaya's indigenous tribes, pastries, and is popular with the young Shillong crowd. Daily 11am–11pm.

Cherrapunjee and around CHERRAPUNJEE, 56km south of Shillong in the Khasi Hills, is a spread-out settlement with the town of Sohra at its centre. It has achieved fame as the wettest place on earth: the highest daily rainfall ever recorded fell here in 1876 – 104cm in 24 hours. The area's numerous waterfalls are most impressive during the steamy monsoon season when awesome torrents plunge down to the Bangladeshi plains, often obscured by rain clouds.

Every eight days a market is held here, with tribal jewellery, honey and local produce on offer. Of the various points of interest, the Noh Kalikai and Weisawdong waterfalls, Bangladesh viewpoint, Mawsmail village and cave and Mawjinbuin cave near Mawsynram, which is even wetter than Cherra itself, are all within a few kilometres.

Nongriat

65km southwest of Shillong • entry charge • camera charge • Motorbike parking charge per night The most spectacular living root bridge is the Umshiang Double Decker Bridge at the NONGRIAT village, where two bridges run one above the other across the Umshiang River. To get to the double-decker bridge it's a knee-grinding trek from the Tyrna village, set at the top of more than 3000 steps. It's not for the faint-hearted: the dizzying staircase tumbles down through the forest, past natural swimming holes, and across two suspended metallic bridges. Roughly halfway down, a 3min side path leads to the long bridge (entry charge, camera charge), a single decker root bridge strewn across the river. Because this trek is usually crowded with Indian tourists who visit as a gruelling day-trip, staying overnight in Nongriat to rest your legs and enjoy the village's eerie remoteness is recommended. Cherrapunjee Holiday Resort (see below) can arrange guides.

MEGHALAYA'S LIVING ROOT BRIDGES DEEP WITHIN THE WET TROPICAL FORESTS OF MEGHALAYA'S KHASI HILLS, GNARLED, MOSS-COVERED ROOTS OF THE INDIAN RUBBER TREE (FICUS ELASTICA) STRETCH ACROSS WATERWAYS, FORMING UNIQUE "LIVING" BRIDGES. THE CONSISTENTLY HIGH RAINFALL SWELLS RIVERS AND STREAMS, WHICH LEADS TO THE DECAY OF WOODEN BRIDGES, STRANDING LOCALS. OVER GENERATIONS, THE INDIGENOUS KHASI PEOPLE HAVE CREATED ALTERNATIVES BY DIRECTING ENTWINED RUBBER-TREE ROOTS SUCH THAT THEY GROW INTO STURDY BRIDGES. SOME OF THESE TANGLED WEBS ARE NEARLY 200 YEARS OLD AND UP TO 30M LONG.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

CHERRAPUNJEE AND AROUND

On a tour An easy way of seeing all the sights around Cherrapunjee, albeit in a rush, is to join Meghalaya Tourism's day-trip from Shillong.

By taxi A taxi for the day from Shillong costs ₹₹₹.

By Sumo Shared Sumos to Cherrapunjee market ply regularly from Shillong's Bara Bazaar (2hr; ₹), where you change to a shared jeep to Tyrna (1hr; ₹) and start hiking down to Nongriat accommodation ★

Cherrapunjee Holiday Resort Laitkynsew Village www.cherrapunjee.com.

Around 12km from Sohra, this friendly and welcoming place makes an ideal base for exploring the area. Sitting on a ledge looking down to villages, hills and the Bangladesh plains in the distance, the main building has six large, comfortable rooms set around a central hall and restaurant. There's also a new annexe with higher-end rooms. The restaurant offers a range of dishes, from local cuisine to dhal bhaat and a lot more. They have useful information on hikes and treks. Rates include breakfast. ₹₹₹

Serene Homestay Nongriat www.homestaysofindia.com/meghalaya-nongriat-homestay/.

Thanks to backpacker hype, this homestay has become a proper guesthouse, losing its family vibe in pursuit of tourist dollars. Regardless of the cold atmosphere and occasional rudeness, their 6-dorm beds with decent shared toilets are basic, but still the best option in Nongriat. There are double rooms, and a veg rice and dhaal dinner costs extra. No wi-fi. ₹

Mawlynnong

86km southeast of Shillong • Entry Charge • Meghalaya Tourism runs a day-trip from Shillong (8am–8pm; by bus or by car) Reputedly the cleanest village (in Asia), MAWLYNNONG, in the East Khasi Hills, is a victim of its own hype. Once a marvel of community ecological awareness where all rubbish is carefully recycled and processed, the village has turned into an overpriced tourist trap, and is best enjoyed in the evenings, after the tourist hordes have left. A bamboo walkway, the Sky View, climbs to the forest canopy providing views of treetops and the distant plains of Bangladesh. Nearby Riwai village is also a good place to see a 100-year-old living root bridge (entry charge) if you don't mind fending off selfie-sticks.

Mawryngkhang Bamboo Trek 56km southeast of Shillong in Wahkhen village • Charge for a guided tour • Buses and shared jeeps depart from Bara Bazaar in Shillong to Pomlum village (1hr 30min), 15km away from Wahkhen; Pathfinders Adventures organise direct trips from Shillong This two to three-hour circuit to a sacred boulder called U Mawryngkhang, the legendary “King of Rocks”, was completely hand-made by Wahkhen village’s engineers to promote tourism to their remote home. You'll walk over rickety bamboo-and-cane bridges, soaring above patches of forest, a river, and deep gorges. If you suffer vertigo, avoid climbing the last 100mt-high bamboo ladder to the rock's top.

Dawki

96km southeast of Shillong • Buses and irregular shared jeeps depart from Bara Bazaar in Shillong before 11am (2hr 30min), likewise departing from Dawki to Shillong before 11am; Meghalaya Tourism runs a day-trip from Shillong (8am–8pm; by bus); a private taxi to and from Shillong DAWKI, 35km from Mawlynnong, is the most important of the Meghalaya–Bangladesh border crossings to Tamabil, two and a half hours from Sylhet. The town holds nothing of interest, but you can take a boat on a scenic part of the Umngot river separating India from Bangladesh. The real attraction is the crystal-clear water and suspended bridge at nearby Shnongpdeng, the source of the river, seven kilometers away. Shillong-based Pioneer Adventure Tours (pioneeradventuretour.com) organise river camping (₹₹₹ inclusive of four meals, barbecue, bonfire and boat transfers), scuba diving, river rafting, caving, zip lining, rock climbing and rappelling. If you are going to cross the border, note that there's no Bangladesh visa office in Meghalaya, so you will need to acquire a visa beforehand; Kolkata has a consulate. Note that there are no official currency exchange facilities at the crossing.

Arunachal Pradesh ARUNACHAL PRADESH, “the land of the dawn-lit mountains”, is one of India’s last unspoilt wildernesses. A wealth of fascinating cultures, peoples and tribes – plus a staggering five hundred species of orchid – are found in its glacial terrain, alpine meadows and subtropical rainforests.

The capital, Itanagar, is north of the Brahmaputra across from Jorhat. In the far west of the state, the road from Bhalukpong on the Assamese border to the monastery of Tawang climbs steadily through rugged hills, streams and primeval forests, crossing the dramatic Sela Pass (4300m) midway. Along the route lie the Buddhist towns of Bomdila and Dirang. In the far northeast, both cloud and snow leopards reside in Namdapha National Park. Arunachal’s remote and unspoilt central highlands, home to myriad tribes, hides some of the best the Himalayas have to offer, including the mysterious Buddhist land of Pemako.

Despite the region's beauty, tourism has been discouraged here because of the extremely sensitive borders with Chinese-occupied Tibet in the north and Myanmar in the east. In 1962, the Chinese invaded Arunachal Pradesh, reaching the outskirts of Tezpur in Assam, a 300km incursion that India has never forgotten. Since then, a strong military stance has been adopted in the area with China laying claim to much of the state. All visitors require a permit to enter the state.

Itanagar

Just under 400km northeast of Guwahati, ITANAGAR, the state's quiet capital, is of little interest but an important transport hub for anyone heading to the central plateau. You may find you need to spend a night or two here organizing permits and logistics. Surrounded by low, wooded hills, the town spreads along a 4km stretch of road running between Zero Point, where the better hotels are located, and Ganga Market, the animated main bazaar, which has cheaper accommodation and the bus station. Six kilometres west of town, Gyakar Sinyi (Ganga Lake), cupped in a jungle hollow, is a popular picnic spot.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN A RAIL LINK ITANAGAR TO NAHARLAGUN (15KM FROM ITANAGAR) CONNECTS CENTRAL ARUNACHAL TO DELHI BY THE NAHARLAGUN–NEW DELHI AC SF; AND GUWAHATI BY THE NAHARLAGUN–GUWAHATI INTERCITY EXPRESS.

Destinations Delhi (Tues 9.10pm; 38hr 30min); Guwahati (daily 9.30pm; 9hr 20min).

By bus State and private buses connect Itanagar with Guwahati and destinations throughout the state, but be aware that most roads are in terrible condition.

Destinations Bomdila (30m daily; 12–14hr; ₹); Guwahati (daily; 10–11hr); Pasighat (6.15am and 2pm; 5hr; ₹); Ziro (daily; 6hr; ₹).

By Sumo/jeep Sumos and shared jeeps are quicker than buses, and their hub is in nearby Naharlagun.

Destinations from Naharlagun Aloo (6am and 5pm; 8hr; ₹); Daporijo (6am; 8hr; ₹); Guwahati airport (3am; 8hr; ₹₹); Pasighat (5hr; ₹); Ziro (5.30am and 10.30am; 4hr; ₹).

ARUNACHAL PRADESH'S TRIBAL GROUPS
ARUNACHAL PRADESH IS STUNNINGLY DIVERSE, WITH 26 MAJOR TRIBAL GROUPS, EACH WITH ITS OWN CULTURE, DIALECT, DRESS, SOCIAL STRUCTURE AND TRADITIONS. POLYGAMY REMAINS COMMON AMONG MANY OF THEM, AS DOES THE RELIGIOUS BLEND OF HINDU, BUDDHIST AND ANIMIST BELIEFS. THE MAIN ETHNIC GROUPS INCLUDE MONPAS, SHERDUKPENS, APATANI, WANCHOS, NOCTES, TANGSAS, SINGPHOS, KHAMPTIS, MISHMIS, MIJIS, GALOS, PADAMS, MIWONGS, TAGINS AND PUROIKS. HOWEVER, WITHIN ALL THE GROUPS, TRADITION IS SLOWLY GIVING WAY TO MODERN INFLUENCES, PARTICULARLY AMONG THE YOUNGER GENERATION, WHO INCREASINGLY WEAR WESTERN CLOTHES, WATCH BOLLYWOOD FLICKS AND EAT CHINESE FOOD.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST OFFICE THERE'S AN INTERMITTENTLY OPEN TOURIST OFFICE (📍 ARUNACHALTOURISM.COM) BEHIND THE AKASH DEEP COMPLEX IN GANGA MARKET.

Tour operators Abor Country Travels & Expeditions, B Sector, below Raj Bhavan (📍aborcountrytravels.com), organizes treks, white-water rafting expeditions and tours. Highly recommended, The Holiday Scout conducts offbeat and customised cultural, photographic, and women-focused tours.

Websites www.arunachaltourism.com is a good introduction to what to see and do in the state. www.chaloarunachal.com offers plenty of local insider knowledge Accommodation Pybss Hotel D-Sector, Near Civil Secretariat www.pybsshotel.com. Modern 3-star hotel with a range of good-value rooms and suites with plush beds, TVs, and in walking distance to BB Plaza Shopping Mall. There's a gym for guests and breakfast is included. ₹₹₹

Waii International Near State Museum, Gompa Rd www.waiiinternational.com. Itanagar's best hotel has large, elegant rooms with marble tiles, wooden furnishings and plush king size beds. The Olympic size swimming pool is a nice place to cool off. Breakfast is included. ₹₹₹

West Arunachal Bordered by Bhutan and Tibet, the isolated hills and valleys of West Arunachal climb to some of the remotest glaciers and peaks in the Himalayas. Most of the 6000m-plus mountains – except Gori Chen (6488m) and Nyegi Kangsang (7047m) – remain completely unknown. The main road, the best in the state, runs from Bhalukpong on the Assamese border to near the Tibet frontier at Tawang, ending high in the mountains at one of Asia's largest monasteries. On this spectacular journey you rise from the steamy foothills to the high market town of Bomdila with its Buddhist monasteries and occasional yak; further on lies Dirang, an ancient fortress town, before the climb up through the Sela Pass to Tawang.

Bomdila

Set on a spur of the Thagla Ridge at 2530m, the dividing line between rainforests to the south and subalpine valleys to the north, freezing BOMDILA is a quiet, pleasant, spread-out settlement with a handy bazaar in the lower town and quiet walks above. A few kilometres beyond Bomdila, the snow-covered peaks of Gori Chen (6488m) and Kangto (7042m) come into view, weather permitting. There are a handful of Tibetan Buddhist monasteries in town – the oldest of which is at the end of the bazaar in the lower town, and houses a large blue Medicine Buddha statue. You can take a walk on the hill beyond the town to Shiva's Nag Mandir, and then proceed to Nyingmapa Rizing Woselling Monastery, crowned by a giant statue of the Second Buddha Padmasambhava. In the afternoons, you may see Sange Lama and his young novice monks use human bones for their entrancing pujas.

Bomdila Monastery No fixed hours; roughly daylight hours • Free •
A round trip from and to the Sumo stand costs around ₹

The largest gompa, known as the Bomdila Monastery (Gentse Gaden Rabhyel Ling), high above town, was inaugurated by the Dalai Lama in 1997. The gompa holds a spectacular chaam (festival of lama masked dance) around mid-November which attracts plenty of local people including Monpa women in distinctive pink knitted gowns and yak-hair hats.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION THERE ARE JUST BOMDILA TWO ROUTES OUT OF BOMDILA: ONWARD AND UPWARD TOWARDS TAWANG, AND BACK DOWN TO BHALUKPONG. ALL TRANSPORT ARRIVES AT THE SUMO STAND IN THE MIDDLE OF TOWN, WHERE THERE ARE SOME CONVENIENT HOTELS. THERE ARE TRAVEL OFFICES IN THE SUMO STAND, ONE SBI ATM, AND AN INTERNET CAFÉ, THOUGH ELECTRICITY AND BANDWIDTH IS A PROBLEM.

By bus State buses, for those who are willing to take a severe rattling, run from the bus station in the lower part of town, but get cancelled frequently. It's better to use Network Travels' (www.networktravels.com) a/c night service to Guwahati.

Destinations Guwahati (daily 3.30pm; 10hr).

By shared taxi/jeep These are the most common forms of transport to and from Bomdila; you should pre-book at the Sumo offices on the ground floor of the Urban Shopping Complex, and be prepared for early departures. For Itanagar, catch the night service leaving at 3.30pm.

Destinations Dirang (11am; 1hr 30min; ₹); Itanagar (6am; 10hr; ₹); Tawang (6am; 6hr; ₹); Tezpur (5.30am; 5hr; ₹).

Tourist office Tourist information (☎ 91155 69435) is at the Tourist Lodge, but the desk is not always manned.

Tours The Holiday Scout, Syndicate Press Building, Kakaling Road, theholidayscout.com, arranges customised sightseeing, photography trips and treks.

ACCOMMODATION ★DOE-GU-KHIL BOMDILA MONASTERY ⓘ
3782 223 232. A WONDERFUL, QUIET SPOT WITHIN THE MONASTERY COMPOUND AND JUST BELOW THE MAIN COMPLEX, WITH SPOTLESS AND WELL-PRESENTED ROOMS SET AROUND A COURTYARD. THE FOOD IS VEGETARIAN, SINCE IT'S IN THE MONASTERY COMPLEX. YOU WILL NEED TO BOOK EARLY FOR THE CHAAM. ₹

Lungta Residency Next to Urban Shopping Complex ⓘ facebook.com/lungtaresidency?ref=hl. Central hotel, perfectly located for early morning departures, rooms are clean and well-appointed and there is a popular restaurant. Breakfast included. ₹

Tsepal Yangjom Main Bazaar ⓘ facebook.com/tsepalyangjombomdila. In the lower market, this established hotel has comfortable wood-panelled rooms and the best restaurant in town (daily 9am–8pm) serving local, Chinese and Indian cuisine – try the boiled chicken with bamboo shoots and lai patta (mains around ₹). ₹

Dirang

Ninety minutes beyond Bomdila, the predominantly Monpa township of Dirang sits at a much lower altitude of 1497m, thus enjoying a more equitable climate. The settlement lies along the highway to Tawang, separated into Old and New Dirang and punctuated with kiwi orchards and a handful of ancient gompas. The Dirang River, flanked by terraced fields, flows parallel to the highway in the valley below.

Old Dirang

The ancient fortress town of OLD DIRANG (1690m), also known as Dirang Dzong, or “fort”, commands the lower river valley. Take the steps up just before the bridge to the walled medieval settlement where within the warren of stone houses and lanes shared by human and livestock alike, and besides the odd TV dish, time seems to have stood still. The dzong stands more or less abandoned in the centre of the settlement and is often locked.

The rest of Old Dirang, with several medieval buildings and a 500-year-old Khastong gompa above town, is worth a wander, past the odd tethered yak and with the strong aroma of local brew wafting through the alleyways.

New Dirang

NEW DIRANG, 5km further up the valley from Old Dirang, is the uninspiring main market and transport hub, with fruit orchards on the outskirts and a yak-breeding farm. There are several monasteries in the area, including the Kalachakra gompa, dedicated to the Wheel of Life, and the old Thupsung Dhargye Liung gompa, belonging to one of the oldest Tibetan Buddhism sects. Further up the road towards Tawang, a footpath leads down to hot springs, a popular bathing spot for local villagers, but in pretty dire condition when we visited. About 8km away, the Sangti Valley is the winter home of the black-necked crane and a popular place for birdwatching. There are several homestays, a sheep farm, and a new gompa that should be completed by the time you read this.

ACCOMMODATION OLD DIRANG IS THE BEST PLACE DIRANG TO STAY, UNLESS YOU NEED TO CATCH AN EARLY-MORNING SUMO FROM THE MARKET. SANGYELA AND SNOW LION HOTEL, BOTH ALONG THE MAIN BAZAAR, DON'T LOOK LIKE MUCH FROM THE OUTSIDE BUT HAVE SERVICEABLE, CLEAN ROOMS THAT CAN ACCOMMODATE UP TO 3 GUESTS FOR ₹1000.

★Dirang Boutique Cottages Near Old Dirang's Power House 🌐 facebook.com/dirangboutiquecottages. These eight charming rooms, housed in rustic stone cottages, set on a bend of the Siang River, have plenty of local charm. Outside, a stone pathway connects the cottages to an exquisite open-air area for bonfires and basking in the high-altitude sun. Breakfast is included. ₹₹₹

Kunjang Homestay Rama Camp, Rama Camp Dirang Village 🌐 facebook.com/p/Dirang-Home-Stay-Kunjang-100057607802659. The large, clean rooms are offered with either a terrace or a balcony and panoramic views. Breakfast is included. ₹₹

The Sela Pass and around

4hr drive from Dirang

The spectacular road from Dirang to Tawang rises steadily from the river valley through alpine scenery past waterfalls and grazing yaks. The endless switchbacks climb up to the dramatic 4300m Sela Pass, where you can have tea and samosas in front of a bukhari (wood-fired oven) at the Prahri Café by the gate. The pass is snowed in for around six months a year, though ill-equipped jeeps still brave the journey. Of the many memorials to those who lost their lives during the 1962 Chinese invasion, the most impressive is the Jaswant Singh Memorial, 13km beyond the pass that commemorates a battle when a tiny Indian contingent held off the Chinese army for several days before finally being overrun.

Tawang

180km northwest of Bomdila

The great Buddhist monastery of TAWANG, the largest in India, dominates the land of the Monpas. Perched at around 3500m and looking out onto a semicircle of peaks that are snow-capped for much of the year, the monastery teeters on the edge of Tibet and peers down to Bhutan. This feels like the end of the road, with long cold nights and plenty of snow in winter. A bone of contention between India and China, Tawang has always been of special significance to Tibetans and the Dalai Lama who fled Tibet in 1959 and travelled surreptitiously through here on his way into exile. His pre-incarnation, the Sixth Dalai Lama, was born on the outskirts of the town.

The three-day Torgya festival in January, shortly before Losar (Tibetan New Year), celebrates the life of the first king of Mon; a chaam dance wards off evil spirits. The Tawang Festival, in late Oct, showcases cultural performances.

Tawang Monastery A few kilometres beyond town • Roughly daylight hours Established by Merak Lama Lodre Gyatso in 1680 under the auspices of the Fifth Dalai Lama, when this area was part of Greater Tibet, the highly influential Tawang Monastery is a huge fortress-like complex with a warren of buildings. It houses around five hundred monks and is renowned for its collection of priceless manuscripts and thangkas. There is a small museum (entry charge) filled with Buddhist ornaments and relics, and a vast library. Rebuilt in the 1990s, the main dukhang (temple hall), dominated by an 8m-high statue of Shakyamuni along with spectacular murals, was consecrated by the present Dalai Lama whose 2009 visit brought much displeasure to the Chinese government. The abbot, Gyalshey Rimpoche, has declared the entire region free from the slaughter of animals – one reason why so many yaks wander freely in these parts.

Urgyelling

5km south of town

As you descend south from Tawang a fork in the road, adorned by ceremonial gates, leads to the small monastery of Urgyelling. Turn left and down the hill behind the car repair shop, and then keep to the left looking for the gate, as it's not well sign-posted. Set in peaceful grounds, the chapel commemorates the birth here of the Sixth Dalai Lama, Tsanyang Gyatso, in 1683. The monastery was sacked when Tsanyang was deposed, but he prophesied he would return and that when one of the three grand trees he planted died, catastrophe would befall Tibet. In 1959, one of the trees died in a storm; that very year, the fourteenth (and present) Dalai Lama, fleeing Tibet, sought refuge at this very spot.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS THERE IS TAWANG ONLY ONE DAILY BUS TO TEZPUR (11AM; 10HR) BY HELICOPTER ON MON AND FRI, PAWAN HANS (☎ BOOKING.PAWANHANS.CO.IN) RUN SCENIC CHOPPER FLIGHT CONNECTING GUWAHATI TO TAWANG (10.10AM; 1HR 10MIN) BY JEEP DAILY JEEPS RUN FROM TAWANG TO BOMDILA, DIRANG, GUWAHATI AND TEZPUR – BOOK IN ADVANCE FROM TICKET AGENTS NEAR THE BUS STAND; TRANSPORT LEAVES EARLY FROM THE OLD MARKET.

Destinations Bomdila (6am; 4/5hr); Dirang (6am; 4hr); Guwahati (6am; 14hr); Tezpur (10hr).

By taxi A one-way taxi trip to the monastery from town costs around ₹, but it's worth asking the driver to wait as it can be difficult to find one for the return leg; it is also a pleasant, but long, walk. A taxi to Bomdila costs ₹₹₹.

Tourist office The Tourist Lodge (Mon–Sat 9am–4pm; ☎070555 67250) has a small tourist office, but Himalayan Holidays (Mon–Sat 5am–7pm; ☎ 03794 223151), opposite Hotel Gorichen, Old Market, is a better source of information.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING DOLMA KHANGSAR NEAR MONASTERY GATES 🌐DOLMAHOTELS.COM. EXCELLENT WOOD-PANELLED, SUITE-LIKE ROOMS WITH HOT-WATER BATHROOMS, IN A WELCOMING FAMILY HOME WITH GOOD VEGETARIAN COOKING AND IN A GREAT LOCATION NEXT TO THE MONASTERY. DOUBLE-ROOMED COTTAGES BY THE VEGETABLE GARDEN (₹₹₹) ARE GOOD FOR LARGER GROUPS. A BRISK 3KM WALK UP FROM THE BAZAAR (OR A TAXI RIDE). ₹₹

Hotel Mon Paradise Nehru Market 🌐hotelmonparadise.com. The closest Tawang comes to a boutique hotel offers 19 large rooms with wooden floor tiles, flat TVs, and attached bathrooms. Breakfast is not included. ₹₹₹

Mon Valley Restaurant Old Market 🌐hotel-mon-valley-and-restaurant.business.site. With deep red and black walls, and large windows overlooking the valley, this busy restaurant is a popular favourite. Tibetan, North Indian and Chinese dishes are cooked fresh on order, so the service can be slow, but the local specialities like beef thentuck and thukpa (₹) are well worth the wait. They also have milkshakes (₹) and coffee. Around ₹ a head. Daily 8am–8pm ★ Tenzin Guest House 5km from the bazar, on the main road 🌐tenzin-guest-house.business.site/. This quiet family-run hotel has four storeys of warm wood-panelled rooms, hot-water bathrooms and a serene garden. It's run by a former lama (now a teacher at Tawang Monastery), his wife, and three energetic daughters, who keep everything squeaky clean and run an excellent, inexpensive kitchen. A meal will set you back ₹, and breakfast costs an additional ₹. ₹₹

Central and East Arunachal Pristine forests mark the watersheds of the Siang, Dibang and Lohit rivers – an unspoilt wilderness gradually opening up to visitors in search of exploration and adventure. The town of Ziro (Hapoli) makes a good base for exploring this land of rainclouds, forests, swirling paddy terraces and the fascinating Apatani villages where animist beliefs and the worship of Donyi-Polo (sun and moon) are still very much alive. The Apatanis are just one of the many tribes inhabiting these remote forests and hills of Central Arunachal. Beyond Ziro, the fragile highway etches through forested hills to the settlement of Along. Further south, the River Siang, battling through the jungles, merges into the mighty Brahmaputra at Pasighat, close to the urban centres of Upper Assam. Further east, the remote valleys of the Dibang and Lohit rivers, inhabited by the Mishmi, Singpho and Khampti tribes, descend from snow-covered passes through subtropical forests where, in the far east corner of the state, the pristine Namdapha National Park harbours a huge variety of fauna and flora.

Ziro (Hapoli) The quiet, yet slowly expanding town of HAPOLI – still known widely by its former name ZIRO – 150km north of Itanagar, is surrounded by the terraced fields and rolling pine-clad hills of the Apatani plateau, 1780m above sea level. Besides the colourful market, where you will come across local delicacies such as dried rat and other unusual meat, Ziro provides a base for exploring the surrounding hills and village communities. It's best to base yourself in Old Ziro (a scenic 7km walk or a ₹250 taxi ride from Hapoli's sumo stand), which is made up by the interconnected Apatani villages of Hari, Biirii, Mudang Tage, Bulla, Hija, Ditta, Bamin Michi and Hong. Here you can still see Apatani women with bamboo nose-plugs and five lines tattooed across their faces and chins — a tradition banned in the 1980s. It will completely disappear in the next 20 years, with the last of these 200-odd remaining elders. The Talley Valley Wildlife Sanctuary, renowned for its clouded leopards, makes a good two-day trek.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION THE ROAD ZIRO (HAPOLI) FROM NAHARLAGUN TO ZIRO IS PAVED AND IN GOOD CONDITION, BUT PROCEEDING ONWARDS IN ANY DIRECTION MAY BE A CHALLENGE. DURING THE MONSOONS THE ROADS BECOME ALMOST IMPASSABLE.

By bus Irregular state buses depart from the bazaar.

Destinations Daporijo (3 weekly; 8hr); Guwahati (2 weekly; 15hr); Itanagar (3 weekly; 4hr).

By Sumo Shared Sumos depart from the bazaar in the mornings to Daporijo, Naharlagun/Itanagar, and North Lakhimpur in Assam. For Guwahati, change in Itanagar. Royal Tours & Travels (☎0378 822 5577) run direct jeeps to Naharlagun's railway station.

Destinations Daporijo (10.30am; 8–10hr); Itanagar (5 daily until 11.30am; 10hr); New Lakhimpur (5.30am, 9am, 10am, 11am; 5hr).

Tours and information Most hotels offer guide services, necessary to make sense of the local traditions, charges vary per day. A car with driver costs ₹2500 per day. NGOs such as NgunuZiro (☎94362 24834, ✉NgunuZirohomestay2@gmail.com, facebook.com/NgunuZiro) provide vital information and assistance for exploring the area and local tours. Other established tour operators in the region include The Holiday Scout (🌐theholidayscout.com), based in Bomdila, and Greener Pastures (🌐thegreenerpastures.com).

ACCOMMODATION DOGINGDO HOMESTAY HARI VILLAGE, 4KM FROM THE CENTRE ☎87299 02206. WELCOMING HOMESTAY WITH LARGE, CLEAN EN SUITE ROOMS EQUIPPED WITH TVS, TABLES AND CHAIRS, AND MOSQUITO NETS, SET BELOW THE FAMILY'S LOFT-LIKE WOODEN TRADITIONAL KITCHEN. IT'S IN WALKING DISTANCE TO THE OTHER FOUR OLD ZIRO APATANI VILLAGES. HEARTY

BREAKFASTS AND HOME-COOKED DINNERS ARE INCLUDED.
NO WI-FI. ₹₹

Ziro Palace Inn Biirii, midway between the old and new towns ☎93830 34340, 🌐ziropalaceinn.com. The most luxurious hotel in Ziro has very large, bright rooms with plush beds, balconies, and living room areas furnished with LED TVs, tables and leather couches. It's close to the Ziro Festival's grounds and fills up fast, so book ahead. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Along and Pasighat East of Ziro, the River Siang, having started life as the Tsangpo on the Tibet plateau, tumbles through the lush rainforests around the small towns of ALONG and PASIGHAT, to eventually form the Brahmaputra. Few visitors travel this tortuous road through the land of the Adis and the Mishmis, but there are numerous opportunities for trekking and river adventures, especially in MECHUKA, including some of the most challenging white-water in the Himalayas.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY CAR ALONG AND PASIGHAT THE TOWNS CAN BE REACHED FROM ITANAGAR (7HR TO ALONG; 5HR TO PASIGHAT); THE EASIEST ROUTES ARE VIA NORTH LAKHIMPUR ALONG THE BRAHMAPUTRA VALLEY
ON THE NH-52 RATHER THAN THE HILL ROADS THROUGH ZIRO. FROM PASIGHAT, YOU CAN REACH DIBRUGARH VIA THE 5KM-LONG BOGIBEEL BRIDGE, INDIA'S LONGEST ROAD AND RAILWAY BRIDGE.

By bus Buses ply from the Pasighat bus stand, around 1km from the centre. Network Travels (🌐networktravelindia.com) and Swapna Super (book through Red Bus: 🌐redbus.in) run bus services to Siliguri, Guwahati, Itanagar and Dimapur in Nagaland.

Destinations from Pasighat Dimapur (11.30am; 15hr); Guwahati (1pm and 1.30pm; 9hr); Itanagar (6.15am and 2pm; 5hr); Siliguri (6.30am; 15hr; seat or sleeper).

Destinations from Along Daporijo (10hr; daily); Itanagar (11hr; daily).

By jeep Shared jeeps run to and from Pasighat Sumo counters situated along the main road, and about 200mt from the bust station.

Destinations from Pasighat Along (5.30am; 5hr); Dibrugarh (5am; 5hr); Guwahati (1pm; 8hr).

By train Dibrugarh to Murkongselek (37km from Pasighat), via the Bogibeel Bridge (departing daily at Mon-Sat).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ★THE LHOBA 5KM NORTH OF THE MAIN BAZAAR, PASIGHAT

FACEBOOK.COM/THHELHOBHA/. EXPERIENCE AUTHENTIC MISING HOSPITALITY IN AN ORANGE FARM SET ON A SECLUDED BEND OF THE SIANG RIVER, WHERE FOUR CHARMING THATCH-AND-BAMBOO COTTAGES SIT BEFORE AN OCEAN OF PINK ELEPHANT GRASS. A MISING LONGHOUSE CATERS TO LARGE GROUPS (₹/PERSON), AND THERE'S A CAMPSITE (₹₹ PER TENT, ₹ IF YOU BRING YOUR OWN). BREAKFAST IS INCLUDED, AND DINNER COSTS AROUND ₹₹. THEY WILL PICK UP GUESTS FROM THE SUMO STAND. NO WI-FI. ₹₹₹

THE BEYUL OF PEMAKO AN ARDUOUS 15- DAY EXPEDITION THAT IS BEST ATTEMPTED IN AUGUST, THE TREK TO THE BEYUL OF PEMAKO (THE HIDDEN PARADISE IN THE SHAPE OF A LOTUS) IS PROBABLY THE MOST REWARDING ADVENTURE OF THE EASTERN HIMALAYAS. INHABITED BY THE MISHMIS AND ADIS, THIS REMOTE AND MYSTERIOUS LAND OF FOREST, CLOUD, LAKES AND HIGH-MOUNTAIN CRAGS, OVERLOOKED BY THE DISTANT SNOWS OF NAMCHE BARWA IN TIBET, IS ESPECIALLY SACRED TO BUDDHISTS. THEY BELIEVE THAT GURU RIMPOCHE (PADMASAMBHAVA) BLESSED THE REGION WITH HIDDEN SPIRITUAL TREASURES THAT CAN ONLY BE ACCESSED THROUGH THE CHALLENGE OF PILGRIMAGE. THE JOURNEY, WHICH STARTS AT PASIGHAT OR ALONG, PASSES THROUGH TUTING AND CLIMAXES WITH THE CIRCUMAMBULATION OF THE FIVE LAKES OF DANAKOSHA HIGH IN THE DISTRICT OF DIBANG. FOR MORE INFORMATION CONTACT THE GREENER PASTURES, GUWAHATI (📍 THEGREENERPASTURES.COM), OR THE HOLIDAY SCOUT, BOMDILA (📍 THEHOLIDAYSCOUT.COM).

The Bean LIC Building, next to bus station, Pasighat 📍 facebook.com/CafeAtBean. Hip café serving good brews, teas, milkshakes (₹) and Western-styled finger food (from ₹). A cosy place to meet Pasighat's young and sophisticated, and use some decent free wi-fi. Daily 9am–8pm.

Namdapha National Park Oct–April daylight hours • Charge, camera charge The beautifully remote NAMDAPHA NATIONAL PARK, covering an area of 1985 square kilometres, is unique for its massive range of altitudes (200–4500m) and its huge biodiversity. Close to the Burmese border, Namdapha is home to tigers, leopards (clouded and snow), elephants, red pandas, deer and the endangered Hoolock gibbon, although you are unlikely to spot any big wildlife on a short visit.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY NAMDAPHA NATIONAL PARK BUS BUSES TO AND FROM MIAO, 25KM FROM THE PARK
ENTRANCE, PASS THROUGH MARGHERITA, 64KM
SOUTHWEST, AND THE CONVENIENT TINSUKIA, 40KM
FURTHER SOUTHWEST IN ASSAM, WHERE RAIL SERVICES RUN TO GUWAHATI. DIBRUGARH IS A FURTHER 47KM BEYOND TINSUKIA, WITH CONNECTIONS TO CENTRAL AND EAST ARUNACHAL.

Destinations from Miao Dibrugarh (daily; 6hr); Margherita (daily; 3hr); Tinsukia (daily; 4hr).

By car and taxi Taxis from Miao to the entry gates at Deban charge and vehicles are charged a parking fee.

By jeep Jeeps are not allowed in the National Park.

Information The park headquarters are at Miao (ask for the Field Director's office; ☎94368 35658), where you can book forest rest-houses. The best source of information is facebook.com/NamdaphaTigerReserve, run by the Nature Conservation Foundation.

ACCOMMODATION NAMDAPHA JUNGLE CAMP MIAO, UPPER COLONY ☎94362 28763. RUN BY A LOCAL NGO INVOLVED IN CONSERVATION, THIS GUESTHOUSE HAS JUST FOUR COMFORTABLE ROOMS AND A CARETAKER WHO WILL PROVIDE SIMPLE MEALS. ALL ROOMS HAVE HOT WATER IN THE ATTACHED BATHROOMS. BOOK IN ADVANCE AND THEY WILL LOOK AFTER YOUR ENTIRE ITINERARY. ₹₹

Nagaland

On the Myanmar border, south of Arunachal Pradesh and east of Assam, Nagaland is physically and conceptually at the very edge of the Subcontinent. Home to the fiercely independent Nagas, its hills and valleys only opened up to tourism in 2000. One of India's most beautiful states, it was once renowned for its head-hunters but is now ninety percent Christian.

A visit to a Naga village provides a fascinating insight into a rapidly disappearing way of life. Most tour operators arrange guided trips; it is a good idea and far more informative to use a guide than going solo as some Nagas are tired of having their homes on show. If you do visit, bring a gift and offer money for the village to the chief (or angh).

Traditional Angami villages surround the capital of Kohima, including Khonoma. From Mon you can see various Konyak villages such as Shangnyu and Longwa, which straddles the India-Myanmar border. The Ao tribe inhabits Mokokchung, while Tuensang is home to six different tribes. The state's terrain is also ideal for trekking and mountain biking.

Naga festivals are tribe-specific, characterized by ritualistic dances and songs in traditional attire. A good time to visit is during the Hornbill Festival (facebook.com/hornbillfestival.com), held in the first ten days of December, which showcases Naga art, dance, music and sport. Indians need a permit to visit Nagaland beyond Dimapur.

Dimapur

For most, bustling DIMAPUR, 74km northwest of Kohima, the main gateway to the state, comes as a disappointing introduction, feeling much like a typically busy Indian town. Don't let this put you off though, as Nagaland has a lot more to offer than Dimapur would lead you to believe. Almost unavoidable, the town provides all the vital air, road and train connections linking Nagaland to the other states of the Northeast, especially Assam and Manipur. On the riverside edge of town are the Kachari ruins, fertility symbols dating back to the thirteenth-century Kachari kingdom.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE DIMAPUR'S DIMAPUR AIRPORT IS 4KM NORTHEAST OF TOWN, OFF THE KOHIMA ROAD, CURRENTLY SERVICED BY AIR INDIA AND INDIGO. THERE ARE DIRECT CONNECTIONS ONLY TO DIBRUGARH AND KOLKATA.

Destination Dibrugarh (2 weekly; 45min); Kolkata (daily; 1hr 30min).

By train Dimapur is Nagaland's sole railhead.

Destinations Delhi (Brahmaputra Express; daily; 40hr); Dibrugarh (Kamakhya-Dibrugarh Intercity Express; daily; 10hr); Guwahati (Jan Shatabdi Express; Mon–Sat 4.55pm; 4hr 30min); Jorhat (Jan Shatabdi Express; Mon–Sat 10.45am; 2hr 35min); Simaluguri, for Sibsagar (Kamakhya-Ledo Intercity Express; daily; 4hr 10min); Tinsukia (Kamakhya-Ledo Intercity Express; daily; 7hr 15min).

THE NAGAS NAGA WARRIORS HAVE LONG BEEN FEARED AND RESPECTED, AND HAVE PRACTISED HEAD-HUNTING WITHIN LIVING MEMORY. THEY ARE ALSO SKILFUL FARMERS, GROWING TWENTY DIFFERENT SPECIES OF RICE. THEY DIFFERENTIATE BETWEEN THE SOUL AND THE SPIRIT, BELIEVING THE SOUL RESIDES IN THE NAPE

OF THE NECK, WHILE THE SPIRIT, IN THE HEAD, HOLDS GREAT POWER AND BRINGS GOOD FORTUNE. HEADS OF ENEMIES AND FALLEN COMRADES WERE ONCE COLLECTED TO ADD TO THOSE OF THE COMMUNITY'S OWN ANCESTORS. THE HEADS WERE KEPT IN THE MEN'S MEETING HOUSE (MORUNG) IN EACH VILLAGE, WHICH WAS DECORATED WITH FANTASTIC CARVINGS OF ANIMALS, ELEPHANT HEADS AND TUSKS – YOU CAN STILL SEE EXAMPLES IN MANY VILLAGES. AFTER DECADES OF CHRISTIANITY, DOMINATED BY THE BAPTISTS, AGE-OLD TRADITIONS WERE FADING AWAY AND FESTIVALS SUCH AS THE HORNBILL HAVE RECENTLY BEEN INTRODUCED IN AN ATTEMPT TO REINSTATE TRADITIONAL NAGA CULTURE. TODAY, MUSIC IS AN IMPORTANT FEATURE OF MODERN NAGA YOUTH CULTURE.

Politically, Nagaland has seen a series of violent insurgencies and a powerful independence movement. The Naga were brought within the Indian union when, following a series of Naga raids on Assamese villages, the British sought to push them back into the hills. Despite two victories over the British, the Angami Naga were made to sign a truce in 1879 and went on to be loyal to the British; during World War II the Nagas fought valiantly against the Japanese. At the time of Independence, the Nagas found their land divided, with the larger area falling to Burma; India's promise of self-determination never materialized, and today sections of Naga society still yearn for autonomy while politicians wrangle. Though a ceasefire is officially in place, violence occasionally flares up and the politics of independence have disintegrated into a quagmire of inter-political rivalries that pays little heed to the wellbeing of the Naga people.

By bus State and private buses run to Kohima, Imphal and Mon from the Nagaland State Transport stand adjacent to the station. Private buses to other destinations leave from Blue Hill, opposite the railway station.

Destinations Guwahati (daily; 11hr); Imphal (daily; 9hr); Itanagar (daily; 13hr); Jorhat (daily; 5hr); Kohima (several daily; 4hr).

By shared taxi The main transport hub is the railway station, from where shared taxis, marked yellow, regularly wait; services slow down after mid-afternoon.

Destinations Kohima (3hr); Mon (10–12hr).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ★ JUMPING BEAN 1ST FLOOR, ANA-KI, NEAR TATA PARKING, CIRCULAR RD. WITH A REFRESHINGLY VARIED MENU, FROM ORIENTAL AND KOREAN THROUGH TO GREAT SANDWICHES, PASTA AND COFFEE, THIS POPULAR BISTRO IS A HUB FOR THE TOWN'S LIVELY CONTEMPORARY MUSIC SCENE. DAILY 9AM–7PM.

Niathu Resort 7th Mile, Chumukedima 📍niathu.niathugroup.com. The most luxurious of Dimapur's hotels, the resort consists of cottages with an oblique reference to Naga traditional style coupled with large areas of marble flooring, modern amenities, a bar and a multicuisine restaurant. There's a swimming pool (charge), a gym and pleasant gardens. It's also handy for the airport. ₹₹₹

Tragopan Circular Rd 📍hoteltragopan.in. A popular business hotel across the tracks, with comfortable rooms and a decent restaurant. ₹₹

Kohima and around KOHIMA, Nagaland's capital, was established below the large Angami Kohima Village by the British in the nineteenth century and has been developing and spreading rapidly over the last few years. Traditional Naga villages – including Khonoma, 20km beyond Kohima, Jakhema and Kigwema – are just a short drive away, though Kohima itself is an increasingly cosmopolitan place, with traditional markets being replaced by modern shopping centres. Elsewhere the strength of Christianity is nowhere better epitomized than in the soaring gabled rooflines, inspired by the morung of the new Catholic cathedral to the south of the city.

Kohima Village The large Angami settlement of Kohima Village is set on a high hill overlooking modern Kohima. A few of the buildings still sport the traditional pitched roofs and crossed “house-horns” on the gables – a mark of seniority – and its tightly knit labyrinth of lanes maintains a strong Naga feel.

World War II Cemetery Spread over two large hills, Kohima forms a pass that played a strategic role during World War II. The Imphal–Dimapur highway – the route along which the Japanese hoped to reach the plains of India – crosses the saddle at the foot of the World War II Cemetery at the heart of Kohima. Located on the site of the battle that climaxed over the District Commissioner’s tennis court, the cemetery stands as a tribute to the Allies who died during the three-month Battle of Kohima, which ended in June 1944 with a death toll of more than ten thousand soldiers. A plaque towards the bottom of the cemetery bears the poignant message “When you go home, tell them of us and say, for your tomorrow, we gave our today”.

Kisama and around

10km south of Kohima

The Naga Heritage Village at Kisama, a showcase of Naga arts and crafts, is well worth the visit to see the collection of morung from most of the tribes of Nagaland. It is a beautiful spot, right under the wooded Japfu Peak (3048m), which makes a rewarding day-trek (Oct–May) from near Kisama and provides grand views of Kohima and beyond, especially at sunset or sunrise. The nearby Angami village of Kigwema, 3km further on, feels untouched and is well worth a walk through, with a guide.

Khonoma

20km northwest of Kohima

Khonoma and a rewarding day out, is where the Angami warriors made their final stand against the British in 1879. It’s a rare animist village that celebrates the festival of Sekrenyi (Purification of the Soul) in late February. Renowned as a “green village” where tradition is carefully preserved, Khonoma is surrounded by magnificent swirls of rice terraces irrigated by a complex system of bamboo water pipes. Several houses around Khonoma offer homestay facilities.

Dzükou Valley 25km south of Kohima • Entry charge • Camera charge • Shared Sumos leave Kohima's BOC Market to Viswema. From here, taxis to cover the 8km distance to the trek's starting point, or you can walk. It's another 3hr to the valley proper • A second, more demanding 5hr-long trek over steep rock-hewn steps starts 3km outside Jakhama village, but it's best to use this route to descend The scenic Dzükou Valley, part of the Khonoma Nature Conservation and Tragopan Sanctuary, straddles the Nagaland and Manipur border, and is graced with rolling green hills that blanket with thousands of colourful flowers in the wet season. Temperatures drop in the winter but the weather is clear and the valley remains green. There's only one extremely basic government-run guesthouse (₹ for pitching your tent or floor space in one of two dormitory halls; ₹ for a private room) which rent out sleeping pads, blankets, pots and cooking gear (₹ per piece) and sell simple thalis for ₹. Bring your own sleeping bag and some provisions from Kohima.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS KOHIMA AND AROUND BUSES DROP YOU AT THE STAND IN THE TOWN CENTRE.
FROM THE NAGALAND STATE TRANSPORT (NST) STAND, THERE ARE STATE BUSES TO DIMAPUR, MOKOKCHUNG AND IMPHAL. SHOW UP AT LEAST AN HOUR BEFORE YOUR DEPARTURE TIME, AS TICKETS CANNOT BE RESERVED AND SELL OUT VERY QUICKLY. TICKETS FOR PRIVATE BUSES CAN BE BOUGHT FROM AGENTS IN THE CENTRE.

Destinations Dimapur (hourly; 4hr); Imphal (7.30am; Mon–Sat; 6hr); Mokokchung (daily; 7hr); By Sumo Frequent Sumos to Dimapur and twice-daily Sumos to Mokokchung (6am & 10am) depart from the taxi stand 200m up from the bus station.

Destinations Dimapur (3hr); Mokokchung (5hr).

By car From Kohima, roads lead west to the railhead and airport at Dimapur, north to Mokokchung and south to Imphal. From Mokokchung, the road continues to Jorhat in Assam.

INFORMATION AND TOURS

Tourist office The tourist office (Mon–Fri 10am–4pm;  tourismnagaland.com) is on Officer's Hill.

Guides and tours Explore Nagaland's Nino Zhasa ( 98563 43037) arranges tours of Kigwema and guides for trekking to Japfu. For wildlife tours, contact Gurudongma Tours & Treks; for adventure treks contact Abor Country; and for homestays and customised private tours by car, contact Happy Fleet ( facebook.com/happyfleet6427).

ACCOMMODATION TO STAY HERE DURING THE HORNBILL FESTIVAL IN THE FIRST WEEK OF DECEMBER, YOU SHOULD BOOK WELL IN ADVANCE. THERE ARE SEVERAL HOMESTAYS AROUND THE CITY, AND DURING HORNBILL SEVERAL FAMILIES WELCOME GUESTS INTO THEIR HOMES.

Central Guesthouse Kohima 200m from the NST stand  facebook.com/ebguesthousekohima. Finally Kohima has a budget backpacker haunt, perfectly located in the centre of town. A sociable common room with great views of the city leads to simple, yet clean, dorms and three private rooms with shared bathrooms. Breakfast IS included and their café has decent meals for ₹. Dorms ₹, Doubles ₹₹

★Green Wood Villa Kipfuzha Sector, Kigwema  explorenagaland.com/homestays-2/greenwood-villa-homestay. A contemporary house close to the Heritage Village at Kisama, with all the comforts of home and great views from the roof garden; Nino organizes tours across Nagaland as well as treks up to Japfu peak. She can also arrange homestays in Kohima. This is the best place to stay for the Hornbill Festival, but do book well in advance. There's a dorm and annexe too, and good off-season discounts. Dorms ₹₹, doubles ₹₹₹

The Heritage Officers Hill, near DC Bungalow  94360 00044,  theheritagekohima@gmail.com. Once the District Commissioner's bungalow, this grand manor is set within extensive grounds south of the cemetery. Inside is a handful of beautiful wood rooms with large bathrooms, fireplaces, high ceilings and plenty of colonial charm. Meals are available to order. Run by the affable Thejal, who also runs the Dream Café in town. ₹₹₹

★Razhü Pru Mission Compound 📍razhupru.com. A lovely old British-era manor-house, conveniently located 200m uphill past the Kohima Village gates. Large rambling rooms are well decorated throughout with Naga art, and the place has a great atmosphere and a fireplace. The restaurant serves good multicuisine meals including Naga dishes (₹₹ per head). ₹₹₹

EATING TRADITIONAL NAGA COOKING IS BASED AROUND RICE WITH BOILED VEGETABLES, BAMBOO SHOOTS AND MEAT, AND THE INFAMOUS NAGA CHILLI. EVERYTHING, BESIDES HOTELS, SHUTS DOWN BY 7PM AND THERE IS A STATE-WIDE BAN ON ALCOHOL. MOST PLACES ARE CLOSED SUNDAYS.

Aradura Spur Café Aradura Inn 📞76308 78485. A relaxed and elegant restaurant and café with soft sofas, dining areas and an open kitchen, serving a multicuisine menu alongside Naga dishes. It's a popular hangout for young people, and the hilltop location affords great views. Daily 10am–6pm.

★Chingtsüong Razhü Point, Main Town 📞94360 01855. Chingtsüong (“come and eat”), with its bamboo-and-cane interiors and weapons on the wall, has plenty of atmosphere, and is the place to come if you're looking for an authentic Naga meal. Try the smoked pork with anishi (dried yam leaves; ₹). The owner will keep the restaurant open in the evenings, with prior booking, for larger groups. Mon–Sat 9am–5pm.

The Continent Razhü Point, Main Town 📞90772 38022. Elegant and hip Western-style bistro cum café with wood-panelled walls, large sofas, wall windows and padded chairs. They serve cakes and a variety of cuisines, from Tibetan to Chinese, plus a small selection of beef steaks. A meal will set you back around ₹₹. Daily 10am–6pm.

Dream Café Jasokie Place, Main Town. 📍facebook.com/kohimadreams. At the back of the UCO building, off the crossroads near the bottom of the cemetery, this small café and patisserie, owned by a renowned local musician (also owner of The Heritage), is a great meeting place, with pizzas, cakes and coffee. It's popular, and sometimes you will need to wait for a space. Around ₹ a head. Mon–Sat 10am–4pm.

Mon and around In the far northeast of Nagaland, 70km southeast of Sibsagar in Assam, MON is the regional capital of the Konyak tribe, mainly attractive as a base for visits to the surrounding villages. Look out for older Konyaks with elaborate and iconic facial tattoos and goat-horn earrings.

In April, the Konyaks celebrate the six-day spring Aoling festival, turning out in all their finery to mark the new year. A bumpy 23km drive northeast from Mon, Shangnyu is a typical Naga village where the welcoming angh's (chief's) home is packed with horns and animal skulls; the village also has a small but interesting museum. Another gruelling 42km drive east from Mon is Longwa, an interesting Konyak Naga village whose chief, angh Nowano IV's, home lies right across the India-Myanmar border. As locals say, their chief “rules from Myanmar, and sleeps in India”, where his bedroom is located. From Longwa, you can trek to the nearby villages of Phuka, Weting and Nyanyu.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS AND MON AND AROUND JEEP BUSES AND JEEPS TO MON RUN FROM DIBRUGARH VIA SONARI IN ASSAM (ASK AT YOUR HOTEL FOR SCHEDULES; AT LEAST 7HR), BYPASSING THE NEED TO GO THROUGH DIMAPUR AND KOHIMA – BUT BE PREPARED FOR DREADFUL ROADS AFTER THE BORDER AT TIZIT, AND CHECK CURRENT PERMIT REGULATIONS BEFORE YOU SET OFF.

ACCOMMODATION HELSA COTTAGE 15MIN WALK FROM MON TAXI STAND/MARKET ☎9436433782. A WELCOMING PLACE RUN BY A KONYAK FAMILY, WITH LARGE ROOMS AND HOT WATER PROVIDED IN BUCKETS, WHICH YOU CAN TAKE INTO THE ATTACHED BATHROOMS. THE FOOD IS REASONABLE AND THEY CAN ARRANGE GUIDES. YOU MUST RESERVE IN ADVANCE IN APRIL AS IT'S A BUSY PERIOD OF LOCAL FESTIVALS. NO WI-FI. ₹₹

Mokokchung and around 160km north of Kohima (5hr by jeep) A vibrant hill-town southwest of Mon, Mokokchung is Nagaland's third-largest urban centre, yet remains a quiet backwater in terms of tourism. Just 104km from Jorhat and more easily accessible from Assam than Kohima or Dimapur, Mokokchung makes a good base for exploring the surrounding Ao villages, including Longkhum, 17km away, which has a small museum and a guesthouse.

Tuensang

Tuensang, 115km east of Mokokchung, lies at the centre of a region inhabited by six different tribes – the Phom, Khiamniungan, Chang, Yimchunger and Sangtam. From here it's a two-day drive to Thanamir, and the start of a stunning two-day trek between tribal villages to Mount Saramati, Nagaland's highest peak (3826m), near the Burmese border. En route, there are basic places to stay at Kiphire. Check the security situation with your tour operator before setting off.

Mizoram

Heading south from Assam into Mizoram, “land of the highlanders”, a winding mountain road takes you into forests and bamboo-covered hills. Mizoram is a gentle pastoral land, and the Mizos are a welcoming people who see very little tourism. Whitewashed churches dot the landscape, giving it more of the feel of a Central American country than a state squashed between Burma and Bangladesh.

The Mizos, who migrated from the Chin Hills of Burma, regularly raided tea plantations in the Assam Valley right into the late nineteenth century; only in 1924 did the British finally manage to bring about some semblance of control. They opened up what were then the Lushai Hills to missionaries who converted much of the state to Christianity. Aizawl, the capital, is a large sprawling city built on impossibly steep slopes. In the heart of the state, traditional Mizo communities occupy the crests of a series of ridges, each village dominated by its chief's house and zawlbuk, or bachelors' dormitory. An egalitarian people, without gender or class distinctions, the Mizos remain proud of their age-old custom of Tlawmgaihna, a code of ethics that governs hospitality. They enjoy a 95 percent literacy rate and are culturally more influenced by the Christian West than by mainstream India; music is an important part of Mizo life and an integral part of the Mizo Christian service. Indians need a permit to enter.

Aizawl

One of India's remotest state capitals, AIZAWL (1250m), with the Tropic of Cancer passing straight through it, perches precariously on the steep slopes of a sharp ridge. Although the views are of hills rather than snowy mountains, it has something of the feel of a Himalayan hill station. There are few monuments or temples, but the markets are interesting and there are some extraordinary churches, including the imposing Solomon's Temple, which looks a bit like a cardboard cut-out, at Chawlhmun. Everything closes on Sunday, when many people go to church dressed in their best. Zarkawt is the downtown area, where Bara Bazaar (Mon–Sat 6am–3pm) is the city's main attraction: everything from Mizo music to bespoke shoes can be bought here.

The Durtlang Hills immediately north of Aizawl, and Luangmual, 7km west of the centre, provide pleasant walking country – both are easy day-trips.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE THE EASIEST WAY OF AIZAWL TRAVELLING TO MIZORAM IS BY AIR, AS THE OVERLAND ROUTES ARE LONG AND TEDIOUS. TO THE NORTH, THE BUSY COMMERCIAL HUB OF SILCHAR, 180KM AWAY IN ASSAM, PROVIDES THE MOST CONVENIENT TRANSPORT HUB.

By plane Aizawl's Lengpui airport is 35km west of the city. A taxi to the airport costs around ₹₹. Prepaid tickets for shared taxis are sold at the arrivals hall; taxis leave for town when full, so you may have to wait for an hour or so.

Destinations Guwahati (daily; 1hr 15min); Imphal (3 weekly; 50min); Kolkata (daily; 1hr 30min).

By Sumo The only recommended road out of Mizoram from Aizawl leads to Silchar, with Sumos the best way to travel; there are several ticket agents in Zarkawt. Buy tickets from the counters at Zarkawt.

BAMBOO, RATS AND REVOLUTION MIZORAM'S TWO MAIN SPECIES OF BAMBOO FLOWER EVERY 48–50 YEARS, ATTRACTING HORDES OF RATS THAT DEVOUR CROPS, LEADING TO FAMINE. THE FIRST TIME THIS HAPPENED, IN 1959, THE GOVERNMENT WAS SERIOUSLY UNPREPARED, WHICH LED LALDENG A TO FOUND THE MIZO FAMINE FRONT (MFF) TO COMBAT FAMINE. IT TRANSFORMED INTO THE MIZO NATIONAL FRONT (MNF), A GUERRILLA GROUP FIGHTING FOR SECESSION. THE GOVERNMENT'S HEAVY-HANDED RESPONSE IN 1967 BOOSTED SUPPORT FOR THE MNF WHO RELIED ON ESSENTIAL PAKISTANI ASSISTANCE, WHICH CAME TO AN END WITH BANGLADESHI INDEPENDENCE. THE MNF EVENTUALLY CAME TO THE NEGOTIATING TABLE AND STATEHOOD WAS GRANTED IN 1986 IN RETURN FOR AN END TO THE INSURGENCY. MIZORAM IS NOW THE MOST PEACEFUL OF THE "SEVEN SISTERS". HOWEVER, IN 2007 THE BAMBOO BEGAN TO FLOWER AGAIN, THE RAT POPULATION GREW AND CROPS WERE DESTROYED; THANKFULLY, THIS TIME THE FAMINE WAS NOT AS DEVASTATING.

Destinations Guwahati via Silchar (14–18hr); Shillong (14–18hr); Silchar (4–6hr).

By bus Private bus companies in Zarkawt run services to Silchar and beyond. Buses leave for Luangmual from outside the Salvation Army Temple.

Destinations Guwahati (daily; 14–18hr); Shillong (daily; 14–18hr); Silchar (multiple daily; 7hr).

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST OFFICE THERE'S A TOURIST OFFICE AT THE NEW SECRETARIAT COMPLEX IN KHATLA (MON–FRI 9AM–5PM).

Tours and transport Staff at David's Clover hotel are extremely good at arranging transport around Mizoram for guests. Maliana of Evergreen Tours & Travels, Chanmari Chaltland Rd (www.facebook.com/p/Ever-Green-Tours-Travels-100069142482881), provides guides, organizes treks and adventure tour packages, including overland tours to Myanmar.

ACCOMMODATION ★DAVID'S HOTEL CLOVER 300M NORTH OF HRANGBANA COLLEGE, CHANMARI www.facebook.com/pages/Davids-Hotel-Clover-Aizawl-Mizoram/167584330096433. THIS RECENTLY RENOVATED, CENTRAL, FAMILY-RUN, MID-RANGE HOTEL IS RUN ON A B&B BASIS. IT OFFERS COMFORTABLE ROOMS AND A GYM; EACH ROOM HAS A TV AND FRIDGE. THE OWNERS, AND ESPECIALLY DOLLY, ARE EXTREMELY HELPFUL AND WILL ARRANGE TRANSPORT AND SUGGEST ITINERARIES; THE DAVID'S KITCHEN RESTAURANT IS GOOD FOR LOCAL MIZO CUISINE. ₹₹₹

Regency B49 Zarkawt Main St www.regencyaizawl.com. The fanciest address in town, with lavish marble interiors, provides a promising introduction, but the rooms themselves are uninspiring. There is wi-fi, a good travel service and the restaurant is trendy and bright. ₹₹₹

Ritz Near Machhunga Point, Bara Bazaar 03892 323358. A good option, popular with business travellers. Staff are friendly, and there's a range of rooms, all with wi-fi, as well the excellent Blue Berry multicuisine restaurant. ₹₹

EATING THE BEST RESTAURANTS ARE IN HOTELS, AND THERE ARE A COUPLE OF GOOD CAFÉS AROUND. FOR LOCAL CUISINE, MILD BY INDIAN STANDARDS, TRY THE MODEST RESTAURANTS AROUND BARA BAZAAR. THE STATE IS DRY AND MOST EATERIES NOT ATTACHED TO HOTELS CLOSE BY AROUND 7PM.

Magnolia 1st floor, Regency Hotel, Zarkawt ☎03892 349334. This is the smartest restaurant in town, with bright-yellow walls featuring Mizo decor and white-leather chic. The menu offers a variety of dishes, from pasta to tandoori. Try the sesame oven-roasted fish or the seafood bisque. Around ₹ a head. Daily 7.30am–9.30pm.

Zo Foods Near Vanapa Hall ☎03892 328726, 🌐facebook.com/zofood. Popular restaurant with ethnic décor and specialised in authentic Mizo food. Try the pork stew and pork bamboo shoot rice, two excellent choices. A meal will set you back around ₹. Mon-Sat 11am–9.30pm.

Manipur

Manipur, stretching along the border with Burma, centres on a vast lowland area watered by the lake system south of its capital Imphal. This far corner is home to the Meithei, who despite their own fascinating version of Vaishnava Hinduism, remain resolutely independent in their thinking. With its myriad tribes, including Naga, Manipur feels closer to Southeast Asia – and you can indeed cross into Myanmar from here – than mainstream India and many locals speak neither English nor Hindi. Manipur's matriarchal society means that women do most of the work and also champion political causes, with well-publicized protests against the violation of women and the people of Manipur by paramilitary groups stationed in the state. The strength of Manipuri women is no better exemplified than by the universal popularity and success of the inspiring boxer and five-times World Champion and Olympic medallist, Mary Kom.

Although the vale of Imphal is now all but devoid of trees, the outlying hills are still forested and shelter exotic birds and animals like the spotted linshang, Blyth's tragopan and even the clouded leopard, as well as numerous varieties of orchid. The unique natural habitat of Loktak Lake is home to the sangai deer – a symbol of Manipur.

Manipur's history can be traced back to the founding of Imphal in the first century AD. After long periods of independent and stable government, the state was incorporated into India at the end of the Indo-Burmese war in 1826, before coming under British rule in 1891. During World War II, much of Manipur was occupied by the Japanese, with 250,000 British and Indian troops trapped under siege in Imphal for three months. Thanks to a massive RAF airlift, the Allies held out, and when Japanese troops received the order to end the Imphal campaign, it was in effect the end of the campaign to conquer India. Manipur became a fully-fledged Indian state in 1972.

Imphal and around Encircled by distant hills, Manipur's capital, IMPHAL (785m), lies at the northern end of the lake district and sprawls around the extensive grounds of what was once the medieval fortress of Kangla. Closed to the public for years due to it being a paramilitary camp, the large park behind the boulevard of Kanglawat holds some remains of the old fort, taken by the British following the war of 1891. The Polo Ground adjacent to Kangla plays an important role in Manipuri tradition; according to popular legend, the Manipuri game of Sagol Kangjei is the inspiration for modern polo, and every November the Sangai Festival features an international polo tournament.

Close to the main gates of Kangla, the Shaheed Minar memorial commemorates the failed Meithei revolt against British occupation in 1891, while a short distance south is the State Museum (Tues–Sun 10am–4pm, Charge, imphalwest.nic.in/tourist-place/manipur-state-museum), a showcase for Manipuri culture with tribal art and costumes and a historical collection, along with stuffed animals.

Khwairamband bazaar Kangchup Rd • Daily around 9am to late afternoon At the heart of Imphal, the fascinating Khwairamband bazaar, also known as ima keithel (mother's market), now rehoused in four buildings and spilling on the kerb outside, is run by more than three thousand Meithei women, making it the largest female-run market in Asia.

Shri Shri Govindjee Southeast of Kangla, the Vaishnavite temple of Shri Shri Govindjee, where priests perform rituals addressing the deities according to the times of day, is well worth a visit, especially in the afternoon when you may be lucky to catch a glimpse of a Manipuri dance rehearsal in the hall opposite. Nearby lies the old Royal Palace, closed to the public.

War cemetery and memorial The Commonwealth War Graves Commission immaculately maintains the Imphal War Cemetery (daily: March–Sept 9am–4.30pm; Oct–Feb 9am–4pm), 500m north of the Tourist Lodge on Imphal Road, while south of the city near Bishnupur, a Japanese memorial stands as a poignant reminder of the war.

SAFETY IN MANIPUR MANIPUR HAS BEEN RACKED BY WAVES OF VIOLENCE THROUGH INSURGENCY, DRUG- AND ARMS-TRAFFICKING ACROSS THE BURMESE BORDER, AND BRUTAL FACTIONAL CONFLICT. SOME GOVERNMENTS, INCLUDING THAT OF THE UK, STILL ADVISE AGAINST ALL BUT ESSENTIAL TRAVEL TO THE STATE (SEE GOV.UK/FOREIGN-TRAVEL-ADVICE); BUT AT THE TIME OF WRITING, THE SITUATION HAS GREATLY IMPROVED AND TRAVEL TO THE VALE OF IMPHAL IS GENERALLY SAFE. YOU CAN ARRIVE BY AIR OR BY ROAD FROM KOHIMA AND DIMAPUR WITHOUT A PERMIT, BUT YOUR PASSPORT WILL BE REGISTERED AND STAMPED UPON ARRIVAL AT THE AIRPORT OR AT ROAD CHECKPOINTS. IT IS RECOMMENDED YOU SEEK THE ADVICE OF A LOCAL TOUR OPERATOR, AND A LOCAL GUIDE, IF HEADING INTO THE HILLS AND BORDER REGIONS.

Andro Heritage Village 25km from east of Imphal • Buses leave from Andro Parking in Imphal's Wangkhai area Nestled in the verdant foothills of the Nongmaiching Hills, the ancient village of ANDRO has transformed into an interesting heritage village. The Meitei-styled temple to Panam Ningthou, the village's governing deity, is 1.5km from Andro Bazaar. It houses the "sacred fire of Andro", one of the Meitei's holiest sites, which has been kept burning since the 1st century AD. The Mutua Bahadur Museum, (Sat–Sun 24 hrs; Charge) a cultural complex established in 1993, has model houses of Manipur's various ethnic groups — including the Meitei, Kuki, Tangkhul, Kabui and Mao.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE IMPHAL IMPHAL AIRPORT, 6KM TO THE SOUTH, IS WELL CONNECTED TO GUWAHATI AND KOLKATA AND SEES A HANDFUL OF FLIGHTS TO AIZAWL. THERE ARE NO AIRPORT BUS CONNECTIONS TO THE CITY CENTRE; RESERVED TAXIS CHARGE AROUND ₹, SHARED AUTOS ₹. FOREIGNERS CURRENTLY DO NOT NEED PERMITS BUT MUST ENTER PASSPORT DETAILS AT THE DESK JUST INSIDE THE ARRIVALS HALL.

Destinations Agartala (4 weekly; 50min); Aizawl (4 weekly; 50min); Guwahati (4 daily; 50min); Kolkata (4 daily; 1hr 30min); Silchar (3 weekly; 35min).

By bus and Sumo The AOC (Assam Oil Corporation) corner on Dimapur Rd is the main hub, with buses and unscheduled Sumos to Dimapur (215km), the closest railhead (via Kohima), and Guwahati. The roundabout across the bridge opposite Khwairamband bazaar has buses to Moirang.

Bus destinations Dimapur via Kohima (7hr); Guwahati (12–15hr); Kohima (5hr); Moirang (1hr).

By shared taxi Winger shared taxis (large vans) are a bit faster than buses and Sumos, and ply round the clock to Dimapur and Moirang. Share taxis to Silchar leave from Wahengbam Leikai Jiri parking.

Destinations Dimapur (6hr); Silchar (9–11hr).

By taxi A reserved taxi to Dimapur costs ₹₹₹.

INFORMATION TOURIST OFFICE THE STATE TOURIST OFFICE (MON–SAT 9.30AM–4.30PM; 📞 MANIPURTOURISM.GOV.IN) IS AT THE DIRECTORATE OF TOURISM BUILDING, OFF THE MAIN DIMAPUR RD. THE INDIA TOURISM OFFICE IS ON JAIL RD (MON–FRI 9.30AM–5PM).

Banks & ATMs The State Bank of India on MG Ave has a foreign exchange service.

Tours Seven Sisters (MG Ave; ☎97061 23401, 🌐sevensistersholidays.com) offers tours and books road and air transport. Khuibo Tours & Travel, Yaiskul Chingakham Leirak (🌐facebook.com/tourtonortheastindia/), offers itineraries and guides around Manipur, including Loktak Lake.

ACCOMMODATION IMPHAL HAS A FEW DECENT HOTELS, WHERE YOU WILL FIND THE BEST RESTAURANTS, BUT THERE ARE NO BARS – MANIPUR IS ANOTHER OF THE NORTHEAST'S DRY STATES AND EVERYTHING, OUTSIDE THE HOTELS, SHUTS DOWN AROUND 7PM.

Aheibam Homestay Iroishemba Forest Gate, 5km west of the Khwairamband bazaar 🌐facebook.com/ImphalHomestay. Charming homestay set under Imphal's only hill, and run by Milan, an experienced local guide and eco-farmer. The two rooms are non-attached, set around a sunny courtyard, and a perfect spot to experience simple Manipuri family life. Breakfast is included, and meals are available on request. ₹₹

★The Classic North AOC, Dimapur Rd 🌐theclassichotel.in. Opposite the Kangla grounds, this is the most opulent of Imphal's hotels, with a swish lobby, two good restaurants and great breakfasts. Both a/c and non-a/c rooms are comfortable and have modern amenities; service is friendly and they also have a useful travel desk. ₹₹

Loktak Lake and around 60km south of Imphal • Keibul Lamjao National Park daily 9am–6pm • Charge South of Imphal, Lotak Lake is home to a unique community of fishermen who live on circular floating atolls of matted vegetation, called phumdis. Much of the lake is taken up by the Keibul Lamjao National Park, a floating park located on the largest phumdis, home to the endemic and endangered sangai deer that live on the reed beds. Avoid the hill at Sendra, which is now a paramilitary camp surrounded by litter. You can drive up to Sendra Island and get a boat to the national park and the phumdis. The park has a viewing tower on a hill with views down to the reed beds; it is a good 1.5km past the gate. You will need binoculars and lots of patience to catch sight of any wildlife.

Moirang

3km from the lake and 45km south of Imphal On the way to Loktak, the small town of MOIRANG is the traditional centre of Meithei culture, with a temple devoted to the pre-Hindu deity Thangjing. In April 1944, the Indian National Army planted its flag at Moirang, having fought alongside the Japanese against the British Indian Army for the cause of Independence. The INA Memorial Complex (Tues–Sun 10am–4pm) commemorates the event.

Tripura

Surrounded by Bangladesh on three sides, the lush mountains, hills and valleys of TRIPURA became part of India in 1949. Its fate and culture has been closely entwined with Bengal, while indigenous ethnic groups form around thirty percent of the population, mostly around the northern and eastern districts. Partition and the subsequent creation of East Pakistan (now Bangladesh) in 1948, followed by war, famine and military regimes, forced millions of Bangladeshis to flee into Tripura. Indigenous people, such as the Tripuri (a Tibeto-Burman ethnic group), became outnumbered, causing resentment and conflict over the decades. In 2013, elections returned the CPI(M) government, making Tripura one of the last Communist-run states in India. Today, Agartala, the capital, is a relaxed city with a palace and a few temples. A handful of wildlife sanctuaries, such as Gumti, Rowa, Trishna and Sepahijala, protect the state's few remaining forests, while to the northeast the medieval Shaivite rock carvings of Unakoti are now accessible after years of strife.

CROSSING OVER INTO MYANMAR

Since May 2018, the once off-limits border between Manipur and Myanmar has opened to independent travelers. If you are travelling on foot or by bicycle, all you need is a Myanmar Evisa ( evisa.moip.gov.mm) which costs 50USD, is valid for 28 days, and takes up to 3 days. Shared jeeps to the border town of Moreh (several daily between 7am and 11am; 3hr) start from Imphal's Sumo stand at Moirang Khom. Burmese taxis continue from the Myanmar entry checkpoint to Tamu. From here, buses proceed to Mandalay. If you are overlanding with your own car or motorbike, however, you will still need a special permit on top of a Myanmar Evisa, and you will need to cross in a convoy of vehicles. Milan Sanji of Aheibam Homestay (business.google.com/website/aheibam-homestay) can organise all the necessary documents. You can also consult Horizons Unlimited (www.horizonsunlimited.com) or Overland to Asia Facebook Group (bit.ly/2s0nRE3) to organise a convoy. Finally, check the news for the current security situation before you set off.

Agartala and around Agartala, Tripura's capital, is a laidback administrative centre. Its main attraction is the gleaming white Ujjayanta Palace, completed in 1901. Set amid formal gardens and artificial lakes, this huge building, now home to the State Legislative Assembly, covers around eight hundred acres. Across the road, one of many temples nearby and open to the public, the Jagannath Temple's orange tower rises from an octagonal plinth.

Kamala Sagar lake, 27km south of Agartala, is overlooked by a small Kali temple. Twenty-eight kilometres along the road south to Udaipur, the Sepahijala nature reserve and botanical gardens (9am–4pm closed Fri; Entry charge, camera charge) is actually a vast zoo dedicated to the preservation of animals such as the Hoolock gibbon, capped langur and slow loris. With a bit of luck, you may spot clouded leopard.

Boxanagar

43km southeast of Agartala • Direct buses to Boxanagar leave from Agartala's Nagerjala Bus Stand. In Boxanagar, catch an auto or walk 10min to reach the site. The red brick stupas of Boxanagar date back to the 6th century and are a well-preserved, albeit remote, sign of early Buddhist influence over the region. You can visit and climb the base structure of two stupas, and peek across the nearby border into Bangladesh.

Tripura Sundari

55km southeast of Agartala

Of particular note in Udaipur, a town of lakes and temples, is Tripura Sundari, a sixteenth-century temple dedicated to Kali. It is also one of the shakti pithas, marking where Sati's right foot landed when her body fell to earth in 51 pieces. Animal sacrifices are common.

Neermahal

55km south of Agartala • Take a boat from the Rudrasagar lakeshore (10min; charge) The red-and-white fairy-tale water palace at Neermahal stands in the waters of Lake Rudrasagar in Melaghar. The former royal palace, accessible by boat, was built in 1930 as a summer home for Maharaja Bir Bikram Kishore, blending Hindu and Islamic styles. Today, the ravages of time are apparent on its frontage.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY PLANE AGARTALA
AGARTALA AIRPORT, 12KM NORTH OF THE CENTRE, HAS DIRECT FLIGHTS TO GUWAHATI, KOLKATA, IMPHAL AND SILCHAR SERVICED BY AIR INDIA, SPICE JET AND INDIGO. PLANS TO UPGRADE THE AIRPORT AND LINK IT TO BANGLADESH ARE CURRENTLY UNDERWAY. AUTOS (₹) AND TAXIS (₹₹) RUN FROM THE AIRPORT TO THE CENTRE OF AGARTALA.

CROSSING OVER INTO BANGLADESH AGARTALA IS 2KM FROM THE BORDER WITH BANGLADESH. THERE IS NO OFFICIAL CURRENCY EXCHANGE AT THE BORDER SO IT'S ADVISABLE TO CHANGE YOUR RUPEES IN TOWN. RICKSHAWS ON THE BANGLADESHI SIDE CAN TAKE YOU TO AKHAURA JUNCTION, 4KM AWAY, FROM WHERE THERE ARE TRAINS TO COMILLA, SYLHET AND DHAKA. BUSES TO DHAKA (1 DAILY MON-SAT; 4HR) START FROM THE TRIPURA ROAD TRANSPORT CORPORATION (TRTC) STAND IN KRISHNANAGAR (AGARTALA) AND FURTHER CONTINUE TO KOLKATA (10HR). VISAS

FOR BANGLADESH (REQUIRED) ARE CHECKED AT THE BORDER CROSSING; ENTRY FORMALITIES ARE CARRIED OUT AGAIN ON THE BANGLADESHI SIDE BORDER. THE BANGLADESHI EMBASSY, KUNJABAN, NEAR CIRCUIT HOUSE IN AGARTALA (MON–FRI 9.30AM–12.30PM & 3.30–4.30PM; www.agartala.mofa.gov.bd), ISSUES VISAS. CHECK THE NEWS FOR THE CURRENT SECURITY SITUATION BEFORE BOOKING.

Destinations Guwahati (daily; 50min); Imphal (Mon, Thurs & Sat; 45min); Kolkata (daily; 1hr).

By train Agartala has limited connections to Lumding and Silchar in Assam. However, at the time of writing, all rail services were suspended.

By bus and Sumo Buses drop off at the Chandrapur bus stand (also known as ISBT) or one of the private company offices on LN Bari Rd. Buses leave from ISBT for the gruelling journey to Silchar, Shillong and Guwahati; book tickets in advance to avoid frequent stoppages and changes. Buses and Sumos to Udaipur leave from Nagarjala.

Bus destinations Guwahati (daily; 20hr); Shillong (daily; 17hr); Silchar (daily; 12hr); Udaipur (every 20min; 2hr).

Information and tours The tourist office (TTDC), at the Palace Compound (Mon–Sat 10am–4.30pm; www.indiapl.com/tripura/tripura-tourism-development-corporation-limited-908186), organize good-value multi-day tours and day car rental (₹/km).

ACCOMMODATION EXECUTIVE INN 9 MANTRI BARI, www.oyorooms.com/45105/. SET IN THE MARKET, THIS LITTLE HOTEL PROVIDES GOOD-VALUE, COMFORTABLE ACCOMMODATION. STAFF OFFER HELPFUL TRAVEL ADVICE AND THERE’S A GOOD RESTAURANT TOO – BLOSSOM – WITH INDIAN FOOD. ₹₹

Ginger Khejurbagan, Airport Rd www.gingerhotels.com. Efficient chain-hotel 15min from the airport, with clean rooms, modern amenities (including a gym), welcoming staff and attractive full-board packages for multi-night stays. There is a decent restaurant and a Coffee Café Day downstairs. Staff at the travel desk can organize tours. Rates include taxes.

₹₹₹

< Back to The Northeast

Shutterstock
SETTING OUT ACROSS CHILIKA LAKE

Odisha

Bhubaneswar

Around Bhubaneswar

Northeastern Odisha

Puri

Konark

Southeastern Odisha

Odisha Despite being one of India's poorest states, Odisha – formerly known as Orissa – boasts a rich and distinctive cultural heritage. Its coastal plains have the highest concentration of historical and religious monuments – Odisha's principal tourist attractions. Puri, site of the famous Jagannath temple and one of the world's most spectacular devotional processions, the Rath Yatra, combines the heady intensity of a Hindu pilgrimage centre with the more hedonistic pleasures of the beach. Konark, just up the coast, has the ruins of Odisha's most ambitious medieval temple, whose surfaces writhe with exquisitely preserved sculpture, including some eyebrow-raising erotica. The ancient rock-cut caves and ornate temples of Bhubaneswar, the state capital, hark back to an era when it ruled a kingdom stretching from the Ganges delta to the mouth of the River Godavari.

Away from the central “Golden Triangle” of sights, foreign travellers are few and far between, though you’ll see plenty of Bengali tourists travelling throughout coastal Odisha. In the winter, the small islands dotted around Chilika Lake, a huge saltwater lagoon south of Bhubaneswar, is good for birdwatchers. Further north, in the Bhitarkanika Sanctuary, a remote stretch of beach is the nesting site for rare olive ridley turtles.

From the number of temples in Odisha, you’d be forgiven for thinking Brahmanical Hinduism was its sole religion. In fact, almost a quarter of the population are adivasi (literally “first”), or “tribal” people, thought to have descended from the area’s pre-Aryan aboriginal inhabitants. In the more inaccessible corners of the state many of these groups have retained unique cultural traditions and languages, though dam builders, missionaries, “advancement programmes” initiated by the state government, and the activities of Maoist rebels continue to threaten their way of life. Tourism poses another danger.

Brief history Other than scattered fragmentary remains of prehistoric settlement, Odisha’s earliest archeological find dates from the fourth century BC. The fortified city of Sisupalgarh, near modern Bhubaneswar, was the capital of the Kalinga dynasty, about which little is known. In the third century BC, the ambitious Mauryan emperor Ashoka routed the Kalingan kingdom in a battle so bloody that the carnage was supposed to have inspired his legendary conversion to Buddhism. Rock edicts erected around the empire extol the virtues of the new faith, dharma, as well as the principles that Ashoka hoped to instil in his vanquished subjects. With the demise of the Mauryans, Kalinga enjoyed something of a resurgence. Under the imperialistic Chedi Jain dynasty, vast sums were spent expanding the capital and on carving elaborate monastery caves into the nearby hills of Khandagiri and Udaigiri. During the second century BC, however, the kingdom gradually splintered into warring factions and entered a kind of dark age. The influence of Buddhism waned, Jainism all but vanished, and Brahmanism, disseminated by the teachings of the Shaivite zealot Lakulisha, started to resurface as the dominant religion.

BEST TIME TO VISIT THE BEST TIME TO VISIT
ODISHA IS THE OCTOBER–MARCH PERIOD – ESPECIALLY NOVEMBER, DECEMBER AND JANUARY
– WHEN THE WEATHER IS WARM AND DRY. IT GETS UNCOMFORTABLY HOT IN APRIL–MAY, AND THE MONSOON GENERALLY HITS IN JUNE AND LASTS
UNTIL THE END OF SEPTEMBER. THE FIRST COUPLE OF MONTHS OF THE RAINY SEASON ARE ALSO SWELTERING, BUT THIS IS WHEN ODISHA’S MOST FAMOUS FESTIVAL, THE RATH YATRA, TAKES PLACE.

Shutterstock

SUN TEMPLE AT KONARK

Highlights

- ① Bhubaneswar Hidden in the suburbs of the state capital are around five hundred temples with unique architecture and elaborate sculptures, including the majestic Lingaraj Mandir.
- ② Udaigiri and Khandagiri Among Odisha's premier historical sites, these 2000-year-old sandstone caves, once occupied by Jain monks, feature fascinating carvings and friezes.
- ③ Satkosia Tiger Reserve Located in central Odisha, this little-visited, very scenic reserve is set around the beautiful Mahanadi River and the eponymous gorge.
- ④ Olive ridley turtles Endangered olive ridley turtles journey to Gahirmatha beach for one night in February or March to lay their eggs – an unforgettable scene.
- ⑤ Puri With one of India's holiest temples and a laidback traveller scene, Puri is an essential stop-off for pilgrims and backpackers.
- ⑥ Rath Yatra Pilgrims flock to Puri to celebrate Lord Jagannath during the frenetic midsummer "Car Festival".
- ⑦ Konark Dating back to the thirteenth century, this elegant Hindu temple sits astride a huge stone chariot and is decorated by some extraordinary erotic carvings.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

A golden age Odisha's golden age, during which the region's prosperous Hindu rulers created some of South Asia's most sophisticated art and architecture, peaked in the twelfth century under the Eastern Gangas. Fuelled by the gains from a thriving trade network (which extended as far east as Indonesia), the Ganga kings erected magnificent temples where Shiva worship and arcane tantric practices adopted by earlier Odishan rulers were replaced by new forms of devotion to Vishnu. The shrine of the most popular royal deity of all, Lord Jagannath, at Puri, was by now one of the four most hallowed religious centres in India.

In the fifteenth century, the Afghans of Bengal swept south to annexe the region, with Man Singh's Mughal army hot on their heels in 1592. That even a few medieval Hindu monuments escaped the excesses of the ensuing iconoclasm is miraculous, and non-Hindus have never since been allowed to enter the most holy temples in Puri and Bhubaneswar. In 1751 the Marathas from western India ousted the Mughals as the dominant regional power. The East India Company, meanwhile, was also making inroads along the coast, and 28 years after Clive's victory at Plassey in 1765, Odisha finally came under British rule.

Post-Independence Following Independence, the state saw rapid development. Discoveries of coal, bauxite, iron ore and other minerals stimulated considerable industrial growth and improvements to infrastructure. Despite such urban progress, however, Odisha remains a poor rural state, heavily dependent on agriculture to provide for the basic needs of its inhabitants.

FESTIVALS IN ODISHA MAKAR MELA (MID-JAN). PILGRIMS DESCEND ON A TINY ISLAND IN CHILIKA LAKE TO LEAVE VOTIVE OFFERINGS IN A CAVE FOR THE GODDESS KALI.

Adivasis Mela (Jan 26–Feb 1). Bhubaneswar’s “tribal” fair is a disappointing cross between New York’s Coney Island and an agricultural show, though it does feature good live music and dance.

Magha Saptami (Jan/Feb). During the full-moon phase of Magha, a small pool at Chandrabhaga beach, near Konark, is swamped by thousands of worshippers in honour of Surya, the sun god and curer of skin ailments.

Panashankranti (early April). In various regions, on the first day of Vaisakha, saffron-clad penitents carrying peacock feathers enter trances and walk on hot coals.

Chaitra Parba (mid-April). Santals (the largest of Odisha's many adivasi groups) perform Chhou dances at Baripada in Mayurbhanj district, northern Odisha.

Ashokastami (April/May). Bhubaneswar's Car Festival (a procession of temple chariots), when the Lingaraj deity takes a dip in the Bindu Sagar tank.

Sitalasasthi (May/June). Commemorating the marriage of Shiva and Parvati, celebrated in Sambalpur and Bhubaneswar.

Rath Yatra (June/July). The biggest and grandest of Odisha's festivals. Giant images of Lord Jagannath, his brother Balabhadra and his sister Subhadra make the sacred journey from the Jagannath temple to Gundicha Mandir in Puri. See box, p.901.

Bali Yatra (Nov/Dec). Commemorates the voyages made by Odishan traders to Indonesia. Held at full moon on the banks of the River Mahanadi in Cuttack.

Konark Festival (early Dec). A festival of classical dance featuring Odishan and other regional dance forms in the Sun Temple at Konark.

Events of recent years have damaged the state's reputation. Violent Maoist (Naxalite) activity in rural areas has increased, drawing an often equally violent response from government forces. In March 2012, two Italian travellers visiting tribal areas in the Kandhamal area were kidnapped by Naxalites and held for almost a month, before being released unharmed. There have also been regular attacks on the state's Christian minority by Hindu fundamentalists, who, in 2008, killed at least seventy people and forced tens of thousands from their homes.

An ongoing campaign by environmental and human rights groups, meanwhile, has been vociferous in its opposition to the multinational corporation Vedanta, which wants to develop a bauxite mine on Niyamgiri mountain in eastern Odisha, considered sacred by the local adivasi community.

GETTING AROUND TRAVELLING AROUND ODISHA ODISHA PRESENTS FEW PRACTICAL PROBLEMS IF YOU STICK TO THE MORE POPULATED COASTAL AREAS. NH-5 AND THE

SOUTHEAST RAILWAY, WHICH CUT IN TANDEM DOWN THE COASTAL PLAIN VIA BHUBANESWAR, ARE THE MAIN ARTERIES OF THE REGION. A BRANCH LINE ALSO RUNS AS FAR AS PURI, CONNECTING IT BY FREQUENT, DIRECT EXPRESS TRAINS TO DELHI, KOLKATA AND CHENNAI. BUSES ARE OFTEN THE ONLY WAY TO REACH SOME OF THE MORE REMOTE INLAND AREAS.

Bhubaneswar With its featureless 1950s architecture, BHUBANESWAR may initially strike you as surprisingly dull for a city with a population of around a million and a history of settlement stretching back more than two thousand years. However, the southern suburbs harbour the remnants of some of India's finest medieval temples, which are made all the more atmospheric by the animated religious life that continues to revolve around them, particularly at festival times.

Brief history Bhubaneswar first appears in history during the fourth century BC, as the capital of ancient Kalinga. It was here that Ashoka erected one of the Subcontinent's best-preserved rock edicts – still in place 5km south of Dhauli. Under the Chedis, ancient Kalinga gained control over the thriving mercantile trade in the region and became the northeast seaboard's most formidable power.

Bhubaneswar then declined, re-emerging as a regional force only in the fifth century AD, when it became an important Shaivite centre. Coupled with the formidable wealth of the Sailodbhavas two centuries later, the growing religious fervour fuelled an extraordinary spate of temple construction. Between the seventh and twelfth centuries some seven thousand shrines are believed to have been erected around the Bindu Sagar tank. Most were razed in the Muslim incursions of the medieval era, but enough survived for it to be possible in even a short visit to trace the evolution of Odishan architecture from its small, modest beginnings to the gigantic, self-confident proportions of the Lingaraj – the seat of Trimhubaneshwara, or “Lord of Three Worlds”, from which the modern city takes its name. A relative backwater until after Independence, Bhubaneswar was only declared the new state capital after nearby Cuttack reached bursting point in the 1950s.

ODISHAN TEMPLES ODISHAN TEMPLES CONSTITUTE ONE OF THE MOST DISTINCTIVE

REGIONAL STYLES OF RELIGIOUS ARCHITECTURE IN SOUTH ASIA. THEY WERE BUILT ACCORDING TO STRICT TEMPLATES SET DOWN ONE THOUSAND YEARS OR MORE AGO IN A BODY OF CANONICAL TEXTS CALLED THE SHILPA SHASTRAS. THESE SPECIFY NOT ONLY EVERY ASPECT OF TEMPLE DESIGN, BUT ALSO THE OVERALL SYMBOLIC SIGNIFICANCE OF THE BUILDING. UNLIKE CHRISTIAN CHURCHES OR ISLAMIC MOSQUES, HINDU SHRINES ARE NOT SIMPLY PLACES OF WORSHIP BUT OBJECTS OF WORSHIP IN THEMSELVES – RE-CREATIONS OF THE “DIVINE COSMIC CREATOR-BEING” OR THE PARTICULAR DEITY ENSHRINED WITHIN THEM. FOR A HINDU, TO MOVE THROUGH A TEMPLE IS AKIN TO ENTERING THE VERY BODY OF THE GOD GLIMPSED AT THE MOMENT OF DARSHAN, OR RITUAL VIEWING, IN THE SHRINE ROOM. IN ODISHA, THIS CONCEPT ALSO FINDS EXPRESSION IN THE TECHNICAL TERMS USED IN THE SHASTRAS TO DESIGNATE THE DIFFERENT PARTS OF THE STRUCTURE: THE FOOT (PABHAGA), SHIN (JANGHA), TORSO (GANDI), NECK (KANTHA), HEAD (MASTAKA) AND SO FORTH.

THE DEUL

Most temples are made up of two main sections. The first and most impressive of these is the deul, or sanctuary tower. A soaring, curvilinear spire with a square base and rounded top, the deul symbolizes Meru, the sacred mountain at the centre of the universe. Its intricately ribbed sides, which in later buildings were divided into rectangular projections known as raths, usually house images of the accessory deities, while its top supports a lotus-shaped, spherical amla (a motif derived from an auspicious fruit used in Ayurvedic medicine as a purifying agent). Above that, the vessel of immortality, the kalasha, is crowned by the presiding deity's sacred weapon, a wheel (Vishnu's chakra) or trident (Shiva's trishul). The actual deity occupies a chamber inside the deul. Known in Oriya as the garbha griha, or inner sanctum, the shrine is shrouded in womb-like darkness, intended to focus the mind of the worshipper on the image of God.

THE JAGAMOHANA THE JAGAMOHANA (“WORLD DELIGHTER”), WHICH ADJOINS THE SANCTUARY TOWER, IS A PORCH WITH A PYRAMIDAL ROOF WHERE THE CONGREGATION GATHERS FOR READINGS OF RELIGIOUS TEXTS AND OTHER IMPORTANT CEREMONIES. LARGER TEMPLES, SUCH AS THE LINGARAJ IN BHUBANESWAR AND THE JAGANNATH IN PURI, ALSO HAVE STRUCTURES THAT WERE TACKED ON TO THE MAIN PORCH WHEN MUSIC AND DANCE WERE MORE COMMONLY PERFORMED AS PART OF TEMPLE RITUALS. LIKE THE JAGAMOHANA, THE ROOFS OF THE NATA MANDIR (THE DANCING HALL) AND BHOGAMANDAPA (THE HALL OF OFFERINGS) ARE PYRAMIDAL. THE WHOLE STRUCTURE, ALONG WITH ANY SMALLER SUBSIDIARY SHRINES (OFTEN EARLIER TEMPLES ERECTED ON THE SAME SITE), IS USUALLY ENCLOSED WITHIN A WALLED COURTYARD.

AN EVOLVING STYLE

Over the centuries, Odishan temples became progressively grander and more elaborate. It's fascinating to chart this transformation as you move from the earlier buildings in Bhubaneswar to the acme of the region's architectural achievement, the stunning Sun Temple at Konark. Towers grow taller, roofs gain extra layers, and the sculpture, for which the temples are famous all over the world, attains a level of complexity and refinement unrivalled before or since.

The temples Of the five hundred or so temples that remain in Bhubaneswar only a handful are of interest to anyone but the most ardent temple-phile. They are quite spread out in the south of the city, but it's possible to see the highlights in a day by auto-rickshaw. The majority are active places of worship, so dress appropriately, remove your shoes (and any leather items) at the entrance and seek permission before taking photographs, particularly inside the buildings. The resident priest will expect a donation if he's shown you around, but don't believe the astronomical amounts recorded in the ledgers you'll be shown. Entry is free to all temples except the Rajarani.

The central group Just west of Lewis Rd, around 2.5km south of the railway station The compact central group includes some of Bhubaneswar's most celebrated temples, most notably the eye-catching Parasuramesvara Mandir and the exquisite, tenth-century Muktesvara Mandir.

Parasuramesvara Mandir The best-preserved and most beautiful early example in the central group, the lavishly decorated Parasuramesvara Mandir stands in the shade of a large banyan tree. Dating from around 650 AD, the shrine's plain, rectangular assembly hall (jagamohana), simple stepped roof and squat beehive-shaped tower (deul) typify the style of the late seventh century. Besides the sheer quality of the building's exterior sculpture, Parasuramesvara is significant in marking the then-recent transition from Buddhism to Hinduism. Look out for panels depicting Lakulisha, the proselytizing Shaivite saint whose sect was largely responsible for the conversion of Odisha to Hinduism in the fifth century. More graphic assertions of Hindu supremacy mark corners of the deul, where rampant lions crouch or stand above elephants, symbols of the beleaguered Buddhist faith.

Muktesvara Mandir Erected in the mid-tenth century, the Muktesvara Mandir is often described as the gem of Odishan architecture for its compact size and exquisite sculptural detail. It stands in a separate walled courtyard, beside the small Marichi Kund tank (whose waters are believed to cure infertility). The temple was constructed two hundred years after the Parasuramesvara, and represents the new, more elaborate style that had evolved in Bhubaneswar. Its jagamohana sports the more distinctively Odishan pyramidal roof, while the deul, though similar in shape to earlier sanctuary towers, places more emphasis on vertical rather than horizontal lines. Directly facing the main entrance, the ornamental torana (gateway), topped by two reclining female figures, is Muktesvara's masterpiece.

On the edge of Muktesvara's terrace, the unfinished Siddhesvara was erected at around the same time as the Lingaraj, but is far less imposing.

The eastern group Just east of Lewis Rd, around 2.5km south of the railway station The two key temples in the eastern group are the Rajarani Mandir, widely considered to be one of the most beautiful temples in Bhubaneswar, and the Brahmesvara Mandir, which continues to host a living deity in its eleventh-century shrine.

Rajarani Mandir Daily sunrise–sunset • Charge Although it was never completed, the twelfth-century Rajarani Mandir ranks among the very finest of Bhubaneswar's later temples. From the far end of the well-watered gardens in which it stands, the profile of the deul dominates first impressions. The best of the sculpted figures for which Rajarani is famous surround the sides of the tower, roughly 3m above the ground, where the dikpalas (“guardians of the eight directions”), separated from one another by exquisite female nayikas, protect the main shrine.

Brahmesvara Mandir Unlike most of its neighbours, the eleventh-century shrine within Brahmesvara Mandir still houses a living deity, as indicated by the saffron pennant flying from the top of the sanctuary. Here, as at Rajarani, dikpalas preside over the corners, with a fierce Chamunda on the western facade (shown astride a corpse and holding a trident and severed head), while curvaceous maidens admire themselves in mirrors or dally with their male consorts. An inscription, now lost, records that one Queen Kovalavati once made a donation of “many beautiful women” to this temple, recalling that devadasis, the dancers-cum-courtesans who were to become a prominent feature of Odishan temple life in later years, made an early appearance here. Non-Hindus are barred from the central shrine, whose majestic Nandi bull has testicles well-polished by years of propitious rubbing from worshippers.

The Bindu Sagar group West of the central group around the Bindu Sagar The largest group of temples is clustered around the Bindu Sagar (“ocean drop tank”). This small artificial lake, mentioned in the Puranas, is said to contain nectar, wine and water drawn from the world’s most sacred rivers. It’s the main bathing place both for pilgrims visiting the city and for the Lingaraj deity, who is taken to the pavilion in the middle once every year during Bhubaneswar’s annual Car Festival (Ashokastami) for his ritual purificatory dip. The hours around sunrise and sunset are the most evocative time for a stroll here, when the residents of the nearby dharamshalas file through the smoky lanes to pray at the ghats.

Lingaraj Mandir Immediately south of the Bindu Sagar stands Odisha’s most stylistically evolved temple. Built early in the eleventh century by the Ganga kings, one hundred years before the Jagannath temple at Puri, the mighty Lingaraj Mandir has remained a living shrine. For this reason, foreign visitors are not permitted inside, but there is a viewing platform overlooking the north wall of the complex, from where all four of the principal sections of the building are visible. The two nearest the entrance, the bhogamandapa (hall of offering) and the nata mandir (hall of dances), associated with the rise of the devadasi system, are both later additions. Beautiful sculpture depicting the music and dance rituals that would once have taken place inside the temple adorns its walls.

The immense 45m deul is the literal and aesthetic high point of the Lingaraj. The rampant lion projecting from the curved sides of the tower, and the downtrodden elephant beneath him, once more symbolize the triumph of Hinduism over Buddhism. On the top, the typical Odishan motif of the flattened, ribbed sphere (amla) supported by gryphons, is crowned with Shiva's trident. As in the Brahmesvara temple, the long saffron pennant announces the living presence of the deity below.

The shrine inside is unusual. The powerful 2.5m-thick Svayambhu ("self-born") lingam that it contains, one of the twelve jyotirlingas in India, is known as "Hari-Hara" because it is considered half Shiva, half Vishnu – an extraordinary amalgam thought to have resulted from the ascendancy of Vaishnavism over Shaivism in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. Unlike other lingams, which are bathed every day in a concoction prepared from hemlock, Svayambhu is offered a libation of rice, milk and bhang by the brahmins.

Vaital Deul Mandir The Vaital Deul temple, one of the group's oldest buildings, is a real feast of Tantric art. The building was erected around 800 AD in a markedly different style from most of its contemporaries in Bhubaneswar, drawing heavily on earlier Buddhist influences. Among the panels of Hindu deities encrusting its outer walls, you can make out examples of some of India's earliest erotic sculpture.

Once you have proceeded past the four-faced lingam post at the main entrance (used for tethering sacrificial offerings), your eyes soon adjust to the darkness of the interior, whose grotesque images convey the macabre nature of the esoteric rites once performed here. Durga, in her most terrifying aspect as Chamunda, peers out of the half-light from behind the grille at the far end of the hall – her withered body, garlanded with skulls and flanked by an owl and a jackal, stands upon a rotting corpse. In front of her a man picks himself up from the floor, having filled his skull-cup with blood from the decapitated body nearby.

Odisha State Museum Lewis Rd • Tues–Sat 10am–5.30pm • Charge • odishamuseum.nic.in

The Odisha State Museum has a collection of “tribal” artefacts, manuscripts and archeological finds, including pre-twelfth-century Buddhist statues and reproductions of chitra muriya, the folk murals seen in village houses around Puri. The museum’s real highlight, however, is its collection of antique painting and illuminated palm-leaf manuscripts. Only New Delhi’s National Museum holds finer examples of this traditional Odishan art form.

Museum of Tribal Arts and Artefacts NH-5, close to the Baramunda bus stand • Tues–Sat 10am–5pm • Free • ostm.in

The anthropological Museum of Tribal Arts and Artefacts exhibits the distinctive cultures and art of the 62 different tribal groups spread throughout Odisha. Filling the gardens outside are somewhat idealized replicas of adivasi dwellings, decorated with more authentic-looking murals. The library reputedly holds copies of all the books and journals ever compiled on the adivasi groups of Odisha. Opposite the museum is Asia’s largest cactus collection, home to more than one thousand species.

Odisha Modern Art Gallery 132 Forest Park, Surya Nagar • Tues–Sun 9am–7pm • Free • 90901 91226, orissamodernartgallery.blogspot.com/

The Odisha Modern Art Gallery showcases the work of the state’s best contemporary and most underprivileged artists. Original works are available to buy, alongside less expensive prints.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE BIJU BHUBANESWAR PATNAIK AIRPORT IS 2–3KM SOUTHWEST OF THE CITY CENTRE; THERE’S A PREPAID TAXI COUNTER (AROUND ₹ TO THE CITY CENTRE) IN THE ARRIVALS LOUNGE; AUTO-RICKSHAWS ARE CHEAPER – THERE ARE NORMALLY A FEW IN THE FAR REACHES OF THE AIRPORT CAR PARK. AIR INDIA (RAJ PATH, NEAR NEW MARKET; 01860 233 1407), INDIGO (AT THE AIRPORT; 0124 661 3838) AND AIR ASIA (AT THE AIRPORT; ☎0180 4666 2222) HAVE DIRECT DAILY FLIGHTS TO BENGALURU (7–8 DAILY; 2HR 5MIN), DELHI (12 DAILY; AROUND 2HR 30MIN), HYDERABAD (5 DAILY; 1HR 30MIN), KOLKATA (9 DAILY; 1HR 10MIN) AND MUMBAI (4 DAILY; 2HR 35MIN).

By train Bhubaneswar railway station, in the centre of the city, is on the main Howrah–Chennai train line.

Destinations Brahmapur (Berhampur; 11–17 daily; 2hr 20min–2hr 50min); Chennai (3–7 daily; 20hr 30min–21hr 15min); Cuttack (every 30min–1hr; 30–45min); Gaya (for Bodhgaya; 3–4 daily; 11hr 30min–17hr); Kolkata (16–20 daily; 6–8hr); Puri (around 20 daily; 1hr 15min–2hr 15min); Visakhapatnam (16–19 daily; 6hr 30min–7hr 30min).

By bus Long-distance state buses terminate at the inconveniently situated Baramunda Bus Stand, 5km from the centre on the western edge of the city, though not before making a whistle-stop tour of the centre. Ask to be dropped at Station Square (look for a statue of a horse in the middle of a large roundabout), close to most of the budget hotels. If you are heading to Puri or Pipli, you can shave up to an hour off your journey by flagging down a bus from outside the State Museum, rather than getting on at the bus stand, though they are invariably jam-packed at this stage. (Minibuses also run to Puri/Pipli, but tend to travel dangerously fast.) Destinations Baleshwar (Balasore; 7–8 daily; 3hr 30min–4hr 30min); Brahmapur (Berhampur; 7–8 daily; 4–5hr); Cuttack (every 30min–1hr; 30min); Konark (hourly; 1hr 30min–2hr); Puri (every 30min–1hr; 1hr 15min–2hr), via Pipli (45min–1hr 15min).

GETTING AROUND AND INFORMATION BY AUTO-RICKSHAW/CAR BHUBANESWAR IS TOO SPREAD OUT TO EXPLORE ON FOOT AND IS BEST SEEN BY AUTO-RICKSHAW; A DAY’S TEMPLE-VIEWING, WITH WAITING TIME. THE OTDC (SEE BELOW) CAN ORGANIZE CAR (AND DRIVER) HIRE.

Tourist information The Odisha Tourism office (daily except Sun & 2nd Sat of month 10am–5pm; 🌐odishatourism.gov.in) is on the second floor of the Paryatan Bhavan building, just off Lewis Rd. India Tourism has an office (daily except Sun & 2nd Sat of month 9am–6pm; 🌐incredibleindia.org) on the same floor. Odisha Tourism also has an office at the train station (officially daily 24hr, though this is more of a vague aspiration than a reality) and at the airport (opens to meet incoming flights).

Tours The Odisha Tourism Development Corporation (OTDC), which handles state-run tours and accommodation, has an office at the Panthanivas hotel (☎0674 243 0764, 🌐panthanivas.com). It offers city tours and guided half- and full-day trips to various destinations throughout the state, including one that takes in Pipli, Puri and Konark.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

While the better-class hotels are spread out all over the city, the budget places – which are generally fairly poor – are mainly grouped around the railway station or near the busy Kalpana Square junction at the bottom of Cuttack Rd, a 5min auto-rickshaw ride away.

Ginger Joydev Vihar, Nayapalli, 8km from the railway station 🌐gingerhotels.com. The city's best mid-range hotel offers unfussy service and modern if characterless a/c rooms with flat-screen TVs. There's an on-site restaurant, a branch of Café Coffee Day, a small gym and an ATM. Book online for the best rates. ₹₹₹

Grand Central Old Station Rd 🌐hotelgrandcentral.com. In a convenient if unprepossessing location, Grand Central is a solid choice, with comfortable a/c rooms with TVs; the more expensive ones come with tubs and minibars. The superb restaurant serves fine dosas. ₹₹₹

Jajati MG Marg, top end of Station Square ☎0674 239 0352, 📧sahuramesh2003@hotmail.com. A popular hotel within striking distance of the railway station. Although frayed around the edges, the rooms (which come with either a/c or fans) are acceptable for a night if rupees are tight. ₹

Mango Hotels Prangan 692 Cuttack Rd ☎0674 711 9000, 🌐staymango.com. Aimed primarily at business travellers, and somewhat bland as a result, Mango Hotels Prangan is nevertheless a good choice thanks to its clean, functional rooms, efficient staff and central location. ₹₹₹

Mayfair Lagoon 8-B Jaydev Vihar, 4km from the railway station 🌐mayfairhotels.com. This luxury hotel (the better of the two Mayfair hotels in the city) is something of an oddity: sumptuous cottages and super-expensive villas with four-poster beds and Jacuzzis surround an ornamental lake; the attractive grounds, meanwhile, are filled with kitsch life-sized models of wild animals. Four excellent restaurants and a fine bar are added perks. Cottages ₹₹₹₹, villas ₹₹₹₹₹

New Marrion 6 Jan Path ☎hotelnewmarrion.com. Smart, upper-mid-range hotel with good-value rooms, a curvy pool, Thai-style spa, money-changing facilities and a travel agency, as well as several good restaurants and a Scottish-themed bar. Online prices can be up to fifty percent lower than the rack rates. ₹₹₹

Panthanivas Lewis Rd ☎panthanivas.com. An institutional OTDC-run hotel close to the museum and temples with dated but large and comfortable a/c rooms. There are a couple of good restaurants, and the 8am checkout is negotiable when they're not too busy. ₹₹₹

Pushpak 68 Buddha Nagar ☎hotelpushpak.com. Despite the rather dusty exterior, the friendly Pushpak is the pick of the Kalpana Square hotels. The rooms are large and clean, and have either fans or a/c; those at the front suffer from road noise. There are three restaurants, a bar, an ice-cream parlour out front, and an ATM on site. 24hr checkout. ₹₹₹

Swosti Grand 103 Jan Path ☎swosti.com. The older and cheaper of the city's two Swostis shows its age, but remains a reliable option. The slightly over-priced a/c rooms have tubs, minibars and thoughtful touches such as hairdryers and kettles. There's also a good travel agency, a couple of restaurants and a bar. ₹₹₹

Trident Bhubaneswar CB-1 Nayapalli, 4km from the railway station ☎0674 230 1010, ☎tridenthotels.com. The city's top hotel is exquisitely furnished with antique textiles, stone and metalwork. Facilities include fourteen acres of gardens dotted with mango and cashew trees, an excellent restaurant, an efficient travel centre, exchange facilities, a pool and even a running track. ₹₹₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

The few restaurants that specialize in traditional Odishan cuisine, or include some Odishan dishes on their menus, are well worth seeking out. Look out for chenna poda (cheesecake stuffed with almonds), raswadi (thickened milk with balls of curd) and gajar ka halwa (a rich sweet made from grated carrots).

Café Coffee Day New Marriion hotel 📍cafecoffeeday.com. This Indian chain serves the best coffee in Bhubaneswar, as well as teas, smoothies and milkshakes, plus a selection of (pricey) sandwiches, pastries, snacks, cakes and cookies. There are several other branches, including at Ginger hotel. Daily 10am–10pm. ₹₹

Dalma 157 Madhusudan Nagar 📍dalma.restaurant/Dalma-Bhubaneswar.html. Named after the state's signature dish (potato, brinjal and other vegetables cooked in dhal; they also offer a deluxe version with added shrimps), this modest restaurant is the place to go for traditional regional cuisine. The fish curry is excellent, and there are some fine crab and prawn dishes. There are a couple of other branches away from the centre. Daily 11.30am–3.30pm & 7–10.30pm. ₹₹

Hare Krishna Jan Path, just north of the junction with MG Marg 📍hare-krishna-north-indian-restaurant.business.site. Waiters in dinner jackets rather than dhotis serve ISKCON food (the Hare Krishna movement's cuisine, without garlic or onions): vegetarian and delicious. The restaurant can be a little hard to find – it's located inside the Lal Chand jewellery store. Daily 11.30am–3.30pm & 7.30–10.30pm. ₹–₹₹

Kanika Mayfair Lagoon 📍0674 666 0101, 📍mayfairhotels.com. Specializing in traditional Odishan food, this is one of the city's best restaurants and one of two in the Mayfair Lagoon worth visiting. If you fancy a post-dinner drink and dance, head to the Mayfair's British-style pub and club. Daily noon–3pm & 7–11pm. ₹₹

Lemon Grass Mayfair Lagoon 📍mayfairhotels.com. The second of two excellent restaurants in this hotel. This one serves top-quality Thai, Chinese, Japanese and Indonesian cuisine amid decor that steers just the right side of Far Eastern pastiche. Daily noon–3pm & 7–11pm. ₹₹

Tangerine 9 Jan Path, just north of the junction with MG Marg 📍081448 53178. Modern restaurant with well over 250 Indian and Chinese dishes on offer, if you're having trouble deciding, opt for one of the tasty kebabs or the tandoori pomfret. Daily noon–3.30pm & 7–11pm. ₹–₹₹

Truptee 67 Buddha Nagar, Kalpana Square 📍082600 20777. Subterranean veg restaurant, with a gloomy aspect and rather murky fish tank: the inexpensive food, however, is much brighter, ranging from south Indian idly, vada and dosas to north Indian veg classics. Daily 7am–10.30pm. ₹

SHOPPING

MAP

Ekamra Haat Madhusan Marg, northwest of the railway station. A permanent craft market with more than fifty stalls selling goods from across the state and beyond. Daily 11am–9pm.

Modern Book Depot At the top of Station Square. A modest little bookshop, just up from the railway station, with a small collection of English-language fiction. Opening times are erratic. Mon–Sat 10am–9pm.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE THE STATE BANK OF INDIA (MON–SAT 10AM–4PM,) ON RAJ PATH SBI.CO.IN, CHANGES FOREIGN CURRENCIES, AS DOES THOMAS COOK (MON–SAT 10AM–6PM; THOMASCOOK.IN), AT 57 ASHOK NAGAR, JAN PATH.

Dance Dance lessons can be arranged through the Odisha Dance Academy, Quarter 4R-8, Unit 8 (orissadanceacademy.org), while the Utkal Sangeet Mahavidyalaya, Odisha's premier college of performing arts, on Sachivalaya Marg (usmbbsr.in), hosts regular music, dance and drama events.

Hospitals and pharmacies Capital Hospital (capitalhospital.nic.in) is at Udyan Marg, Unit 6, Ganga Nagar, near the airport, while the more modern Apollo Hospital (apollohospitals.com) is at Plot 251, Old Sainik School Rd. The former has a well-stocked pharmacy. The Red Cross (☎0674 239 0712) provides a 24hr ambulance service.

Police station Raj Path, near the State Bank of India (☎0674 253 3732).

Post office On the corner of MG Marg and Sachivalaya Marg (Mon 9.30am–6pm, Tues-Fri 9.30am-4.30pm, Sat 9.30am-2.30pm; postoffices.co.in).

Travel agents Discover Tours (463 Lewis Rd; otdc.in), is a reliable operator for cultural and wildlife tours. The New Marrion, Swosti and Trident hotels all have good in-house agencies.

Around Bhubaneswar Several places around Bhubaneswar can be easily visited as a day-trip. Fifteen minutes by auto-rickshaw out of the centre, the second-century BC caves at Khandagiri and Udaigiri offer a glimpse of the region's history prior to the rise of Hinduism. Dhauli, just off the main road to Puri, boasts an even older monument: a rock edict dating from the Mauryan era, commemorating the battle of c.260 BC that gave emperor Ashoka control of the eastern seaports, and thus enabled his missionaries to export the state religion across Asia. Pipli, 20km south, is famous for its appliqué work and colourful lampshades.

Nandankanan Zoological Park 20km north of Bhubaneswar • Tues–Sun: April–Sept 7.30am–5.30pm; Oct–March 8am–5pm • Charge • nandankanan.org • Buses run from Kalpana Square in Bhubaneswar (every 30min–1hr; 1hr) The Nandankanan Zoological Park, one of India's better zoos, is a good place for families to spend a few hours. Its animal collection includes rhinos, giraffes, Asiatic lions and some white tigers, there's a botanical garden and you can rent paddle boats.

Udaigiri and Khandagiri caves 6km west of Bhubaneswar • Daily sunrise–sunset • Charge • The OTDC in Bhubaneswar runs day-trips to the caves that also take in Dhauli or you can take a bus (every 30min–1hr; 30–45min) from Bhubaneswar’s Old City Bus Stand near Capital Market More than two thousand years ago, caves chiselled out of the malleable yellow sandstone of a pair of low hills 6km west of Bhubaneswar were home to a community of Jain monks. Nowadays, they’re clambered over by langur monkeys and occasional parties of tourists. Though by no means in the same league as the caves of the Deccan, Udaigiri and Khandagiri rank among Odisha’s foremost historical monuments.

Inscriptions show that the Chedi dynasty, which ruled ancient Kalinga from the first century BC, was responsible for the bulk of the work. There are simple monk’s cells, as well as royal chambers where the hallways, verandas and facades are encrusted with sculpture depicting court scenes, lavish processions, hunting expeditions, battles and dances. The later additions (from medieval times, when Jainism no longer enjoyed royal patronage in the region) are more austere, showing the 24 heroic Jain prophet-teachers, or tirthankaras.

From Bhubaneswar, the caves are approached via a road that follows the route of an ancient pilgrimage path. As you face the hills with the highway behind you, Khandagiri (“Broken Hill”) is on your left and Udaigiri (“Sunrise Hill”) is on your right.

Udaigiri The Udaigiri caves occupy a fairly compact area around the south slope of the hill. Cave 1 (Rani Gumpha or “Queen’s Cave”), off the main pathway to the right, is the largest and most impressive of the group. A long frieze across the back wall shows rampaging elephants, panicking monkeys, sword fights and the abduction of a woman, perhaps illustrating episodes from the life of Kalinga’s King Kharavela. Caves 3 and 4 contain sculptures of a lion holding its prey and elephants with snakes wrapped around them, and pillars topped by pairs of peculiar winged animals. Cave 9, up the hill and around to the right, houses a damaged relief of figures worshipping a long-vanished

Jain symbol. The crowned figure is thought to be the Chedi king, Vakradeva, whose donative inscription can still be made out near the roof. Inside the sleeping cells of all the caves, deep grooves in the stone wall at the back and in the floor were designed to carry rainwater down from the roof as an early air-conditioning system.

SATKOSIA TIGER RESERVE SPANNING ALMOST A THOUSAND SQUARE KILOMETRES IN CENTRAL ODISHA, SOME 125KM NORTHWEST OF BHUBANESWAR, THE SATKOSIA TIGER RESERVE (OCT–MAY DAILY DAWN–DUSK; CHARGE, CAMERA CHARGE, ACCESS TO NATURE TRAILS CHARGE; ⓘ SATKOSIA.ORG) IS A BEAUTIFUL, FORESTED RIVERINE LANDSCAPE, WITH THE MAHANADI RIVER AND THE STUNNING SATKOSIA GORGE AT ITS HEART.

Few foreign travellers make it out to the reserve, which encompasses the Satkosia Gorge Wildlife Sanctuary and the Baisipalli Wildlife Sanctuary, and tourism is in its infancy. However, if you make it here you'll be amply rewarded: the reserve has large communities of gharial and mugger crocodiles, and 164 species of bird, as well as a handful of elusive tigers. Boat trips, hikes and jeep safaris are all on offer.

Getting to the reserve independently is a bit of a drag and most people visit on an organized tour. Trains (5–6 daily; 2hr 5min–3hr 50min) run from Bhubaneswar to the town of Angul, from where buses (3–4 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr) head to Tikarpada via the main park gate at Pampasar (where you pay the entry fees). At Tikarpada, looking over the Mahanadi River, you will find the Tikarpada Nature Camp (₹1700 per person full board in tents; book via the park authorities), one of several camps run in partnership with local communities (more details are available at ⓘ satkosia.org).

To reach Cave 10, return to the main steps and climb towards the top of the hill. Its popular name, “Ganesh Gumpha”, is derived from the elephant-headed Ganesh carved on the rear wall of the cell on the right. From here, follow the path up to the ledge at the very top of Udaigiri hill for good views and the ruins of an old chaitya hall, probably the main place of worship for the Jain monks who lived below.

Below the ruins are Cave 12, shaped like the head of a tiger, and Cave 14, the Hathi Gumpha, known for the long inscription in ancient Magadhi carved onto its overhang. This relates in glowing terms the life history of King Kharavela, whose exploits brought in the fortune needed to finance the cave excavation.

Khandagiri The caves on the hill opposite Udaigiri, Khandagiri can be reached either by the long flight of steps leading from the road, or by cutting directly across from Hathi Gumpha via the steps that drop down from Cave 17. The latter route brings you out at Caves 1 and 2, known as Tatowa Gumpha (“Parrot Caves”) for the carvings of birds on their doorway-arches. Cave 2, excavated in the first century BC, is the larger and more interesting. On the back wall of one of its cells, a few faint lines in red Brahmi script are thought to have been scrawled two thousand years ago by a monk practising his handwriting. The reliefs in Cave 3, the Ananta Gumpha (“Snake Cave”), contain the best of the sculpture on Khandagiri hill, albeit badly vandalized in places. Caves 7 and 8, left of the main steps, were former sleeping quarters, remodelled in the eleventh century as sanctuaries. Both house reliefs of tirthankaras on their walls as well as Hindu deities which had become part of the Jain pantheon by the time conversion work was done. From the nineteenth-century Jain temple at the top of the hill there are clear views across the sprawl of Bhubaneswar to the white dome of Dhauli.

Dhauli 8km south of Bhubaneswar • No fixed opening times • Free • Unless you’re on a tour, getting to Dhauli involves a 2km walk – get off the bus from Bhubaneswar’s Baramunda Bus Stand (every 30min–1hr; 30–45min) at Dhauli Chowk, and make your way along the avenue of trees to the rock edict, from where the road begins its short climb up the hill The gleaming white Vishwa Shanti Stupa on Dhauli Hill, 8km south of Bhubaneswar on the Pipli road, overlooks the spot where the Mauryan emperor Ashoka defeated the Kalingas in the decisive battle of 260 BC. Apart from bringing the prosperous Odishan kingdom to its knees, the victory also led the emperor, allegedly overcome by remorse at having slain 150,000 people, to renounce the path of violent conquest in favour of the spiritual path preached by Gautama Buddha. Built in 1972, the modern stupa, which eclipses its older predecessor nearby, is a memorial to this legendary change of heart, and the massive religious sea-change it precipitated.

After his conversion, Ashoka set about promulgating the maxims of his newly found faith in rock edicts installed at key sites around the empire. One such inscription, in ancient Brahmi, the ancestor of all non-Islamic Indian scripts, still stands on the roadside at the foot of Dhauli hill, etched in a rock featuring a beautifully carved figure of an elephant (symbolizing Buddhism). The Dhauli edict includes a mixture of rambling philosophical asides, discourses on animal rights and tips on how to treat your slaves. Particularly of note are the lines claiming the Buddhist doctrine of nonviolence was being recognized by “the kings of Egypt, Ptolemy and Antigonus and Magas”, which proved for the first time the existence of a connection between the ancient civilizations of India and the West. The inscription diplomatically omits the account that crops up elsewhere describing how many Kalingas Ashoka put to the sword before he finally “saw the light”.

Pipli A 15min drive beyond Dhauli on the road to Puri • Buses between Bhubaneswar and Puri pass through Pipli (every 30min–1hr; 1hr–1hr 30min to/from Bhubaneswar, 30min–1hr to/from Puri) Splashes of bright colour in the shopfronts along the main street announce your arrival in PIPLI, Odisha’s appliqué capital. Much of what the artisans now produce is shoddy kitsch compared with the painstaking work traditionally undertaken for the Jagannath temple. Express enough interest and you’ll be shown some of the better-quality pieces for which Pipli is justly famed. Bedspreads, wall hangings and small chhatris (awnings normally hung above household and temple shrines) are the most authentic goods on offer. The shops do not open early; the best time to wander around is in the evening, when gas lamps and devotional music make the experience much more atmospheric.

ACCOMMODATION GAJLAXMI AROUND BHUBANESWAR PALACE BORAPADA, DHENKANAL, A 2HR DRIVE NORTHWEST OF BHUBANESWAR @ GAJLAXMIPALACE.COM. IF YOU WANT TO GET AWAY FROM IT ALL, HEAD TO THIS ROYAL PALACE IN THE LITTLE-VISITED, DENSELY FORESTED AREA OF DHENKANAL. ACCOMMODATION IS SIMPLE, BUT VERY COMFORTABLE (THERE ARE JUST TWO ROOMS) AND DELICIOUS FOOD IS AVAILABLE. AMONG THE ACTIVITIES ON OFFER ARE BIRDWATCHING, HIKING, WILDLIFE SIGHTING AND VISITS TO TRIBAL VILLAGES. PICK-UPS AVAILABLE FROM BHUBANESWAR. RATES INCLUDE FULL BOARD. ₹₹₹

Kila Dalijoda Mangarajpur, 1hr drive north of Bhubaneswar @ kiladalijoda.com. A fine alternative to the Gajlaxmi Palace, located in a pretty village, Kila Dalijoda is a charming 1930s mansion that once functioned as a royal hunting lodge. The interior features atmospheric rooms (simpler cottages are available too) with vintage furnishings, and everything from cycle rides to nature walks are on offer. Pick-ups available from Bhubaneswar. Meals available. Doubles. ₹₹₹₹, cottages ₹₹₹₹

Northeastern Odisha Cuttack, Odisha's second city in the north of the state, straddles the Mahanadi River. Devoid of attractions, it detains few travellers on the long journey to or from Kolkata. Once clear of Cuttack's polluted outskirts, however, you soon find yourself amid the flat paddy fields, palm groves and mud-walled villages of the Mahanadi Delta. Twisting through it is one of India's busiest transport arteries; the main railway line and NH-5 follow the path of the famous pilgrim trail, the Jagannath Sadak, which once led from Kolkata to Puri.

The area's biggest attraction is Bhitarkanika Wildlife Sanctuary, 130km northeast of Bhubaneswar, which has outstanding natural scenery, an abundance of fauna and flora and is visited by the endangered olive ridley turtles. Similipal Tiger Reserve, close to the state border with West Bengal, is also impressive.

Ratnagiri, Udayagiri and Lalitgiri 95km northeast of Bhubaneswar • Daily sunrise–sunset • Charge • The three sites are relatively inaccessible by public transport, so it is better to hire a car and driver for a day or take an organized tour (the OTDC office in Bhubaneswar offers one.) Nestled among picturesque verdant hills 95km northeast of Bhubaneswar are the remains of three Buddhist universities, Ratnagiri, Udayagiri and Lalitgiri. The sites lie around 10km apart and are best reached in a day-trip or by hiring a car and driver.

Ratnagiri Museum daily except Fri 10am–5pm • Charge RATNAGIRI, the most impressive of the sites, lies 20km from the main road on top of a hill overlooking the River Keluo. When Chinese chronicler Hiuen T'sang visited the university in 639 AD, it had already been a major Buddhist centre for at least two hundred years. In those days the sea reached much further inland, and would have been visible from this point – which may in part account for the choice of location.

Missionaries were trained in such places before being sent away to China and Southeast Asia.

Two monasteries lie below the enormous stupa at the top of the hill. The larger and better-preserved one, dating from the seventh century, has a paved courtyard surrounded by cells and a beautifully carved doorway made from local blue-green chlorite stone. The shrine inside houses a majestic Buddha. A museum contains the antiquities and architectural remains collected from the excavations at all three sites.

Udayagiri Ten kilometres back towards the main road from Ratangiri, UDAYAGIRI is the largest Buddhist complex in Odisha. Its main structure is a large stupa, better preserved than its counterpart at Ratnagiri. Of the two monasteries here, which flourished between the seventh and twelfth centuries, only one has been excavated. It features a large seated Buddha in its central shrine and an intricately carved entrance, along with an inscribed step-well. More rock-cut sculptures adorn the crest of the hill behind the monastery.

Lalitgiri The turning for LALITGIRI is about 10km further along the main road towards Paradip. Most of the ruins of the four monasteries here are thought to date from around the ninth century, although inscriptions on an apsidal temple suggest that the site may have been occupied as early as the first century AD. Excavations in 1982 of the large stupa at the top of the hill revealed a gold casket containing a fragment of bone, believed to be a relic of the Buddha. The hilltop also provides grand panoramic views.

Bhitarkanika Wildlife Sanctuary Aug to mid-May daily dawn–dusk • myvisitinghours.org/bhitarkanika-national-park-wildlife-sanctuary-136 • Entry permits • Charge Covering 672 square kilometres overlying the Brahmani–Baitarani delta, the mangrove forests and wetlands of the Bhitarkanika Wildlife Sanctuary constitute one of the richest ecosystems of its type in India. As well as more than two hundred species of bird, it's a refuge for saltwater crocodiles, monitor lizards, rhesus monkeys and a host of other reptiles and mammals, and incorporates the olive ridley turtle nesting beaches at Gahirmatha, Rushikulya and Devi. The best time to visit is between November and March, when most of the migratory birds that flock to the sanctuary are in situ, although the nesting season for the herons usually ends around the middle of November. If you're hoping to witness the arrival of olive ridley turtles, check first at the tourist office in Bhubaneswar to find out exactly when they are expected. Other highlights include the crocodile conservation programme at Dangmar Island and the heronry at Bagahana.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION TO MINIMIZE COSTS IF YOU'RE VISITING THE BHITARKANIKA WILDLIFE SANCTUARY

INDEPENDENTLY, IT IS POSSIBLE TO USE THE SMALL PORT OF CHANDBALI AS A BASE FOR DAY-TRIPS. THE HASSLE OF REACHING ONE OF BHITARKANIKA'S ENTRY POINTS AND OBTAINING PERMITS, BOAT TRANSPORTATION AND ACCOMMODATION, MEANS IT'S MUCH EASIER TO TAKE AN ORGANIZED TRIP.

OLIVE RIDLEY TURTLES EVERY YEAR AROUND FEBRUARY OR MARCH, A STRIP OF BEACH AT THE END OF ODISHA'S CENTRAL RIVER DELTA WITNESSES ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST EXTRAORDINARY NATURAL SPECTACLES. HAVING SWUM RIGHT ACROSS THE PACIFIC AND INDIAN OCEANS, HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF FEMALE OLIVE RIDLEY MARINE TURTLES CRAWL ONTO THE SAND TO NEST. ALMOST AS SOON AS THE EGG

LAYING IS COMPLETE, THEY'RE OFF AGAIN INTO THE SURF TO BEGIN THE JOURNEY BACK TO THEIR MATING GROUNDS ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE WORLD.

No one knows quite why they travel such distances, but for local villagers the arrival of the giant turtles was traditionally something of a boon: turtle soup for breakfast, lunch and dinner, and extra cash from market sales. Over the years the annual slaughter began to turn into a green gold rush, and turtle numbers plummeted drastically until the Bhitarkanika Wildlife Sanctuary on Gahirmatha beach, 130km northeast of Bhubaneswar, was set up in 1975 at the personal behest of Indira Gandhi. Weeks before the big three- or four-day invasion, coastguards monitor the shoreline and armed rangers aim to keep poachers at bay. For wildlife enthusiasts it's a field day.

Over the last twenty years, however, environmental threats have impacted on the turtles' habitat. Local families cultivate land within the sanctuary, while illegal prawn farms, fishing trawlers, industrial pollution, and distracting night-time light from nearby settlements are additional hazards.

However, there are some positive signs. Further fishing restrictions have been put in place, conservation organizations, including Greenpeace and the WWF, are monitoring the area, and the number of turtles nesting along the Odishan coast has generally risen over the last few years – more than 700,000 nested here in 2017.

By bus or train Chandbali is linked by bus to Bhubaneswar, 130km away (5–7 daily; 4–5hr). Alternatively, head to Bhadrakh, the nearest railhead, 60km away (around 24 trains daily between Bhadrakh and Bhubaneswar; 1hr 10min–5hr); regular buses (around 5–6 daily; 1hr 30min–2hr) connect Bhadrakh and Chandbali.

By boat There are several agents based around the jetty in Chandbali who can arrange park entry permits and boats (be prepared to haggle). If you want to obtain the permit yourself you'll need to contact the elusive Assistant Conservator of Forests, also based at the jetty (☎06786 220372).

Tours Discover Tours in Bhubaneswar, Heritage Tours in Puri and Nature Camp (see below) all arrange tours to the sanctuary.

ACCOMMODATION YOU CAN STAY AT ONE OF THE INEXPENSIVE FOREST LODGES AT DANGMAL, EKAKULA, GUPTI OR HABALIKATHI, THOUGH THESE ARE VERY BASIC OPTIONS SUITABLE ONLY FOR VERY HARDY TRAVELLERS. YOU HAVE TO BRING YOUR OWN FOOD AND WATER, WHICH THE CHOWKIDAR WILL COOK FOR YOU, AND UNLESS YOU USE AN AGENT, THE ONLY WAY TO BOOK THIS ACCOMMODATION IS IN ADVANCE THROUGH THE DIVISIONAL FOREST OFFICER IN THE LESS-THAN-ACCESSIBLE OUTPOST OF RAJNAGAR (06729 272460).

Ayanyanivas Chandbali  otdc.in/chandbali.htm. Located near the jetty in Chandbali, the OTDC-run Ayanyanivas is fine for a night or two, despite an institutional air. It has scruffy but acceptable rooms (with either fans or a/c), as well as a low-cost eight-bed dorm and a so-so restaurant. Dorms ₹, doubles ₹₹

Nature Camp Bankuala Village
odishatourism.gov.in/content/tourism/en/experience/activities/trekking/bhitarkanika-nature-camps.html. Also known as Bhitarkanika Village Retreat, Nature Camp is the best place to stay in the area: accommodation is provided in comfortable “Swiss” tents with attached bathrooms, and there is a good restaurant. Rates include meals, transfers to/from Bhubaneswar, and trips to the sanctuary; various other packages are also available. ₹₹₹₹ per person Similipal Tiger Reserve Mid-Nov to mid-June daily dawn–dusk • Entry fee charge, camera charge, payable at the Pithabata entrance •
similipal.org

Once a royal hunting ground, Similipal Tiger Reserve remains – despite suffering serious problems – one of the last wildernesses left in eastern India, home to tigers, leopards, wild elephants and 231 species of bird. In 2009, Maoist rebels launched an attack in the park: several buildings were blown up, vehicles were set on fire and tourists were robbed. The park was subsequently closed, most of the forestry department officials fled their posts, and illegal logging, hunting and poaching increased. The reserve is open again now, but despite a crackdown, rebel groups remain active and the security situation is prone to change: check with Odisha Tourism in Bhubaneswar for the latest before setting off.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION

SIMILIPAL TIGER RESERVE

By train Independent travellers should head to the town of Baripada, around 25km east of the park's Pithabata entrance; there are some basic lodges, and you can organize onward transport to the park. The BBS BPO Express #12892 (daily; departs 5.10pm; 4hr 45min) runs from Bhubaneswar to Baripada; the BGY BBS Express #12891 (daily; departs 5.10am; 4hr 50min) does the return journey.

Tours The easiest way to visit the park is on an organized tour – try Discover Tours in Bhubaneswar or Heritage Tours in Puri.

Puri As the home of Lord Jagannath and his siblings, PURI ranks among Hindu India's most important sacred sites, visited by a vast number of pilgrims each year. The crowds peak during the monsoons for Rath Yatra, the famous "Car Festival", when millions pour in to watch three giant, multicoloured chariots being drawn up the main thoroughfare. At the centre of the maelstrom, the Jagannath temple soars above the town's medieval heart and colonial suburbs like some kind of misplaced space rocket. Non-Hindus aren't allowed inside its bustling precincts, but don't let this deter you; Puri's streets and beach remain the focus of intense devotional activity year-round, while its bazaars are crammed with collectable religious souvenirs associated with Lord Jagannath.

Three distinct types of visitor come to Puri: middle-class Bengalis lured by the combined pleasures of puja and promenade; a few young Western and Japanese backpackers enjoying the low-key traveller scene at this former hippie trail favourite; and thousands of pilgrims, mainly from rural eastern India, who flock in to pay their respects to Lord Jagannath. Over the years the three have staked out their respective ends of town and stuck to them. It all makes for a rather bizarre and intoxicating atmosphere, where you can be transported from the intensity of Hindu India to the sea and back to the relative calm of your hotel veranda at the turn of a bicycle wheel.

Brief history Until the seventh and eighth centuries, Puri was little more than a provincial outpost along the coastal trade route linking eastern India with the south. Then, thanks to its association with the Hindu reformer Shankaracharya (Shankara), the town began to feature on the religious map. Shankara made Puri one of his four mathas, or centres for the practice of a radically new, and more ascetic form of Hinduism. Holy men from across the Subcontinent came to debate the new philosophies – a tradition carried on in the city's temple courtyards to this day. With the arrival of the Gangas at the beginning of the twelfth century, this religious and political importance was further consolidated. In 1135, Anantavarman Chodaganga founded the great temple in Puri, and dedicated it to Purushottama, one of the thousand names of Vishnu – an ambitious attempt to integrate the many feudal kingdoms recently conquered by the Gangas. Under the Gajapati dynasty in the fifteenth century Purushottama's name changed to Jagannath ("Lord of the Universe"). Henceforth Vaishnavism and the devotional worship of Krishna, an incarnation of Vishnu, was to hold sway as the predominant religious influence in the temple. Puri is now one of the four most auspicious pilgrimage centres, or dhams, in India.

Western-style leisure tourism, centred on the town's long sandy beach, is a comparatively new phenomenon. The British were the first to spot Puri's potential as a resort. When they left, the Bengalis took over their bungalows, only to find themselves sharing the beach with an annual migration of young, chillum-smoking Westerners attracted to the town by its abundant hashish. Today, few vestiges of this era remain. Thanks to a concerted campaign by the municipality to clean up Puri's image, the "scene" has dwindled to little more than a handful of cafés, and is a far cry from the swinging hippie paradise some still arrive here hoping to find.

The Jagannath temple Northwest of the town centre, off Grand Rd • Raghunandan Library Mon–Sat 9am–1pm & 4–6pm • Donation expected; when the library is closed, touts hang around outside the temple offering views from the rooftops of nearby buildings – try not to pay more than ₹

The mighty Jagannath temple in Puri is one of the four holy *dham*s, or “abodes of the divine”, drawing pilgrims, or yatris, here to spend three auspicious days and nights near Lord Jagannath, the presiding deity. The present temple structure, modelled on the older Lingaraj temple in Bhubaneswar, was erected at the start of the twelfth century by the Ganga ruler Anantavarman Chodaganga.

Viewing the temple Despite the temple’s long-standing “caste no bar” rule, non-Hindu visitors are obliged to view proceedings from the flat roof of the Raghunandan Library, directly opposite the main gate. One of the librarians will show you up the stairs to the vantage point overlooking the East Gate. You should make a donation for this service – but don’t believe the big sums written in the ledger.

From the rooftop a fine view encompasses the immense deul, at 65m by far the loftiest building in the entire region. Archeologists have removed the white plaster from the tower to expose elaborate carving similar to that on the Lingaraj. Crowning the very top, a long scarlet pennant and the eight-spoked wheel (chakra) of Vishnu announce the presence of Lord Jagannath within.

The pyramidal roofs of the temples’ adjoining halls, or mandapas, rise in steps towards the tower. The one nearest the sanctuary, the jagamohana (assembly hall), is part of the original building, but the other two, the smaller nata mandir (dance hall) and the bhogamandapa (hall of offerings) nearest the entrance, were added in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. These halls still see a lot of action during the day as worshippers file through for darshan, while late every night they become the venue for devotional music. Female and transvestite dancers (maharis and gotipuas) once performed episodes from Jayadev’s Gita Govinda, the much-loved story of the life of Krishna, for the amusement of Lord Jagannath and his siblings. Nowadays, piped songs have replaced the traditional theatre.

THE JAGANNATH DEITIES AND RATH YATRA STAND ON ANY STREET CORNER IN ODISHA AND YOU’LL PROBABLY BE ABLE TO SPOT AT LEAST ONE IMAGE OF THE BLACK-FACED JAGANNATH DEITY, WITH HIS BROTHER BALABHADRA AND SISTER

SUBHADRA; EACH FIGURE IS LEGLESS, WITH UNDERSIZED ARMS AND PROMINENT EYES. THE ORIGINS OF THIS PECULIAR SYMBOL ARE SHROUDED IN LEGEND. ONE VERSION RELATES THAT THE IMAGE OF LORD JAGANNATH LOOKS THE WAY IT DOES BECAUSE IT WAS NEVER ACTUALLY FINISHED. KING INDRAMENA, A RULER OF ANCIENT ODISHA, ONCE FOUND THE GOD VISHNU IN THE FORM OF A TREE STUMP WASHED UP ON PURI BEACH. HE CARRIED THE LUMP OF WOOD TO THE TEMPLE AND, FOLLOWING INSTRUCTIONS FROM BRAHMA, CALLED THE COURT CARPENTER VISVAKARMA TO CARVE OUT THE IMAGE. VISVAKARMA AGREED – ON CONDITION THAT NO ONE SET EYES ON THE DEITY UNTIL IT WAS COMPLETED. THE KING, HOWEVER, UNABLE TO CONTAIN HIS EXCITEMENT, PEEPED INTO THE WORKSHOP; VISVAKARMA, SPOTTING HIM, DOWNED TOOLS AND CAST A SPELL ON THE DEITY SO THAT NO ONE ELSE COULD FINISH IT.

RATH YATRA THE JAGANNATH DEITIES ARE ALSO THE CHIEF FOCUS OF PURI'S ANNUAL CAR FESTIVAL, THE RATH YATRA – JUST ONE EPISODE IN A LONG CYCLE OF RITUALS THAT BEGINS IN THE FULL MOON PHASE OF THE ORIYA MONTH OF DJESTO (JUNE/JULY). IN THE FIRST OF THESE, THE CHANDAN YATRA, SPECIAL REPLICAS OF THE THREE TEMPLE DEITIES, ARE TAKEN TO THE NARENDRA SAGAR WHERE FOR 21 CONSECUTIVE DAYS THEY ARE SMEARED WITH CHANDAN (SANDALWOOD PASTE) AND ROWED AROUND IN A CEREMONIAL, SWAN-SHAPED BOAT. AT THE END OF THIS PERIOD, IN A CEREMONY KNOWN AS SNANA YATRA, THE THREE GO FOR A DIP IN THE TANK,

AFTER WHICH THEY HEAD OFF FOR FIFTEEN DAYS OF SECLUDED PREPARATION FOR RATH YATRA.

The Car Festival proper takes place during the full moon of the following month, Asadho (July/Aug). Lord Jagannath and his brother and sister are placed in their chariots and dragged by 4200 honoured devotees through the assembled multitudes to their summer home, the Gundicha Ghar (Garden House), 1.5km away. If you can find a secure vantage point and escape the crush, it's an amazing sight. The immense chariots are draped with brightly coloured cloth and accompanied down Grand Road by elephants, the local raja (who sweeps the chariots as a gesture of humility and equality with all castes) and a cacophony of music and percussion. Each chariot has a different name and a different-coloured cover, and is built anew every year to rigid specifications laid down in the temple's ancient manuals. Balabhadra's rath, the green one, leads; Subhadra is next, in black; and lastly, in the 13m-tall chariot with eighteen wheels and a vivid red and yellow drape, sits Lord Jagannath himself. It takes eight hours or more to haul the raths to their resting place. After a nine-day holiday, the sequence is performed in reverse, and the three deities return to the temple to resume their normal lives.

Conventional wisdom has it that the procession commemorates Krishna's journey from Gokhul to Mathura; historians cite the similarity between the raths and temple towers to claim it's a hangover from the time when temples were made of wood. Whatever the reason for the Car Festival, its devotees take it very seriously indeed. Early travellers spoke of fanatics throwing themselves under the gigantic wheels as a short cut to eternal bliss (whence the English word "juggernaut", meaning an "irresistible, destructive force"). Contemporary enthusiasts are marginally more restrained, but like most mass gatherings in India, the whole event teeters at times on the brink of complete mayhem.

The kitchens Outside the main building, at the left end of the walled compound surrounding the temple, are the kitchens. The food prepared here, known as mahaprasad, and blessed by Lord Jagannath, is said to be so pure that even a morsel taken from the mouth of a dog and fed to a brahmin by a Harijan (a lower-caste dalit) will cleanse the body of sin. Devotees mill around carrying pieces of broken pots full of dhal and rice; they can only offer food to the deity from an imperfect pot as Lord Jagannath is the only perfection in this world.

The temple employees Among the ten thousand or so daily recipients of the mahaprasad are the six thousand employees of the temple itself. These servants are divided into 96 hereditary and hierarchical orders known as chhatisha niyoga, and include the priests who minister to the needs of the deities (teeth cleaning, dressing, feeding, getting them ready for afternoon siesta, and so forth), as well as the teams of craftspeople who produce all the materials required for the daily round of rituals.

The bazaar Grand Rd, near the Jagannath temple The crowded streets around the Jagannath temple buzz with activity – commercial as much as religious. Grand Road, Puri's broad main thoroughfare, is lined with a lively bazaar, many of its stalls specializing in rudraksha malas (Shaivite "rosaries" made of 108 beads), Ayurvedic cures and the ubiquitous images of Lord Jagannath. Look out too for the wonderful "religious maps" of Puri.

Swargadwar Around 2.5km west of the town centre The Swargadwar cremation ground, one of India's most auspicious mortuary sites, is situated well beyond the south corner of the beach. Although anyone can watch the ceremonies from a respectful distance, over-inquisitive tourists are definitely not welcome.

The Markandesvara tank North of the Jagannath temple • To get here, follow the temple's north wall up to a little road junction in the far corner, then turn right and stick to the same narrow twisting backstreet for about 1km; the journey is best attempted by bike The Markandesvara tank, a large, steep-sided bathing place, is said to have been the spot where Vishnu once resided in the form of a neem tree while his temple was buried deep under a sand dune. There's no sign of the tree, but the temples on the south side are worth a look, particularly the smaller of the group, which contains images of the Jagannath trio.

Narendra Sagar East of the Markandesvara tank • To get here, retrace your route from Markandesvara tank down the lane as far as the first road junction, then bear left and continue for another 1km or so The Narendra Sagar is Puri's most holy tank. A small temple stands in the middle, joined to the ghats by a narrow footbridge. During the annual Chandan Yatra, a replica deity of Lord Jagannath, Madan Mohan, is brought here every day for his dip. The temple itself is plastered with vivid murals that you can photograph on payment of the set fee listed nearby. The list also advertises the range of services offered by the temple pujaris, including the unlikely sounding "throw of bone" and "throw of hair" – references to the tank's role as another of Puri's famous mortuary ritual sites.

Sudarshan workshop Station Rd • No fixed opening hours The Sudarshan workshop is one of the few traditional stone-carvers' yards left in Puri. The sculptors and their apprentices are more interested in pursuing their art than selling it to tourists, but gladly direct potential customers to the factory shop next door. Most of the pieces here are large religious icons carved out of khondalite – the multi-coloured stone used in the Sun Temple at Konark.

The beach South of the town centre If a peaceful swim and a spot of sunbathing are your top priorities, you're likely to be disappointed with Puri beach; the stretch in front of the fishing village is a 3km-long open-air toilet and rubbish dump, though the “Model Beach” project, a cleaned-up stretch of sand near the Mayfair Heritage hotel, is attempting to change this. The beach beyond the Sanskrit University, 3km further east, is generally a better bet.

In the west end of town, along Marine Parade, the atmosphere is more akin to a British Victorian holiday resort. This stretch is very much the domain of the domestic tourist industry and the beach is cleaner here. It’s a pleasant place to stroll and becomes highly animated after sunset when the nightly souvenir market gets going.

Local fishermen sometimes patrol the beach as lifeguards; recognizable by their triangular straw hats and dhotis. However, the undertow claims victims every year, so weak swimmers should be careful. When not saving lives, the fishermen are busy at the CT Road end of the beach, engaged in the more traditional industries of mending nets and boats.

Note that there have been reports of attacks and muggings on quieter stretches of the beach, so take care and avoid entirely after dark.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN TRAINS ARRIVING PURI AT PURI’S END-OF-LINE STATION, IN THE NORTH OF TOWN, ARE OFTEN GREETED BY FIRED-UP RICKSHAW-WALLAHS SPRINTING ALONGSIDE IN THE RACE TO CATCH A FOREIGNER. (YOU’LL ENCOUNTER A SIMILAR FRENZY AT THE BUS STAND AND THE JAGANNATH TEMPLE, CAUSED BY COMPETITION FOR THE COMMISSION OFFERED BY THE HOTELS.) PURI IS JOINED TO THE MAIN KOLKATA–CHENNAI ROUTES BY A BRANCH LINE OF THE BUSY SOUTHEASTERN RAIL NETWORK, BUT THERE IS A FAR GREATER RANGE OF SERVICES FROM BHUBANESWAR AND KHURDA RD, 44KM AWAY.

Destinations Bhubaneswar (around 20 daily; 1hr 15min–2hr 15min); Gaya (for Bodhgaya; 2 daily; 15hr 10min–16hr 15min); Kolkata (around 12 daily; 8hr 15min–16hr); Varanasi (3 weekly; 20hr 30min).

By bus The bus stand is in the north of the city, a 10min rickshaw ride from the centre through the bumpy back streets. Minibuses and jeeps also run to Bhubaneswar and Konark, though often travel dangerously fast. An auto-rickshaw into the centre is the economical option.

Destinations Bhubaneswar (roughly hourly; 1hr 30min–2hr 30min); Konark (roughly hourly; around 1hr); Satapada on Chilika Lake (every 30min–1hr; 1hr 30min–2hr).

By car The tourist office and the town's travel agencies (see below) can organize cars and drivers to Konark and Satapada for around ₹.

GETTING AROUND BY BIKE PURI IS FAIRLY SPREAD OUT BUT FLAT, SO BICYCLES ARE IDEAL FOR GETTING AROUND AND EXPLORING THE MAZE OF STREETS AROUND THE JAGANNATH TEMPLE. THERE ARE SEVERAL PLACES TO RENT THEM ON CHAKRA TIRTHA (CT) RD BETWEEN THE GANDHARA AND Z.

By moped/motorbike Mopeds and motorbikes are rented out by a couple of travel agents and shops along CT Rd for full or half-days and are useful for trips up the coast to Konark; standards vary, however.

By rickshaw and auto-rickshaw Auto-rickshaws and cycle rickshaws are both common in Puri.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST INFORMATION THE MAIN ODISHA TOURISM OFFICE IS ON THE CORNER OF VIP AND CT ROADS (DAILY EXCEPT SUN & 2ND SAT OF MONTH 10AM–5PM; ☎06752 222664) 🌐OTDC.IN; THERE'S ALSO A (FAIRLY UNHELPFUL) COUNTER AT THE RAILWAY STATION (OFFICIALLY DAILY 24HR).

Tours The OTDC, which has a booking counter close to the main Odisha Tourism office, offers a range of tours, including one taking in the main sights of Konark and another that visits Chilika Lake. Gandhara Travel at the Gandhara hotel (see below) also offers tours, including to Konark during the dance festival, as well as flight and train bookings. Heritage Tours (🌐heritagetoursorissa.com), based at the Mayfair Beach Resort, is well established and reliable, offering a wide range of tours throughout the state and beyond. Grass Routes on CT Rd (🌐grassroutesjourneys.com) arranges excellent themed-tours of Puri and the surrounding area, including bike tours, paddleboard trips to Konark, and Chilika Lake birdwatching trips, plus cookery classes.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Virtually all of Puri's hotels are on or near the beach, where a strict distinction is observed: those aimed at domestic tourists are lined up behind Marine Drive, the promenade on the west end of the beach, while budget-conscious Westerners are sandwiched further east around CT Rd between the high-rise resort hotels and the fishing village, an area sometimes referred to as Pentakunta. The less expensive hotels are quiet during the summer months, but the pricier accommodation tends to be booked solid well in advance of Rath Yatra. Checkout is 8am for most hotels, although off-season this rule is less rigidly enforced.

Chanakya BNR Hotel CT Rd www.chanakyabnrpuri.com. A must for Rajophiles, this renovated hotel – formerly the South Eastern Railway Hotel – retains much of the old-world charm that once made it the premier bolthole for Calcutta's burra- and memsahibs. The rooms are comfortable, and there's an atmospheric restaurant. Check out the old train engine in the neatly manicured gardens out front. ₹₹₹

★Gandhara CT Rd www.hotelgandhara.com. The best mid-range hotel in town and consequently very popular, so advance bookings are a must year-round. All the spick-and-span rooms are attached, some have a/c and a few have sea views. There's a swimming pool, restaurant, honesty bar, internet café, money exchange and efficient travel agency. ₹₹₹

Hans Coco Palms Marine Drive, 2km west of the town centre www.hanshotels.com/hans-puri/. A modern complex in a superb setting outside town; all the rooms are a/c and overlook the sea. There's a pool, bar and restaurant, and the beach here is pleasant. Book online for the best deals. ₹₹

Lotus CT Rd www.hotellotuspuri.com. One of the better budget joints, Lotus has sparsely furnished, but clean rooms, all attached – the quads are good value if you're in a group. A/c rooms are twice the price of fan-cooled ones. There's also a good pure-veg restaurant, Harry's, on the premises. ₹₹

Mayfair Heritage Off CT Rd www.mayfairhotels.com/mayfair-heritage.php. The best-value top-end hotel in Puri has elegant, classically designed rooms and cottages surrounded by palm trees, a pool and an appealing stretch of beach to the front. Facilities include a gym, spa, bar and a fine restaurant. ₹₹₹ If you want even more luxury, head to neighbouring sister hotel Mayfair Waves 🌐mayfairhotels.com/mayfair-waves.php ₹₹₹₹

Samudra Off CT Rd 🌐samudrapuri.com. This well-run hotel is one of the better lower- to mid-range options in Puri with a bewildering range of rooms, the better and more expensive of which are on the second floor and have sea-facing balconies. The cheapest rates exclude breakfast. ₹₹

Santana At the end of CT Rd 🌐indiasantana.com. A small, pleasant hotel with a good set-up for travellers (it's particularly popular with Japanese visitors). The economy rooms are narrow and cell-like, but the more expensive ones are larger and have a/c. ₹₹

Toshali Sands Konark Rd, 9km north of town 🌐toshalisands.com. Spread across 25 acres, this self-styled “ethnic village” resort has attractive a/c rooms and cottages grouped around a garden and a pool. Popular with tour groups, it also has a good restaurant, gym, sauna, hot tub and Ayurvedic spa. Rates include free pick-up from Puri railway station. ₹₹₹₹

Z Hotel CT Rd 🌐zhotelindia.com. A Puri institution, the Z (pronounced “jed”) is based in a mansion once owned by the raja of Serampore. Once a popular backpacker haunt, a revamp has pushed it into the mid-range category. The best rooms have partial sea views, and there's a pleasant garden area perfect for a sundowner. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Most of the restaurants along CT Rd offer inexpensive thalis, and there's good fresh fish to be had, though better food can be found at the smarter hotels. An interesting alternative is the sacred food, or mahaprasad, the creation of four hundred cooks in the Jagannath temple kitchens and available from stalls in the nearby Anand Bazaar.

Chung-Wah Lee Garden Hotel, VIP Rd 📞06752 229986. Run by a Chinese-Indian family originally from Kolkata, Chung-Wah offers suitably authentic food (including a range of tempting fish and prawn dishes), big portions and a quick turnover. Daily noon–10.30pm. ₹₹

The Dining Car Chanakya BNR hotel 📞06752 223006, 🌐chanakyabnrpuri.com. A stately, a/c restaurant with high ceilings and evocative black-and-white photos of the Southeastern Railway in years gone by. The menu features the usual Indian and Chinese staples, as well as a few attempts at Western dishes, such as fish and chips. Daily 7.30am–11pm. ₹₹

★Honey Bee CT Rd; 089842 71740. This peaceful, a/c bakery-pizzeria is ideal for homesick travellers. The thin-crust pizzas are surprisingly authentic, there's an inventive range of sandwiches, salads and soups (including gazpacho), and even bacon is on offer. In addition, there's a proper coffee machine and tempting home-made cakes, pastries and breads. Daily 8.30am–10pm. ₹₹

Peace Sea side off CT Rd. "Famous in Puri – unheard of anywhere else" is the self-deprecating slogan of this friendly traveller stalwart, with tables in a shady garden. The menu has good breakfast options, juices, tasty Indian and Chinese food, fresh fish and seafood, and variable attempts at Western dishes, plus backpacker classics such as banana pancakes. Previously located on CT Rd, the restaurant has recently moved to a side street, near the Pink House hotel. Daily 8am–10.30pm. ₹

★Wild Grass Corner of VIP Rd and College Rd, 2km from CT Rd 09437 023656. Set in a garden that appears to be growing into a jungle (though there is also an a/c dining room), Wild Grass has an excellent selection of dishes from Odisha, Puri and the Chilika region. Daily noon–11pm. ₹₹

SHOPPING CRAFTS AND MARKETS SEVERAL SHOPS ON TEMPLE RD STOCK A GOOD RANGE OF LOCAL CRAFTS AT FIXED PRICES, AND THERE'S A LIVELY EVENING MARKET ON THE BEACH OFF MARINE DRIVE, SOUTH OF PURI HOTEL. SOME 11.5KM OUTSIDE PURI, OFF THE ROAD TO BHUBANESWAR, IS RAGHURAJPUR, A VILLAGE WHERE ARTISANS SPECIALIZE IN TRADITIONAL ODISHAN ARTS AND CRAFTS: IT'S A GOOD PLACE TO PICK UP PAINTINGS, CARVINGS, WOODEN TOYS AND PAPIER-MÂCHÉ MASKS.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE THE STATE BANK OF INDIA ON VIP RD, CHANGES DOLLARS, STERLING AND EUROS. YOU CAN ALSO CHANGE MONEY AT ALLAHABAD

BANK ON TEMPLE RD, 200M UP FROM THE GPO TOWARDS THE TEMPLE, AND AT THE GANDHARA HOTEL.

Hospitals Puri's main "HQ" hospital (☎06752 223742) is outside the town centre on Grand Rd. Hotels such as the Mayfair can help find doctors in an emergency.

Police The main police station is on Grand Rd, near the Jagannath temple. There is another branch at the Kacheri–VIP road junction (☎06752 223293).

Post office The GPO, which has poste restante, is on Kacheri Rd.

Konark Time runs like a horse with seven reins, Thousand-eyed, unageing, possessing much seed. Him the poets mount; His wheels are all beings.

The Artharva Veda If you see only one temple in Odisha, it should be KONARK, 35km north of Puri and one of India's most visited ancient monuments. Standing imperiously in its compound of lawns and casuarina trees, this majestic pile of oxidizing sandstone is considered to be the apogee of Odishan architecture and one of the finest religious buildings anywhere in the world.

The temple is all the more remarkable for having languished under a huge mound of sand since it fell into neglect around three hundred years ago. Not until the dune and heaps of collapsed masonry were cleared away from the sides, early in the twentieth century, did the full extent of its ambitious design become apparent. In 1924, the Earl of Ronaldshay described the newly revealed temple as "one of the most stupendous buildings in India which rears itself aloft, a pile of overwhelming grandeur even in its decay". A team of seven galloping horses and 24 exquisitely carved wheels found lining the flanks of a raised platform showed that the temple had been conceived in the form of a colossal chariot for the sun god Surya, its presiding deity.

Equally sensational was the rediscovery among the ruins of some extraordinary erotic sculpture. Konark, like Khajuraho, is plastered with loving couples locked in ingenious amatory postures drawn from the Kama Sutra – a feature that may well explain the comment made by one of Akbar's emissaries, Abul Fazl, in the sixteenth century: "Even those who are difficult to please," he enthused, "stand astonished at its sight."

Apart from the temple, a small museum and a fishing beach, Konark village has little going for it. Sundays and public holidays are particularly busy here: aim to stay until sunset after most of the tour groups have left, when the rich evening light works wonders on the natural colours in the khondalite sandstone.

Brief history Inscription plates attribute the founding of the temple to the thirteenth-century Ganga monarch Narasimhadeva, who may have built it to commemorate his military successes against the Muslim invaders. Local legend attributes its aura of power to the two very powerful magnets said to have been built into the tower, with the poles placed in such a way that the idol was suspended in midair.

The temple's 70m tower became a landmark for European mariners sailing off the shallow Odishan coast, who knew it as the "Black Pagoda", and the frequent incidence of shipping disasters along the coast was blamed on the effect of the aforesaid magnets on the tidal pattern. The tower also proved to be an obvious target for raids on the region. In the fifteenth century, Konark was sacked by the Yavana army, causing sufficient damage to allow the elements to get a foothold. As the sea receded, sand slowly engulfed the building and salty breezes set to work on the spongy khondalite, eroding the exposed surfaces and weakening the superstructure. By the end of the nineteenth century, the tower had disintegrated completely, and the porch lay buried up to its waist, prompting one art historian of the day to describe it as "an enormous mass of stones studded with a few peepal trees here and there".

ODISSI DANCE EVEN VISITORS WHO DON'T NORMALLY ENJOY CLASSICAL DANCE CANNOT FAIL TO BE SEDUCED BY THE ELEGANCE AND POISE OF ODISHA'S OWN REGIONAL STYLE, ODISSI. FRIEZES IN THE RANI GUMPHA AT UDAIGIRI ATTEST TO THE POPULARITY OF DANCE IN THE ODISHAN COURTS AS FAR BACK AS THE SECOND CENTURY BC. BY THE TIME THE REGION'S HINDU "GOLDEN AGE" WAS IN FULL SWING, IT HAD BECOME AN INTEGRAL PART OF RELIGIOUS RITUAL, WITH PURPOSE-BUILT DANCE HALLS, OR NATA MANDAPAS, BEING ADDED TO EXISTING TEMPLES AND CORPS OF DANCING GIRLS EMPLOYED TO PERFORM IN THEM.

DEVADASIS DEVADASIS, LITERALLY "WIVES OF THE GOD", WERE HANDED OVER BY THEIR PARENTS AT AN EARLY AGE AND SYMBOLICALLY "MARRIED" TO THE DEITY. THEY WERE TRAINED TO READ, SING AND DANCE AND, AS ONE DISAPPROVING EARLY NINETEENTH-CENTURY CHRONICLER PUT IT, TO "MAKE PUBLIC TRAFFIC OF THEIR CHARMS" WITH MALE VISITORS TO THE TEMPLE. GRADUALLY, RITUAL INTERCOURSE (A LEGACY OF THE TANTRIC INFLUENCE ON MEDIEVAL HINDUISM) DEGENERATED INTO PURE PROSTITUTION, AND DANCE, FORMERLY AN ACT OF WORSHIP, GREW TO BECOME LITTLE MORE THAN A FORM OF COMMERCIAL ENTERTAINMENT. BY THE COLONIAL ERA, ODISSI WAS ALL BUT LOST.

RESURGENCE ITS RESURGENCE FOLLOWED THE REDISCOVERY IN THE 1950S OF THE ABHINAYA CHANDRIKA, A FIFTEENTH-CENTURY MANUAL ON CLASSICAL ODISHAN DANCE. LIKE BHARATANATYAM, INDIA'S MOST POPULAR DANCE STYLE, ODISSI HAS ITS OWN HIGHLY COMPLEX LANGUAGE OF POSES AND STEPS. BASED ON THE TRIBHANGA "HIP-SHOT" STANCE, MOVEMENTS OF THE BODY, HANDS AND EYES CONVEY SPECIFIC EMOTIONS AND ENACT EPISODES FROM WELL-KNOWN RELIGIOUS TEXTS – MOST COMMONLY THE GITA GOVINDA (THE KRISHNA STORY). USING THE ABHINAYA AND TEMPLE SCULPTURE, DANCERS AND CHOREOGRAPHERS WERE ABLE TO RECONSTRUCT THIS

GRAMMAR INTO A COHERENT FORM AND WITHIN A DECADE ODISSI WAS A THRIVING PERFORMANCE ART ONCE AGAIN. TODAY, IRONICALLY, DANCE LESSONS WITH A REPUTED GURU HAVE BECOME DE RIGUEUR FOR THE YOUNG DAUGHTERS OF ODISHA'S MIDDLE CLASSES.

LIVE PERFORMANCES UNFORTUNATELY, CATCHING A LIVE PERFORMANCE IS A MATTER OF BEING IN THE RIGHT PLACE AT THE RIGHT TIME. THE ONLY REGULAR RECITALS TAKE PLACE IN THE JAGANNATH TEMPLE. IF, HOWEVER, YOU'RE NOT A HINDU, THE ANNUAL FESTIVAL OF DANCE AT KONARK, IN THE FIRST WEEK OF DECEMBER, IS YOUR BEST CHANCE OF SEEING ODISHA'S TOP PERFORMERS. IF YOU'RE KEEN TO LEARN, CHECK OUT THE SEVERAL DANCE ACADEMIES IN BHUBANESWAR THAT RUN COURSES FOR BEGINNERS.

Restoration only really began in earnest in 1901, when British archeologists set about unearthing the immaculately preserved hidden sections of the building and salvaging what they could from the rest of the rubble. Finally, trees were planted to shelter the compound from the corrosive winds, and a museum opened to house what sculpture was not shipped off to Delhi, Kolkata and London.

The temple Daily dawn–dusk • Charge The main entrance to the temple complex on its eastern, sea-facing side brings you out directly in front of the bhogamandapa, or “hall of offerings”. Ornate carvings of amorous couples, musicians and dancers decorating the sides of its platform and stocky pillars suggest that the now roofless pavilion, a later addition to the temple, must originally have been used for ritual dance performances.

To get a sense of the overall scale and design, stroll along the low wall that bounds the south side of the enclosure before you tackle the ruins proper. As a giant model of Surya's war chariot, the temple was intended both as an offering to the Vedic sun god and as a symbol for the passage of time itself – believed to lie in his control. The seven horses straining to haul the sun eastwards in the direction of the dawn (only one is still intact) represent the days of the week. The wheels ranged along the base stand for the twelve months, each with eight spokes detailed with pictures of the eight ideal stages of a woman's day.

ODISHAN ART AND ARTISTS FEW REGIONS OF INDIA RETAIN AS RICH A DIVERSITY OF TRADITIONAL ART FORMS AS ODISHA. WHILE A BROWSE THROUGH THE BAZAARS AND EMPORIA IN PURI AND BHUBANESWAR PROVIDES A GOOD IDEA OF LOCAL STYLES AND TECHNIQUES, A TRIP OUT TO THE VILLAGES WHERE THE WORK IS ACTUALLY PRODUCED IS A MUCH MORE MEMORABLE WAY TO SHOP. DIFFERENT VILLAGES SPECIALIZE IN DIFFERENT CRAFTS – A DIVISION THAT HARKS BACK TO THE ORIGINS OF THE CASTE SYSTEM IN ODISHA. PATRONAGE FROM THE NOBILITY AND WEALTHY TEMPLES DURING MEDIEVAL TIMES ALLOWED LOCAL ARTISANS, OR SHILPINS, TO REFINE THEIR SKILLS OVER GENERATIONS. AS THE MARKET FOR ARTS AND CRAFTS EXPANDED, NOTABLY WITH THE RISE OF PURI AS A PILGRIMAGE CENTRE, GUILDS WERE FORMED TO CONTROL THE HANDING DOWN OF SPECIALIST KNOWLEDGE AND SEPARATE COMMUNITIES ESTABLISHED TO CARRY OUT THE WORK. TODAY, THE DEMAND FOR SOUVENIRS HAS GIVEN MANY OLD ART FORMS A NEW LEASE OF LIFE.

STONE SCULPTURE WITH MODERN TEMPLES INCREASINGLY BEING BUILT OUT OF REINFORCED

CONCRETE, LIFE FOR ODISHA'S STONE SCULPTORS IS GETTING TOUGHER. TO SEE THEM AT WORK, HEAD FOR PATHURIA SAHI ("STONECARVERS' LANE") AND THE FAMOUS SUDARSHAN WORKSHOP ON STATION ROAD IN PURI, WHERE MASTER CRAFTSMEN AND APPRENTICES STILL FASHION HINDU DEITIES AND OTHER VOTIVE OBJECTS ACCORDING TO SPECIFICATIONS LAID DOWN IN ANCIENT MANUALS.

PAINTING PATTA CHITRA, CLASSICAL ODISHAN PAINTING, IS CLOSELY CONNECTED WITH THE JAGANNATH CULT. TRADITIONALLY, ARTISTS WERE EMPLOYED TO DECORATE THE INSIDE OF THE TEMPLES IN PURI AND TO PAINT THE DEITIES AND CHARIOTS USED IN THE RATH YATRA. LATER, THE SAME VIBRANT COLOUR SCHEMES AND MOTIFS WERE TRANSFERRED TO LACQUERED CLOTH OR PALM LEAVES AND SOLD AS SACRED SOUVENIRS TO VISITING PILGRIMS. IN THE VILLAGE OF RAGHURAJPUR NEAR PURI, WHERE THE MAJORITY OF THE REMAINING ARTISTS, OR CHITRAKARAS, NOW LIVE, MEN USE PAINT MADE FROM THE LOCAL MINERAL STONES. SPECIALITIES INCLUDE SETS OF GANJIFFA – SMALL ROUND CARDS USED TO PLAY A TRICK-TAKING GAME BASED ON THE STRUGGLE BETWEEN RAMA AND THE DEMON RAVANA, AS TOLD IN THE RAMAYANA.

PALM-LEAF MANUSCRIPTS PALM LEAVES, OR CHITRA POTH, HAVE BEEN USED AS WRITING MATERIALS IN ODISHA FOR CENTURIES. USING A SHARP STYLUS CALLED A LOHANKANTAKA, THE ARTIST FIRST SCRATCHES THE TEXT OR DESIGN ONTO THE SURFACE OF PALM LEAVES, THEN APPLIES A PASTE OF TURMERIC, DRIED LEAVES, OIL AND CHARCOAL THAT, WHEN RUBBED OFF, EMPHASIZES THE ETCHING. PALM-LEAF FLAPS ARE OFTEN TIED ONTO THE STRUCTURE SO AN INNOCENT ETCHING OF AN ANIMAL OR DEITY CAN BE LIFTED TO REVEAL KAMA SUTRA ACTION. THE BEST PLACES TO SEE GENUINE

ANTIQUE PALM-LEAF BOOKS ARE THE NATIONAL MUSEUM IN NEW DELHI OR THE STATE MUSEUM IN BHUBANESWAR.

TEXTILES DISTINCTIVE TEXTILES WOVEN ON HANDLOOMS ARE PRODUCED THROUGHOUT ODISHA. SILK SARIS FROM BRAHMAPUR AND SAMBALPUR ARE THE MOST FAMOUS, THOUGH IKAT, WHICH ORIGINALLY CAME TO ODISHA VIA THE ANCIENT TRADE LINKS WITH SOUTHEAST ASIA, IS ALSO TYPICAL. IT IS CREATED USING A TIE-DYE-LIKE TECHNIQUE KNOWN AS BANDHA, ALSO EMPLOYED BY WEAVERS FROM THE VILLAGE OF NUAPATNA, 70KM FROM BHUBANESWAR, WHO PRODUCE SILK IKATS COVERED IN VERSES FROM THE SCRIPTURES FOR USE IN THE JAGANNATH TEMPLE.

APPLIQUÉ THE VILLAGE OF PIPLI HAS THE MONOPOLY ON APPLIQUÉ, ANOTHER CRAFT ROOTED IN THE JAGANNATH CULT. GEOMETRIC MOTIFS AND STYLIZED BIRDS, ANIMALS AND FLOWERS ARE CUT FROM BRIGHTLY COLOURED CLOTH AND SEWN ONTO BLACK BACKGROUNDS. PIPLI ARTISTS ARE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CHARIOT COVERS USED IN THE RATH YATRA AS WELL AS FOR THE SMALL CANOPIES, OR CHHATRIS, SUSPENDED ABOVE THE PRESIDING DEITY IN ODISHAN TEMPLES.

METALWORK TARAKASHI (LITERALLY “WOVEN WIRE”), OR SILVER FILIGREE, IS ODISHA’S BEST-KNOWN METALWORK TECHNIQUE. USING LENGTHS OF WIRE MADE BY DRAWING STRIPS OF SILVER ALLOY THROUGH SMALL HOLES, THE SMITHS CREATE DISTINCTIVE ORNAMENTS, JEWELLERY AND UTENSILS FOR USE IN RITUALS AND CELEBRATIONS. THE DESIGNS ARE THOUGHT TO HAVE COME TO INDIA FROM PERSIA WITH THE MUGHALS, THOUGH THE EXISTENCE OF AN IDENTICAL ART FORM IN INDONESIA, WITH WHOM THE ANCIENT ODISHAN

KINGDOMS USED TO TRADE, SUGGESTS THAT THE TECHNIQUE ITSELF MAY BE EVEN OLDER. TARAKASHI IS NOW ONLY PRODUCED IN ANY QUANTITY IN CUTTACK AND IS DYING AS AN ART FORM.

The sanctuary tower With the once-lofty sanctuary tower now reduced to little more than a clutter of sandstone slabs tumbling from the western wing, the porch, or jagamohana, has become Konark's real centrepiece. Its impressive pyramidal roof, rising to a height of 38m, is divided into three tiers by rows of lifelike statues – mostly musicians and dancers serenading the sun god on his passage through the heavens. Though now blocked up, the huge cubic interior of the porch was a marvel of medieval architecture. The original builders ran into problems installing its heavy ornamental ceiling, and had to forge 10m iron beams as support – a considerable engineering feat for the time.

Sculpture and erotica Marvellously elaborate sculpture embellishes the temple's exterior with a profusion of deities, animals, floral patterns, bejewelled couples, voluptuous maidens, mythical beasts and aquatic monsters. Some of Konark's most beautiful erotica is to be found in the niches halfway up the walls of the porch; look for the telltale pointed beards of sadhus, clearly making the most of a lapse in their vows of chastity. Many theories have been advanced over the years to explain the lascivious scenes here and elsewhere on the temple. The most convincing explanation is that the erotic art was meant as a kind of metaphor for the ecstatic bliss experienced by the soul when it fuses with the divine cosmos – a notion central to Tantra and the related worship of the female principle, shakti, which were prevalent throughout medieval Odisha.

Carved wheels and friezes Moving clockwise around the temple from the south side of the main staircase, you pass the intricately carved wheels and extraordinary friezes that run in narrow bands above and below them. These depict military processions (inspired by King Narasimhadeva's tussles with the Muslims) and hunting scenes, featuring literally thousands of rampaging elephants. In the top frieze along the south side of the platform, the appearance of a giraffe proves that trade with Africa took place during the thirteenth century.

The Surya statue Beyond the porch, a double staircase leads to a shrine containing a statue of Surya. Carved out of green chlorite stone, this serene image – one of three around the base of the ruined sanctuary tower – is considered to be one of Konark’s masterpieces. The other two statues in the series are also worth a look, if only to compare their facial expressions which, following the progress of the sun around the temple, change from wakefulness in the morning (south) to heavy-eyed weariness at the end of the day (north). At the foot of the western wall there’s an altar-like platform covered with carvings: the kneeling figure in its central panel is thought to be King Narasimhadeva.

THE ADIVASI OF SOUTHWESTERN ODISHA MOST OF ODISHA’S ADIVASI GROUPS LIVE IN THE REMOTE SOUTHWEST OF THE STATE. ONCE YOU HAVE VENTURED OVER THE PASS ABOVE THE HOT SPRINGS OF TAPTAPANI, THE APPEARANCE OF POTS ATTACHED TO SAGO PALMS AND WINDOWLESS MUD HUTS WITH LOW THATCHED ROOFS INDICATES THAT YOU HAVE ARRIVED IN THE TRADITIONAL LAND OF THE SAORAS. FURTHER WEST AROUND THE KORAPUT AND JEYPORE AREA LIVE THE DONGRIA KONDH, THE KOYA AND THE BONDAS.

So-called “tribal tourism” was very popular in this region, but it has been heavily restricted since 2012 after a series of reports highlighting exploitative, unethical and degrading “human safaris” in Odisha (particularly involving the Bondas) and the Andaman Islands. The situation was exacerbated by the kidnapping of two Italian travellers. Adivasi villages saw little or no share of the spoils of the tours, a situation they were – and continue to be – justifiably angry about. Whichever way you look at it, turning up in an isolated and culturally sensitive place with a camera is a pretty unsound way of “meeting” the locals, and a glance from a car is hardly likely to enlighten you on traditions that have existed for centuries.

That said, and although many areas remain off-limit to tourists, it is possible to visit with a responsible operator.

INFORMATION AND TOURS ODISHA TOURISM OFFICES IN BHUBANESWAR AND PURI CAN ADVISE ON RESPONSIBLE TRAVEL AGENCIES AND GUIDES WORKING IN THIS REGION, AND PROVIDE UP-TO-DATE INFORMATION ON WHAT AREAS IT IS POSSIBLE TO VISIT.

Several operators run sensitive tours that benefit – or, at least, don’t actively harm – local communities in southwestern Odisha. They include Desia Koraput (www.desiakoraput.com), which runs four- to seven-day tours in the Koraput Valley; activities include cookery classes, hiking, craft classes, and visits to markets and farms. Volunteering placements can also be organized. Accommodation is clean and simple. Another option is Chandoori Sai (www.chandoorisai.com), an Australian-run operator with a guesthouse in Goudaguda, a village 40km from Koraput known for its handicrafts. Transfers can be organized or you can travel by public transport – contact for details.

Konark dance festival In early December, the temple hosts one of India’s premier dance festivals, drawing an impressive cast of both classical and folk dance groups from all over the country. For the exact dates and advance bookings, contact the Odisha Tourism offices in Bhubaneswar or Puri.

The archeological museum Near the Yatrinivas hotel, a 10min walk from the temple compound • asi.nic.in/museums-konarak • Daily except Fri 10am–5pm • Charge The archeological museum has lost most of its best pieces to Delhi, but still has fragments of sculpture, much of it erotic. Outside, a small shed in the northeast corner of the enclosure houses a stone architrave bearing images of nine planet deities, the Navagrahas. This originally sat above one of the temple's ornamental doorways and is now kept as a living shrine.

Chandrabhaga beach 3km south of the temple compound
Chandrabhaga beach is a quiet and clean alternative to Puri's dirty sands. Although it is far from ideal for swimming or sunbathing, the beach is nonetheless a pleasant place to wander in the late afternoon and watch the fishermen and their catch.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS, JEEP AND KONARK MINIBUS REGULAR BUSES (ROUGHLY HOURLY; AROUND 1HR) TRAVEL THE 33KM BETWEEN PURI AND KONARK; THE LAST ONE BACK TO PURI LEAVES AROUND 6.30PM. JEEPS AND MINIBUSES ALSO SHUTTLE ALONG THIS ROUTE, THOUGH THEY ARE OFTEN DRIVEN RECKLESSLY. FROM BHUBANESWAR, THERE ARE HOURLY BUSES (2–3HR) TO KONARK; SOME INVOLVE A CHANGE AT PIPLI.

By auto-rickshaw From Puri, an auto-rickshaw will do the return journey to Konark.

By car A car (and driver) for the Puri–Konark round trip.

On a tour The OTDC offices in Puri and Bhubaneswar offer several tours that visit Konark.

Tourist information The Odisha Tourism office is in the Yatrinivas hotel (daily except Sun & 2nd Sat of month 10am–5pm; odishatourism.gov.in).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING FEW PEOPLE STAY IN KONARK, BUT THE ACCOMMODATION HERE IS CONVENIENT IF YOU WANT TO ENJOY THE TEMPLE IN PEACE AFTER THE DAY-TRIPPERS HAVE LEFT. FOR FOOD YOU HAVE A CHOICE BETWEEN THE ROW OF THALI AND TEA STALLS OPPOSITE THE TEMPLE OR A MORE SUBSTANTIAL MEAL IN ONE OF THE HOTEL RESTAURANTS.

Labanya Lodge Just outside the village on the beach road labanya.eodisha.com. The Labanya Lodge is the most backpacker-friendly place in Konark, with a small garden, internet access and bikes for rent. The spartan rooms vary though, so make sure you look at a few. ₹₹

Lotus Eco Village Ramchandi beach, 7km southwest of Konark 📞06758 236161, 🌐orchidhotel.com/lotus-eco-beach-resort-konark/. The most stylish place to stay in the area, this peaceful complex is designed to look like a traditional village and sits right on the beach. Accommodation is in snug wood-panelled cottages and more spacious villas, and there's a restaurant and small spa. Deer can sometimes be spotted in the adjoining woodland. Cottages ₹₹₹, villas ₹₹₹₹

Yatrinivas A 10min walk from the temple compound 📞06758 236820, 🌐bookodisha.com. A conveniently located OTDC-run hotel, Yatrinivas has pleasant gardens and a decent restaurant that is often packed out with tour parties at lunchtime. ₹₹

Southeastern Odisha Along the stretch of coast between Puri and Andhra Pradesh/Telangana there are a couple of scenic detours that may tempt you to break the long journey south. Three hours south of the capital, at the foot of a barren, sea-facing spur of the Eastern Ghats, is India's largest saltwater lake. Chilika's main attractions are the one million or so migratory birds that nest here in winter. Seventy kilometres further on, Gopalpur-on-Sea is a low-key beach town. Brahmapur (formerly Berhampur), 16km inland, is southeastern Odisha's biggest market town, and the main transport hub for the sinuous route west through the hills to the spa station of Taptapani and "tribal districts" beyond.

Chilika Lake Were it not for its glass-like surface, Chilika Lake, Asia's largest lagoon, could easily be mistaken for the sea; from its mud-fringed foreshore you can barely make out the narrow strip of marshy islands and sand-flats that separate the 1100-square-kilometre expanse of brackish water from the Bay of Bengal. Come here between December and February, and you'll see a variety of birds, including flamingos, pelicans, painted storks, fish eagles, ospreys and kites, many of them migrants from Siberia, Iran and the Himalayas. Chilika is also one of the few places in India where the Irrawaddy dolphin can be spotted.

The best way to see the lake and the birdlife is on a boat trip. Unfortunately, tourists are currently banned from visiting Nalabana Island, a bird sanctuary, which has dramatically reduced the chances of seeing the migratory species close up. It's still possible to see them from further away, however, on a boat cruise or by visiting some of Chilika's other islands.

The fishing villages and fabled island "kingdom" of Parikud on the eastern side of the lake are generally passed up in favour of the boat ride to the devi shrine on Kalijai island. Legend has it that a local girl once drowned here on the way to her wedding across the lake, and that her voice was subsequently heard calling from under the water. Believing the bride-to-be had become a goddess, local villagers inaugurated a shrine to her that over the years became associated with Kali. Each year at Makar Sankranti, after the harvest, pilgrims flock to the tiny island from all over Odisha and West Bengal to leave votive offerings in the sacred cave where the deity was enshrined.

Satapada, on the coastal side 45km from Puri, is the best place to stay on the lake; the surrounding waters offer the best chance of seeing dolphins. The scenery around Barkul is less impressive than at Satapada, and you're further from most of the islands, but it does have the lake's best accommodation. Rambha, 135km from Bhubaneswar, is well placed for walks around the more scenic southern corner of the lake and for boat rides to Parikud.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS SATAPADA CHILIKA LAKE IS LINKED TO PURI BY DAILY BUSES (EVERY 30MIN–1HR; 1HR 30MIN–2HR). TO GET TO BARKUL, TAKE A BUS FROM PURI OR BHUBANESWAR TOWARDS BRAHMAPUR (5–6 DAILY; 3HR 30MIN–4HR) AND GET OFF AT BALUGAON, WHERE YOU CAN GET AN AUTO-RICKSHAW FOR THE REMAINING 7KM TO BARKUL.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST INFORMATION SATAPADA IS HOME TO AN INFORMATIVE VISITOR CENTRE (DAILY 10AM–5PM; CHARGE), WHILE THE YATRINIVAS HOTEL (SEE BELOW) HOUSES THE TOURIST OFFICE (DAILY EXCEPT SUN & 2ND SAT OF MONTH 10AM–5PM; ☎06752 291342).

Tours Travellers can take trips on OTDC motor launches or cheaper rowing boats from Barkul and Satapada; or rent a motor-boat for yourself. The manager at the Barkul Panthanivas can help with arrangements. Alternatively, numerous travel agencies, including the Gandhara's in-house travel agency in Puri and the OTDC offices in Bhubaneswar and Puri run day-trips to Chilika.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING PANTHANIVAS BARKUL ☎ OTDC.IN/CHILIKA.HTML. THE OTDC-RUN PANTHANIVAS OFFERS SPACIOUS, THOUGH DATED ROOMS AND A GOOD RESTAURANT; ESPECIALLY RECOMMENDED IS THE CHINGURI CHARCHARI (SHRIMP WITH FRIED VEGETABLES). IF YOU PLAN TO VISIT BETWEEN SEPT AND MARCH, BOOK

AHEAD AT THE BHUBANESWAR OR PURI OTDC OFFICES, OR ONLINE. ₹₹

Swosti Chilika Resort 10km south of Barkul @swostihotels.com. Easily the most luxurious place to stay around Chilika Lake, with sister hotels in Bhubaneswar and Gopalpur-on-Sea, Swosti offers swish en suites overlooking the manicured gardens or the lake, plus an excellent restaurant, spa, games room and swimming pool. ₹₹₹

Yatrinivas Satapada @otdc.in/satapada.htm. Run by the OTDC, Yatrinivas provides the best accommodation in Satapada, though this is far from a ringing endorsement; some rooms have a/c private balconies overlooking the well-tended gardens that run down to the lake, and the restaurant serves thalis and fresh fish. ₹₹

Gopalpur-on-Sea More than two thousand years ago, when the Kalingas were accruing wealth from the pearl and silk trade with Southeast Asia, GOPALPUR-ON-SEA, formerly the ancient port of Paloura, must have been a swinging place. Today, the only time you're likely to encounter much action is during festivals and holidays. For the rest of the year, its desultory collection of seafront hotels stands idle, left to the odd backpacker and some industrious fishermen (katias). Paradise it certainly isn't, but if you're looking for a spot to unwind and enjoy the warm sea breezes, this is as appealing a place as any. Sunbathing on the beach will quickly make you the centre of attention, but the uncrowded sands, punctuated by coconut groves, sleepy lagoons and tiny creeks, are good for a rejuvenating walk.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN OR GOPALPUR-ON-SEA BUS GETTING TO GOPALPUR-ON-SEA IS EASIEST VIA THE TOWN OF BRAHMAPUR (BERHAMPUR), WHICH IS CONNECTED TO BHUBANESWAR BY NUMEROUS TRAINS (10– 15 DAILY; 2HR 20MIN–2HR 50MIN) AND BUSES (7–8 DAILY; 4– 5HR).

By auto-rickshaw, jeep and minibus Minibuses and jeeps depart when full from Brahmapur's centrally located bus stand for the 16km trip (around 30min) to Gopalpur. You'll be dumped at the top of the main street, a 10min walk from the seafront and most of the hotels. Alternatively, take an auto-rickshaw straight to your hotel from Brahmapur.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING STANDARDS ARE FAIRLY LOW AT GOPALPUR'S HOTELS: IT'S WORTH HAGGLING – ONLY DURING HOLIDAY AND FESTIVAL TIMES ARE THEY LIKELY TO BE FULL. AS FOR EATING, THERE'S A SURPRISING DEARTH OF SEAFOOD, THOUGH SOME RESTAURATEURS CAN BE CAJOLED INTO COOKING THE ODD POMFRET OR PRAWN CURRY, GIVEN SUFFICIENT WARNING.

Mayfair Palm Beach Resort Overlooking the beach  mayfairhotels.com. Easily the smartest hotel in town, the Mayfair is housed in a building that dates back to 1914. The rooms, however, are decidedly modern, and many boast sea views. There's also a pool, spa, gym, games room, and an excellent restaurant and bar. ₹₹₹₹

Motel Mermaid On the north side of the beach  motel-mermaid.business.site. A friendly, family-run place, popular with holidaying Kolkatans, with plain, somewhat scruffy rooms and private sea-facing balconies. ₹

Swosti Gopalpur Palm Resort Near the lighthouse  swostihotels.com/gopalpur-palm-resort. One of Gopalpur's more comfortable hotels, if slightly overpriced. Its a/c rooms are pleasant, but nothing special, and most lack a view of the sea. The restaurant, however, is strong on seafood: the chengudi malai (prawns in coconut cream) and macha tarkari (fish curry) are both worth a try. Good discounts available online. ₹₹₹

Taptapani The spa village of TAPTAPANI, nestled in the Ghats 51km west of Brahmapur, is little more than a line of dingy snack stalls and mildewed bungalows deep in the forest. Pilgrims, however, come here in large numbers for the legendary hot springs, which are believed to cure infertility.

The boiling sulphurous water bubbles out of a cleft in the mountainside and is piped into a small pool, where little rocks smeared with vermilion and hibiscus petals mark the presence of the living deities believed to reside in the water (it is prohibited to dip any part of the body into the pool).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS REGULAR TAPTAPANI BUSES (ROUGHLY HOURLY; 1HR 15MIN–2HR) TRAVEL BETWEEN BRAHMAPUR AND TAPTAPANI.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING PANTHANIVAS JUST DOWN THE HILL FROM THE SPRINGS @ PANTHANIVAS.COM. YOU CAN ENJOY THE HOT SPRINGS IN PRIVACY AT THE ATMOSPHERIC OTDC-RUN PANTHANIVAS AS THE WATER IS PUMPED STRAIGHT INTO CAPACIOUS SUNKEN BATHTUBS IN SOME OF THE MORE EXPENSIVE ROOMS (ALL OF WHICH ARE A LITTLE DRAB). DESPITE THE FINE VIEWS, THE PLACE IS RARELY FULL, WHICH IS JUST AS WELL, AS THERE'S NOWHERE ELSE TO STAY IN THE VICINITY (BOOK IN ADVANCE JUST TO BE ON THE SAFE SIDE). THERE'S ALSO A DECENT RESTAURANT. ₹₹

< Back to Odisha

iStock

GIANT STATUE OF THE BUDDHA, LAKE HUSSAIN SAGA

Andhra Pradesh and Telangana

Hyderabad/Secunderabad

Telangana

Eastern and northern Andhra Pradesh

Southern Andhra Pradesh

Andhra Pradesh and Telangana
Although Andhra Pradesh and the relatively newly formed state of Telangana together occupy a great swathe of eastern India, stretching more than 1200km along the coast from Odisha to Tamil Nadu and reaching far inland from the fertile deltas of the Godavari and Krishna rivers to the semi-arid Deccan Plateau, most foreign travellers simply pass through en route to their better-known neighbours. This is understandable, as places of interest are few and far between, but the sights and top-notch gastronomy that the two states do offer are absorbing enough to warrant at least a brief stop-off.

A major high-tech hub and, for the time being, the joint capital of both states, Hyderabad is an atmospheric, predominantly Muslim city with lively bazaars, the eclectic Salar Jung Museum, impressive Chowmahalla Palace and the mighty Golconda Fort. Warangal, 150km northeast, has Muslim and Hindu remains from the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, while the region's Buddhist legacy is preserved in museums at sites such as Nagarjunakonda and Amaravati. In the east, the city of Vijayawada has little to recommend it, though it is a convenient access point for Amaravati. Similarly, in the northeast, the fast-growing city of Visakhapatnam is little more than a handy place to break up a long trip, but between the two the delightful region around the Godavari Delta is well worth a detour. By contrast, the temple town of Tirupati in the far southeast is a fascinating, impossibly crowded pilgrimage site. In the southwest, Puttaparthi attracts a more international pilgrim crowd, who still flock to the ashram of the late spiritual leader Sai Baba.

Although modern industries have grown up around the capital, and shipbuilding, iron and steel are important on the coast, the vast majority of both states are agrarian. Away from the Godavari and Krishna deltas, where the soil is rich enough to grow rice and sugar cane, the land is in places impossible to cultivate, which has contributed to the desperate plight of many farmers.

Brief history The earliest accounts of the region, from the third century BC, refer to a people known as the Andhras. The Satavahana dynasty (second century BC to second century AD), also known as the Andhras, came to control much of central and southern India from their second capital at Amaravati on the Krishna. They enjoyed extensive international trade and were great patrons of Buddhism. Subsequently, the Pallavas, the Chalukyas and the Cholas all held sway. By the thirteenth century, the Kakatiyas of Warangal were under constant threat from Muslim incursions; while later on, after the fall of their city at Hampi, the Hindu Vijayanagars transferred operations to Chandragiri near Tirupati.

The next significant development was in the mid-sixteenth century, with the rise of the Muslim Qutb Shahi dynasty. In 1687, the son of the Mughal emperor Aurangzeb seized Golconda. Five years after Aurangzeb died in 1707, Hyderabad's viceroy declared independence and established the Asaf Jahi dynasty of nizams. In return for allying with the British against Tipu Sultan of Mysore, the nizam dynasty was allowed to retain a certain degree of autonomy even after the British had come to dominate India.

BEST TIME TO VISIT AS WITH THE REST OF THE SOUTH, THE IDEAL TIME TO COME TO ANDHRA PRADESH AND TELANGANA IS DURING THE WINTER MONTHS FROM DECEMBER TO MID-MARCH. APRIL TO JUNE IS BLAZING HOT, PARTICULARLY INLAND TOWARDS THE DECCAN PLATEAU. THE SOUTHERN PART OF ANDHRA PRADESH MISSES MOST OF THE MAIN SUMMER MONSOON BUT IS HIT BY THE NORTHEAST MONSOON BETWEEN SEPTEMBER AND NOVEMBER, WHEN CYCLONES CAN CREATE HAVOC, ESPECIALLY IN THE COASTAL AREAS.

Shutterstock
CHARMINAR, HYDERABAD

Highlights

- ① Hyderabad A predominantly Islamic city, as well as a focal point of twenty-first-century high-tech India, with a compelling combination of monuments, museums and bazaars.
- ② Golconda Fort Set in a lush landscape just west of Hyderabad, the Qutb Shahi dynasty's capital boasts a dramatic and well-preserved fort with amazing acoustics.
- ③ Warangal This sleepy town features two important Hindu monuments: a rambling medieval fort and an exquisitely carved thousand-pillared Shiva temple.
- ④ Nagarjunakonda Now surrounded by a vast artificial lake, this peaceful place boasts various Buddhist monuments, including a huge statue of Buddha, and a fine museum.
- ⑤ The Godavari Delta With a mixture of verdant hills, mangrove swamps and the lush Konaseema area, this is a fine region to explore.
- ⑥ Tirumala Hill The world's most visited pilgrimage centre, crowned by the crowded, vibrant and colourful Venkateshwara Vishnu temple.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

During the Independence struggle, harmony between Hindus and Muslims in Andhra Pradesh disintegrated. Partition brought matters to a climax, as the nizam wanted to join other Muslims in the soon-to-be-created state of Pakistan. In 1949 the capital erupted in riots, the army was brought in and Hyderabad state was admitted to the Indian Union. Andhra Pradesh state was created in 1956 from Telugu-speaking regions (although Urdu is widely spoken in Hyderabad) that had previously formed part of the Madras Presidency on the east coast and the princely state of Hyderabad to the

FESTIVALS IN ANDHRA PRADESH AND TELANGANA
SANKRANTI (JAN). CELEBRATED ALL OVER BOTH STATES WITH LIVELY MUSIC AND DANCE, ESPECIALLY IN THE KONASEEMA REGION.

Antarvedi Chariot Festival (Jan/Feb). Impressive temple chariot festival celebrating the marriage of Lord Narasimha and the goddess Lakshmi in the East Godavari district.

Ugadi or Yugadi (Mar/Apr). Literally translates to New Year and is celebrated as such in the Hindu calendar across Andhra Pradesh and Karnataka.

Muharram (Oct/Nov). The sacred month of the Muslim New Year is celebrated with verve by the large Shia population in Hyderabad.

Vaikunta Ekadashi (Dec/Jan). One of the most important festivals at Tirumala, when Vishnu's victory over the demon Muran is commemorated.

In December 2009, following a high-profile hunger strike, the Indian government surprisingly bowed to pressure from the Telangana Rashtra Samithi (TRS) party and announced plans to carve a new state, Telangana, out of north-western Andhra Pradesh. Despite widespread protests, strikes and political resignations a commission was set up to examine the practicalities of the issue, and in July 2013 a resolution was unanimously passed in Congress agreeing to the bifurcation. Almost a year later, on June 2, 2014, Telangana officially ceded from Andhra Pradesh to become India's twenty-ninth state, with Hyderabad serving – in a rather complicated arrangement – as capital of both states until the new capital of Amaravati (under construction at the time of writing) is complete.

Hyderabad/Secunderabad A melting pot of Muslim and Hindu cultures, the joint capital of Andhra Pradesh and Telangana comprises the twin cities of HYDERABAD and SECUNDERABAD, with a combined population of around ten million.

Secunderabad, of little interest, is the modern administrative city founded by the British, whereas Hyderabad, the old city, has teeming bazaars, Muslim monuments, the absorbing Salar Jung Museum and magnificent Chowmahalla Palace.

Hyderabad declined after Independence, with tensions often close to the surface due to lack of funding. Nowadays, although the overcrowded old city still suffers from substandard amenities, the conurbation as a whole is booming. In recent years Hyderabad has overtaken Bengaluru to become India's foremost computer and IT centre.

The Hyderabad metropolitan area has three distinct sectors: Hyderabad, divided between the old city and newer areas towards HITEC City; Secunderabad, the modern city; and Golconda, the old fort. The two cities are basically one big sprawl, separated by an artificial lake, Hussain Sagar. The most interesting area, the old city south of the River Musi, holds the bazaars and Charminar, the city's principal landmark, as well as the Salar Jung Museum and Chowmahalla Palace. North of the river, the traditional shopping areas are found around Abids Circle and Sultan Bazaar. Four kilometres west of Hyderabad railway station lies the posh Banjara Hills district, full of gleaming malls and fancy restaurants. Beyond here is the exclusive residential area of Jubilee Hills, while a further 4km brings you to HITEC City.

Brief history Hyderabad was founded in 1591 by Mohammed Quli Shah (1562–1612), 8km east of Golconda, the fortress capital of the Golconda empire. Unusually, the new city was laid out on a grid system, with huge arches and stone buildings that included Hyderabad's most famous monument, Charminar. At first it was a city without walls; these were only added in 1740 as defence against the Marathas. Legend has it that a secret tunnel linked the city with the spectacular Golconda Fort, 11km away.

HYDERABAD

0 500 metres

SHOPPING

- Ankur 3
- Chenetha Bhavan 7
- Lepakshi 6
- MR Book Centre 1
- Sheela's Arts and Crafts 5
- Sri Mahalaxmi 2
- Utkalika 4

EATING

- Antera 3
- Café Bahar 7
- Chef Inam's Steak House 4
- Chutneys 5
- Fusion 9
- Paradise Food Court 1
- Salzburg Street 6
- Shadab 8

DRINKING & NIGHTLIFE

- 10 Downing Street 1
- Coco's Bar & Grill 4
- Olive Bistro 2
- Prost 3

Map Labels: Hussain Sagar, Buddha Statue, Lumbini Park, AP Tourism & APTDC, British Library, Indira Park, Nehru Nagar, Thomas Cook, Birla Mandir, BM Birla Science Centre, Air India, Stadium, A.P. State Museum, Public Gardens, Nampally, Nampally Railway Station, Ek Minar, Yusufian Dargah, Bank, Bank, Abids Circle, Sultan Bazaar, Mahipatram Road, Jambagh Road, Mahabani, Jhanki Road, Maulvi Ala-uddin Road, Sardar Patel Road, Goshamahahal, Hospital, State Library, Salar Jung Museum, Kacheguda Railway Station, Old Malakpet, River Musi, Kacheguda Station Road, Vir Savarkar Road, Bhagya Reddi Road, Turubakhan Road, King Kotwi Road, Tilak Road, Abids Road, Old MLQ Quarters Road, Himayt Nagar Road, University Road, Narayaguda Road, Barkatpura Road, Chikkadpally Road, Kavadi Guda Road, Lower Tank Bund St, Gandhi Nagar Road, Tank Bund Road, NH-7, Indira Park Road, Himayt Nagar Road, University Road, Narayaguda Road, Barkatpura Road, Chikkadpally Road, Kavadi Guda Road, Lower Tank Bund St, Gandhi Nagar Road, Tank Bund Road, NH-7, Indira Park Road.

Secunderabad, 1, 2 & 1

 EATING

Antera	3
Café Bahar	7
Chef Inam's Steak House	4
Chutneys	5
Fusion 9	2
Paradise Food Court	1
Salzburg Street	6
Shadab	8

DRINKING & NIGHTLIFE

10 Downing Street	1
Coco's Bar & Grill	4
Olive Bistro	2
Prost	3

For the three hundred years of Muslim reign, there was harmony between the predominantly Hindu population and the minority Muslims. Hyderabad was the most important focus of Muslim power in south India at this time; the princes' fabulous wealth derived primarily from the fine gems, particularly diamonds, mined in the Kistna Valley at Golconda. The famous Koh-i-Noor diamond was found here – the only time it was ever captured was by Mughal emperor Aurangzeb, when his son seized the Golconda Fort in 1687. It ended up, cut, in the British royal crown.

Since the creation of Telangana in 2014, Hyderabad has been leading a double life as joint capital of the new state as well as Andhra Pradesh. Officially it belongs to Telangana, as evidenced by the fact that government offices bear the new state's name, but it will continue to act as the administrative centre of Andhra Pradesh until the latter's new capital is created at Amaravati. This transition is supposed to be complete by the mid-2020s but that seems overly optimistic.

The old city By far the most atmospheric part of Hyderabad is the old city, immediately south of the River Musi. This is where you will find the city's liveliest and most interesting bazaars, as well as many of its most important sights, from the eclectic Salar Jung Museum, through the majestic minarets of Charminar to the extensive complex of Chowmahalla Palace.

Salar Jung Museum Daily except Fri 10am–5pm • Charge, camera charge • www.salarjungmuseum.in

The unmissable Salar Jung Museum, on the south bank of the River Musi opposite the ornate bulbous domes of the Osmania General Hospital, houses part of the huge collection of Salar Jung, one of the nizam's prime ministers, and his ancestors. A well-travelled man of wealth, he bought whatever took his fancy from both East and West, from the sublime to, in some cases, the ridiculous. His extraordinary hoard includes Indian jade, miniatures, furniture, Bidri ware, lacquer work, Mughal opaque glassware, fabrics, bronzes, Buddhist and Hindu sculpture, manuscripts and weapons.

Charminar Daily 9.30am–5.30pm • Charge A maze of bazaars teeming with people, the old city has at its heart Charminar or Four Towers, a triumphal arch built at the centre of Mohammed Quli Shah's city in 1591 to commemorate an epidemic of the plague. It features four graceful 56m-high minarets, housing spiral staircases to the upper storeys. The (now defunct) mosque on the roof is the oldest in Hyderabad. The yellowish colour of the building is due to a special stucco made of marble powder, gram and egg yolk. In the evening (7–9pm), the edifice is attractively lit up. The Charkaman, or Four Arches, north of Charminar, were built in 1594; the western arch, Daulat-Khan-e-Ali, was at one time adorned with rich gold tapestries.

Laad Bazaar Charminar marks the beginning of the fascinating Laad Bazaar, which leads to Mahboob Chowk, a market square featuring a mosque and Victorian clock tower. Laad Bazaar specializes in everything you could possibly need for a Hyderabad marriage, including bangles, rosewater, herbs, spices and cloth. You'll also find silver filigree jewellery, antiques, bidri-ware, hookah paraphernalia and, in the markets near Charminar, pearls – so beloved of the nizams that they ground them into powder to eat. Hyderabad is still the centre of India's pearl trade.

Nizam's Museum Daily except Fri 10am–5pm • Charge, camera charge Just over 1km northeast of Charminar, the faded and peeling white-painted facade of the Nizam's Museum does not hold much promise but behind its solid wooden doors there is quite a treasure-trove of royal family memorabilia. The first two of the four rooms display a motley collection of silver boxes, model planes and boats, Koranic inscriptions, cylindrical caskets, china and glass objects, photos and paintings, plus larger pieces such as thrones. The third room proclaims itself to be the City Museum and showcases some quite detailed and very informative historical displays from the Megalithic era to the present day, while the last room has numerous costumes in long dark-wood cabinets.

Mecca Masjid Daily 4am–noon & 3–8pm Southwest, behind Charminar, the Mecca Masjid was constructed in 1598 and can hold three thousand devotees, with room for up to ten thousand more in the courtyard. On the left of the courtyard are the tombs of the nizams, while the ornamental walls and lattice archways delight throughout the building. In May 2007, the mosque was rocked by a powerful bomb; the incident killed fourteen people. The perpetrators were never caught and since this and subsequent bombings, security has been very tight throughout the city. It is also advisable to dress appropriately here as women wearing jeans and shorts are unlikely to be allowed.

Chowmahalla Palace Khilwat 20-4-236, Motigalli • Daily except Fri 10am–5pm • Charge, camera charge • www.chowmahalla.co.in

The 150-year-old Chowmahalla Palace, southwest of the Mecca Masjid, was built between 1857 and 1869 by the nizams to entertain royal visitors and official guests. Inspired by the Shah's palace in Tehran, it is actually a complex of four palaces, other imposing edifices, elegant courtyards and fountain-filled gardens.

The grand Kilwat Mubarak (Durbar Hall) is the most impressive building, containing a hall dominated by opulent chandeliers and other rooms full of furniture, ornaments, costumes, china crockery and displays on the history of the nizams. The oldest part is the southern courtyard, where you can visit the two-storeyed Aftab Mahal, which houses more costumes and some intricate wall hangings, as well as the smaller Afzal Mahal, Mahtab Mahal and Tahniyat Mahal. At the rear of the complex there is a collection of carriages and vintage motorcars.

North of the river The area around Hyderabad Deccan railway station, known locally as Nampally, and north towards Hussain Sagar contains some interesting nooks and crannies. Just south of the station itself, tucked in the lanes behind the striking bulbous yellow dome of the Ek Minar mosque, the atmospheric Yusufian Dargah is the shrine of a seventeenth-century Sufi saint of the venerable Chishti order. About 1km north of the station, set in tranquil public gardens, the Telangana State Archaeology Museum (daily 10.30am–5pm; ₹10, camera ₹20, video ₹100) displays a modest collection of bronzes, prehistoric tools, weapons and replicas of Ajanta paintings.

Kala Pahad Hill The Birla Venkateshvara Mandir (daily 7am–noon & 3–9pm; no photography) on Kala Pahad (“black mountain”) Hill, north of the public gardens, is open to all. Constructed in 1976, the temple itself is not of great interest, but affords fine views and is a notable landmark, tapering towards the sky in elegant fashion. Nearby is the mildly diverting BM Birla Science Centre (daily 10.30am–8pm, closes 3pm on Fri; ₹50; www.birlasciencecentre.org), which showcases India’s contribution in Science through satellite hardware and photos, sensory perception machines and a small dinosaur display, plus a planetarium (English shows at 11.30am, 4pm & 6pm; ₹50). In a very unscientific manner, the centre also incorporates the Nirmala Birla Gallery of Modern Art, (10:30am to 8pm) featuring the works of Indian painters such as Jamini Roy, Krishnan Khanna, Paritosh Sen and Amitava Dhar.

Hussain Sagar Hussain Sagar, the large expanse of water separating Hyderabad from Secunderabad, lends a welcome air of tranquillity to the busy conurbation, and the pedestrianized sections of its banks are popular areas for a stroll, especially at sunset. In the centre of the artificial lake stands a large stone statue of the Buddha Purnima (“Full Moon Buddha”), erected in 1992. Regular boats (₹60 return) chug out to the statue from Lumbini Park (daily 9am–9pm; ₹10), just off Secretariat Road, which offers some shady spots and also has a toy railway. The park was the site of one of two bombs that exploded in August 2007, claiming 44 lives, so security is predictably tight.

Golconda Fort Daily 9am–5.30pm • Charge, video camera charge • Sound-and-light show: English: March–Oct 7pm, Nov–Feb 6.30pm; 1hr; charge • Bus #66G from Charminar via Nampally Golconda, 122m above the plain and 8km west of old Hyderabad, was the capital of the seven Qutb Shahi kings from 1518 until the end of the sixteenth century, when the court moved to Hyderabad itself. Well preserved and set in thick green scrubland, it is one of India's most impressive forts, boasting 87 semi-circular bastions and eight mighty gates, complete with gruesome elephant-proof spikes. Set aside a day to explore the fort, which covers an area of around four-square kilometres.

Entering the fort by the Bala Hissar Gate, you come into the Grand Portico, where guards clap their hands to show off the fort's acoustics. To the right is the mortuary bath, where the bodies of deceased nobles were ritually bathed prior to burial. If you follow the arrowed anticlockwise route, you pass the two-storey residence of ministers Akkana and Madanna before starting the stairway ascent to the Durbar Hall. Halfway along the steps, you arrive at a small, dark cell named after the court cashier Ramdas, who while incarcerated here produced Hindu carvings and paintings that can be seen in the gloomy room.

Nearing the top, you come across the small, pretty mosque of Ibrahim Qutb Shah; beyond here is an even tinier temple to Durga. The steps are crowned by the three-storey Durbar Hall of the Qutb Shahis, on platforms outside which the monarchs would sit and survey their domains.

The ruins of the queen's palace, once elaborately decorated with multiple domes, stand in a courtyard centred on an original copper fountain that used to be filled with rosewater. You can still see traces of a “necklace” design on one of the arches, at the top of which a lotus bud sits below an opening flower with a cavity at its centre that once contained a diamond. At the entrance to the palace itself, four chambers provided protection from intruders. Passing through two rooms, the second of which is overgrown, you come to the Shahi Mahal, the royal bedroom. Originally it had a domed roof and niches on the walls that once sheltered candles or oil lamps. Golconda has a sound-and-light show every night.

Tombs of the Qutb Shahi kings Daily except Fri 9.30am–4.30pm • Charge, camera charge • Bus #123 or #142S from Charminar There are no less than seventy monuments, including the famous tombs of the Qutb Shahi kings about 1km north of Golconda Fort's outer wall. Set in tranquil and beautifully landscaped gardens, the forty mausoleums commemorate commanders, relatives of the kings, dancers, singers and royal doctors, as well as all but two of the Qutb Shahi kings. Now whitewashed, they were once brightly coloured in turquoise and green. Other buildings include more than twenty mosques, five step-wells, some pavilions and a hammam. The whole complex is in the process of undergoing a ten-year conservation programme at the expense of the Aga Khan Foundation.

The western suburbs Most of Hyderabad's newfound wealth is concentrated in the city's western suburbs. The nearest of these is Banjara Hills, around 4km from Nampally, which comprises spacious residences in quiet streets surrounding Road No.1, a glitzy strip of trendy shops, restaurants and bars. Several kilometres further west, you enter the even leafier and more upmarket district of Jubilee Hills, which is largely residential.

The upturn in Hyderabad's fortunes was driven by the city's high-tech boom in the late 1990s, earning it the nickname “Cyberabad”, although it is also home to other industries including car manufacture. HITEC City itself is several square kilometres of modern blocks and complexes about 10km from the city centre. Although strict security prevents casual visits by those with no business within the complexes, you can get a flavour by touring the area, which is bordered on the south and west by a large lake and beautiful rock formations, reminiscent of Hampi.

Nehru Centenary Tribal Museum Mon–Sat 10.30am–5pm • charge • 040 2339 1270

Around half a kilometre west of Banjara Hills Road No.1, the Nehru Centenary Tribal Museum offers an interesting glimpse into tribal culture and customs. Displays include musical instruments, costumes, agricultural equipment, a bullock cart and a depiction of the simple yet vibrant lifestyles of the Khondareddi and Bagata peoples. Live performances occasionally take place – call for details. Photography is not permitted inside the museum.

RECOMMENDED TRAINS FROM HYDERABAD

Destination	Name	No.	From	Departs	Arrives
Bengaluru	Bangalore Express	12785	Kacheguda	7.05pm	6.25am*
Chennai	Charminar Express	12760	Hyderabad	6.30pm	8.15am*
Ernakulam	Sabari Express	17230	Hyderabad	11.15am	1.15pm*
Kolkata	East Coast Express	18646	Hyderabad	9.50am	4.10pm*
Mumbai	VSKP LTT Express	11020	Secunderabad	1.05pm	4.40am*
	Mumbai Express	17032	Hyderabad	8.40pm	1.05pm*
Tirupati	Rayasaleema Express	17429	Hyderabad	5.25pm	6.15am*
Trivandrum	Sabari Express	17230	Hyderabad	11.15am	6.50pm*
Vijayawada	East Coast Express	18646	Hyderabad	9.50am	4.30pm

Visakhapatnam Janmabhoomi Express 12806 Secunderabad 7.10am 7.40pm

*Denotes next day arrival

Ramoji Film City Daily 9am–5.30pm • Tours charge • Sahas Adventure Park Daily 9am–5.30pm • Charge • Combined ticket available • www.ramojifilmcity.com

Ramoji Film City (RFC), 25km east of central Hyderabad, is the world's largest film studio complex. Covering nearly two thousand acres, with around five hundred set locations, it can produce up to sixty movies simultaneously. Although you cannot see films actually being made, you can tour the facades, enjoy rides such as the Ramoji Tower simulated earthquake and watch a dance and stunt show. The adjacent Sahas Adventure Park is packed with activities such as zip-lining, zorbing, quad biking and other adrenaline-filled fun. The easiest way to get here is on a taxi from LB Nagar Metro Station or Nampally Station.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY HYDERABAD/SECUNDERABAD PLANE MODERN AND EFFICIENT RAJIV GANDHI INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT (www.hyderabad.aero) IS AROUND 20KM SOUTH OF CENTRAL HYDERABAD. UNTIL THE METRO CONNECTION IS COMPLETE, THE AIRPORT IS ONLY LINKED TO THE CITY BY TAXIS (ABOUT ₹1000) AND PUSHPAK AIRPORT LINER BUSES (EVERY 10–15MIN; ₹106–265); HEADING TO THE AIRPORT, YOU CAN CATCH THESE FROM THE SECRETARIAT.

Destinations There are frequent international flights and excellent domestic connections to Bengaluru (17–21 daily; 1hr 5min–1hr 15min); Chennai (13–16 daily; 1hr 5min–1hr 40min); Delhi (23–25 daily; 2hr 5min–2hr 45); Goa (8–10 daily; 1hr 15min–1hr 45min); Kochi (5–7 daily; 1hr 25min–1hr 45min); Kolkata (10–11 daily; 2hr–2hr 35min); Mumbai (19–21 daily; 1hr 25min–1hr 35min) and many other cities.

By train Many long-distance trains terminate at Secunderabad; your ticket is valid for any connecting train to Hyderabad (Nampally) railway station. The two stations are also linked to each other – and other points in the city, such as Banjara Hills and HITEC City – by the overground Hyderabad Metro (or MMTS). The railways reservations office at Hyderabad (daily 8am–8pm) is to the left as you enter the station: counter 211 is for tourists. The Secunderabad reservation complex is more than 400m to the right as you exit the station: counter 34 is for foreigners. Most northeast-bound services call at Warangal, Vijayawada and Visakhapatnam. A few services depart from Kacheguda station, around 3km east of Nampally.

By bus The long-distance Mahatma Gandhi Bus Stand occupies an island in the River Musi, 3km southeast of Nampally railway station.

Destinations From the long-distance bus stand, regular bus services run to destinations throughout the state and beyond, including Bidar (hourly; 4hr), Tirupati (12 daily; 12hr), Vijayapuri for Nagarjunakonda (6 daily; 4hr), Vijayawada (every 15min; 6hr) and Warangal (every 15min; 3hr). Various “deluxe” private buses depart for Bengaluru, Chennai, Mumbai and other major cities from outside Hyderabad (Nampally) railway station.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST INFORMATION THE AP TOURISM (DAILY 9AM–6PM; ☎040 2340 5656, 🌐
APTURISM.GOV.IN) AND TELANGANA TOURISM (DAILY 7AM–9PM; ☎1800 4254 6464, 🌐TELANGANATOURISM.GOV.IN)
OFFICES ARE NEXT TO EACH OTHER ON SECRETARIAT RD, NEAR THE HUGE FLYOVER. THE APTDC OFFICE ALSO IN THE SAME COMPLEX (DAILY 7AM–8PM; ☎040 2345 3036, 🌐 APTDC.GOV.IN) AND THE OTHER APTDC OFFICE, ON SARDAR
PATEL RD, SECUNDERABAD (☎040 2789 3100), EXIST
PRINCIPALLY TO BOOK THEIR TOURS. THE INCREDIBLE
INDIA OFFICE IS IN THE NEW TOURIST PLAZA AT BEGUMPET
(MON–FRI 9AM–5PM; ☎040 2326 1360), ALONG WITH THE OFFICES OF MANY OTHER STATES.

Guided tours Telangana Tourism operates a number of good-value guided tours. The times quoted below are when tours set off from the Secunderabad office; the pick-up time in Hyderabad is 15–20min later. There’s a Heritage-cum-Museum city tour (daily 7.30am–7.30pm; non-a/c ₹300, a/c ₹400); a Ramoji Film City tour (daily 7.30am–6.30pm; non-a/c ₹1500, a/c ₹1800 including entry); and several fascinating heritage walks, mostly departing from Charminar (on demand 7.30–9am; ₹50, including breakfast; ☎040 2345 0444). The Nagarjuna Sagar tour (Sat & Sun 7.30am–10pm; ₹650 excluding entry) is a rushed but convenient way to reach this fascinating area.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

The area to the east of Hyderabad (Nampally) railway station has the cheapest accommodation, but you're unlikely to find anything acceptable for less than ₹500: avoid the grim little collection of five lodges with "Royal" in their name. A little over 1km north of Secunderabad railway station, several decent places can be found on Sarojini Devi Rd.

HYDERABAD AMRUTHA CASTLE 5-9-16 SAIFABAD, OPPOSITE THE SECRETARIAT ☎AMRUTHACASTLE.COM. THIS EXTRAORDINARILY KITSCH HOTEL, WHICH LOOKS LIKE A FAIRY CASTLE, IS UNDOUBTEDLY A FUN PLACE TO STAY. THE TURRETED ATTACHED ROOMS HAVE FAUX WOODEN BEAMS, FORTIFIED DOORS AND PAINTINGS OF FAMOUS ROYALS. ALTHOUGH THERE'S NO MOAT, YOU CAN TAKE A DIP IN THE ROOFTOP POOL. CHEAPER RATES ONLINE. ₹₹₹

★DM Residency 5-8-196/B Nampally ☎dmresidency.com. Set back from the Nampally hubbub, this ultra-budget hotel is kept scrupulously clean by the overtly helpful staff. The rooms are comfortable, with flat-screen TVs. Good single and a/c rates. ₹₹

Hotel Green Park Begumpet Rd ☎reserv.hyd@hotelgreenpark.com. Within walking distance from Begumpet metro station, this mid-range hotel has spacious clean rooms with a/c and a good restaurant serving an extensive buffet and fitness centre. ₹₹₹

New Hotel Suhail behind G.P.O, Troop Bazaar ☎newhotelsuhail.com. Set back from the road, the unpretentious hotel has a decent selection of clean rooms and family suites. There is a 24-hour reception, airport shuttle service and medical services available in case of any emergencies. ₹₹

Quality Inn Residency Public Garden Rd, Nampally 📍 qualityinnhyderabad.com. A business traveller-oriented chain hotel with central a/c and comfortably furnished attached rooms. Convenient for the station and the veg restaurant is very good. ₹₹₹

Taj Banjara Road No.1, Banjara Hills 📍 tajhotels.com. In a pleasant lakeside location, with all the usual top-notch facilities including a pool, three classy restaurants and a 24hr coffee shop. Online specials with particularly good weekend rates. ₹₹₹

★ Taj Falaknuma Palace Road Fatima Nagar, Falaknuma 📍 tajhotels.com. The opulent and beautiful former residence of the nizams is now a top-notch Taj Hotel, with superb grounds, rooms, restaurants, and exceptional service. A real treat if you can afford it. ₹₹₹₹

Taj Mahal 4-1-999 Abids Rd 📍 tmhgroup.in/abids. This classy white-and-pale-green 1920s heritage building has a patio garden, spiral staircase and plenty of character. The rooms themselves are plainer, but feature high ceilings, a/c, flat-screen TVs and fridges; the pricier upper-storey rooms are better. ₹₹₹

SECUNDERABAD ARANYA RESORT BESIDE SHAMIRPET DEER PARK NALSAR UNIVERSITY ROAD; 📍 ARANYARESORT.I.
THOUGH SLIGHTLY FURTHER NORTH THAN MOST ACCOMMODATION IN SECUNDERABAD, THIS RESORT IS SET IN THE LUSH SHAMIRPET DEER PARK AND SERVES AS A TRANQUIL SPOT AWAY FROM THE CACOPHONY OF THE CITY WHICH IS ONLY 30 MINUTES AWAY. ₹₹₹

Baseraa Sarojini Devi Rd 📍 baseraa.com. The smartest hotel within walking distance (around 15min) of the station, Baseraa boasts modern attached rooms with a/c, cable TV and minibars. ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

HYDERABAD ANTERA 265/A, ROAD NUMBER 10, JUBILEE HILLS, ☎ 033-68110949. ONE OF THE TOP RESTAURANTS IN HYDERABAD THAT ENTICES EPICUREANS BY SERVING CULINARY DELIGHTS FROM ANDHRA PRADESH, TELANGANA

AND RAYALSEEMA. EXPECT AUTHENTIC REGIONAL DISHES AND A LOCAL TWIST ON COCKTAILS. ₹₹₹

Café Bahar 3-5, 815/A, Old MLA Quarters Rd, Avanti Nagar, Himayatnagar 040 2323 7605. A one stop for all quintessential Hyderabadi food, snacks and its celebrated Irani tea. There are also the local Osmania biscuits and stewed apricot dessert Qubani ka Meetha here, along with the classic biryani too. ₹₹

Chef Inam's Steak House Road No.12, Banjara Hills 040 6999 4858. American-roadhouse-style joint serving a dozen different chargrilled steaks, plus a variety of burgers, kebabs, chicken and seafood dishes, as well as Boston Creameries ice cream. ₹

Chutneys A/13, Rd Number 36, Jubilee Hills 093902 34234. At this conveniently located branch of the hygienic veggie chain, waiters in white shirts with red lapels serve up inexpensive veg dosas, idlis, vadas, excellent thalis and mains. ₹₹

HYDERABADI AND ANDHRA CUISINE HYDERABADI COOKING IS A HEADY CONCOCTION OF ARABIC, TURKISH, MUGHLAI AND SOUTH INDIAN CUISINES, FEATURING SUMPTUOUS MEAT DISHES WITH SPICES SUCH AS CINNAMON, CARDAMOM, CLOVES AND A LOT OF THE DISHES HAVE A FLAVOURFUL HINT OF GARLIC. THE CITY IS ALSO THE HOME OF THE WORLD-FAMOUS BIRYANI, WHERE MUTTON, CHICKEN OR VEG IS MIXED WITH RICE AND AN ARRAY OF SPICES. ANDHRA CUISINE ENCOMPASSES TRADITIONAL SOUTHERN VEGETARIAN DISHES WITH FLAVOURINGS SUCH AS CASSIA BUDS, PEANUTS, COCONUT, TAMARIND LEAVES, MUSTARD SEEDS AND RED CHILLIES. FISH AND PRAWNS ARE COMMONLY EATEN IN COASTAL AREAS. HYDERABADIS ARE INCREDIBLY PROUD OF THEIR

CUISINE AND BELIEVE IT IS THE ONE THING TRAVELLERS SHOULD NOT MISS OUT ON.

★Fusion 9 6-3-249/A Road No.1, Banjara Hills 📞fusion9.in. Expensive but quality cuisine from regions as diverse as Mexico, Europe, the Middle East and Southeast Asia, served in a smart modern lounge. There's a smart deli below and the same owners have several other outlets – check the website. ₹₹₹

Salzburg Street Amrutha Castle hotel, 5-9-16 Saifabad 📞040 4443 3880. Overlooking the lobby's water feature, this restaurant has unusual, but well-executed, options such as wok-tossed garlic prawns and the Korean-Indian fusion kimchi paneer as well as some more traditional Indian and Chinese dishes. ₹₹

Shadab High Court Rd, Old City 📞040 2456 1648. While there are some fine meat and fish tandoori items on the menu, the main reason to visit the Shadab hotel is for its excellent mutton and chicken biryanis, some of the best in the city. You may have to queue for a table, but it's worth the wait. ₹

SECUNDERABAD ★PARADISE FOOD COURT SAROJINI DEVI RD 📞PARADISEFOODCOURT.IN. THIS VERY POPULAR MODERN MULTI-RESTAURANT COMPLEX, WITH SEVERAL OTHER BRANCHES ALL OVER THE CITY, BASHES OUT FINE HYDERABADI CUISINE, AS WELL AS CHINESE. THE BIRYANIS ARE RECOMMENDED, BUT DON'T MISS OUT ON THE SUCCULENT MUTTON KEBABS. ₹₹

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP

There are plenty of bars, particularly along Road No.1 in Banjara Hills and the burgeoning Jubilee Hills area further west, although a lot of young professionals in Hyderabad prefer to party in each other's homes in comparison with Bengaluru.

10 Downing Street 10–12 Kundanbagh, Begumpet 📞10ds.in. This popular chain bar north of Hussain Nagar manages to look as English as the name suggests, with wood panels and comfy booths. Different theme every night.

★Coco's Bar & Grill 217 Road No.2, Banjara Hills 📞040 2354 0600. Airy rooftop terrace with comfortable, cushioned bamboo armchairs, where you can enjoy a beer or cocktail while listening to the nightly live music.

Olive Bistro Kona's Durgam Cheruvu, Rd Number 46, Jubilee Hills 🌐olivebarandkitchen.com. A stylish restaurant in a former bungalow surrounded by trees and overlooking Durgamcheru Lake. There are excellent pizzas to accompany some craft beer brewed in-house.

Prost Next to Quadro Living, Plot 1026, Rd Number 45, CBI Colony, Jubilee Hills 📞9100921161. Craft brewery spread over three floors serving an impressive array of Indian beers and cider with stunning views from its rooftop.

SHOPPING

MAP

All the shops listed below operate core hours of Mon–Sat 10am–8pm, sometimes later. Lad Bazaar in the old city remains the most absorbing place to browse for anything from saris to spices.

Ankur 6-1-84 Secretariat Rd 📞040 2323 4901. A huge range of beautiful silks and saris of varying quality and extent can be found at this well-stocked shop.

Chenetha Bhavan A little south of the railway station, Nampally 📞040 2460 2845. This modern shopping complex is stuffed with crafts, knick-knacks and handloom shops specialising in both clothes and carpets.

Lepakshi Gunfoundry, Jubilee Hills 📞9849900935. The flagship branch of the AP government emporium stocks a wide range of handicrafts from all over the state.

MR Book Centre Opp Lifestyle Building Begumpet 📞088853 53009. A local favourite, this two decade unfussy old bookshop is home to many regional authors and offers rare, unused, and old stocks of books at discounted prices. There are illustrated biographies and an impressive manga collection too.

Sheela's Arts and Crafts 17 Lal Bahadur Stadium Complex 📞040 2323 6944. Keenly priced souvenir shop selling lots of jewellery, leather bags and various handicrafts.

Sri Mahalaxmi 1264 Road No.36, Jubilee Hills; 🌐srimahalaxmijewels.com. Upmarket jewellers displaying a dazzling range of famous Hyderabad pearls and large gold and diamond necklaces and earrings in brightly lit cases.

Utkalika Swarna Jayanthi Complex ☎040 2324 0510. This government of Odisha handicrafts emporium has a modest selection of silver filigree jewellery, handloom cloth, ikat tie-dye, Jagannath papier-mâché figures and buffalo bone carvings.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE STATE BANK OF HYDERABAD, MG RD, AND FEDERAL BANK, FIRST FLOOR, ORIENT ESTATE, MG RD, EXCHANGE FOREIGN CURRENCY; BOTH OPEN MON–FRI 10.30AM–2.30PM, THE LATTER ALSO SAT 10.30AM–12.30PM. ALTERNATIVELY TRY THOMAS COOK (☎040 2329 6521) AT NASIR ARCADE, SECRETARIAT RD, OR LKP FOREX (☎040 2321 0094) ON PUBLIC GARDENS RD, A 10MIN WALK NORTH OF NAMPALLY STATION; BOTH OPEN MON–SAT 9.30AM–6PM. ATMS ARE UBIQUITOUS.

Hospitals The government-run Gandhi Hospital is in Secunderabad (☎040 2770 2222); the private CDR Hospital is in Himayatnagar (☎040 2322 1221); and there's a Tropical Diseases Hospital in Nallakunta (☎040 2766 7843).

Library You must be a member or a British citizen to use the British Library, Secretariat Rd (Tues–Sat 11am–7pm; ☎040 2323 0774).

Pharmacies Apollo Pharmacy (☎040 6060 2424) has branches throughout the city, some open 24hr.

Police ☎040 2323 0191. In an emergency call ☎100.

Travel agents Sagar Tours & Travels, with branches in Afzal Gunj and Lakdi-Ka-Pul (☎98480 82716, 🌐sagartravelshyderabad.com); Sri Sai International Travels in Ameerpet (☎040 2374 2604, 🌐srisaitravels.com); Travel World in Secunderabad (☎040 2781 6018, 🌐travelworld-india.com).

Telangana The principal places of interest in the rest of Telangana lie about the same distance in opposite directions from the capital. As you head north from Hyderabad, the landscape becomes greener and hillier, sporadically punctuated by photogenic black-granite rock formations. There is little to detain visitors here except Warangal, which has a medieval fort and a Shiva temple, and nearby Palampet, with its Kakatiya temple. South of the capital, swathes of flat farmland stretch into the centre of the state, where the Nagarjuna Sagar dam has created a major lake with the important Buddhist site of Nagarjunakonda, now an island, in its waters.

Warangal and around WARANGAL – “one stone” – 150km northeast of Hyderabad and just about possible to visit as a day-trip, was the Hindu capital of the Kakatiyan empire in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries. Like other Deccan cities, it changed hands many times between the Hindus and the Muslims – something reflected in the remains you see today.

Warangal's fort (daily 10am–7pm; charge), 4km south of the city and 12 km from historic Hanamkonda, is famous for its two circles of fortifications: the outer made of earth with a moat, and the inner of stone. Four roads into the centre meet at the ruined Shiva temple of Swayambhu (1162). At its southern gateway, another Shiva temple, from the fourteenth century, is in much better shape; inside, the remains of an enormous lingam came originally from the Swayambhu shrine. Also, inside the citadel is the Shirab Khan, or Audience Hall, an early eleventh-century building very similar to Mandu's Hindola Mahal.

Some 6km north of town just off the main road beside the slopes of Hanamkonda Hill, the largely basalt Chalukyan-style “thousand-pillared” Shiva temple (daily 6am–6pm) was constructed in 1163. A low-roofed building on several stepped stages, it features superb carvings and shrines to Vishnu, Shiva and Surya, the sun god. They lead off the mandapa, whose numerous finely carved columns give the temple its name. In front, a polished Nandi bull was carved out of a single stone. A Bhadrakali temple stands at the top of the hill.

Palampet PALAMPET, around 70km northeast of Warangal, is a remote village that is worth the effort to get to for its splendid thirteenth-century Ramappa temple. Created by the same Kakatiyan artisans who built the Hanamkonda temple near Warangal, the temple is built on a 1.8m-high cruciform plinth and crowned by a central shikhara, delicately carved with scenes from the Puranas, while the inner sanctum boasts a 2.7m-tall lingam. There is also an impressive Nandi statue and bathing tank.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY WARANGAL AND AROUND TRAIN THERE ARE AT LEAST TWENTY SERVICES DAILY BETWEEN HYDERABAD AND WARANGAL, TAKING 2–3HR.

By bus There are buses every 15–30min between Warangal and Hyderabad, taking around 3hr. There is no direct bus from Warangal to Palampet, so change in Mulugu.

Getting around The easiest way to cover the sites near Warangal is to rent a bike from one of the stalls on Station Rd (₹50/day). An auto-rickshaw to either the fort or the temple costs around ₹130, if you negotiate hard.

Tourist information There's a Telangana Tourism office (☎0870 257 1339; Mon–Sat 10am–5pm) at Nakalgutta in Hanamkonda.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ASHOKA MAIN RD, HANAMKONDA 🌐 HOTELASHOKA.IN. NEAR THE THOUSAND-

PILLARED TEMPLE, THIS PLACE HAS CARPETED A/C ROOMS WITH TV AND FRIDGE BUT DODGY SERVICE. THE RESTAURANT PROVIDES INDIAN AND CHINESE STANDARDS; THERE'S ALSO AN ATTACHED BAR. ₹₹₹

Bharati Mess Station Rd, Warangal. The best of the simple vegetarian restaurants in the station area, offering huge and wholesome unlimited refill meals, all made with fresh ingredients. ₹₹

Grand Gayatri Station Rd, Warangal 📞 hotelgrandgayatri.com. Best hotel in the station area, offering warmly furnished rooms of various sizes and prices. Decent north India restaurant too ₹₹

Harita Kakatiya Main Rd, Hanamkonda 📞 telanganatourism.gov.in. Not far from the thousand-pillared temple, this government hotel is the best in the area, with large spacious a/c rooms and a good restaurant. ₹₹

Nagarjunakonda NAGARJUNAKONDA, or “Nagarjuna’s Hill”, 166km south of Hyderabad and 175km west of Vijayawada, is all that remains of the vast area, rich in archeological sites, that was submerged when the huge Nagarjuna Sagar dam was built across the River Krishna in 1960. Ancient settlements in the valley had first been discovered in 1926, and extensive excavations carried out between 1954 and 1960 uncovered more than one hundred sites dating from the early Stone Age to late medieval times. Nagarjunakonda was once the summit of a hill, where a fort towered 200m above the valley floor; now it is just a small oblong island near the middle of Nagarjuna Sagar Lake. The new border between Telangana and Andhra Pradesh runs right through the lake and both states claim it as their own in tourist literature. It certainly falls more within the compass of Hyderabad, eventually to be solely the capital of Telangana, which manages the local resort.

Several Buddhist monuments have been reconstructed, in an operation reminiscent of that at Abu Simbel in Egypt, and a museum exhibits the more remarkable ruins of the valley. VIJAYAPURI, the village on the shore of the lake, overlooks the colossal dam itself, which produces electricity for the whole region, and is the jumping-off point for visiting Nagarjunakonda island (daily 9am–5pm). Boats arrive on the north-eastern edge of the island, at what remains of one of the gates of the fort, built in the fourteenth century and renovated by the Vijayanagar kings in the mid-sixteenth century. Low, damaged, stone walls skirting the island mark the fort's edge, and you can see ground-level remains of the Hindu temples that served its inhabitants. Well-kept gardens lie between the jetty and the museum, beyond which nine Buddhist monuments from various sites in the valley have been rebuilt. West of the jetty, there's a reconstructed third-century-AD bathing ghat.

The stupas The maha-chaitya, or stupa, constructed at the command of King Chamtula's sister in the third century AD, is the area's earliest Buddhist structure. It was raised over relics of the Buddha – said to include a tooth – and has been reassembled in the southwest of the island. Nearby, a towering Buddha statue stands beside a ground plan of a monastery that enshrines a smaller stupa. Close by are other stupas; the brick walls of the svastika chaitya have been arranged in the shape of swastikas, common emblems in early Buddhist iconography.

The museum Daily except Fri 10am–5pm • charge The museum houses stone friezes decorated with scenes from the Buddha's life, and statues of the Buddha in various postures. Earlier artefacts include metal axe-heads and knives (dating from the first millennium BC). Later exhibits include inscribed pillars from Ikshvaku times. Medieval sculptures include a thirteenth-century tirthankara (Jain saint) and a seventeenth-century Ganesh.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS NAGARJUNAKONDA
NAGARJUNAKONDA CAN EASILY BE REACHED FROM HYDERABAD (4HR; ALL THE REGULAR MACHERLA SERVICES
STOP AT VIJAYAPURI) OR VIJAYAWADA (6HR; A DIRECT SERVICE RUNS DAILY AT 11AM AND FREQUENT SERVICES LEAVE FROM GUNTUR).

By boat Tickets for boats to the island (daily 9.30am, 11.30am & 1.30pm; 45min; ₹100) go on sale 25min before departure. Each boat leaves the island 90min after it arrives, so if you want to see the ruins and museum in detail, take a morning boat and return in the afternoon.

Tourist information The AP Tourism office (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm; ☎08680 277364) is near the bus stand.

ACCOMMODATION ACCOMMODATION AT VIJAYAPURI IS LIMITED AND THERE ARE TWO DISTINCT SETTLEMENTS 6KM APART ON EITHER SIDE OF THE DAM. FOR EASY ACCESS TO THE SITES IT'S BETTER TO STAY NEAR THE JETTY ON THE RIGHT BANK OF THE DAM; ASK THE BUS DRIVER TO LEAVE YOU AT THE LAUNCH STATION.

Haritha Vijay Vihar Resort On the near side of the dam as you approach the lake from Hyderabad 📍harithahotel.com. APTDC runs the comfortable all-a/c Vijay Vihar, complete with swimming pool. Rooms are over 50 percent more expensive at weekends. ₹₹

Eastern and northern Andhra Pradesh

One of India's least visited areas, eastern Andhra Pradesh is sandwiched between the Bay of Bengal in the east and the red soil and high peaks of the Eastern Ghats in the north. Its sole architectural attraction is the ancient Buddhist site of Amaravati, gradually being transformed as the new capital of Andhra Pradesh, near the business hub of Vijayawada, whose sprinkling of historic temples is far overshadowed by impersonal, modern buildings. For anyone with a strong desire to explore, however, pockets of natural beauty along the coast and in the hills of eastern Andhra Pradesh can offer rich rewards, especially the Godavari Delta around Rajahmundry. At the northern tip of the state, the nondescript industrial port city of Visakhapatnam with its serene rocky beaches is a useful place to break up a journey to northern India.

Vijayawada Almost 450km north of Chennai, a third of the way to Kolkata, VIJAYAWADA is a bustling commercial centre on the banks of the Krishna Delta, 90km from the coast. This mundane city, alleviated by a mountain backdrop of bare granite outcrops and some urban greenery, is seldom visited by tourists, but is an obvious stop-off point for a visit to nearby Amaravati. The Kanaka Durga (also known as Vijaya) temple on Indrakila Hill in the east, dedicated to the city's patron goddess of riches, power and benevolence, is the most interesting of Vijayawada's handful of temples. Across the river, roughly 6km southwest of town, is an ancient, unmodified cave temple complex at Undavalli (daily 9am–6pm; charge) a tiny rural village on the local #301 bus service to Amaravati.

There are shrines to all three of the trimurti, with the reclining Vishnu statue on the upper level being the most impressive feature.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN VIJAYWADA
VIJAYAWADA'S RAILWAY STATION, ON THE MAIN CHENNAI–
KOLKATA LINE, IS IN THE CENTRE OF TOWN: THE DAILY
EAST COAST EXPRESS #18645 (11.15AM; 5HR 55MIN) IS A CONVENIENT SERVICE TO HYDERABAD (SECUNDERABAD).

By bus The Pandit Nehru bus stand is 1.5km west of the station, on the other side of the Ryes Canal. The efficient #301 bus to Amaravati via Undavalli (every 20–30min; 1hr 30min) leaves from platform 47. There are also regular services to Hyderabad (every 15min; 6hr) and Visakha-patnam (hourly; 6–9hr).

Tourist information There's a tourist office (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm; ☎0866 252 3966) at the railway station, and APTDC has an office in the town centre at the Hotel Ilapuram complex, Gandhi Nagar (same times; ☎0866 257 0255).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING LEMON TREE MG RD ☎
LEMONTREEHOTELS.COM. LUXURY HOTEL IN A TALL
MODERN BLOCK, WHICH OFFERS BRIGHTLY FURNISHED A/C
ROOMS WITH TV, WI-FI AND HAS A ROOFTOP POOL. BOOK ONLINE FOR DISCOUNTS AND COMPLIMENTARY
BREAKFAST. ₹₹₹

Narayana Swamy Atchutaramaiah St ☎0866 257 1221. Good-value lodge, with clean rooms, some with a/c and TV that makes it salubrious enough for a one-night stay. ₹

Novotel Vijayawada Varun near Benz Circle, Bharathi Nagar ☎0866 6688999. laid-back hotel offering a rooftop pool and dining, plus meeting space. ₹₹

Amaravati Daily except Fri 10am–5pm • charge; museum charge For centuries AMARAVATI, 33km from Vijayawada, has been little more than a village on the banks of the Krishna.

All that is rapidly changing, however, as this is the location that has been chosen to be the brand-new capital of Andhra Pradesh, following the secession of Telangana. Eventually, an ultramodern city of gleaming skyscrapers will emerge from the quiet fields, although at the time of writing there were a lot more foundations than floors above ground level.

Amidst this building frenzy, Amaravati remains famous as the site of a Buddhist settlement formerly known as Chintapalli, where a stupa larger than those at Sanchi was erected over relics of the Buddha in the third century BC, during the reign of Ashoka. The stupa no longer stands, but its size is evident from the mound that formed its base. There was a gateway at each of the cardinal points, one of which has been reconstructed, and the meticulously carved details show themes from the Buddha's life. A Kalachakra initiation programme was conducted by the Dalai Lama here in January 2006 to commemorate 2550 years since the Buddha's birth.

Exhibits at the small but fascinating museum date from the third century BC to the twelfth century AD and include Buddha statues with lotus symbols on the feet, tightly curled hair and long ear lobes – all traditional indications of an enlightened teacher.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS BUS #301 RUNS AMARAVATI EVERY 20–30MIN FROM VIJAYAWADA TO AMARAVATI (1HR 30MIN). THE EXCAVATED SITE AND MUSEUM ARE LESS THAN 1KM FROM THE BUS STAND BUT IT'S BETTER TO JUMP OFF WHEN THE BUS TURNS ONTO THE MAIN STREET.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING RKS REST HOUSE TEMPLE ST 008645 255516. TYPICAL OF THE HANDFUL OF BASIC LODGES DOTTED AROUND THE TEMPLE, THIS PLACE OFFERS NO CREATURE COMFORTS BUT IS PASSABLE FOR A NIGHT. ₹

The Godavari Delta A previously uncharted region that is just beginning to open up to tourism, though still mostly aimed at domestic visitors, is the enchanting Godavari Delta, where the mighty river ends its journey of almost 1500 miles across India from its source in the Western Ghats. The best base for exploration of the area is Rajahmundry, roughly halfway between Vijayawada and Visakhapatnam. From there, you can take a trip upriver to the verdant Papikondalu Hills, delve into the lush Konaseema region to the south or visit the Coringa Wildlife Sanctuary to the southeast.

Rajahmundry Busy but not unpleasant RAJAHMUNDRY sprawls along the east bank of the Godavari, still 80km from the sea, yet the river is so wide at this point that it takes over five minutes to cross it by rail or road. Although the main reason to come here is to explore the rural areas that surround it, the lively riverfront merits a stroll. Being the last major town on India's second holiest river, the banks are a riot of temples, shrines and bathing ghats, always bustling with pilgrims and locals alike.

Papikondalu Hills As the best spots in the green riverside Papikondalu Hills to the north of Rajahmundry are only accessible by boat, it is best to take a tour to reach them. You are first taken 35km by road to the muddy jetty at Polavaram and then transferred onto a double-decker boat that sedately cruises upstream to Bhadrachalam, visiting some temples en route and giving you the option to stay overnight in rustic bamboo huts at Kolluru, beside a tributary where you can bathe in the clear rushing waters.

Konaseema Billing itself as Andhra's answer to the renowned Keralan backwaters, Konaseema is a palm-rich region of fertile islands and grassy marshes created by the seven mouths of the Godavari. This sleepy area, home to water buffalo, farmers and fishermen, is just waking up to tourism, especially around the nearby villages of Razole and Dindi, around 50km south of Rajahmundry, which offer waterfront resorts and houseboats for groups.

Coringa Wildlife Sanctuary Daily 9am–5pm • charge Roughly 45km southeast of Rajahmundry, the Coringa Wildlife Sanctuary contains the largest area of mangrove swamps in India apart from the Sundarbans. There's a boardwalk through the muddy groves and a small jetty for boat trips when the tide is high enough, plus an ugly concrete viewing platform that does allow great views all around. Among the birdlife to be spotted here is the ubiquitous egret, the open-billed stork, kingfishers and even the Brahminy kite, while the elusive otter is the most notable resident mammal. The surrounding bay is also a major breeding ground for the olive ridley turtle. There is also an option to beat the crowds and opt for the slightly more pricey speedboat experience.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY THE GODAVARI DELTA TRAIN RAJAHMUNDY'S RAILWAY STATION, ON THE MAIN EAST-COAST LINE, IS ON THE SOUTH SIDE OF THE CITY CENTRE: ALL OF THE 15–20 DAILY TRAINS BETWEEN VIJAYAWADA (2HR 30MIN–3HR) AND VISAKHAPATNAM (3HR–3HR 30MIN) STOP HERE.

By bus The bus stand is 3km northeast of the station. There are regular services to Dindi (hourly; 2hr), Hyderabad (every 30min–1hr; 9–10hr), Razole (hourly; 2hr), Vijayawada (every 15–30min; 3–4hr) and Visakhapatnam (every 30min–1hr; 3hr 30min–4hr 30min). For Coringa Wildlife Sanctuary, you can take a bus to Kakinada (every 15–30min; 1hr 30min and get an auto-rickshaw or Yanam-bound bus from there.

Tourist information and tours The best source of information and place to book tours of the region is the efficient Konaseema Tourism office (daily 8am–8pm; ☎80087 57111, www.konaseematourism.com), 200m north of Rajahmundry railway station.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING HARITHA COCONUT COUNTRY RESORT DINDI www.APTDC.GOV.IN. UNUSUALLY ATTRACTIVE GOVERNMENT RESORT WITH LARGE RUSTIC ROOMS, A MULTICUISINE RESTAURANT, SWIMMING POOL, AND A COUPLE OF LUXURY TWO-ROOM HOUSEBOATS FOR RENT. ₹₹

★RVR Sarovar Portico Dindi Dindi www.sarovarhotels.com. Spacious a/c rooms with uninterrupted views across tranquil waters and a water-lily

dotted pool. The brightly lit rooms have balconies and dark rosewood furnishing. Complimentary breakfast offered ₹₹₹

Shelton Rajamahendri Morampudi Rd 📞95500 33111. Modern hotel with smart a/c business-oriented rooms painted in bright colours. Overlooks the city from the rooftop hotel and pool. ₹₹

Visakhapatnam and around Andhra Pradesh's second largest city, 650km east of Hyderabad and 350km north of Vijayawada, VISAKHAPATNAM (commonly known as Vizag) is a busy port and home to major shipbuilding, oil refining and steel industries. Apart from having a decent beach, some interesting temples and a couple of museums, for most travellers it only serves to break up a long journey along the east coast. Those who do linger in the area, however, can enjoy the seaside area of Waltair and will be rewarded by visiting outlying places such as Bheemunipatnam, Mukhalingam and Borra caves.

Kursura Submarine Museum Beach Rd • Tues–Sat 2–8.30pm, Sun 10am–12.30pm & 2–8.30pm • charge, camera charge, video charge • 📞0891 256 3429

Housed in a decommissioned submarine named INS Kursura, which is now landed like a beached whale in a dry dock on the seafront, the Kursura Submarine Museum is mainly of interest to nautical fanatics. It gives you the chance to see the inner workings of the vessel and get an idea of what life must have been like on board.

Vishaka Museum Beach Rd • Mon–Thurs 11am–7pm, Sat & Sun noon–8pm • charge • 📞0891 255 0316

The surprisingly well-laid-out and well-labelled Vishaka Museum covers seafaring from ancient times to post-Independence, with plenty of paintings and naval equipment, though with perhaps a little too much emphasis on and glorification of military prowess.

Kailashagiri Hill and beach The best beach for swimming is below Kailashagiri Hill, several kilometres north of the port. The popular hilltop park boasts fantastic coastal and city vistas, and a hilarious viewing deck in the shape of the Titanic's bow, as well as the usual modest funfair paraphernalia and stalls. The park is also linked to the coast road and fine sandy beach by a cable car (charge).

Around Visakhapatnam Various traces of older civilizations lie within a day's journey of the city. At Bheemunipatnam, 30km north, you can see the remains of a Dutch fort and a peculiar cemetery with slate-grey pyramidal tombs. You'll need a car to get to Mukhalingam, 100km north of Bheemunipatnam, where three Shaivite temples, built between the sixth and twelfth centuries, rest in low hills. Their elaborate carvings and well-preserved towering shikharas display slight local variations from the otherwise standard Odishan style.

Ninety kilometres inland on a minor road that winds through the Eastern Ghats and the Araku forest, Borra boasts a set of dark and eerie limestone caves, pierced with age-old stalactites and stalagmites (daily 10am–1pm & 2–5pm; ₹40).

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION VISAKHAPATNAM AND AROUND BY TRAIN VISAKHAPATNAM'S RAILWAY STATION, ON THE MAIN CHENNAI–KOLKATA LINE, IS CLOSE TO THE PORT. THE BEST SERVICE IN BOTH DIRECTIONS IS THE SUPERFAST
COROMANDEL EXPRESS #12842 (10.10PM) TO BHUBANESWAR (6HR 30MIN) AND KOLKATA (13HR 45MIN); #12841 (4.20AM) TO CHENNAI (12HR 40MIN) AND VIJAYAWADA (5HR 35MIN).

By bus Regular buses for Vijayawada (every 30min; 6–8hr), Rajahmundry (every 30min–1hr; 3hr 30min–4hr 30min) and Hyderabad (hourly; 11–13hr) leave from the bus stand, south of the city centre.

Tourist information The APTDC office is in the RTC Complex in the city centre (Mon–Sat 9am–5pm; ☎0891 278 8820).

ACCOMMODATION VISAKHAPATNAM GATEWAY BEACH RD
THEGATEWAYHOTELS.COM. THE TOP-END TAJ HOTELS-RUN
GATEWAY HAS RECENTLY RENOVATED SEA-FACING

ATTACHED ROOMS AND AN EXCELLENT CHINESE RESTAURANT. GOOD ONLINE DEALS. ₹₹₹

The Park Beach Rd, Visakhapatnam 📞theparkhotels.com. This branch of the nationwide chain is Visakh's classiest hotel, with elegantly furnished rooms and all mod cons, including fine dining, lush gardens and a pool. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹₹

YMCA Beach Rd, Visakhapatnam 📞ymcavizag.org. The reliable and predictably popular YMCA, which boasts a splendid seaside location, has a few economical attached rooms and a dorm. Plenty of street food stalls in the area. No wi-fi. ₹

AROUND VISAKHAPATNAM JUNGLE BELLS TYDA 📞APTDC.GOV.IN. THIS MID-RANGE APTDC HOTEL HAS FAIR-SIZED RUSTIC ROOMS AND IS THE NEAREST PLACE TO BORRA CAVES. BUFFET BREAKFAST INCLUDED. ₹₹

EATING BARBECUE NATION WALTAIR MAIN RD, VISAKHAPATNAM 📞BARBEQUENATION.COM. A GREAT SPOT IF YOU HAVE A BIG APPETITE. THIS ANDHRA PRADESH BRANCH OF A NATIONWIDE CHAIN PROVIDE REGIONAL DELICACIES IN THEIR BUFFET – AFTER THEY SERVE YOU ENDLESS GRILLS OF SKEWERED VEGGIES AND MEAT. ₹₹

Flying Spaghetti Monster Waltair Rd, Visakhapatnam 📞fsm.in. An unexpected find for such a city, serving pizzas, pasta, and some Mexican dishes. ₹

Sandy Lane Beach Rd, Visakhapatnam 📞0891 273 6997. Housed in an attractive Raj-era mansion and with seating at the back of the beach, this bar-restaurant offers chilled beer and fresh seafood for ₹150–300. Daily 11am–11pm.

Southern Andhra Pradesh The further south you travel from the fertile lands watered by the great Krishna and Godavari rivers, the less hospitable the terrain becomes, especially in the rocky southwest of the state. For Hindus, the main attraction in southern Andhra Pradesh is the Venkateshvara temple, outside Tirupati, India's most popular Vishnu shrine, where several thousand pilgrims come each day to receive darshan. Puttaparthi, the community founded by the deceased spiritual leader Sai Baba, and the Oneness University are the only other places in the region to attract significant numbers of visitors. All three places are closer to Chennai in Tamil Nadu and Bengaluru in Karnataka than to other points in Andhra Pradesh.

Tirumala Hill and Tirupati Set in a stunning position, surrounded by wooded hills capped by a ring of vertical red rocks, the Sri Venkateshvara temple at Tirumala, 170km northwest of Chennai, is said to be one of the richest places of pilgrimage in the world, and is certainly the most popular, drawing more devotees than Rome or Mecca. With its many shrines and dharamsalas, the whole area around Tirumala Hill, an enervating drive 700m up in the Venkata Hills, provides a fascinating insight into contemporary Hinduism practised on a large scale.

The road trip up Tirumala Hill is a lot less terrifying now that there's a separate route down; the most devout, of course, climb the hill by foot. The steep trail starts at Alipuri, 4km from the centre of Tirupati; all the pilgrim buses pass through – look out for a large Garuda statue and the soaring gopura of the first temple. There are drinks stalls all along the route, which is covered for most of the way. The walk takes at least four hours, and an early start is recommended. When you get to the top, you will see barbers giving pilgrims tonsures as part of their devotions.

At the bottom of the hill, the Sri Kapileswaraswami temple at Kapilateertham is the only Tirumala temple devoted to Shiva.

The Venkateshvara temple General entry free; sarvadarshanan charge; special entry and e-darshan charge • www.tirumala.org

The Venkateshvara temple (aka Sri Vari) dedicated to Vishnu and started in the tenth century, sees thousands of pilgrims daily; weekends, public holidays and festivals are even busier. Unless your visit is intended to be particularly rigorous, you should buy one of the special darshan tickets, as this can reduce the time it takes to get inside by quite a few hours, even more than a day. All types of tickets can be purchased from booths near the temple entrance and in advance online. Before entering the temple non-Hindus have to sign a declaration of faith in Lord Venkateshvara and provide photocopies of the picture and visa pages from their passports, along with the originals. Note that no electronic devices are allowed inside the temple.

At the entrance is a colonnade, lined with life-sized copper or stone statues of royal patrons. The gopura gateway leading to the inner courtyard is decorated with sheets of embossed silver; a gold stambha (flagstaff) stands outside the inner shrine next to a gold upturned lotus on a plinth. Outside, opposite the temple, is a small museum, the Hall of Antiquities (daily 8am–8pm). Your darshan tickets entitle you to enter the museum via shorter queues opposite the exit.

Lepakshi Temple General entry free

Though closer to Karnataks, Lepakshi is a village in the Sri Sathya Sai district of Andhra Pradesh. It is located 15 km east of Hindupur and approximately 82 km west of Kadirī and 120 km north of Bangalore. The temple is steeped in history and played a pivotal role in Hindu mythology, mainly The Ramayana. It boasts three shrines – one dedicated to Vishnu, One to Shiva and one to Veerabhadreshwara. The temple stands as a great relic to the cultural and architectural heritage of the Vijayanagara empire.

THE ONENESS UNIVERSITY AND TEMPLE A FEW KILOMETRES FROM THE SMALL TOWN OF TADA, AROUND 70KM EAST OF TIRUPATI, LIES THE STARTLING COMPLEX OF THE GOLDEN CITY, HOME TO THE ONENESS UNIVERSITY. THE FOCAL POINT OF THIS COMMUNITY IS THE STUNNING AND GIGANTIC THREE-STOREY ONENESS TEMPLE, BUILT IN BRILLIANT WHITE MARBLE AND VISIBLE FOR MILES AROUND. THE LARGEST PILLARLESS HALL IN ASIA, IT IS CAPABLE OF HOUSING UP TO FIVE THOUSAND PEOPLE. THE HUGE EDIFICE HAS AN IMPRESSIVE MEDITATION HALL ON THE UPPER STOREY AND BENEATH IT AREAS FOR COMMUNAL WORSHIP AND EVENTS, MOST NOTABLY DARSHAN WITH THE FOUNDERS OF THE ONENESS MOVEMENT, SRI BHAGAVAN (BORN MARCH 15, 1949 IN NATHAM, TAMIL NADU) AND HIS PARTNER AMMA (BORN AUGUST 15, 1954 IN SANGAM, ANDHRA PRADESH). OFTEN REFERRED TO AS KALKI BHAGAVAN, AS MANY FOLLOWERS HAVE DECLARED HIM TO BE THE TENTH INCARNATION OF VISHNU, THE GURU HAS ALWAYS DISAVOWED THIS TITLE, CONCENTRATING INSTEAD ON PROMOTING HIS CORE MESSAGE OF SEEKING UNION WITH THE DIVINE.

After the couple married in 1976, they founded the Jeevashram school in 1984, originally located at Satyaloka, a remote location in the Eastern Ghats near the Andhra and Karnataka borders. Here they developed the philosophy of Oneness, wherein every individual feels connected to all that is and gradually awakens to a state of higher consciousness. This is achieved by the process of deeksha blessing, whereby divine energy is transferred directly to the recipient by a gentle touching of the head around the crown chakra. In the early 1990s, the school relocated to Nemam, in Tamil Nadu north of Chennai, before finding its new home at the Golden City at the turn of the millennium.

The temple is not open to casual visitors but those genuinely interested can arrange a visit in advance and be given a tour. You can find out more about the movement and get details on the four-week-long deepening process at the university by logging onto www.omoneness.com. If you do arrange to go independently, it is better to hire a taxi from Tirupati or Chennai as the complex is very difficult to reach by public transport.

Tirupati The hill is 11km as the crow flies from its service town of TIRUPATI, but double that by road. The town is almost entirely modern and pretty unappealing, as well as being predictably crowded with the constant flow of pilgrims. A five-minute walk from the railway station, the one temple in Tirupati itself that's definitely worth a look is Govindarajaswamy, whose modern grey gopura is clearly visible from many points in town. The inner sanctum is open to non-Hindus and contains a splendid, large, black reclining Vishnu. In its own compound by the side entrance stands the fine little Venkateshvara Museum of Temple Arts (daily 8am–8pm; charge). The temple's impressive bathing tank lies 200m to the east.

Tiruchanur Padmavati temple Between Tirupati and Tirumala Hill, the Tiruchanur Padmavati temple is another popular pilgrimage halt. A gold vimana tower with lions at each corner surmounts the sanctuary, which contains a black stone image of goddess Lakshmi with one silver eye. A ₹50 ticket allows you to jump the queue to enter the sanctuary.

Chandragiri Fort Daily except Fri 10am–5pm • charge • Sound-and-light show (in English) Nov–Feb 7.30pm, March–Oct 8pm; 45min; charge In the sixteenth century, Chandragiri, 11km southwest of Tirupati, became the third capital of the Vijayanagars. It was here that the British negotiated the acquisition of the land to establish Fort St George, the earliest settlement at what is now Chennai. The original fort, thought to date from around 1000 AD, was taken over by Haider Ali in 1782, followed by the British in 1792. A small museum is housed in the main building, the Indo-Saracenic Raja Mahal. Another building, the Rani Mahal, stands close by, while behind that is a hill with two freestanding boulders that was used as a place of public execution during Vijayanagar times. There's a sound-and-light show every night.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TIRUMALA HILL AND TIRUPATI PLANE THERE ARE FLIGHTS TO BENGALURU (2 DAILY; 1HR) AND HYDERABAD (12–14 DAILY; 1HR–1HR 15MIN) FROM THE AIRPORT, 14KM OUTSIDE TIRUPATI.

By train Trains from Chennai (7–11 daily; 2hr 35min–4hr) pull in at Tirupati's central railway station. There are several connections to Hyderabad (6–10 daily; 11hr 15min–15hr 15min).

By bus The bus stand is 500m east of the train station. From Hyderabad it's a long haul (8–10 daily; 12–15hr). Frequent express bus services run to Chennai (every 15–30min; 3hr 30min–4hr). There are hourly buses to both Kanchipuram (5hr), two of which continue to Mamallapuram (7hr), and Bengaluru (7hr).

GETTING AROUND AND INFORMATION BY BUS A SECTION AT THE BACK OF TIRUPATI BUS STAND HAS SERVICES EVERY FEW MINUTES TO TIRUMALA HILL; YOU CAN ALSO ACCESS IT VIA A LOCAL BUS STOP OUTSIDE THE TRAIN STATION.

Tourist information The AP Tourism office (daily 7am–9pm; ☎0877 225 5385) is on the second floor of the Sri Devi Complex, Tilak Rd.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING UNLESS YOU'RE A PILGRIM SEEKING ACCOMMODATION IN THE DHARAMSHALAS NEAR THE TEMPLE, ALL THE DECENT PLACES TO STAY ARE IN TIRUPATI. EATING IS ALMOST EXCLUSIVELY VEGETARIAN, AND THERE ARE MANY CHEAP "MEALS" PLACES IN TOWN AND ON TIRUMALA HILL.

Bhimas Deluxe 34–38 G Car St, near the railway station 📍 bhimasdeluxehotel.com. Despite an unappealing grey colour scheme, the attached a/c rooms with TV here are a decent choice; 12hr "transit rooms" are available for two thirds of the regular rate. ₹₹

★The Orchid Fortune Kences hotel, opposite the bus stand 📍 0877 225 5855. The excellent evening buffet is one of the few places to enjoy non-veg food, with superb chicken and lamb dishes, followed by a great range of desserts. À la carte available too. ₹₹

Pai Viceroy Tirumala Bypass Rd 📍 paihotels.com. The best of the hotels in the hills with spacious rooms, clean bathrooms a/c and two swanky restaurants. ₹₹₹

Robo Diner Air Bypass Rd 📍 robodiner.in. An unusual, futuristic restaurant serving up continental, north and south Indian dishes and is semi operated by robots as the title suggests. ₹₹

Sindhuri Park Opposite the bathing tank 📍 hotelsindhuri.com. One of the smartest places in the town centre, this all-a/c hotel has comfortable – if unremarkable – attached rooms with good views of the tank and temple. The restaurant offers a good range of Indian paneer and veg dishes, as well as banana splits for dessert. ₹₹

SHRI SATYA SAI BABA BORN ON NOVEMBER 23, 1926, IN PUTTAPARTHY, SATYANARAYANA RAJU ALLEGEDLY DISPLAYED PRODIGIOUS TALENTS FROM AN EARLY AGE. HIS APPARENTLY SUPERNATURAL ABILITIES INITIALLY CAUSED SOME CONCERN TO HIS FAMILY, WHO TOOK HIM TO VEDIC DOCTORS AND EVENTUALLY TO BE EXORCISED. HAVING BEEN DECLARED POSSESSED

BY THE DIVINE RATHER THAN THE DIABOLICAL, AT THE AGE OF 14 HE CALMLY ANNOUNCED HE WAS THE NEW INCARNATION OF SAI BABA, A SAINT FROM SHIRDI IN MAHARASHTRA WHO DIED EIGHT YEARS BEFORE SATYA WAS BORN.

Gradually his fame spread and a large following developed. In 1950 the ashram was inaugurated and a decade later Sai Baba was attracting international attention; he still has millions of devotees worldwide, more than five years after his death on April 27, 2011. Just 5ft tall, with a startling Hendrix-style Afro, his smiling, saffron-clad figure can be seen on posters, photos and murals all over south India. Though his miraculous powers reportedly included the ability to materialize vibhuti, sacred ash, with curative properties, Sai Baba always claimed this to be unimportant, emphasizing instead his message of universal love. During his last years a number of ex-followers made serious accusations about coercion and even sexual abuse on the part of the guru himself, which have been vehemently denied.

Predictably, following the passing of the guru, there have been further rumours of corruption by the trustees of his organization, casting its future into some doubt. Whatever your feelings about the divinity of Sai Baba, the atmosphere around the ashram remains undeniably peaceful. You can find out more about the Satya Sai Organisation at saibaba.ws.

Puttaparthi Deep in the southwest of the state, amid the arid rocky hills bordering Karnataka, a thriving community has grown up around the once insignificant village of PUTTAPARTHY, birthplace of spiritual leader Sai Baba. Centring on Prasanthi Nilayam (Abode of Peace), the ashram where Sai Baba used to reside most of the year, the town has schools, a university, hospital and sports centre that offer up-to-date and free services to all. The ashram itself is a huge complex, with canteens, shops, a museum and library, and a vast assembly hall. The museum (daily 10am–noon) contains detailed displays on the world's major faiths and presents a positive Unitarian message.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN THE PUTTAPARTHY RAILWAY STATION, NAMED SRI SATYA SAI PRASANTI NILAYAM, IS 8KM FROM TOWN ON THE MAIN NORTH-SOUTH ROUTE BUT IT IS ONLY SERVED BY INFREQUENT PASSENGER TRAINS. FOR EXPRESS SERVICES GO TO DHARMAVARAM, 42KM AWAY, CONNECTED TO PUTTAPARTHY BY REGULAR BUSES.

By bus Buses from Bengaluru (every 30min–1hr; 4hr), Hyderabad (5–8 daily; 12–13hr), Tirupati (hourly; 6–7hr) and Chennai (8–12 daily; 8–9hr) stop at the stand outside the ashram entrance.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING MANY VISITORS STAY IN THE ASHRAM ACCOMMODATION, WHICH IS STRICTLY SEGREGATED BY SEX, EXCEPT FOR FAMILIES. COSTS ARE MINIMAL, AND ALTHOUGH YOU CAN'T BOOK IN ADVANCE, YOU CAN ENQUIRE ABOUT AVAILABILITY AT THE SECRETARY'S OFFICE (☎08555 287583). OUTSIDE THE ASHRAM, MANY OF THE HOTELS ARE OVERPRICED. THE ASHRAM ALSO HAS A CANTEEN OPEN TO NON-RESIDENTS.

Sai Towers Near the ashram entrance ☎saitowers.com/hotel. Charges a lot for its smallish fan and a/c rooms, except for some much cheaper singles, but has a good veg restaurant downstairs. ₹₹

Sree Parthi Gopuram Rd ☎07569111497. Modest hotel with a beautiful courtyard and interiors painted in ochre-yellow. There are many comfortable and good-value rooms and it is close to all the action. ₹₹

Taste of Tibet Lhasa Samadhi Rd ☎079896 78222. Delicious Tibetan momos (dumplings) and thukpas (thick noodle soups) are available at this popular and sociable haunt. ₹

< Back to Andhra Pradesh and Telangana

Shutterstock
HAVELOCK ISLAND

The Andaman Islands

South Andaman

Neil

Havelock

Long Island

Middle Andaman

Interview Island

North Andaman

Little Andaman

The Andaman Islands India's most remote state, the Andaman Islands are situated more than 1000km off the east coast in the middle of the Bay of Bengal, connected to the mainland by flights and ferries from Kolkata, Chennai and Visakhapatnam. Thickly covered by deep green tropical forest, the archipelago supports a profusion of wildlife, including some extremely rare species of bird, but the principal attraction for tourists lies in the beaches and the pristine reefs that ring most of the islands. Filled with colourful fish and kaleidoscopic corals, the crystal-clear waters of the Andaman Sea feature some of the world's richest and least spoilt marine reserves – perfect for snorkelling and scuba diving. Although parts of the archipelago are not open to visitors, the Andamans are still firmly on the tourist circuit.

For administrative purposes, the Andamans are grouped with the Nicobar Islands, 200km further south, which until 2018 were strictly off limits to all foreigners and most Indians. At the time of writing some were opening up but it was unclear if any paperwork was still required and there is precious little tourist infrastructure on any of them, so they are not covered here.

Approximately two hundred islands make up the Andaman group and nineteen the Nicobar. They are of varying size, the summits of a submarine mountain range stretching 755km from the Arakan Yoma chain in Burma to the fringes of Sumatra in the south. All but the most remote are populated in parts by indigenous tribes whose numbers have been slashed dramatically as a result of nineteenth-century European settlement and, more recently, rampant deforestation, now banned – at least in theory.

With the timber-extraction cash cow now largely tethered, tourism has gradually been replacing tree-felling as the main source of revenue on the Andamans. However, the extra visitor numbers are already beginning to overtax an already inadequate infrastructure, aggravating seasonal water shortages and sewage disposal problems. Given India's track record with tourism development, it's hard to be optimistic about how these issues will be managed. Consequently, it's no small mercy that plans to allow flights from Southeast Asia and even further afield to enter India at Port Blair seem to be on permanent hold, as the impact on this culturally and ecologically fragile region could be catastrophic.

The point of arrival for boats and planes is the small but busy capital, Port Blair in South Andaman, which holds almost half the total population. The only island to have fully developed a tourist infrastructure is Havelock, although its smaller neighbour Neil is heading in the same direction; these two are the only inhabited islands of Ritchie's Archipelago. The other places where foreigners can spend the night are on the large islands of Middle and North Andaman, connected to South Andaman by the Andaman Trunk Road (ATR), diminutive Long Island and remote Little Andaman, a long voyage to the south.

BEST TIME TO VISIT THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS ENJOY A CONSISTENTLY WARM CLIMATE, RARELY DEPARTING FROM THE PARAMETERS OF 22–32°C ALL YEAR ROUND, EVEN AT NIGHT, WHILE HUMIDITY NEVER DROPS BELOW SEVENTY PERCENT. THERE IS A LOT OF RAIN FROM MAY TO SEPTEMBER AND THEY ALSO CATCH THE NORTHEAST MONSOON IN THE AUTUMN, WITH OCCASIONALLY VIOLENT CYCLONES PRONE TO HIT DURING EITHER PERIOD, SO THE IDEAL MONTHS TO VISIT FROM A CLIMATIC PERSPECTIVE ARE DECEMBER TO APRIL. INCREASED TOURISM, HOWEVER, MEANS THAT DIWALI AND THE CHRISTMAS/NEW YEAR PERIODS ARE BUSY, WITH PRICES AT THEIR PEAK. NOT ALL ACCOMMODATION IN THE MORE REMOTE PARTS SUCH AS LITTLE ANDAMAN OPENS OUTSIDE PEAK SEASON.

Shutterstock

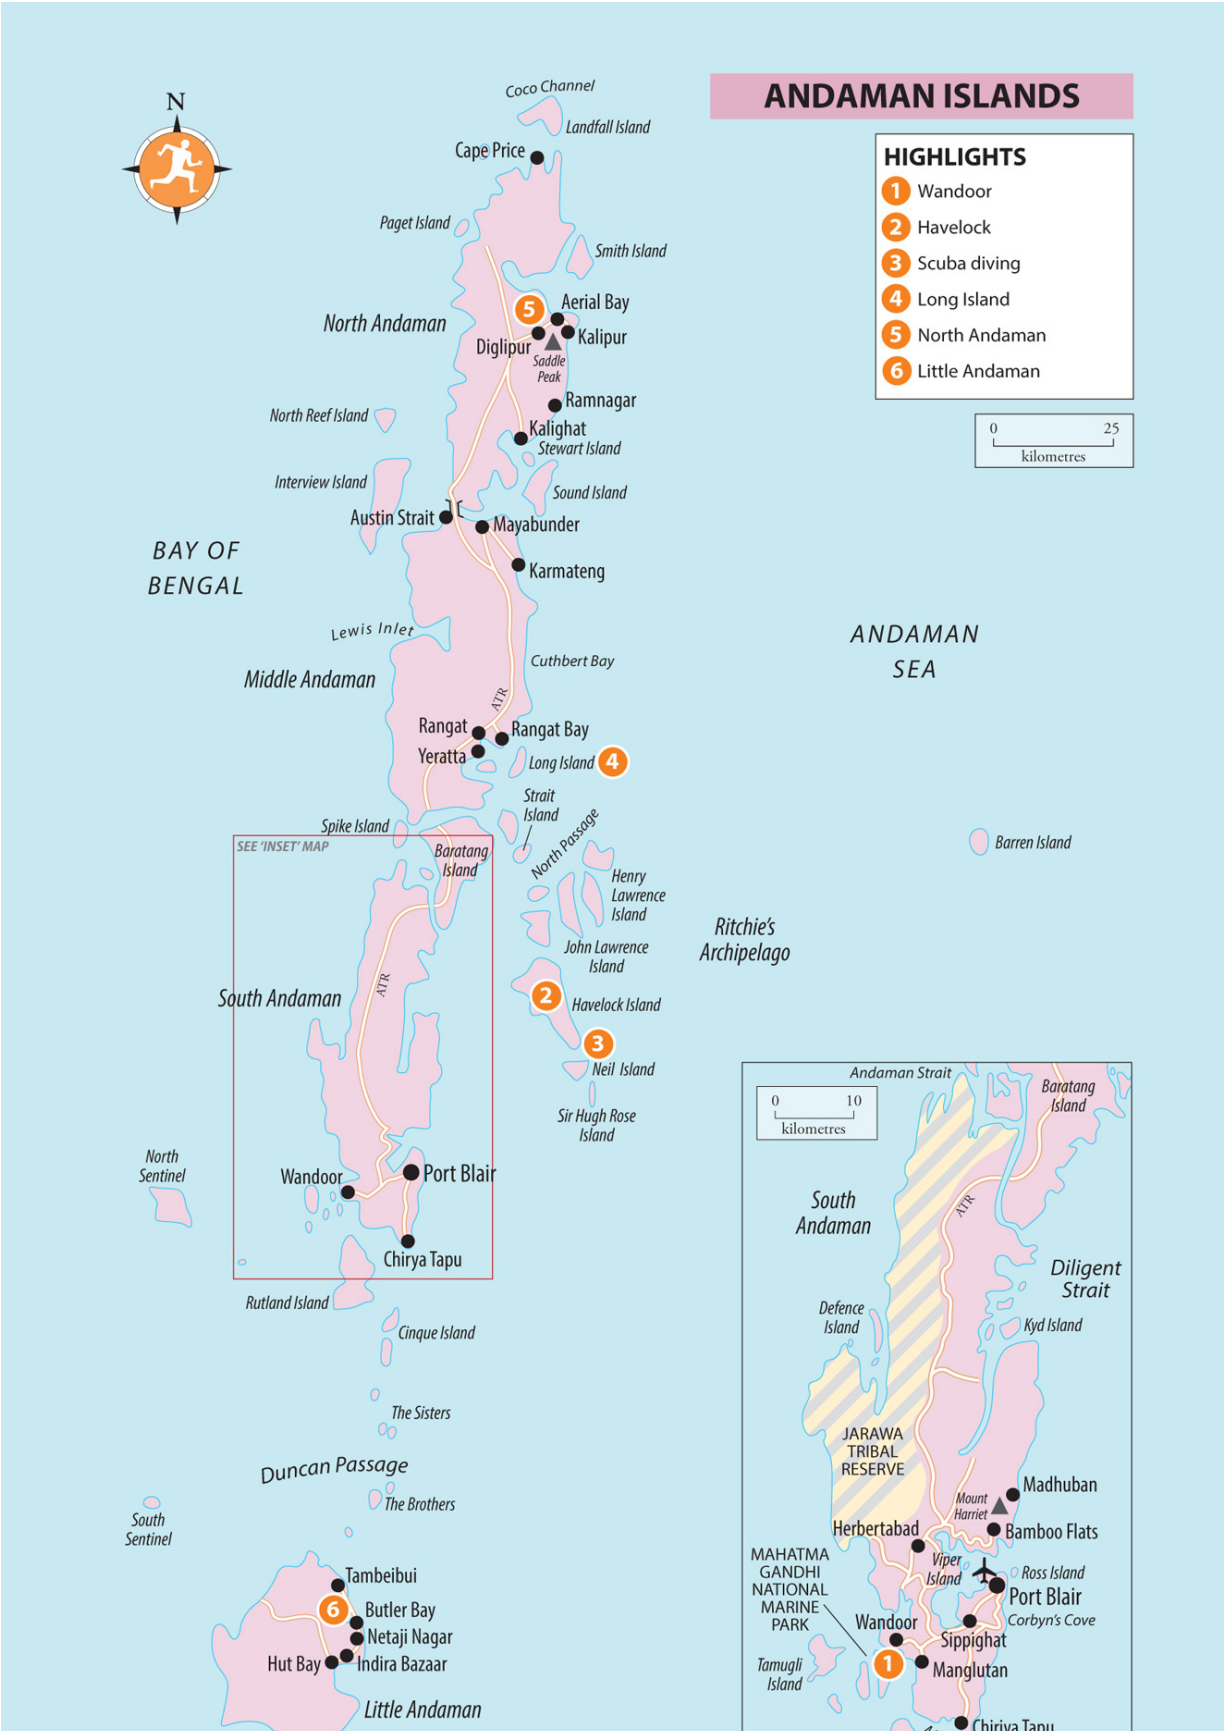

STATUE OF MAHATMA GANDHI IN PORT BLAIR

Highlights

- ① Wandoor The white sandy beach and islets of the Mahatma Gandhi National Marine Park are the most popular day-trip destination from the capital Port Blair, and a good appetizer for more remote parts.
- ② Havelock For the best diving and partying, head for Havelock, still relaxed and convivial despite being the most developed of the Andamans.
- ③ Scuba diving The Andamans' beautiful coral reefs teem with vivid underwater life.
- ④ Long Island This is the place to head to get an idea of what Havelock was like two decades ago and a chance to unwind in a friendly, laidback village.
- ⑤ North Andaman The long haul by bus or boat from Port Blair is worthwhile for the backdrop of thick rainforest and the dazzling tropical beaches when you arrive.
- ⑥ Little Andaman As very few travellers make it to the archipelago's southernmost island, you may well have the stunning forest-fringed beaches to yourself.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

The outlying islands are richest in natural beauty, with the beaches of Smith and the coral around Cinque of particular note. Such spots are not always easy to reach, as connections and transport can be erratic, frequently uncomfortable and severely limited.

Brief history The earliest mention of the Andaman and Nicobar islands is found in Ptolemy's geographical treatises of the second century AD. Other records from the Chinese Buddhist monk I'Tsing some five hundred years later and Arabian travellers who passed by in the ninth century depict the inhabitants as fierce and cannibalistic. It is unlikely, however, that the Andamanese were cannibals, as the most vivid reports of their ferocity were propagated by Malay pirates who held sway over the surrounding seas, and needed to keep looters well away from trade ships that passed between India, China and the Far East.

During the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, European missionaries and trading companies turned their attention to the islands with a view to colonization. A string of unsuccessful attempts to convert the Nicobaris to Christianity was made by the French, Dutch and Danish, all of whom were forced to abandon their plans in the face of repulsive diseases and a severe lack of food and water. Though the missionaries themselves seldom met with any hostility, several fleets of trading ships that tried to dock on the islands were captured and their crews killed by Nicobari people.

In 1777, the British Lieutenant Archibald Blair chose the South Andaman harbour now known as Port Blair as the site for a penal colony, although it was not successfully established until 1858, when political activists who had fuelled the Mutiny in 1857 were made to clear land and build their own prison. Out of 773 prisoners, 292 died, escaped or were hanged in the first two months. Many also lost their lives in attacks by Andamanese tribes who objected to forest clearance, but by 1864 the number of convicts had grown to three thousand. The prison continued to confine political prisoners until 1945 and still stands as Port Blair's prime "tourist attraction" In terms of the total number of convicts received, this renders the Andamans the largest penal colony in the entire British Empire..

During World War II the islands were occupied by the Japanese, who tortured and murdered hundreds of indigenous islanders suspected of collaborating with the British, and bombed the homes of the Jarawa tribe. British forces moved back in 1945, and at last abolished the penal settlement. After Partition, refugees – mostly low-caste Hindus from Bengal – were given land in Port Blair and North Andaman, where the forest was clear-felled to make room for rice paddy, cocoa plantations and new industries. Since 1951, the population has increased more than tenfold, further swollen by repatriated Tamils from Sri Lanka, ex-servicemen given land grants, economic migrants from poorer Indian states including thousands of Bihari labourers, and the legions of government employees packed off here on two-year “punishment postings”. This replanted population greatly outnumbers the Andamans’ indigenous people, who currently comprise around 0.5 percent of the total.

INFORMATION HEALTH IT’S WORTH THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS POINTING OUT THAT A MINORITY OF TRAVELLERS FALL SICK IN THE ANDAMANS. THE DENSE TREE COVER, MARSHY SWAMPS AND HIGH RAINFALL COMBINE TO PROVIDE THE PERFECT BREEDING GROUND FOR MOSQUITOES, AND MALARIA IS ENDEMIC IN EVEN THE MOST REMOTE SETTLEMENTS. SAND FLIES ARE ALSO FEROCIOUS IN CERTAIN PLACES AND TROPICAL ULCER INFECTIONS FROM SCRATCHING THE BITES ARE A FREQUENT HAZARD.

Restricted areas In 2018 the need to obtain a 30-day restricted area permit for the Andamans was scrapped and travellers can now stay for as long as their Indian visa is valid. Tribal areas are still off limits, although some of the Nicobar Islands can now be visited.

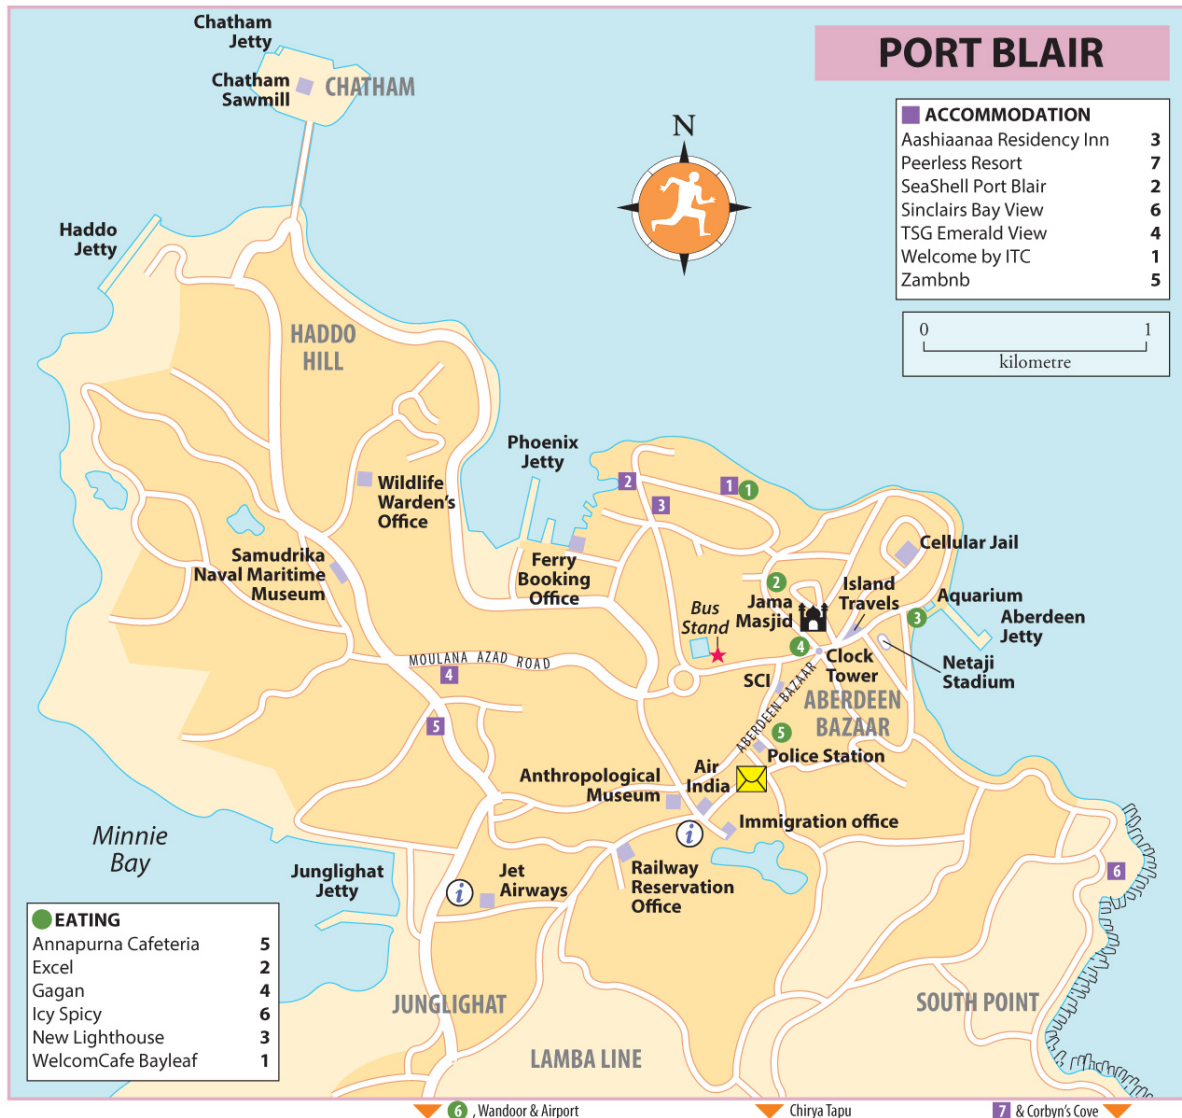

Time Despite being so far east, the islands run on Indian time, so the sun rises as early as 4.30am in summer and darkness falls soon after 5pm.

South Andaman South Andaman is the most heavily populated of the Andaman Islands – particularly around the capital, Port Blair – thanks in part to the drastic thinning of tree cover to make way for settlement. Foreign tourists can only visit its southern and east-central reaches – including the beaches at Corbyn’s Cove and Chiriya Tapu, the fine reefs on the western shores at Wandoor, 35km southwest of Port Blair, and the environs of Madhuban and Mount Harriet, on the east coast across the bay from the capital. With your own transport it’s easy to find your way along the narrow bumpy roads that connect small villages, weaving through forests and coconut fields, and skirting the swamps and rocky outcrops that form the coastline.

Port Blair An odd combination of refreshingly scenic hills and dull tin-roofed buildings tumbling towards the sea in the north, east and west, and petering out into fields and forests in the south, PORT BLAIR merits only a short stay. There’s little to see here – just the Cellular Jail and a few small museums – but as it’s the point of arrival for the islands and the place with the most facilities, you may well find yourself staying longer than you’d ideally want to. The hub of the town’s activities and facilities is the cluster of streets known as Aberdeen Bazaar.

Generally, street names are in short supply all over town, and are rarely used.

Cellular Jail GB Pant Rd • Jail and museum Tues–Sun 9am–noon & 2–5pm • charge, camera charge, video charge • Sound-and-light show Mon, Wed & Fri 7.15pm • charge Port Blair's only firm reminder of its atrocious past, the sturdy brick Cellular Jail (also known as Kaala Pani), overlooks the sea from a small rise in the northeast of town. Built between 1896 and 1905, this jail mainly imprisoned those who fought in India's struggle for freedom. Its tiny solitary cells were quite different and far worse than the dormitories in other prison blocks erected earlier.

Only three of the seven wings that originally radiated from the central tower now remain. Visitors can peer into the 3m by 3.5m cells and imagine the grim conditions in which the prisoners lived. Cells were dirty and poorly ventilated, drinking water was limited to two glasses per day, and the convicts were expected to wash in the rain as they worked clearing forests and building prison quarters. Food, brought from the mainland, was stored in vats where the rice and pulses became infested with worms; more than half the prison population died long before their twenty years' detention was up. Protests against conditions led to several hunger strikes, and frequent executions took place at the gallows that still stand in squat wooden shelters in the courtyards, in full view of the cells. The sound-and-light show outlines the history of the prison, and a small museum by the entrance gate exhibits lists of convicts, photographs and grim torture devices.

Anthropological Museum MG Rd • Tues–Sun 9am–1pm & 1.30–4.30pm • charge, camera charge On the south side of the centre, close to the Directorate of Tourism, the Anthropological Museum has exhibits on the Andaman and Nicobar tribes, including weapons, tools and rare photographs of the region's indigenous people taken in the 1960s. Among the most striking of these is a sequence featuring the Sentinelese, taken on April 26, 1967, when a party of Indian officials made the first contact with the tribe. After scaring the aborigines, the visitors marched into one of their hunting camps and made off with the bows, arrows and other artefacts now displayed in the museum.

Samudrika Naval Maritime Museum Haddo Rd, Delanipur • Tues–Sun 9am–noon & 2–5pm • charge To the northwest of town in the area known as Delanipur, the Samudrika Naval Maritime Museum is an excellent primer if you're heading off to more remote islands, with a superlative shell collection and informative displays on various aspects of local marine biology. One of the exhibits features a cross-section of the different corals you can expect to see on the Andamans' reefs, followed by a rundown of the various threats these fragile organisms face, from mangrove depletion and parasitic starfish to clumsy snorkellers.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE PORT BLAIR IS THE PORT BLAIR DEPARTURE POINT FOR ALL FLIGHTS AND FERRY CROSSINGS

TO THE INDIAN MAINLAND; IT IS ALSO THE HUB OF THE ANDAMANS' INTER-ISLAND BUS AND FERRY NETWORK. BOOKING TICKETS FOR BOATS (ESPECIALLY BACK TO CHENNAI, KOLKATA OR VISAKHAPATNAM) CAN BE TIME-CONSUMING, AND MANY TRAVELLERS ARE OBLIGED TO COME BACK HERE WELL BEFORE THEIR PERMIT EXPIRES TO MAKE RESERVATIONS BEFORE HEADING OFF TO MORE PLEASANT PARTS OF THE ISLANDS AGAIN. PORT BLAIR HAS AN EFFICIENT COMPUTERIZED SOUTHERN RAILWAYS RESERVATION OFFICE NEAR THE SECRETARIAT (MON–SAT 8.30AM–1PM & 2–4PM) – USEFUL FOR TRAVELLERS INTENDING TO CATCH ONWARD TRAINS FROM THEIR PORT OF ARRIVAL ON THE MAINLAND.

BY PLANE VEER SAVARKAR AIRPORT THE SMART AIRPORT TERMINAL IS LESS THAN 4KM SOUTH OF TOWN AT LAMBA LINE. TAXIS AND AUTO-RICKSHAWS ARE ON HAND FOR SHORT TRIPS INTO TOWN (₹70–100), WHILE MID- OR UPPER-RANGE HOTELS USUALLY HAVE TAXIS AND SHUTTLE BUSES TO COLLECT GUESTS. LOCAL BUSES ALSO FREQUENTLY PLY THE ROUTE TO TOWN FROM OUTSIDE THE SHOP ON THE FAR SIDE OF THE MAIN ROAD, BARELY 100M FROM THE TERMINAL BUILDING.

To and from the mainland Port Blair is currently served by flights from Chennai (5–6 daily; 2hr 10min–2hr 20min), Delhi (4 weekly; 3hr 45min), Kolkata (6 daily; 2hr 15min), Mumbai (1 daily; 3hr 25min) and Visakhapatnam (5 weekly; 2hr). Flights at peak times like Diwali, Christmas and New Year through to February can be heavily subscribed, so book early. These periods also see prices soar as high as ₹20,000 one way; at other times they can be as low as ₹5000. The Air India office (☎03192 233108) is diagonally opposite the tourist office. SpiceJet and Go Air can only be booked online or through travel agents such as the efficient Island Travels (Mon–Sat 9am–6pm; ☎03192 233034, www.andamanisland.in), between the clock tower and marina.

Inter-island services There is an inexpensive (₹2500–4000) helicopter service connecting Port Blair with Havelock, Diglipur and Little Andaman but tourists can only book tickets one day in advance and seats are often taken up by officials. Flights are also prone to cancellation due to bad weather and there is a 6kg baggage limit. Contact the Secretariat in Port Blair to check (☎03192 230093).

NATIVE PEOPLE OF THE ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS QUITE WHERE THE INDIGENOUS POPULATION OF THE ANDAMAN AND NICOBAR ISLANDS ORIGINALLY CAME FROM IS A PUZZLE THAT HAS PREOCCUPIED ANTHROPOLOGISTS SINCE ALFRED RADCLIFFE-BROWN CONDUCTED HIS FAMOUS FIELDWORK AMONG THE ANDAMANES AT THE BEGINNING OF THE TWENTIETH CENTURY. ASIAN-LOOKING GROUPS SUCH AS THE SHOMPEN MAY HAVE MIGRATED HERE FROM THE EAST AND NORTH WHEN THE ISLANDS WERE CONNECTED TO BURMA, OR THE SEA WAS SUFFICIENTLY SHALLOW TO ALLOW TRANSPORT BY CANOE, BUT THIS DOESN'T EXPLAIN THE ORIGINS OF THE BLACK POPULATIONS, WHOSE APPEARANCE SUGGESTS AFRICAN ROOTS.

The survival of the islands' first inhabitants has long been threatened by traders and colonizers, who introduced disease and destroyed their territories through widespread tree-felling. Thousands also died from addiction to the alcohol and opium that the Chinese, Japanese and British exchanged for valuable shells. Many have had their populations decimated, while others like the Nicobarese have assimilated to modern culture, often adopting Christianity. The indigenous inhabitants of the Andamans, divided into eramtaga (those living in the jungle) and ar-yuato (those living on the coast), traditionally subsisted as hunter-gatherers, living on fish, turtles, turtle eggs, pigs, fruit, honey and roots. For more information on the islands' original inhabitants, visit Survival International's website, 🌐survival-international.org.

THE GREAT ANDAMANES ALTHOUGH THEY COMPRISED THE LARGEST GROUP WHEN THE ISLANDS WERE FIRST

COLONIZED, ONLY AROUND FIFTY GREAT ANDAMANES NOW SURVIVE. IN THE 1860S, THE REV HENRY CORBYN SET UP A “HOME” FOR THE TRIBE TO LEARN ENGLISH ON ROSS ISLAND, INSISTING THAT THEY WEAR CLOTHES AND ATTEND READING AND WRITING CLASSES. FIVE CHILDREN AND THREE ADULTS FROM CORBYN’S SCHOOL WERE TAKEN TO CALCUTTA IN 1864, WHERE THEY WERE SHOWN AROUND THE SIGHTS BUT TREATED MORE AS CURIOSITIES THEMSELVES. WITHIN THREE YEARS, ALMOST THE ENTIRE POPULATION HAD DIED, VICTIMS OF EITHER INTRODUCED DISEASES OR ADDICTION. IN RECENT YEARS THE SURVIVING GREAT ANDAMANES WERE FORCIBLY SETTLED ON STRAIT ISLAND, NORTH OF SOUTH ANDAMAN, AS A “BREEDING CENTRE”, WHERE THEY WERE FORCED TO RELY ON THE INDIAN AUTHORITIES FOR FOOD AND SHELTER. SADLY, THE LAST SPEAKER OF BO, ONE OF THE OLDEST ANDAMANES LANGUAGES, DIED IN 2010.

THE JARAWAS THE JARAWAS, WHO WERE SHIFTED FROM THEIR ORIGINAL HOMES WHEN LAND WAS CLEARED TO BUILD PORT BLAIR, CURRENTLY NUMBER AROUND THREE HUNDRED AND LIVE ON THE REMOTE WESTERN COASTS OF MIDDLE AND SOUTH ANDAMAN. THEY ARE HEMMED IN BY THE ANDAMAN TRUNK ROAD (ATR), WHICH SINCE THE 1970S HAS CUT THEM OFF FROM HUNTING GROUNDS AND FRESHWATER SUPPLIES. DURING THE 1980S AND 1990S, ENCROACHMENTS ON THEIR LAND BY LOGGERS, ROAD BUILDERS AND SETTLERS MET WITH FIERCE RESISTANCE, AND DOZENS, POSSIBLY HUNDREDS, OF PEOPLE DIED IN SKIRMISHES, MOSTLY ON OR NEAR THE ATR. SOME MORE AMICABLE CONTACT BETWEEN SETTLERS AND TRIBALS WAS SUBSEQUENTLY MADE THROUGH GIFT EXCHANGES AT EACH FULL MOON, ALTHOUGH THE INITIATIVE WAS LATER CANCELLED. THESE MEETINGS NEVERTHELESS LED TO SOME JARAWAS BECOMING CURIOUS ABOUT WHAT “CIVILIZATION” HAD TO OFFER, AND THEY STARTED TO HOLD THEIR HANDS OUT TO PASSING VEHICLES AND EVEN VISITING INDIAN SETTLEMENTS NEAR THEIR TERRITORY.

DESPITE THE AUTHORITIES TRYING TO MINIMIZE CONTACT, IT IS STILL COMMON FOR JARAWAS TO APPROACH BUSES, AND SOME PRIVATE VEHICLES IGNORE THE RULES AND STOP FOR PHOTO SHOTS. THE GOVERNMENT HAS INCREASED JARAWA LAND BY 180 SQUARE KILOMETRES, BUT LODGED AN ONGOING APPEAL OVER A 2002 INDIAN SUPREME COURT ORDER TO CLOSE THE ATR – A RULING MADE FOLLOWING PROTESTS BY INTERNATIONAL PRESSURE GROUPS SUCH AS SURVIVAL INTERNATIONAL. A DISTURBING LEGAL REVERSAL MADE EARLY IN 2013 HAS ALSO ONCE AGAIN ALLOWED “HUMAN SAFARIS” TO TAKE PLACE.

THE ONGE RELATIONS WITH THE ONGE, WHO CALL THEMSELVES THE GAUBOLAMBE, HAVE BEEN RELATIVELY PEACEFUL. DISTINGUISHED BY THEIR WHITE-CLAY AND OCHRE BODY PAINT, THEY CONTINUE TO LIVE IN COMMUNAL SHELTERS AND CONSTRUCT TEMPORARY THATCHED HUTS ON LITTLE ANDAMAN. THE REMAINING POPULATION OF JUST UNDER ONE HUNDRED RETAIN THEIR TRADITIONAL WAY OF LIFE ON TWO SMALL RESERVES. CONTACT WITH OUTSIDERS IS LIMITED TO AN OCCASIONAL TRIP INTO TOWN TO PURCHASE LIQUOR, AND VISITS FROM RARE PARTIES OF ANTHROPOLOGISTS. THE RESERVES ARE STRICTLY OFF-LIMITS TO FOREIGNERS, BUT YOU CAN LEARN ABOUT THE ONGE’S TRADITIONAL HUNTING PRACTICES, BELIEFS AND RITUALS IN VISHVAJIT PANDYA’S WONDERFUL ETHNOGRAPHIC STUDY, ABOVE THE FOREST.

THE NICOBARESE AND OTHER TRIBES ON THE NICOBAR ISLANDS, THE MOST ASSIMILATED TRIBE, THE NICOBARESE, ARE OF MONGOLOID DESCENT AND NUMBER WELL OVER TWENTY THOUSAND. THEY LIVE IN VILLAGES, RULED BY A HEADMAN, AND HAVE LARGELY CORDIAL RELATIONS WITH THE INDIAN SETTLERS. BY CONTRAST, ONLY VERY LIMITED CONTACT IS EVER HAD WITH THE ISOLATED SHOMPEN TRIBE OF GREAT NICOBAR, WHOSE

POPULATION OF AROUND FOUR HUNDRED MANAGE TO LEAD A TRADITIONAL HUNTING-AND-GATHERING EXISTENCE. THE MOST ELUSIVE TRIBE OF ALL, THE SENTINELESE, LIVE ON NORTH SENTINEL ISLAND WEST OF SOUTH ANDAMAN. FOLLOWING THE FIRST ENCOUNTER WITH INDIAN SETTLERS IN 1967, SOME CONTACT WAS MADE WITH THEM IN 1990, AFTER A TEAM PUT TOGETHER BY THE LOCAL ADMINISTRATION LEFT GIFTS ON THE BEACHES EVERY MONTH FOR TWO YEARS, BUT SUBSEQUENT VISITS HAVE INVARIABLY ENDED IN A HAIL OF ARROWS AND A SELF-APPOINTED AMERICAN MISSIONARY MADE THE NEWS BY GETTING KILLED AFTER LANDING THERE IN LATE 2018. SINCE THE EARLY 1990S, THE AUTHORITIES HAVE EFFECTIVELY GIVEN UP TRYING TO CONTACT THE SENTINELESE, WHO ARE ESTIMATED TO NUMBER AROUND ONE HUNDRED. FLYING IN OR OUT OF PORT BLAIR, YOU PASS ABOVE THEIR ISLAND, RINGED BY A SPECTACULAR CORAL REEF. IT'S REASSURING TO THINK THAT THE PEOPLE SITTING AT THE BOTTOM OF THE PLUMES OF SMOKE DRIFTING UP FROM THE FOREST CANOPY STILL MANAGE TO RESIST CONTACT WITH THE OUTSIDE WORLD.

BY BOAT JETTIES PORT BLAIR HAS TWO MAIN JETTIES: BOATS FROM THE MAINLAND MOOR AT HADDO JETTY, NEARLY 2KM NORTHWEST OF PHOENIX JETTY, ARRIVAL POINT FOR INTER-ISLAND FERRIES. THE DIRECTOR OF SHIPPING SERVICES (DSS; ☎03192 245555) AT PHOENIX JETTY HAS THE LATEST INFORMATION ON BOATS AND FERRIES, BUT YOU CAN ALSO CHECK DETAILS OF FORTHCOMING DEPARTURES IN THE SHIPPING NEWS COLUMN OF THE LOCAL NEWSPAPER, THE DAILY TELEGRAMS. BOATS CAN GET CRAMPED AND UNCOMFORTABLE, SOMETIMES LACKING SHADE OUTSIDE AND SPACE INSIDE; TAKE ADEQUATE SUPPLIES OF FOOD AND WATER, AS MINIMAL SUSTENANCE IS SOLD ON BOARD.

To and from the mainland Services to and from Chennai can be relied upon to leave in each direction once every week to ten days, while those to and from Kolkata sail roughly every two weeks; boats to and from Visakhapatnam are altogether more erratic, averaging once a month in each direction – call the Shipping Office there on 0891 256 5597 for more information. Although much cheaper than flying (from ₹2500), sea crossings are long (3–5 days), uncomfortable and often delayed by bad conditions. Tickets for all three mainland ports (Chennai, Kolkata and Visakhapatnam) are handled by the DSS and go on sale a week in advance of departure at the allotted booths within the Computerized Reservation Centre (Mon–Fri 9am–1pm & 2–4pm, Sat 9am–noon) at Phoenix Jetty. When they do go on sale, it's wise to be there to join the fray ahead of time. Make sure you get a ticket before your permit expires, as you will need to show it to get the fifteen-day extension.

Inter-island services Most of the islands open to foreign tourists are accessible by government-run boats from Phoenix Jetty. Details of sailings to and from Port Blair for the following two to five days are posted in the Daily Telegrams newspaper. More details of boat services between destinations outside the capital appear in the relevant accounts of this guide. The only way to guarantee a passage is to book tickets in advance at the Inter-Island booths in the Computerized Reservation Centre at Phoenix Jetty, though any unsold tickets are issued prior to departure on the quay. You can avoid these scrums by paying an agent such as Island Travels to get a ticket for you. Fares are still reasonable, even allowing for the two-tier pricing system for islanders and non-islanders: Havelock, for example, costs ₹850, Little Andaman just ₹500. Havelock and Neil also have a smart private catamaran service, the Makruzz (1–2 daily; 2hr; from ₹1400; www.makruzz.com), as well as two upmarket private Green Ocean ferries (1 daily; 2hr 30min; from ₹1050; www.greenoceancruise.com).

Destinations Aerial Bay on North Andaman (3 weekly; 8–9hr); Havelock (3–4 daily; 2hr–3hr 30min); Hut Bay on Little Andaman (5–6 weekly; 6–9hr); Long Island (4 weekly; 5–6hr); Neil (2–3 daily; 2hr); Rangat on Middle Andaman (4 weekly; 6–7hr).

BY BUS BUSES CONNECT PORT BLAIR WITH MOST OF THE MAJOR SETTLEMENTS ON MIDDLE AND NORTH ANDAMAN VIA THE ANDAMAN TRUNK ROAD. FROM THE BUS STAND IN

THE CENTRE OF TOWN, THERE ARE GOVERNMENT SERVICES TO RANGAT (3 DAILY; 6HR), MAYABUNDER (2 DAILY; 9HR) AND DIGLIPUR (2 DAILY; 11HR). SEVERAL PRIVATE COMPANIES, INCLUDING ANANDA (☎03192 233252), WHO HAVE AN OFFICE NEAR THE BUS STAND, RUN DELUXE OR VIDEO COACH SERVICES TO THE SAME DESTINATIONS; THESE LEAVE FROM OUTSIDE THE BUS STAND BETWEEN 5AM AND 10AM. TICKETS FOR BOTH CATEGORIES OF SERVICE ARE CHEAP AT ₹200–400.

GETTING AROUND BY TAXI AND AUTO-RICKSHAW TAXIS GATHER OPPOSITE THE BUS STAND IN CENTRAL PORT BLAIR. THEY ALL HAVE METERS AND THERE'S A PREPAID BOOTH, BUT NEGOTIATING THE PRICE BEFORE LEAVING IS THE USUAL PRACTICE. EXPECT TO PAY AT LEAST ₹150 FOR A TRIP FROM THE CENTRE OF TOWN TO CORBYN'S COVE; AUTO-RICKSHAWS TRY TO CHARGE JUST AS MUCH AS TAXIS BUT A RIDE WITHIN TOWN SHOULDN'T COST MORE THAN ₹60.

By bus Local buses run from the bus stand frequently to Wandoor (hourly) and less so to Chiriyā Tapu (every 2hr), so they can be used for day-trips.

By motorbike It's pleasant to rent a motorbike or scooter but there are few outlets – try Green Island Tours & Travels (☎03192 230226), near the clock tower in Aberdeen Bazaar. You can also contact Saro Tours and Travels near the municipal Complex (☎99332 91466) The only petrol pumps are on the crossroads west of the bus stand and on the airport road.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST INFORMATION THE COUNTER AT THE AIRPORT (☎03192 232414) HANDS OUT A USEFUL GENERAL BROCHURE, BUT TRYING TO GET MORE THAN BASIC TOUR AND HOTEL INFORMATION FROM THE MAIN A&N DIRECTORATE OF TOURISM OFFICE (MON–SAT 8AM–8PM; ☎03192 232747, 🌐ANDAMANTOURISM.GOV.IN), SITUATED ON A HILL SOUTH OF ABERDEEN BAZAAR, CAN BE FRUSTRATING. FURTHER SOUTHWEST ON JUNGLIGHT MAIN RD, THE INCREDIBLE INDIA OFFICE (MON–FRI 8.30AM–5PM; ☎03192 233006, 🌐INCREDIBLEINDIA.ORG) IS NOT MUCH BETTER.

Permits If you intend to visit Interview Island, you must first obtain a free permit from the Chief Wildlife Warden, whose office (☎03192 233270) is next to the zoo in Haddo.

Hospital The main hospital for the whole archipelago is GB Pant Hospital on GB Pant Rd (☎03192 232102).

Services It's wise to stock up on rupees in Port Blair as the banks and agencies here are the only places on the islands officially allowed to exchange cash. There are several ATMs dotted around the town (and now a couple on Havelock too).

Tours A couple of smart private tourist boats such as the MV Mark Marina (☎96795 38188) conduct various harbour cruises (2–7hr; ₹300–1200) from Phoenix Jetty around the harbour, taking in North Bay, Viper and Ross islands.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Port Blair boasts numerous places to stay in most budget ranges. The abundance of options means availability is only an issue around Christmas and New Year, when prices are also hiked; they drop during the monsoon season.

Aashiaanaa Residency Inn Marine Hill ✉shads_maria@hotmail.com. An attractive ochre-coloured building, very conveniently located for Phoenix Jetty. There is a selection of decent-sized, mostly attached rooms, some with balconies. ₹

Peerless Resort Corbyn's Cove 🌐peerlesshotels.co.in. The setting is lovely, with a white-sand beach opposite, and gardens of palms, jasmine and bougainvillea, but the balconied a/c rooms and cottages are a bit tatty for the prices they charge. There's a bar and mid-priced restaurant with an average evening buffet. ₹₹₹

★SeaShell Port Blair Marine Hill 🌐seashellhotels.net. Excellent modern hotel, suitable for business travellers and tourists alike. Spacious, beautifully furnished and decorated rooms with great showers and flat-screen TVs. The more expensive rooms have balconies overlooking the sea. ₹₹₹₹

Sinclair's Bay View On the coast road to Corbyn's Cove 🌐sinclairshotels.com. Cliff-top hotel offering spotless carpeted rooms with balconies, large bathrooms and dramatic views, as well as a much-improved restaurant. ₹₹₹₹

TSG Emerald View 25 Moulana Azad Rd 📍tsgresorts.in/emerald-view. Smart mid-range place with a sparkling new lobby and spacious, colourfully furnished a/c rooms, boasting all mod cons. Also has a decent restaurant. ₹₹₹

★Welcome by ITC Marine Hill 📍itshotels.com. Port Blair's swishest hotel is elegant and airy with polished dark wood. All rooms have carpets and balconies overlooking Phoenix Jetty. There's a good restaurant, gardens and an open-air seawater swimming pool. Check online for deals. ₹₹₹₹

Zamnb Prem Nagar 📍facebook.com/AndamanBedandBreakfast. Handy for the airport or Phoenix Jetty, this smart modern place has spacious and colourfully-decorated rooms. Breakfast included. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Annapurna Cafeteria Aberdeen Bazaar, towards the post office 📍03192 234199. Port Blair's best south-Indian joint, serving a range of huge crispy dosas, plus north Indian and Chinese meals, delicious coffee and wonderful pongal at breakfast. The lunchtime thalis are also good. ₹

Excel RP Rd 📍89009 12600. Quirky and clean place serving tasty dishes such as tava fish and a wide choice of rice dishes to accompany your seafood. Also offers a range of vegan dishes. ₹₹

Gagan Aberdeen Bazaar, opposite the clock tower 📍03192 212140. Simple canteen with a decent range of north and south Indian veg and non-veg dishes including tasty fried fish. ₹

Icy Spicy Island Arcade, Junglighat 📍icyspicy.in. Gleaming modern basement dining hall, which serves a range of tasty fast food such as chaat, as well as South Indian favourites and pizza. ₹

★New Lighthouse Near Aberdeen Jetty 📍03192 237356. Popular place with outdoor seating and an airy rooftop, where you can catch the sea breeze while feasting on some of the cheapest lobster and other seafood such as crabmeat and local fish in the Andamans. ₹₹

WelcomCafe Bayleaf Welcome by ITC, Marine Hill 📍03192 234101. À la carte main courses or, when demand allows, a reasonable dinner buffet for a reasonable price can be enjoyed in the airy open restaurant with great bay views. Service can be a bit lax for its class. The adjacent Swizzle Bar is a decent bet for a drink. Cooking classes are also available here and can be booked in advance. ₹₹₹

Around Port Blair At some point, you're almost certain to find yourself killing time in Port Blair, waiting for boats to show up or tickets to go on sale. Rather than wasting days in town, it's worth exploring the coast of South Andaman which, although far more densely populated than other islands in the archipelago, holds a handful of easily accessible beauty spots and historic sites. Among the latter, the ruined colonial monuments on Viper and Ross islands can be reached on daily harbour cruises or regular ferries from the capital. For beaches, head to nearby Corbyn's Cove, or cross South Andaman to reach the more pleasingly secluded Chiriyá Tapu, which is easily accessible on a day-trip if you rent a motorbike or scooter, and is the jumping-off point for Cinque. By far the most rewarding way to spend a day out of town, however, is to catch the tourist boat from Wandoor to Jolly Buoy or Red Skin islands in the Mahatma Gandhi National Marine Park opposite, which boasts some of the Andamans' best snorkelling. The other area worth visiting is Mount Harriet and Madhuban on the central part of South Andaman, north across the bay from Port Blair.

A WALK ON THE WET SIDE ONE NEW ACTIVITY THAT HAS STARTED UP IN RECENT YEARS IS SEA WALKING AT NORTH BAY. IN THIS RATHER PECULIAR PIECE OF FUN, PEOPLE ARE FITTED INTO A LARGE AND RATHER UNWIELDY SPACE-TYPE HELMET, WHICH IS CONNECTED TO A NON-PRESSURIZED OXYGEN SOURCE ON THE SURFACE, AND LOWERED DOWN FOR A STROLL AROUND THE SEABED AT A DEPTH OF FIVE TO EIGHT METRES. A SEA WALK OF UP TO TWENTY MINUTES COSTS FROM ₹3500 AND CAN BE

ORGANIZED THROUGH SEA LINK ADVENTURES AT 43
MA RD, PHOENIX BAY (☎96795 78661).

Viper Island First stop on the harbour cruises from Port Blair is generally Viper Island, named not after the many snakes that doubtless inhabit its tangled tropical undergrowth, but a nineteenth-century merchant vessel that ran aground on it during the early years of the colony. Lying a short way off Haddo Jetty, it served as an isolation zone for the main prison, where escapees and other convicts were sent to be punished. Whipping posts and crumbling walls, reached from the jetty via a winding brick path, remain as relics of a torture area, while occupying the site's most prominent position are the original gallows.

Ross Island Charge • Several daily boats from Phoenix Jetty • Sound-and-light show including government boat between 8.30am–4pm except Wednesdays; charge Eerie decaying colonial remains are to be found on Ross Island, at the entrance to Port Blair harbour, where the British sited their first penal settlement in the Andamans. Originally cleared by convicts wearing iron fetters, Ross witnessed some of the most brutal excesses of British colonial history, and was the source of the prison's infamy as Kalapani, or Black Water. Of the many convicts transported here, distinguished by their branded foreheads, the majority perished from disease or torture before the clearance of the island was completed in 1860. Thereafter, it served briefly as the site of Rev Henry Corbyn's Andaman Home – a prison camp created with the intention of “civilizing” the local tribespeople – and then the headquarters of the revamped penal colony before the British were forced to evacuate by the Japanese entry into World War II. Little more than the hilltop Anglican church, with its weed-infested graveyard, has survived the onslaught of tropical creepers and vines. There is a sound-and-light show every evening, but only in Hindi.

Corbyn's Cove The best beach within easy reach of the capital lies 6km southeast, at Corbyn's Cove, a small arc of smooth white sand backed by a swaying curtain of palms. There's a large hotel here, Peerless Resort, but the water isn't particularly clear, and bear in mind that lying around scantily-clothed may bring you considerable attention from crowds of local workers.

Chiriyā Tapu For a little isolation, take a bus 30km south of Port Blair to Chiriyā Tapu (“Bird Island”), at the tip of South Andaman. The walkable track running beyond this small fishing village leads through thick jungle overhung with twisting creepers to a large bay, where swamps give way to shell-strewn beaches. Other than at lunchtime, when it often receives a deluge of bus parties, the beach offers plenty of peace and quiet, forest walks on the woodcutters’ trails winding inland and easy access to an inshore reef. However, the water here is nowhere near as clear as at outlying spots in the archipelago.

Cinque Island Cinque, two hours south of Chiriyā Tapu, actually comprises two islets, joined by a spectacular sand isthmus with shallow water either side that covers it completely at high tide. The main incentive to come here is the superb diving and snorkelling around the reefs. However, heaps of dead coral on the beach attest to damage wreaked by the Indian navy during the construction of the swish “cottages” overlooking the beach. Rumour has it that these were built for the visit of a Thai VIP in 1996, but local government officials now use them as bolt holes from Port Blair.

Although there are no ferries to Cinque, it is possible to charter a dinghy and boatman for around ₹3000 per day from Chiriyā Tapu. Foreigners are not allowed to stay the night.

Wandoor Much the most popular excursion from Port Blair is to WANDOOR, 30km southwest. The long white beach here is littered with the dry, twisted trunks of trees torn up and flung down by annual cyclones. It’s fringed not with palms but with dense forest teeming with birdlife. You should only snorkel here at high tide, as the coral is easily damaged when the waters are shallow.

ACCOMMODATION SEA PRINCESS BEACH RESORT WANDOOR
500M BACK FROM THE CAR PARK
SEAPRINCESSANDAMAN.COM. THIS SMART RESORT, SET IN NICELY LANDSCAPED GROUNDS, OFFERS LUXURY COTTAGES,

ROOMS AND SUITES. THE RESTAURANT IS ALSO VERY PLEASANT. ₹₹₹₹

The Mahatma Gandhi National Marine Park Park entry charge, camera charge • Boats from Wandoor Tues–Sun 10am; charge Most people take a cruise around the fifteen islets comprising the Mahatma Gandhi National Marine Park, which boasts one of the richest coral reefs in the region. From the jetty at Wandoor, the boats chug through broad creeks lined with dense mangrove swamps and pristine forest to either Red Skin Island (₹300) or, more commonly, Jolly Buoy Island (₹650). The latter, an idyllic deserted island, boasts an immaculate shell-sand beach ringed by a bank of superb coral. The catch is that the boat only stops for around an hour, which isn't nearly enough time to explore the shore and reef. While snorkelling off the edges of the reef, beware of strong currents.

Mount Harriet and Madhuban Park entry charge • Passenger ferries from Chatham Jetty every 30min, vehicle ferries from Phoenix Jetty 8 daily The richly forested slopes of Mount Harriet make for some decent exercise and can easily be visited on a day-trip from Port Blair. From the ferry landing at Bamboo Flats, it's a pleasant 7km stroll east along the coast and north up a path through trees hung with thick vines and creepers to the 365m summit, which affords fine views back across the bay. An intermittent bus service runs between Bamboo Flats and Hope Town, where the uphill path starts, and saves you the 3km coastal stretch. Alternatively, jeeps and taxis are available to take you all the way to the top, but they charge at least ₹500. The Mount Harriet National Park checkpoint is on the road so you probably won't be asked if you take the path. It's 2.5km from the checkpoint up to the resthouse and viewing tower at the summit. If you have strong legs, you can reach the small settlement of Madhuban on the coast northeast of the mountain by the 16km round route via Kala Patthar (Black Rock) and back via the coast. There is a decent beach at Madhuban but not much else.

Neil Tiny, triangular-shaped Neil (also known as Shaheed Dweep) is the most southerly inhabited island of Ritchie's Archipelago, barely two hours northeast of Port Blair on a fast ferry. The source of much of the capital's fresh fruit and vegetables, its fertile centre, ringed by a curtain of stately tropical trees, comprises vivid patches of green paddy dotted with small farmsteads and banana plantations. The beaches are mediocre by the Andamans' standards but worth a day or two en route to or from Havelock and, as it is far less developed with little more than ten accommodation options, some visitors prefer it to its busier neighbour for more extended stays.

Neil boasts five beaches, all of them within easy cycling distance of the small bazaar just up the lane from the jetty. The best place to swim is Neil Kendra, a gently curving bay of white sand on the north coast which straddles the jetty and is scattered with picturesque wooden fishing boats. This blends into Bharatpur to the east and Lakshmanpur, which continues for nearly 3km west: to get to Lakshmanpur by road, head right when the road from the jetty meets the bazaar and follow it for around twenty minutes until it dwindles into a surfaced track, then take a right. Wrapped around the headland, the beach is a broad spur of white-shell sand, with shallow water offering good snorkelling, although footing is difficult when entering the water at any time other than high tide.

Exposed to the open sea and thus prone to higher tides, Sitapur beach, 6km southeast of Neil Kendra, is also appealing and has the advantage of a sandy bottom extending into the sea. The ride there across Neil's central paddy land is pleasant, but there are no facilities beyond the two new guesthouses on intermediate Ram Nagar beach.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BOAT NEIL IS WELL NEIL CONNECTED WITH HAVELOCK (2–4 DAILY; 1HR 30MIN) AND PORT BLAIR (2–4 DAILY; 2HR), PLUS THERE ARE FOUR WEEKLY FERRIES TO LONG ISLAND (4HR 30MIN) AND RANGAT (5HR 30MIN–6HR).

GETTING AROUND BY BUS AN HOURLY BUS RUNS BETWEEN THE BAZAAR AND SITAPUR. YOU CAN ALSO RENT BICYCLES
(₹60/DAY) OR MOPEDS (₹300/DAY) AT GUESTHOUSES OR STALLS IN THE MARKET.

ACCOMMODATION BREAKWATER RAM NAGAR ☎95318 52332.
EVER-EXPANDING GROUP OF MOSTLY ATTACHED BAMBOO
HUTS, PLUS SOME LARGER CONCRETE ROOMS, ARRANGED AROUND A PATCH OF OPEN LAND BEHIND THE BEACH. THE RESTAURANT DOES GOOD FOOD AND IS A SOCIABLE GATHERING PLACE. NO WI-FI. ₹

★Emerald Gecko Sitapur 🌐emerald-gecko.com. Great offshoot of the Havelock favourite, with large and sturdy bungalow-style and two-storey bamboo huts, plus a sociable and fine-quality restaurant. No TV nor wi-fi. ₹

Royal Neil Resort Ramnagar 🌐royalneilresort.com This pet-friendly place right on the beach offers a range of accommodation as well as breakfast by the sea and barbeque with the fresh catch of the day. ₹₹

SeaShell Lakshmanpur 🌐seashellhotels.net. The latest venture from the SeaShell group is by far Neil's most upmarket resort, with superbly furnished thatched cottages set in lush, landscaped gardens. Look for online deals in advance. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Silver Sand Beach Resort near Bharatpur Beach, Neil Kendra 03192282530. Tucked along the path behind the beach, this welcoming place has rustic interiors with spacious bathrooms, as well as a good restaurant. Complimentary breakfast. ₹₹₹

EATING BLUE SEA RAM NAGAR BEACH 94760 13330. THIS JOINT JUST BACK FROM THE BEACH OFFERS KEENLY PRICED SEAFOOD, PLUS PASTA, INDIAN DISHES AND FILLING SIZZLERS. ₹

Garden View Near Sitapur 99332 21552. Friendly family restaurant in a field just beside the main road, which does fresh fish curry, as well as a lot of veggie and some chicken dishes. ₹

★Gyan Garden 400m west of the bazaar 99332 93078. Far and away the best place to eat, this delightful and welcoming garden restaurant cooks fresh fish and home-grown veg dishes are a speciality. ₹

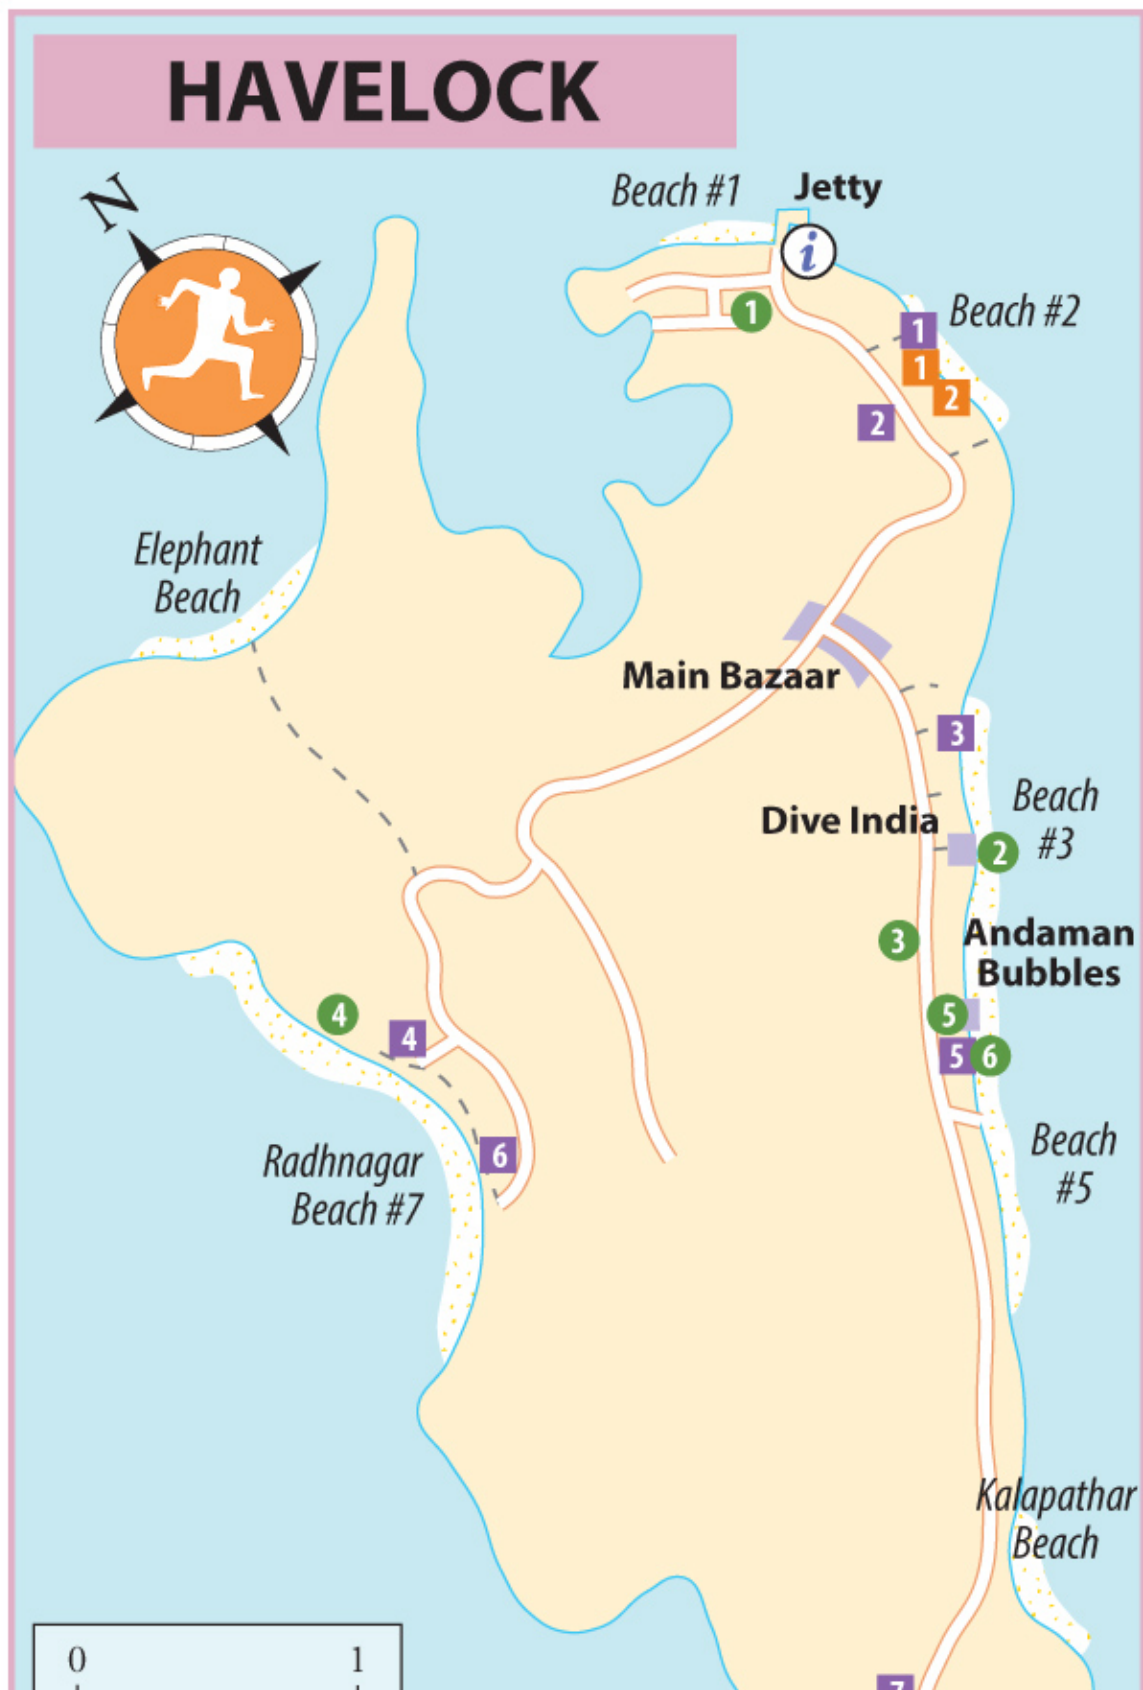

Shakahaar Ram Nagar 070639 39485. Small dhaba-style establishment that's run mainly by women which serves up tasty, homely food. It's mostly north Indian, with a range of thalis and regional breads. The banana lassi is worth a try. ₹₹

Havelock Havelock is the largest island in Ritchie's Archipelago, and the most intensively cultivated, settled – like many in the region – by Bengali refugees after Partition. Thanks to its regular ferry connections with the capital, it is also visited in far greater numbers than anywhere else in the Andamans. In peak season, several thousand tourists can be holed up here at one time, with hordes of well-heeled Indians now greatly outnumbering the traditional foreign backpacker crowd. This has led to an explosion in upmarket accommodation and mostly Kashmiri-owned tourist shops.

The east coast Havelock's hub of activity is not the Jetty village, which just has a few stalls, a couple of dowdy lodges, the odd restaurant and the police station, but the Main Bazaar, which you come to if you follow the road straight ahead from the jetty for 2km, passing Beach #2 on the way. Here you'll find a greater variety of shops and places to eat, the only bank and the island's main junction.

HAVELOCK

■ ACCOMMODATION		● EATING
Barefoot at Havelock	4	Anju-coco	3
Barefoot Scuba Resort	3	Barefoot Bar & Brasserie	1
The Forest Elephant	7	Fat Martin	5
SeaShell Havelock	1	Full Moon Café	2
Symphony	2	Red Snapper	6
Taj Exotica	6	The Swimming Elephant	4
Wild Orchid	5
		■ DRINKING & NIGHTLIFE
		Bonova Cafe and Pub	1
		Something Different	2

If you take the left turn through the busier strip of Main Bazaar, the road leads on past beaches #3 and #5, where most of the beach huts and resorts are located. As on Neil's north coast, these east-facing beaches, though exquisitely scenic, have fairly thin strips of golden-white sand, and when the sea recedes across the lumps of broken coral and rock lying offshore, swimming becomes all but impossible. After Beach #5 the road continues south for several kilometres before turning slightly inland and eventually petering out at Kalapathar beach. The entire southern half of Havelock consists of impenetrable forest.

The west coast The right turn from the island's main junction leads 9km through paddy fields and other crops before dropping through some spectacular woodland to Radhanagar (Beach #7), a 2km arc of perfect white sand, backed by stands of giant mowhar trees and often touted as the most beautiful in India. The water is a sublime turquoise colour and, although the coral is sparse, marine life here is diverse and plentiful, especially among the rocks around the corner from the main beach (accessible at low tide). The main drawback, which can make sunbathing uncomfortable, is a preponderance of pesky sand flies. Another hazard, around the lagoon at the far northern end, is saltwater crocodiles.

As the nesting site for a colony of olive ridley turtles, Radhanagar is strictly protected by the Forest Department, whose wardens ensure tourists don't light fires or sleep on the beach. There's not much accommodation here, but a clutch of dhabas provides ample sustenance for day-trippers.

A couple of kilometres before the road descends to Radhanagar, a path on the right leads over a hill and down through some scattered settlements to far wilder Elephant Beach, although the only trunks you are likely to spot are those of huge fallen trees. Snorkelling here is good, and coral reefs are accessible from the shore, but it can be tough to find the way; look out for the start of the path at a sharp bend in the road with a Forest Department noticeboard and then keep asking the way whenever you see a local.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BOAT HAVELOCK
HAVELOCK'S MAIN JETTY IS ON THE NORTH SIDE OF THE ISLAND, AT THE VILLAGE KNOWN AS BEACH #1. IF YOU'VE BOOKED ACCOMMODATION IN ADVANCE, MOST PLACES
ARRANGE A PICK-UP.

Destinations Ferries: Long Island (4 weekly; 4hr–4hr 30min); Neil (2–4 daily; 1hr 30min); Port Blair (3–5 daily; 2hr–3hr 30min); Rangat (4 weekly; 5hr–5hr 30min). There are also one or two daily Makruzz catamaran sailings for Port Blair.

Tourist information When staffed, the small tourist office just outside the jetty gates is moderately helpful (daily 8am–5pm; ☎94742 22245).

Services The only place to change money is the State Co-operative Bank (Mon–Fri 9am–1pm, Sat 9–11am), at the Main Bazaar, 2km inland of the main jetty, although there are now two ATMs en route. Numerous places now offer satellite internet connections, but charge as much as ₹300/hr.

GETTING AROUND BY BUS FROM THE JETTY BUSES RUN
HOURLY FROM 6.30AM TO RADHANAGAR (AKA BEACH #7),
THE LAST RETURNING AT 6PM. ANOTHER SERVICE RUNS SEVERAL TIMES DAILY TO KALAPATHAR, PASSING DOWN THE EAST COAST, WHERE THE BULK OF THE ACCOMMODATION IS LOCATED.

By bike You can rent a scooter, motorbike (around ₹400/day) or cycle (₹60/day) at the guesthouses.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

With the only fully developed tourist scene in the Andamans, Havelock now has over a hundred accommodation establishments to choose from, although the number of basic beach huts has dwindled in favour of luxuriously furnished cottages to satisfy the domestic tourists. Prices can rise by 50 percent from mid-December to mid-January and drop considerably between May and October.

Barefoot at Havelock Radhanagar 🌐 barefoot-andaman.com. Havelock's most luxurious resort, with fan-cooled duplexes, "Nicobari" cottages, a/c "Andaman" villas and top-quality a/c Rajasthani tents. The fine restaurant and bar area are also attractive timber-and-thatch structures. ₹₹₹₹

★ Barefoot Scuba Resort Beach #3 🌐 diveandamans.com. The home of Barefoot's dive centre offers luxury Rajasthani tents and smart bamboo duplexes with attached bathrooms, as well as humble huts for people on dive packages. ₹₹₹

The Forest Elephant Kalapathar Village 🌐 forestelephantresort.com. The most remote place to stay on the island with a 'back to nature' theme that includes five spacious duplexes and four huge bungalows, connected by an elevated boardwalk, plus a yoga room. There's a restaurant on the opposite side of the road. No wi-fi, a/c and TV. ₹₹₹

SeaShell Havelock Beach #2 🌐 seashellhotels.net. Arranged around a manicured lawn barely 1km from the jetty, there are five types of a/c lodgings from traditional villas to chalets, which offer all mod cons including flat screen TVs. ₹₹₹₹

Symphony Govind Nagar, 🌐 symphonyresorts.com. All cottages are furnished with bamboo and overlook the verdant coconut groves in the property. There are activities offered such as bird-watching, mangrove walk and a sunset cruise. ₹₹₹

Taj Exotica Radhanagar 🌐 tajhotels.com. Occupying a large portion of Radhanagar beach, this branch of the Taj group of hotels boasts a volleyball court, a spa and a pool. Though the restaurant is average, the hotel provides complimentary afternoon tea and snacks to all guests every evening. ₹₹₹₹

★Wild Orchid Beach #5 📞wildorchidandaman.com. Easily the best value higher-end resort, for its classy cottages (some with a/c), splendidly constructed timber restaurant and lounge, and all-round laidback atmosphere. Breakfast included. Wi-fi in common areas only. ₹₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

★Anju-coco Beach #5 📞9476088496. Havelock's best independent roadside restaurant, in expanded new premises. Filling breakfasts, cheap fish and chips, Tibetan momos and more adventurous dishes for a higher price. Try the local cocktails. ₹₹

Fat Martin Near Sangrila Sunset Point 📞9474210643. Gradually expanding around the dive shop, this LGBTQIA+ friendly place rustles up superb fish dishes and one to try would be the fillet of fish cooked in a banana leaf and infused with coconut. ₹₹

★Full Moon Café Island Vinnie's, Beach #3 📞01392 282222. Nestled right by Govindnagar beach, this café boasts a broad menu, including some genuinely spicy Indian cuisine, plus many Western favourites and fresh seafood, Try the succulent fish tikka or the tamarind fish. ₹₹

★Red Snapper Wild Orchid, Beach #5 📞0114084 9865. Excellent upmarket seafood, meat and veg menu, served in classy surroundings along with barbecue by the beach as well. Occasional recitals of traditional Bengali music. ₹₹

The Swimming Elephant Radhanagar Village 📞08048893964. An ode to the swimming elephant Rajan known for his unique talent, this restaurant at Barefoot resorts uses organically grown vegetables and herbs from their own garden and most of their produce is sourced from local vendors on the island ₹₹₹

SCUBA DIVING IN THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS THE SEAS AROUND THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS ARE SOME OF THE WORLD'S MOST UNSPOILED. MARINE LIFE IS ABUNDANT, WITH AN ESTIMATED 750 SPECIES OF FISH EXISTING ON ONE REEF ALONE, AND PARROT, TRIGGER AND ANGEL FISH LIVING ALONGSIDE MANTA RAYS, REEF SHARKS AND LOGGERHEAD TURTLES. MANY SPECIES OF FISH AND CORAL ARE UNIQUE TO THE AREA, AND FASCINATING ECOSYSTEMS EXIST IN ASH BEDS AND COOLED LAVA BASED AROUND THE VOLCANIC BARREN ISLAND. FOR A QUICK TASTE OF MARINE LIFE, YOU COULD START BY SNORKELLING; MOST HOTELS CAN SUPPLY MASKS AND SNORKELS, THOUGH SOME EQUIPMENT IS IN DIRE NEED OF REPLACEMENT. THE ONLY WAY TO GET REALLY CLOSE, AND VENTURE OUT INTO DEEPER WATERS, IS TO SCUBA DIVE. THE MAIN CENTRE FOR DIVING HAS ALWAYS BEEN HAVELOCK, ALTHOUGH THE NUMBER OF ACCESSIBLE SITES HAS BEEN SEVERELY REDUCED. THERE ARE ALSO OPERATORS ON NEIL, LONG AND SOUTH ANDAMAN. SINCE 2013 THE DECOMPRESSION CHAMBER AT THE NAVAL BASE IN PORT BLAIR HAS BEEN OPEN TO ANY DIVERS WITH SUSPECTED BENDS, BOOSTING SAFETY.

PRICES AND COURSES PRICES ARE VERY SIMILAR AT ALL THE CENTRES, WITH CERTIFIED DIVERS PAYING AROUND ₹5500–7000 FOR TWO TANKS; MORE ECONOMICAL PACKAGES, OFTEN INCLUDING ACCOMMODATION AND FOOD, ARE AVAILABLE FOR MULTIPLE DIVES, WHILE DISCOVER SCUBA INTRODUCTORY DIVES START AT ₹3500. COURSES COST FROM ₹20,000 FOR A BASIC FOUR-DAY PADI OPEN-WATER QUALIFICATION, ₹21,000 FOR ADVANCED OR ₹56,000 TO GO ALL THE WAY UP TO DIVEMASTER, INCLUDING ALL THE TANKS.

DIVING ADVICE UNDERWATER, IT'S NOT UNCOMMON TO COME ACROSS SCHOOLS OF REEF SHARK, WHICH RARELY

TURN HOSTILE, BUT ONE THING TO WATCH OUT FOR AND AVOID IS THE BLACK-AND-WHITE SEA SNAKE. THOUGH THESE SELDOM ATTACK – AND, SINCE THEIR FANGS ARE AT THE BACK OF THEIR MOUTHS, WOULD FIND IT DIFFICULT TO GET A GRIP ON ANY HUMAN – THEIR BITE IS TWENTY TIMES DEADLIER THAN THAT OF THE COBRA.

Increased tourism inevitably puts pressure on the delicate marine ecosystem, and poorly funded wildlife organizations can do little to prevent damage from insensitive visitors. Ensure your presence in the sea around the reefs does not harm the coral by observing the following Green Coral Code while diving or snorkelling:

- Never touch or walk on living coral, or it will die.
- Try to keep your feet away from reefs while wearing fins; the sudden sweep of water caused by a flipper kick can be enough to destroy coral.
- Always control the speed of your descent while diving; enormous damage can be caused by divers landing hard on a coral bed.
- Never break off pieces of coral from a reef, and remember that it is illegal to export dead coral from the islands, even fragments you may have found on a beach.

DIVE CENTRES ANDAMAN BUBBLES BEACH #5, HAVELOCK ☎03192 282140, 🌐ANDAMANBUBBLES.COM. TOP-QUALITY CENTRE WITH EXCELLENT EQUIPMENT AND NITROX DIVING.

Barefoot Scuba Beach #3, Havelock ☎95660 88560, 🌐barefootscuba.in. A PADI 5-star-rated operator with expert dive masters. Offers cheap accommodation with multiple dive packages. Another branch in Diglipur.

Dive India Beach #5, Havelock 🌐diveindia.com. One of the more established operations on Havelock. It has another branch on Neil, too.

India Scuba Explorers Neil Kendra, Neil ☎99332 71450, 🌐indiascubaexplorers.com. Small but professional German-run dive centre.

Infiniti Live-Aboard Chiriya Tapu, South Andaman ☎7788287200, 🌐infinitiliveaboard.com. Reliable company run by a team of enthusiastic mainlanders with a smart boat with sleeping facilities, good for getting to Cinque and other more distant sites.

Lacadives Chiriya Tapu, South Andaman 📞 8900961383, 🌐 lacadives.com. After nearly twenty years of experience in the Lakshadweep Islands, now explore the reefs around South Andaman.

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP

Bonova Cafe and Pub Govindnagar Beach 📞9679554952. Located in Seashell Resort, this pub hosts occasional DJ nights and cocktails and there's ample space, making it ideal for large groups.

Something Different Beach No 2 📞9679554952. Beautiful seaside cafe, very close to the Havelock jetty. With beach murals on the wall, this café is open only till 10pm but serves up excellent cocktails. They also provide free pick and drop from hotels. Upon prior request, they even cater to beach camping and bonfire requests.

Long Island Just off the southeast coast of Middle Andaman, Long Island is attracting a growing number of travellers, with a couple of excellent beaches in Marg Bay and Lalaji Bay. Both of these are most easily approached by chartering a fisherman's dinghy from the jetty (around ₹500 each way), if you can find one, although Lalaji can be reached on foot by following the red arrows across the island and then turning left along the coast. You should not attempt this at high tide, and even when the sea is out it's quite an obstacle course of rocks and fallen trees.

The main settlement by the jetty has the island's only facilities, which amount to a handful of shops, a couple of basic dhabas and the only two places to stay.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BOAT LONG ISLAND HAS FOUR WEEKLY FERRIES TO AND FROM HAVELOCK (4HR–4HR 30 MIN), NEIL (5HR–5HR 30MIN), PORT BLAIR (6–7HR) AND RANGAT (1HR), AS WELL AS A SMALL LOCAL FERRY CONNECTION WITH YERATTA (2 DAILY; 1HR 15MIN), 9KM FROM RANGAT.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING BLUE PLANET SIGNPOSTED WITH BLUE ARROWS FROM THE JETTY  BLUEPLANETANDAMANS.COM. AROUND A DOZEN ADJOINING ROOMS OF VARYING SIZES, SOME ATTACHED, ARRANGED COMPACTLY AROUND THE COURTYARD RESTAURANT WHOSE CENTREPIECE IS A GIANT PADAUK TREE. ALSO A COUPLE OF LARGER COTTAGES AND CAMPSITE NEARBY, WITH TENTS FOR RENT. ₹

Forest Office Guesthouse Near the jetty  03192 278532. Some people see if there is any availability at the Forest Office's guesthouse, which has a couple of spartan rooms, usually occupied by officials. ₹

Hotel GKR Opposite the village football pitch  94742 08368. A very basic restaurant that serves south Indian snacks, fish fry and fairly skimpy thalis. ₹

Middle Andaman For most travellers, Middle Andaman is a gruelling rite of passage to be endured en route to or from the north. The sinuous Andaman Trunk Road, hemmed in by walls of towering forest, winds through kilometres of jungle, and crosses the strait that separates the island from its neighbour, Baratang, by means of a rusting flat-bottomed ferry. The island's frontier feeling is heightened by the knowledge that the impenetrable forests west of the ATR comprise the Jarawa Tribal Reserve. Of its two main settlements, the more northerly Mayabunder, the port for alluring Interview Island, is slightly more appealing than characterless inland Rangat because of its pleasant setting by the sea, but neither town gives any reason to dally. Baratang, meanwhile, has some interesting mud volcanoes and limestone caves, which can be accessed on the boat trips that run daily except Sunday according to demand (₹350).

Rangat At the southeast corner of Middle Andaman, RANGAT consists of a ramshackle sprawl around two rows of chai shops and general stores divided by the ATR, which is now at least paved. However, as a major staging post on the journey north, it's impossible to avoid – just don't get stranded here if you can help it.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BOAT THE FOUR RANGAT WEEKLY FERRIES FROM PORT BLAIR VIA HAVELOCK, LONG ISLAND AND NEIL DOCK AT RANGAT BAY, 8KM EAST, FROM WHERE YOU CAN TAKE A BUS OR AUTO-RICKSHAW INTO TOWN; THERE ARE ALSO SMALL DAILY FERRIES TO LONG ISLAND FROM NEARBY YERATTA.

By bus Rangat is served by two daily government buses to Port Blair (6–7hr) as well as some private services, which pass through in the morning from further north. There are several daily buses to Mayabunder (2hr 30min–3hr) and Diglipur (4hr 30min–5hr).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING APWD REST HOUSE 03192 274237. THE ANDAMAN PUBLIC WORKS DEPARTMENT (APWD)'S REST HOUSE, PLEASANTLY SITUATED UP A WINDING HILL FROM THE BAZAAR WITH VIEWS ACROSS THE VALLEY, IS THE BEST PLACE TO STAY AND EAT, PROVIDING GOOD, FILLING FISH THALIS NO WI-FI. ₹

Ginger Spice Great Andaman Trunk Road 94760 46352. Known for their biryani and chicken masala laden dishes, this is a great stop at Rangat. ₹

Hawksbill Nest 15km north at Cuthbert Bay (aka RRO) 03192 215150. The rooms (some a/c) are characterless but comfortable at this A&N Tourism hotel, which is invariably empty. Buses between Rangat and Mayabunder stop here on request and there is a fine beach nearby. No wi-fi. ₹

Mayabunder Only 70km north of Rangat by road, MAYABUNDER is perched on a long promontory right at the top of the island and surrounded by mangrove swamps. Unfortunately, the bus journey from Rangat can exceed three hours due to continual stops on the surprisingly populated route. Home to a large minority of former Burmese Karen tribal people who were originally brought here as cheap logging labour by the British, the village is more spread out and more appealing than Rangat. At the brow of the hill, before it descends to the jetty, a small hexagonal wooden structure houses the Forest Museum (Mon–Sat 8am–noon & 1–4pm; free), which holds a motley collection of turtle shells, snakes in formaldehyde, dead coral and a crocodile skull.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS SOME OF MAYABUNDER THE BUSES FROM PORT BLAIR (9–10HR) AND RANGAT (2HR 30MIN–3HR) NOW CONTINUE OVER THE BRIDGE TO DIGLIPUR ON NORTH ANDAMAN (2HR FROM MAYABUNDER).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ANMOL LODGE MIDDLE OF THE BAZAAR IN THE VILLAGE CENTRE ☎94745 40064. THIS ONCE HUMBLE LODGE HAS BEEN FULLY RENOVATED SO ALL ROOMS ARE NOW ATTACHED, WITH CABLE TV AND SOME A/C. FOOD MUST BE PRE-ORDERED. NO WI-FI. ₹

APWD Rest House Next door to the Forest Museum ☎03192 273211. The rooms (some a/c) are large and very comfortable, plus there's a pleasant garden and gazebo overlooking the sea, and a dining room serving good set meals. Often booked up by officials. No wi-fi. ₹

Sea'N'Sand 1km south of the centre ☎thanzin the great@yahoo.co.in. Nicely located by the sea, this very welcoming lodge has a range of simple rooms, mostly attached and some with a/c, as well as a reasonable restaurant. ₹

Interview Island Mayabunder is the jumping-off place for Interview Island, a windswept nature sanctuary off the remote northwest coast of Middle Andaman – if you've come to the Andamans to watch wildlife, it should be top of your list. Large and mainly flat, it is completely uninhabited save for a handful of unfortunate forest wardens, coastguards and policemen, posted here to ward off poachers. Foreigners aren't permitted to spend the night on the island, and to do a day-trip you must first obtain a ₹500 permit from the Forest Museum in Mayabunder. The only way to reach Interview is to charter a private fishing dinghy from Mayabunder jetty for around ₹5000. Arrange one the day before and leave at first light. Ask your boatman to moor by the beach at the southern tip of the island, which has a perennial freshwater pool inside a low cave; legend has it that the well, a nesting site for white-bellied swifts, has no bottom. At the forest post, where you have to sign an entry ledger, ask the wardens about the movements of Interview's feral elephants, descendants of trained elephants deserted here by a Kolkata-based logging company after its timber operation failed in the 1950s. Saltwater crocodiles are found on the island's eastern coastline.

North Andaman Shrouded in dense jungle, North Andaman is the least populated of the region's large islands, crossed by a single road linking its scattered Bengali settlements. Although parts have been seriously logged, the total absence of driveable roads into northern and western areas has ensured blanket protection for a vast stretch of convoluted coastline, running from Austin Strait in the southwest to the northern tip, Cape Price; it's reassuring to know at least one extensive wilderness survives in the Andamans.

Despite the completion of the ATR's final section and the bridge from Middle Andaman, the main settlement of DIGLIPUR continues to exist in relative seclusion, though this may well change if the projected airport out towards Kalipur ever opens. Known in the British era as Port Cornwallis, North Andaman's largest settlement is another disappointing market town where you're only likely to pause long enough to pick up a local bus further north to the coast. Unless you are catching a boat (to Smith or Ross islands or back to Port Blair) straightaway from the port of Aerial Bay, 9km northeast, it's better to continue another 9km to Kalipur, where there's an excellent deserted beach, backed by lush forest and covered in photogenic driftwood. Swimming is best at high tide because the water recedes across rocky mud pools. Offshore snorkelling is also excellent, especially along the reef that runs towards the islet barely 500m away.

It's possible to walk from Kalipur to Saddle Peak, the highest mountain in the Andamans at 737m, which rises dramatically to the south, swathed in lush jungle. A permit (₹250/25) to make the three- to four-hour climb must be obtained from the Range Officer at the forest checkpost near the start of the ascent, but don't attempt it without a guide and plenty of drinking water. Another enjoyable day-trip is to the limestone caverns, 12km south near Ramnagar beach, best accessed by dinghy from Kalipur. You can arrange a dinghy, or guide for the Saddle Peak climb, at Pristine Beach Resort.

Smith and Ross islands Many tourists find their way up here in order to explore the various islands dotted around the gulf north of Aerial Bay, particularly Smith and Ross (not to be confused with its namesake near Port Blair), whose white sandbars, coral reefs and flora are splendid. At low tide it is possible to walk between the two islands. You can organize the requisite ₹500 permit from the Wildlife Information booth at Aerial Bay and rent a boat (₹2500) for the return trip yourself, or through one of the area guesthouses – try Pristine Beach Resort.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BOAT THERE NORTH ANDAMAN ARE THREE BOATS A WEEK IN EACH DIRECTION FROM AERIAL BAY TO PORT BLAIR (7–9HR).

By bus Several buses a day leave in the early morning for Port Blair (11–12hr) via Mayabunder (2hr) and Rangat (4hr 30min–5hr). There are 10–12 daily buses from Diglipur to Aerial Bay (20min) and Kalipur (45min).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING DIGLIPUR APWD REST HOUSE
☎03192 272203. ON THE HILL ABOVE THE MAIN ROAD, THE

*APWD REST HOUSE OFFERS THE VILLAGE'S NICEST
ACCOMMODATION. ₹*

KALIPUR ★PRISTINE BEACH RESORT ☎
ANDAMANPRISTINERESORTS.COM. EASILY THE MOST CONGENIAL PLACE TO STAY ON NORTH ANDAMAN, WITH A HUGE RANGE OF OPTIONS FROM SMALL BUT TIDY HUTS
THROUGH STURDY DUPLEXES TO LUXURY COTTAGES, ALL SET IN LOVELY GROUNDS NEAR THE BEACH. VERY GOOD RESTAURANT TOO. ₹₹

Turtle Resort ☎03192 271818. Typically institutional A&N Tourism hotel, which enjoys a prime location on a hilltop above the bay. The rooms are plain but large. ₹

Little Andaman Little Andaman is the furthest point south in the archipelago that foreigners can travel to on their tourist permit. Most of the island has been set aside as a tribal reserve for the Onge and is thus off-limits. It was also the only island open to foreigners to sustain extensive damage in the 2004 tsunami, but although a number of buildings were destroyed, and 64 people died, Little Andaman has recovered well. Relatively few visitors make it down here, although a slight improvement in tourist infrastructure renders it increasingly worthwhile for those who do. Still, it is worth noting that boats can be infrequent outside peak months and not all accommodations operate outside high season.

The main settlement, INDIRA BAZAAR, is 2km north of the jetty at Hut Bay, which curves gradually round in a majestic 8km sweep, the quality of the sand and beauty of the adjacent jungle increasing the further north you go. The top stretch is named Netaji Nagar after the village on the island's only road, which runs behind it. En route, you can detour 1km inland at the huge signpost about 2.5km north of Indira Bazaar to see the White Surf Waterfalls (daily dawn–dusk; ₹20). Made up of three 10- to 15m-high cascades, it's a relaxing spot; you can clamber into the right-hand fall for a soothing shower – yet crocodiles are said to inhabit the surrounding streams. Over the headland at the top of Hut Bay, 12km or so from the jetty, lies the smaller but equally picturesque crescent of Butler Bay. There's not much to do here but swim, sunbathe or look around the slightly eerie remains of the government beach resort, which was swept away by the tsunami – that is unless you've brought your surfboard with you: Little Andaman has a cult reputation among surfers for having some of the best conditions anywhere in South Asia.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BOAT DAILY LITTLE ANDAMAN FERRIES FROM PORT BLAIR ARRIVE AT HUT BAY, THE FASTER ONES MAKING THE VOYAGE IN LESS THAN 6HR.

GETTING AROUND BICYCLES (₹50/DAY) AND MOPEDS (₹300/DAY) CAN BE RENTED THROUGH THE GUESTHOUSES BUT ARE IN VERY SHORT SUPPLY.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING GREENWOOD ISLAND RESORT HUT BAY 🌐 GREENWOODISLANDRESORT.COM. THE MOST COMFORTABLE RESORT ON THE ISLAND, WITH STURDY

BUT ATTRACTIVE AND COMFORTABLY FURNISHED ROOMS, WOOD PANELLED ON THE OUTSIDE. DECENT RESTAURANT
TOO. NO WI-FI. ₹

★Jina Guesthouse Netaji Nagar 094760 38057. Pleasant and welcoming place with a sociable eating area and great banana leaf fish on the menu. There are huts and rooms of varying sizes but all are non-attached. Only opens from late Nov to May. No wi-fi. ₹

Palm Grove Eco Resort Indira Bazaar 094342 99212. Decent government-run restaurant which offers a limited menu of fish, chicken and veg dishes, mostly Indian along with thalis as well. ₹

< Back to The Andaman Islands

Shutterstock
KANYAKUMARI

Tamil Nadu

Chennai

The northeast

Central Tamil Nadu: the Chola heartland

Tiruchirapalli (Trichy) and around

Madurai

Chettinadu

Rameshwaram

Kanyakumari

The Ghats

Tamil Nadu

When Indians refer to “the South”, it’s usually Tamil Nadu they’re talking about. While Karnataka and Andhra Pradesh are essentially cultural transition zones buffering the Hindi-speaking north, and Kerala and Goa maintain their own distinctively idiosyncratic identities, the peninsula’s massive Tamil-speaking state is India’s Dravidian Hindu heartland. Traditionally protected by distance and the military might of the southern Deccan kingdoms, the region has, over the centuries, been less exposed to northern influences than its neighbours. As a result, the three powerful dynasties dominating the south – the Cholas, the Pallavas and the Pandyan – were able, over a period of more than a thousand years, to develop their own unique religious and political institutions.

The most visible legacy of this protracted cultural flowering is a crop of astounding temples, whose gigantic gateway towers, or gopuras, still soar above just about every town. It is the image of these ornate, colossal wedge-shaped pyramids, high above the canopy of dense palm forests, or against patchworks of vibrant green paddy fields, which Edward Lear described as “stupendous and beyond belief”. Indeed, the colourful painted deities and mythological creatures sculpted onto the towers linger long in the memory of most travellers.

The great Tamil temples, however, are merely the largest landmarks in a vast network of sacred sites – shrines, bathing places, holy trees, rocks and rivers – interconnected by a web of ancient pilgrims’ routes. Tamil Nadu harbours over 200 of India’s holiest Shiva temples, and over 100 are dedicated to Vishnu. In addition, five shrines devoted to the five Vedic elements (Earth, Wind, Fire, Water and Ether) are to be found here, along with eight to the planets, as well as other prominent religious places revered by Christians and Muslims. Scattered from the pale orange crags and forests of the Western Ghats, across the fertile deltas of the Vaigai and Kaveri rivers to the Coromandel coast on the Bay of Bengal, these sites were celebrated in the hymns of the Tamil saints, composed between one and two thousand years ago. Today, so little has changed that the same devotional songs are still widely sung and understood in the region and it remains one of the last places in the world where a classical culture has survived well into the present.

BEST TIME TO VISIT TAMIL NADU CAN BE VISITED YEAR-ROUND, ALTHOUGH BY FAR THE MOST POPULAR TIME IS BETWEEN DECEMBER AND MARCH, WHEN THE SKIES ARE MOSTLY BLUE AND THE WEATHER NOT AS HOT AND MAINLY HUMID AS IT BECOMES FROM APRIL TO JUNE, ESPECIALLY ON THE INLAND PLAINS. COASTAL AREAS, HOWEVER, ONLY EVER VARY A FEW DEGREES EITHER SIDE OF 30°C BUT HUMIDITY LEVELS ARE CONSISTENTLY HIGH FROM APRIL THROUGH SEPTEMBER.

The main summer monsoon is slightly milder in Tamil Nadu but the state does receive plenty of precipitation during the northeast monsoon season from October to early December, when violent cyclones can be a threat, sometimes causing floods and wreaking havoc with transport links.

During the hotter months, the hill stations of the Western Ghats provide welcome respite from the heat but they can be pretty chilly, at least at night, in the winter. The Christmas and New Year period gets busy and prices are higher then and for local festivals, of which the state has many.

Shutterstock
COLONIAL WHITE TOWN, PUDUCHERRY

Highlights

- ① Mamallapuram Stone-carvers' workshops, a long sandy beach and wonderful Pallava monuments have made this a top tourist attraction.
- ② Puducherry Former French colony that has retained the ambience of a Gallic seaside town: croissants, a promenade and gendarmes wearing képis.
- ③ Thanjavur Home to some of the world's finest Chola bronzes, this town is dominated by the colossal tower of the Brihadishwara Temple.
- ④ Madurai The love nest of Shiva and his consort Meenakshi, this busy city's major temple hosts a constant round of festivals.
- ⑤ Kanyakumari At the southern tip of the Subcontinent, Kanyakumari marks the sacred meeting point of the Bay of Bengal, Indian Ocean and Arabian Sea.
- ⑥ The Ghats The spine of southern India, excellent for trekking through lush mountains and tea plantations from its refreshingly cool hill stations.
- ⑦ Mudumalai Tiger Reserve This densely forested park is becoming increasingly popular for its wild elephants and excellent accommodation.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

The Tamils' living connection with their ancient Dravidian past has given rise to a strong movement. With a few fleeting lapses, one or other of the pro-Dravidian parties has been in power here since the 1950s, spreading their anti-brahmin, anti-Hindi proletarian messages to the masses, principally through the medium of movies with an aim for an egalitarian state. Indeed, since Independence, the majority of Tamil Nadu's political leaders have been drawn from the state's prolific cinema industry.

FESTIVALS IN TAMIL NADU PONGAL (MID-JAN). ONE OF THE MOST COLOURFUL AND IMPORTANT TAMIL FESTIVALS, CELEBRATING THE HARVEST, WHEN THRESHOLDS ARE DECORATED WITH BEAUTIFUL DESIGNS.

Thiruvaiyaru Thyagaraja Aradhana (Jan). A five-day celebration of Carnatic classical music at Thiruvaiyaru, near Thanjavur, in honour of the great Carnatic composer-saint..

Teppam Floating Festival (Jan/Feb). Worshippers take boats to the shrine in the middle of the great bathing tank in Madurai..

Mamallapuram Dance Festival (Jan–Feb). Month-long classical dance performances against the wonderful backdrop of Arjuna’s Penance.

Natyanjali Dance Festival (Feb/March). Five-day dance festival at the great temple in Chidambaram, with occasional offshoots in Kumbakonam and Thanjavur.

Chithirai (April/May). Maybe the most important Madurai festival, celebrating the marriage of the principal deities of the great Meenakshi-Sundareshwarar Temple..

King Rajaraja’s birthday (Oct). Vibrant ten-day affair when Thanjavur’s magnificent Brihadishwarar temple is decked out fully to celebrate its creator’s birthday..

Kartigai Deepam (Nov/Dec). Especially lively in Tiruvannamalai, where pilgrims circumambulate Arunachala.

Chennai festival season (Dec–Feb). A series of Indian classical concerts and dance performances takes place at various venues throughout the city.

With its seafront fort, grand mansions and excellence as a centre for the performing arts, the state capital Chennai is nonetheless a hot, chaotic, noisy Indian metropolis that still carries faint echoes of the British empire through its architecture. However, it can be used as a base for visiting Kanchipuram, a major pilgrimage and sari-weaving centre, filled with reminders of an illustrious past as well as Mamallapuram, a seaside town and an archaeological delight.

The best place to start a temple tour is in nearby Mamallapuram, a seaside village that – quite apart from some exquisite Pallava rock-cut architecture – boasts a long and lovely sandy beach. Further down the coast lies the former French colony of Puducherry, which is a Union Territory and not part of Tamil Nadu administratively, and is now home to the famous Sri Aurobindo ashram; nearby, Auroville has carved out a role for itself as a popular New Age centre. The road south from Puducherry puts you back on the temple trail, leading to the tenth-century Chola kingdom and the extraordinary architecture of Chidambaram, Gangaikondacholapuram, Kumbakonam and Darasuram. For the best Chola bronzes, however, and a glimpse of the magnificent paintings that flourished under Maratha rajas in the eighteenth century, travellers should head for Thanjavur. Chola capital for four centuries, the city boasts almost a hundred temples and was the birthplace of Bharatanatyam dance, famous throughout south India.

In the very centre of Tamil Nadu, Tiruchirapalli, a commercial town just northwest of Thanjavur, held some interest for the Cholas, but reached its heyday under later dynasties, when the temple complex in neighbouring Srirangam became one of south India's largest. Among its patrons were the Nayaks of Madurai, whose erstwhile capital further south, bustling with pilgrims, priests, peddlers, tailors and tourists, is an unforgettable destination. The deeply rural area of Chettinadu to the northwest hides many delightful villages with splendid mansions and boasts some of the state's best culinary spots making it, a fine break from the temple trail. Rameshwaram, on the long spit of land reaching towards Sri Lanka, and Kanyakumari at India's southern tip are both important pilgrimage centres, and have the added attraction of welcome cool breezes and vistas over the sea.

While Tamil Nadu's temples are undeniably its major attraction, the hill stations of Kodaikanal and Udhagamandalam (formerly Ooty) in the west of the state are popular destinations on the well-beaten tourist trail between Kerala and Tamil Nadu. The verdant, cool hills offer mountain views and gentle trails through the forests and verdant tea plantations. You can also spot wildlife in the teak forests of Mudumalai Tiger Reserve and bamboo groves of Indira Gandhi Wildlife Sanctuary, situated in the Palani Hills.

Brief history

Since the fourth century BC, Tamil Nadu has been shaped by its majority Dravidian population, a people of uncertain origins and physically quite different from north Indians. The influence of the powerful janapadas, established in the north by the fourth and third centuries BC, extended as far south as the Deccan, but they made few incursions into Dravidadesa (Tamil country). Incorporating what is now Kerala and Tamil Nadu, Dravidadesa was ruled by three dynasties: the Cheras, who held sway over much of the Malabar Coast (Kerala), the Pandys in the far south and the Cholas, whose realm stretched along the eastern Coromandel Coast.

In the fourth century, the Pallava dynasty established a powerful kingdom centred in Kanchipuram. By the seventh century, the successors of the first Pallava king, Simhavishnu, were engaged in battles with the southern Pandyas and the forces of the Chalukyas, based further west in Karnataka. This was also an era of social development. Brahmins became the dominant community. The emergence of bhakti, devotional worship, placed temples firmly at the centre of religious life, and the inspirational sangam literature of saint-poets fostered a tradition of dance and music that has become Tamil Nadu's cultural hallmark.

In the tenth and eleventh centuries, the Cholas experienced a profound revival, ploughing their new wealth into the construction of splendid and imposing temples. Subsequently, the Vijayanagar Dynasty, based in Hampi (Karnataka), resisted Muslim incursions from the north and spread to cover most of south India by the sixteenth century. This prompted a new phase of architectural development, including the introduction of colossal gopuras. In Madurai, the Vijayanagar governors, Nayaks, set up an independent kingdom whose impact spread as far as Tiruchirapalli.

Simultaneously, the south experienced its first significant wave of European settlement. First came the Portuguese, followed by the British, Dutch and French. The Western powers soon found themselves engaged in territorial disputes, most markedly between the French, based in Pondicherry, and the British, whose stronghold since 1640 had been Fort St George in Madras. It was the British who prevailed, confining the French to Pondicherry.

As well as occasional rebellions against colonial rule, Tamil Nadu also saw anti-brahmin protests, in particular in the 1920s and 1930s. Independence in 1947 signalled the need for state boundaries, and by 1956 the borders had been demarcated on a linguistic basis. Thus in 1965 Madras Presidency became Tamil Nadu.

Since Independence, Tamil Nadu's industrial sector has flourished. The state was a Congress stronghold until 1967, when the DMK (Dravida Munnetra Kazhagam), championing the lower castes and reasserting Tamil identity, won a landslide victory on a wave of anti-Hindi and anti-central government sentiment. Power has ping-ponged back and forth between the DMK and the breakaway party AIADMK ever since.

Chennai

In the northeastern corner of Tamil Nadu on the Bay of Bengal, CHENNAI (still commonly referred to by its former British name, Madras) is India's fourth largest city, with a population nudging ten million. Hot, crowded and noisy, it's the major transport hub of the south and a tourist destination in its own right. The attractions of the city are diverse; it boasts fine specimens of Raj architecture, pilgrimage sites connected with the apostle, Doubting Thomas, superb Chola bronzes at its state museum, and plenty of classical music and dance performances.

Geographically, Chennai divides into three main sectors. North of the River Cooum stands Fort St George, site of the first British outpost in India, and George Town, the commercial centre, which developed during British occupation. George Town's principal landmark is Parry's Corner, located at the southern end of Rajaji Salai. Sandwiched between the Cooum and Adyar rivers is central Chennai, the modern, commercial heart of the metropolis, crossed and served by the city's main thoroughfare, Anna Salai. East of Anna Salai is the atmospheric old Muslim quarter of Triplicane and beyond is the long straight Marina with its massive beach, fishing boats and hordes of domestic tourists, saris and trousers hitched up, enjoying a paddle. Further south along the coast is the district of Mylapore, inhabited by the Portuguese in the 1500s, with its two important places of pilgrimage and tourist attractions, Kapaleeshwarar Temple and San Thomé Cathedral. Further south of Mylapore lies Besant Nagar and the sandy stretch of Elliot's Beach with its trendy restaurants and gastropubs.

CHENNAI

ACCOMMODATION
Crowne Plaza	3
New Woodlands	1
Shelter	2

EATING
Amaravathi	3
Dakshin/The Residency	4
Don Pepé	2
Junior Kuppanna	1

DRINKING & NIGHTLIFE
10 Downing St	4
Illusions - The Madras Pub	3
Leather Bar	1
Paddington Sports Pub	5
QBar	6
Zara The Tapas Bar	2

SHOPPING
Kalakshetra Foundation craft shop	2
Nalli Chinnasami Chetty	1

St Thomas Mount, Airport, Guindy Railway Station, Tiruvallur Railway Station, Mofussil Bus Stand & Kanchipuram

OF MOVIE STARS AND MINISTERS ONE NOTABLE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE CHENNAI-BASED TAMIL MOVIE INDUSTRY AND THE MAINSTREAM BOLLYWOOD MOVIES FROM MUMBAI IS THE INFLUENCE OF POLITICS ON TAMIL FILMS. TRADITIONAL FOLK BALLADS ABOUT LOW-CASTE HEROES VANQUISHING HIGH-CASTE VILLAINS WERE PERFECT PROPAGANDA VEHICLES FOR THE NASCENT TAMIL NATIONALIST MOVEMENT, THE DRAVIDA MUNNETRA KAZHAGAM (DMK). IT IS NO COINCIDENCE THAT THE PARTY'S FOUNDING FATHER, C.N. ANNADURAI, WAS A TOP SCRIPT- AND SCREENPLAY-WRITER. HE AND HIS COLLEAGUES USED THE POPULAR FILM GENRES OF THE TIME TO CONVEY THEIR POLITICAL IDEAS TO THE MASSES AND THIS POLITICIZATION OF THE BIG SCREEN CREATED THE FAN CLUBS, OR RASIGAR MANRAMS, THAT PLAY A KEY ROLE IN MOBILIZING SUPPORT FOR THE NATIONALIST PARTIES IN ELECTIONS.

Perhaps the most influential fan club of all time was that of superstar Marudur Gopalamenon Ramachandran, known to millions simply as “MGR”. He generated fanatical grass-roots support in the state and rose to become chief minister in 1977. His eleven-year rule was rocked by scandals and is still regarded by liberals as a dark age of chronic corruption, police brutality, political purges and rising organized crime. When he died in 1987, two million people attended his funeral and even today, MGR's statue, sporting trademark sunglasses and lamb's-wool hat, is revered across Tamil Nadu at roadside shrines.

MGR's political protégée, and eventual successor, was screen starlet Jayalalithaa, a convent-educated brahmin's daughter whom he recruited to be both his leading lady and mistress. After 25 hit films together, Jayalalithaa followed him into politics, becoming leader of the AIADMK, the party MGR set up after being expelled from the DMK in 1972. Despite allegations of fraud and corruption Jayalalithaa enjoyed two spells as chief minister in the early noughties and assumed power for her third stint in 2011. Her death in 2016 was mourned by the entire state.

Brief history

As capital of Tamil Nadu, Chennai is a comparatively modern creation, like Mumbai and Kolkata. It was founded as a fortified trading post by the British East India Company in 1639, north of the ancient Tamil port of Mylapore and the Portuguese settlement of San Thomé. It was completed on St George's Day in 1640 and thus named Fort St George. Over the course of the following century and a half, as capital of the Madras Presidency, which covered most of south India, the city expanded to include many surrounding villages. It was briefly lost to the French but three years later, in 1746, the British re-established control under Robert Clive (Clive of India) and continued to use it as their southern base, although it was surpassed in national importance by Calcutta.

The city's renaissance began after Independence, when it became the centre of the Tamil movie industry, and a hotbed of Dravidian nationalism. Renamed Chennai in 1997, the metropolis has boomed since the Indian economy opened up to foreign investment in the early 1990s. The flip side of this rapid economic growth is that Chennai's infrastructure has been stretched to breaking point.

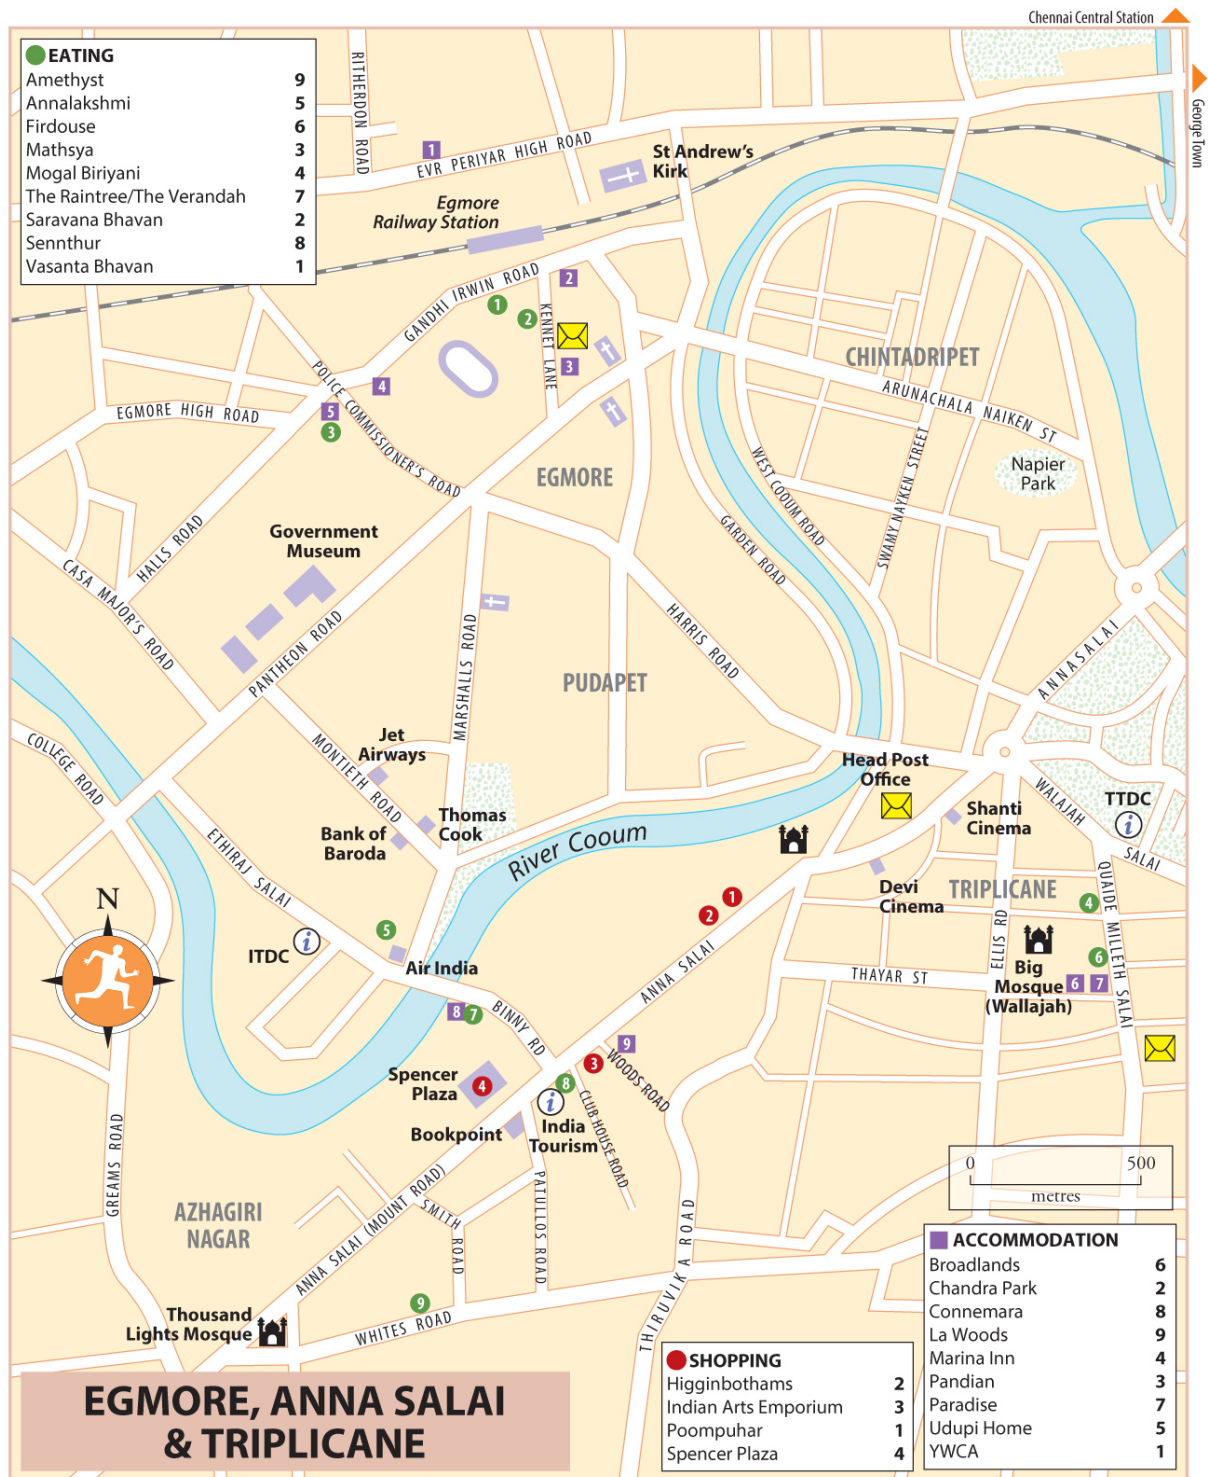

Fort St George

Fort St George is quite unlike any other fort in India. Facing the sea amid state offices, it looks more like a complex of well-maintained colonial mansions than a fort. Many of its buildings are today used as offices and are a hive of activity during the week. It is now the house of the Tamil Nadu Legislative Assembly and the Secretariat.

The fort was the first structure of Madras town and the first territorial possession of the British in India. Construction began in 1640 but most of the original buildings were damaged during French sieges and replaced later that century. The most imposing structure is the slate-grey-and-white eighteenth-century colonnaded Fort House.

Fort Museum

York St • Daily except Fri 9am–5pm • Charge, no photography The modestly proportioned Exchange Building houses the excellent Fort Museum. The collection within faithfully records the central events of the British occupation of Madras with portraits, coins, regimental flags, weapons, East India Company coins, medals, stamps and thick woollen uniforms that make you wonder how the Raj survived as long as it did. The first floor is now an art gallery. Also on display are etchings by the famous artist Thomas Daniell, whose work largely defined British perceptions of India at the end of the eighteenth century.

St Mary's Church St Thomas St • Daily 9am–5pm

South of the Fort Museum, past the State Legislature, stands the oldest surviving Anglican Church in Asia, St Mary's, built in 1678 and partly renovated after the battle of 1759. It's distinctly English in style, crammed with plaques and statues in memory of British soldiers, politicians and their wives. The grandest plaque, made of pure silver, was presented by Elihu Yale, former governor of Fort St George (1687–96) and founder of Yale University. A collection of photographs of visiting dignitaries, including Queen Elizabeth II, is on display in the entrance porch.

George Town

Bus no 18 from Anna Salai or get the metro to High Court or Mannadi Metro Rail Station North of Fort St George, the former British trading centre of George Town remains the focal area for banks, offices, shipping companies and street stalls. This network of streets harbours a fascinating medley of architecture: eighteenth- and nineteenth-century churches, Hindu and Jain temples and a scattering of mosques, interspersed with grand mansions. In the east, on Rajaji Salai, the General Post Office occupies a robust earth-red Indo-Saracenic building constructed in 1884. George Town's southern extent is marked by the bulbous white domes and sandstone towers of the High Court and the opulent towers of the Law College, both showing strong Islamic influence.

Government Museum Pantheon Rd • Daily except Fri 9.30am–5pm • Charge, camera/video camera charge •

museumchennai.org • Bus #23C from Anna Salai The Chennai Government Museum contains some remarkable archeological finds from south India and the Deccan. Inside the deep-red, circular main building, built in 1851, the first gallery is devoted to archeology and geology; the highlights are the dismantled panels, railings and statues from the second-century AD stupa complex at Amaravati. These sensuously carved marble reliefs of the Buddha's life are widely regarded as the finest achievements of early Indian art. To the left of here high, arcaded halls full of stuffed animals lead to the ethnology gallery, where models, clothes, weapons and photographs of expressionless faces in orderly lines illustrate local tribal societies, some long since wiped out. A fascinating display of wind and string instruments, drums and percussion include the large predecessor of today's sitar and several very old tablas.

The museum's real treasure-trove, however, is the modern wing, which contains the world's most complete and impressive selection of Chola bronzes. Large statues of Shiva, Vishnu and Parvati stand in the centre, flanked by glass cases containing smaller figurines, including several sculptures of Shiva as Nataraja, the Lord of the Dance, encircled by a ring of fire. One of the finest models is Ardhanarishvara, the androgynous form of Shiva (united with Shakti in transcendence of duality). Elsewhere, the magnificent Indo-Saracenic art gallery houses old British portraits of figures such as Clive and Hastings, plus Rajput and Mughal miniatures, and a small display of ivory carvings.

St Andrew's Kirk Off Periyar EVR High Rd

Just northeast of Egmore Station, St Andrew's Kirk, consecrated in 1821, is a fine example of Georgian architecture. Modelled on London's St Martin-in-the-Fields, it's one of just three churches in India with a circular seating plan, laid out beneath a huge dome painted blue with gold stars and supported by a sweep of Corinthian columns. Marble plaques around the church give a fascinating insight into the kind of people who left Britain to work for the imperial and Christian cause. A staircase leads onto the flat roof, surrounding the dome, from where you can climb further up into the steeple past the massive bell to a tiny balcony affording excellent views of the city.

The Marina

One of the longest city beaches in the world, the Marina (Kamaraj Salai) stretches 5km from the harbour at the southeastern corner of George Town to near San Thomé Cathedral. Going south, you'll pass the Indo-Saracenic Presidency College (1865–71), one of a number of stolid Victorian buildings that make up the University, as well as adjacent Vivekananda House (see below).

Today the beach itself is a sociable stretch, peopled by idle paddlers, picnickers and pony-riders; every afternoon crowds gather around the beach market. However, its location, just a little downstream from the port, which belches out waste and smelly fumes, combined with its function as the toilet for the fishing community, detract from its natural beauty. For an aerial view of the beach and the city, head to the Lighthouse in the area.

Vivekananda House Tues–Sun 10am–12.30pm & 3–7.15pm • Charge •
🌐 vivekanandahouse.org

Housed in a splendidly rotund and ornate stone building, the nineteenth-century Madras depot of the Tudor Ice Company has been converted into the interesting Vivekananda House Museum, which gives an excellent account of the life of the nineteenth-century saint, Swami Vivekananda, who stayed here for some time in 1897. Now a branch of the Sri Ramakrishna Math organization, the museum contains attractive visual displays of Hindu beliefs, as well as photographic and detailed textual material on Vivekananda's life.

Mylapore

Buses #4, #5 or #21 from the LIC building on Anna Salai Long before Madras came into existence, Mylapore, south of the Marina, was a major settlement; the Greek geographer Ptolemy mentioned it in the second century AD as a thriving port. During the Pallava period (fifth to ninth centuries) it was second only to Mamallapuram. Its two outstanding sights are venerable San Thomé Cathedral and the mighty Kapaleeshwarar Temple, while the Sri Ramakrishna Math also warrants a visit.

San Thomé Cathedral San Thomé High Rd • Daily 6am–8pm • 📞044 2498 5455

An important stop on the St Thomas pilgrimage trail, San Thomé Cathedral marks the eastern boundary of Mylapore, lying close to the sea at the southern end of the Marina on San Thomé High Road. Although the present neo-Gothic structure dates from 1896, it stands on the site of two earlier churches built over the tomb of St Thomas. The saint's relics are kept inside the nave, accessed by an underground passage from the small museum at the rear of the courtyard, and are the object of great reverence. The museum itself houses stones inscribed in Tamil, Sanskrit (twelfth-century Chola) and early Portuguese, and a map of India, dated 1519.

Kapaleeshwarar Temple N Mada St • Tues-Sun 5am–noon & 5–9pm
The huge Kapaleeshwarar Temple sits just under 1km west of the San Thomé Cathedral, off RK Mutt Road. Seventh-century Tamil poet-saints sang its praises, but the present structure, dedicated to Shiva, probably dates from the sixteenth century. The huge (40m) gopura towering above the main east entrance, plastered in stucco figures, was added in 1906. Surrounding an assortment of busy shrines, where priests offer blessings for devotees and non-Hindus alike, the courtyard features an old tree where a small shrine to Shiva's consort, Parvati, shows her in the form of a peahen (mayil) worshipping a lingam.

Sri Ramakrishna Math 31 Ramakrishna Math Rd • Temple daily 5–11.45am & 3–9pm • www.chennaiamath.org

A short walk south of the Kapaleeshwarar Temple, lie the peaceful and extensive grounds of the Sri Ramakrishna Math, an active place of study for devotees wishing to follow the teachings of the famous nineteenth-century master. The focus of interest for the casual visitor is the Universal Temple of Sri Ramakrishna, an elegant construction combining architectural motifs from Hindu, Buddhist and Jain temples, as well as European churches, while the manicured forecourt echoes the Islamic themes of the Mughals. Within the temple itself are a series of prayer halls, approached by steps, and the inner sanctum contains a solid marble statue of Ramakrishna seated on a lotus.

Little Mount Caves Little Mount, off Mount Rd. Bus #18A, #18B, or #52C from Anna Salai St Thomas is said to have sought refuge from persecution in the Little Mount Caves, 8km south of the city centre. Entrance to the caves is beside steps leading to a statue of Our Lady of Good Health. Inside, next to a small natural window in the rock, are impressions of what are believed to be St Thomas' handprints, created when he made his escape through this tiny opening. Behind the new circular church of Our Lady of Good Health is a natural spring. Tradition has it that this was created when Thomas struck the rock, so the crowds that came to hear him preach could quench their thirst; samples of its holy water are on sale.

St Thomas Mount Mount Rd • Take a suburban train to Guindy railway station and walk from there It's said that St Thomas was speared to death while praying before a stone cross on St Thomas Mount, 11km south of the city centre. Our Lady of Expectation Church (1523), at the summit of the Mount, can be reached by 134 granite steps marked with the fourteen Stations of the Cross, or by a road which curls its way to the top, where a huge old banyan tree provides shade for devotees who come to fast, pray and sing. Inside the church, St Thomas' cross is rumoured to have bled in 1558, while the altar is said to mark the exact spot of the apostle's death; the painting of the Madonna and Child above the altar is attributed to St Luke.

Theosophical Society headquarters Adyar Bridge Rd, Besant Nagar (south of Mylapore) • Grounds Mon–Sat 8.30–10am & 2–4pm Bookshop Mon–Sat 9.30am–12.30pm & 2.30–5.30pm Library Tues–Sun 9am–5pm • Free • www.theosophical.org • Buses #5, #5C or #23C from George Town/Anna Salai The Theosophical Society was established in New York in 1875 by American Civil War veteran Colonel Henry S. Olcott and the eccentric Russian aristocrat Madame Helena Petrovna Blavatsky, who claimed to have occult powers. Based on a fundamental belief in the equality and truth of all religions, the society in fact propagated a modern form of Hinduism, praising all things Indian and shunning Christian missionaries. Needless to say, its two founders were greeted enthusiastically when they transferred their operations to Madras in 1882, establishing their headquarters near Elliot's Beach in Adyar.

The society's buildings still stand today, sheltering several shrines and an excellent library of books on religion and philosophy. The collection includes 800-year-old scroll pictures of the Buddha; rare Tibetan xylographs; exquisitely illuminated Korans; a giant copy of Martin Luther's Biblia printed in Nuremberg three hundred years ago; and a thumbnail-sized Bible in seven languages. Anybody is welcome to look around, but to gain full use of the library you have to register as a member.

The 270 acres of woodland and gardens surrounding the society's headquarters make a serene place to sit and restore the spirits. In the middle, a vast 400-year-old banyan tree, said to be the second largest in the world, can provide shade for up to three thousand people at a time. At the time of writing the grounds were closed but the bookshop was open.

Kalakshetra Foundation Kalakshetra Rd, Thiruvananthapuram, 15km south of the centre • Mon-Fri 8.30–11.30am, and also open on the 2nd & 4th Sat of month • Charge • www.kalakshetra.in • Take one of the many city bus routes to Thiruvananthapuram bus stand, 500m away Set in delightfully landscaped and shady grounds, the Kalakshetra Foundation was created in 1936 and has since established itself as the prime cultural organization for the study and performance of traditional Tamil song and dance. Visitors are welcome to quietly witness the morning classes and, of course, are encouraged to attend an evening performance whenever they are scheduled. The small Rukmini Devi Museum, named after the dancer whose success inspired the foundation, contains her personal collection of artistic objects, from stone and brass sculptures to delicate fabrics and fine paintings. There is also a great craft centre, complete with shop.

Cholamandal Artists' Village Injambakkam, 24km south of the centre • Daily 9.30am–6.30pm • Grounds free; museum charge • www.cholamandalartistvillage.com • Any ECR bus destined for Mamallapuram and Puducherry passes close to the entrance Tucked beside the beach in the sprawling southern suburbs of Chennai, the Cholamandal Artists' Village was established in the mid-1960s to encourage contemporary Indian art. In a country where visual culture is so comprehensively dominated by convention, fostering innovation and artistic experimentation proved no easy feat. Despite an initially hostile response from the Madras establishment (who allegedly regarded the tropical storm that destroyed the artists' first settlement as an act of nemesis), the village has prospered. Today, Cholamandal's thirty-strong community has several studios and a large museum filled with paintings, sketches, sculpture and metalwork, as well as a shop selling work produced here.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE CHENNAI CHENNAI AIRPORT THE AIRPORT, IN TIRISULAM, 16KM SOUTH-WEST OF THE CITY CENTRE ON NH-45, IS COMPREHENSIVELY SERVED BY INTERNATIONAL AND DOMESTIC FLIGHTS. THE NEW INTERNATIONAL AND DOMESTIC TERMINALS ARE A SHORT WALK FROM EACH OTHER, ON OPPOSITE SIDES OF THE OLD TERMINAL. FACILITIES AT BOTH ARE MUCH BETTER ON THE AIR SIDE THAN THE LAND SIDE. THE TAMIL NADU TOURIST INFORMATION CENTRE AT THE ARRIVALS EXIT CAN BOOK ACCOMMODATION.

Getting into town The quickest and cheapest way to get into town is by suburban train from Tirisulam station, 400m from the airport on the far side of the road, to Park, Egmore and North Beach stations (30–40min). There are prepaid taxi counters at both terminals for the ever-congested ride to the main hotels or railway stations; from the main road, rickshaws charge ₹400, not much less than taxis. Taxis straight down the coast to Mamallapuram cost around ₹1300. Buses #70 and #70A go to Mofussil Bus Stand (see below) in Koyambedu suburb, from where you can connect to other destinations. Uber is also a great option to get to the city and is a cheap, reliable and convenient mode of transport.

Airlines, international Air India 📞044 2345 3303, airport 📞044 2256 6002; American Airlines 📞 91-124-2567222; British Airways 📞1860 180 3592; Emirates 📞044 6683 4400; Gulf Air 📞044 22566446; Lufthansa 📞044 22569393; Qatar Airways 📞 +91-79-3061-6000; Singapore Airlines 📞044 45921921; Sri Lankan Airlines 📞044 4392 1100; Thai Airways 📞044 4206 3311. Most offices are open Mon–Fri 10am–5pm, Sat 10am–1pm.

BY TRAIN CHENNAI HAS TWO MAIN LONG-DISTANCE RAILWAY STATIONS – EGMORE AND CENTRAL, BOTH ON THE NORTH SIDE OF THE CITY CENTRE AND JUST 1.5KM APART. EGMORE STATION IS THE ARRIVAL POINT FOR MOST TRAINS FROM TAMIL NADU AND KERALA; ITS BOOKING OFFICE, UP THE STAIRS LEFT OF THE MAIN ENTRANCE, HANDLES BOOKINGS FOR BOTH STATIONS. THERE IS ALSO AN EFFICIENT TOURIST RESERVATION COUNTER (MON–SAT 8AM–8PM, SUN 8AM–2PM) ON THE FIRST FLOOR OF THE MOORE MARKET COMPLEX (NEXT TO THE MAIN CENTRAL STATION BUILDING), WHICH SELLS TICKETS FOR TRAINS FROM BOTH STATIONS. BOTH STATIONS HAVE LEFT-LUGGAGE OFFICES. THE OCCASIONAL SERVICE FOR SOUTHERN TAMIL NADU LEAVES FROM THE SUBURBAN TAMBARAM STATION.

BY BUS MOFUSSIL BUS STAND BUSES FROM ALL LONG-DISTANCE DESTINATIONS USE THE HUGE MOFUSSIL BUS STAND, INCONVENIENTLY SITUATED IN THE SUBURB OF KOYAMBEDU, MORE THAN 10KM WEST OF THE CENTRE. MOFUSSIL IS LINKED TO OTHER PARTS OF CHENNAI BY A HOST OF CITY BUSES, WHICH DEPART FROM THE WELL-ORGANIZED PLATFORMS OUTSIDE THE MAIN TERMINAL: BUSES #27, #15B, #15F AND #17E GO TO THE EGMORE/CENTRAL AREA AND PARRY’S CORNER; BUS #27B ALSO GOES ON TO TRIPLICANE; WHILE BUSES #70 AND #70A LINK THE BUS STAND WITH THE AIRPORT. NOTE THAT ALL EXPRESS ECR BUSES FROM MAMALLAPURAM, PUDUCHERRY AND OTHER COASTAL TOWNS TO THE SOUTH OF CHENNAI STOP AT GUINDY SUBURBAN RAILWAY STATION; TAKING A TRAIN IN FROM THERE SAVES TIME.

Destinations The six platforms at Mofussil are each divided into thirty-odd bays, with frequent services to destinations throughout Tamil Nadu and neighbouring states, including Bengaluru (every 15–30min; 8–10hr); Chengalpattu (every 5–10min; 1hr 30min–2hr); Chidambaram (20 daily; 6–7hr); Coimbatore (every 30min; 11–12hr); Kanchipuram (every 20min; 1hr 30min–2hr); Kanyakumari (10 daily; 15–17hr); Kodaikanal (1 daily; 14–15hr); Kumbakonam (every 30min; 7–8hr); Madurai (every 20–30min; 10hr); Mamallapuram (every 15–30min; 2hr); Puducherry (every 15–30min; 4–5hr); Rameshwaram (3 daily; 13–14hr); Thanjavur (20 daily; 8–9hr); Thiruvananthapuram (6 daily; 18–20hr); Tiruchirapalli (every 15–30min; 8–10hr); Tirupati (every 30min–1hr; 4–5hr); Tiruvannamalai (every 20–30min; 4–5hr); Udhagamandalam (Ooty) (2 daily; 14–15hr).

BY BOAT BOATS LEAVE CHENNAI EVERY WEEK/TEN DAYS FOR PORT BLAIR, CAPITAL OF THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS. THE FIRST THING YOU’LL NEED TO DO IS CONTACT THE SHIPPING CORPORATION OF INDIA AT 17 RAJAJI SALAI, JAWAHAR BUILDING, GEORGE TOWN (☎044 2523 1401, 🌐 SHIPINDIA.COM) TO FIND OUT WHEN THE NEXT SAILING IS AND WHEN TICKETS GO ON SALE, USUALLY UP TO A MONTH PRIOR TO DEPARTURE. THERE ARE NO TICKET SALES ON THE DAY OF SAILING. PERMITS FOR UP TO THIRTY DAYS ARE GIVEN ON ARRIVAL IN PORT BLAIR. THE ANDAMAN INFORMATION CENTRE (MON–FRI 10AM–5.30PM, SAT 10AM–1PM; ☎044 2533 3952) IS IN THE TAMIL NADU TOURISM COMPLEX, 2 WALLAJAH RD, TRIPLICANE. FOR MORE DETAILS, SEE THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS CHAPTER.

RECOMMENDED TRAINS FROM CHENNAI

Destination	Name	No.	From	Departs	Arrives
Bengaluru	Shatabdi Express	#12007	Central	6.00am*	10.50am
	Double Decker	#22625	Central	7.25am	5.00pm
Coimbatore	Kovai Express	#12675	Central	6.15am	1.45pm
	Cheran Express	#12673	Central	10.10pm	6.15am+

Hyderabad	Charminar Express	#12759 Central 6.10pm 8.00am+
Kanyakumari	Kanyakumari Express	#12633 Egmore 5.15pm 6.20am+
Kochi/Ernakulam	Alleppey Express	#22639 Central 09.05pm 8.40am+
	Trivandrum Mail	#12623 Central 7.45pm 7.08am+
Kodaikanal Road	Pandian Express	#12637 Egmore 9.40pm 4.40am+
Madurai	Vaigai Express	#12635 Egmore 1.40pm 9.25pm
	Pandian Express	#12637 Egmore 9.40pm 5.45am+
Mettupalayam (for Ooty)	Nilagiri Express	#12671 Central 08.55pm 6.15am+
Mumbai	Mumbai Express	#11042 Central 12.20am 1.35pm+
	Chennai Express	#12164 Egmore 6.45am 6.00am+
Mysuru	Shatabdi Express	#12007 Central 6.00am* 1.00pm
	Mysore Express	#22682 Central 11.30pm 8.20am+
Rameshwaram	R'waram Express	#22661 Egmore 5.50pm 4.35am+
Thanjavur	Trichy Express	#16795 Egmore 8.00am 2.15pm
Tiruchirapalli	Guruvayur Express	#16127 Egmore 08.15am 1.30pm
	Vaigai Express	#12635 Egmore 1.40pm 6.30pm
Thiruvananthapuram	Trivandrum Mail	#12623 Central 7.45pm 12.15pm+

Tirupati

Sapthagiri Express

#16057 Central 6.25am 9.40am

*Except Wed; a/c only, + next day

GETTING AROUND CHENNAI'S SIGHTS AND FACILITIES ARE SPREAD OVER SUCH A WIDE AREA THAT IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO GET AROUND WITHOUT USING SOME FORM OF PUBLIC TRANSPORT. MOST VISITORS JUMP IN AUTO-RICKSHAWS AND UBER TAXIS BUT OUTSIDE RUSH HOURS YOU CAN TRAVEL AROUND COMFORTABLY BY METRO, BUS OR ON THE SUBURBAN TRAIN (MASS RAPID TRANSPORT SYSTEM; SEE BELOW). AT THE TIME OF WRITING, THE SECTION OF THE NEW CHENNAI METRO (www.CHENNAIMETRORAIL.GOV.IN) BETWEEN KOYAMBEDU AND ALANDUR WAS UP AND RUNNING, AS WAS THE LINE FROM LITTLE MOUNT TO THE AIRPORT.

By train If you want to travel south from central Chennai to Guindy (Deer Park) or the airport, the easiest way to go is by suburban train (aka the MRST). Services run every 15min (on average) between 4.30am and 11pm, prices are minimal, and they only get overcrowded during rush hours (around 7–9am & 4–6pm). Buy a ticket before boarding. City trains travel between Beach (opposite the GPO), Fort, Park (for Central), Egmore, Nungambakkam, Kodambakkam, Mambalam (for T Nagar and silk shops), Saidapet (for Little Mount Church), Guindy, St Thomas Mount and Tirusulam (for the airport).

By bus Local bus routes radiate out from the amalgamated Express and Broadway bus stands, between Central train station and George Town. On Anna Salai and other major thoroughfares buses have dedicated stops, but on smaller streets you have to flag them down, or wait with the obvious crowd. Numbers of services to specific places of interest in the city are listed in the relevant accounts, while those to and from the Mofussil Bus Stand are listed in “Arrival and departure”.

By rickshaw Auto-rickshaw drivers in Chennai are notorious for demanding high fares from locals and tourists alike. The diversions and one-way systems in place due to the construction of the metro are having a considerable effect on journey times and hence rickshaw prices. It's worth asking two or three drivers to compare prices and then haggle. If you need to get to the airport or station early in the morning, expect to pay up to ₹500. Arrange in advance.

By taxi Uber is the most convenient and reliable form of transport if you want to catch a taxi as all drivers speak English. Chennai's taxis have meters but drivers often refuse to use them, so prepare yourself for some hard bargaining. At around ₹200 from Central station to Triplicane, they're practically pricing themselves out of business. For this reason, more reliable and economical radio taxis such as Bharati Call Taxi (☎044 2814 2233) are popular.

By car Private cars (with driver) can be booked at any of the city's upmarket hotels, through TTDC or with one of the numerous private tour agents (see below).

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE TAMIL NADU TOURISM DEVELOPMENT OFFICE, 2 WALLAJAH RD, TRIPPLICANE (THEORETICALLY OPEN 24HR; ☎044 2533 3333, TAMILNADUTOURISM.ORG), HOUSES SEVERAL OTHER STATE TOURIST OFFICES INCLUDING THE OFFICE OF THE ANDAMANS. YOU CAN PICK UP CHENNAI AND TAMIL NADU MAPS HERE. THE INDIA TOURISM OFFICE, 154 ANNA SALAI (MON–FRI 9.15AM–5.45PM; ☎044 2846 1459, INCREDIBLEINDIA.ORG), IS FAR MORE HELPFUL AND PROVIDES INFORMATION, MAPS AND BROCHURES FOR THE WHOLE OF INDIA.

Services A useful and centrally located travel agent and exchange facility is Thomas Cook, 112 Nungambakkam High Road, Eldorado (Mon–Sat 9.30am–6pm; ☎044 2825 5909).

ACCOMMODATION FINDING AN INEXPENSIVE PLACE TO STAY IN CHENNAI CAN SOMETIMES BE A PROBLEM. WITH THE 24HR CHECKOUT SYSTEM IT'S DIFFICULT TO PREDICT AVAILABILITY AND SOME OF THE CHEAPER PLACES DON'T TAKE ADVANCE BOOKINGS. THE GOOD NEWS IS THAT STANDARDS IN THE CHEAPIES ARE BETTER THAN IN OTHER CITIES. MOST OF THE MID-RANGE AND INEXPENSIVE HOTELS ARE AROUND THE RAILWAY STATION IN EGMORE AND FURTHER EAST IN TRIPPLICANE. THE BULK OF THE TOP HOTELS ARE IN THE SOUTH OF THE CITY AND SEVERAL OFFER COURTESY BUSES TO AND FROM THE AIRPORT.

EGMORE, MAP

Chandra Park 9 Gandhi Irwin Rd, opposite the station 🌐 hotelchandrapark.com. Clean-cut business hotel with central a/c, foreign exchange, 24hr coffee shop, bar, and rather disappointing restaurant. The spacious, light and well-furnished standard rooms are a very good deal. All rooms include taxes. ₹₹

Marina Inn 55/31 Gandhi Irwin Rd 🌐 marinainn.in. Very smart business-style hotel with central a/c around 200m to the right as you exit Egmore station. The double rooms, though not big, are tastefully decorated and very clean, with LCD TVs; there's also a multicuisine restaurant and bar. All rooms include taxes. Double ₹₹

★Pandian 15 Kennet Lane 🌐 hotelpandian.com. Very smart two-star hotel with spotless, brightly coloured rooms, breakfast included and free wi-fi. ₹₹

Udipi Home 34 Police Commissioner Office Rd 🌐 udipihome.in. One of the old and traditional three-star hotels with comfortable rooms, clean and spacious with a very good vegetarian restaurant. Highly recommended and very close to the railway station. Free Wifi. ₹₹

CHENNAI TOURS ONE GOOD WAY TO GET AROUND THE SIGHTS OF CHENNAI IS ON A TTDC BUS TOUR; BOOKINGS ARE TAKEN AT ITS OFFICE. THEY'RE GOOD VALUE, ALBEIT RUSHED, AND THE GUIDES CAN BE VERY HELPFUL. THE TTDC HALF-DAY TOUR (DAILY 8AM–1PM OR 1.30–6.30PM; ₹300 NON-A/C, ₹375 A/C) TAKES IN FORT ST GEORGE, THE GOVERNMENT MUSEUM (BIRLA PLANETARIUM ON FRI), THE SNAKE PARK, KAPALEESHWARAR

TEMPLE, AND MARINA BEACH. TTDC ALSO OFFERS GOOD-VALUE DAY-TRIPS, INCLUDING VISITS TO MAMALLAPURAM, KANCHIPURAM (DAILY 6.30AM–7PM; ₹825 NON-A/C, ₹1025 A/C), AND PUDUCHERRY (SAT & SUN 6.30AM–7PM; ₹750 NON-A/C, ₹925 A/C), WITH MEALS INCLUDED IN THE TARIFF; CHECK AT THE OFFICE FOR OTHER ITINERARIES AND FURTHER DETAILS.

Storytrails (☎044 4501 0202, 🌐storytrails.in) conducts a number of fascinating and expertly led, themed walking tours, with enticing titles such as Bazaar Trail, Spice Trail, British Blueprints and Steeple Chase. Prices vary according to the number of people but reckon on around ₹1000 per person for a small group. A perennially popular tour among bikers is the one offered by the Royal Enfield motorcycle factory around 18km north of the centre in Tiruvottiyur (every 2nd & 4th Sat of month 10am; ₹600 per person; ☎1800 210 0007, 🌐royalenfield.com).

★YWCA 1086 Periyar EVR High Rd 🌐ywcamadras.org. Attractive hotel in quiet gardens, behind Egmore station, with spotless, spacious rooms, safe-deposit, and a good restaurant. A highly recommended, safe and friendly place; book in advance. Rates include a buffet breakfast. ₹₹

ANNA SALAI AND TRIPLICANE, MAP

Broadlands 18 Vallaba Agraharam St, Triplicane 📍
broadlandshotel@yahoo.com. Reception is in an old, whitewashed house, from which stretches a maze of corridors, outbuildings and courtyards. This is a budget travellers' enclave with character. There's a wide range of rooms, some with private balconies. ₹

Connemara Binny Rd 🌐tajhotels.com. Dating from the Raj era, this whitewashed Art Deco five-star near Anna Salai, owned by Taj Hotels, is a Chennai institution and has just reopened after a two-year renovation. The large heritage rooms feature Victorian decor, dressing rooms and verandas overlooking the pool. There's also a health club, 24hr coffee shop, two excellent restaurants and a bar. ₹₹₹₹

La Woods 1 Woods Rd 📍lawoodshotel.com. Good-value, mid-range hotel with central a/c. The comfortable and nicely decorated rooms have modern plumbing, lighting and media hub, while Italian marble flooring throughout gives a bright and airy feel. Breakfast included. Double ₹₹₹

★Paradise 17/1 Vallaba Agraharam St, Triplicane 📍paradiseguesthouse.co.in. A friendly and dependable hotel, offering inexpensive rooms with attached bathrooms, TVs, and a choice of Western or Indian loos. There are two blocks, old and new, right next to each other; rooms in the new block are slightly bigger and cleaner. There's also a large roof terrace, travel facilities and exchange. Good value. Ideal for backpackers, but not recommended for families. ₹₹

OUTSIDE THE CENTRE, MAP

Crowne Plaza 132 TTK Rd 📍crownplaza.com. The last word in American-style executive luxury, with great online deals. There are several excellent restaurants, a 24hr coffee shop, gym and spa. The spacious rooms with plush furnishings make it a first-rate choice. Most room tariffs include breakfast. ₹₹₹₹

New Woodlands 72–75 Dr Radhakrishnan Salai 📍newwoodlands.com. Sprawling complex of spacious, self-contained apartments called cottages have a/c and are clean, reasonably sized rooms in the main block. There are also two good restaurants and a swimming pool. ₹₹

Shelter 19–21 Venkatesa Agraharam St, Mylapore 📍hotelshelter.com. A stone's throw from the Kapaleeshwarar Temple, this sparklingly clean luxury three-star hotel with good restaurants and a bar is better value than most upmarket places. ₹₹₹

EATING CHENNAI OFFERS THE COMPLETE RANGE OF DINING OPTIONS YOU WOULD EXPECT FROM A MAJOR CITY, RANGING FROM DIRT-CHEAP VEGETARIAN “MEALS” JOINTS TO HIGH-CLASS WESTERNIZED HOTEL RESTAURANTS, WITH SOME UNIQUE INDEPENDENT VENUES IN BETWEEN.

EGMORE, MAP

Mathsya 1 Halls Road 📞044 28192030 Casa Major Road. This famous vegetarian restaurant serving both south and north Indian cuisine is always crowded and is open for breakfast, lunch and dinner. Try their popular dosais and the thalis or meals, especially the traditional Udupi thali. ₹₹

Saravana Bhavan 21 Kennet Lane 📍saravanabhavan.com. This famous south Indian fast-food chain is an institution in Chennai, with more than twenty branches dotted around the city, plus more state-wide and international locations. Try one of the many set meals and finish with a jigarthanda or a payasam. ₹

★Vasanta Bhavan 20 Gandhi Irwin Rd 📞044 2819 2354. One of the best-value joints around the station, with ranks of attentive waiters and delicious pure-veg food that includes a generous thali, plus great variety of dosas and so on. It's busy, spotlessly clean, and its coffee and sweets are delicious too. ₹

ANNA SALAI AND TRIPLICANE, MAP

Amethyst Next to Corporation Bank, White's Rd 📍amethystchennai.com. Delightfully lush garden café with tables set among ferns and palms along a veranda and in an a/c hall. There are toasted sandwiches, a range of coffees, fresh veg and fruit juices and filling main courses such as bangers and mash. ₹₹

★Annalakshmi 1st floor, Sigapi Achi Building (behind Air India office), 18/3 Rukmani Lakshmipathy Rd 📞044 2852 5109. This beautifully decorated restaurant is a charitable venture run voluntarily by Sivananda devotees, whose profits go to the community. You can choose between pricey set menus with different Ayurvedic properties or order à la carte dishes. ₹₹₹₹

Firdouse 307 Triplicane High Road 📞044 4215 7174. One of Triplicane's best, with an extensive menu of north and south Indian food: aloo parathas, a range of chicken dishes, vegetarian options and biryanis; also caramel custard. Clean, with a separate a/c dining area. ₹₹

Mogal Biryani Triplicane High Rd, near the junction with Wallajah Rd. A tiny dhaba, the best of many such places on this road, with few tables but serving up tasty chicken in tandoori, kebab and biryani. ₹

The Raintree/The Verandah Connemara hotel, Binny Rd 📞044 6600 0000. Occupying a classy wooden building at the rear of the compound, The Raintree specializes in set Chettinad meals, while The Verandah is a high-quality multicuisine restaurant. ₹₹₹

Sennthur 154 Anna Salai, opposite Spencer Plaza ☎91766 23490. Large, centrally located “banana-leaf” restaurant very popular with locals. There are two main eating areas, non-a/c at the front and a slightly more expensive a/c hall at the back. “Meals” are served from 11.30am–3.30pm; also north Indian dishes. ₹

OUTSIDE THE CENTRE, MAP

Amaravathi Corner of Cathedral and TTK roads ☎044 2811 7000. One of four dependable options in this complex of regional speciality restaurants, south of the downtown area. This branch does excellent Andhra food, including particularly tasty Andhra style biryanis. ₹

★Dakshin/The Residency Crowne Plaza hotel, 132 TTK Rd ☎044 2499 4101. The Dakshin is one of the country’s top south Indian restaurants, serving a range of unusual dishes, including seafood in marinated spices, Karnataka mutton biryani and appam. Live Carnatic music in the evenings. The Residency serves multicuisine, including Southeast Asian, Chinese and European dishes. Book in advance. ₹₹₹₹

Don Pepé 1st floor, above Hot Breads, 73 Cathedral Rd ☎044 2811 0343. Swish a/c Tex-Mex joint, serving a predictable menu of fajitas, enchiladas, tortillas and burritos, plus a selection of average pasta dishes (dubbed “Euro-Mex”). ₹₹

Junior Kuppanna Thirumurthy Nagar, Nungambakkam 139/140 Marshalls Rd ☎7548827775. This is a specialist biryani place, serving tasty regional Ambur style plain, chicken and mutton versions using samba rice. There is also a takeaway option where biryani is loaded into a mini bucket (which looks more like an ice-cream tub), and there are special value meals with regional delicacies as well. ₹₹

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP

Chennai’s bar and club scene has been growing along with the disposable income of the local middle class. Triplicane, however, is almost dry and Egmore doesn’t offer much, so most of the major nightspots are located in the top-end hotels dotted around the south side of the city. Expect cover charges including a drink of up to ₹1000 per person. Check out whatshot.in/chennai for the latest trends.

10 Downing St Kences Inn, 50 North Boag Rd, T Nagar 📍 10ds.in/chennai. As you might guess from the name, there's an austere English feel to the decor at this chain pub but there's no holds barred on the fun front, with ladies' nights on Wednesdays and karaoke Thursdays.

Illusions – The Madras Pub 105 Dr Radhakrishnan Salai, Mylapore 📞 044 4214 4449. First-floor bar with snazzy modern design in its artwork and furniture. Popular with clubbers and celebrities for its mix of rock, hip-hop and Bollywood nights.

Leather Bar Park hotel Plot 601, Anna Salai 📍 theparkhotels.com. A favourite of Chennai's young, moneyed crowd – especially at weekends – this smart hotel bar gains its name from the black leather furniture throughout. The wide range of drinks includes plenty of cocktails, which you can sip alfresco on the spill-out terrace area.

Paddington Sports Pub 132 Chamiers Rd, Nandanam 📞 044 2434 8440. Large sports bar complete with billiards room, smart restaurant area and a goalpost-shaped bar. They also serve Indian and Chinese food.

QBar Hilton Chennai, 10th Floor, 124/1 Jawaharlal Nehru Salai, Guindy 📞 044 22255555. Poolside rooftop club with an ambient soundtrack provided by the resident DJ. They serve a good selection of beers and wines, cocktails and mocktails.

Zara The Tapas Bar 71 Cathedral Rd, Gopalapuram 📞 044 2811 1462. A dizzying mishmash of neon lighting, TV screens flashing images and trendy decor, where you can sample good cocktails and snack on the idiosyncratic take on tapas. Themed club nights, such as Retro Thursdays.

ENTERTAINMENT CINEMA THERE IS PLENTY OF ENTERTAINMENT ON OFFER IN CHENNAI, INCLUDING A NUMBER OF HIGH-QUALITY CINEMAS SHOWING ENGLISH, HINDI AND, OF COURSE, TAMIL FILMS, SUCH AS THE SWISH SATHYAM CHAIN (📍 SPICINEMAS.IN).

Music The annual Carnatic music festival runs from mid-December to mid-February, with the main concerts taking place at the music academy on TTK Rd. You can find details of other classical music and dance performances at 📍 kutcherbuzz.com.

SHOPPING

MAP AND THIS MAP

Higginbothams 116 Anna Salai ☎044 2852 0640. One of the largest stores of the nationwide bookseller, packed with hardbacks and paperbacks on every subject imaginable. Very strong local history, philosophy and religion sections.

Indian Arts Emporium 152 Anna Salai ☎044 2846 0560. This row of crafts shops has a wide range of bronzes, ornaments, silks and carpets for sale among them.

Kalakshetra Foundation craft shop Kalakshetra Rd, Thiruvannamipur ☎044 2452 5423, 🌐kalakshetra.in. The shop here sells a huge array of quality handmade crafts, from silk and silk/cotton saris to larger woven items and accessories such as bags.

Nalli Chinnasami Chetty 9 Nageswaran Rd, T Nagar 🌐nallisilks.com. Huge branch of this famous silk shop, selling an array of saris and other items, including some of Kanchipuram's best products.

Poompuhar 108 Anna Salai 🌐tnpoompuhar.org. Tamil Nadu's official state handicrafts showroom stocks all sorts of souvenirs, from small trinkets to huge bronze Nataraj replicas.

Spencer Plaza Anna Salai ☎044 2849 1001. Chennai's original mall with its glass-roofed atrium is packed with hundreds of shops, from chains such as Bata to small independent clothes outlets. Also boasts forex agents and fast food aplenty.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND CURRENCY EXCHANGE CHENNAI HAS PLENTY OF BANKS, THOUGH THE MAJOR HOTELS OFFER EXCHANGE FACILITIES TO RESIDENTS ONLY. THOMAS COOK (MON–SAT 9AM–6PM) HAS OFFICES AT THE G-4 ELDORADO BUILDING, 112 UTTAR GANDHI SALAI. THERE ARE FOREX AGENTS AT THE AIRPORT AND IN SPENCER PLAZA (SEE ABOVE).

Consulates Australia, 9th Floor, Express Chambers, 49–50 Whites Rd, Royapettah ☎044 4592 1300; Canada, Suite No 205, Hotel Park Hyatt, 39 Velachery Road, Little Mount, Guindy, ☎044 71000201; New Zealand, 132 Cathedral Rd ☎044 2811 2472; South Africa, 234 NSC Bose Rd ☎044 2530 6789; Sri Lanka, 56 Sterling Rd, Nungambakkam ☎044 2824 1896; UK, 20 Anderson Rd, Nungambakkam ☎044 4219 2151; US, Gemini Circle, Anna Salai ☎044 28112000.

Hospitals Chennai's best-equipped private hospital is the Apollo, 21 Greaves Lane (☎044 2829 3333, 🌐chennai.apollohospitals.com). For an ambulance, try ☎102, but it's usually quicker to jump in a taxi.

Post office Chennai's main post office is opposite Shanti theatre on Anna Salai (Mon–Sat 8am–8pm, Sun 10am–5pm). There are smaller branches in both Egmore and Triplicane.

Travel agents Reliable agents include Macro Hawk Flight Travels, Munoth Centre, 343 Triplicane High Rd ☎044 2852 8585, 📧macrohawk05@yahoo.com; Thomas Cook, Eldorado Building, 112 Nungambakkam High Rd ☎044 2827 5052, 🌐thomascook.in; Trade-wings, 713 Anna Salai ☎044 4203 7101, 🌐tradewingstravels.in; and Welcome Tours & Travels, 150 Anna Salai ☎044 2846 0677, 🌐tradewings.in.

The northeast Fazed by the heat and air pollution of Chennai, most visitors head down the Coromandel coast to India's stone-carving capital, Mamallapuram. En route, it's worth stopping at Dakshina Chitra, a folk museum around 30km south of Chennai, where traditional buildings from across south India have been beautifully reconstructed. Further inland, Kanchipuram is an important pilgrimage and silk-sari-weaving town from where you can loop southwest to the atmospheric temple town of Tiruvannamalai, situated at the base of the sacred mountain, Arunachala. Along the coast, you can breakfast on croissants and espresso coffee in the former French colony of Puducherry, which is a Union Territory and not administratively a part of Tamil Nadu. A short way north, Auroville, the Utopian settlement founded by followers of the Sri Aurobindo Ghose's spiritual successor, The Mother, provides a New Age haven for soul-searching Westerners and an economy for the local population.

Mamallapuram and around Scattered around the base of a colossal mound of boulders 58km south of Chennai is the small seaside town and UNESCO World Heritage Site of MAMALLAPURAM (formerly Mahabalipuram). From dawn till dusk, the rhythms of chisels chipping granite resound down its sandy lanes – evidence of a stone-carving tradition that has endured since this was a major port of the Pallava dynasty, between the fifth and ninth centuries. It is only possible to speculate about the purpose of much of the boulder sculpture, but it appears that the friezes and shrines were not made for worship at all, but rather as showcases for the talents of local artists. Due in no small part to the maritime activities of the Pallavas, their style of art and architecture had wide-ranging influence, spreading from south India as far north as Ellora, as well as to Southeast Asia.

Mamallapuram's monuments divide into four categories: open-air bas-reliefs, structured temples, man-made caves and rathas ("chariots" carved in situ from single boulders to resemble temples or the chariots used in temple processions). The famous bas-reliefs, Arjuna's Penance and the Krishna Mandapa, adorn massive rocks near the centre of the village, while the beautiful Shore Temple, one of India's most photographed monuments, presides over the beach. Sixteen man-made caves and monolithic structures, in different stages of completion, are scattered through the area, but the most complete of the nine rathas are in a group, named after the five Pandava brothers of the Mahabharata.

Given the coexistence of so many stunning archaeological remains with a long sandy beach, it was inevitable this would become a major destination for Western travellers, with the inevitable presence of Kashmiri emporia, beach hawkers, budget hotels and fish restaurants – and more recently hordes of Chennai-escapees descending at the weekends as well. The sandy hinterland and flat estuarine paddy fields around Mamallapuram also harbour a handful of sights well worth making forays from the coast to see. You can take any coastal bus between Mamallapuram and Chennai, or rent a moped for the day.

The Shore Temple Daily 6am–6pm (ticket office closes 5.30pm) • Charge, includes Pancha Pandava rathas if visited on the same day With its unforgettable silhouette, visible for kilometres along the beach, Mamallapuram's Shore Temple dates from the early eighth century and is considered to be the earliest stone-built temple in south India. Today, due to the combined forces of wind, salt and sand, much of the detailed carving has eroded, giving the whole temple a soft, rounded appearance.

The taller of the towers is raised above a cell that faces out to sea – don't be surprised to see mischievous monkeys crouching inside. Approached from the west through two low-walled enclosures lined with small Nandi (bull) figures, the temple comprises two lingam shrines (one facing east, the other west), and a third shrine between them housing an image of the reclining Vishnu. Recent excavations, revealing a tank containing a structured stone column thought to have been a lantern, and a large Varaha (boar incarnation of Vishnu) aligned with the Vishnu shrine, suggest that the area was sacred long before the Pallavas chose it as a temple site.

Arjuna's Penance Mamallapuram's most celebrated bas-relief, Arjuna's Penance (also referred to as the "Descent of the Ganges"), lies directly west of the bus stand behind the modern Talasayana Perumal Temple. The surface of this rock erupts with detailed carving, most notably endearing and naturalistic renditions of animals. On the left-hand side, Arjuna, one of the Pandava brothers and a consummate archer, is shown standing on one leg. He is looking at the midday sun through a prism formed by his hands, meditating on Shiva, who is represented by a nearby statue fashioned by Arjuna himself. The Shiva Purana says that Arjuna made the journey to a forest on the banks of the Ganges to do penance, in the hope that Shiva would part with his favourite weapon, the pashupatashastra, a magic staff or arrow. Shiva eventually materialized in the guise of Kirata, a wild forest-dweller, and picked a fight with Arjuna over a boar they both claimed to have shot. Arjuna only realized he was dealing with the deity after his attempts to drub the wild man proved futile; narrowly escaping death at the playful hand of Shiva, he was finally rewarded with the weapon. To the right of Arjuna, a natural cleft represents the Ganges, complete with nagas – water spirits in the form of cobras. You may well see sudden movements among the carved animals: lazing goats often join the permanent features.

Ganesha Ratha and Krishna's Butter Ball Just north of Arjuna's Penance a path leads west and uphill to a single monolith, the Ganesha Ratha. Its image of Ganesh dates from this century; some say it was installed at the instigation of England's King George V. The sculpture at one end of a protecting demon with a tricorn headdress is reminiscent of the Indus Valley Civilization's 4000-year-old horned figure known as the "proto-Shiva". Further north up the hill, precipitously balanced on the top of a ridge, is a massive, natural, almost spherical boulder called Krishna's Butter Ball. Picnickers and goats often rest in its perilous-looking shade.

Varaha Mandapa II Cave On the hill behind Arjuna's Penance, southwest of the Ganesha Ratha, is the Varaha Mandapa II Cave, whose entrance hall has two pillars with horned lion-bases and a cell flanked by two dvarapalas, or guardians. One of four panels shows the boar-incarnation of Vishnu, who stands with one foot resting on the naga snake-king as he lifts a diminutive Prithvi – the Earth – from the primordial ocean. Another is of Gajalakshmi, the goddess Lakshmi seated on a lotus being bathed by a pair of elephants. Trivikrama, the dwarf brahmin who becomes huge and bestrides the world in three steps to defeat the demon king Bali, is shown in another panel, and finally a four-armed Durga is depicted in another.

The Krishna Mandapa Immediately south of Arjuna's Penance, the enormous bas-relief known as the Krishna Mandapa shows Krishna raising Mount Govardhana aloft in one hand. The sculptor's original intention must have been for the rock above Krishna to represent the mountain, but the seventeenth-century Vijayanagar addition of a columned mandapa, or entrance hall, prevents a clear view of the carving. Krishna is also depicted seated milking a cow and standing playing the flute. Other figures are gopas and gopis, the cowboys and -girls of his pastoral youth.

The lighthouses Around 300m south of Arjuna's Penance, at the highest point in an area of steep paths, unfinished temples, ruins, scampering monkeys and massive rocks, the New Lighthouse affords fine views east to the Shore Temple, and west across paddy fields and flat lands littered with rocks. Next to it, the Olakanesvara ("flame-eyed" Shiva), or Old Lighthouse Temple, used as a lighthouse until the early twentieth century, dates from the Rajasimha period (674–800 AD).

Mahishasuramardini Cave Nestling between the two lighthouses is the Mahishasuramardini Cave, whose central image portrays Shiva and Parvati with the child Murugan seated on Parvati's lap. Shiva's right footrests on the back of the bull Nandi, and Parvati sits casually, leaning on her left hand. On the left wall, beyond an empty cell, a panel depicts Vishnu reclining on the serpent, his attitude of repose contrasted with the weapon-brandishing demons, Madhu and Kaithaba. Other figures seek Vishnu's permission to chase them. Opposite, an intricately carved panel shows the eight-armed goddess Durga as Mahishasuramardini, the "crusher" of the buffalo demon Mahishasura. The panel shows Durga riding a lion, in the midst of the struggle. Accompanied by dwarf ganas, she wields a bow and other weapons; Mahishasura, equipped with a club, can be seen to the right, in flight with fellow demons.

THE TEMPLES OF TAMIL NADU NO INDIAN STATE IS MORE DOMINATED BY ITS TEMPLES THAN TAMIL NADU, WHERE TEMPLE ARCHITECTURE CATALOGUES THE TASTES OF SUCCESSIVE DYNASTIES AND TESTIFIES TO THE CENTRALITY OF RELIGION IN EVERYDAY LIFE. MOST TEMPLES ARE BUILT IN HONOUR OF SHIVA, VISHNU AND THEIR CONSORTS; ALL ARE CHARACTERIZED NOT ONLY BY THEIR DESIGN AND SCULPTURES, BUT ALSO BY CONSTANT ACTIVITY: DEVOTION, DANCING, SINGING, PUJAS, FESTIVALS AND FEASTS. EACH IS TENDED BY BRAHMIN PRIESTS, RECOGNIZABLE BY THEIR DHOTIS (A GARMENT TIED AROUND WAIST THAT COVERS THE LOWER BODY UNTIL THE LEGS), A SACRED THREAD DRAPED OVER THE RIGHT SHOULDER, AND MARKS ON THE FOREHEAD. ONE TO THREE HORIZONTAL (USUALLY WHITE) LINES DISTINGUISH SHAIVITES; VERTICAL LINES (YELLOW OR RED), OFTEN CONVERGING INTO A NEAR-V SHAPE, ARE COMMON AMONG VAISHNAVITES.

DRAVIDA ARCHITECTURE DRAVIDA, THE TEMPLE ARCHITECTURE OF TAMIL NADU, FIRST TOOK FORM IN THE PALLAVA PORT OF MAMALLAPURAM. A STEP-UP FROM THE CAVE RETREATS OF HINDU AND JAIN ASCETICS, THE EARLIEST PALLAVA MONUMENTS WERE MANDAPAS, SHRINES CUT INTO ROCK FACES AND FRONTED BY COLUMNS. THIS SCULPTURAL SKILL WAS TRANSFERRED TO FREESTANDING TEMPLES, RATHAS, CARVED OUT OF SINGLE ROCKS AND INCORPORATING THE ESSENTIAL ELEMENTS OF HINDU TEMPLES: THE DIM INNER SANCTUARY, THE GARBHAGRIHA, CAPPED WITH A MODEST TAPERING SPIRE FEATURING REPETITIVE ARCHITECTURAL MOTIFS.

CHOLA ARCHITECTURE PALLAVA THEMES WERE DEVELOPED IN KARNATAKA BY THE CHALUKYAS AND RASHTRAKUTAS, BUT IT WAS THE SHAIVITE CHOLAS WHO SPEARHEADED TAMIL NADU'S NEXT ARCHITECTURAL PHASE, IN THE TENTH CENTURY. IN THANJAVUR, RAJARAJA I CREATED THE BRIHADISHVARA TEMPLE PRINCIPALLY AS A STATUS SYMBOL; ITS PROPORTIONS FAR EXCEED ANY ATTEMPTED BY THE PALLAVAS. SET WITHIN A VAST WALLED COURTYARD, THE SANCTUARY, FRONTED BY A SMALL MANDAPA, STANDS BENEATH A SCULPTED VIMANA THAT SOARS MORE THAN 60M HIGH. MOST SCULPTURES ONCE AGAIN FEATURE SHIVA, BUT THE GOPURAS ON EACH SIDE OF THE EASTERN GATEWAY TO THE COURTYARD WERE AN INNOVATION, AS WERE THE LIONS CARVED INTO THE BASE OF THE SANCTUARY WALLS, AND THE PAVILION ERECTED OVER NANDI IN FRONT OF THE SANCTUARY.

VIJAYANAGAR ARCHITECTURE BY THE TIME OF THE THIRTEENTH-CENTURY VIJAYANAGAR KINGS, THE TEMPLE WAS CENTRAL TO CITY LIFE, THE FOCUS FOR CIVIC MEETINGS, EDUCATION, DANCE AND THEATRE. THE VIJAYANAGARS EXTENDED EARLIER STRUCTURES, ADDING ENCLOSING WALLS AROUND A SERIES OF PRAKARAS, OR COURTYARDS, AND ERECTING FREESTANDING MANDAPAS FOR USE AS MEETING HALLS, ELEPHANT STABLES, STAGES FOR MUSIC AND DANCE, AND CEREMONIAL MARRIAGE HALLS (KALYAN MANDAPAS). RAISED ON SUPERBLY DECORATED COLUMNS, THESE MANDAPAS BECAME KNOWN AS THOUSAND-PILLARED

HALLS. TANKS WERE ADDED, DOUBLING AS WATER STORES AND WASHING AREAS, AND USED FOR FESTIVALS WHEN DEITIES WERE SET AFLOAT IN BOATS.

Under the Vijayanagars, the gopuras were enlarged and set at the cardinal points over the high gateways to each prakara, to become the dominant feature. Madurai is the place to check out Vijayanagar architecture.

Government Sculpture Museum West Raja St • Daily 9.30am–5pm • Charge The small Government Sculpture Museum, located on the main road south of the bus stand, has a rather motley collection of unlabelled Pallava sculpture found in and around Mamallapuram, some of it quite colourful and attractive. Many of the best pieces stand on the front lawn, perfectly visible from the road. The building itself, though modern, is also appealing and resembles a temple more than a museum.

Pancha Pandava Rathas (Five Rathas) Daily 6am–6pm (ticket office closes 5.30pm) • Charge including the Shore Temple on the same day In a sandy compound 1.5km south of the village centre stands the stunning group of monoliths known as the Pancha Pandava Rathas, the five chariots of the Pandavas. Dating from the period of Narasimhavarman I (c.630–670 AD), they consist of five separate freestanding sculptures that imitate structured temples, plus some beautifully carved life-sized animals.

The “architecture” of the rathas reflects a variety of styles and stands almost as a model for much subsequent development in the southern style. Carving was always executed from top to bottom, enabling the artists to work on the upper parts with no fear of damaging anything below. Intriguingly, it’s thought that the rathas were never used for worship.

The southernmost and tallest of the rathas, named after the eldest of the Pandavas, is the pyramidal Dharmaraja. Set on a square base, the upper part comprises a series of diminishing storeys, each with a row of pavilions. Four corner blocks, each with two panels and standing figures, are broken up by two pillars and pilasters supported by squatting lions. Figures on the panels include Ardhanarishvara (Shiva and female consort in one figure), Brahma, the king Narasimhavarman I and Harihara (Shiva and Vishnu combined). The central tier includes sculptures of Shiva Gangadhara and one of the earliest representations in Tamil Nadu of the dancing Shiva, Nataraja, who became all-important in the region. Alongside, the Bhima ratha, the largest of the group, is the least complete. Devoid of carved figures, the upper storeys, as in the Dharmaraja, feature false windows and repeated pavilion-shaped ornamentation.

The Arjuna and Draupadi rathas share a base. Behind the Arjuna, the most complete of the entire group and very similar to the Dharmaraja, stands a superb unfinished sculpture of Shiva's bull Nandi. Draupadi is unique in terms of rock-cut architecture, with a roof that appears to be based on a straw-thatched hut. There's an image of Durga inside, but the figure of her lion vehicle outside is aligned side-on and not facing the image, suggesting this was not a real temple. To the west, close to a life-sized carving of an elephant, stands the ratha named after the twin brothers Nakula and Sahadeva.

Tiger Cave

Main highway, 4km north of Mamallapuram • Daily sunrise–sunset • Free Set amid trees close to the sea, the extraordinary Tiger Cave contains a shrine to Durga, approached by a flight of steps that passes two subsidiary cells. Following the line of an irregularly shaped rock, the cave is remarkable for its elaborate exterior, which features multiple tiger or lion-heads surrounding the entrance to the main cell. If you sit for long enough, the section on the left with seated figures in niches above two elephants begins to resemble an enormous owl. These animals which resembled a tiger or lion were mythical yalis and it is often referred to as Yali Mandapa.

Crocodile Bank 14km north of town on the road to Chennai • Tues–Sun 8.30am–5.30pm • Charge, camera/video camera charge • Night Safari Sat & Sun 7–8.30pm • charge • www.madrascrocodilebank.org, info@madrascrocodilebank.org

The Crocodile Bank at Vadanemmeli was set up in 1976 by the American zoologist Romulus Whittaker to protect and breed indigenous crocodiles. The Bank has been so successful (from fifteen crocs to five thousand in the first fifteen years) that its remit now extends to saving endangered species, such as turtles and lizards, from around the world.

Low-walled enclosures in its garden compound house hundreds of inscrutable crocodiles, soaking in ponds or sunning themselves on the banks. Breeds include the fish-eating, knobbly-nosed gharial, and the world's largest species, the saltwater Crocodylus porosus, which can grow to 8m in length.

There are feeding demonstrations at 11.30am, 12.30pm, 4.30pm and 5.30pm on Sundays. The temptation to take photos is tempered by the sight of those hungry saurians clambering over each other to snap up the chopped flesh, within centimetres of the top of the wall. Another attraction is the weekend Night Safari, when the crocodiles are far more active, which has to be booked at least 48 hours in advance.

Another important field of work is conducted with the collaboration of local Irula people, whose traditional expertise is with snakes. Cobras are brought to the bank for venom collection, to be used in the treatment of snakebites. Elsewhere, snakes are repeatedly “milked” until they die, but here only a limited amount is taken from each snake, enabling them to return to the wild. To visit this section costs an extra ₹5.

Dakshina Chitra Main Coast Rd • Daily except Tues 10am–6pm • Charge, camera/video camera charge • www.dakshinachitra.net

Occupying a patch of sand dunes midway between Chennai and Mamallapuram, Dakshina Chitra, literally “Vision of the South”, is one of India's best-conceived folk museums, devoted to the rich architectural and artistic heritage of Kerala, Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh and Tamil Nadu. Set up by the Chennai Craft Foundation, the museum exposes visitors to many disappearing traditions of the region, which you might otherwise not be aware of, from tribal fertility cults and Ayyannar field deities to pottery and leather shadow-puppets.

A selection of traditional buildings from across peninsular India has been painstakingly reconstructed using original materials. Exhibitions attached to them convey the environmental and cultural diversity of the south, most graphically expressed in a wonderful textile collection featuring antique silk and cotton saris from various castes and regions. Snacks are available on site.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE MAMALLAPURAM AND AROUND BY TRAIN THE NEAREST RAILWAY STATION IS IN CHENGALPATTU, 29KM TO THE NORTHEAST FOR MAINLINE
TRAINS TO CHENNAI, TIRUCHIRAPALLI AND BEYOND.

THERE ARE FREQUENT BUS CONNECTIONS FROM CHENGALPATTU TO MAMALLAPURAM (SEE BELOW).

By bus The bus stand is in the centre of the village in front of the Talasayana Perumal Temple. There are services roughly every 30min to Chennai (4.15am–10pm; 2hr), six daily to Kanchipuram (2hr) and regular services to Chengalpattu (for Tiruvannamalai and better connections to Kanchipuram). Mamallapuram lies just off the East Coast Rd between Chennai and Puducherry; buses between the two run every 15–20min but don't come in to Mamallapuram – you need to either walk or take an auto-rickshaw (₹50) the 1.5km northwest to the bus stop on the East Coast Rd.

By taxi Taxis to and from the centre of Chennai cost around ₹1600 or ₹1300 to and from the airport. Puducherry is a ₹2000 ride.

GETTING AROUND AND INFORMATION BY BIKE AND MOTORBIKE BY FAR THE BEST WAY TO GET TO THE IMPORTANT SITES IS BY BICYCLE. YOU CAN RENT BIKES FROM SHOPS ON EAST RAJA ST FOR ₹20/HR OR ₹75/DAY. SCOOTERS AND ENFIELD MOTORCYCLES CAN ALSO BE RENTED FOR AROUND ₹400/DAY – CHECK AT YOUR GUESTHOUSE.

Tourist information The Government of Tamil Nadu Tourist Office (Mon–Fri 10am–5.45pm; ☎044 2744 2232) is one of the first buildings you see in the village, on your left as you arrive from Chennai, but is not much use. A better resource is 🌐mahabalipuram.co.in.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Mamallapuram village has dozens of guesthouses and small hotels in the budget and mid-range categories but it suffers badly from aggressive touting by a small number of places; ignore the touts and walk to your chosen destination – it's a small place. The more luxurious resorts are dotted along the coast, mostly to the north.

Chariot Beach Resort 69 Five Rathas Rd 🌐chariotbeachresorts.com. A luxurious resort at the southern end of town with massive garden area, unobstructed sea views and a 57m swimming pool. All rooms are spacious and beautifully furnished, and there's also the option of luxurious cottages and sea-view suites ₹₹₹

Daphne Fishermans Colony (reception at Daphne's Hotel Othavadai, Cross St) 📍 hoteldaphne1@yahoo.com. The very last guesthouse on the beach strip with just nine rooms on three floors, a roof terrace and sea views. The place in the village is fine too. There is a small café where you can buy toast and pancakes and there are restaurants in the village. ₹

★ Green Woods Resort 12 Othavadai Cross St 📍 greenwoods_resort@yahoo.com. Very friendly and extremely good value family-run place, set round a leafy courtyard garden, which does attract mosquitoes. There's a wide range of very clean rooms, some with swing chairs, private balconies, terraces and TVs, plus excellent Ayurvedic massage on site. No restaurant or café here so you have to venture out for breakfast. ₹

Mamalla Heritage 104 East Raja St 📍 hotelmamallaheritage.com. Efficient, modern hotel on the main road through the village with comfortable and spotless a/c rooms overlooking a courtyard. There's a choice of standard and slightly bigger deluxe rooms, for double occupancy with breakfast and all with fridge and TV, and there are two very good restaurants on site. ₹₹

Radisson Blu Resort Temple Bay 57 Kovalam Rd, 1km north of the village 📍 radissonb.com. A luxurious resort with a swimming pool and excellent restaurant, which backs right onto the beach. There are eight different categories of room, from standard doubles to sea-view villas with Jacuzzi and sit-out areas. An ultra luxury experience would be a three-bed bungalow with private pool and jacuzzi. ₹₹₹-₹₹₹₹

Ramakrishna 8 Othavadai St 📍 hotelramakrishna.com. Bigger than many of the surrounding hotels, its rooms have been completely refurbished with hardwood floors, new bathrooms and flat screen TVs. There's also a breezy rooftop restaurant. ₹₹

Santana 178 Othavadai St 📍 babusantana@rediffmail.com. Six sizeable and spotless first-floor rooms; the seafront one is a gem, sandwiched in between its popular ground-floor beachside restaurant and roof terrace. It also offers a travel service. ₹

★ Sea Breeze Othavadai Cross St 📍 hotelseabreeze.net. The only bona fide beach resort within the village, featuring a range of a/c rooms whose prices vary according to size and view – the large sea-view rooms with private balcony and king-size beds are the best. The swimming pool is open to non-residents and there's an Ayurveda centre. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Siva Guest House 2 Othavadai Cross St 0094430 67767. A small but clean and tidy lodge with just fifteen rooms, which are spread over three floors. Mandala-patterned bedsheets add colour and there is a choice of non-a/c and a/c rooms. Good value. ₹

Tina Blue View 48 Othavadai St 0044 2744 2319. Established family guesthouse with simple turquoise and whitewashed rooms, some in the main block and others in an annexe in the pleasant garden. All rooms have attached bathrooms and mosquito nets. There are also some single rooms. ₹

EATING

MAP

Mamallapuram is crammed with small restaurants specializing in seafood – tiger prawns, pomfret, tuna, shark and lobster – usually served marinated and grilled with chips and salad; always establish in advance exactly how much it will cost. As this is a travellers' hangout, there are also numerous places offering the usual array of pasta, pancakes and bland Indian dishes. Beer is widely available, but it's pricey (₹180–200) and there are very few dedicated bars and pubs, though this is changing slowly with new spots cropping up in Besant Nagar or Bessie as the urban locals call it. If you want to enjoy authentic southern Indian food, head to the banana-leaf places on East Raja St.

Babu's Café 7 Othavadai Cross St 099449 60639. A seafood café and restaurant, it has a great atmosphere, a lively host and a great cook in Babu. One of the most crowded eateries in Mamallapuram, don't miss the calamari here. They also serve vegetarian food and gluten free meals. ₹

Chettinadu Virundhu 10 East Raja St 073584 45177. Smart new canteen-style place with an a/c area, serving a range of tasty recipes from the Chettinad region, plus other Indian and Chinese standards. Dosas with chicken, mutton and meat are the specialities here. ₹

Geetha Cafe Thirukulam St, off Othavadai St 094441 16406. A small, pleasant restaurant with cane furniture and classical Indian music, dishing up grilled seafood plus cheaper fish curry, biryanis and veggie dishes. One of the cheaper places for beer. ₹₹

★Golden Palate Mamalla Heritage hotel, 104 East Raja St 044 2744 2060. Blissfully-cool café with a/c and tinted windows, serving the best veg food in the village: north Indian tandoori in the courtyard in the evenings and wonderful ice-cream sundaes. Wok To Dhaba, a nearby restaurant, serves mainly meat and chicken dishes and Indian Chinese and costs. ₹₹

★Le Yogi 19 Othavadai St 98405 75571. Run by a French/Indian couple, this relaxed place is a good spot to chill, serving French crêpes, a range of salads with brown sesame bread, pasta dishes, plus good coffee and lassis. ₹

Luna Magica Bajanai Kovil St, Fisherman Colony 98401 00519. Beach restaurant serving top-notch seafood, kept alive in a tank and sold by weight. They specialize in tiger prawns and lobster in a choice of tasty sauces such as tomato or garlic butter and also offer fish curry, plus grilled fish, shark and tuna steaks. Red wine and cold beer are available, but expensive. ₹₹₹

Mamalla Bhavan Shore Temple Rd, opposite the bus stand. 044 27442250. A very popular pure-veg and “meals” joint that’s invariably packed. The unlimited lunchtime “meals” (11.30am–3.30pm) are a bargain, and they also serve good south Indian breakfasts including pongal, masala dosas and coffee. ₹

Moonrakers 34 Othavadai St 044 2744 2115. Cool jazz and blues, great fresh seafood and slick service ensure this place, with its three floors, is often packed with travellers. The owners are constantly touting passers-by for custom. Good seafood platter (fish, prawns, calamari). ₹₹

Nautilus Othavadai Cross St. Popular café/restaurant run by a French chef. The menu features soups, a wide range of French salads, ratatouille and non-veg mains such as seafood, beef and the usual travellers’ favourites. ₹₹

Saabra 5/4 Kovalam Rd 97911 78900. First-floor joint that does great veg, egg and chicken kaati rolls, as well as Indian and Chinese dishes such as tandoori and biryanis. ₹

VEDANTHANGAL BIRD SANCTUARY ONE OF INDIA'S MOST SPECTACULAR BIRD SANCTUARIES LIES ROUGHLY 1KM EAST OF THE VILLAGE OF

VEDANTHANGAL, 30KM FROM THE EAST COAST AND 86KM SOUTHWEST OF CHENNAI. THE SANCTUARY IS BUSIEST WITH BIRDLIFE BETWEEN DECEMBER AND FEBRUARY, WHEN IT'S TOTALLY FLOODED. THE RAINS OF THE NORTHEAST MONSOON, SWEEPING THROUGH IN OCTOBER OR NOVEMBER, BRING LOCAL AND MIGRATORY WATERBIRDS, INCLUDING SOME THAT NEST AND SETTLE HERE UNTIL THE DRY SEASON (USUALLY APRIL), WHEN THEY LEAVE FOR WETTER AREAS. ABUNDANT TREES ON MOUNDS ABOVE WATER LEVEL PROVIDE PERFECT NESTING SPOTS, ALIVE BY JANUARY WITH FLEDGLINGS. VISITORS CAN WATCH THE AVIAN ACTION FROM A PATH AT THE WATER'S EDGE, OR FROM A WATCHTOWER (FITTED OUT WITH STRONG BINOCULARS). TRY TO COME AT SUNSET, WHEN THE BIRDS RETURN FROM FEEDING. COMMON INDIAN SPECIES TO LOOK OUT FOR ARE OPENBILL STORKS, SPOONBILLS, PELICANS, BLACK CORMORANTS, AND HERONS OF SEVERAL TYPES. YOU MAY ALSO SEE IBISES, GREY PELICANS, MIGRANT CUCKOOS, SANDPIPERS, EGRETS (WHICH PADDLE IN THE RICE FIELDS), AND DARTING BEE-EATERS.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS GETTING TO VEDANTHANGAL CAN PRESENT A FEW PROBLEMS. THE NEAREST TOWN IS MADURANTHAKAM, 8KM EAST, ON NH-45 BETWEEN CHENGALPATTU AND TINDIVANAM, FROM WHERE THERE ARE HOURLY BUSES TO THE SANCTUARY. ALTERNATIVELY, DIRECT SERVICES RUN EVERY HOUR OR TWO FROM CHENGALPATTU.

By taxi Taxis make the journey from Maduranthakam for ₹500 but cannot be booked from Vedanthangal.

INFORMATION OPENING HOURS DAILY 6AM–6PM. THE BEST MONTHS TO VISIT ARE NOV–FEB, ALTHOUGH WEEKENDS AND HOLIDAYS CAN BE CROWDED AND NOISY.

Entry fees. Entry to the sanctuary is ₹100 (camera ₹500, video camera ₹1000).

Accommodation To arrange accommodation in the Forest Department Guest house, call the Wildlife Warden in Chennai (☎044 2235 1471 or (☎044 2220 0335 or call the Forest Ranger (☎98404 84529).

Santana Rooftop Restaurant Santana hotel, 178 Othavadai St ☎94442 90832. The breezy rooftop is much nicer than the ground-floor dining area, especially if you can get a front seat. Lobster per kilo, fish dishes, calamari and seafood platters with rice and salad. ₹₹

Seagulls Tina Blue View, 48 Othavadai St ☎044 2744 2319. A large and pleasant rooftop restaurant serving a decent, extensive seafood menu including tuna steak with chips and salad, seafood platters, fish and prawn curries, veggie dishes and chicken. ₹₹

Village Inn Thirukulam St, off Othavadai St ☎94441 16406. A small, pleasant restaurant with cane furniture and classical Indian music, dishing up grilled seafood, plus cheaper fish curry, biryanis and veggie dishes. One of the cheaper places for beer. ₹₹

SHOPPING

MAP

Apollo Books 150/1 Fisherman Colony ☎044 2744 2992. Excellent and friendly bookshop, owned by knowledgeable Apollo himself, who stocks a fine range of literature and titles on art, history, culture and religion.

Rolling Stones 4 Othavadai Cross St ☎80561 13998. Tiny stone-carving shop, whose charming owner not only sells his work at fair prices but offers carving lessons so you can make your own piece.

Sky Blue Handicrafts 8 Othavadai St ☎044 2744 3729. Easily the friendliest and most reputable Kashmiri shop in the village, where you can find lots of authentic fabrics, dresses, bags and silver jewellery.

Southern Arts & Crafts 72 East Raja St ☎044 2744 3675. Smart showroom for stone carving, bronzes, paintings and other local artefacts.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE TWO OF THE BEST PLACES TO CHANGE MONEY ARE PRITHVI EXCHANGE, 23/12 EAST RAJA ST (DAILY 9.30AM–7PM; ☎044 2744 3265), AND THE RAINBOW FOREX, 14 OTHAVADAI ST (DAILY 9.30AM–9PM; ☎91767 04374).

Hospital If you need medical treatment, Suradeep Hospital 15, Thirukulam St (☎044 2744 2448), is highly recommended.

Surfing A relatively new activity in Mamallapuram, available through Mumu Surf School (☎97898 44191, 🌐mumusurfer.wix.com/indiasurfing), where you can take lessons from ₹750 per person, depending on group size. If you know what you're doing, board rental goes from ₹250/hr.

Travel agents Delhi-based Hi! Tours at 125 East Raja St (☎044 2744 3260, 🌐hi-tours.com) offer car rental, ticketing and other services. Travels Partners (☎98403 77033, ✉travelspartners@gmail.com) on Othavadai St provide friendly service.

Kanchipuram

KANCHIPURAM is situated on the Vegavathi River 70km southwest of Chennai. Ask any Tamil what Kanchipuram (aka “Kanchi”) is famous for, and they’ll probably say silk saris, shrines and saints – in that order. A dynastic capital throughout the medieval era, it remains one of the country’s seven holiest cities, sacred to both Shaivites and Vaishnavites, and among the few surviving centres of goddess worship in the south. Year round, pilgrims pour through for a quick puja stop on the Tirupati tour circuit and, if they can afford it, a spot of shopping in the sari emporia. For non-Hindu visitors, however, Kanchipuram holds less appeal. Although the temples are undeniably impressive, the town itself is unremittingly hot, with only basic accommodation and amenities. Some people prefer to visit Kanchipuram as a day-trip from Chennai or Mamallapuram, both of which are a two-hour bus ride away.

Established by the Pallava kings in the fourth century AD, Kanchipuram served as their capital for five hundred years, and continued to flourish throughout the Chola, Pandya and Vijayanagar eras. Under the Pallavas, it was an important scholastic forum, and a meeting point for Jain, Buddhist and Hindu cultures. Its temples dramatically reflect this enduring political prominence, spanning the years from the peak of Pallava construction to the seventeenth century, when the ornamentation of the gopuras and pillared halls was at its most elaborate. You might need to be a little firm to resist the attentions of pushy puja-wallahs, who try to con foreigners into overpriced ceremonies. If you've come for silk, head for the shops that line Gandhi and Thirukatchininambi roads.

Ekambareshvara Temple North Mada St • Daily; closed noon–4pm • Camera/video camera charge On the north side of town, Kanchipuram's largest temple and most important Shiva shrine, the Ekambareshvara Temple – also known as Ekambaranatha – is easily identified by its colossal whitewashed gopuras, which rise to almost 60m. The main temple contains some Pallava work, but was mostly constructed in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and stands within a vast walled enclosure beside some smaller shrines and a large fish-filled water tank.

Chennai

KANCHIPURAM

The entrance is through a high-arched passageway beneath an elaborate gopura in the south wall which leads to an open courtyard and a majestic “thousand-pillared hall”, or kalyan mandapa. This faces the tank in the north and the sanctuary in the west that protects the emblem of Shiva (here in his form as Kameshvara, Lord of Desire), Prithvi lingam (one of five lingams in Tamil Nadu that represent the elements, in this case Prithvi, the Earth). Behind the sanctum, accessible from the covered hallway around it, an eerie, bare hall lies beneath a profusely carved gopura, and in the courtyard a venerable mango tree represents the tree under which Shiva and Kamakshi were married. This union is celebrated during a festival each April, when many couples are married in the kalyan mandapa.

Sankaramadam

Raja St • Daily; closed noon–4pm

Kanchipuram is the seat of a line of holy men bearing the title acharya, whose line dates back perhaps as far as 1300 BC to the saint Adi Sankaracharya. The 68th acharya, the highly revered Sri Chandrasekharendra Sarasvati Swami, died in January 1994 at the age of 101. Buried in the sitting position, as is the custom for great Hindu sages, his mortal remains are enshrined in a samadhi at the Sankaramadam, a math (monastery for Hindu renouncers) down the road from the Ekambaresvara Temple. Lined with old photographs from the life of the former swami, with young Brahmin students chanting Sanskrit verses in the background, it's a typically Tamil blend of simple sanctity and garish modern glitz. The math's two huge elephants are available to bestow blessings upon visiting pilgrims for a small fee.

Kailasanatha Temple Western outskirts • Daily; closed noon–4pm The Kailasanatha Temple, the oldest structure in Kanchipuram and the finest example of Pallava architecture in south India, is situated among several low-roofed houses just over 1km west of the town centre. Built by the Pallava king Rajasimha early in the eighth century, its intimate size and simple carving distinguish it from the town's later temples. Usually quieter than its neighbours, the shrine becomes the focus of vigorous celebrations during the Mahashivratri festival each March. Like its contemporary, the Shore Temple at Mamallapuram, it is built of soft sandstone, but its sheltered position has spared it from wind and sand erosion, and it remains remarkably intact, despite some rather clumsy renovation work.

Kamakshi Amman Temple Raja St • Daily; closed noon–4pm •
kanchikamakshi.com

Built during Pallava supremacy and modified in the fourteenth and seventeenth centuries, the Kamakshi Amman Temple, north of the bus stand, combines several styles, with an ancient central shrine, gates from the Vijayanagar period, and high, heavily sculpted, creamy gopuras set above the gateways.

This is one of India's three holiest shrines to Shakti, Shiva's cosmic energy depicted in female form, usually as his consort. The goddess Kamakshi, a local form of Parvati, shown with a sugarcane bow and arrows of flowers, is honoured for having lured Shiva to Kanchipuram, where they were married, and thus having forged the connection between the local community and the god. In February or March, deities are wheeled to the temple in huge wooden "cars", decked with robed statues and swaying plantain leaves.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN THE KANCHIPURAM RAILWAY STATION IN THE NORTHEAST OF TOWN SEES TWELVE DAILY PASSENGER SERVICES FROM CHENGALPATTU (ORIGINATING IN CHENNAI, ARAKKONAM, TIRUPATI AND PUDUCHERRY) AND TWO EXPRESS TRAINS (THE WEEKLY MUMBAI–MADURAI EXPRESS AND BIWEEKLY MUMBAI–NAGERCOIL EXPRESS).

By bus Buses from Chennai, Mamallapuram and Chengalpattu stop at the stand in the town centre just off Kosa St.

Destinations Chennai (every 10–15min; 1hr 30min–2hr); Madurai (4 daily; 8–9hr); Puducherry (hourly; 3–4hr); Tiruchirapalli (12 daily; 7–8hr); Tiruvannamalai (10 daily; 3–4hr).

GETTING AROUND BY BIKE THE BEST WAY TO GET AROUND KANCHI IS BY BICYCLE. MOST OF THE MAIN ROADS ARE FAIRLY WIDE AND TRAFFIC JUST ABOUT MANAGEABLE. BIKES ARE AVAILABLE (₹10/HR) FROM STALLS AT BOTH THE WEST AND NORTHEAST ENTRANCES TO THE BUS STAND.

If cycling isn't your thing and you are concerned about road safety, there are many autorickshaws and public buses that run regularly within the town.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Aruna Residency 15 Ulakalanthar Maada St, tucked away 50m down from the main junction 📍 arunamahal@gmail.com. A large, quiet mid-range place that offers very good deals on single occupancy rooms. The double rooms, complete with TV, are a good size, light and airy. ₹₹

Jothis Residency 53 & 56 KS Murugesu Mudaliyar Nagar, Tollgate 📍 086810 08899. Located behind one of the most famous temples, the shrine of Varadaraja Perumal, Jothis has 18 clean and comfortable double-occupancy a/c rooms. There are two separate restaurants, offering both vegetarian and non-vegetarian cuisine. ₹₹

MM 65/66 Nellukkara St 📍 mmhotels.com. Large, clean, medium-priced hotel, situated right in the heart of the town. The wood-panelled a/c rooms for double occupancy have armchairs but are a little on the small side; the non-a/c rooms are plainer but slightly bigger. ₹₹

Raja's Lodge 20-B Nellukkara St 📍 044 2722 2603. One of the best budget options in town, although little English is spoken. The rooms are on the small side and somewhat dingy. Double rooms with a/c are more expensive. Restaurant downstairs. ₹-₹₹

Silk City 1st Floor, 77 Nellukkara St 📍 hotelsilkciti@gmail.com. Brand-new hotel in a central location with immaculate, spacious a/c rooms. A kettle, TV and towels are provided in all rooms, and the large attached bathrooms are spotless. Excellent value. No alcohol or wi-fi. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Neo Sri Rama Café 20 Nellukkara St ☎044 2722 2435. Great value, if slightly dingy, restaurant, churning out filling unlimited “meals”. Tiffins or snacks only in the evenings. The sort of place where you are likely to attract the interest of locals. ₹

Saravana Bhavan 504, Gandhi Road ☎044 2722 2506. Located near the bus stand, this popular chain of eateries offers your standard vegetarian fare of both south and north Indian cuisine and the speciality is the variety of dosas and meals during lunch. ₹

Tiruvannamalai Synonymous with the fifth Hindu element of Fire, TIRUVANNAMALAI, 100km southwest of Kanchipuram, ranks, along with Madurai, Kanchipuram, Chidambaram and Trichy, as one of the five holiest towns in Tamil Nadu. Its name, meaning “Red Mountain”, derives from the spectacular extinct volcano, Arunachala, which rises behind it, and which glows an unearthly crimson in the dawn light. This awesome natural backdrop, combined with the colossal Arunachaleshvara Temple in the centre of town, make Tiruvannamalai one of the region’s most memorable destinations. Well off the tourist trail, it’s a perfect place to get to grips with life in small-town Tamil Nadu, especially for anyone with an interest in Hinduism.

Mythology identifies Arunachala as the place where Shiva asserted his power over Brahma and Vishnu by manifesting himself as a lingam of fire, or agni-lingam. The event is commemorated each year at the rising of the full moon in November/December, when a vast vat of two thousand litres of ghee and a 30m-wide wick is lit by priests on the summit of Arunachala. This symbolizes the fulfilment of Shiva’s promise to reappear each year to vanquish the forces of darkness and ignorance with firelight.

THE PRADAKSHINA DURING THE ANNUAL KARTIGAI FESTIVAL, HINDU PILGRIMS ARE SUPPOSED TO PERFORM AN AUSPICIOUS

CIRCUMAMBULATION OF ARUNACHALA, KNOWN AS THE PRADAKSHINA (PRA SIGNIFIES THE REMOVAL OF ALL SINS, DA THE FULFILMENT OF DESIRES, KSHI FREEDOM FROM THE CYCLE OF REBIRTH, AND NA SPIRITUAL LIBERATION). ALONG THE WAY, OFFERINGS ARE MADE AT A STRING OF SHRINES, TANKS, TEMPLES, LINGAMS, PILLARED MEDITATION HALLS, SACRED ROCKS, SPRINGS, TREES AND CAVES RELATED TO THE TIRUVANNAMALAI LEGENDS. ALTHOUGH HECTIC DURING THE FESTIVAL, THE PAVED PATH LINKING THEM ALL TOGETHER IS QUIET FOR MOST OF THE YEAR, AND MAKES A WONDERFUL DAY-HIKE, AFFORDING FINE VIEWS OF THE TOWN AND ITS ENVIRONS.

The sacred Red Mountain is also associated with the famous twentieth-century saint, Sri Ramana Maharishi, who chose it as the site for his 23-year meditation retreat. A crop of small ashrams have sprung up on the edge of town below Sri Ramana's Cave, some of them more authentic than others, and the ranks of white-cotton-clad foreigners floating between them have become a defining feature of Tiruvannamalai.

Arunachaleshvara Temple Daily; closed noon–4pm

Known to Hindus as the “Temple of the Eternal Sunrise”, the enormous Arunachaleshvara Temple, built over a period of almost a thousand years, consists of three concentric courtyards whose gateways are topped by tapering gopuras, the largest of which cover the east and north gates. The best spot from which to view the precinct, a breathtaking scene, set against the sprawling plains and lumpy, granite Shevaroy Hills, is the path up to Sri Ramana Maharishi's meditation cave, Virupaksha (see below), on the lower slopes of Arunachala. To enter the temple, however, head for the huge eastern gateway, which leads through the thick outer wall carved with images of deities, local saints and teachers. In the basement of a raised hall to the right before entering the next courtyard is the Parthala lingam, where Sri Ramana Maharishi is said to have sat in a state of Supreme Awareness while ants feasted on his flesh.

The caves

Opposite the western entrance of the temple complex, a path leads up a holy hill (15min) to the Virupaksha Cave, where the Maharishi stayed between 1899 and 1916. He personally built the bench outside and the hill-shaped lingam and platform inside, where all are welcome to meditate in peace. When this cave became too crowded, Ramana shifted to another, hidden away a few minutes further up the hill. He named this one, and the small house built onto it, Skandasramam, and lived there between 1916 and 1922. The inner cave here is also set aside for meditation, and the front patio affords splendid views across the temple, town and surrounding plains.

Sri Ramana ashram Main Rd • www.sriramanamaharshi.org

The caves can also be reached via the pilgrims' path winding uphill from the Sri Ramana ashram, 2km south of the temple along the main road. This simple complex is where the sage lived after returning from his retreat on Arunachala, and where his body is today enshrined. The samadhi has become a popular place for Sri Ramana's devotees on pilgrimage, but interested visitors are welcome to stay in the dorms here. There's also an excellent bookshop (daily 8–11am & 2–6pm) stocking a huge range of titles on the life and teachings of the guru, as well as quality postcards, calendars, devotional music and DVDs.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN TIRUVANNAMALAI
THE RAILWAY STATION, 500M EAST OF THE TEMPLE, IS ON THE MAIN TIRUPATI–MADURAI LINE, WITH A DAILY SERVICE IN EACH DIRECTION.

By bus Buses arrive at the town bus stand on Chinnakadai St, 1km north of the temple. Coming from the coast, it's easiest to make your way on one of the numerous buses from Tindivanam, which pass through Gingee. There are excellent bus connections to Chennai (every 10min; 4hr), Chengalpattu (every 10min; 2hr 30min; change for Mamallapuram), Puducherry (every 30min; 3hr), Trichy (hourly; 4–5hr) and Kanchipuram (every 2hr; 2hr 30min).

Services There is intermittent internet access at the Image Computer Centre, 52 Car St, and Sri Sai, 14-A Kadambarayam St. There are a few ATMs and a couple of Western Union offices but the best place to change money is the India Boutique/Forex, 138 Raj Chettiyar Complex on Chengam Rd, near the ashram (☎04175 238248).

ACCOMMODATION ARUNACHALA 5 VADA SANNATHI ST 📍
HOTELARUNACHALA.IN. LARGE, CLEAN AND COMFORTABLE HOTEL SITUATED RIGHT OUTSIDE THE MAIN TEMPLE ENTRANCE. THERE IS A CHOICE OF NON-A/C AND A/C ROOMS, ALL OF WHICH ARE A GOOD SIZE AND HAVE TVS. NOT THE QUIETEST PLACE TO STAY, BUT CERTAINLY ATMOSPHERIC. ₹

Ramakrishna 34-F Polur Rd, 5min from the bus station on the main Gingee road (turn right out of the bus station and veer left at the fork) 📍hotelramakrishnatiruvannamalai.com. One of the best places in town, with sizeable, clean rooms with TV, en suite bathrooms, and a choice of Indian or Western loos. There are also larger deluxe rooms and a/c rooms. Excellent a/c restaurant next door to the reception. ₹-₹₹

SASA Lodge Chinnakadai St, almost opposite the bus stand ☎04175 252293. One of the cheapest lodges in town, painted a bright blue and white. Rooms (some with a/c) are basic and clean enough, but most of them are windowless. They have attached toilets as well. There is no restaurant but there is service available where they will buy breakfast from other eateries close by and deliver to your room. The front-facing rooms have light but are rather noisy. No wi-fi. ₹

Trishul 6 Kanagarayar St ☎04175 222 219. Tucked away down a lane off Kosmadam St near the Park in a quiet location away from the hustle, this hotel has a rooftop terrace with views of the temple, a good restaurant and a bafflingly dark a/c bar. Choice of decent-sized non-a/c and a/c rooms. ₹₹

EATING NALA RESIDENCY 21 ANNA SALAI ☎04175 222322. A COUPLE OF HUNDRED METRES BEYOND THE PARK, THIS HOTEL RESTAURANT HAS AN EXTENSIVE MENU (VEG AND

NON-VEG) AND SERVES QUALITY VEGGIE AND CHICKEN DISHES. TRY THE DELICIOUS PANEER OR COTTAGE CHEESE BUTTER MASALA. ₹

★Ramakrishna 34-F Polur Rd 004175 250005. Excellent food served quickly and efficiently in a/c comfort. Good breakfasts, excellent eleven-dish “meals” (11am–3pm) and a range of north and south Indian food available in the evenings. ₹-₹₹

Udipi Brindhavan Car St 004175 222693. Located down a small lane opposite the temple’s east entrance, this long and narrow eatery is a typical Udipi restaurant, serving very cheap lunchtime “meals” (11am–4pm) and excellent parathas. ₹

Vickys Trishul hotel 6 Kanagarayar St 004175 222219. Posh a/c ground-floor restaurant with a vaguely oriental vibe and decor, and a wall-length aquarium. Veg, chicken, the usual lunchtime “meals” option, and tandoori in the evenings. ₹₹

Gingee Fort

Daily 9am–5pm • charge • gingeefort.com • The half-hourly buses between Tiruvannamalai (1hr) and Puducherry (2hr) all stop on demand right by the gate of the fort. An epic landscape of huge boulder hills, interspersed by lush splashes of rice paddy and banana plantations, stretches east of Tiruvannamalai towards the coast. The scenery peaks at GINGEE (pronounced “Shinjee” and also spelt Senji), 37km east of the Red Mountain, where the ruins of Tamil Nadu’s most spectacular fort sprawl over a vast swathe of sun-scorched granite, left to the mercy of the weeds and tropical weather. Only on weekends, when bus parties pour around the most accessible monuments, does the site receive more than a trickle of visitors.

Bisected by the main Tiruvannamalai–Puducherry Road, Gingee Fort comprises three separate citadels, crowning the summits of three dramatic hills: Krishnagiri to the north, Rajagiri to the west and Chandrayandurg to the southeast. Connecting them to form an enormous triangle, 1.5km from north to south, are 20m-thick walls, punctuated by bastions and gateways giving access to the protected zones at the heart of the complex. A network of raised, paved paths links the site’s principal landmarks. From the road, head south to the main east gate, where a snaking passage emerges, after no fewer than four changes of direction, inside the palace enclave. Of the many structures that were unearthed by archeologists here, the most distinctive is the square seven-storey Kalyana Mahal tower, focal point of the former governor’s residence; featuring an ingenious hydraulic system that carried water to the uppermost levels, it is crowned by a tapering pyramidal tower.

It's hard to imagine such defences ever being overrun, but they were on numerous occasions following the fort's foundation by the Vijayanagars in the fifteenth century. The Muslim Adil Shahis from Bijapur (now Vijayapura), Shivaji's Maharatas and the Mughals all conquered Gingee, using it to consolidate the vulnerable southern reaches of their respective empires. The French also took it in 1750 but were ousted by the British after a bloody five-week siege eleven years later.

Puducherry

First impressions of PUDUCHERRY (Pondicherry), also often referred to simply as Pondy), the former capital of French India, can be unpromising. Instead of the leafy boulevards and pétanque pitches you might expect, its messy outer suburbs and bus stand are as cluttered and chaotic as any typical Tamil town. Closer to the seafront, however, the atmosphere grows tangibly more Gallic, as the bazaars give way to rows of houses whose shuttered windows and colour-washed facades wouldn't look out of place in Montpellier. For anyone familiar with the British colonial imprint, the town can induce culture shock with its richly ornamented Catholic churches, French road names and policemen in De Gaulle-style képis, and boules played in the dusty squares. Many of the seafront buildings were damaged by the 2004 tsunami, but Puducherry's tourist infrastructure remained intact.

Brief history Known to Greek and Roman geographers as “Poduke”, Puducherry was an important staging post on the second-century maritime trade route between Rome and the Far East. When the Roman Empire declined, the Pallavas and Cholas took control and were followed by a succession of colonial powers, from the Portuguese in the sixteenth century to the French, Danes and British, who exchanged the enclave several times after the various battles and treaties of the Carnatic Wars in the early eighteenth century. Puducherry's heyday, however, dates from the arrival of the French governor Joseph Dupleix, who accepted the governorship in 1742 and immediately set about rebuilding a town decimated by its former British occupants. It was Dupleix who instituted the street plan of a central grid encircled by a broad oblong boulevard, bisected north to south by a canal dividing the “Ville Blanche”, to the east, from the “Ville Noire”, to the west.

Although relinquished by the French in 1954 – when the town became the headquarters of the Union Territory of Pondicherry, administering the three other former colonial enclaves scattered across south India – Puducherry’s split personality still prevails. The seaside promenade, Goubert Salai (formerly Beach Road), has the forlorn look of an out-of-season French resort, complete with its own white Hôtel de Ville. Many visitors are grave Europeans in white Indian costume, busy about their spiritual quest. It was here that Sri Aurobindo Ghose (1872–1950), a leading figure in the freedom struggle in Bengal, was given shelter after it became unwise for him to live close to the British in Calcutta. His ashram attracts thousands of devotees from all around the world, most particularly from Bengal.

Goubert Salai Puducherry’s beachside promenade, Goubert Salai, is a favourite place for a stroll, though there’s little to do other than watch the world go by. The Hôtel de Ville, today housing the Municipal Offices building, is still an impressive spectacle, and a 4m-tall Gandhi memorial, surrounded by ancient columns, dominates the northern end. Nearby, a French memorial commemorates French Indians who lost their lives in World War I.

Just north of the Hôtel de Ville, a couple of streets back from the promenade, is the leafy old French-provincial-style square now named Government Place. On the north side, the impressive, gleaming white Raj Nivas, official home to the present lieutenant-governor of Puducherry Territory, was built late in the eighteenth century for Joseph Francis Dupleix.

Pondicherry Government Museum Ranga Pillai St • Tues–Sun 10am–1pm & 2–5pm • Charge • www.art.puducherry.gov.in/museum.html

The Pondicherry Government Museum is opposite Government Place. The archaeological collection includes Neolithic 2000-year-old remains from Arikamedu, a few Pallava (sixth- to eighth-century) and Buddhist (tenth-century) stone sculptures, bronzes, weapons and paintings. Alongside are a bizarre assembly of French salon furniture and bric-à-brac from local houses, including a velvet S-shaped “conversation seat”.

Sri Aurobindo Ashram Rue de la Marine • Daily 8am–noon & 2–6pm • Free, no children under 3, no photography • sriurobindoashram.org

The Sri Aurobindo Ashram is one of the best-known and wealthiest ashrams in India. Founded in 1926 by the Bengali philosopher-guru, Aurobindo Ghosh, and his chief disciple, personal manager and mouthpiece “The Mother”, it serves as the headquarters of the Sri Aurobindo Society, or SAS. Today the SAS owns most of the valuable property and real estate in Puducherry, and wields what many consider to be a disproportionate influence over the town. The samadhi, or mausoleum, of Sri Aurobindo and “The Mother” is covered daily with flowers and usually surrounded by supplicating devotees with their hands and heads placed on the tomb. Inside the main building, an incongruous and slightly bourgeois-looking Western-style room, complete with three-piece suite and Persian carpet, is where “The Mother” and Sri Aurobindo chilled out. The adjacent bookshop sells a range of literature and tracts, while the building opposite hosts frequent cultural programmes.

Botanical Gardens Subbaiyah Salai • Daily 10am–6pm • Free; aquarium charge Established in 1826, the Botanical Gardens offer many quiet paths to wander. The French planted nine hundred species here, experimenting to see how they would do in Indian conditions; one mahogany tree, the Khaya senegalensis, has grown to a height of 25m. You can also see an extraordinary fossilized tree, found about 25km away in Tiravakarai. The aquarium inside the gardens is uninspiring.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY AIR PUDUCHERRY
PUDUCHERRY HAS RECENTLY OPENED ITS AIRPORT TO PUBLIC WITH JUST TWO DAILY FLIGHTS TO AND FROM

HYDERABAD AND BENGALURU, BOTH OPERATED BY SPICE JET.

By train Puducherry's railway station is in the south, a 5min walk from the sea off Subbaiyah Salai. There are daily express and passenger trains to Chennai and Tirupati and weekly fast express trains to Bhubaneswar (Wed), Mangaluru (Tues), New Delhi (Wed) and Howrah, Kolkata (Wed).

By bus All buses pull into New Bus Stand, which lies on the western edge of town. From here, auto-rickshaws charge at least ₹50 into the old town, taxis double that; but you can jump in a tempo to central Ambour Salai for ₹10.

Destinations Bengaluru (4 daily; 10–11hr); Chennai (every 15–20min; 2hr 30min–3hr); Chidambaram (every 20min; 2hr); Coimbatore (10 daily; 9hr); Kanchipuram (10 daily; 3–4hr); Kanyakumari (hourly; 12–13hr); Madurai (hourly; 9–10hr); Mamallapuram (every 15–20min; 1hr 30min–2hr); Thanjavur (hourly; 5hr); Tiruchirapalli (every 30min; 5hr 30min–6hr); Tiruvannamalai (every 30min; 3hr).

GETTING AROUND BY AUTO-RICKSHAW PUDUCHERRY IS WELL SERVED BY AUTO-RICKSHAWS, WHICH CAN NEGOTIATE THE NARROW AND CHAOTIC STREETS EFFICIENTLY.

By bicycle/scooter You can rent a bicycle for ₹75/24hr from one of the many stalls dotted about town, such as Sri Durga Pharameshwari Cycle Stores, 106-B Mission St (☎98941 21133), and JDR, 47 Mission St (☎0413 319 4888), which also rents scooters (₹400/24hr), useful for trips further afield such as Auroville.

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST INFORMATION THE PUDUCHERRY TOURISM DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION (PTDC) OFFICE IS AT 40 GOUBERT SALAI (DAILY 8.30AM–7.30PM; ☎0413 233 9497, w TOURISM.PY.GOV.IN).

The staff are extremely helpful, providing leaflets and a city map, and information about Auroville.

Tours PTDC run city tours to all the main attractions (half-day 1.30–5.30pm, non-a/c ₹150, a/c ₹200; full-day 9.30am–5.30pm, non-a/c ₹250, a/c ₹300), a fine Heritage Walking Tour (daily 8am–12.30pm; free) and can help arrange car rental.

Services Muthu Forex, 161 Mission St (☎0413 222 4239), has a Western Union transfer facility. Thomas Cook is at 2A Rue Labourdonnais (☎0413 222 4008). Other places to change money include the State Bank of India, 15 Suffren St, and UCO Bank on Rue Mahe de Labourdonnais.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Puducherry's basic lodges are concentrated around the main market area, Ranga Pillai St and Rue Nehru, while trendy boutique hotels now punctuate the French quarter. Guesthouses belonging to the Sri Aurobindo Ashram offer good value for money but are not overly welcoming, with a lot of regulations, curfews and overpowering “philosophy of life” notices.

Ajantha Sea View 50 Goubert Salai 📞ajanthaseaviewhotel.com. Just about the only hotel on the seafront, whose large and comfortable, if slightly faded, rooms all have balconies with direct or partial sea views. ₹₹

Aruna 3 Zamindar Garden, SV Patel Rd 📞hotelarunapondy@gmail.com. Located on a quiet side street, in the northern part of town. It has pleasant double rooms (some a/c) with TV and balcony, some of which catch the morning sun. ₹-₹₹

Athithi Sardar Vallabhai Patel Salai ☎0413 207500. This centrally located hotel is one of the best options to stay in Puducherry where the rooms are spacious and the rooftop pool overlooks the sea where you can catch the sunrise. ₹₹₹

French Guest House 38 Ambour Salai ☎0413 222 7770. Clean, reasonably-sized rooms, including some family suites, in a welcoming centrally located hotel with a comical Eiffel Tower mural. The a/c rooms are slightly cleaner and brighter and don't cost that much more than non a/c rooms. No wi-fi. ₹

★Hotel de l'Orient 17 Rue Romain Rolland 📞neemranahotels.com. A beautiful, UNESCO heritage-accorded French house, boasting sixteen individually decorated rooms with French antiques, tiled balconies and long shuttered windows overlooking the leafy courtyard restaurant. Four categories of room with the most expensive, featuring an anteroom and four-poster bed. ₹₹

International Guest House 47 NSC Bose Salai 📧ingh@aurosociety.org.

The largest Aurobindo establishment in town, with dozens of very large, clean rooms. No TV, no a/c, no wi-fi. It's a good budget option but typically institutional, with a 10.30pm curfew. Often full, so best book in advance. Rooms in the new wing are slightly more expensive with a/c. ₹₹

★Le Château 11A Rue Romain Rolland 🌐lechateau.co.in. No detail has been overlooked in the conversion of this colonial house into a very smart but reasonably priced boutique hotel. The balconied, all a/c rooms are well-appointed and there's a fine ground-floor restaurant. Two categories of rooms – classic and superior. ₹₹₹

Park Guest House Goubert Salai 📧parkgh@sriaurobindoashram.org.in. Another Sri Aurobindo Society place with the same strict rules (no alcohol and a 10.30pm curfew), for ashram visitors only. Spotless and very comfortable rooms with mosquito nets and sitouts, overlooking garden and sea. Bike rental and restaurant but no TV or wi-fi. ₹

Soorya International 55 Ranga Pillai St 🌐hotelsooryainternational.com. Decent, all a/c hotel, located in the centre of town. Good-sized, comfortable standard rooms and bigger deluxe rooms complete with sofa and balcony. It also has a multi-cuisine restaurant. No wi-fi. ₹₹

Surya Swastika 11 Eswaran Koil St 📧suryaswastika@gmail.com. A traditional Tamil guest-house in a quiet corner of town, with nine basic rooms dotted around a covered central courtyard. Quintessential budget travellers' place – incredibly cheap, friendly and clean enough. ₹

EATING

MAP

If you've been on the road for a while and are hankering for healthy salads, fresh coffee, crusty bread, croissants, cakes and real pastry, you'll be spoilt for choice in Puducherry. Beer is available just about everywhere (except the SAS-owned establishments) and is much lower than the regular Tamil Nadu price, starting at around ₹80 a bottle. Franco-Tamil fare deserves its own recognition as its an interesting amalgamation of two very different cuisines and truly special.

Adyar Anandha Bhavan Rue Nehru 0413 222 3333. Very popular pure-veg restaurant with three counters under one brightly lit roof. Samosas, chaat and snacks on the left, a sweet counter in the centre and veggie dishes to the right.. Pay first and show receipt. ₹

Baker Street Bussy Street Near Clock Tower, 099448 50001. Located in the popular Surguru Hotel, this is one of the most popular pure-veg restaurants, serving both south and north Indian cuisine. "Meals" at lunch are excellent value. Dinner is more expensive. ₹-₹₹

Café Xtasi 245 R D Mission Street 99947 00098. Cosy and comfortable, this popular café is known for its authentic thin crust wood fired pizza. Burgers and chicken nuggets also available. ₹₹

Catamaran Brewing Co Anna Salai Muthu Mariamman Kovil Street 063855 96777. Pondicherry's favourite brewpub serving excellent craft ales and with some seasonal influences too There's a vast menu of food to accompany your beer flights – from tamarind chicken wings to pizza. ₹₹₹

Chitra's Cuisine 31 Suffren Street 95977 12635. One of the only purely Indian restaurants in this part of town, this place serves Chinese besides north Indian. You can also get seafood dishes here that are very popular. Usually crowded during lunch. ₹

La Chateau 11A Rue Romain Rolland 0413 222 9500. A stylish and cosy restaurant serving French, Italian and Indian cuisine on the rooftop of this hotel.

★Le Club 38 Rue Dumas @leclubraj.com. One of the best-known restaurants in town. The menu is predominantly French and features their famous coq au vin, steak au poivre and seafood dishes. No alcohol. ₹₹

Les Chefs 27 Yanam Vengadachalam Ranga Pillai Road @leschefsrestaurant.com. A very eclectic set of dishes, from fish biriyani to bamboo beef biriyani, Les Chefs offers north and south Indian, Mexican, French and Italian cuisine. ₹₹

Les Saveurs 36 Dumas St 0413 2339100. French and Italian cuisine with an emphasis on seafood. Their speciality is the marinated baby octopus. Don't miss the delicious crepes as well. Breakfast deals are very affordable. ₹

★Madame Shanthés 40A Rue Romain Rolland 0413 222 2022. Very friendly rooftop restaurant, with lovely ambience and evening illuminations, that serves tasty French, Indian and Chinese dishes. The speciality is seafood: pasta marinara and a superb, excellent-value seafood platter. meat dishes, such as chicken stroganoff. ₹₹

Maison Perumal Perumal Koil St, 0413 222 7520. Nestled in a heritage hotel which is a French Colonial-style building located very close to the Immaculate Conception Cathedral, this excellent restaurant serves Creole fare that's like no other and works with seasonal vegetables, ensuring the menu change every few months. Dining in the courtyard is highly recommended. ₹₹₹

★Rendezvous 30 Rue Suffren 0413 222 7677. This delightful restaurant has been completely revamped with white leather seating and sleek decor. The quality of the Indo-Gallic cuisine is superb. The fine cocktails are two for one from 6pm. ₹₹₹

Satsanga 54 Rue Labourdonnais 0413 222 5867. The food here is prepared by the French patron: organic salads, tzatziki, garlic bread, sauté potatoes and tagliatelle alla carbonara complement the fresh fish and French beef dishes. Also a wide Indian menu. Two dining areas – courtyard or rooftop. ₹₹

Surguru 104 SV Patel Salai 0413 222 9022. Located in the popular Surguru Hotel, this is one of the most popular pure-veg restaurants, serving both south and north Indian cuisine. ₹

SHOPPING

MAP

1001 Nights 40A Rue Romain Rolland 98400 90073. A jewellery store with other accessories like carpets, rugs, gifts and souvenirs, this Kashmiri shop is fairly busy as both tourists and locals throng here.

Auro Boutique 12A JN Street 88708 31840. A beautiful and unique collection of artifacts, candles, home décor products, pottery, gifts and other hand-made items from Auroville.

Curio Centre 40 Rue Romain Rolland 0413 222 5676. Classy, if slightly ramshackle, old place with high ceilings. In between the larger items of furniture, you can discover some unusual ornaments.

Sri Aurobindo Handmade Paper 50 Sardar Vallabhai Patel Salai • sriaurobindopaper.com. Something of an institution, this place sells colourful paper gifts and all sorts of stationery from within a leafy compound where you can also witness the traditional manufacturing process.

Via Pondicherry 38 Rue Romain Rolland • viapondicherry.com. Created and run by a vivacious classical dancer and designer, this little shop is a veritable swirl of colour, with all sorts from bags to shawls and bright decorations.

Auroville

The most New Age place anywhere in India must surely be AUROVILLE, the planned “City of Dawn”, 10km north of Pudicherry, straddling the border of the Union Territory and Tamil Nadu. Founded in 1968, Auroville was inspired by “The Mother”, the spiritual successor of Sri Aurobindo. Around 1700 people live in communes (two thirds of them non-Indians), with such names as Fertile, Certitude, Sincerity, Revelation and Transformation, in what it is hoped will eventually be an ideal city for a population of fifty thousand. Architecturally experimental buildings, combining modern Western and traditional Indian elements, are set in a rural landscape of narrow lanes, deep red earth and lush greenery. Income is derived from agriculture, handicrafts, alternative technology, educational and development projects and Aurolec, a computer software company.

Considering how little there is to see here, Auroville attracts a disproportionately large number of day-trippers – much to the chagrin of its inhabitants, who rightly point out that you can only get a sense of what the settlement is all about if you stay a while. Interested visitors are welcomed as paying guests in most of the communes (see below), where you can work alongside permanent residents.

The Visitor Centre Daily 9am–5.30pm • auroville.org

The Visitor Centre is the focal point of any tourist visit to Auroville. You need to get tickets here for an exterior viewing of Matri Mandir, but before they are issued, you’re shown a short video presentation about the village. The adjacent bookshop has plenty of literature on Auroville and it’s worth checking the notice board, which has details of activities in which visitors may participate (including yoga, reiki and Vipassana meditation, costing around ₹200/session). The nearby Bharat Niwas houses a permanent exhibition on the history and philosophy of the settlement. There are also three quality handicraft outlets and several pleasant vegetarian cafés serving snacks, meals and cold drinks.

Matri Mandir

Mon–Sat 10am–noon & 2–4pm, Sun 10am–noon • Free • Tickets available from the Visitor Centre • To obtain “concentration entry” for the Matri Mandir to meditate on the crystal, you must book two days ahead Begun in 1970, the space-age Matri Mandir – a gigantic, almost spherical high-tech meditation centre at the heart of the site – was conceived as “a symbol of the Divine’s answer to man’s inspiration for perfection”. Earth from 124 countries was symbolically placed in an urn, and is kept in a concrete cone in the amphitheatre adjacent to Matri Mandir, from where a speaker can address an audience of three thousand without amplification. The focal point of the interior of the Matri Mandir is a 70cm crystal ball symbolizing the neutral but divine qualities of light and space.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION AUROVILLE LIES 15KM NORTH OF PUDUCHERRY, OFF THE MAIN CHENNAI ROAD; YOU CAN ALSO GET HERE VIA THE COASTAL HIGHWAY, TURNING OFF AT THE VILLAGE OF CHINNA MUDALIARCHAVADI.

By bus Buses from Puducherry run every 20–30min but as Auroville is spread over some fifty square kilometres it’s best to come with your own transport.

By auto-rickshaw or taxi From Puducherry to Auroville costs around ₹300 for the 30min journey in an auto-rickshaw or around ₹400 in a taxi.

Tours Alternatively, there’s the PTDC half-day tour from Puducherry.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING THE INFORMATION DESK AT THE VISITOR CENTRE IS A GOOD PLACE TO ENQUIRE ABOUT ACCOMMODATION OR YOU CAN CONTACT THE AUROVILLE GUEST ACCOMMODATION SERVICE (☎0413 262 2704, 🌐 GUESTHOUSES.AUROVILLE.ORG). THIS SHOULD BE DONE MONTHS AHEAD FOR THE PEAK WINTER MONTHS. OFFICIALLY THERE’S NO LOWER LIMIT ON THE TIME YOU HAVE TO STAY, BUT VISITORS ARE ENCOURAGED TO STICK AROUND FOR AT LEAST A WEEK AND TO HELP OUT ON COMMUNAL PROJECTS. THERE ARE MANY EXCELLENT

PRIVATELY-RUN RESTAURANTS DOTTED AROUND THE ASHRAM AND A CAFÉ AT THE VISITOR CENTRE.

Central Tamil Nadu: the Chola heartland
To be on the banks of the Cauvery listening to the strains of Carnatic music is to have a taste of eternal bliss.

Continuing south of Puducherry along the Coromandel coast, you enter the flat landscape of the Kaveri (aka Cauvery) Delta, a watery world of canals, dams, dykes and rivulets that has been intensively farmed since ancient times. Just 160km in diameter, it forms the verdant rice-bowl core of Tamil Nadu, crossed by more than thirty major rivers and countless streams. The largest of them, the River Kaveri, known in Tamil as Ponni, “The Lady of Gold” (a form of the Mother Goddess), is revered as a conduit of liquid shakti, the primordial female energy that nurtures the millions of farmers who live on her banks and tributaries. The landscape here is one endless swathe of green paddy fields, dotted with palm trees and little villages of thatched roofs and market stalls; it comes as a rude shock to land up in the hot and chaotic towns.

This mighty delta formed the very heartland of the Chola empire, which reached its apogee between the ninth and thirteenth centuries, an era often compared to classical Greece and Renaissance Italy both for its cultural richness and the sheer scale and profusion of its architectural creations. Much as the Cholas originally intended, every visitor is immediately in awe of their huge temples, not only at cities such as Chidambaram, Kumbakonam and Thanjavur, but also out in the countryside at places like Gangaikondacholapuram, where the magnificent temple is all that remains of a once-great city. Exploring the area for a few days will bring you into contact with the more delicate side of Chola artistic expression, such as the magnificent bronzes of Thanjavur.

Chidambaram

CHIDAMBARAM, 58km south of Puducherry, is so steeped in myth that its history is hard to unravel. As the site of the tandav, the cosmic dance of Shiva as Nataraja, King of the Dance, it's one of the holiest sites in south India, and a visit to its Sabhanayagar Nataraja Temple affords a fascinating glimpse into ancient Tamil religious practice and belief. The legendary king Hiranyavarman is said to have made a pilgrimage here from Kashmir, seeking to rid himself of leprosy by bathing in the temple's Shivaganga tank. In thanks for a successful cure, he enlarged the temple. He also brought three thousand brahmins, of the Dikshitar caste, whose descendants, distinguishable by top-knots of hair at the front of their heads, are the ritual specialists of the temple to this day.

Few of the fifty mathas (monasteries) that once stood here remain, but the temple itself is still a hive of activity and hosts numerous festivals. The two most important are ten-day affairs, building up to spectacular finales: on the ninth day of each, temple chariots process through the four Car streets in a car festival, while on the tenth there is an abhishekham, when the principal deities in the Raja Sabha (thousand-pillared hall) are anointed. For exact dates (one is in May/June, the other in Dec/Jan), contact any TTDC tourist office and plan well ahead, as they are very popular. Other local festivals include fire-walking and kavadi folk dance (dancing with decorated wooden frames on the head) at the Thillaiamman Kali (April/May) and Keelatheru Mariamman (July/Aug) temples respectively.

Chidambaram revolves around the Sabhanayagar Nataraja Temple and the busy market area that surrounds it, along North, East, South and West Car streets. The town also has a large student population, based at Annamalai University to the east, a centre of Tamil studies.

Sabhanayagar Nataraja Temple Daily 4am–noon & 4–10pm

For south India's Shaivites, the Sabhanayagar Nataraja Temple, where Shiva is enthroned as Lord of the Cosmic Dance (Nataraja), is the holiest of holies. Its huge gopuras, whose lights are used as landmarks by sailors far out to sea in the Bay of Bengal, soar above a 55-acre complex, divided by four concentric walls. The oldest parts now standing were built under the Cholas, who adopted Nataraja as their chosen deity and crowned several kings here. If you have the time the best way to tackle the complex is to work slowly inwards from the third enclosure in clockwise circles.

Frequent ceremonies take place at the innermost sanctum, the most popular being at noon and 6pm, when a fire is lit, great gongs are struck and devotees rush forward to catch a last glimpse of the lingam before the doors are shut. On Friday nights before the temple closes, during a particularly elaborate puja, Nataraja is carried on a palanquin accompanied by music and attendants carrying flaming torches and tridents. At other times, you'll hear ancient devotional hymns from the Tevaram.

The gopuras

The west gopura is the most popular entrance, as well as being the most elaborately carved and probably the earliest (c.1150 AD). Turning north (left) from here, you come to the colonnaded Shivaganga tank, the site of seven natural springs. From the broken pillar at the tank's edge, all four gopuras are visible. In the northeast corner, the largest building in the complex, the Raja Sabha (fourteenth- to fifteenth-century) is also known as “the thousand-pillared hall”; tradition holds that there are only 999 actual pillars, the thousandth being Shiva's leg. During festivals the deities Nataraja and Shivakamasundari are brought here and mounted on a dais for the anointing ceremony, abhishekha.

The importance of dance at Chidambaram is underlined by the reliefs of dancing figures inside the east gopura, demonstrating 108 karanas (a similar set is to be found in the west gopura). A karana is a specific point in a phase of movement prescribed by the extraordinarily comprehensive Sanskrit treatise on the performing arts, the Natya Shastra (c.200 BC–200 AD) – the basis of all classical dance, music and theatre in India.

The second enclosure To get into the square second enclosure head for its western entrance (just north of the west gopura in the third wall), which leads into a circumambulatory passageway. Once beyond this second wall you may become disorientated as the roofed inner enclosure sees little light and is supported by a maze of colonnades.

Govindaraja shrine The innermost Govindaraja shrine is dedicated to Vishnu – no surprise, as most Shiva temples have a Vishnu shrine inside them, though no Vaishnavite temple has a shrine for Shiva. The deity is attended by non-Dikshitar brahmins who, it is said, don't always get along with the Dikshitars. From outside the shrine, non-Hindus can see through to the most sacred part of the temple, the Kanaka Sabha and the Chit Sabha, adjoining raised structures, roofed with copper and gold plate and linked by a hallway. The latter houses bronze images of Nataraja and his consort Shivakamasundari; behind and to the left of Nataraja, a curtain, sacred to Shiva and strung with rows of leaves from the bilva tree, demarcates the most potent area of all. Within it lies the Akashalingam, known as the rahasya, or “secret”, of Chidambaram: made of the most subtle of the elements, Ether (akasha) – from which Air, Fire, Water and Earth are born – the lingam is invisible, signifying the invisible presence of God in the human heart.

A crystal lingam, said to have emanated from the light of the crescent moon on Shiva’s brow, and a small ruby Nataraja are worshipped in the Kanaka Sabha. They are ritually bathed in the flames of the priests’ camphor fire or oil lamps six times a day. This inner area is where you’re most likely to hear oduvvars, hereditary singers from the middle, non-brahmin castes, intoning verses of ancient Tamil poetry. The songs with which they regale the deities at puja time, drawn from compilations such as the Tevaram or earlier Sangam, are believed to be more than a thousand years old.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN THE CHIDAMBARAM RAILWAY STATION IS JUST OVER 1KM SOUTHEAST OF THE CENTRE. THERE ARE DAILY TRAINS TO CHENNAI EGMORE (5HR 30MIN–6HR) AND TIRUCHIRAPALLI (3HR 30MIN) VIA THANJAVUR (2HR 30MIN).

By bus Buses from Chennai, Thanjavur, Mamallapuram and Madurai pull in at the bus stand, about 500m from the temple.

Destinations Chengalpattu (every 20–30min; 4hr 30min–5hr); Chennai (every 20–30min; 5–6hr); Coimbatore (8 daily; 7hr); Kanchipuram (hourly; 7–8hr); Kanyakumari (4 daily; 9–10hr); Kumbakonam (every 10min; 2hr 30min); Madurai (6 daily; 7hr 30min–8hr); Puducherry (every 15–20min; 2hr); Thanjavur (every 15–20min; 3hr); Tiruchirapalli (every 30min; 4hr 30min); Tiruvannamalai (hourly; 3hr 30min).

Tourist information The TTDC tourist office (Mon–Fri 9.45am–5.45pm; ☎ 04144 238739) is next to Vandayar Gateway Inn hotel on Railway Feeder Rd. Friendly, helpful staff but not a lot of printed info.

Services None of the banks in Chidambaram change money, although the Saradharam hotel, near the bus stand, will.

ACCOMMODATION AKSHAYA 17/18 EAST CAR ST 📍
AKSHAYAHOTEL.IN. PLEASANT, CLEAN, MID-RANGE HOTEL, WITH A GARDEN BACKING RIGHT ONTO THE TEMPLE WALL.
THERE'S A CHOICE OF NON A/C AND A/C ROOMS, BOTH STANDARD AND DELUXE CATEGORIES AND THERE ARE A COUPLE OF RESTAURANTS. ₹₹

Arudhra Residency 20/9 East Sannidhi Street 📍93446 46902. Located close to the temple, this 2-star hotel has good sized clean rooms and is extremely convenient for a temple visit. There is no restaurant, but the closest eatery is a 5min walk away. ₹₹

Mansoor Lodge 91 East Car St 📍mansoorlodge@rediffmail.com. A cheap, friendly and good-value hotel, right opposite the temple. They have tiled floors, clean bathrooms and a TV. No wi-fi. ₹₹

Saradharam 19 Venugopal Pillai St, opposite the bus stand 📍 hotelsaradharam.co.in. Large, clean, well-kept rooms, some with balconies, in a modern building; a/c rooms include breakfast. The hotel also has three decent restaurants (including the multicuisine Anupallavi), a garden, cocktail lounge, laundry service and foreign exchange. ₹-₹₹

EATING PALAGARAM.COM WEST CAR ST (JUST NORTH OF WEST GATE) 📍04144 224228. ODDLY-NAMED BUT SMART, NEW
A/C VEGETARIAN RESTAURANT, WHERE YOU CAN ENJOY A VARIETY OF FILLING SET MEALS. ₹

Pallavi 19 Venugopal Pillai St, opposite the bus stand 📍04144 221336.
Located inside the Hotel Saradharam, this vegetarian restaurant serves traditional south Indian tiffins and meals. The hotel also has a separate kitchen and restaurant serving meat and other non-veg dishes at the multicuisine restaurant, Anu Pallavi.

Southern Spice Vandayar hotel, 12 VGP St 📍04144 225374. This comfortable a/c dining hall offers a range of Indian and Chinese food. ₹

Sri Krishna Vilas 93 East Car St 📍94432 12328. Simple but very good, south Indian food served in a clean environment with deities adorning the walls and early morning pujas. Small range of breakfast dishes including tasty pongol. No menu as such – just ask for what you want. ₹

Gangaikondacholapuram Devised as the centrepiece of a city built by the Chola king Rajendra I (1014–42) to celebrate his conquests, the magnificent Brihadishwara Temple (a replica of the Tanjore temple) stands in the tiny village of GANGAIKONDACHOLAPURAM in Ariyalur District, 35km north of Kumbakonam. The tongue-twisting name means “the town of the Chola who took the Ganges”. Under Rajendra I, the Chola Empire did indeed stretch as far as the great river of the north, an unprecedented achievement for a southern dynasty. Apart from the temple and the rubble of Rajendra’s palace, 2km east at Tamalikaimedu, nothing of the city remains. Nonetheless, this is among the most extraordinary archeological sites in south India, outshone only by Thanjavur, and the fact that it’s devoid of visitors most of the time gives it a memorably forlorn feel. Note there are scarcely any facilities beyond a couple of stalls, so avoid getting stuck here when the temple is closed.

Brihadishwara Temple Daily 6am–noon & 4–8pm

Dominating the village landscape, the Brihadishwara Temple sits in a well-maintained grassy courtyard, flanked by a closed mandapa hallway. Over the sanctuary, to the right, a massive pyramidal tower (vimana) rises 55m in nine diminishing storeys.

Turning right (north) inside the courtyard, before you reach a small shrine to the goddess Durga, containing an image of Mahishasuramardini (the slaying of the buffalo demon), you come across a small well, guarded by a lion statue, known as Simha-kinaru and made from plastered brickwork. King Rajendra is said to have had Ganges water placed in the well to be used for the ritual anointing of the lingam in the main temple. The lion, representing Chola kingly power, bows to the huge Nandi respectfully seated before the eastern entrance of the temple, in line with the shivalingam contained within.

Directly in front of the eastern entrance to the temple stands a small altar for offerings. Two parallel flights of stairs ascend to the mukhamandapa or porch, which leads to the long pillared mahamandapa hallway, the entrance of which is flanked by a pair of large guardian deities. Immediately inside the temple a guide can show you the way to the tower, up steep steps. If you enter alone, a torch is useful because parts of the interior are extremely dark. On either side of the temple doorway, sculptures of Shiva in his various benevolent (anugraha) manifestations include him blessing Vishnu, Devi, Ravana and the saint Chandesha. In the northeast corner, an unusual square stone block features carvings of the nine planets (navagraha). A number of Chola bronzes stand on the platform; the figure of Karthikeya, the war god, carrying a club and a shield, is thought to have had particular significance. The base of the main temple sanctuary is decorated with lions and scrollwork. Above this decoration, running from the southern to the northern entrance of the ardhamandapa, a series of sculpted figures in plastered niches portray different images of Shiva. The most famous is at the northern entrance, showing Shiva and Parvati garlanding the saint Chandesha, who here is sometimes identified as Rajendra I.

Archeological Museum Daily except Fri 10am–1pm & 2–5.45pm • Free
Two minutes' walk northeast along the main road (turn right from the car park), the tiny Archeological Museum contains Chola odds and ends discovered locally. The finds include terracotta lamps, coins, weapons, tiles, bronze, bangle pieces, palm-leaf manuscripts and an old Chinese pot.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY GANGAIKONDACHOLAPURAM BUS ALTHOUGH IT IS marginally closer to CHIDAMBARAM, BUS CONNECTIONS ARE BETTER TO AND FROM KUMBAKONAM (EVERY 15–30MIN; 1HR 30MIN). SOME TRICHY-TO-CHIDAMBARAM SERVICES ALSO STOP HERE.

Kumbakonam and around Sandwiched between the Kaveri (Cauvery) and Arasalar rivers, 74km southwest of Chidambaram and 38km northeast of Thanjavur, is KUMBAKONAM. Hindus believe this to be the place where a water pot (kumba) of amrita – the ambrosial beverage of immortality – was washed up by a great deluge from atop sacred Mount Meru in the Himalayas. Shiva, who just happened to be passing through in the guise of a wild forest-dwelling hunter, for some reason fired an arrow at the pot, causing it to break. From the shards, he made the lingam that is now enshrined in Kumbeswarar Temple, whose gopuras today tower over the town, along with those of some seventeen other major shrines. A former capital of the Cholas, who are said to have kept a high-security treasury here, Kumbakonam is the chief commercial centre for the Thanjavur region. The main bazaar, TSR Big Street, is especially renowned for its quality costume jewellery.

The main reason to stop in Kumbakonam is to admire the exquisite sculpture of the Nageshwara Swami Shiva Temple, which contains the most refined Chola stone carving still in situ. The town also lies within easy reach of the magnificent Darasuram and Gangaikondacholapuram temples, both spectacular ancient monuments that see very few visitors. The village of Swamimalai, just a bike ride away, is the state's principal centre for traditional bronze casting.

Kumbeswarar Temple Nageshwaram Rd • Daily 6am–noon & 4–8pm
Surmounted by a multicoloured gopura, the east entrance of Kumbakonam's seventeenth-century Kumbeswarar Temple, home of the famous lingam from which the town derived its name, is approached via a covered market selling a huge assortment of cooking pots, a local speciality, as well as the usual glass bangles and trinkets. At the gateway, you may meet the temple elephant, with a painted forehead and necklace of bells. Beyond the flagstaff, a mandapa houses a fine collection of silver vahanas, vehicles of the deities, used in festivals, and pancha loham (compound of five metals) figures of the 63 Nayanmar poet-saints.

Sarangapani Temple Off ISR Big St • Daily 6am–noon & 4–8pm •
srirangapanitemple.org

The principal and largest of the Vishnu temples in Kumbakonam is the thirteenth-century Sarangapani Temple, entered through a ten-storey pyramidal gopura gate, more than 45m high. The central shrine dates from the late Chola period, with many later accretions. Its entrance, within the innermost court, is guarded by huge dvarapalas, identical to Vishnu whom they protect. Between them are carved stone jali screens, each different, and in front of them stands the sacred, square homam fireplace. During the day, rays of light from tiny ceiling windows penetrate the darkness around the sanctum, designed to resemble a chariot with reliefs of horses, elephants and wheels. A painted cupboard contains a mirror for Vishnu to see himself when he leaves the sanctum sanctorum.

Nageshwara Swami Shiva Temple Daily 6am–12.30pm & 4.30–9pm

The small Nageshwara Swami Shiva Temple, in the centre of town, is Kumbakonam's oldest, founded in 886 and completed a few years into the reign of Parantaka I (c.907–940). First impressions are unpromising, as much of the original building has been hemmed in by later Disney-coloured additions, but beyond the main courtyard, occupied by a large columned mandapa, a small gopura-topped gateway leads to an inner enclosure where the earliest Chola shrine stands. Framed in the main niches around its sanctum wall are a series of exquisite stone figures, regarded as the finest surviving pieces of ancient sculpture in south India. With their languid stance and mesmeric, half-smiling facial expressions, these modest-sized masterpieces far outshine the more monumental art of Thanjavur and Gangaikondacholapuram.

Mahamakham

Indira Gandhi Rd • Daily 6am–noon & 4–8pm The most famous and revered of many sacred water tanks in Kumbakonam, the Mahamakham in the southeast of town is said to have filled with ambrosia (amrit) collected from the pot broken by Shiva. Every twelve years, when Jupiter passes the constellation of Leo, it is believed that water from the Ganges and eight other holy rivers flows into the tank, thus according it the status of tirtha, or sacred river crossing. At this auspicious time, as many as four million pilgrims come here for an absolving bath; the last occasion was in early 2016.

Airavateshwara Temple Temple daily 5am–7pm • From central Kumbakonam it is a short bus, auto-rickshaw or an easy 4km bike ride (on the Thanjavur route) southwest; the route is flat enough, but keep your wits about you on the Thanjavur Main Rd The Airavateshwara Temple, built by King Rajaraja II (c.1146–73), stands in the village of Darasuram, now more of a suburb of Kumbakonam. This superb, if little-visited, Chola monument ranks alongside those at Thanjavur and Gangaikondacholapuram as UNESCO World Heritage Sites; but while the others are grandiose, emphasizing heroism and conquest, this is far smaller, exquisite in proportion and detail, and said to have been decorated with nitya-vinoda, “perpetual entertainment”, in mind. At this temple, Shiva is called Airavateshwara because he was worshipped here by Airavata, the white elephant belonging to Indra, king of the gods.

Darasuram’s finest pieces of sculpture are the Chola black-basalt images adorning wall niches in the mandapa and inner shrine. These include images of Nagaraja, the snake-king, with a hood of cobras, and Dakshinamurti, the “south-facing” Shiva as teacher, expounding under a banyan tree.

Swamimalai

8km west of Kumbakonam on the NH-22 route to Trichy • Temple daily 5am–noon & 4–10pm •  swamynathaswamytemple.tnhrce.in • To reach Swamimalai by bicycle from Darasuram, head northwest and ask frequently for directions through the convoluted country lanes SWAMIMALAI, 8km west of Kumbakonam, is revered as one of the six sacred abodes of Lord Murugan, Shiva's son, whom Hindu mythology records became his father's religious teacher (swami) on a hill (malai) here. The site of this epic role-reversal now hosts one of the Tamils' holiest shrines, the Arulmigu Swaminatha Swamy Temple, crowning the hilltop of the centre of the village, but of more interest to non-Hindus are the bronze-casters' workshops dotted around the bazaar and the outlying hamlets.

Known as sthapathis, Swamimalai's casters still employ the "lost wax" process perfected by the Cholas to make the most sought-after temple idols in south India. Their finished products are displayed in numerous showrooms along the main street, from where they are exported worldwide, but it is more memorable to watch the sthapathis in action, fashioning the original figures from beeswax and breaking open the moulds to expose the mystical finished metalwork inside.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY KUMBAKONAM AND AROUND TRAIN KUMBAKONAM'S SMALL RAILWAY STATION, IN THE SOUTHEAST OF TOWN 2KM FROM THE MAIN BAZAAR, IS WELL SERVED BY TRAINS IN BOTH DIRECTIONS, AND HAS A 24HR LEFT-LUGGAGE OFFICE AND DECENT (NON-A/C AND A/C) RETIRING ROOMS.

By bus The hectic bus stand is in the southeast of town, just northwest of the railway station. All the timetables are in Tamil, but there's an enquiry office with English-speaking staff. Buses leave for Gangaikondacholapuram (every 15–30min; 1hr 30min), Puducherry (hourly; 4hr) and Thanjavur (every 5–10min; 1hr 30min), many going via Darasuram. Frequent services run to Chennai (every 30min; 7–8hr), Trichy (every 5–10min; 2hr 30min), and there's a daily service to Bengaluru at 6pm (11hr).

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

ARK 21 TSR Big St info@hotelark.com. Centrally located hotel with five floors and fifty spacious and very clean rooms (a/c cost more) and suites, all with TV and decent-sized bathrooms. There's also an a/c bar serving overpriced beer. ₹₹

Chela 9 Ayekulam Rd hotelchela.in. Large mid-range place located between the bus stand and the centre, with a pale green mock-classical front. The good-sized clean rooms (a/c cost more) have pleasant bathrooms and TVs, plus there's a multicuisine restaurant and bar. ₹₹

Dhanam Lodge 188 Kamaraj Rd 📞0435 242 3864. Good, basic but perfectly clean budget lodge, with compact rooms. There are also a/c rooms with four beds. Equally convenient for the bus stand and train station. No wi-fi. ₹₹

INDeco Swamimalai In the hamlet of Thimmakkudy, 6km west of Kumbakonam 📞indecotels.com. Set in its own grounds, this heritage resort is in a beautifully restored nineteenth-century Brahmin's mansion, modern facilities in teak and rosewood-furnished rooms. One restaurant, a small swimming pool and massage. Good online deals. ₹₹₹

Raya's Grand 23/25 Mahamaham Tank West 📞hotelrayas.com. Brand-new business-oriented hotel with large, lavishly furnished a/c rooms, all with mini-fridges and large flat-screen TVs. Great views of the tank from the 'suite' rooms at the front. ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

Rice N Spice 23/25 Mahamaham Tank West 📞0435 242 6611. A very traditional restaurant housed in Raya's Grand hotel which serves Indian vegetarian and Chinese dishes. Try the traditional pulav dishes here, made with rice and vegetables, as well as the curries with chapathis and phulkas. ₹

Sri Mangalambiga Vilas Adi Kumbeshwara Temple Complex 📞93443 01418. A small eatery infused with over 100 years of history, serving traditional, authentic south Indian vegetarian tiffins or snacks and meals for an absolute bargain. Don't miss their rava dosas and fluffy idlis and good filter coffee. ₹

Vasantha Bhavan Bus stand 📞0435 6533996. Good veg restaurant serving a full range of south Indian breakfasts to fuel any onward journey. "Meals" are served from 11am and there's plenty of chai and coffee. ₹

Venkkatramanaa 40 Gandhi Park North 📞0435 2400736. Huge and very popular restaurant, adorned with pictures of Sri Ramana. There's no English menu, but the staff are friendly and helpful. A small range of dishes including "meals" and south Indian specials. ₹

Thanjavur

One of the busiest commercial towns of the Kaveri Delta, THANJAVUR (aka Tanjore), 55km east of Tiruchirapalli and 35km southwest of Kumbakonam, is nevertheless well worth a visit. Its history and treasures – among them the breathtaking Brihadishwara Temple, Tamil Nadu's most awesome Chola monument and a UNESCO World Heritage Site – give it a crucial significance to south Indian culture. The home of the world's finest Chola bronze collection, it holds enough of interest to keep you enthralled for at least a couple of days plus it's a good base for short trips to nearby Gangaikondacholapuram, Darasuram and Swamimalai.

Thanjavur divides into two sections, separated by the east–west Grand Anicut Canal. The old town, north of the canal and once entirely enclosed by a fortified wall, was chosen, between the ninth and the end of the thirteenth century, as the capital of their extensive empire by all the Chola kings save one. None of their secular buildings survive, but you can still see as many as ninety temples, of which the Brihadishwara most eloquently epitomizes the power and patronage of Rajaraja I (985–1014), whose military campaigns spread Hinduism to the Maldives, Sri Lanka and Java. Under the Cholas, as well as the later Nayaks and Marathas, literature, painting, sculpture, Carnatic classical music and Bharatanatyam dance all thrived here. Quite apart from its own intrinsic interest, the Nayak royal palace compound houses an important library and museums including a famous collection of bronzes.

Of major local festivals, the most lavish celebrations at the Brihadishwara Temple are associated with the birthday of King Rajaraja, in late October. A five-day celebration of Carnatic classical music is held each January at the Panchanateshwara Temple at Thiruvaiyaru, 13km away, to honour the great Carnatic composer-saint, Thyagaraja.

Brihadishwara Temple Temple Daily 6am–8pm • Museum Daily 9am–6pm • Free • ☎04362 274 476

Thanjavur's skyline is dominated by the huge tower of the Brihadishwara Temple, nicknamed the Big Temple, which for all its size and UNESCO World Heritage status lacks the grandiose excesses of later periods. The temple was constructed as much to reflect the power of its patron, King Rajaraja I, as to facilitate the worship of Shiva. Profuse inscriptions on the base of the main shrine provide incredibly detailed information about the organization of the temple, showing it to have been rich, both in financial terms and in ritual activity. No fewer than four hundred female dancers, devadasis (literally “slaves to the gods”, married off to the deity), were employed, and each provided with a house. Other staff – another two hundred people – included dance teachers, musicians, tailors, potters, laundrymen, goldsmiths, carpenters, astrologers, accountants and attendants for all manner of rituals and processions.

The temple entrance Entrance to the complex is on the east, through two gopura gateways some way apart. Although the outer one is the larger, both are of the same pattern: massive rectangular bases topped by pyramidal towers with carved figures and vaulted roofs. At the core of each is a monolithic sandstone lintel, said to have been brought from Tiruchirapalli, more than 50km away. The outer facade of the inner gopura features mighty, fanged dvarapala door guardians, mirror images of each other, and thought to be the largest monolithic sculptures in any Indian temple. “Elephant blessings” are sometimes available just through the arch.

The main temple Once you are inside, the gigantic courtyard gives plenty of space to appreciate the buildings. The main temple, constructed of granite, consists of a long pillared mandapa hallway, followed by the ardhamandapa, or “half-hall”, which in turn leads to the inner sanctum, the garbha griha. Above the shrine, the pyramidal 61m vimana tower rises in thirteen diminishing storeys, the apex being exactly one third of the size of the base. This vimana is an example of a “structured monolith”, a stage removed from the earlier rock-cut architecture of the Pallavas, in which blocks of stone are assembled and then carved. As the stone that surmounts it is said to weigh eighty tonnes, there is considerable speculation as to how it got up there; the most popular theory is that the rock was hauled up a 6km-long ramp. Others have suggested the use of a method comparable to the Sumer Ziggurat style of building, in which logs were placed in gaps in the masonry and the stone raised by leverage.

The black shivalingam, more than 3.5m high, in the inner sanctum, is called Adavallan, “the one who can dance well” – a reference to Shiva as Nataraja, the King of the Dance, who resides at Chidambaram and was the ishtadevata, chosen deity, of the king. The lingam is only on view during pujas, when a curtain is pulled back to reveal the god to the devotees.

The Archeological Museum Outside, the walls of the courtyard are lined with colonnaded passageways – the one along the northern wall is said to be the longest in India. In the southwest corner of the courtyard, the small Archaeological Museum houses an interesting collection of sculpture. Here you can also buy the excellent ASI booklet, Chola Temples, which gives detailed accounts of Brihadishwara and the temples at Gangaikondacholapuram and Darasuram.

Royal Palace Compound East Main St (a continuation of Gandhiji Rd) • Palace Compound Daily 9am–6pm • Free • Durbar Hall Daily 10am–

5pm • Charge (includes Saraswati Mahal Library Museum and Thanjavur Art Gallery) charge, camera/video camera charge Members of the erstwhile royal family still reside in the Royal Palace Compound, 2km northeast of Brihadishwara Temple. Work on the palace began in the mid-sixteenth century under Sevappa Nayak, the founder of the Nayak kingdom of Thanjavur; additions were made by the Marathas from the end of the seventeenth century onwards. Dotted around the compound are several reminders of Thanjavur's past under these two dynasties, including an exhibition of oriental manuscripts and a superlative museum of Chola bronzes. Unfortunately, many of the palace buildings remain in a sorry state, despite various promises of funds for renovation.

Remodelled by Shaji II in 1684, the Durbar Hall, or hall of audience, houses a throne canopy decorated with the mirrored glass distinctive of Thanjavur. Although damaged, the ceiling and walls are elaborately painted. Five domes are striped red, green and yellow, and on the walls, friezes of leaf and pineapple designs and trumpeting angels in a night sky show European influence. The courtyard outside the Durbar Hall was the setting for one of the more poignant moments in Thanjavur's turbulent history when, in 1683, the last of the Nayak kings gave himself up to the king of Madurai. Its most imposing structure, the Sarja Madi or "seven-storey" bell tower, built by Serfoji II in 1800, is closed to the public due to its unsafe condition.

Saraswati Mahal Library Museum Daily 10am–1pm & 1.30–5pm • Free The Saraswati Mahal Library holds one of the most important oriental manuscript collections in India, used by scholars from all over the world. The library is closed to the general public, but a small museum displays a bizarre array of books and pictures from the collection. Among the palm-leaf manuscripts is a calligrapher's tour de force in the form of a visual mantra, where each letter in the inscription "Shiva" comprises the god's name repeated in microscopically small handwriting. Most of the Maratha manuscripts, produced from the end of the seventeenth century, are on paper; they include a superbly illustrated edition of the Mahabharata. Sadists will be delighted to see the library managed to hang on to its copy of the explicitly illustrated Punishments in China, published in 1804. Next to it, full rein is given to the imagination of French artist Charles Le Brun (1619–90), in a series of pictures on the subject of physiognomy. Animals such as the horse, bullock, wolf, bear, rabbit and camel are drawn in painstaking care above a series of human faces which bear an uncanny, if unlikely, resemblance to them. You can buy postcards of this scientific study and exhibits from the other palace museums in the shop next door.

CHOLA BRONZES ORIGINALLY SACRED TEMPLE OBJECTS, CHOLA BRONZES ARE THE ONLY ART FORM FROM TAMIL NADU TO HAVE PENETRATED THE WORLD ART MARKET. THE MOST MEMORABLE BRONZE ICONS ARE THE NATARAJAS, OR DANCING SHIVAS, PERFORMING THE COSMIC DANCE. THE IMAGE OF SHIVA, STANDING ON ONE LEG, ENCIRCLED BY FLAMES, WITH WILD LOCKS CAUGHT IN MID-MOTION, HAS BECOME ALMOST RECOGNIZABLY INDIAN.

The principal icons of a temple are usually stationary and made of stone. Frequently, however, ceremonies require an image of the god to be led in procession outside the inner sanctum, and even through the streets. According to the canonical texts known as Agamas, these moving images should be made of metal. Indian bronzes are made by the cire-perdue (“lost wax”) process, known as madhuchchishtavidhana in Sanskrit. Three layers of clay mixed with burned grain husks, salt and ground cotton are applied to a figure crafted in beeswax, with a stem left protruding at each end. When that is heated, the wax melts and flows out, creating a hollow mould into which molten metal – a rich five-metal alloy (panchaloha) of copper, silver, gold, brass and lead – can be poured through the stems. After the metal has cooled, the clay shell is destroyed, and the stems filed off, leaving a unique completed figure, which the caster-artist, or sthapathi, remodels to remove blemishes and add delicate detail.

Those bronzes produced by the few artists practising today invariably follow the Chola model; the chief centre is now Swamimalai. Original Chola bronzes are kept in many Tamil temples, but as the interiors are often dark it's not always possible to see them properly. Important public collections include the Royal Palace Compound at Thanjavur (see below), the Government Museum at Chennai and the National Museum, New Delhi.

Thanjavur Art Gallery East Main St • Daily 9am–1 & 3pm–6pm • Charge, camera/video camera charge A magnificent collection of Chola bronzes – the finest of them from the Tiruvengadu hoard, unearthed in the 1950s – fills the Thanjavur Art Gallery, a high-ceilinged audience hall with massive pillars, dating from 1600. The elegance of the figures and delicacy of detail are unsurpassed. A tenth-century statue of Kannappa Nayannar (#174), a hunter-devotee, shows minutiae right down to his embroidered clothing, fingernails and the fine lines on his fingers. The oldest bronze, four cases left of the main doorway (#58), shows Vinadhra Dakshinamurti (“south-facing Shiva”) who, with a deer on one left hand, would have originally been playing the vina – the musical instrument has long since gone. However, the undisputed masterpiece of the collection shows Shiva as Pasupathinath, Lord of the Animals (#86), sensuously depicted in a skimpy loincloth, with a turban made of snakes. Next to him stands an equally stunning Parvati, his consort (#87), but the cream of the female figures, a seated, half-reclining Parvati (#97), is displayed on the opposite side of the hall.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN

THANJAVUR

THANJAVUR'S RAILWAY STATION IS LOCATED SOUTH OF THE OLD TOWN, CANAL AND BRIHADISHWARA TEMPLE COMPLEX.

Destinations Chennai Egmore (5 daily; 7–8hr); Kumbakonam (10 daily; 45min–1hr 15min); Madurai (2 daily; 3hr 55min–4hr 40min); Rameshwaram (1 daily; 8hr 5min); Trichy (10 daily; 1hr–1hr 50min).

By bus Most buses, including those from Madurai, Tiruchirapalli and Kumbakonam, terminate at the New Bus Stand, 6km southwest of the centre. Rickshaws into town from here cost ₹150, or you can jump on one of the #57, #74 or #75 buses that shuttle to and from the centre every few minutes. Buses from northern destinations such as Chennai, Puducherry and Kumbakonam pass through town, so you can get off near the temple.

Destinations Kumbakonam (every 5min; 1hr 30min); Madurai (every 15min; 6hr); Trichy (every 5min; 1hr 30min).

Tourist information The TTDC tourist office (Mon–Fri 10am–5.45pm; ☎ 04362 230984) is located in the compound of TTDC Tamil Nadu hotel on Gandhiji Rd.

Services You can change money at Canara Bank on South Main St.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Oriental Towers 2889 Srinivasam Pillai Rd ☎ hotelorientaltowers.com. Huge hotel-cum-shopping complex, with small swimming pool, a multicuisine restaurant and luxurious a/c rooms. Four rooms on each floor have good temple views, while deluxe rooms are larger. Good value. ₹₹

Parisutham 55 Grand Anicut Canal Rd ☎ hotelparisutham.com. Luxurious hotel with spacious, a/c rooms, a large palm-fringed pool, Ayurvedic treatments, multicuisine restaurant, craft shop, foreign exchange and travel agent. It's popular with tour groups, so book ahead. ₹₹₹

PLA Residency 2886 Srinivasam Pillai Rd ☎ plaresidency.com. Small but immaculate rooms with large flat-screen TVs and lovely attached bathrooms with modern plumbing and serious shower heads. It's worth paying extra for the bigger exec double. Good rooftop restaurant, and a new annexe two doors along. ₹₹

Sangam Trichy Rd ☎ sangamhotels.com. Luxury four-star hotel on the road in from the bus stand, with comfortable a/c rooms, an excellent restaurant, pool (charge for non-residents), and beautiful Tanjore paintings – the one in the lobby is worth a trip here in itself. ₹₹₹

TTDC Tamil Nadu Gandhiji Rd 📞 ttdconline.com. A 10min walk from the railway station, this state-run hotel, once the raja's guesthouse, manages to maintain lots of character. Large, comfortable and very clean a/c rooms with a sofa and armchairs, all of them set around a pleasant enclosed garden. (A/c rooms cost extra). Includes complimentary breakfast. ₹₹₹

★ Valli 2948 MKM Rd 📞 arasu_tnj@rediffmail.com. At the end of an industrial lane, this friendly hotel has clean rooms, some with a/c, with a choice of Indian or Western loos, a rooftop terrace and convenient but rather average restaurant. The best budget option in town. ₹

EATING

MAP

Arun Court Rd 📞 04362 277310. Conveniently located on the corner of Gandhiji and Court roads, this small pure-veg south Indian restaurant has an extensive menu featuring nearly 100 dishes. Fine masala dosas too. ₹

Chicken Hut 82 Gandhiji Rd 📞 04362 231133. Far superior to the average fast-food joint, serving Indian Chinese, pizza and burgers as well as, of course, tasty fried chicken. ₹₹

Ganesh Bhavan 2905 Srinivasam Pillai Rd 📞 98426 59222. Large, clean, south Indian dhaba situated on the first floor. Serves a wide range of vegetarian dishes, a selection of noodle dishes, masala dosas after 4pm. ₹

Sathars 167 Gandhiji Rd 📞 04362 231041. The most popular non-veg restaurant in town, serving a variety of chicken and prawn dishes, and a few cheaper veggie favourites. There are three separate sections, including an a/c hall upstairs. ₹₹

★ Sri Krishna Bhavan 68A VAC Nagar Trichy Rd 📞 04362 233344. Clean and popular pure-veg restaurant, which serves delicious, unlimited thalis and a good range of local curries and an array of Indian breads. It's a/c hall is open from 10am. ₹

★ Thillana Sangam hotel, Trichy Rd 📞 04362 239451. Swish multicuisine restaurant known for its superb lunchtime south-Indian thalis. In the evening, the extensive à la carte menu, featuring superb chettinad specialities, is served up with live Carnatic music. ₹₹

SHOPPING

MAP

Chola Impressions Art Gallery 26 Chelliah Nagar Tamil University ① 78750 54510. A private art gallery and emporium, where you can buy Thanjavur dolls and paintings. They also have classes for those who are interested.

Poompuhar Gandhiji Rd 🌐 tnpoompuhar.org. This state government shop near the TTDC hotel is a safe bet for reasonable prices on replica bronzes and an array of other handicrafts and souvenirs.

Tiruchirapalli (Trichy) and around TIRUCHIRAPALLI – more commonly referred to as Trichy – stands in the plains between the Shevaroy and Palani hills, just under 100km north of Madurai.

Dominated by the dramatic Rock Fort, it's a sprawling commercial centre with a modern feel. Most of its business is in the southern Trichy Junction district, where the bazaars, immediately north of the Junction, heave with locally made cigars, textiles and fake diamonds, made into inexpensive jewellery and sewn into dance costumes. Head north along Big Bazaar Road and you're confronted by the dramatic profile of the Rock Fort, topped by the seventeenth-century Vinayaka (Ganesh) Temple. There are several British churches dotted around the town, the most notable of which is Our Lady of Lourdes, west of the Rock Fort, which is modelled on the basilica of Lourdes.

North of the fort, the River Kaveri marks a wide boundary between the crowded business districts and the somewhat more serene temples beyond the river. The spectacular Ranganathaswamy Temple in Srirangam, 6km north of central Trichy, is so large it holds much of the village within its courtyards. Also north of the Kaveri is the elaborate Sri Jambukeshwara Temple.

Brief history The precise date of Trichy's foundation is uncertain, but though little early architecture remains, it is clear that between 200 and 1000 AD control of the city passed between the Pallavas and Pandyas. The Chola kings who gained supremacy in the eleventh century embarked upon ambitious building projects, reaching a zenith with the Ranganathaswamy Temple. In the twelfth century, the Cholas were ousted by the Vijayanagar kings of Hampi, who then stood up against Muslim invasions until 1565, when they succumbed to the might of the sultans of the Deccan. Less than fifty years later the Nayaks of Madurai came to power, constructing the fort and firmly establishing Trichy as a trading city. After almost a century of struggle against the French and British, who both sought lands in southeast Tamil Nadu, the town came under British control until it was declared part of Tamil Nadu State in 1947.

The Rock Fort Daily 6am–8pm • Charge, video camera charge • trichyrockfort.tnhrce.in • Bus #1 from outside the railway station or Dindigul Rd The massive sand-coloured rock on which Trichy's Rock Fort rests towers to a height of more than 80m, its irregular sides smoothed by wind and rain. The Pallavas were the first to cut into it, but it was the Nayaks who grasped the site's potential as a fort, adding only a few walls and bastions as fortifications. From the entrance, off China Bazaar, a long flight of red-and-white-painted steps cuts steeply uphill, past a series of Pallava and Pandya rock-cut temples (closed to non-Hindus), to the Ganesh Temple crowning the hilltop. The views from its terrace are spectacular, taking in the Ranganathaswamy and Jambukeshwara temples to the north, their gopuras rising from a sea of palm trees, and the cubic concrete sprawl of central Trichy to the south.

Sri Ranganathaswamy Temple Srirangam • Daily 5.30am–9pm

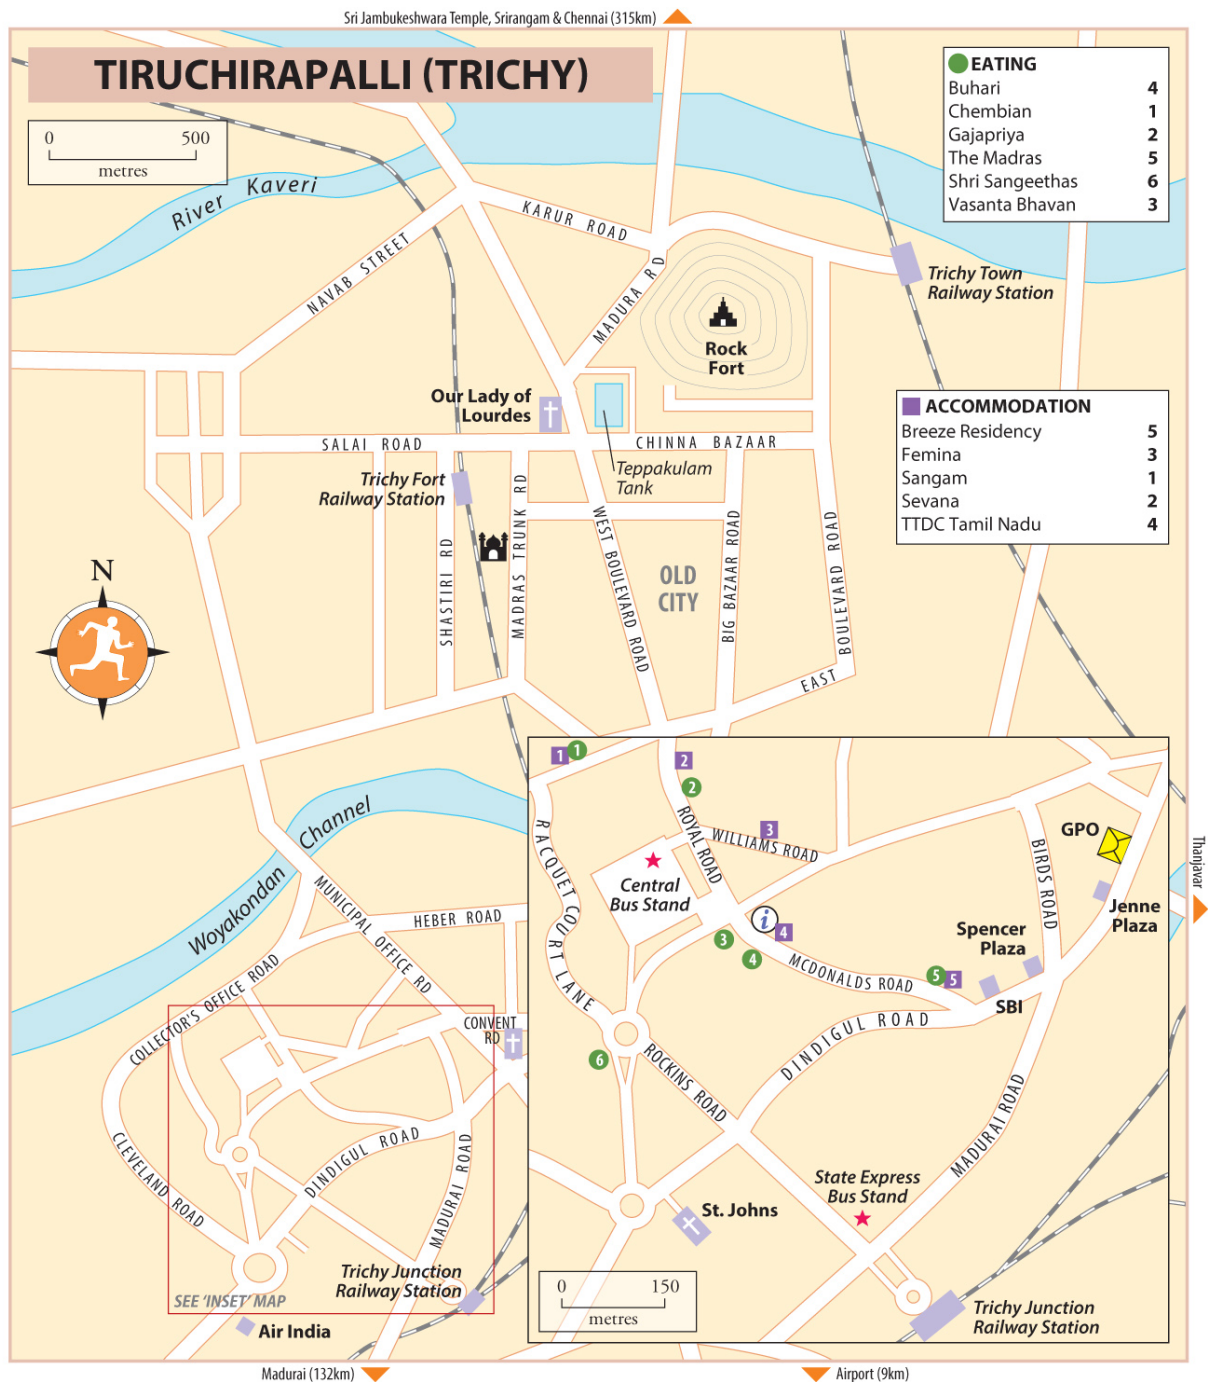

• Free, camera/video camera/official guide charge •

srirangam.org • Frequent buses from Trichy pull in and leave from the southern gate The Sri Ranganathaswamy Temple at Srirangam, 8km north of Trichy Junction, is among the most revered shrines to Vishnu in south India, and also one of the largest and liveliest. Enclosed by seven rectangular walled courtyards and covering more than sixty hectares, it stands on an island defined by a tributary of the River Kaveri. This location symbolizes the transcendence of Vishnu, housed in the sanctuary reclining on the coils of the snake Adishesha, who in legend formed an island for the god, resting on the primordial Ocean of Chaos.

The temple complex A gateway topped with an immense and heavily carved gopura, completed in the late 1980s, leads to the outermost courtyard, the latest of seven built between the fifth and seventeenth centuries. Most of the present structure dates from the late fourteenth century, when the temple was renovated and enlarged after a disastrous sacking in 1313.

The first three courtyards form the hub of the temple community, housing ascetics, priests, musicians and souvenir shops. On reaching the fourth wall, the entrance to the temple proper, visitors remove footwear and can purchase camera and video camera tickets before passing through a high gateway, topped by a magnificent gopura and lined with small shrines to teachers, hymn-singers and sages. In earlier days, this fourth prakara would have formed the outermost limit of the temple, and was the closest members of the lowest castes could get to the sanctuary. It contains some of the finest and oldest buildings of the complex, including a temple to the goddess Ranganayaki in the northwest corner where devotees worship before approaching Vishnu's shrine. On the eastern side of the prakara, the heavily carved "thousand pillared" kalyan mandapa, or hall, was constructed in the late Chola period. The pillars of the outstanding Sheshagiriraya Mandapa, south of the kalyan mandapa, are decorated with rearing steeds and hunters, representing the triumph of good over evil.

To the right of the gateway into the fourth courtyard, a small museum houses a modest collection of stone and bronze sculptures and some delicate ivory plaques. For ₹10, you can climb to the roof of the fourth wall from beside the museum and take in the view over the temple rooftops and gopuras, which increase in size from the centre outwards.

Inside the gate to the fifth courtyard – the final section of the temple open to non-Hindus – is a pillared hall, the Garuda Mandapa, carved throughout in typical Nayak style. Maidens, courtly donors and Nayak rulers feature on the pillars that surround the central shrine to Garuda, the man-eagle vehicle of Vishnu.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE TRICHY'S AIRPORT IS 8KM SOUTH OF TIRUCHIRAPALLI (TRICHY) AND AROUND THE CENTRE AND HAS DAILY FLIGHTS TO AND FROM CHENNAI, BANGALORE, KOCHI AND FREQUENT SERVICES TO SRI LANKA, SINGAPORE, MALAYSIA AND THE GULF STATES. THE JOURNEY INTO TOWN, BY TAXI (AROUND ₹350) OR BUS (#7, #28, #59, #63 OR #K1) TAKES LESS THAN 30MIN.

By train The main railway station, Trichy Junction, which has given its name to the southern district of town, is within easy reach of most hotels and restaurants.

Destinations Bengaluru (1 daily; 9hr 15min); Chengalpattu (6–7 daily; 4hr–5hr 30min); Chennai (16–17 daily; 5hr 40min–7hr 55min); Coimbatore (4 daily; 4hr 50min–5hr 20min); Ernakulam for Kochi (2 daily; 10hr 30min–14hr); Kanyakumari (3 daily; 7hr 30min–9hr); Kodaikanal Rd (3–4 daily; 1hr 50min–2hr 15min); Madurai (11–14 daily; 2hr 20min–3hr 15min); Thanjavur (10 daily; 38min–1hr 40min).

By bus There are two main bus stands in Trichy, State Express and Central, both served by a mixture of state and private buses. The efficient local city service (#1) that leaves from the platform on Rockins Rd, opposite the Shree Krishna restaurant, is the most convenient way of getting to the Rock Fort, the temples and Srirangam. Auto-rickshaws are also widely available.

Destinations Chengalpattu (every 15–30min; 7–8hr); Chennai (every 15–30min; 8hr 30min–9hr 30min); Coimbatore (every 30min; 5hr); Kanchipuram (3 daily; 7hr); Kanyakumari (every 30min; 10–11hr); Kodaikanal (8–10 daily; 5–6hr); Madurai (every 20–30min; 4–5hr); Puducherry (every 30min; 5–6hr); Thanjavur (every 10min; 1hr–1hr 30min); Tiruvannamalai (5 daily; 6hr).

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE TOURIST OFFICE (MON–FRI 10AM–5.30PM; ☎0431 246 0136), WHICH OFFERS TRAVEL INFORMATION BUT NO MAPS, IS JUST OUTSIDE THE TAMIL NADU HOTEL, OPPOSITE THE CENTRAL BUS STAND.

Services There are many places to change money, such as the Highway forex office (Mon–Sat 10am–6pm) in the Plaza and the State Bank of India on Dindigul Rd.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Breeze Residency 3/14 McDonald's Rd ☎breezeresidency.com. This large, centrally located a/c hotel boasts good-sized, comfortably furnished rooms, a nicely decorated foyer, swimming pool and a very good restaurant, The Madras, and 24-hour coffee shop called The Clock. ₹₹

★Femina 109 Williams Rd, near Central Bus Stand ☎feminahotel.net. Well-maintained, sprawling block of double a/c rooms some with balconies offering views of the Rock Fort. The hotel has a flashy marble lobby and houses two plush restaurants, travel services, shops, a pool, fitness centre and 24hr coffee bar. ₹₹

Sangam Collector's Office Rd ☎sangamhotels.com. Trichy's top hotel, with all the facilities expected of a four-star: a very nice swimming pool and an excellent restaurant, Chembian (see below), with live music at weekends. ₹₹₹₹

Sevana 5 Royal Rd ☎hotelsevana@gmail.com. Set in its own grounds 100m back from the main road, this hotel lacks character but offers clean, spacious doubles with king-size beds and towels provided. There's a good-value discount for non a/c single-occupancy rooms. No wi-fi. ₹

TTDC Tamil Nadu McDonald's Rd ☎ttdconline.com. One of TTDC's better hotels, and just far enough from the bus stand to escape the din. There are two categories of a/c room, all with cable TV, but the non-a/c rooms are better value. Suites and family rooms are available. Complimentary breakfast. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Buhari Annamalai Complex, McDonald's Rd ☎984 246 6221. Refreshingly cool, a/c, north Indian restaurant with yellow walls, serving chicken, mutton, fish and veg dishes, with or without gravy, plus some Chinese. ₹

Chembian Sangam hotel, Collector's Office Rd 0431 424 4555. This excellent restaurant offers a range of delicious Indian dishes as well as unusually good Western and Chinese cuisine, in an atmospheric, beautifully decorated dining hall. Live Carnatic music at weekends. ₹₹

Gajapriya Royal Rd, ground floor of the Gajapriya hotel. Non-veg north Indian and noodle dishes are specialities of this small but blissfully cool and clean a/c restaurant. ₹

The Madras Breeze Residency, 3/14 McDonald's Rd 0431 404 5333. Worth a visit for its excellent-value weekday lunchtime and dinner buffets, which feature a wide range of Indian and Chinese dishes and a few random Mexican treats thrown into the mix. Prices higher at weekends. ₹₹

Shri Sangeethas 2 VOC Road, near Central Bus Stand 0431 420 0405. Casual, simple vegetarian restaurant which is part of a chain that you will see across the city. Meals during lunch are good value and very filling but try to leave some room for some of the sweets and desserts. ₹

Vasanta Bhavan Abhirami hotel complex, 10 Rockins Rd, opposite Central Bus Stand 0431 241 5001. Trichy's best-known south Indian restaurant, serving up unbeatable-value lunchtime "meals" (₹90) and the standard range of snacks the rest of the day. The fast-food counter serves fine dosas and uttapams all day. ₹

Madurai

One of the oldest cities in South Asia, MADURAI, on the banks of the River Vaigai, has been an important centre of worship and commerce for as long as there has been civilization in south India. It was often described as "the Athens of the East" and indeed, when the Greek ambassador Megasthenes visited in 302 BC, he wrote of its splendour and described its queen, Pandai, as "a daughter of Herakles". The Roman geographer Strabo also wrote of Madurai, complaining that the city's silk, pearls and spices were draining the imperial coffers of Rome. It was this lucrative trade that enabled the Pandyan dynasty to erect the mighty Meenakshi-Sundareshwarar temple. Although now surrounded by a sea of modern concrete cubes, the massive gopuras of this vast complex, writhing with multicoloured mythological figures and crowned by golden finials, remain the greatest man-made spectacle of the south. No fewer than 15,000 people pass through its gates every day and on Fridays (sacred to the goddess Meenakshi) numbers swell to more than 25,000, while the temple's ritual life spills out into the streets in an almost ceaseless round of festivals and processions.

Although considerably enlarged and extended through the ages, the overall layout of Madurai's old city, south of the River Vaigai, has remained largely unchanged since the first centuries AD, comprising a series of concentric squares centred on the massive Meenakshi Temple. Aligned with the cardinal points, the street plan forms a giant mandala, whose sacred properties are activated during the regular mass clockwise circumambulations of the central temple. North of the river, Madurai becomes markedly more mundane and irregular. You're only likely to cross the Vaigai to reach the city's more expensive hotels or the Gandhi Museum.

Brief history Although invariably interwoven with myth, the traceable history and fame of Madurai stretches back well over two thousand years. Numerous natural caves in local hills, and boulders often modified by the addition of simple rock-cut beds, were used both in prehistoric times and by ascetics such as the Ajivikas and Jains, who practised withdrawal and penance.

Madurai appears to have been capital of the Pandyan Empire without interruption for at least a thousand years. It became a major commercial city, trading with Greece, Rome and China, and yavanas (a generic term for foreigners) were frequent visitors to Pandyan seaports. The Tamil epics describe them walking around town with their eyes and mouths wide open with amazement. Under the Pandya dynasty, Madurai also became an established seat of Tamil culture, credited with being the site of three sangams, "literary academies", said to date back ten thousand years and which supported some eight thousand poets.

The Pandyas' capital fell in the tenth century, when the Chola king Parantaka took the city. In the thirteenth century, the Pandyas briefly regained power until the early 1300s, when the notorious Malik Kafur, the Delhi Sultanate Alauddin Khilji's "favourite slave", made an unprovoked attack during a plunder-and-desecration tour of the south, and destroyed much of the city. Forewarned of the raid, the Pandya king, Sundara, fled with his immediate family and treasure, leaving his uncle and rival, Vikrama Pandya, to repel Kafur. Nevertheless, the latter returned to Delhi with booty said to consist of “six hundred and twelve elephants, ninety-six thousand mans of gold, several boxes of jewels and pearls and twenty thousand horses”.

Shortly after this raid Madurai became an independent Sultanate. In 1364, it joined the Hindu Vijayanagar Empire, ruled from Hampi and administered by governors, the Nayaks. In 1565, the Nayaks asserted their own independence. Under their supervision and patronage, Madurai enjoyed a renaissance, being rebuilt on the pattern of a lotus centring on the Meenakshi Temple. Part of the palace of the most illustrious of the Nayaks, Thirumalai (1623–55), survives today. The city remained under Nayak control until the mid-eighteenth century when it was gradually taken over by the British. A hundred years later the British de-fortified Madurai, filling its moat to create the four Veli streets that today mark the boundary of the old city.

Sri Meenakshi-Sundareshwarar Temple Daily 4am–12.30pm & 4–10pm • No shorts or cameras or mobiles Enclosed by a roughly rectangular 6m-high wall, in the manner of a fortified palace, and with modern security measures to match, the Sri Meenakshi-Sundareshwarar Temple is one of the largest temple complexes in India. Much of it was constructed during the Nayak period between the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries, but certain parts are very much older.

For the first-time visitor, confronted with a confusing maze of shrines, sculptures and colonnades, and unaware of the logic employed in their arrangement, it's very easy to get disorientated. Quite apart from the estimated 33,000 sculptures to arrest your attention, the life of the temple is absolutely absorbing, with the endless round of puja ceremonies, loud nagaswaram and tavil music, weddings, brahmin boys under religious instruction in the Vedas, the prostrations of countless devotees and the glittering market stalls inside the east entrance. If you're braving the heat of late spring, check when the stunning Chithirai festival is taking place to celebrate the marriage of Meenakshi and Sundareshwarar (Shiva), marked by vivid chariot processions. Even if you're not lucky enough to see a festival procession, something is always going on to make this one of the most compelling places in Tamil Nadu. Approximately fifty priests live and work here, recognizable by the white dhotis tied between their legs and silk cloth worn around their waists. You can roam freely within the complex but the main shrines can only be entered by Hindus.

The entrance

Madurai takes the gopura, prominent in all southern temples, to its ultimate extreme. The entire complex has no fewer than twelve such towers. Built into the outer walls, the four largest reach a height of around 46m and are covered with a profusion of gaily painted stucco gods and demons.

The most popular entrance, on the east side, leads directly to the Shiva shrine. Another entrance nearby, through a towerless gate, leads to the adjacent Meenakshi shrine deep inside. In the Ashta Shakti Mandapa (“Eight Goddesses Hallway”), a market sells puja offerings and souvenirs. Sculpted pillars illustrate different aspects of the goddess Shakti, and Shiva’s 64 miracles at Madurai.

Golden Lotus Tank Continuing straight on from the Ashta Shakti Mandapa, you cross East Ati Street and having passed through the seven-storey Chitrai gopura you then enter a passageway which leads to the eastern end of the Pottamarai Kulam (“Golden Lotus Tank”), where Indra bathed before worshipping the shivalingam. From the east side of the tank you can see the glistening gold of the Meenakshi and Sundareshwarar vimana towers. Facing Meenakshi, just beyond the first entrance and in front of the sanctum sanctorum, stands Shiva’s bull-vehicle, Nandi. At around 9pm, the moveable images of the god and goddess are carried to the bed chamber. Here the final puja ceremony of the day, the lalipuja, is performed, when for thirty minutes or so the priests sing lullabies (lali), before closing the temple for the night.

Every Friday (6–7pm) Sundareshwar and Meenakshi are brought to the sixteenth-century Oonjal Mandapa, where they are placed on a swing (oonjal) and serenaded by members of a special caste, the Oduvars.

Sundareshwarar shrine Walking back north, past the Meenakshi shrine and through a towered entrance, you arrive at the Sundareshwarar shrine. Inside is the huge monolithic Ganesh, Mukkuruni Vinayaka, thought to have been unearthed during excavation of the Mariamman Teppakulam tank. Chubby Ganesh is well known for his love of sweets and during the annual Vinayaka Chaturthi festival (Sept), a special prasad (food offering) is concocted using 300 kilos of rice, ten kilos of sugar and 110 coconuts.

North of the flagstaffs are statues of Shiva and Kali in the throes of a dance competition; a nearby stall sells tiny butter balls for visitors to throw at the deities “to cool them down”.

The Thousand Pillar Hall Art Museum Daily 6.30am–12.30pm & 4–9pm • charge Leaving through the east gateway of the Sundareshwarar shrine you come to the fifteenth-century Ayirakkal Mandapa (thousand-pillared hall) in the northeast corner, which now houses the temple Art Museum. Throughout the hall, large sculptures of strange mythical creatures and cosmic deities rear out at you from the broad stone pillars, some of which have startlingly metallic-like musical tones when tapped.

MEENAKSHI: THE GODDESS WITH FISH-SHAPED EYES

The goddess Meenakshi of Madurai emerged from the flames of a sacrificial fire as a 3-year-old child, in answer to the Pandyan king Malayadvaja's prayer for a son. The king, not only surprised to see a female, was also horrified that she had three breasts. In every other respect, she was beautiful, as her name, Meenakshi ("fish-eyed"), suggests; fish-shaped eyes are classic images of desirability in Indian love poetry. Dispelling his concern, a mysterious voice told the king that Meenakshi would lose the third breast on meeting her future husband.

In the absence of a male heir, the adult Meenakshi succeeded her father as Pandyan monarch. With the aim of world domination, she embarked on a series of successful battles, culminating in the defeat of Shiva's armies in his Himalayan abode, Mount Kailash. Shiva then appeared on the battlefield and upon seeing him, Meenakshi immediately lost her third breast thus fulfilling the prophecy. They then travelled to Madurai, where they were duly married. They assumed a dual role – firstly as king and queen of the Pandya kingdom, with Shiva assuming the title Sundara Pandya, and secondly as the presiding deities of the Madurai temple, into which they subsequently disappeared.

Today, their shrines in Madurai are the focal point of a hugely popular fertility cult centred on their "coupling". The temple priests maintain that this ensures the preservation and regeneration of the universe, so every night the pair are placed in Sundareshwarar's bedchamber – but not before Meenakshi's nose ring is carefully removed so that in the heat of passion it won't cut her husband. However, fidelity is never taken for granted, and has to be ritually tested each year when the beautiful goddess Cellattamman is brought to Sundareshwarar "to have her powers renewed". After she is spurned, she flies into a fury that can only be placated with the sacrifice of a buffalo.

Vandiyur Mariamman Teppakulam Ramnad Rd • Bus #4 or #4A

At one time, the huge Vandiyur Mariamman Teppakulam tank in the southeast of town, with its constant supply of water, flowing via underground channels from the Vaigai, was always full. Nowadays it is only filled during the spectacular Teppam floating festival (Jan/Feb), when pilgrims take boats out to the goddess shrine in the centre. Before their marriage ceremony, Shiva and Meenakshi are brought in procession to the tank, where they float on a beautifully illuminated raft pulled by devotees, which encircles the shrine. The boat trip is the overture to a seduction that reaches its passionate conclusion later that night in the temple. This traditionally makes the Teppam the most auspicious time of year for young couples to get married.

Thirumalai Nayak Palace Mahlyadampokki St • Palace Daily 9am–5pm • Charge, camera/video camera charge, includes Palace Museum • Sound-and-light show English 6.45–7.35pm, charge; Tamil 8–8.50pm, charge; tickets issued 15min before the show • 0452 233 2945 • Bus #4, #14 or #47

Today only a quarter of the seventeenth-century Thirumalai Nayak Palace, located 1.5km southeast of the Meenakshi Temple, survives. Much of it was dismantled by Thirumalai's grandson, Chockkanatha Nayak, and used to build a new palace at Tiruchirapalli. The remains were renovated in 1858 by Lord Napier, then governor of Madras, and once again in 1971 for the Tamil World Conference. The palace originally consisted of two residential sections, a theatre, private temple, harem, royal bandstand, armoury and gardens. The Palace Museum in an adjacent hall includes unlabelled Pandyan, Jain and Buddhist sculptures, terracottas and an eighteenth-century print of the palace in a dilapidated state. A nightly sound-and-light show (in both English and Tamil) recalls the story of the Tamil epic, Shilipaddikaram, and the history of the Nayaks.

Tamukkam Palace: the Gandhi Memorial Museum Tamukkan Rd • Daily except Fri 10am–1pm & 2–5.45pm • Free • Bus #1, #2A, #22, #24, #44 & #77 (from Periyar bus stand 20min)
Across the Vaigai, 5km northeast of the centre near the Central Telegraph Office, stands Tamukkam, the seventeenth-century multipillared and arched palace of Queen Rani Mangammal. Built to accommodate such regal entertainment as elephant fights, Tamukkam was taken over by the British, used as a courthouse and collector's office, and in 1955 became home to the Gandhi and Government museums. The Gandhi Memorial Museum charts the history of India since the landing of the first Europeans, viewed in terms of the freedom struggle. The perspective is national, but where appropriate, reference is made to the role played by Tamils. Wholeheartedly critical of the British, it states its case clearly and simply, quoting the condemnation by Englishman John Sullivan of his fellow countrymen's insulting treatment of Indians. One chilling artefact, kept in a room painted black, is the bloodstained dhoti the Mahatma was wearing when he was assassinated. Next door to the museum, the Gandhi Memorial Museum Library houses a reference collection, open to all, of fifteen thousand books, periodicals, letters and microfilms.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE MADURAI'S MADURAI SMALL DOMESTIC AIRPORT (☎0452 269 0433), 12KM SOUTH OF THE CENTRE, IS SERVED BY DIRECT DOMESTIC FLIGHTS TO AND FROM CHENNAI (10 DAILY; 1HR 5MIN–1HR 20MIN), BENGALURU (1 DAILY; 1HR 20MIN), HYDERABAD (1 DAILY; 1HR 50MIN), MUMBAI (1 DAILY; 2 HOURS 30 MIN) AND DELHI (1 DAILY; 3 HOURS) AS WELL AS INTERNATIONAL CONNECTIONS TO COLOMBO (1–2 DAILY; 1HR), SINGAPORE (1 DAILY; 4 HOURS) AND DUBAI (3HR 5MIN). TO GET TO THE AIRPORT, CATCH A TAXI (AROUND ₹400) OR TAKE CITY BUS #10A FROM THE PERIYAR BUS STAND.

By train The reservations office is to the left of the main hall. There's a prepaid auto-rickshaw and taxi booth outside the main entrance. Madurai is well connected with most major towns and cities in south India and some beyond. It's possible to reach the railhead for Kodaikanal by train, but the journey is much faster by express bus.

RECOMMENDED TRAINS FROM MADURAI

Destination	Name	No.	Departs	Arrives
Bengaluru	Bangalore Express	#17236	11.55pm	9.30am+
Chennai	Vaigai Express	#12636	7.00am	2.35pm
	Pandian Express	#12638	8.40pm	4.55am+
Nagercoil	Guruvayur Express	#16127	4.15pm	9.25pm
Rameshwaram	Rameshwaram Express	#16734	4.00pm	9.30pm (only on Thursdays)
Trichy	Vaigai Express	#12636	7.00am	8.55am
+ Next day

Destinations Bengaluru (2–3 daily; 9hr 15min–10hr 50min); Chennai (10–13 daily; 7hr 40min–11hr 40min); Delhi (2 weekly; 41hr 45min); Ernakulam for Kochi (1 daily; 11hr); Kanyakumari/Nagercoil (6–8 daily; 4hr 25min–6hr 20min); Mumbai (5 weekly; 34hr 55min–36hr 15min); Rameshwaram (3–4 daily; 3hr 40min–4hr 30min); Trichy (11–15 daily; 1hr 55min–3hr 40min); Trivandrum (3 daily; 6hr 50min–7hr 40min).

By bus The Central Bus Stand is the arrival point for all services except those from Kerala and west Tamil Nadu, which arrive at Arapalayam Bus Stand. The Central Bus Stand is 7km from the centre, east of the river, and is connected to the centre by city buses #700 and #75, while Arapalayam Bus Stand is in the northwest, about 2km from the railway station. Periyar Bus Stand, on West Veli St, is for local city buses. Next to Periyar is the Tamil Nadu State Express reservation office (8am–2pm & 4–8pm) for a/c buses to Chennai and other destinations including several Keralan towns and Bengaluru.

Destinations (from the Central Bus Stand unless otherwise stated): Chengalpattu (every 20–30min; 8–9hr); Chennai (every 20–30min; 10–11hr); Chidambaram (6 daily; 7hr 30min–8hr); Coimbatore (Arapalayam stand, every 30min; 5–6hr); Kanchipuram (4 daily; 9–10hr); Kanyakumari (every 30min; 5hr 30min–6hr); Kochi/Ernakulam via Kottayam (Arapalayam stand, 9 daily; 9hr 30min–10hr); Kodaikanal (Arapalayam stand, hourly; 4hr–4hr 30min); Kumbakonam (8 daily; 6hr–6hr 30min); Kumily, for Periyar Wildlife Sanctuary (Arapalayam stand, hourly; 5hr); Mysuru (5 daily; 10–11hr); Puducherry (hourly; 9–10hr); Rameshwaram (every 30min–1hr; 4hr); Thanjavur (every 30min; 4–5hr); Thiruvananthapuram, Kerala (hourly; 7–8hr); Tiruchirapalli (every 30min; 4–5hr); Tirupati (4 daily; 15hr). There are no direct services from Madurai to Ooty – you need to change in Coimbatore.

GETTING AROUND BY BIKE CHEAP BIKE RENTAL IS AVAILABLE AT SV, WEST TOWER ST, NEAR THE WEST ENTRANCE TO THE TEMPLE, OR THE STALL ON WEST VELI ST, OPPOSITE THE TAMIL NADU HOTEL.

By taxi If you want a taxi to see the outlying sights, head to the rank outside the main railway station, which abides by government set rates; a 5hr city tour will cost around ₹1500.

By Autorickshaw if you want to get a feel of the roads and get around hassle-free within Madurai.

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE TTDC TOURIST OFFICE, ON WEST VELI ST (MON–FRI 10AM–5.45PM, PLUS SAT 10AM–1PM DURING FESTIVALS; ☎0452 233 4757), IS USEFUL FOR GENERAL INFORMATION AND MAPS, AND CAN PROVIDE INFORMATION ON CAR RENTAL AND APPROVED GUIDES. IN THE MAIN HALL OF THE RAILWAY STATION ITSELF YOU’LL FIND A VERY HELPFUL BRANCH OF THE TOURISM DEPARTMENT INFORMATION CENTRE (DAILY 6.30AM–8.30PM).

Services The State Bank of India at 6 West Veli St can change cash.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP AND THIS MAP

Aarathy 9 Perumal Koil, West Mada St 🌐hotelaarathy.com. Popular hotel in a great location over-looking the Koodal Alagar Temple; it’s often booked up. All rooms have TV and some have balconies, but there’s quite a range so it’s worth checking a few. Good a/c restaurant which serves pure vegetarian. ₹

Chentoor 106 West Perumal Maistry St 📍 hotelchentoor.in. Good-value tower-block hotel with very nice, clean all-a/c rooms with TV and king-size beds. Also has a good rooftop restaurant called Emperor. ₹₹

Fortune Pandyan Racecourse Rd, north of the river 📍 fortunehotels.in. Smart, a/c hotel which is a part of the ITC group and provides a range of large, comfortable rooms, all with TV and lavishly decorated with period-style furnishings. Quiet and relaxed, but some way from the centre. Good restaurant, a bar, exchange facilities and travel agency. ₹₹₹₹

★ The Gateway Pasumalai 40 TPK Rd, Pasumalai Hills 📍 thegatewayhotels.com. Madurai's most exclusive hotel, a beautifully refurbished colonial house in 25 acres of manicured gardens in the hills, overlooking the city from 6km away. Superior rooms in the old building are the most atmospheric, but the executive rooms have the best views. There is a gourmet restaurant, swimming pool, tennis court and bar. Good early-bird online specials. ₹₹₹

Marriott Courtyard Alagar Koil Rd 📍 marriott.com. Situated in its own grounds, this plush, centrally a/c hotel which was earlier called Sangam is now rebranded as a Marriott property. It has very comfortable rooms (some with bath and sofa), a bar and currency exchange. There is a decent swimming pool, nice gardens and an excellent restaurant. ₹₹₹

New College House 2 Town Hall Rd 📍 collegehouse_mdu@yahoo.co.in. This huge, maze-like place which is over a century old, has more than 140 rooms, and one of the town's best "meals" restaurant, called Anna Meenakshi. A/c rooms cost extra. No wi-fi but a browsing centre on the ground floor. ₹-₹₹

Padmam 1 Perumal Tank West St 📍 hotel_padmam@hotmail.com. Clean, comfortable, modern hotel in a central location with a rooftop restaurant. All rooms have TV, some have small balconies and a few are a/c. The front rooms, which overlook the ruined Perumal tank and have views of the temple gopuras, are more expensive. There are luxury suites as well. ₹₹₹

Prem Nivas 102 West Perumal Maistry St 📞 0452 234 2532. The swanky exterior belies a slightly grubby interior, although bed linen is clean and the rooms are a reasonable size, with flatscreen TVs. ₹-₹₹

Rathna Residency 109 West Perumal Maistry St 📍 hotelrathnaresidency.com. This is a standard mid-range hotel with central a/c and clean, decent-sized rooms. There's also a money exchange facility and a good restaurant, The Sangam. Breakfast included. ₹₹

★Sri Thirupathy Residency 20 West Avani Moola St ☎0452 234 7431. This small hotel, right next to the temple, has spotless non-a/c doubles and is a popular choice with travellers. The “deluxe” a/c rooftop room has a great view of the western gopura. Book in advance. Wi-fi only in reception. ₹

Supreme 110 West Perumal Maistry St ☎hotelsupreme.in. A large, central hotel in a seven-storey block with comfortable a/c rooms some of which have temple views. There are good facilities, including foreign exchange, a travel counter, and two restaurants (see below). Lukewarm reception. ₹₹-₹₹₹

TTDC Tamil Nadu Unit I West Veli St ☎ttdconline.com. Situated a little out of the way from the atmosphere of the temples and the bazaar, this hotel offers spacious rooms overlooking a leafy courtyard. The a/c rooms are very good value. ₹-₹₹

EATING

MAP

When the afternoon heat gets too much, head for one of the juice bars dotted around the centre, where you can order freshly squeezed pomegranate, pineapple, carrot or orange juice for around ₹30 a glass. And the drink that Madurai is famous for is a cold beverage which is milk based but has almond resin and is topped with dry fruits called jigarthanda at around ₹50 a glass. Madurai is hardly a drinking town, but most of the pricier hotels have a bar, perhaps the most eccentric being the Apollo 96, a sci-fi-themed extravaganza at the Supreme hotel.

Aarathy Aarathy hotel, 9 Perumal Koil, West Mada St ☎0452 233 1571. This place serves south Indian breakfasts (7–10.30am), very good lunchtime “meals” (11.30am–3.30pm) and a good range of vegetarian dishes (4.30–10.30pm). There's an a/c dining room and tables in a courtyard. ₹

★Anna Meenakshi West Perumal Maistry St. One of the best-value places to eat in the centre, this upmarket branch of New College House's more traditional canteen serves good pure-veg food. Delicious coconut and lemon rice “meals”, banana-leaf “meals”, plus north Indian meals. ₹

★The Emperor Chentoor Hotel, 106 West Perumal Maistry St 0452 307 7777. With a lovely breeze and great city and temple views, this multicuisine rooftop restaurant is a great place to eat. They serve good Indian food, including biryanis, chicken dishes and Chinese cuisine. ₹

Mahal 21 Town Hall Rd 0452 234 2700. Well-established and nicely decorated street-level restaurant serving small but tasty portions of fish and chips, plus half tandoori chicken and cheap south Indian veg snacks. ₹

Surya Supreme Hotel, 110 West Perumal Maistry St 0452 234 3151. This is one of Madurai's most popular rooftop restaurants, with great views of the city and temple. The pure-veg food is average and the service a little lax, but it's still worth checking out for those views. A/c hall on ground floor. ₹

SHOPPING OLD MADURAI IS CROWDED WITH TEXTILE AND TAILORS' SHOPS, PARTICULARLY IN WEST VELI, AVANI MOOLA AND CHITRAI STREETS, AND TOWN HALL RD. AT THE TAILORS' SHOPS NEAR THE TEMPLE, LOCALLY PRODUCED TEXTILES ARE GENERALLY GOOD VALUE, AND TAILORS PRIDE THEMSELVES ON TURNING OUT FAITHFUL COPIES OF FAVOURITE CLOTHES IN JUST A MATTER OF HOURS. SOUTH AVANI MOOLA STREET IS PACKED WITH JEWELLERY OUTLETS, PARTICULARLY GOLD SHOPS, WHILE STORES ON WEST VELI STREET SELL MOSTLY CRAFTS, OIL LAMPS, MEENAKSHI SCULPTURES AND KHADI CLOTH AND SHIRTS.

Chettinadu

The tranquil rural area known as Chettinadu occupies a swathe of land about equidistant from Madurai to the southwest and Trichy and Thanjavur to the north. It is the traditional home of the Chettiars, also known as the Nagarathas, a merchant community who date back to the Chola empire and came to prominence in the nineteenth century, when they played an important role in the British trade routes to countries on the Subcontinent and Southeast Asia. The great wealth accumulated during this period allowed them to build lavish mansions and notable temples in their 96 villages, of which 72 remain, plus the larger towns of Karaikudi and Pudukottai. These urban areas grew from villages and provide the gateway to the area, especially the former.

It would take days if not weeks to explore the area thoroughly, so it is best to base yourself at one of the most picturesque villages, such as Kanadukathan, 15km north of Karaikudi, en route to Pudukottai. Many of the mansions here and in other villages fell into disrepair when their owners emigrated but have recently been beautifully refurbished as heritage hotels, often by returning Chettians themselves. Chettinadu is also renowned for its cuisine, with examples of it often to be found on Indian menus worldwide.

Kanadukathan

Set amid vivid rice paddies and sugar cane fields, just a couple of kilometres off the main highway, KANADUKATHAN epitomizes the effortless class that is exuded by most Chettinad villages. It takes barely ten minutes to walk from one side of it to the other, during which time your eye will marvel at the ornate architecture of the houses and mansions on display. Some heritage houses, usually bearing the owner's initials, such as CVRM and VVR, can be entered by paying a small fee to the janitor. The main attraction, just a block the other side of the large temple bathing tank from the central crossroads, is the Maharaja Palace. This large two-storey edifice is not open to the public but you can admire the startling white walls and arches, counterpointed by vivid flashes of reds and blues from outside.

FOOD IN TAMIL NADU AS BEFITS THE HEARTLAND OF THE SOUTH, TAMIL NADU'S CUISINE IS TYPICAL OF SOUTH INDIA'S FINEST, ESPECIALLY THE RICE-BASED THALI, KNOWN THROUGHOUT THE STATE SIMPLY AS "MEALS". THIS INEXPENSIVE LUNCHTIME FEAST COMPRISES A PILE OF RICE, OFTEN SERVED ON A SECTION OF BANANA LEAF, ACCOMPANIED BY A PAPAD AND A SELECTION OF DISHES IN TINY METAL POTS. THESE CAN VARY BUT USUALLY INCLUDE THE LIKES OF SAMBHAR (A SPICY LENTIL SOUP) OR RASAM (A PEPPERY

THE CLASSY HALLS, PERIOD FURNITURE AND FAMILY PHOTOS. QUALITY FOOD IS AVAILABLE TO GUESTS. THE GENTLEMANLY OWNER LIVES ON THE PREMISES AND HIS LESS EXPENSIVE CHETTINAD COURT IS NEARBY. BREAKFAST INCLUDED. ₹₹

Chettinaad Narayana Vilas Raja Street, behind the palace 🏠 chettinaadnarayanavilas.com. Attractive, characterful mansion decorated in warm, vibrant colours. The smart bedrooms have a modern feel and the Chettinad cooking is excellent. Breakfast included. ₹₹

Visalam On the main village street 🏠 cghearth.com. The largest local mansion has been taken over by this eco-conscious luxury chain, which has created top-notch rooms, quality dining and drinking areas in the lush grounds, plus a sizeable pool. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹₹

Rameshwaram

The sacred island of RAMESHWARAM, 163km southeast of Madurai and less than 20km from Sri Lanka across the Gulf of Mannar, is, along with Madurai, south India's most important pilgrimage site. Rameshwaram is mentioned in the Ramayana as the place where the god Rama, as an incarnation of Vishnu, worshipped Shiva, and consequently attracts followers of both Vishnu and Shiva. The Ramalingeshwara Temple complex, with its magnificent pillared walkways, is the most famous on the island, but there are several other small temples of interest, such as the Gandhamadana Parvatam, sheltering Rama's footprints, and the Nambunayagi Amman Kali Temple, frequented for its curative properties. Danushkodi (Rama's Bow) at the eastern end is where Rama is said to have bathed. The boulders peppering the sea between here and Sri Lanka, making "Rama's bridge" (Rama Sethu), were strategically placed by Hanuman's monkey army so they could cross to Lanka in their search for Rama's wife Sita, after her abduction by the demon king Ravana. The town offers uncommercialized beaches (not India's most stunning) where you can unwind, bathe and do ablutions.

Rameshwaram, whose streets radiate out from the vast block enclosing the Ramalingeshwara Temple, is always crowded with day-trippers and ragged mendicants who camp outside the Ramalingeshwara and the Ujainimahamariamman, the small goddess shore temple. An important part of their pilgrimage is to bathe in the main temple's sacred tanks and in the sea; the narrow strip of beach is shared by groups of bathers, relaxing cows and mantra-reciting swamis sitting next to sand lingams. As well as fishing – prawns and lobsters for packaging and export to Japan – shells are a big source of income in the coastal villages.

Ramalingeshwara Temple The core of the Ramalingeshwara (or Ramanathaswamy) Temple was built by the Cholas in the twelfth century to house two much-venerated shivalingams associated with the Ramayana. After rescuing his wife Sita from the clutches of Ravana, Rama was advised to atone for the killing of the demon king – a Brahmin – by worshipping Shiva. Rama's monkey lieutenant, Hanuman, was despatched to the Himalayas to fetch a Shivalingam, but when he failed to return by the appointed day, Sita fashioned a lingam from sand (the Ramanathalingam) so the ceremony could proceed. Hanuman eventually made it back bearing a lingam and in order to assuage the monkey's guilt Rama decreed that in future, of the two, Hanuman's should be worshipped first. The lingams are now housed in the inner section of the Ramalingeshwara, but can only be viewed by Hindus. Much of what can be visited dates from the 1600s, when the temple received generous endowments from the Sethupathi rajas of Ramanathapuram.

The temple is enclosed by high walls, which form a rectangle with huge pyramidal gopura entrances on each side. Each gateway leads to a spacious closed ambulatory, flanked on either side by continuous platforms with massive pillars set on their edges. These corridors are the most famous attribute of the temple, their extreme length – 205m, with 1212 pillars on the north and south sides – giving a remarkable impression of receding perspective. Before entering the inner sections of the temple, pilgrims are expected to bathe at each of the 22 temple tirthas (tanks) in the temple – hence the groups of dripping-wet pilgrims, most of them fully clothed, making their way from tank to tank, to be soaked by bucket-wielding temple attendants. Monday is Rama's auspicious day, when the Padilingam puja takes place. Festivals of particular importance at the temple include Mahashivaratri (ten days during Feb/March), Brahmotsavam (ten days during March/April) and Thirukalyanam (July/Aug), celebrating the marriage of Shiva to Parvati.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN THE RAMESHWARAM RAILWAY STATION IS 1KM SOUTHWEST OF THE CENTRE; TRAINS FROM CHENNAI AND FURTHER AFIELD ALL TERMINATE HERE. THERE ARE DAILY SERVICES TO CHENNAI EGMORE (13HR 30MIN) VIA TRICHY (5HR 30MIN) AND THANJAVUR (6HR 25MIN).

By bus The NH-49 links Madurai to Mandapam on the coast and the impressive 2km-long Indira Gandhi Bridge links the mainland to the island of Rameshwaram. Frequent services from Madurai (every 30min–1hr; 4hr), Trichy (hourly; 7–8hr) and beyond arrive at the bus stand 2km west of the centre. Local bus #1 (every 10min) connects the bus stand, temple and railway station.

Tourist information The main TTDC tourist office, a dilapidated two-storey peach-coloured building next to the bus stand (daily 10am–5.45pm; ☎04573 221371) gives out information about guides, accommodation and boat trips, but opens rather erratically.

ACTIVITIES KITESURFING THIS UP-AND-COMING ADVENTURE ACTIVITY CAN BE ENJOYED AT SEVERAL LOCATIONS AROUND THE ISLAND, BETWEEN RAMESHWARAM AND DANUSHKODI, FROM AROUND ₹2500/HR WITH QUEST ASIA (☎98203 67412, www.QUEST-ASIA.COM), WHO CAN ALSO PROVIDE ACCOMMODATION WITH FULL BOARD.

ACCOMMODATION ACCOMMODATION IN RAMESHWARAM COMPRISES A MIXTURE OF BASIC OLD LODGES IN THE STREETS ROUND THE TEMPLE AND NEWER HOTELS, MOSTLY IN THE DIRECTION OF THE TRANSIT POINTS. THE TEMPLE AUTHORITIES ALSO PROVIDE PILGRIM ROOMS;

ASK AT THE DEVASTHANAM OFFICE, EAST CAR ST (☎04573 221223). DURING HOLIDAYS AND FESTIVALS, ROOMS ARE LIKE GOLD DUST AND JUST AS PRICEY.

Daiwik NH-49 near the bus stand 📞daiwikhotels.com. This is one of several new hotels on the main highway into town. Immaculate, spacious and comfortable a/c rooms with king-size beds and flatscreen TVs. On-site massage and restaurant. They can also arrange sightseeing on request. ₹₹

Hotel Sethu Maharaja 7 Middle St 📞hotelmaharajas@gmail.com. Located near the west gate of the temple, this hotel has clean and comfortable rooms with attached bathrooms and TV. Some rooms have temple views from the balcony. Only non a/c rooms are available for now. No wi-fi. ₹

Sri Kumaran Delux 1/54 West Car St ☎90800 50040. Smart modern lodge that backs right onto the temple near the west gopura. The rooms are compact but neat and a/c rates are ₹1300. Just a few minutes away is another lodge owned by the same group, called Sri Kumaran Residency which offers a/c rooms with sea view. No breakfast is provided. ₹₹₹

★TTDC Tamil Nadu Near the beach, 500m from the corner of North Car and East Car streets 📞ttddonline.com. The best option in the temple area of Rameshwaram, situated in its own grounds, with restaurant and bar. There are some sea-facing rooms as well. Most rooms have two to four bedrooms and both a/c and non a/c are available. Rates vary depending on categories. Taxes are extra and breakfast is included. ₹₹-₹₹₹

Vinayaga 5 Railway Feeder Rd 📞vinayagahotel.com. A pleasant hotel in a three-storey block just 100m from the railway station precinct. Clean and well kept, with 45 light, spacious and airy a/c rooms. Breakfast included. Away from the temple area but quieter for it. ₹₹₹

EATING AHAAN RESTAURANT, DAIVIK HOTEL NH-49 NEAR THE BUS STAND ☎04573 223222, 📞DAIWIKHOTELS.COM
UPSCALE, TRADITIONAL AND PURE VEGETARIAN WITH VEGAN AND GLUTEN FREE OPTIONS. IT INCLUDES TRADITIONAL NORTH AND SOUTH INDIAN CUISINE BESIDES INDIAN CHINESE. TRY THE BUFFET HERE FOR LUNCH OR DINNER. ₹

Abhirami Shore Rd, near the east entrance to the main temple 04573 221178 Reasonably clean south-Indian veg joint on the way to the seashore, with street views from the tables. Bargain lunchtime “meals” are served from 11.30am–3pm. ₹

Aryaas Residency 43 C West St 94432 21441. Clean and traditional south-Indian-style restaurant serving good south Indian breakfasts. “Meals” available from 11.30am–3.30pm, plus pure-veg dishes. ₹

Ganesh Mess Middle St, off Car St West 99940 63984. A small restaurant with just a few tables and pleasant and friendly service. They serve lunchtime “meals” as well as masala dosas and other south Indian snacks throughout the day. ₹

Saravana Bhavan 6 Middle St, off Car St West 04573 222733. Spotless franchise of the ever-popular and reliable chain, churning out copious quantities of snacks and meals. This one also has a good bakery. ₹

TTDC Tamil Nadu Near the beach. Gigantic, noisy, high-ceilinged glass building serving all-you-can-eat pure veg breakfast, lunch and dinner buffets. There is also an a/c bar in the grounds opposite reception. ₹

Kanyakumari

At the southernmost extremity of India, KANYAKUMARI is almost as compelling for Hindus as Rameshwaram. It’s significant not only for its association with a virgin goddess, Devi Kanyakumari, but also as the meeting point of the Bay of Bengal, Indian Ocean and Arabian Sea, thus regarded as a holy sangam. Watching the sun rise and set from here is the big attraction, especially on full-moon day in April, when it’s possible to see both the setting sun and rising moon on the same horizon. Although Kanyakumari is in the state of Tamil Nadu, most foreign visitors arrive on day-trips from Kerala. While the place is of enduring appeal to pilgrims and those who just want to see India’s tip, some may find it bereft of atmosphere, its magic obliterated by ugly concrete buildings and hawkers. Kanyakumari was devastated by the 2004 tsunami, although the seafront and jetty have since been rebuilt.

Kumari Amman Temple Sannathi St • Daily 4.30am–12.15pm & 4–8.15pm • Free The shoreline Kumari Amman Temple is dedicated to the virgin goddess Devi Kanyakumari, who may have originally been the local guardian deity of the shoreline but was later absorbed into the figure of Devi, or Parvati, consort of Shiva. The image of Devi Kanyakumari inside the temple wears a diamond nose stud of such brilliance that it's said to be visible from the sea. Male visitors must be shirtless and wear a dhoti before entering the temple; non-Hindus are not allowed in the inner sanctum. It is especially auspicious for pilgrims to wash at the bathing ghat here.

Gandhi Mandapam Daily 7am–7pm

Resembling a prewar British cinema, the Gandhi Mandapam, 300m northwest of the Kumari Amman Temple, was actually conceived as a modern imitation of an Odishan temple. It was so designed that at noon on October 2, Mahatma Gandhi's birthday, the sun strikes the auspicious spot where his ashes were laid prior to immersion in the sea.

The rocks

Ferry every 20min; daily 7.45am–4pm • Charge Possibly the original sacred focus of Kanyakumari were the two rocks, about 60m apart, jutting out of the sea 500m off the coast. They can be reached by the Poompuhar ferry service leaving from the jetty on the east side of town. Known as the Pitru and Matru tirthas, they attracted the attention of the Hindu reformer Vivekananda (1862–1902), who swam out to the rocks in 1892 to meditate on the syncretistic teachings of his recently dead guru, Ramakrishna Paramahansa. Incorporating elements of architecture from around the country, the 1970 Vivekananda Memorial (daily 8am–4pm; ₹20; www.vivekanandakendra.org) houses a statue of the saint. The footprints of Devi Kanyakumari can also be seen here, at the spot where she performed her penance. The other rock features an imposing 40m-high statue of the ancient Tamil saint and poet Thiruvalluvar, who is revered throughout the state.

Wandering Monk Museum (Vivekananda Puram) Beach Rd, just round the corner from Rock St • Daily 8am–noon & 4–8pm • Charge The small Wandering Monk Museum is dedicated to the life and teachings of Vivekananda, one of the first Hindu masters to take the teachings of advaita non-dualism to the West. The recently modernized exhibition in English, Tamil and Hindi concentrates on providing a meticulously detailed account of the swami's odyssey around the Subcontinent at the end of the nineteenth century, using a series of attractively illustrated panels.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN KANYAKUMARI TRAINS FROM ALL OVER THE SUBCONTINENT (EVEN ONCE A WEEK FROM JAMMU – AT 70HR THE LONGEST RAIL JOURNEY IN INDIA) STOP AT THE RAILWAY STATION IN THE NORTH OF TOWN, 2KM FROM THE SEAFRONT, ALTHOUGH EVEN MORE SERVICES TERMINATE AT NAGERCOIL, ONLY 10KM AWAY AND CONNECTED BY FREQUENT BUSES.

Destinations from Kanyakumari or Nagercoil: Bengaluru (2–3 daily; 14hr–20hr 50min); Chennai (3 daily; 13hr 30min–15hr 50min); Coimbatore (3 daily; 11hr 5min–12hr 20min); Ernakulam for Kochi (5–7 daily; 5hr 10min–7hr 30min); Madurai (6–8 daily; 4hr 10min–7hr 40min); Mumbai (1–4 daily; 29hr 50min–45hr 45min); Thiruvananthapuram (7–9 daily; 1hr 30min–2hr 10min); Tiruchirapalli (3–4 daily; 7hr 10min–8hr 40min).

By bus The Express Bus Stand, near the lighthouse on the west side of town, has frequent services to Thiruvananthapuram and Madurai, plus regular buses to more distant destinations. Changing in Nagercoil sometimes gives you more options too.

Destinations Chennai (8 daily; 15–17hr); Kovalam (10–12 daily; 2hr); Madurai (every 30min; 5hr 30min–6hr); Puducherry (1 daily; 11–12hr); Rameshwaram (3 daily; 10hr); Thiruvananthapuram (every 30min–1hr; 2hr 30min–3hr); Tiruchirapalli (every 30min; 10–11hr).

Tourist information The main Tamil Nadu tourist office on Beach Rd (Mon–Fri 10am–1pm & 2–5.45pm; ☎04652 246276) has maps and brochures.

ACCOMMODATION MAADHINI EAST CAR ST ☎ HOTELMAADHINI.IN. LARGE HOTEL RIGHT ON THE SEAFRONT ABOVE THE FISHING VILLAGE. COMFORTABLY FURNISHED ROOMS (A/C ONES COST EXTRA), SOME WITH

FINE SEA VIEWS. IT HAS ONE OF THE BEST RESTAURANTS IN TOWN, AN A/C BAR AND A ROOFTOP TERRACE. WI-FI IN LOBBY ONLY. ₹-₹₹

Samudra Sannathi St 📍 hotelsamudra@yahoo.com. Smart hotel towards the bottom of Sannathi St, near the temple entrance. It has forty well-furnished deluxe rooms (a/c rooms cost extra), all facing the sea. All rooms have cable TV and the hotel also has its own generator. ₹-₹₹

Hotel Seaview 2/17 East Car St 📍 hotelseaview.in. This 3-star hotel is a popular choice, with spacious rooms, most of which are sea-facing, except the standard rooms. Rates vary depending on the categories. There are also family rooms with four beds which can be booked. Try online deals for better rates. There's also a multicuisine veg and non-veg restaurant. ₹₹₹

TTDC Tamil Nadu Near the lighthouse on Seafront 📍 ttdconline.com. Up the hill and a little further from the temple and main drag. Choice of rooms (a/c cost extra) in the main block or separate family cottages. The on-site restaurant (7.30–10pm) serves veg and non-veg. No wi-fi. ₹₹-₹₹₹

EATING ARCHANA MAADHINI EAST CAR ST 📞 04652 246787. A COMFORTABLE A/C BASEMENT DINING-HALL OPTION THAT HAS AN EXTENSIVE VEG AND NON-VEG MULTICUISINE MENU. IN THE EVENING YOU CAN ALSO EAT IN THE ALFRESCO COURTYARD AND THEY BOAST THE TOWN'S WIDEST SELECTION OF ICE CREAMS. ₹

The Curry Hotel Gopinivas, Grand East Car St, near the seashore 📞 04652 246262. One of the most popular multicuisine restaurants at the rooftop of this hotel by the seashore. Serves both vegetarian and non vegetarian Indian food and Indian Chinese. ₹₹

The Ocean Hotel Seashore 2/12 East Car St 📞 04652 246704. Located in the 7th floor of this hotel, The Ocean gives you great views while treating you to some delicious seafood. The multi-cuisine restaurant also serves vegetarian dishes. No meals and buffet only for breakfast. ₹

Saravana Bhavan Sannathi St 📞 04652 246357. Opposite the Samudra, to which it belongs, this very large dining hall is arguably the best of Kanyakumari's many "meals" restaurants, although service can be slow.

Serves the usual snacks in the morning and evening and “meals” at lunchtime. ₹

Sebaa 2/19 South Car St 004652 246396. On the corner with East Car St, this pleasant restaurant serves up pure vegetarian but only north Indian cuisine, with chapathis and puris served in the morning and thali for lunch and dinner, besides curry and other dishes. If you like prawn and fish curries, they have a tie up with a neighbouring restaurant called Jam Jam and it can be served on your table. ₹₹

The Ghats

Around sixty million years ago, what is today called peninsular India was a separate land mass drifting northwest across the ocean towards Central Asia. Geologists believe this mass originally broke off from the African continent along a fault line. This line is still discernible today as the north-south ridge of volcanic mountains, known as the Western Ghats, which stretch 1400km down the west coast of India. Rising to a height of around 2500m, it is India's second highest mountain chain after the Himalayas.

Forming a natural barrier between the Tamil plains and coastal Kerala and Karnataka, the Ghats (literally meaning “steps”, but also refers to mountain ranges) soak up the bulk of the southwest monsoon, which drains east to the Bay of Bengal via the mighty Kaveri and Krishna river systems. The massive amount of rain that falls here between June and October (around 2.5m) allows for an incredible biodiversity. Nearly one third of all India's flowering plants can be found in the dense evergreen and mixed deciduous forests cloaking the Ghats, while the woodland undergrowth supports the Subcontinent's richest array of wildlife.

It was this abundance of game, and the cooler temperatures of the range's high valleys and grasslands, that attracted the British away from the withering summer heat on the southern plains. They also realised the economic potential of the local climate, fertile soil and plentiful rainfall. As the forests were felled to make way for tea plantations, and the region's many tribal groups – among them the Todas – were forced deeper into the mountains, permanent hill stations were established. Today, as in the days of the Raj, these continue to provide welcome escapes from the incessant heat, as well as romantic getaways for the emergent Indian middle classes and nostalgia for foreign tourists.

The best known of the hill resorts is Udhagamandalam (formerly Ootacamund, and known just as “Ooty”) nestling in the Nilgiris (from nila-giri, “blue mountains”). The ride up to Ooty on the miniature railway via Coonoor is fun, and the views of the tea plantations are breath taking, but the town centre suffers from heavy traffic pollution and actually has little to offer. Further south and reached by a scenic switchback road, the other main hill station is Kodaikanal. The lovely walks around town provide views and fresh air in abundance, while the bustle of Indian tourists around the lake makes a pleasant change from life in the city.

The forest areas lining the state border harbour Tamil Nadu’s principal wildlife sanctuaries, Indira Gandhi and Mudumalai, which comprise part of the vast Nilgiri Biosphere Reserve, the country’s most extensive tract of protected forest. Road building, illegal felling, hydroelectric projects and overgrazing have whittled away large parts of this huge wilderness area over the past two decades, but what’s left is still home to an array of wildlife. The main route between Mysuru and the cities of the Tamil plains wriggles through the Nilgiris, and you may well find yourself pausing for a night or two along the way. Whichever direction you’re travelling in, a stopover in the dull textile city of Coimbatore is hard to avoid.

Kodaikanal

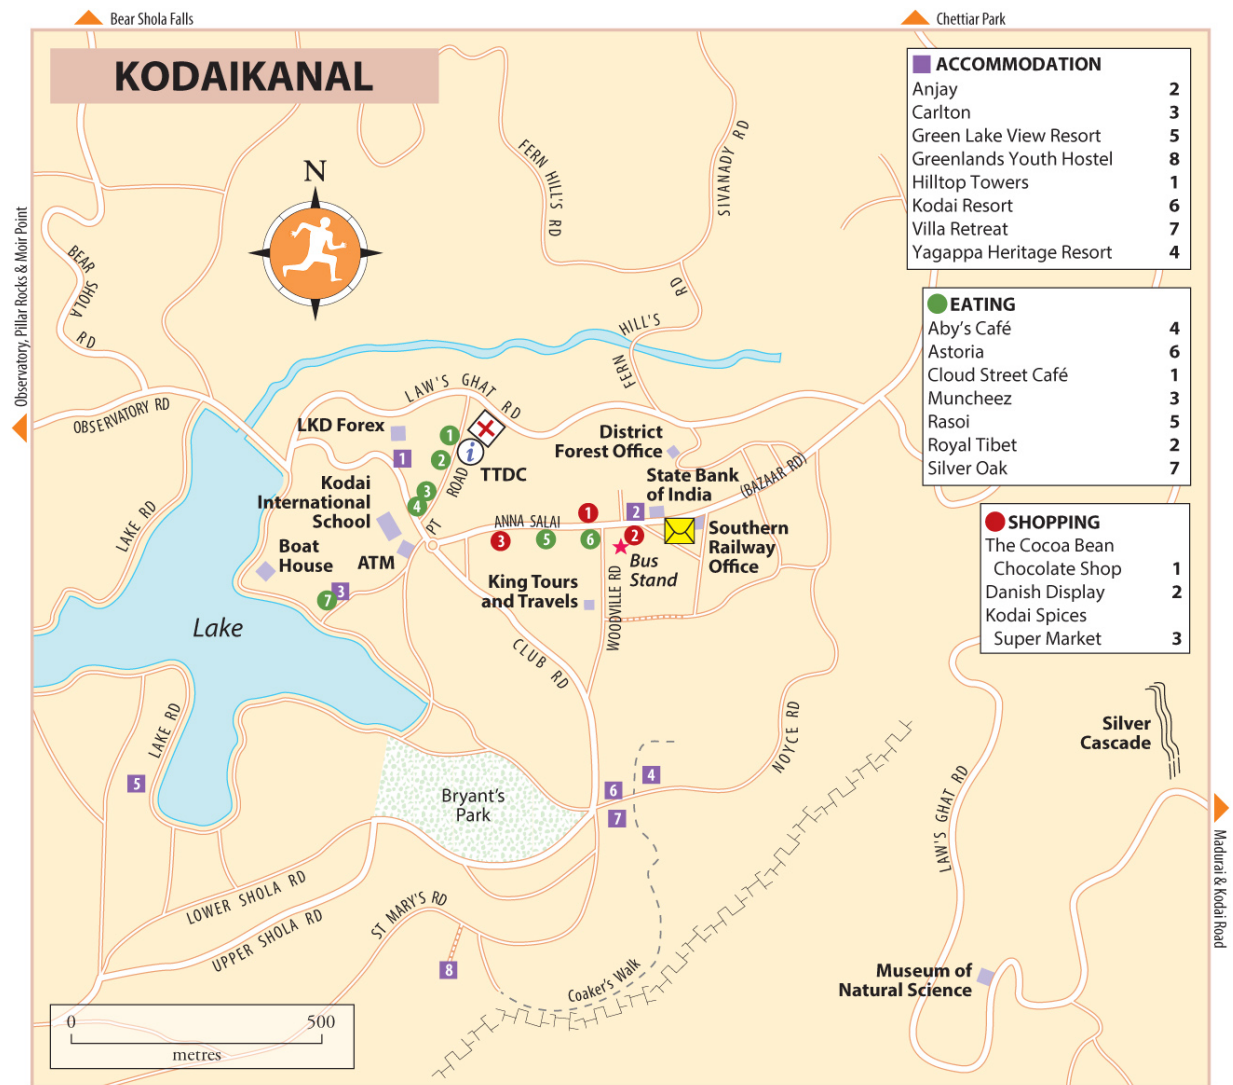

Perched on top of the Palani range, around 120km northwest of Madurai, KODAIKANAL, also known as Kodai, owes its perennial popularity to its hilltop position which, at an altitude of 2133m, affords breath taking views over the blue-green reaches of the Vaigai plain. Raj-era bungalows and flower-filled gardens add atmosphere, while short walks out of the centre lead to rocky outcrops, waterfalls and dense shola forest. With the more northerly wildlife sanctuaries and forest areas of the Ghats closed to visitors, Kodai’s outstandingly scenic hinterland also offers south India’s best trekking terrain.

After a while in the south Indian plains, a retreat to Kodai’s cool heights is more than welcome. However, in the height of summer (April–July) when temperatures compete with those in the lowlands, it’s not worth the trip – nor is it a good idea to come during the monsoon (Oct–Dec), when the town is shrouded in mist and prone to heavy downpours. From January to early March the nights are chilly so the peak tourist season runs from April to June, when prices soar.

The lake

Kodai's focal point is its lake, sprawling like a giant amoeba over sixty acres just west of the town centre. This is a popular place for strolls or bike rides along the 5km path that fringes the water's edge; a leisurely circumambulation is a very pleasant way to while away an hour or two and also makes a good excuse for an evening indulging in Kodai's locally made chocolate. Pedal boats (₹70–140) and rowing boats (₹245 for a 4-seater for 30 mins) and Shikara boat (₹415 for 30 mins) can be rented on the eastern shore. Horse riding is also an option here – ₹100 to be led along the lakeside for 1km and ₹500 for an hour's ride. Shops, restaurants and hotels are concentrated in a rather congested area east of and downhill from the lake. The only monuments to Kodai's colonial past are the neat British bungalows that overlook the lake, and Law's Ghat Road on the eastern edge of town. The British first moved here in 1845, to be joined later by members of the American Mission, who set up schools for European children.

Bryant's Park Daily 9am–6.30pm, last entry 6pm • charge, camera charge, video camera charge • Coaker's Walk Daily 7am–7pm • charge to visit telescope house Southeast of the lake is Bryant's Park, with tiered flowerbeds, rhododendrons, pine, eucalyptus and wattle. A flower show is held here in May. On the opposite side of the road a path, known as Coaker's Walk, skirts the precipitous hillside, winding from the Villa Retreat to Greenlands Youth Hostel (10min), offering remarkable views that stretch as far as Madurai on a clear day.

Pillar Rocks and Bear Shola Falls One of Kodai's most popular natural attractions is the Pillar Rocks, 7km south of town, where a series of granite cliffs rise more than 100m above the hillside. To get here, follow the westbound Observatory Road from the northernmost point of the lake (a steep climb) until you come to a crossroads; the southbound road passes the gentle Fairy Falls on the way to Pillar Rocks. Some 2km west of the lake, the signposted Bear Shola Falls is now barely a trickle of water but remains a popular picnic and photo-stop for local tourists.

Museum of Natural Science 3km down Law's Ghat Rd • Daily except Tues 10am–5pm • charge, camera charge Downhill and southeast of the town centre, within the premises of Sacred Heart College, the Museum of Natural Science has a very uninviting array of stuffed animals. However, the spectacular orchid house contains one of India's best collections, which can be viewed by appointment only; ask at the tourist office.

Chettiar Park On the very northeast edge of town, around 3km from the lake at the end of a winding uphill road, Chettiar Park has an abundance of trees and flowers all year round. Every twelve years it is also flushed with a haze of pale-blue Kurinji blossoms (the next flowering is due in 2030). These unusual flowers are associated with the god Murugan, the Tamil form of Karttikeya (Shiva's second son), and god of Kurinji, one of five ancient divisions of the Tamil country. A temple in his honour stands just outside the park.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

KODAIKANAL

By train Tickets for onward rail journeys from Kodai Rd can be booked at the Southern Railway office, at the GPO – follow signs for the Philatelic Counter (Mon–Fri 9.30am–1.30pm & 2.30–3.30pm, Sat 9.30am–noon). Several travel agents in town, such as King Tours and Travels on Woodville Rd (☎04542 243357, www.kodaikingtravels.com), can reserve trains, buses and planes within south India.

By bus The buses from Madurai and Dindigul that climb the steep road up to Kodai pull in at the stand in the centre of town. There are two roads to Kodaikanal: the less-used route from Palani is by far the more spectacular approach, and during the monsoon may be the only one open. Unless you're travelling long distances the bus is more convenient than the train, as the nearest railhead, Kodai Rd, is 3hr away by bus. The TNSTC reservation counter (daily 10am–1pm & 2–4pm) is at the bus station.

Destinations Coimbatore (2 daily; 6hr); Madurai (15 daily; 4hr); Palani (10 daily; 3hr). There are also daily ultra-deluxe SETC departures to Bengaluru (5.30pm; 12hr), Chennai (6.30pm; 12hr) and Kanyakumari (9am; 10hr).

GETTING AROUND BY TAXI TAXIS LINE ANNA SALAI IN THE CENTRE OF TOWN, OFFERING SIGHTSEEING AT HIGH FIXED RATES (₹900/HALF-DAY).

By bike Bicycles are a popular and convenient way to travel both in and around Kodaikanal. They can be rented from the bike stall on Anna Salai or from numerous stalls around the lake (₹20/hr or around ₹100/day). While freewheeling downhill is fun, what goes down must come up, so walking is usually the best bet.

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE TOURIST OFFICE (MON–FRI 10AM–5.45PM; ☎04542 241675) ON PT RD IS MINIMALLY HELPFUL. GREENLANDS YOUTH HOSTEL CAN ARRANGE TREKS OF VARYING LENGTHS, SUCH AS THE 5HR TREK IN THE HILLS AROUND KODAIKANAL ITSELF OR THE THREE-DAY TREK OF MODERATE DIFFICULTY ACROSS THE MOUNTAINS TO MUNNAR IN KERALA. RATES DEPEND ON GROUP NUMBERS.

Services There are several foreign exchange places; the State Bank of India and Canara Bank are both on Anna Salai.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Kodaikanal's inexpensive lodges are grouped at the lower end of Anna Salai. It is worth asking whether blankets and hot water are provided (the latter should be free, but you may be charged in budget places).

Anjay Anna Salai 🌐hotelanjay.com. Simple, clean and pleasant hotel centrally located near the bus stand. Rooms are smarter than you'd expect from the outside, all with balconies and TV; the deluxe rooms have the best views. ₹₹

Carlton Off Lake Rd 📍 krahejahospitality.com. The most luxurious hotel in Kodaikanal – a spacious, tastefully-renovated and well-maintained colonial house overlooking the lake. All rooms have a lake view and exude Raj-era charm. There are also cottages within the grounds, a restaurant, bar and comfortable lounge. ₹₹₹₹

Green Lake View Resort 11/213 Lake Rd 📞045 📍 greenlakeviewresort.com. Pleasant resort set in its own extensive grounds on a quiet corner of the lake with lovely gardens and swings. There is a wide range of different rooms priced according to size and hot water availability. Breakfast not included. No wi-fi. ₹₹

★Greenlands Youth Hostel Coaker's Walk, off St Mary's Rd 📍 greenlandskodaikanal.com. An attractive old stone house with unrivalled views and sunsets from its deep verandas. There's a variety of decent-sized rooms with wooden beds, colourful linens and attached bathrooms, plus a dorm. Very popular with groups, so book ahead. Breakfast not included, no wi-fi. ₹

Hilltop Towers Club Rd 📍 hilltopgroup.in. Decent hotel, 5min from the lake, with modern, comfortable rooms featuring arched doors, large beds and TV. There's also a cosy and romantic honeymoon suite with a circular bed, plus three good restaurants and a bakery. ₹₹

Kodai Resort Noyce Rd, near Coaker's Walk 📍 kodairesorthotel.com. Large complex of fifty incongruous-looking but pleasant cottages housing comfortable bedrooms with king-sized beds, TVs and huge individual roof terraces with good views. Also a health club, restaurant and resident emu. ₹₹₹₹

Villa Retreat Coaker's Walk, off Club Rd 📍 villaretreat.com. Comfortable old stone house, with more character than most, situated in lovely gardens that afford superb views. Though a touch over-priced, rooms (priced according to views) have 24hr hot water; some also have real fires. Wi-fi in lobby. ₹₹₹₹

Yagappa Heritage Resort Noyce Rd 📍 yagappaheritageresort.com. Good mid-range budget option with very clean rooms in three buildings, set around a lawn-cum-courtyard with views to the rear. There's a choice of standard and deluxe rooms (with balcony) and a small dining area for guests only. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Aby's Café PT Rd 098429 12398. This started as a popular eatery for students and backpackers, serving cheap homemade sandwiches and pizzas. Now you can get anything from dal chawal (rice with lentils) to pastas and parathas. ₹

Astoria Anna Salai 004542 240524. Large clean dining area that dishes up ample servings of south Indian “meals” and all the usual snacks and standard menu items. ₹

Cloud Street Café PT Rd 004542 246425. Large, pleasant, upstairs café with travellers' vibe and second-hand book swap. Veggie breakfasts with mushrooms, tomatoes and beans are served until 11.30am, after which there are wood-fired pizzas, pasta, cakes and chocolate brownies. ₹

★Muncheez PT Rd 004542 240046. A café and restaurant serving wraps, pizzas, pastas and some delicious desserts (no longer a take-away joint). ₹

Rasoi Anna Salai, above the Cocoa Bean 098651 04664. Tiny first-floor dhaba with just eight tables, serving delicious Punjabi and Gujarati food: excellent aloo parathas, a range of north Indian vegetarian dishes, limited Punjabi thalis and unlimited Gujarati thalis. ₹

★Royal Tibet J's Heritage Complex, PT Rd 004542 2241586. Small, friendly Tibetan joint, serving thick homemade bread and particularly tasty momos, soups and noodles. There's a range of chicken, mutton, beef and vegetarian dishes, including some Indian and Chinese. ₹

Silver Oak Carlton hotel, off Lake Rd 004542 240056. Splash out at Kodai's top hotel on its evening buffet spread (veg and non-veg), rounded off with a chhota peg of Scotch in the bar. Lunchtime buffet also available, as are à la carte items. ₹

SHOPPING

MAP

The Cocoa Bean Chocolate Shop No 6, Maratha Complex 0075982 40414. Kodai's speciality with a variety of handmade chocolates besides several spices, tea and coffee powders and gourmet foods are sold here. The fruit and nut varieties are a must-try.

Danish Display Anna Salai 004542 242455. Lots of handicrafts and trinkets to be found here, from religious items to wood and bronze ornaments, plus colourful clothes and scarves.

Kodai Spices Super Market Anna Salai ☎98653 88756. All sorts of spices, herbs, honey and nuts can be found here, good for travels or the cupboard at home.

Indira Gandhi (Anamalai) Wildlife Sanctuary Indira Gandhi (Anamalai) Wildlife Sanctuary is a 958-square-kilometre tract of forest on the southern reaches of the Cardamom Hills, 37km southwest of the busy junction town of Pollachi. Vegetation ranges from shola-grassland to dry deciduous to tropical evergreen, and the sanctuary is home to lion-tailed macaques (black-maned monkeys), gaur, sambar, spotted and barking deer, sloth bear, as well as leopards and tigers. Birds such as hornbills and frogmouths are also seen here. It's possible to trek through the giant creaking stands of bamboo with a guide and the Forestry Department also runs safari tours by minibus and elephant safaris. For reservations, contact the park reception office.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS THERE ARE GOOD BUS CONNE INDIRA GANDHI (ANAMALAI) WILDLIFE SANCTUARY CTIONS BETWEEN POLLACHI AND BOTH COIMBATORE AND PALANI. FROM POLLACHI THERE ARE THREE BUSES A DAY (6.15AM, 11.15AM & 3.15PM) UP TO THE PARK'S RECEPTION CENTRE (☎04259 238360) AT TOP SLIP.

By car/taxi Rented cars/taxis, available at Pollachi, run to the official entrance at the Sethumadai checkpost from 6.30am–6pm daily. Private vehicles can drive into the park with prior permission from the Field Director, Wildlife Warden Office, 178 Meenkarai Rd, Pollachi (☎04259 225356).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING THE FORESTRY DEPARTMENT RUNS SIX RESTHOUSES, RANGING FROM THE BASIC HORNBILL TO THE LUXURIOUS PILLAR TOP. MOST ARE

WITHIN EASY WALKING DISTANCE OF THE RECEPTION CENTRE AND SHOULD BE BOOKED IN ADVANCE THROUGH THE FIELD DIRECTOR IN POLLACHI. THE CANTEEN BESIDE THE RECEPTION SERVES BASIC MEALS AND DRINKS AND THE LOCAL SHOP HAS BASIC PROVISIONS.

Coimbatore

Visitors tend only to use the busy industrial city of COIMBATORE as a stopover on the way to Ooty, 90km northwest. Once you've climbed up to your hotel rooftop to admire the blue, cloud-capped haze of the Nilgiris in the west, there's little to do here other than kill time wandering through the nuts-and-bolts bazaars, lined with lookalike textile showrooms, "General Traders" and shops selling motor parts.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN FOR COIMBATORE OOTY, CATCH THE DAILY #12671 NILAGIRI EXPRESS AT 5.15AM, WHICH GETS INTO METTUPALAYAM AT 6.15AM, IN TIME TO CONNECT WITH THE TOY TRAIN FOR OOTY.

By bus Coimbatore has half a dozen bus stands, linked to each other and the railway station by local buses from the busy Central Bus Stand, 2km north of the railway station. The Thiruvalluvar Bus Stand is the main state and interstate station, while most buses to and from Ooty, Coonoor and Mettupalayam use the Mettupalayam New Bus Stand 4km north of town. The south of town holds a fourth bus stand, Ukkadam, which serves Palani, Pollachi, Madurai, Trichy and towns in northern Kerala.

Destinations Chennai (every 30min–1hr; 7–8hr); Kodaikanal (4 daily; 6hr); Madurai (every 30min; 5–6hr); Udthagamandalam (Ooty) (every 30min; 3hr 30min–4hr); Palani (hourly; 2hr 30min–3hr); Pollachi (every 30min; 1hr); Tiruchirapalli (every 30min; 5hr).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING ANNAPOORNA GOWRISHANKAR 2, GOVERNMENT ARTS COLLEGE ROAD  SREEANNAPOORNA.COM. A LEGENDARY FAMILY-RUN HOTEL WITH RESTAURANTS AND SWEET SHOPS SCATTERED AROUND THE CITY. THEY HAVE MULTIPLE BRANCHES.

KNOWN FOR ITS TRADITIONAL SOUTH INDIAN VEGETARIAN FARE, THEY ARE EXTREMELY POPULAR FOR THEIR DOSAS. ₹

City Tower 56 Sivasamy Rd 📞 hotelcitytower.com. A smart high-rise hotel, 5min walk south of the Central Bus Stand, with decent rooms featuring leatherette and vinyl. The “executive” rooms are more spacious and have a minibar and balcony Rates vary across different categories. Quality multicuisine restaurant. ₹₹

KK Residency 7 Shastri Rd 📞 hotelkkresidency.com. Large, business-style hotel in a tower block behind the Central Bus Stand, with very clean a/c rooms, good deals for single occupancy and two good restaurants. ₹₹₹

New Vijaya Lodge 8/81 Geetha Hall Rd 📞 newvijayalodgemka@yahoo.com. Close to the railway station and one of the best (of many) budget options on this street. Rooms are clean, simple and compact, with TV, a/c, hot water in the mornings and towels provided. Single occupancy rates available. ₹₹

TTDC Tamil Nadu 2 Dr Nanjappa Rd 📞 ttdconline.com. Conveniently located opposite the Central Bus Stand, with clean, pleasant rooms (a/c rooms cost extra). There’s a tourist information service and its own very good restaurant next door. Often fully booked, so phone ahead. ₹₹

Coonoor

At an altitude of 1858m, COONOOR, a scruffy bazaar and tea-planters’ town on the Nilgiri Blue Mountain Railway lies at the head of the Hulikal ravine, on the southeastern side of the Dodabetta mountains, 27km north of Mettupalayam and 19km south of Ooty. Thanks to its proximity to its more famous neighbour, Coonoor has avoided Ooty’s over commercialisation, and can make a pleasant place for a short stop. It also boasts some of the oldest trees in the state.

Coonoor consists of two “levels”, Lower Coonoor, with its small but atmospheric hill market, which specializes in leaf tea and fragrant essential oils and Upper Coonoor, with its old Raj-era bungalows and narrow lanes with flower-filled hedgerows. At the top lies Sim’s Park, a lush botanical garden on the slopes of a ravine with hundreds of rose varieties (daily 7am–6.30pm; ₹30, camera ₹50, video camera ₹100).

Around the town, rolling hills and valleys carpeted with spongy green tea bushes and stands of eucalyptus and silver oak offer some of the most beautiful scenery in the Nilgiris, immortalized in many a Hindi-movie dance sequence. Cinema fans from across the south flock here to visit key locations from their favourite blockbusters, among them Lamb's Nose (5km) and Dolphin's Nose (9km), former British picnicking spots with paved pathways and dramatic views of the Mettupalayam plains. If you take an early morning bus to Dolphin's Nose, it's possible to walk the 9km back into town via Lamb's Nose – a very pleasant scenic amble that takes you through tea estates and dense forest.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN THE COONNOOR RAILWAY STATION IS IN LOWER COONNOOR ACROSS THE BAZAAR FROM THE BUS STATION. THERE ARE FOUR TRAINS DAILY TO OOTY (7.45AM, 10.40AM, 12.35PM & 4.30PM) AND ONE DAILY SERVICE TO METTUPALAYAM AT 3.15PM, WHICH ARRIVES AT 5.30PM. THE TICKET OFFICE IS OPEN DAILY 7.30AM–5.30PM.

By bus Buses to and from Mettupalayam, Coimbatore, Kotagiri and Ooty all use the bus stand, a large blue building at the entrance to Lower Coonnoor. Local buses run to Dolphin's Nose every 2hr, starting at 7am.

COONNOOR'S TEA ESTATES VISIBLE FROM FAR AWAY AS TINY ORANGE OR RED DOTS AMID THE GREEN VEGETATION, TEA-PICKERS WORK THE SLOPES AROUND COONNOOR, CARRYING WICKER BASKETS OF FRESH LEAVES AND BAMBOO RODS THAT THEY USE LIKE RULERS TO ENSURE THAT EACH PLANT IS EVENLY PLUCKED. ONCE THE LEAVES REACH THE FACTORY, THEY'RE PROCESSED WITHIN A DAY, PRODUCING SEVEN GRADES OF TEA. ORANGE PEKOE IS THE BEST AND MOST EXPENSIVE; THE SEVENTH LOWEST GRADE, A DRY DUST OF STALKS AND LEAF SWEEPED UP AT THE END OF THE PROCESS, WILL BE SOLD ON TO MAKE INSTANT TEA. TO VISIT A TEA OR COFFEE PLANTATION, CONTACT UPASI

(UNITED PLANTERS' ASSOCIATION OF SOUTHERN INDIA) AT GLENVIEW HOUSE, COONOR (☎0423 223 0270, 🌐UPASI.ORG), JUST ALONG FROM VIVEK TOURIST HOME. OR YOU CAN GO DIRECTLY TO ONE SUCH AS HIGH FIELD ESTATE (MON–SAT 9AM–5PM; FREE; ☎0423 223 0023), LESS THAN 2KM PAST SIM'S PARK; IT ALSO HAS A FINE SHOP.

ACCOMMODATION THERE ARE A FEW DECENT PLACES TO STAY IN COONOR BUT IT'S SPREAD OVER A WIDE AREA, SO IT'S BEST TO ARRIVE EARLY TO LOOK FOR A ROOM; YOU'LL NEED AN AUTO-RICKSHAW TO FIND MOST OF THE HOTELS. THOSE AROUND THE BUS STAND ARE EITHER NOT WORTH STAYING IN OR WON'T ACCEPT FOREIGNERS. EXPECT TO PAY AROUND ₹60 FROM THE BUS STAND TO BEDFORD CIRCLE OR JUMP ON A BUS BOUND FOR KOTAGIRI.

Gateway (By Taj Group) Church Rd, Upper Coonoor 🌐tajhotels.com. Luxurious colonial-era hotel with spectacular views from the gardens. Ayurvedic treatments, excellent lunchtime buffets and a range of sports and activities. A suite room includes breakfast. ₹₹₹₹

SunValley Homestay Stanley Park, Ottupattarai, Coonoo 🌐sunvalleyhomestay.com. Over 20 spacious, comfortable rooms are available in this charming homestay which offers views of the blue mountains and the tea plantations. A multicuisine restaurant, gym, indoor and outdoor games and activities. Rates include breakfast. ₹₹

Velan (aka Ritz) Ritz Rd, Bedford Circle 🌐velanhotels.com. Characterful mid-range hotel, set in a great location on the outskirts of town. It has deep balconies, fine views and spacious rooms – the standard rooms have tiled floors, while the deluxe suites have wooden floors. Good restaurant. ₹₹

Vivek Tourist Home 42 Figure of Eight Rd, near Bedford Circle 🌐hotelvivek.com. Clean rooms in a slightly institutional atmosphere; some have tiny balconies overlooking the lawn and tea terraces. Standard rooms have hot water by bucket only in the morning; deluxe rooms with a view have 24hr hot showers. ₹₹

★YWCA Guest House Wyoming, near Nankem hospital, 500m down from Bedford Circle ☎ywcaagooty.com. There are only eleven rooms – six doubles, five singles – in this Victorian-era house, full of character on a bluff overlooking town. Superb home-cooked meals are available at very reasonable rates, and there's a flower garden with fine views of the tea terraces. No alcohol. ₹₹

EATING DRAGON BEDFORD CIRCLE ☎0423 223 2158. CHINESE RESTAURANT SERVING UP AUTHENTIC CHINESE DISHES INCLUDING SPRING ROLLS, A RANGE OF CHOP SUEY, CHOW MEIN AND A FEW INDIAN DISHES. ₹

★Hyderabad Biriyani House Cash Bazaar, Lower Coonoor ☎0423 223 2223. Brand new first-floor restaurant and a splendid selection of filling biryanis as well as other veg, chicken, mutton, fish and prawn dishes. Large and jumbo biryanis that serve over five people. ₹

Khana Khazana Bedford Circle ☎90035 57477. Clean restaurant with pleasant decor serving a range of exclusive vegetarian, specialising in North Indian cuisine. There are also south Indian dishes including a selection of spicy Chettinad dishes. Mini meals are a favourite here. ₹

Sri Ramachendra Lunch Home Cash Bazaar, Lower Coonoor ☎0423 220 6740. Simple pure-veg place serving traditional south Indian breakfasts and great lunchtime “meals”. Could do with a lick of paint but clean enough. ₹

Kotagiri

Forming the third point of an almost equilateral triangle with Coonoor and Ooty, KOTAGIRI is another tea town, which sees far fewer visitors than its more famous neighbours. It is for that very reason that it is worth making the detour here, in order to stroll along the ridges draped with vivid green tea plantations or among the locals busying themselves in the lively little bazaar on the hill above the bus stand. Further downhill to the south, the town's most notable building is the huge yellow 1867 St Mary's Church, built by an order of Franciscan nuns.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS KOTAGIRI IS KOTAGIRI SERVED BY BUSES FROM COONOR (EVERY 20–30MIN; 1HR)

AND OOTY (EVERY 30MIN–1HR; 1HR 15MIN).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING SUTHY'S RESORT ON THE MAIN ROAD INTO TOWN ☎SUTHYSRESORTS.COM. SURPRISINGLY PALATIAL TWO-STOREY BUILDING WITH UNIQUE FLORAL DESIGNS IN THE GUEST ROOMS AND ELSEWHERE. SMART MULTICUISINE RESTAURANT AND SUPERB VIEWS ACROSS THE VALLEY. ₹₹

Top Hill Lodge Uphill from the bazaar ☎04266 271473. Large block perched on a hill, which offers average-sized, cleanish rooms at good value, though service is a little lackadaisical. No restaurant or wi-fi. ₹

Udhagamandalam (Ooty) In the early nineteenth century, when the British burra sahib John Sullivan first ventured into this region of the Nilgiris through the Hulikal ravine and “discovered” UDHAGAMANDALAM (anglicized to Ootacamund, abbreviated to Ooty), the territory was the traditional homeland of the pastoralist Toda hill tribe. Until this moment, the Todas had lived in almost total isolation from the cities of the surrounding plains and Deccan plateau lands. Sullivan quickly realized the agricultural potential of the area, acquired tracts of land for ₹1 per acre from the Todas, and set about planting flax, barley and hemp, as well as potatoes, soft fruit and, most significantly, tea, all of which flourished in the mild climate. Within twenty years, the former East India Company clerk had made a fortune. Needless to say, he was soon joined by other fortune-seekers, and a town was built, complete with artificial lake, churches and stone houses that wouldn't have looked out of place in Surrey or the Scottish Highlands. Ooty was the “Queen of Hill Stations” and the most popular hill retreat in India outside the Himalayas.

By a stroke of delicious irony, the Todas outlived the colonists whose cash crops originally displaced them – but only just. Having retreated with their buffalo into the surrounding hills and wooded valleys, they continue to preserve a more-or-less traditional way of life, albeit in greatly diminished numbers. Until the mid-1970s “Snooty Ooty” continued to be “home” to the notoriously snobbish British inhabitants who chose to “stay on” after Independence. Since then, visitors have continued to be attracted by Ooty’s cool climate and peaceful green hills, forest and grassland. However, indiscriminate development and a deluge of domestic holiday-makers mean that the quaint vestiges of the Raj have been somewhat diluted and are now few and far between.

Situated 2286m above sea level, the town sprawls over a large area with plenty of winding roads and steep climbs. The focal point is Charing Cross, a busy junction at the end of Commercial Road, the main shopping street running south to the Big Bazaar and municipal vegetable market.

Botanical Gardens Woodhouse Rd • Daily 7am–6.30pm • charge, camera charge, video camera charge • 0423 244 2545

A little way north of Charing Cross, the Botanical Gardens, laid out in 1847 by gardeners from London’s Kew Gardens, consist of fifty acres of immaculate lawns, lily ponds and beds, with more than a thousand varieties of shrubs, flowers and trees. There’s a refreshment stand in the park, and shops in the small Tibetan market sell ice creams and snacks. The Rose Garden (same hours and fees), south of Charing Cross along a lane off Etienne’s Road, has 2800 varieties of rose and is the largest collection in the whole of India. It’s worth a visit for any budding botanists and gardeners, particularly in season, when the flowers proudly flaunt their petals and perfumes.

THE NILGIRI BLUE MOUNTAIN RAILWAY THE FAMOUS NARROW-GAUGE NILGIRI BLUE MOUNTAIN RAILWAY CLIMBS UP FROM METTUPALAYAM (DEPARTS 7.10AM) ON THE PLAINS, VIA HILLGROVE (17KM) AND COONOR (27KM) TO UDHAGAMANDALAM, A JOURNEY OF 46KM THAT PASSES THROUGH SIXTEEN TUNNELS, ELEVEN STATIONS AND NINETEEN BRIDGES. IT’S A SLOW

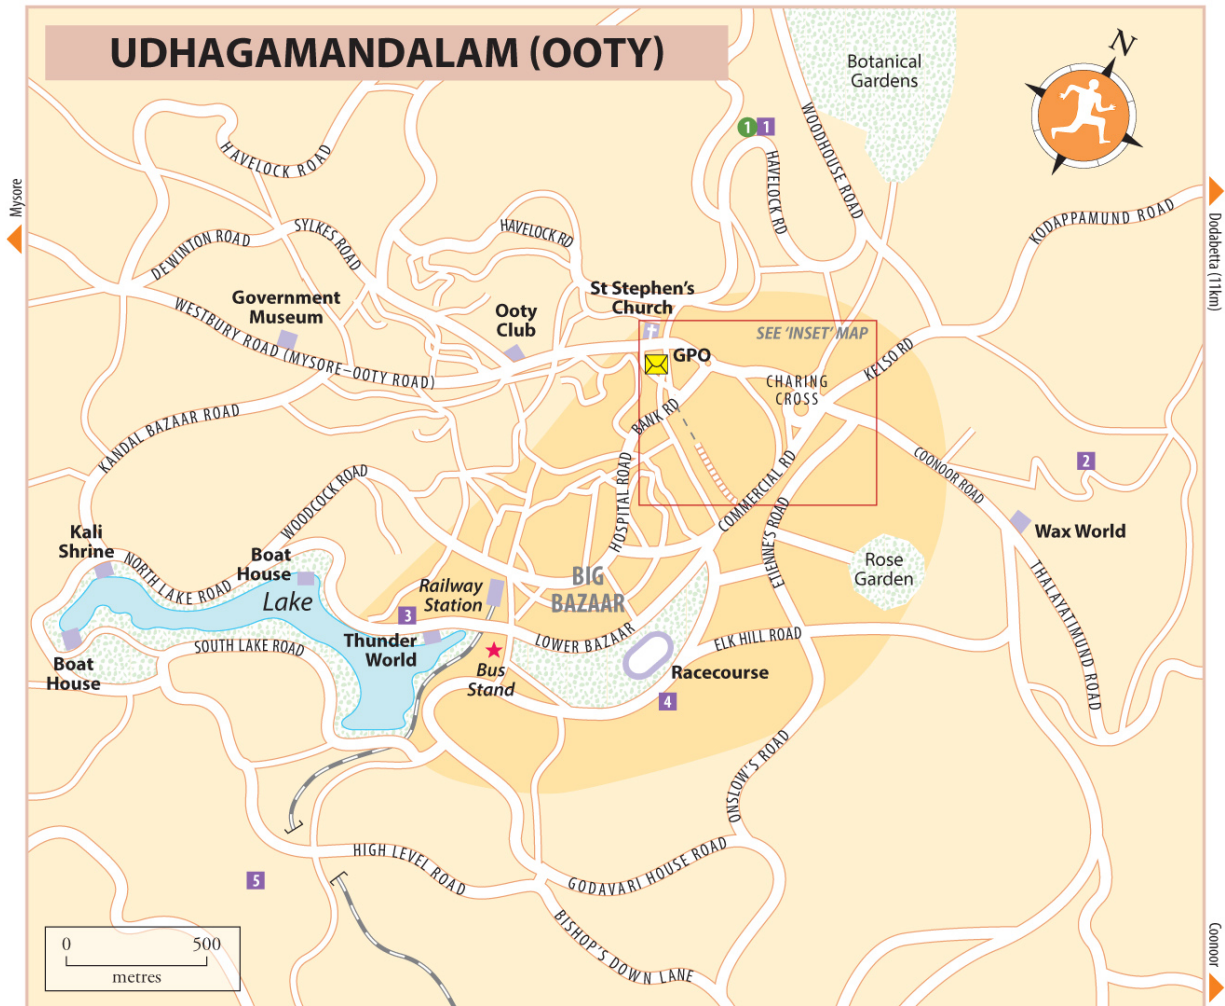

HAUL OF FOUR AND A HALF HOURS OR MORE – SOMETIMES THE TRAIN MOVES LITTLE FASTER THAN WALKING PACE, AND ALWAYS TAKES AT LEAST TWICE AS LONG AS THE BUS – BUT THE VIEWS ARE ABSOLUTELY MAGNIFICENT, ESPECIALLY ALONG THE STEEPEST SECTIONS IN THE HULIKAL RAVINE.

The line was built between 1890 and 1908, paid for by the tea-planters and other British inhabitants of the Nilgiris. It differs from India's two comparable narrow-gauge lines, to Darjeeling and Shimla, for its use of the so-called Swiss rack system, by means of which the tiny locomotives are able to climb gradients of up to 1 in 12.5. Special bars were set between the track rails to form a ladder, which cogs of teeth, connected to the train's driving wheels, engage like a zip mechanism. Because of this novel design, only the original locomotives can still run the steepest stretches of line, which is why the section between Mettupalayam and Coonoor has remained one of South Asia's last functioning steam routes. The chuffing and whistle screeches of the tiny train, echoing across the valleys as it pushes its blue-and-cream carriages up to Coonoor (where a diesel locomotive takes over) rank among the most romantic sounds of south India, conjuring up the determined gentility of the Raj era. Even if you don't count yourself as a trainspotter, a boneshaking ride on the Blue Mountain Railway should be a priority. Note that the two reserved carriages get booked months in advance but there are 80 seats in two unreserved carriages that are sold on the morning of the journey (be in the queue from 5.30am).

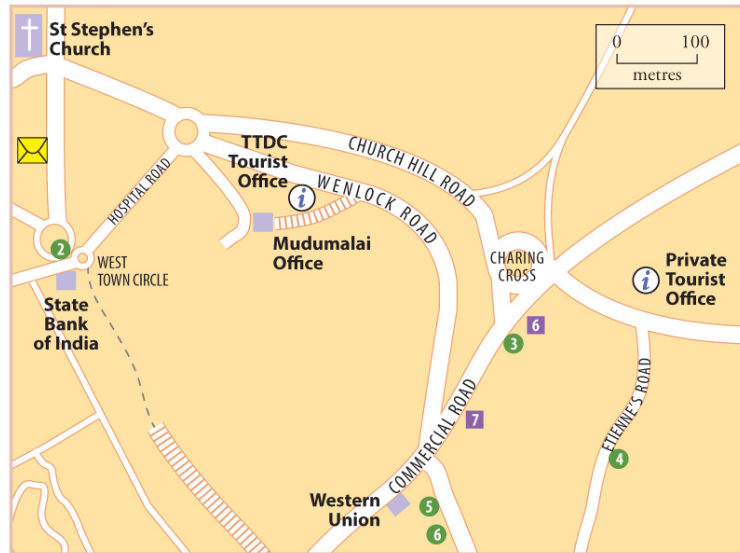

St Stephen's Church Mysore–Ooty road

Northwest of Charing Cross, the small Gothic-style St Stephen's Church was one of Ooty's first colonial structures, built in the 1820s on the site of a Toda temple; timber for its bowed teak roof was taken from Tipu Sultan's palace at Srirangapatna and hauled up here by elephant. The area around the church gives some idea of what the hill station must have looked like in the days of the Raj. To the right is the rambling and rather dilapidated Spencer's store, which opened in 1909 and sold everything a British home in the colonies could ever need; it's now a computer college.

ACCOMMODATION
Co-operators Guest House	6
Hills Palace	7
King's Cliff	1
Reflections Guest House	3
Sherlock	2
WH Fernhills Royale Palace	5
YWCA Anandagiri	4
EATING
Chandan	3
Hyderabad Biryani House	5
Preethi Palace	4
Secret	1
Shinkows	2
Willy's	6

The lake

Boathouse daily 9am–6pm • charge, camera charge, video camera charge Situated in the southwest corner of Ooty, the long and narrow lake, constructed in the early 1800s, is still one of Ooty's main tourist attractions, despite being somewhat polluted by sewage. The circumference of the lake is about 4.5km and makes for a very pleasant walk, conveniently peppered with juice and chai stalls. Renting one of a range of lake-worthy vessels from the busy boathouse is a quintessential part of the domestic holiday scene, with a small percentage of foreigners also choosing to brave the waters. Once inside the boathouse, various boats can be rented (pedal boats ₹120–200, rowing boats ₹145–185, charter motorboats seating 8–15 people ₹420–1800). Back outside, you can hire a horse and ride around the lake for ₹400 per hour. Another increasingly popular feature of destinations like Ooty is theme parks and North Lake Road now boasts Thunder World (daily 10am–8.30pm; ₹10, unlimited rides ₹300), India's largest dinosaur park. It's predictably cheesy but kids might enjoy the various rides and seeing the giant model creatures on display.

Wax World

Dodabetta Rd • Daily 9.30am–7.30pm • charge, camera charge • waxworld.in

A kilometre from Charing Cross, Wax World is a rather lifeless exhibition of twenty famous and infamous social and political figures, mostly from the twentieth century. Interesting in its own way, and with helpful guides to commentate, you may pick up the odd historical nugget. Watch out for the “disturbing scene”. There are no Bollywood divas or sports heroes as yet but freedom fighters find themselves immortalised.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY UDHAGAMANDALAM (OOTY) TRAIN OOTY'S STATION FOR THE MINIATURE NILGIRI BLUE MOUNTAIN RAILWAY FROM COONOR AND METTUPALAYAM IS NEAR BIG BAZAAR AND CLOSE TO THE BUS STATION. THE STATION HAS A BOOKING OFFICE (6.30AM–7PM), WHERE YOU CAN BUY TICKETS FOR THE LITTLE TRAIN, AND A RESERVATION COUNTER (DAILY 8AM–12.30PM & 2.30–4.30PM) FOR BOOKING ONWARD SERVICES TO MOST OTHER DESTINATIONS IN THE SOUTH. FOUR TRAINS DAILY (9.15AM, 12.15PM, 2PM & 6PM) POOTLE DOWN THE NARROW-GAUGE TRACK TO COONOR BUT ONLY THE 2PM TRAIN CONTINUES DOWN TO METTUPALAYAM, ON THE MAIN BROAD-GAUGE NETWORK, ARRIVING AT 6.30PM. IF YOU ARE CHENNAI-BOUND YOU CAN CONNECT WITH THE DAILY #12672 NILAGIRI EXPRESS, WHICH DEPARTS AT 7.45PM.

By bus Buses from all destinations arrive at the bus stand, in the southwest of Ooty, near the racecourse and Big Bazaar. Auto-rickshaws and taxis are available just outside the bus stand. There is an enquiry office (daily 7am–8pm) on the left side of the station (as you enter) on the first floor. Both Tamil Nadu and Karnataka State Transport run regular and super-deluxe state buses out of Ooty.

Destinations Bengaluru (9 daily; 7–8hr), Masingudi (4 daily; 2hr–2hr 30min), Mettupalayam (every 10 min; 2hr), Mysuru (every 30min; 4hr 30min–5hr) and other destinations in Tamil Nadu and Kerala. Private buses to Mysuru, Bengaluru and Kodaikanal can be booked at the bigger hotels and agents dotted around the town.

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE TTDC TOURIST OFFICE (MON–FRI 10AM–5.45PM; ☎0423 244 3977) IS NEXT DOOR TO THE TTDC HOTEL TAMIL NADU JUST ABOVE WENLOCK RD. YOU CAN BOOK TOURS HERE, INCLUDING A MAMMOTH DAY-TRIP (DAILY 9AM–8PM; (₹2500/CAR) THAT INCLUDES KAMARAJASAGAR DAM, MUDUMALAI AND A JUNGLE RIDE. THERE’S ALSO A DAY-TRIP AROUND OOTY AND COONOR (DAILY 9AM–6PM; ₹1800/CAR), WHICH GOES TO OOTY LAKE, DODDABETTA PEAK, THE BOTANICAL GARDENS, SIM’S PARK, LAMB’S NOSE, DOLPHIN’S NOSE AND A TEA GARDEN. THERE’S AN ERRATICALLY OPENING PRIVATE TOURIST INFORMATION CENTRE (MON–FRI 10AM–1PM & 2–6PM) IN THE CLOCK TOWER BUILDING AT CHARING CROSS THAT GIVES OUT LEAFLETS AND HOTEL INFORMATION. THE MUDUMALAI FOREST RANGER OFFICER’S OFFICE (MON–FRI 10AM–1PM & 2–5.45PM; ☎0423 244 40 98, 🌐MUDUMALAITIGERRESERVE.COM) IS JUST UP BEHIND THE TTDC OFFICE.

Services The State Bank of India on West Town Circle changes currency, as does the Western Union Office on Commercial Rd.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Ooty’s accommodation is a lot more expensive than in many places in India and during the peak season (April and May) prices can rise by thirty to a whopping hundred percent. It also gets very crowded, so you may have to hunt around.

Co-operators Guest House Commercial Rd, just along from Charing Cross 0423 244 4046. This central hotel is a good budget option. Set slightly back from the main road, the Raj-era building has clean rooms and yellow-and-turquoise balconies overlooking a courtyard. No wi-fi. ₹

Hills Palace Commercial Rd www.eghplanet.com. Centrally-located place set back from the main road and insulated from the traffic noise. Friendly, with spotlessly clean rooms, with 24hr hot water and TV. Cheaper rates during weekdays. ₹

King's Cliff Havelock Rd www.littleearth.in. Imposing ancestral mansion with nine lavishly furnished rooms, executive, standard and deluxe, each with a Shakespearean theme. The place is full of character and has a stylish lounge and dining room. ₹₹

Reflections Guest House North Lake Rd reflections.in@yahoo.co.in. Homely, relaxing guesthouse by the lake, just 5min walk from the railway station. Rooms open onto a small terrace and most have lake views. Limited food menu. Easily the best budget option in Ooty, but it's small and fills up quickly, so book in advance. ₹₹

★Sherlock Tiger Hill Rd, 3km east of Charing Cross www.littleearth.in. Beautifully landscaped Victorian mansion with stunning views from the grassy terrace. All thirteen rooms, standard or deluxe, are tastefully furnished and have sit outs. Friendly service and good food, too. ₹₹

WH Fernhills Royale Palace Fernhills Post Nilgiris www.welcomheritagehotels.in. This 19th-century summer palace of the Mysore Maharajas, set amidst 50 acres of lush greenery with dense forests and beautiful gardens, is perfect for a luxury stay. Rates include breakfast and one choice of meal. If you fancy sleeping like a Maharaja for the night, the suite is expensive but worth it. ₹₹₹₹

YWCA Anandagiri Etienne's Rd www.ywcaagooty.com. Charming 1920s building set in spacious grounds near the racecourse. There are seven different types of room (tariffs vary according to size and hot water availability), bungalows and four dorms. Excellent value and popular, so book ahead. No wi-fi. ₹

EATING

MAP

Chandan Nahar hotel, Commercial Rd, near Charing Cross. 0423 244 2173. A south Indian garden restaurant and a café serve traditional meals and tiffins. ₹

Hyderabad Biryani House Walsham Rd 0423 244 5080. Small, brightly lit, modern restaurant in the thick of the market which dishes up excellent filling biryanis and a range of other dishes. ₹₹

★Preethi Palace Etienne's Rd near Charing Cross 0423 244 2789. Excellent and very popular restaurant serving great lunchtime “meals” (Bengal, north Indian and Gujarati) and a range of delicious pure-veg Jain food throughout the day. ₹

Secret King's Cliff hotel, Havelock Rd 0423 245 2888. Extensive menu of more than two hundred quality dishes, including quail, chicken, seafood and veggie as well as delicious home-baked desserts, served in atmospheric surroundings. ₹₹

Shinkows 42 Commissioners Rd 0423 244 2811. Good-value, authentic Chinese restaurant serving decent-sized portions on the spicy (and pricey) side – main meat and fish courses. ₹₹

Willy's KRC Arcade, Walsham Rd 0423 244 8646. Second-floor café with a laidback ambience and 70s-style dolphin mural, where you can chill out over a coffee, cake, toasted sandwich or Indian snack and browse the impressive lending library. No Wi-fi. ₹

Mudumalai Tiger Reserve Elephant Camp Daily 8.30–9am & 4.30–6pm • charge • Vehicle safari tour Daily 7–10am & 3–5.30pm; 45min charge, 2hr 30min jeep safari charge, camera charge video camera charge • www.mudumalaitigerreserve.com

Set 1140m up in the Nilgiri Hills, the Mudumalai Tiger Reserve covers 322 square kilometres of deciduous forest, split by the main road from Ooty (64km to the southeast) to Mysore (97km to the northwest). Occupying the thickly wooded, lower northern reaches of the hills, it boasts one of the largest populations of elephants in India, along with wild dogs, gaur (Indian bison), common and Nilgiri langurs and bonnet macaques (monkeys), jackals, hyenas, sloth bears and even a few tigers and leopards. The abundant local flora includes the dazzling red flowers of the Flame of the Forest.

The main focus of interest by the park entrance at Theppakkadu is the Elephant Camp show, where you can watch the sanctuary's elephants being fed and bathed. This is also the starting point for the government safari tour, either on elephant back (which we do not recommend, due to the negative impact this has on the animals) or by vehicle, which is the only way of accessing the official park limits. It is worth noting that the nearby Nagarhole and Bandipur parks are much cheaper, with the same price for both Indians and tourists.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS THE MAIN ROUTE TO MUDUMALAI FROM MUDUMALAI WILDLIFE SANCTUARY OOTY PLIED BY BUSES TO MYSORE AND BENGALURU TAKES 2HR 30MIN TO REACH THEPPAKKADU. THE ALTERNATIVE ROUTE, A TORTUOUS JOURNEY OF VERY STEEP GRADIENTS AND HAIRPIN BENDS, SHOULD ONLY BE ATTEMPTED BY TAXIS, 4WD AND MINIBUSES.

ACCOMMODATION FOREST RESTHOUSES THEPPAKKADU & MASINAGUDI @ MUDUMALAITIGERRESERVE.COM. THE FOREST DEPARTMENT HAS A SELECTION OF RUSTIC RESTHOUSES IN OR JUST OUTSIDE THE PARK, INCLUDING SOME BASIC BUT NONETHELESS PLEASANT WOOD HOUSES. BEST BUDGET OPTION IS THE DORMS, WHILE DOUBLE OCCUPANCY ROOMS ARE CONSIDERABLY MORE. THERE ARE ALSO VERY EXPENSIVE SUITES. RESTAURANTS AND CANTEENS ARE AVAILABLE. NO WI-FI. ₹-₹₹₹

★ Jungle Hut Bokkapuram, 6km southwest of Masinagudi @ junglehut.in. A combination of eco-friendly huts, cottages and luxury tents which includes three sumptuous buffet meals and unlimited tea and coffee. They can also arrange treks and plantation visits at extra cost. Wi-fi only in the lobby. ₹₹₹₹

Misty Grove Resort Calicut, Mysore–Ooty Road, Nadugani, 20 kms from Mudhumalai @ mistygroveresort.com. Nestled in lush greenery and surrounded by forests, there are 20 rooms of different categories, as well as cottages, including breakfast. The resort also arranges activities such as treks. ₹₹₹

Secret Ivory Masinagudi @secretivory.com. Luxury guesthouse with just eight rooms and a treehouse. They serve delicious farm-fresh veg, grown on their own land and also organize treks. Wi-fi in lobby. ₹₹₹

Wild Haven Chadapatti, 6km south of Masinagudi @0423 252 6490. This lodge is in open land with great mountain views. There is a choice of simple, spacious double rooms in a stone block or in cottages. Breakfast included but other meals only available for large groups. ₹₹₹

< Back to Tamil Nadu

Shutterstock
VARKALA BEACH

Kerala

Thiruvananthapuram

Kovalam

South of Kovalam

Varkala and around

Kollam (Quilon).

Alappuzha (Alleppey).

Mararikulam

Kottayam and around

Periyar and around

Munnar and around

Kochi (Cochin).

Around Kochi

Thrissur (Trichur).

Around Thrissur

Kozhikode (Calicut).

Wayanad

The far north

Kerala

The state of Kerala stretches for 550km along India's southwest coast, divided between the densely forested mountains of the Western Ghats inland and a lush, humid coastal plain of verdant rice paddy, lagoons, rivers and canals. Its intensely tropical landscape, fed by the highest rainfall in peninsular India, has intoxicated visitors since the ancient Sumerians and Greeks sailed in search of spices to the shore known as the Malabar Coast. Equally, Kerala's arcane rituals and spectacular festivals – many of them little-changed since the earliest era of Hinduism – have dazzled outsiders for thousands of years.

Travellers weary of India's daunting metropolises will find Kerala's cities smaller and more relaxed. The most popular is undoubtedly the great port of Kochi (Cochin), where the state's long history of peaceful foreign contact is evocatively evident in the atmospheric old quarters of Mattancherry and Fort Cochin. In Kerala's far south, the capital, Thiruvananthapuram (Trivandrum), is gateway to the nearby palm-fringed beaches of Kovalam and Varkala, and provides visitors with varied opportunities to sample Kerala's rich cultural and artistic life.

One of the best aspects of exploring Kerala, though, is the actual travelling – especially by boat, in the spellbinding Kuttanad region, around historic Kollam (Quilon) and Alappuzha (Alleppey); travellers are increasingly setting out from Kumarakom too. Cruisers and beautiful wooden barges known as kettu vallam ("tied boats") ply the backwaters, offering tourists a window on village life in India's most densely populated state. Furthermore, it's easy to escape the heat of the lowlands by heading for the hills, which rise to 2695m. Roads pass through landscapes dotted with churches and temples, tea, coffee, spice and rubber plantations, and natural forests, en route to wildlife reserves such as Periyar, where herds of mud-caked elephants roam freely in vast tracts of jungle.

Kerala is short on the historic monuments prevalent elsewhere in India, and most of its ancient temples are closed to non-Hindus. Following an unwritten law, few buildings in the region, whether houses or temples, are higher than the surrounding trees, which in urban areas often creates the illusion that you're surrounded by forest. Typical features of both domestic and temple architecture include long, sloping tiled and gabled roofs that minimize the excesses of rain and sunshine, and pillared verandas; the definitive examples are Thiruvananthapuram's Puttan Malika Palace, and Padmanabhapuram Palace, in neighbouring Tamil Nadu but easily reached from the capital.

BEST TIME TO VISIT THE PERIOD FROM DECEMBER TO MARCH IS GENERALLY CONSIDERED TO BE THE BEST TIME TO VISIT KERALA, ESPECIALLY IF YOU'RE PLANNING SOME BEACH TIME – THE SKIES ARE BLUE AND THE HUMIDITY ISN'T TOO FIERCE. FROM THE END OF MARCH, THE HEAT BUILDS UP UNTIL THE SKIES OPEN IN JUNE FOR THE STATE'S FIRST MONSOON, WHICH LASTS UNTIL AUGUST AND IS MORE INTENSE THAN OCTOBER'S "RETREATING" MONSOON. A WORD OF WARNING, HOWEVER, FOR BUDGET TRAVELLERS. KERALA'S ACCOMMODATION IS PRICEY (THOUGH IT TENDS TO BE OF A HIGH STANDARD) AND IN HIGH SEASON CHEAP PLACES TO STAY ARE THIN ON THE GROUND EVERYWHERE, BUT ESPECIALLY IN THE HILL STATIONS AND BACKWATER AREAS, WHERE IT'S NOT UNCOMMON TO PAY UPWARDS OF ₹2000 FOR A ROOM IN A MODEST GUESTHOUSE. MARCH, APRIL AND MAY ARE GOOD MONTHS TO NEGOTIATE DISCOUNTS AND THE BEST TIME TO HIKE IN THE COOLER CLIMES OF THE WESTERN GHATS.

Summer is noted for its festivals, including the traditional snake boat races held during monsoon.

Shutterstock

KERALA BACKWATERS

Highlights

① Varkala Chill out in a red sandstone clifftop café, hit the beach or soak up the atmosphere around the town's busy temple tank.

② The backwaters Explore the beautiful waterways of Kerala's densely populated coastal strip on a rice barge or punted canoe, following the narrow, overgrown canals right into the heart of the villages.

③ Hiking around Munnar The tea plantations, grassy mountains and dazzling viewpoints around Munnar are the perfect antidote to the heat and humidity of the coast.

④ Fort Cochin Dutch, Portuguese, British and traditional Keralan townhouses line the backstreets of Malabar's old peninsular port. Stay in a heritage hotel, see the fisherman hauling their catch at sunrise and take in a performance of kathakali – elaborately costumed ritual theatre.

⑤ Temple festivals Parades of extravagantly decorated elephants, backed by drummers and firework displays, form the focal point of Kerala's Hindu festivals, among them Thrissur's famed Puram; you can also see intimate theyyam spirit-possession rituals in the north of the state.

⑥ Wayanad Engage a local guide to take you on foot to explore the dense forests and grasslands that cover this isolated mountain region to spot local wildlife.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

FESTIVALS IN KERALA HUGE AMOUNTS OF MONEY ARE LAVISHED UPON MANY, VARIED, AND OFTEN ALL-NIGHT FESTIVALS ASSOCIATED WITH KERALA'S TEMPLES. FIREWORKS REND THE AIR, WHILE PROCESSIONS OF CAPARISONED ELEPHANTS ARE ACCOMPANIED BY SOME OF THE LOUDEST (AND DEFTEST) DRUM ORCHESTRAS IN THE WORLD. THRISSUR'S FAMOUS PURAM FESTIVAL IS THE MOST ASTONISHING, BUT SMALLER EVENTS TAKE PLACE THROUGHOUT THE STATE, WITH EVERYONE WELCOME TO ATTEND. BETWEEN DECEMBER AND MARCH IT'S POSSIBLE TO SPEND WEEKS HOPPING BETWEEN VILLAGE THEYYAMS IN NORTHERN KERALA, EXPERIENCING RITUALS LITTLE ALTERED IN CENTURIES. THE SNAKE BOAT RACES IN JUNE, AUGUST AND SEPTEMBER ARE AN INCREDIBLE SIGHT, WHILE CHRISTMAS SEES PAPER LANTERNS AND FAIRY LIGHTS DECORATING HOMES AND CHURCHES. KERALA'S HINDU FESTIVALS ARE FIXED ACCORDING TO THE MALAYALAM CALENDAR, SO DATES CHANGE FROM YEAR TO YEAR – SEE KERALATOURISM.ORG.

Swathi Sangeetotsavam (Jan). Held in honour of composer Sri Swathi Thirunal (maharaja of Travancore 1813–46), free evening performances of Karnatic and Hindustani music take place on the raised porch of Thiruvananthapuram's Puttan Malika Palace, with spectators seated on the lawn.

Maha Shivrati (Usually early March; the moonless night). The night of the worship of Shiva is an all-night vigil at temples across the state. A shivalingam rises out of the banks of the River Periyar near Kochi, attracting thousands of devotees.

Vishu (Mid-April). A festival of lights and fireworks on Hindu New Year's Day. On this day it's believed that the first object seen is auspicious, so items including rice, fruit, flowers and gold are set out in homes.

Nehru Trophy Snake Boat Race (Second Sat in Aug). The most spectacular of the boat races attracts huge crowds to Punnamda Lake near Alappuzha. Following a grand procession, the magnificently decorated longboats – each carrying more than one hundred oarsmen rowing to the rhythmic vanchipattu (“song of the boatman”) – compete in knockout rounds. Similar races can be seen at Aranmula (Aug–Sept) and Champakulam (June–July).

Onam (Ten days in Aug or Sept). Kerala's harvest festival is marked by singing, kathakali, pookalam (floral “carpets”), traditional food and in Thrissur, pulikali (the dance of the tigers). Four of the days are state holidays.

As well as festivals, theatre and dance also abound; not only the region's own female classical dance form, mohiniyattam (“dance of the enchantress”), but also the martial-art-influenced kathakali dance drama, which has for four centuries brought gods and demons from the Mahabharata and Ramayana to Keralan villages. Its two-thousand-year-old predecessor, the Sanskrit drama kudiyattam, is still performed by a handful of artists, while localized rituals known as theyyam, where dancers wearing decorative masks and hats become “possessed” by temple deities, remain a potent ingredient of village life in the north of the state.

Brief history

Ancient Kerala is mentioned as the land of the Cheras in a third-century-BC Ashokan edict, and in several even older Sanskrit texts, including the Mahabharata. Pliny and Ptolemy also testify to thriving trade between the ancient port of Muziris (now known as Kodungallur) and the Roman Empire. Kodungallur is also tipped to be where one of the twelve disciples, St Thomas, first set foot in 52 AD; today Christians account for some 21 percent of Kerala's population. Little is known about the region's early rulers, whose dominion covered a large area, but whose capital, Vanji, has not so far been identified. At the start of the ninth century, King Kulashekhara Alvar – a poet-saint of the Vaishnavite bhakti movement known as the alvars – established his own dynasty. His son and successor, Rajashekharavarman, is thought to have been a saint of the parallel Shaivite movement, the nayannars. The great Keralan philosopher Shankaracharya, whose advaitya (“non-dualist”) philosophy influenced the whole of Hindu India, was alive at this time.

Eventually, the prosperity acquired by the Cheras through trade with China and the Arab world proved too much of an attraction for the neighbouring Chola empire, which embarked upon a hundred years of sporadic warfare with the Cheras at the end of the tenth century. Around 1100, the Cheras lost their capital at Mahodayapuram in the north, and shifted south to establish a new capital at Kollam (Quilon).

Direct trade with Europe commenced in 1498 with the arrival in the capital, Calicut, of a small Portuguese fleet under Vasco da Gama – the first expedition to reach the coast of India via the Cape of Good Hope and Arabian Sea. After an initial show of cordiality, relations between him and the local ruler, or Zamorin, quickly degenerated, and da Gama's second voyage four years later was characterized by appalling massacres, kidnapping, mutilation and barefaced piracy. Nevertheless, a fortified trading post was soon established at Cochin from which the Portuguese, exploiting old enmities between the region's rulers, were able to dominate trade with the Middle East. This was gradually eroded away over the ensuing century by rival powers France and Holland. An independent territory was subsequently carved out of the Malabar Coast by Tipu Sultan of Mysore, but his defeat in 1792 left the British in control right up until Independence.

Kerala can claim some of the most startling radical credentials in India. In 1957 it was the first state in the world to democratically elect a communist government, and still regularly returns communist parties in elections. Due to reforms made during the 1960s and 1970s, Kerala currently has the most equitable land distribution of any Indian state. Poverty appears far less acute than in other parts of the country, with life expectancy and per capita income well above the national averages. Kerala is also justly proud of its reputation for healthcare and education, with literacy rates that stand, officially at least, at 96 percent for men and 92 percent for women. Industrial development is negligible, however: potential investors from outside tend to fight shy of dealing with such a politicised workforce.

Thiruvananthapuram Kerala's capital, THIRUVANANTHAPURAM (still widely known as Trivandrum), is set on seven low hills just a couple of kilometres inland from the Arabian Sea. Despite its administrative importance – demonstrated by wide roads, multistorey office blocks and gleaming white colonial buildings – it's an easy-going state capital by Indian standards, with enclaves of traditional, red-tiled gabled houses breaking up the bustle of its modern concrete core, and a swathe of parkland spreading north of the centre. Although its principal sight, the Sri Padmanabhaswamy temple, is closed to non-Hindus, the city holds enough of interest to fill a day. Foremost among its attractions is the splendid Puttan Malika Palace, one of the state's best museums, and a typically Keralan market, Chalai Bazaar.

Both the palace and bazaar are in the oldest and most interesting part of the city, the Fort area in the south. At the opposite, northern side of the centre, the Sri Chitra Art Gallery and Napier Museum showcase painting, crafts and sculpture in a leafy park. In addition, schools specializing in the martial art kalarippayat and the dance/theatre forms of kathakali and kudiyattam offer an insight into the Keralan obsession with physical training and skill.

Sri Padmanabhaswamy temple Padmanabha, the god Vishnu reclined on a coiled serpent with a lotus flower sprouting from his belly button, is the presiding deity of the Sri Padmanabhaswamy temple, a vast complex of interlocking walled courtyards, shrines and ceremonial walkways in the south of the city. The iconic image of the temple's seven-tiered, Tamil-style gopura gateway, reflected in the waters of the adjacent bathing tank, graced the front pages of many newspapers across the world in June 2011 when it was discovered that a vast horde of treasure had been discovered in vaults below its inner sanctum. Sealed inside the secret chambers were sacks of diamonds, a thousand kilograms of gold, thousands of pieces of gem-encrusted jewellery and, the pièce de résistance, an exquisite 1m-tall gold image of Vishnu shimmering with precious stones. Experts are still debating the value of the items, with estimates ranging from US$40–200 billion. Either way, the find makes this by far the richest place of worship in the world.

KERALAN RITUAL THEATRE AMONG THE MOST MAGICAL EXPERIENCES A VISITOR TO KERALA CAN HAVE IS TO WITNESS ONE OF THE INNUMERABLE ANCIENT DRAMA RITUALS THAT PLAY SUCH AN IMPORTANT ROLE IN THE CULTURAL LIFE OF THE REGION. KATHAKALI IS THE BEST KNOWN; OTHER LESS PUBLICIZED FORMS, WHICH CLEARLY INFLUENCED ITS DEVELOPMENT, INCLUDE THE CLASSICAL SANSKRIT KUDIYATTAM.

Many Keralan forms share broad characteristics. A prime aim of each performer is to transform the mundane into the world of gods and demons; his preparation is highly ritualized, involving otherworldly costume and mask-like make-up. In kathakali and kudiyattam, this preparation is a rigorously codified part of the classical tradition.

One-off performances of various ritual types take place throughout the state, building up to fever pitch during April and May before pausing for the monsoon (June–Aug). Finding out about such events requires a little perseverance, but it's well worth the effort; enquire at tourist offices or buy a Malayalam daily paper such as the Malayalam Manorama and ask someone to check the listings for temple festivals – most of the action invariably takes place within the temples. Tourist kathakali is staged daily in Kochi but to find authentic performances, contact performing arts schools such as Thiruvananthapuram's Margi and Cheruthuruthy's Kerala Kalamandalam; kudiyattam artists work at both, as well as at Natana Kairali at Irinjalakuda, which is accessible from Thrissur.

KATHAKALI

Here is the tradition of the trance dancers, here is the absolute demand of the subjugation of body to spirit, here is the realization of the cosmic transformation of human into divine.

Mrinalini Sarabhai, classical dancer The image of a kathakali actor in a magnificent costume with extraordinary make-up and a huge gold crown has become Kerala's trademark. Traditional performances, of which there are still many, usually take place on open ground outside a temple, beginning at 10pm and lasting until dawn, illuminated by the flickers of a large brass oil lamp centre-stage. Virtually nothing about kathakali is naturalistic, because it depicts the world of gods and demons; men play both the male and female roles.

Standing at the back of the stage, two musicians play driving rhythms, one on a bronze gong, the other on heavy bell-metal cymbals; they also sing the dialogue. Actors appear and disappear from behind a hand-held curtain and never utter a sound, save the odd, strange cry. Learning the elaborate hand gestures, facial expressions and choreographed movements, as articulate and precise as any sign language, requires rigorous training which can begin at the age of 8 and last ten years. At least two more drummers stand left of the stage; one plays the upright chenda with slender curved sticks, the other plays the maddalam, a horizontal barrel-shaped hand drum. When a female character is "speaking", the chenda is replaced by the hourglass-shaped ettaka, a "talking drum" on which melodies can be played. The drummers keep their eyes on the actors, whose every gesture is reinforced by their sound, from the gentlest embrace to the gory disembowelling of an enemy.

Although it bears the unmistakeable influences of kudiyattam and indigenous folk rituals, kathakali, literally "story-play", is thought to have crystallized into a distinct theatre form during the seventeenth century. The plays are based on three major sources: the Hindu epics the Mahabharata, Ramayana and the Bhagavata Purana. While the stories are ostensibly about god-heroes such as Rama and Krishna, the most popular characters are those that give the most scope to the actors – the villainous, fanged, red-and-black-faced katti ("knife") antiheroes; these types, such as the kings Ravana and Duryodhana, are dominated by lust, greed, envy and violence. David Bolland's Guide to Kathakali, widely available in Kerala, gives invaluable scene-by-scene summaries of the most popular plays and explains in simple language a lot more besides.

When attending a performance, arrive early to get your bearings before it gets dark, even though the first play will not begin much before 10pm. (Quiet) members of the audience are welcome to visit the dressing room before and during the performance. The colour and design of the mask-like make-up, which specialist artists take several hours to apply, reveal the character's personality. The word pacha means both "green" and "pure"; a green-faced pacha character is thus a noble human or God. Red signifies rajas, passion and aggression; black denotes tamas, darkness and negativity; and white is sattvik, light and intellect. Once the make-up is completed, elaborate wide skirts are tied to the waist, and ornaments of silver and gold are added. Silver talons are fitted to the left hand. The transformation is complete with a final prayer and the donning of waist-length wig and crown. Visitors new to kathakali will almost undoubtedly get bored during such long programmes, parts of which are very slow indeed. If you're at a village performance, you may not always find accommodation, so you can't leave during the night. Be prepared to sit on the ground for hours, and bring some warm clothes. Half the fun is staying up all night to witness, just as the dawn light appears, the gruesome disembowelling of a villain or a demon asura.

KUDIYATTAM THREE FAMILIES OF THE CHAKYAR CASTE AND A FEW OUTSIDERS PERFORM THE SANSKRIT DRAMA KUDIYATTAM, THE OLDEST CONTINUALLY PERFORMED THEATRE FORM IN THE WORLD. UNTIL RECENTLY IT WAS ONLY PERFORMED INSIDE TEMPLES AND THEN ONLY IN FRONT OF THE UPPERMOST CASTES. VISUALLY IT IS VERY SIMILAR TO ITS OFFSPRING, KATHAKALI, BUT ITS ATMOSPHERE IS INFINITELY MORE ARCHAIC. THE ACTORS, ELOQUENT IN SIGN LANGUAGE AND SYMBOLIC MOVEMENT, SPEAK IN THE COMPELLING INTONATION OF THE LOCAL BRAHMIN'S VEDIC CHANT, UNCHANGED SINCE 1500 BC.

A single act of a kudiyattam play can require ten full nights; the entire play takes forty. A great actor, in full command of the subtleties of gestural expression, can take half an hour to do such a simple thing as murder a demon, berate the audience or simply describe a leaf fall to the ground. Unlike kathakali, kudiyattam includes comic characters and plays. The ubiquitous Vidushaka, narrator and clown, is something of a court jester, and traditionally has held the right to criticize openly the highest in the land without fear of retribution.

Non-Hindus are unfortunately not permitted inside, but the main approach road to Sri Padmanabhaswamy, with its stalls full of religious souvenirs and offerings, makes an atmospheric place for a stroll, particularly in the early morning when worshippers take ritual baths in the tank.

Kuthira Malika Palace Tues–Sun 8.30am–1pm & 3–5.30pm • charge; guided tour only The Kuthira Malika Palace, immediately southeast of the Sri Padmanabhaswamy temple, became the seat of the Travancore rajas after they left Padmanabhapuram at the end of the nineteenth century. The cool chambers, with highly polished plaster floors and delicately carved wooden screens, house a crop of dusty royal heirlooms, including a solid crystal throne gifted by the Dutch. The real highlight, however, is the elegant Keralan architecture itself. Beneath sloping red-tiled roofs, hundreds of wooden pillars, carved into the forms of rampant horses, prop up the eaves, and airy verandas project onto the surrounding lawns.

The royal family have always been keen patrons of the arts, and the Swathi Sangeetotsavam festival, held in the grounds in January, continues this tradition.

CVN Kalari Sangam S St, East Fort • Mon–Sat 9.30–12.30pm, 4.30pm–6.30pm • cvnkalari.in Around 500m southeast of the temple in East Fort, the redbrick CVN Kalari Sangam ranks among Kerala's top kalarippayat gymnasiums. It was founded in 1956 by C.V. Narayanan Nair, one of the legendary figures credited for the martial art's revival, and attracts students from across the world. Every morning except Sunday you can watch fighting exercises in the sunken kalari pit that forms the heart of the complex. Foreigners may join courses, arranged through the head teacher, or gurukkal, although prior experience of martial arts and/or dance is a prerequisite.

Chalai Bazaar Thiruvananthapuram's main source of fresh produce and everyday items is the kilometre-long Chalai Bazaar, which runs east from MG Road in East Fort, from opposite the main approach to the temple. Lined with little shops selling flowers, incense, spices, bell-metal lamps and fireworks, it's a great area for aimless browsing (most shops open daily 10am–8pm). On your left (north side) as you enter the street, look out for United Umbrella Mart, which sells brightly coloured temple parasols used in elephant processions. Further down on the opposite side of the road, the delightfully old-fashioned Ambal Coffee Works is another source of authentic Keralan souvenirs. One true speciality of Kerala's snacks are the plantain (or raw banana) crisps. These are thinly sliced raw banana chips that are deep fried in coconut oil and made to order. Maha Chips which lies north west of Chalai Bazar is a local favourite and the staff let travellers sample some fresh crisps beforehand.

Margi School

West Fort • margitheatre.org

Thiruvananthapuram has for centuries been a crucible for Keralan classical arts, and the Margi School, at the western corner of the Fort area, is one of the foremost colleges for kathakali dance drama and the more rarely performed kudiyattam theatre form. Most visitors venture out here to watch one of the authentic kathakali or kudiyattam performances staged once each month in its small theatre, details of which are posted on the school's website.

To reach Margi, head to the SP Fort Hospital on the western edge of Fort and then continue 200m north; the school is set back from the west side of the main road in a large red-tiled and tin-roofed building, behind the High School (the sign is in Malayalam).

Napier Museum LMS Vallayambalam Rd • Tues–Sun 10am–5pm • charge A minute's walk east from the north end of MG Road, opposite Kerala Tourism's information office, brings you to the entrance to Thiruvananthapuram's public gardens. As well as serving as a welcome refuge from the noise of the city, the park holds the city's best museums. Give the dusty and uninformative Natural History Museum a miss and head instead for the more engaging Napier Museum. Built at the end of the nineteenth century, it was an early experiment in what became known as the "Indo-Saracenic" style, with tiled, gabled roofs, garish red-, black- and salmon-patterned brickwork, and a spectacular interior of stained-glass windows and loud turquoise, pink, red and yellow stripes. Highlights of the collection include fifteenth-century Keralan woodcarvings, terrifying Ceylonese (Sri Lankan) masks, a carved temple chariot (rath) and Chola and Vijayanagar bronzes.

Sri Chitra Art Gallery Next to Zoological Gardens • Tues–Sun 10am–4.45pm • charge You pass through the main ticket booth for the city's depressing, faded zoo to reach the Sri Chitra Art Gallery, which shows paintings from the Rajput, Mughal and Tanjore schools, along with pieces from China, Tibet and Japan. The meat of the collection, though, is made up of works by the celebrated artist Raja Ravi Varma (1848–1906), a local aristocrat who achieved fame and fortune as a producer of Hindu mythological prints – forerunners of India's quirky calendar art. Varma's style was much criticized by later generations for its sentimentality and strong Western influence, but in his time, he was regarded as the nation's greatest living artist.

Also, on view at the Sri Chitra, in rooms to the rear of the main building, are a couple of minor Tagores, and some striking, strongly coloured Himalayan landscapes by the Russian artist-philosopher and mystic, Nicholas Roerich, who resided in the Kullu Valley for two decades until his death in 1947.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY THIRUVANANTHAPURAM PLANE BEEMAPALLI AIRPORT CONNECTED TO MOST MAJOR INDIAN CITIES, AS WELL AS SRI LANKA, THE MALDIVES AND THE MIDDLE EAST, BEEMAPALLI AIRPORT LIES 6KM SOUTHWEST OF TOWN. YOU'LL FIND A KERALA TOURISM INFORMATION BOOTH (IN THEORY 24HR), ATM, VODAFONE STAND (WHERE YOU CAN BUY AN INDIAN SIM) AND A THOMAS COOK FOREIGN EXCHANGE FACILITY JUST BEFORE THE EXIT OF THE ARRIVALS CONCOURSE.

GETTING INTO TOWN BY SHUTTLE THE BEST WAY TO GET TO AND FROM THE AIRPORT IS ON THE A/C AIRPORT BUS (₹30), WHICH RUNS BETWEEN THE ARRIVALS CONCOURSE AND THE CITY BUS STAND IN EAST FORT. SEE www.AANAVANDI.COM FOR THE SCHEDULE.

By auto-rickshaw and taxi Auto-rickshaws can get you into the centre for around ₹150 and there's also a handy prepaid taxi service (pay before departure; ₹350 for Thiruvananthapuram railway station, ₹500 for Kovalam's Lighthouse Beach).

BY BUS INTERSTATE BUSES THE LONG-DISTANCE KSRTC THAMPANOOR BUS STATION IS OPPOSITE THE RAILWAY STATION IN THE SOUTH-EAST OF THE CITY, WITHIN WALKING DISTANCE OF MOST OF THE CITY'S BUDGET ACCOMMODATION. THIS IS THE PLACE TO CATCH SERVICES TO VARKALA AS WELL AS LONG-DISTANCE BUSES HEADING NORTH UP THE COAST (TO KOLLAM, ALAPPUZHA, ERNAKULAM OR THRISSUR). FOR THE LATTER AIM FOR THE 6AM OR 5.30PM "SUPER-DELUXE A/C" SPECIALS – YOU CAN BUY TICKETS FOR ALL LONG-DISTANCE ROUTES AT THE RESERVATIONS HATCH, MAIN BUS STAND CONCOURSE (DAILY 6AM–10PM). THE TAMIL NADU BUS COMPANY, TNSRTC, HAS ITS OWN COUNTER ON THE SAME CONCOURSE. NUMEROUS PRIVATE BUS COMPANIES ALSO RUN INTERSTATE SERVICES; MANY OF THE AGENTS ARE ON ARISTO RD NEAR THE GREENLAND LODGING.

RECOMMENDED TRAINS FROM THIRUVANANTHAPURAM THE FOLLOWING TRAINS ARE RECOMMENDED AS THE FASTEST AND/OR MOST CONVENIENT FROM THIRUVANANTHAPURAM.

Destination	Name	No.	Departs	Arrives
Alappuzha	Netravati Express*	#16346	daily 9.30am	12.12pm
Chennai	Chennai Mail*	#12624	daily 2.55pm	7.40am+
Ernakulam/Kochi	Jan Shatabdi	#12076	daily 6.00am	9.25am
Kanyakumari	Kanyakumari Express	#16381	daily 10.10am	12.50pm
Kollam	Kerala Express	#12625	daily 11.15am	12.20pm
Madurai	Anantapuri Express	#16724	daily 4.10pm	11.00pm

*via Kollam, Varkala, Kottayam and Ernakulam, + = next day

Local services Local buses (including those for Kovalam) depart from City bus stand, in East Fort, a 10min walk south from the KSRTC Thampanoor and railway stations. Services to Kovalam leave from the stand on the roadside – be prepared for a crush if you attempt this journey in the late-afternoon rush hour.

Destinations Alappuzha/Alleppey (every 15–20min; 3hr 30min); Ernakulam/Kochi (every 30min; 5hr); Kanyakumari (5 daily; 2hr 15min); Kollam/Quilon (every 15–20min; 1hr 40min); Kovalam (from East Fort; every 20–30min); Kumily/Periyar (3 daily; 7hr 45min); Madurai (8 daily; 7hr); Neyyar Dam (hourly; 1hr 30min); Varkala (8 daily; 90min).

BY TRAIN KERALA'S CAPITAL IS WELL CONNECTED BY TRAIN WITH OTHER TOWNS AND CITIES. ALTHOUGH YOU CAN BUY A TICKET JUST BEFORE DEPARTURE, GETTING SEATS AT SHORT NOTICE ON LONG-HAUL JOURNEYS CAN BE A PROBLEM, SO MAKE RESERVATIONS AS FAR IN ADVANCE AS POSSIBLE FROM THE EFFICIENT COMPUTERIZED BOOKING OFFICE AT THE STATION (24HR). THERE'S A HANDY PREPAID AUTO-RICKSHAW COUNTER ON THE ARRIVALS CONCOURSE.

Destinations Alappuzha/Alleppey (7 daily; 2hr 15min–3hr); Chennai/Madras (4 daily; 16hr–17hr 30min); Ernakulam/Kochi (20 daily; 3hr 25min–5hr 15min); Kanyakumari (3 daily; 2hr 40min–3hr); Kollam/Quilon (24 daily; 55min–1hr 20min); Madurai (5 daily; 6hr 50min–10hr 50min); Varkala (24 daily; 35min).

INFORMATION AND TOURS TOURIST INFORMATION IN ADDITION TO AT THE AIRPORT (SEE ABOVE), KERALA TOURISM HAS AN INFORMATION COUNTER AT THE KSRTC THAMPANOOR BUS STATION (MON–SAT 10AM–5PM; ☎0471 232 7224), WHILE IN VELLAYAMBALAM ON MUSEUM RD, NEXT TO THE UNREMARKABLE MUSEUM OF HISTORY AND HERITAGE, KTDC HOSTS A VISITOR RECEPTION CENTRE WHERE YOU CAN BOOK ACCOMMODATION IN THEIR HOTEL CHAIN AND TICKETS FOR VARIOUS GUIDED TOURS (DAILY 7AM–9PM; ☎0471 232 1132).

Tours Most of the KTDC tours, including the city tours (daily 1.30–6.45pm; ₹400), are too rushed, but if you're really pushed for time and want to reach the tip of India, try the Kanyakumari tour (daily 7.30am–9pm; ₹700), which takes in Padmanabhapuram Palace (except Mon), Suchindram Temple and Kanyakumari in Tamil Nadu.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Accommodation is a lot easier on the pocket in Thiruvananthapuram than at nearby Kovalam Beach. That said, this is one city where budget travellers, in particular, should consider spending a couple of hundred rupees more than they might usually.

Ariya Niwas Manorama Rd, Thampanoor ⓘ ariyanivas.tvm@gmail.com. Large, spotless and airy rooms with comfy beds and great city views from its upper floors. Good value, 24hr checkout and just 2min walk from the railway station, with an excellent “meals” restaurant on the ground floor (see below). A/c extra. ₹₹

Greenland Lodging Aristo Rd, Thampanoor ☎0471 232 3196. An efficient lodge with immaculate rooms (some a/c). The best low-cost option near the bus stand and railway station – though you’ll have to book ahead. ₹

Highland Manjalikulam Rd, Thampanoor ⓘhighland-hotels.com. The rooms in this lower- to mid-range option fail to live up to the promise of the six-storey concrete-and-tinted-glass facade, but it’s well managed, a short walk from the stations, and easy to find. A/c costs extra. ₹₹

Manjalikulam Tourist Home Manjalikulam Rd, Thampanoor ⓘ
manjalikulam.com. Don’t be fooled by the shining glass-and-marble ground floor – above lurks a basic budget place offering variously priced rooms, all of them clean and with good, comfy mattresses. No single occupancy. ₹

Princess Inn Manjalikulam Rd, Thampanoor ⓘ
princess_inn@yahoo.com. Well-scrubbed, respectable cheapie close to the stations. One of the more welcoming and better-value small hotels in this busy enclave, though it’s a bit more of a plod up the lane from Station Rd than some. A/c costs extra. ₹₹

★YMCA YMCA Rd, near the Secretariat ⓘymcatvm.org. Neat, smartly-furnished rooms at good rates for the levels of comfort. The “deluxe” options are enormous and have high ceilings, quiet fans (some with a/c), TVs and spacious bathrooms. Not the bargain it once was, but you’ll still need to book at least two weeks in advance. No wi-fi. ₹-₹₹

EATING

MAP

Freshly cooked dosas, idli-vada-sambhar, biryanis and other traditional snacks are available at street-side cafés across town, including the perennially popular Indian Coffee House chain, which runs several branches in the city centre – most famously the circular Maveli Café next to the KSRTC bus stand in Thampanoor.

★Ariya Niwas Ariya Niwas hotel, Manorama Rd, Thampanoor. Top-class south Indian vegetarian thalis dished up on banana leaves in a scrupulously clean non-a/c dining room on the hotel's ground floor, or in the pricier a/c dining hall on the first storey. Hugely popular with everyone, and deservedly so: there's nowhere better to eat in the city. ₹

Maveli Café Next to the bus station on Station Rd, Thampanoor 0471 233 3517. Part of the Indian Coffee House chain, this bizarre redbrick, spiral-shaped café (designed by the renowned expatriate British architect, Laurie Baker) is a Thiruvananthapuram institution. Inside, waiters in the trademark ICH pugris serve dosas, vadas, cutlets, greasy omelettes, mountainous biryanis and china cups of the usual (weak and sugary) filter coffee. An obligatory pit stop, though a grubby one. ₹

Thakkaaram Pulimood Junction, Press Rd 086 0631 4422. On the ground floor of Naaz Tower, this cool and clean non-veg a/c restaurant serves mouth-watering Malabari food in booths that look like train carriages. The menu is tricky to navigate, but you can't go wrong with the kozhi chuttathu (chargrilled chicken) and great lunchtime biryani specials too. ₹₹

Villa Maya Palayam Airport Road 0villamaya.in. A restored Dutch bungalow with opulence that is reflected in the décor, especially on the patio. This tranquil upscale restaurant serves excellent local cuisine and some Italian and Moroccan gastronomy introduced too. ₹₹₹₹

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE A STRING OF BIG BANKS ALONG MG RD HAVE ATMS AND CHANGE CURRENCY; THERE ARE ADDITIONAL ATMS NEXT TO THE INFORMATION COUNTER ACROSS THE ROAD FROM THE RAILWAY STATION, AND IMMEDIATELY OUTSIDE THE STATION EXIT, NEXT TO THE RESERVATIONS HALL. THOMAS COOK HAS A FOREIGN EXCHANGE COUNTER AT THE AIRPORT AND AT ITS TRAVEL AGENCY ON THE GROUND FLOOR OF THE SOUNDARYA BUILDING (NEAR THE BIG RAYMOND'S TAILORING STORE), MG RD (MON–SAT 9.30AM–6PM).

Hospitals SP Fort Hospital (0471 245 0540), just down the road from the Margi School in West Fort, has a 24hr casualty and specialist orthopaedic unit; the private Cosmopolitan Hospital in Pattom (☎0471 252 1252) is also recommended.

Internet New Net on Manjalikulam Rd charges ₹30/hr and is convenient if you're staying in Thampanoor.

Kovalam

You have to envy the travellers who discovered KOVALAM back in the 1970s. Before the appearance of the crowds and sunbeds that nowadays spill over the resort's quartet of beaches, not to mention the warren of hotels, shops and restaurants crammed into the palm groves behind them, this must have been a heavenly location. Four decades of unplanned development, however, have wrought havoc on the famous headland and its golden sand bays. Virtually every conceivable patch of dry ground behind the most spectacular of them, Lighthouse Beach, has been buried under concrete, but it's still a popular base for Ayurveda and yoga. The proximity of Kovalam to the city means domestic tourism is booming; closest to the bus and taxi stand, Howah Beach in particular attracts a lot of day-trippers, who leave behind a trail of rubbish.

Kovalam beaches Kovalam consists of four coves, each with markedly different characters. It takes around 45 minutes to an hour to walk from one end of them to the other, but there's no shortage of potential pit stops along the way to restore your energies.

Lighthouse Beach The largest and most developed cove at Kovalam, known for obvious reasons as Lighthouse Beach, is where most foreign tourists congregate. Lined by a paved esplanade, its seafront of shops and hotels extends along the full length of the bay, overlooked by the eponymous lighthouse at the southern end (daily 3–5pm; ₹25 [₹10], camera ₹20). You can scale the 142 spiral steps and twelve ladder rungs to the observation platform for a fine view.

WARNING: SWIMMING SAFETY IN KOVALAM DUE TO UNPREDICTABLE RIP CURRENTS AND A STRONG UNDERTOW, ESPECIALLY DURING THE MONSOONS, SWIMMING FROM KOVALAM'S BEACHES IS NOT ALWAYS SAFE. THE INTRODUCTION OF BLUE-SHIRTED LIFEGUARDS HAS REDUCED THE ANNUAL DEATH TOLL, BUT AT LEAST A COUPLE OF TOURISTS STILL DROWN HERE EACH YEAR, AND MANY MORE GET INTO DIFFICULTIES. FOLLOW THE WARNINGS OF THE SAFETY FLAGS AT ALL TIMES AND KEEP A CLOSE EYE ON CHILDREN. THERE'S A FIRST-AID POST MIDWAY ALONG LIGHTHOUSE BEACH.

Hawah Beach

A small rocky headland divides Lighthouse Beach from Hawah Beach (or Eve's Beach) – almost a mirror image of its busier neighbour, although backed for most of its length by empty palm groves. In the morning, before the sun worshippers arrive, it functions as a base for local fishermen, who hand-haul their massive nets through the shallows, singing and chanting as they coil the endless piles of rope.

Kovalam Beach Kovalam Beach, the third of the coves, is dominated from on high by the angular chalets of the five-star Leela resort.

Coachloads of excited Keralan day-trippers descend here on weekends, but at other times it offers a peaceful alternative to the beaches further south. To get there, follow the road downhill past the bus terminus.

Samudra Beach The most northerly of Kovalam's quartet, Samudra Beach was until recently a European package-tourist stronghold. Nowadays the large hotels clustered just beyond it, on the far side of a low, rocky headland, host mainly metropolitan Indian and Russian holiday-makers.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS BUSES FROM KOVALAM THIRUVANANTHAPURAM LOOP THROUGH THE TOP OF THE VILLAGE BEFORE COMING TO A HALT OUTSIDE THE GATES OF THE LEELA RESORT, ON THE PROMONTORY DIVIDING HAWAH AND KOVALAM BEACHES. IF YOU DON'T INTEND TO STAY AT THIS NORTHERN END OF THE RESORT, GET DOWN JUST AFTER HOTEL BLUE SEA WHERE THE ROAD BENDS – A LANE BRANCHING TO THE LEFT DROPS STEEPLY DOWNHILL TOWARDS THE TOP OF HAWAH BEACH. THE BUS JOURNEY GENERALLY TAKES 30 TO 45 MINUTES. HEADING IN THE OTHER DIRECTION (INTO THE CITY) PICK UP THE BUS FROM OUTSIDE THE GATES OF THE LEELA. LONG-DISTANCE SERVICES HEADING DOWN THE COAST TOWARDS KANYAKUMARI STOP AT KOVALAM JUNCTION ON THE MAIN HIGHWAY.

By auto-rickshaw or taxi You can cover the 14km from Thiruvananthapuram more quickly by auto-rickshaw (₹250) or taxi (₹650).

Tourist information The friendly tourist office (daily 10am–5pm, closed Sun in low season; ☎0471 248 0085, 🌐keralatourism.org), just inside the Leela resort gates, close to where the buses pull in, stocks the usual range of glossy leaflets and can offer up-to-date advice about cultural events in the area.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Kovalam is chock-full of accommodation in all categories. Little of it could be considered great value by Keralan standards, but you may be able to pick up last-minute discounts outside the Dec/Jan high season. Expect to be plagued by commission touts as you arrive; to avoid them, approach via the back paths.

★Amruthamgamaya (Amrutham) Panagodu, near Venganoor, 6km northeast 🌐amruthamgamaya.com. A great option if you want to base yourself away from the busy coastal strip, but within striking distance of the beaches. It's essentially an Ayurveda centre, but with comfortable accommodation in beautiful, large rooms overlooking a terraced garden. Veg meals are served on a high rooftop overlooking a sea of palm trees, and there's a gorgeous pool. Great value, but tricky to find: phone ahead for directions. Rates are for double occupancy and include superb Keralan food. Half board and full board available. ₹₹₹

Beach Hotel II Above Fusion restaurant, Lighthouse Beach 🌐thebeachhotel-kovalam.com. Stylish, German-run hotel at the quiet end of Lighthouse Beach with an outdoor pool. Its twelve rooms (some a/c) all have big, sea-facing balconies, and are light, spacious and airy, with terracotta-tiled floors and block-printed cotton bedspreads. Not to be confused with its sister concern, Beach Hotel I, below Waves restaurant, which isn't nearly as nice. A/c costs extra. ₹₹₹

Beach House Resort Lighthouse Beach ☎81292 27212 (Naza). Tiny, garish yellow place on the seafront offering unusually large rooms with kitchenettes that have a fridge. Sadly the wood-panelled penthouse has had a permanent resident these last few years, but the two rooms below each have a breezy balcony and sea view. A/c costs extra. ₹₹

Dream Palace Homestay Lighthouse Beach 🌐dreampalacekovalam.com. Half a dozen pleasant rooms in a modern block set a 3min walk back from the beachfront, with marble floors, dark varnished furniture, sprung mattresses, kitchenettes, fancy headboards and tiny balconies. Excellent value. ₹₹

Maharaju Palace 30m behind Lighthouse Beach 🌐maharajupalace.com. This Dutch-owned guesthouse, a block in from the beach, offers boutique style at affordable rates. Occupying a modern house in a well-kept tropical garden, its marble-lined rooms are impeccably clean and decorated with Indian handicrafts and comfy cane chairs on the verandas. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Sky Palace Lighthouse Beach 📞75598 34334. Basic but comfortable option two blocks back from the waterfront, just a thirty-second walk from the beach. The very clean rooms, opening onto a sociable common veranda, are a good size, with gleaming floors and crisp white sheets. ₹₹

Surya Lighthouse Beach 📞suryakovalam.com. Professionally run, budget travellers' guest-house down a narrow lane from the seafront. It's secure and quiet, with pleasant rooms for the price. If it's full, try the White House next door (see below). ₹₹₹

Swapnatheeram (formerly Sri Krishna Palace) Lighthouse Beach 📞swapnatheeram.com. Great-value mid-range place run by an exceptionally friendly local family, nestled on the left side of the road a 1min walk from the beach. Their thirteen rooms are spacious and immaculately clean, with quality mattresses and complimentary towels and soap – some, which cost a little more, have sea views. Breakfast included. ₹₹

White House Lighthouse Beach 📞whitehousekovalamag@gmail.com. Basic guesthouse fronting a leafy plot. Quiet, clean and set back from the beach. Rooms 203 and 204 are the pick of the crop. A/c costs extra. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Lighthouse Beach is lined with identikit cafés and restaurants specializing in seafood: pick from displays of fresh fish, lobster, tiger prawns, crab and mussels that are then weighed, grilled over a charcoal fire or cooked in a tandoor (traditional clay oven), and served with rice, salad or chips. Meals are pricey by Indian standards and service is often painfully slow, but the food is generally very good and the ambience convivial. Nightlife in Kovalam is sedate, revolving around the beachfront cafés. Beer and spirits are served in most places, albeit in discreet china teapots from under the table due to tight liquor restrictions.

★Fusion Lighthouse Beach. Along with Waves further along the main beach, this is the liveliest place in Kovalam, with three innovative menus (Eastern, Western and fusion), served on a first-floor terrace overlooking the bay. Try the fish fillet sautéed in coconut jus, one of the Keralan seafood specialities, or home-made tagliatelle and chilli pesto. ₹-₹₹

Malabar Café Lighthouse Beach. Deservedly one of the most popular spots on the beachfront, serving a jack-of-all-trades menu of pizzas, burgers, superb tandoori seafood and choose-your-own lobsters, as well as Keralan staples such as fish pollichathu and fish curry with tapioca. ₹₹

OM Pure Vegetarian Food Behind Lighthouse Beach and Surya resort. The place to go for excellent veg thalis on an outdoor covered terrace. Delightful service from the lovely owner. Try the dal makhani and good-value snacks like pakora. ₹₹

Suprabhatham Behind Lighthouse beach, next to a small Shiva temple. Simple, popular vegetarian café-restaurant in a well-shaded courtyard, where you can order Indian breakfasts, as well as an extensive multicuisine menu: the “Bengali aubergine” is popular. Staff tend to start on stiff whisky slammers around 10.30pm, after which the service and cooking degenerate rapidly. ₹

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE THERE’S AN ATM IN THE KOVALAM BEACH HOTEL, ON THE ROAD LEADING UP FROM THE SOUTHERN END OF HAWAH BEACH; OTHERWISE, THE NEAREST ARE UP AT KOVALAM JUNCTION, 2KM INLAND ON THE NATIONAL HIGHWAY (ROUGHLY ₹100 RETURN IN AN AUTO-RICKSHAW), WHERE BOTH ICICI AND CANARA BANK HAVE SUB-BRANCHES. PHEROZE FRAMROZE, NEAR THE ENTRANCE TO THE LEELA RESORT AND BUS STAND, OFFERS COMPETITIVE RATES FOR CURRENCY AND TRAVELLERS’ CHEQUES.

Tailors Dozens of little tailor shops are crammed in to the alleyways behind Lighthouse Beach; Suku’s (near Keerthi restaurant) is recommended. You can have light cotton clothes made to measure or ask them to copy your favourite garment from home using a wide choice of coloured calico.

South of Kovalam A tightly packed cluster of tiled fishermen’s huts, VIZHINJAM (pronounced “Virinyam”), on the opposite (south) side of the headland from Lighthouse Beach, was once the capital of the Ay kings, the earliest dynasty in south Kerala. A number of simple small shrines survive from those times and can be made the focus of a pleasant afternoon's stroll through coconut groves, best approached from the centre of the village rather than the coast road – brace yourself for the sharp contrast between hedonistic tourist resort and workaday fishing village. Note, too, another stark divide: between the Christian quarter to the south, with its towering Catholic church, and Muslim quarter to the north, spreading below a gigantic mosque.

Golden-sand beaches fringe the shore stretching southwards from Vizhinjam, interrupted only by the occasional rock outcrop and tidal estuary. This dramatic coastline, with its backdrop of thick coconut plantations, can appear peaceful compared with Kovalam, but it's actually one of the most densely populated corners of the state. Over the past decade, virtually every metre of land backing the prettiest stretches of coast has been bought up and built on. Even so, it's worth renting a scooter to explore the back lanes and more secluded beaches, where poor Christian fishing villages stand in surreal juxtaposition with luxury beach resorts and Ayurveda spas.

AYURVEDA IN KERALA “HEALTH TOURISM” IS VERY MUCH A BUZZ PHRASE IN KERALA, AND RESORTS SUCH AS KOVALAM AND VARKALA ARE PACKED WITH PLACES TO DE-STRESS AND DETOX – THE MAJORITY OF THEM BASED ON PRINCIPLES OF AYURVEDA MEDICINE. THE KERALAN APPROACH TO INDIA’S ANCIENT HOLISTIC SYSTEM OF MEDICINE HAS TWO DISTINCT ELEMENTS: FIRST, THE BODY IS CLEANSED OF TOXINS GENERATED BY IMBALANCES IN LIFESTYLE AND DIET; SECONDLY, ITS EQUILIBRIUM IS RESTORED USING HERBAL MEDICINES, MAINLY IN THE FORM OF PLANT OILS APPLIED USING A RANGE OF DIFFERENT MASSAGE TECHNIQUES. A PRACTITIONER’S FIRST PRESCRIPTION WILL OFTEN BE A COURSE OF PANCHAKARMA TREATMENT – A FIVE-PHASE THERAPY DURING WHICH HARMFUL IMPURITIES ARE PURGED THROUGH INDUCED VOMITING, ENEMAS AND THE APPLICATION OF MEDICINAL OILS POURED THROUGH THE NASAL CAVITY. OTHER LESS ONEROUS COMPONENTS, TAILORED FOR THE INDIVIDUAL PATIENT, MAY INCLUDE: DHARA, WHERE THE OILS ARE BLENDED WITH GHEE OR MILK AND POURED ON TO THE FOREHEAD; PIZHICHI, IN WHICH FOUR MASSEURS APPLY DIFFERENT OILS SIMULTANEOUSLY; AND, THE WEIRDEST LOOKING OF ALL, SIROVASHTI, WHERE THE OILS ARE POURED INTO A TALL, TOPLESS LEATHER CAP PLACED ON THE HEAD. ALONGSIDE THESE, PATIENTS ARE PRESCRIBED

SPECIAL BALANCING FOODS, AND GIVEN VIGOROUS FULL-BODY MASSAGES EACH DAY.

Standards of both treatment and hygiene vary greatly between establishments, as do the prices. Female travellers also sometimes complain of sexual harassment at the hands of opportunistic male masseurs; cross-gender massage is forbidden in Ayurveda. The application of dodgy oils that can cause skin problems is another risk you might be exposed to at a backstreet clinic. Your best bet is to follow tips from fellow travellers and, if you're unsure, check the state of any treatment rooms in advance.

Padmanabhapuram Palace 50km southeast of Kovalam • Tues–Sun 9am–4.30pm • charge • Frequent buses along the main highway from Thiruvananthapuram and Kovalam; hop on any service heading to Nagercoil or Kanyakumari and get off at Thakkaly (sometimes written Thuckalai) Although now officially in Tamil Nadu, PADMANABHAPURAM, 63km southeast of Thiruvananthapuram, was the capital of Travancore between 1550 and 1750, and maintains its historic links with Kerala, from where it is still administered. With its exquisite wooden interiors, coconut-shell floors and antique furniture and murals, the palace represents the apogee of regional building, and fully merits a visit. Just avoid weekends, when the complex gets overrun with bus parties.

ACCOMMODATION SHOULD YOU SOUTH OF KOVALAM DECIDE TO PROLONG EXPLORING THE VIZHINJAM COASTLINE AND ITS SURROUNDS, YOU CAN CHOOSE FROM A FEW LOVELY RESORTS AND HERITAGE PROPERTIES.

Bethsaida Hermitage Pulinkudi www.bethsaidahermitage.com. An “ecofriendly Ayurveda beach resort” with a difference. The huge, well-furnished rooms in brick cottages or imposing modern blocks, two large pools, à la carte restaurant and prime location next to a beautiful cove are standard for the area – here, however, the profits support a church-run orphanage, a great initiative that's been doing a fine job for more than two decades. A/c costs extra. ₹₹₹₹

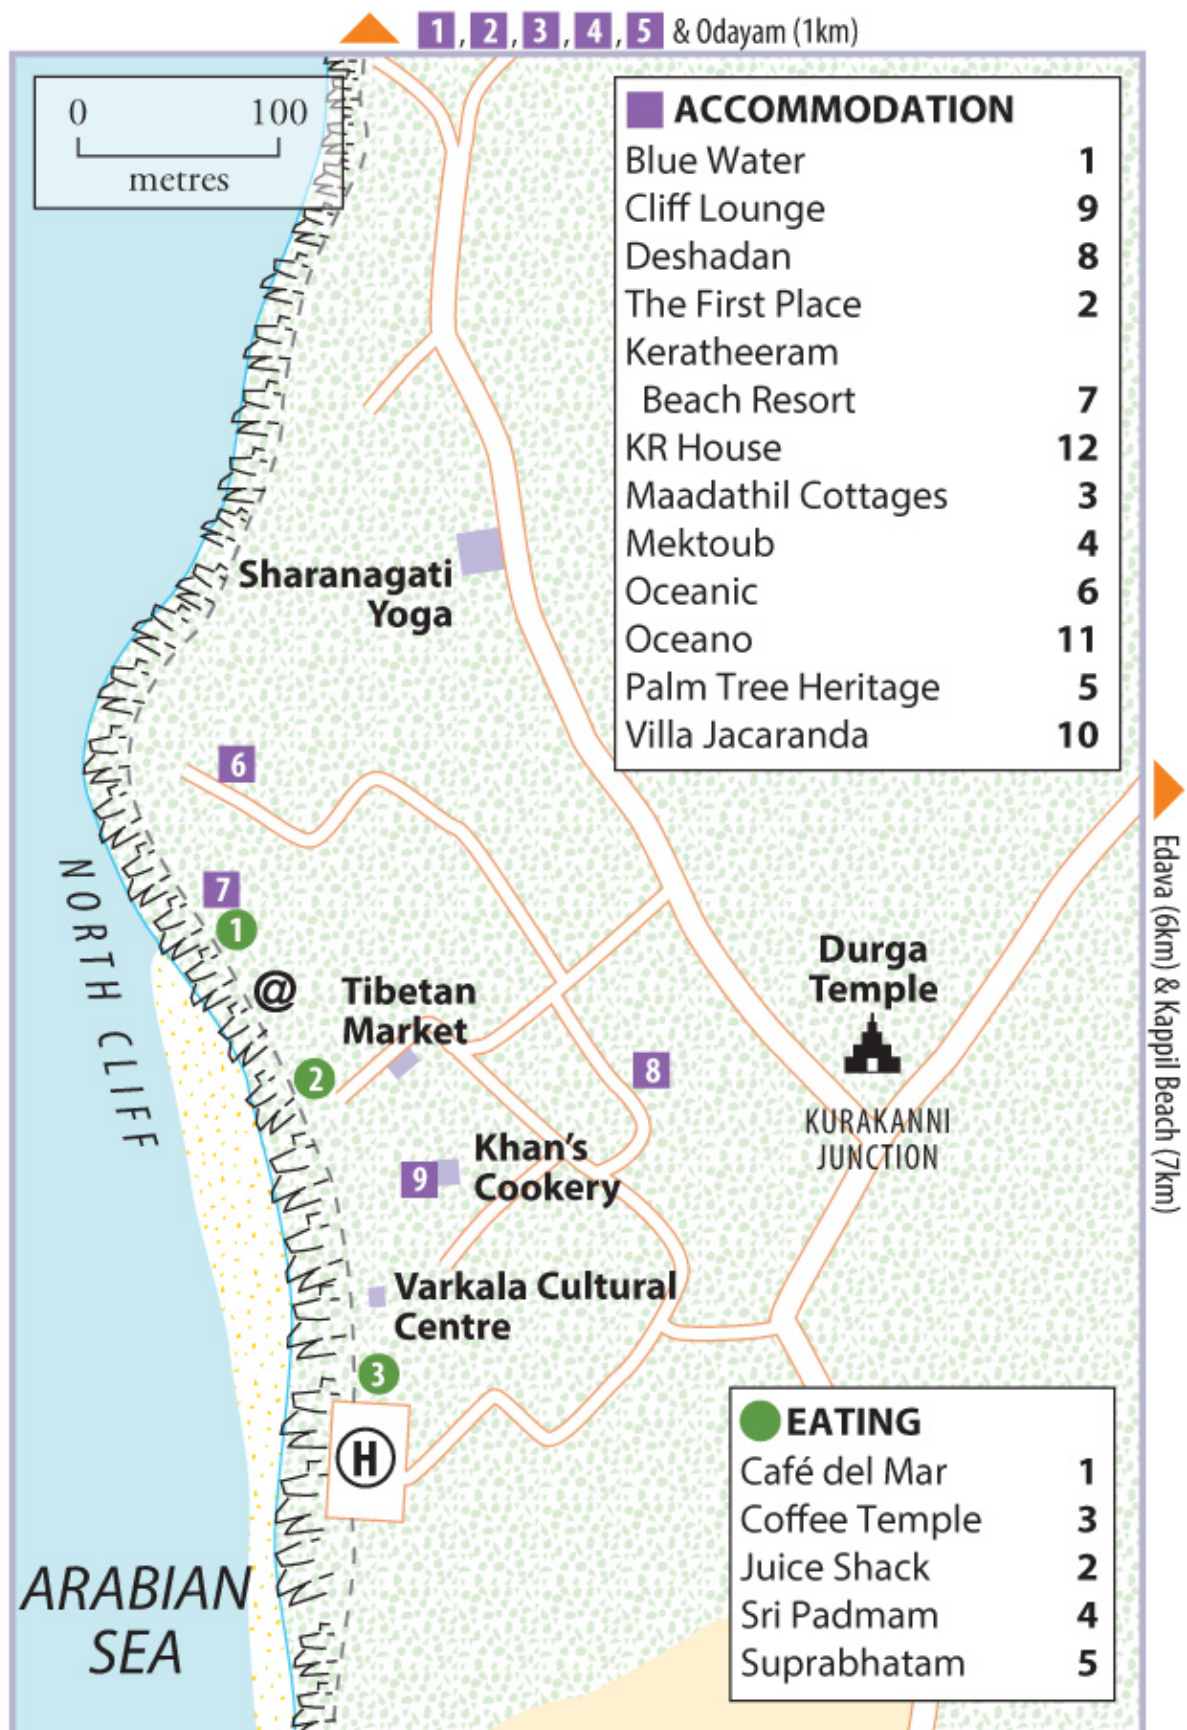

Thapovan Nellikunnu 🌐thapovan.com. This German-run heritage resort comprises two parts: one in a grove by the seashore, and another higher up the cliffside. The latter's elevated position and views across the palm canopy to Vizhinjam give it the edge. The traditional teak chalets and gardens are lovely. A/c costs extra. ₹₹₹₹

Travancore Heritage Chowara 🌐thetravancoreheritage.com. The centrepiece of this extravagant complex is a splendid 150-year-old mansion, fronted by a kidney-shaped pool and sun terrace. Below it are sixty relocated antique bungalows, some boasting alfresco garden bathrooms and their own plunge pools. ₹₹₹₹

Varkala and around Devout Hindus have for hundreds, and possibly thousands, of years travelled to VARKALA, 54km north up the coast from Thiruvananthapuram, to scatter ashes of recently-deceased relatives on Papanasam beach. The beach, 4km from Varkala town itself, is dramatically set against a backdrop of superb, burnt-clay-coloured cliffs, which, coupled with comparatively low-key development, makes this a more appealing place to spend a beach holiday than Kovalam. Tightly crammed along the rim of crumbling North Cliff, its row of restaurants and small hotels stare out across a vast sweep of ocean – a view that can seem almost transcendental after sunset, when a myriad tiny fishing boats light up their lanterns.

Papanasam beach Known in Malayalam as Papa Nashini (“sin destroyer”), Varkala’s beautiful white-sand Papanasam beach (also known just as Varkala beach) has long been associated with ancestor worship. Devotees come here after praying at the ancient Janardhana Swamy Temple on the hill to the south, then perform mortuary rituals on the beach, directed by specialist pujaris (priests). The best time to watch the rites is in the early morning, just after sunrise – though out of respect, it’s best to keep your camera in your bag.

Western sun-worshippers keep to the northern end of the bay, where whistle-happy lifeguards ensure the safety of swimmers by enforcing the no-swim zones beyond the flags: the undercurrent is often strong, claiming lives every year. Dolphins are often seen swimming quite close to the coast, and, if you're lucky, you may be able to swim with them by arranging a ride with a fishing boat. Sea otters can also occasionally be spotted playing on the cliffs by the sea.

North Cliff

Few of Varkala's Hindu pilgrims make it as far as the North Cliff area, the focus of a well-established tourist scene where bamboo and palm-thatch cafés, restaurants and souvenir shops jostle for space close to the edge of the mighty escarpment that plunges vertically to the beach below. Several steep flights of steps cut into the rock provide shortcuts from the sand, or you can also get here via the gentler path that starts from the beachfront.

South Cliff

Dotted with mid-range hotels and guesthouses, the clifftop area running south of the main beachfront – known locally as South Cliff – is a much quieter neighbourhood of leafy lanes and large residential houses – a legacy of the lingering presence of numerous clean-living Brahmin families. The beach below the cliff, reached via rock-cut steps from several of the hotels, largely disappears at low tide, but offers a blissfully secluded spot to swim when the water recedes, though you should watch out for the sharp laterite boulders lurking in the surf.

Janardhana Swamy Temple Varkala's ancient Janardhana Swamy Temple is reached by heading up the lane that climbs steeply south from the beachfront area. Non-Hindus are not permitted to enter the inner sanctum of the shrine, but you can peep over the perimeter walls from the encircling path – a pleasant stroll in the morning, when the temple elephant is led around the lanes on her exercise walk.

Enshrining a form of Vishnu, the temple is adorned with brightly painted images of Hanuman, Rama's monkey general. Among its treasures is a bell salvaged from a Dutch ship that was wrecked on the beach in the eighteenth century – the ship's captain donated it in a gesture of thanksgiving after his entire crew escaped with their lives.

North of Varkala Just north of Varkala the shoreline grows a lot less densely populated, though the large, gaudily painted houses dotted around its hinterland of leafy lanes bear witness to the considerable affluence flooding in with remittance cheques from the Gulf States. You can comfortably walk the kilometre or so from the north end of Varkala cliff as it descends to ODAYAM, a mixed Hindu and Muslim village where a cluster of resorts and modest guesthouses has sprung up around the small black-sand beach. Room rates are on the high side, but it can be well worth paying for the extra seclusion when Varaka's clifftop area is firing on all cylinders.

Around 7km north is Kappil Beach, a scenic spot where the sea meets the backwaters. A narrow road separates the pretty stretch of sand from Edava-Nadayara Lake, where Priyadarshini Boat Club has rowing boats and pedalos to rent (☎0470 266 2323).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN THE TOWN'S VARKALA RAILWAY STATION – VARKALA-SIVAGIRI – IS 500M NORTH OF THE CENTRAL JUNCTION, SERVED BY EXPRESS AND PASSENGER TRAINS FROM THIRUVANANTHAPURAM, KOLLAM AND MOST OTHER KERALAN TOWNS ON THE MAINLINE.

Destinations Alappuzha/Alleppey (3 daily; 2hr); Ernakulam/Kochi (hourly; 3hr 30min–4hr 30min); Kollam/Quilon (every 30min; 25min); Thiruvananthapuram (every 30min; 1hr).

By bus While some buses from Thiruvananthapuram's Thampanoor stand, and from Kollam to the north, continue on to within walking distance of the beach and clifftop area, most terminate in Varkala town.

Destinations from Varkala Junction Alappuzha/Alleppey (daily; 3hr 30min); Kollam/Quilon (3 daily; 1hr); Thiruvananthapuram (every 30min; 1hr 30min–2hr).

GETTING AROUND BY BUS AND AUTO-RICKSHAW AUTO-RICKSHAWS BETWEEN THE TOWN AND BEACH SHOULDN'T COST MORE THAN ₹100, AND FREQUENT LOCAL BUSES ALSO COVER THE ROUTE (₹5).

By motorcycle Scooters may be rented from Mahindra 2-Wheelers (Mon–Sat 9.30am–5pm; ☎98467 01975), near Temple Junction, and Wheels of South India, a business of no fixed abode that works up in North Cliff (☎98470 80412 or ☎93879 74698). The nearest petrol pump is in Varkala town – 300m north of the main circle, on the left side of Station Rd as you head towards the railway station.

By taxi Unni (☎98466 90300) is recommended for airport drops and local sightseeing day-trips.

ACTIVITIES YOGA AND MEDITATION MANY GUESTHOUSES OFFER MORNING YOGA FOR AROUND ₹300–400; JUST ASK AROUND TO FIND A GOOD CLASS. FOR A REAL RETREAT, SHARANAGATI YOGA (☎90486 94762, 🌐SHARANAGATI-YOGAHAUS.COM), ON THE THIRUVAMBADI ROAD BEHIND NORTH CLIFF, OFFERS EXPERT TUITION IN BOTH YOGA AND MEDITATION. MOST STUDENTS SIGN UP FOR AN ALL-INCLUSIVE PACKAGE (₹4800/DAY, PLUS ₹1200 FOR ANYONE SHARING THE SAME ROOM), COVERING TWO DAILY YOGA AND TWO DAILY MEDITATION SESSIONS, ALL (VEGETARIAN) MEALS AND COMFORTABLE ACCOMMODATION.

Surfing Although Varkala has a reputation for surf that dumps you right on the sand, it's an undeveloped scene and you won't be fighting to get on a wave. Husband-and-wife team Ed and Sofie set up Soul and Surf (☎99617 11099, 🌐soulandsurf.com) in 2010 and offer lessons (₹2500/1hr 30min), board rental (₹1500/day) and surf packages with accommodation on South Cliff (from ₹4850/day).

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Varkala offers a wide choice of accommodation. The hotels up on North Cliff are most people's first choice, with more inspiring views than those lining the road to the beach, but there are some even better options on quieter South Cliff if you don't mind being away from the thick of things. For greater seclusion and a vivid taste of the area's lush palm forest and paddy fields, try Odayam, 1km north along the coastal path. All areas are accessible by road. You're likely to be able to negotiate a discount if you contact the hotel direct – and don't forget that rates plummet outside high season.

NORTH CLIFF CLIFF LOUNGE 🌐CLIFFLOUNGE.COM. THIS MID-RANGE PLACE IS SET BACK BEHIND THE STRIP BUT

WITH UNINTERRUPTED SEA VIEWS FROM ITS SPACIOUS DOUBLE ROOMS, WHICH ARE CLEAN AND SIMPLE, AND WITH BALCONIES. IT'S RECENTLY CHANGED HANDS AND NOW HAS A FOCUS ON AYURVEDIC MEDICINE, WITH A CLINIC ON SITE (☎MOTHERAYURVEDICS.COM). A/C COSTS EXTRA. ₹₹

Deshadan ☎deshadan.com. The smartest and most efficiently run of Varkala's small-scale resort complexes, a 10min walk from the clifftop. Centred on a great little swimming pool, its fourteen individually themed rooms are tastefully styled with hand-painted furniture. A pair of two-bedroomed cottages in the garden suit families well. Quality Ayurveda centre on site. Dorms ₹₹, doubles ₹₹₹

Keratheeram Beach Resort ☎facebook.com/ keratheeram. Set back a bit from the clifftop strip, this nice budget hotel ("resort" is stretching it) feels secure and private. The downstairs rooms have their own hammocks and the whole place has a chilled-out vibe, particularly on the covered rooftop area where you can do yoga in the morning (donation requested). ₹₹

Oceanic ☎oceanicvarkala.com. Very pleasant rooms, with flowering climbers trailing from its balconies, close to the clifftop. Among the better-run, better-value budget options close to the strip. A/c costs extra. ₹₹

SOUTH CLIFF KR HOUSE ⓘ

RAMACHANDRAN.KRHOUSE@YAHOO.CO.IN. A GEM OF A BUDGET PLACE, IN A PLUM SPOT, WITH COMFY MATTRESSES, SPOTLESS BATHROOMS AND BALCONIES OVERLOOKING A NARROW GARDEN RUNNING TO THE CLIFF EDGE, FROM WHERE A FLIGHT OF STEPS DROPS STEEPLY DOWN TO THE BEACH. IT'S QUIET, AND RUN WITH GREAT EFFICIENCY BY THE KINDLY MR RAMACHANDRAN. ₹

★Oceano ☎theoceanoresort.com. Set on the highest stretch of secluded South Cliff, rooms in this Ayurveda resort are light, cool, stylish and good value, with spectacular views from the pricier sea-facing suites. You eat meals (including a complimentary breakfast) in little thatched gazebos on the cliff edge, from where steps lead to the beach via a spectacularly sited yoga platform. ₹₹₹₹

Villa Jacaranda Temple Rd West 📍villa-jacaranda.biz. Bijou boutique guesthouse nestled amid the leafy lanes near the temple. It's small (just four rooms) but perfectly formed, with cool wooden furniture, crisp white sheets, fresh jasmine flowers in your room and a fragrant garden. Room 4 – which costs a little extra – has expansive sea views from its private terrace. Prices are not increased at Christmas. ₹₹₹

ODAYAM BLUE WATER 📍BLUEWATERSTAY.COM. A NICELY SET UP, WELCOMING OPTION, COMPRISING FOURTEEN VARNISHED PALM-WOOD CHALETs WITH TILED ROOFS – NOT ALL THAT SPACIOUS, BUT COMFORTABLY FURNISHED, WITH FLOATING FLOWERS IN TERRACOTTA POTS, CANE BLINDS AND SILK THROWS ON THE BEDS. ALL HAVE SEA VIEWS. THE OPEN-SIDED RESTAURANT, OVERLOOKING THE WAVES AT THE BOTTOM OF A TERRACED PLOT, IS ALSO THE BEST PLACE TO EAT AND DRINK HEREABOUTS. ₹₹₹

The First Place 📍thefirstplace.se. Eco-friendly Swedish-run guesthouse on the bluff overlooking the beach, with its own shady garden. The rooms aren't large, but they're nicely done – freshly painted with little wooden shelves, glossy red-oxide floors and mozzie nets – with Scandinavian touches that give them a boutique feel. Home-cooked Indian food and an outdoor space for yoga. High season only. ₹₹₹

Maadathil Cottages Manthara Temple Rd 📍maadathilcottages.com. Row of locally owned and run holiday cottages in traditional Keralan style (gabled, red-tiled roofs, wood railings and split-cane blinds) in a sweet spot under the coconut trees behind Odayam beach. There's a pricier, larger cottage with a lovely rear veranda looking on to a lotus pond filled with egrets and butterflies. ₹₹₹

Mektoub 📍mektoubexperience@gmail.com. A perfect place to soak up the unspoiled vibe that still holds sway in Odayam. In an idyllic setting between coconut groves and paddy fields, it comprises a campus of red-laterite buildings with spacious rooms and sea-facing verandas. Bargain rates considering the level of comfort, and owner Rafik is a great cook. It's hard to find; call ahead to be met. ₹₹₹

★Palm Tree Heritage 📍palmtreeheritage.com. Stylish, part-Swedish-owned boutique place right behind the beach, set in well-watered gardens.

The architecture is delightful and the interiors cool and comfortable, blending traditional, handmade Keralan woodwork and modern comforts, including luxurious bathrooms. The food's terrific, and Babu and his staff are unfailingly courteous. Simple non-a/c bamboo huts ₹₹₹, doubles ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

Varkala's clifftop café-restaurants specialize in locally caught seafood (you'll also find plenty of Italian, Thai and Mexican dishes on offer – but they won't taste much like the real thing). Prices are high, even by Keralan standards, and service painfully slow, but the superb location more than compensates. Although alcohol is available in just about all the clifftop places, due to Varkala's religious importance beer tends to be served in discreet teapots. Once the restaurants finish serving, nightlife is generally low-key.

★Café del Mar North Cliff. The most professionally run place to eat on North Cliff, with an Italian coffee machine and polite, uniformed service. It offers the usual jack-of-all-trades menu, but they can actually cook everything on it. Made with imported cheeses, the Italian dishes are especially good (try the baked aubergine lasagne) and there are plenty of light bites and healthy salads ₹₹

Coffee Temple North Cliff. Hot contender (along with Café del Mar) for the crown of “Best Coffee in Varkala” and with a loyal following. The cakes are uninspiring German Bakery fare, but the Western menu is a hit with backpackers making use of the free wi-fi. ₹₹

Juice Shack North Cliff 099952 14515. Fresh juices churned out by the larger-than-life, resplendently-bearded Umesh and his team. They also do a range of healthy snacks (wraps and crunchy salads) and host popular buffets on Wed and Sat (buy your ticket in advance). ₹₹

Sri Padmam Temple Junction. This dingy-looking café on the temple crossroads serves freshly made, cheap and tasty south Indian veg food. You can walk through the front dining room to a large rear terrace affording prime views of the tank – particularly atmospheric at breakfast time. ₹

Suprabhatam Varkala town. The cheapest and best pure veg joint in Varkala, just off the main roundabout in a dining hall lined with coir mats. Their dosas and other fried snacks aren't great, but the lunchtime “unlimited” rice-plate “meals” (noon–3pm), featuring the usual thoran, avial, dhal, rasam, buttermilk, curd, papad and red or white rice, pull in streams of locals and foreigners alike. ₹

DIRECTORY BANKS THERE'S AN ATM ON TEMPLE JUNCTION, AND SEVERAL BANKS UP IN VARKALA TOWN, JUST OFF THE MAIN ROUNDABOUT.

Cookery classes Khan's Cookery offers daily classes in a spruce little kitchen behind Little Tibet on North Cliff (₹600/₹800 for veg/non-veg; book on 98956 33896).

Internet There's free wi-fi with a good connection at Coffee Temple.

Post office Just north of Temple Junction (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm), near the Sri Padmam restaurant.

Kollam (Quilon) Sandwiched between the sea and Ashtamudi (“eight inlets”) Lake, KOLLAM (pronounced “Koillam”, and previously known as Quilon), was for centuries the focal point of the Malabar's spice trade. Phoenicians, Arabs, Greeks, Romans and Chinese all dispatched ships to the city, before the rise of Calicut and Cochin eclipsed the port. These days, it's a workaday market town and busy transport hub for the southern backwater region, with surprisingly few vestiges of its former prominence. Many travellers stay overnight here, however, en route to or from Alappuzha on the excursion boats that leave each morning from its lakeside ferry jetty. If the traffic in the centre gets too much, take a short auto-rickshaw ride south to the main beach, or a couple of kilometres west along the coastal road to the Thangassery Lighthouse (daily 10am–5pm; ₹25), which is well worth the climb to the top for views of the fishing harbour.

BACKWATER CRUISES FROM KOLLAM DTPC RUN POPULAR CRUISES FROM KOLLAM TO ALAPPUZHA (10.30AM; 8HR; ₹400) ON ALTERNATE DAYS, WITH STOPS FOR LUNCH AND TEA. TICKETS CAN BE BOUGHT ON THE DAY FROM THEIR TOURIST OFFICE AT THE BOAT JETTY ON ASHTAMUDI LAKE, AND AT SOME OF THE HOTELS. THEY ALSO OFFER EXCLUSIVE OVERNIGHT KETTU VALLAM CRUISES, AND HALF-DAY CANAL TRIPS TO NEARBY MONROE ISLAND (DAILY 9AM–1PM & 2–6.30PM; ₹600), AS WELL AS GUIDED VILLAGE TOURS TAKING IN AYURVEDA FACTORIES, COIR-MAKERS, BOAT-BUILDERS AND BIRD-NESTING SITES.

You may find that you get a far better impression of backwater life by hopping between villages on the very cheap local ferries. DTPC have timetables and route information; tickets are sold on the boats themselves.

In the evening, a stroll through the town's traditional bazaar, with its old wooden houses and narrow backstreets lined by coir warehouses, rice stores and cashew traders, is a pleasant diversion.

Old British Residency and around Residency Rd, Ashtamudi Lake

Of the few surviving colonial vestiges, the only one worth a detour is the former British Residency, a magnificent 250-year-old mansion on the shores of the lake, now only open for official events. Among the last monuments surviving in India from the earliest days of the Raj, it perfectly epitomizes the openness to indigenous influences that characterized the era, with typically Keralan gable roofs surmounting British pillared verandas. There are no set visiting hours – just turn up and ask the manager if you can have a look around.

Just nearby, another colonial-era building has been transformed into the 8 Point Art Gallery & Café, which is a great place for a break.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN KOLLAM (QUILON)
KOLLAM'S BUSY MAINLINE RAILWAY STATION LIES EAST OF THE CLOCK TOWER THAT MARKS THE CENTRE OF TOWN, AND IS EASILY REACHED BY AUTO-RICKSHAW. NOTE THAT MOST THIRUVANANTHAPURAM-BOUND TRAINS DO NOT STOP IN VARKALA.

Destinations Alappuzha/Alleppey (8 daily; 1hr 15min–2hr); Ernakulam/Kochi (every 30min; 3–4hr); Thiruvananthapuram (hourly; 1hr 30min–2hr); Varkala (hourly; 20–30min).

By bus The KSRTC bus stand is on the west side of town, near the boat jetty on Ashtamudi Lake. You can book express buses in advance but not local or “limited stop” services.

Destinations Alappuzha/Alleppey (hourly; 2hr); Ernakulam/Kochi (hourly; 3hr–3hr 20min); Thiruvananthapuram (hourly; 1hr 45min).

By boat There are some backwater ferry services from Kollam.

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE DISTRICT TOURISM PROMOTION COUNCIL (DTPC) HAS A TOURIST OFFICE (DAILY 8AM–7PM; ☎0474 274 5625, 🌐DTPCKOLLAM.COM) AT THE KSRTC BUS STAND, WHERE YOU CAN BOOK TICKETS FOR THE DAILY TOURIST BACKWATER CRUISES AND OTHER TOURS. THE LOCAL ALAPPUZHA TOURISM DEVELOPMENT COUNCIL OFFICE (ATDC; DAILY 8AM–8PM; ☎47722 64462, 🌐ATDCALLEPPEY.COM), ACROSS THE ROAD, OFFERS COMPARABLE SERVICES.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

★Ashtamudi Villas 2km north of Kollam, on the far side of Thevally Bridge 🌐ashtamudivillas.com. Buried deep in the backwaters on the outskirts of town, this place is right on the water's edge, with hammocks strung between the palm trees. The rooms, in a row of eco-friendly brick chalets, are spacious, bright and cool (get the detached one if it's available). You can phone ahead to arrange a pick-up. Local tours arranged from here are recommended. ₹₹

Karthika Paikkada Rd, near the Jama Masjid mosque ☎0474 275 1821. Large, popular, central budget hotel offering a range of acceptably clean, plain rooms (some a/c) arranged around a courtyard that centres, rather unexpectedly, on three huge nude figures. ₹

Nani Opposite the clock tower 🌐hotelnani.com. A decent hotel, in a quirky, Keralan-gabled redbrick tower block near the railway station. The comfortably furnished, standard rooms are the real bargain, though couples might appreciate the extra space of the “executive” deluxe options. ₹₹-₹₹₹

Vaidya Residency Rd, Chinnakkada ☎0474 274 8432. This place is fine if you just want somewhere comfortable to crash for a night and aren't fussy about the view. On the north side of town, the business-orientated, characterless rooms have no balconies and zero outlook, but are clean, and huge for the price. The standard ones (referred to as “deluxe”) are the best value. ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Fayalwan Hotel Main bazaar. Come here for speedy service, traditional Keralan breakfasts and the best mutton biryani in town (lunchtime only). Recently renovated, it's run by the third generation of the same family and the walls of the clean, fan-cooled interior still sport pictures of traditional wrestlers – the fayalwans after which the restaurant is named. ₹₹

Guruprasad Main bazaar. Cramped and sweaty but offering wonderfully old-school “meals”: blue-and-cream walls, framed ancestral photos and Hindu devotional art provide the typical backdrop for great pure-veg rice plates and Udupi-style snacks. ₹

★Prasadam Nani hotel, opposite the clock tower @hotelnani.com. Kollam's best food, served in plush a/c comfort. Traditional south Indian thalis are the most popular lunchtime options from an exhaustive menu, but this is also great for fresh local seafood and backwater cuisine, like the karimeen pollichathu (white fish steamed in banana leaf) and a blow-out seafood platter. ₹₹₹

Sri Ayyappa Punjabi & Andhra Meals Main bazaar, near Dhanya Super Market. Situated down a tiny alleyway off Kollam's main bazaar, this place is a real hidden gem. Look for the sign just east of the Indian Bank, on the north side of the road. Superb Punjabi cuisine (a rarity in these parts) includes a delicious paneer butter masala and dhal fry, hot naan breads and heavenly lassis. ₹₹

DIRECTORY ATM ATMS CAN BE FOUND IN THE SMART BISHOP JEROME NAGAR SHOPPING MALL JUST SOUTH OF THE MAIN ROAD BETWEEN THE JETTY AND THE CLOCK TOWER. THE EFFICIENT AXIS BANK ALSO HAS A DEPENDABLE ATM NEXT TO THE VAIDYA HOTEL, AND THERE'S A THOMAS COOK EXCHANGE ON THE CROSSROADS NOT FAR FROM THE BOAT JETTY.

Internet Cyber.com, just south of the clock tower on the first floor of Yeskay Towers, charges just ₹35/hr.

Alappuzha (Alleppey) From the mid-nineteenth century, ALAPPUZHA (or “Alleppey”) served as the main port for the backwater region. Spices, coffee, tea, cashews, coir and other produce were shipped out from the inland waterways to the sea via its grid of canals and rail lines. Tourist literature loves to dub the town as “the Venice of the East”, but in truth the comparison does few favours to Venice. Apart from a handful of colonial-era warehouses and mansions, and a derelict pier jutting into the sea from a sun-blasted and dirty beach, few monuments survive, while the old canals enclose a typically ramshackle Keralan market of bazaars and noisy traffic.

That said, Alappuzha makes a congenial place to while away an evening en route to or from the backwaters. Streams of visitors do just that during the winter season, for the town has become Kerala’s pre-eminent rice boat cruising hub, with an estimated four hundred kettu vallam moored on the fringes of nearby Vembanad and Punnamada lakes. To cash in on the seasonal influx, the local tourist offices lay on excursion boats for day-trips, while in mid-December the sands lining the west end of town host a popular beach festival, during which cultural events and a procession of fifty caparisoned elephants are staged with the dilapidated British-built pier as a backdrop. Alappuzha’s really big day, however, is the second Saturday of August, in the middle of the monsoon, when it serves as the venue for one of Kerala's major spectacles – the Nehru Trophy snake boat race.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS ALAPPUZHA (ALLEPPEY)
THE KSRTC BUS STAND IS AT THE NORTHEAST EDGE OF TOWN, 1MIN FROM THE BOAT JETTY. FOR FORT COCHIN, CATCH ANY OF THE FAST ERNAKULAM SERVICES ALONG THE MAIN HIGHWAY AND GET DOWN AT THOPPUMPADY (7KM SOUTH), FROM WHERE LOCAL BUSES RUN THE REST OF THE WAY.

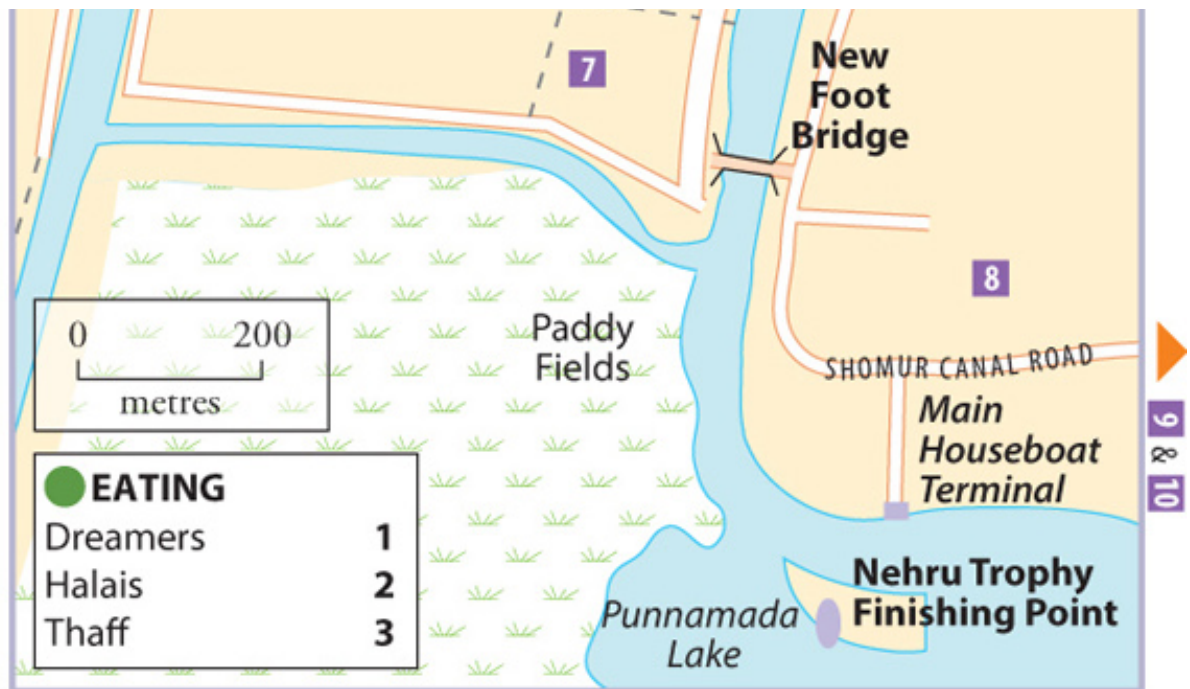

Destinations Ernakulam/Kochi (hourly; 1hr 30min); Kollam/Quilon (hourly; 2hr 30min); Thiruvananthapuram (hourly; 4hr 15min).

By boat The main boat jetty is on Vadai Canal, close to the KSRTC bus stand, from where the daily tourist ferries to and from Kollam run, as well as cheaper local (and less direct) ferries to and from Kottayam (dep. 7.30am, 9.35am, 11.30am, 2.30pm & 5.15pm). Regular services also connect Alappuzha with Champakulam, where you pick up less frequent boats to Neerettupuram and Kidangara, and back to Alappuzha. This round route ranks among Kuttanad's classic trips; the tourist offices can help you make sense of the timetables (also found at swtd.gov.in).

By train The station, on the main Thiruvananthapuram–Ernakulam line, lies 3km southwest across town, on the far side of Alappuzha's main waterway, Commercial Canal. As the backwaters prevent trains from continuing directly south beyond Alappuzha, only a few major daily services and a handful of passenger trains depart from here. For points further north along the coast, take the Jan Shatabdi Express (#12076) and change at Ernakulam, as the afternoon Alleppey–Cannanore Express (#16307), which runs as far as Kozhikode and Kannur, arrives at those destinations rather late at night. It is, however, a good bet if you want to get to Thrissur.

Destinations Ernakulam/Kochi (15 daily; 1hr–1hr 30min); Thiruvananthapuram (4 daily; 3hr–4hr 30min); Varkala (6 daily; 2hr–3hr).

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE TOWN HAS SEVERAL RIVAL TOURIST DEPARTMENTS, ALL OF THEM EAGER TO OFFER ADVICE AND BOOK YOU ONTO THEIR HOUSEBOAT TOURS. THE MOST CONVENIENTLY SITUATED – AT THE JETTY ITSELF ON BOAT JETTY RD – ARE THE DTPC TOURIST RECEPTION CENTRE (DAILY 9AM–5PM; ☎0477 225 1796) AND ATDC OFFICE (☎0477 226 4462, www.ATDCALLEPPEY.COM). BOTH ATDC AND DTPC SELL TICKETS FOR THEIR FERRIES, BACKWATER CRUISES AND CHARTER BOATS, AND CAN HELP YOU FATHOM THE INTRICACIES OF LOCAL FERRY TIMETABLES. THOUGH MANY OF THE HOUSEBOAT BOOKING AGENCIES DOTTED AROUND TOWN CALL THEMSELVES “TOURIST INFORMATION OFFICES” THEY’RE NOTHING OF THE KIND; THEIR SOLE PURPOSE IS TO SELL THEIR CRUISES. THE KERALA TOURISM OFFICE IS FURTHER EAST ON THE WATER’S EDGE NEXT TO THE POLICE STATION (☎0477 226 0722, www.KERALATOURISM.ORG) SERVICES YOU CAN CHANGE MONEY AT THE AHALIA

MONEY EXCHANGE (DAILY 9.30AM–6PM, ☎ 0477 223 9911)
OFFICE ON CHURCH RD. BOTH AXIS BANK AND THE STATE BANK OF INDIA ON CULLEN RD HAVE RELIABLE ATMS.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

There are some great homestay possibilities if you're willing to travel to the outskirts and pay a little more, along with some good options a taxi ride away in the surrounding backwaters and further up the coast. Nearly everywhere, whatever its price bracket, has some kind of tie-in with a houseboat operator: good-natured encouragement tends to be the order of the day rather than hard-sell tactics, but you may be able to negotiate a reduction on your hotel tariff if you do end up booking a backwater trip. Whenever you come, and wherever you choose to stay, brace yourself for clouds of mosquitoes.

DAY-CRUISES AND CANOE TRIPS AROUND ALAPPUZHA THE OBVIOUS DESTINATION FOR A DAY-TRIP FROM ALAPPUZHA IS VEMBANAD LAKE
ON THE TOWN'S NORTH AND EASTERN FRINGES:
PUNNAMADA LAKE (ALSO CALLED PUNNAMADA KAYAL) IS THE LOCAL SECTION OF THIS VAST WATERWAY. REACHING EITHER FROM TOWN IS MOST STRAIGHTFORWARD BY WATER. FOR SHORT CRUISES, IT'S POSSIBLE TO CHARTER DIESEL-
POWERED MOTORBOATS (₹400/HR), BUT A BETTER OPTION WOULD BE TO DISPENSE WITH ENGINES
ALTOGETHER AND OPT FOR A GUIDED VILLAGE
TOUR IN A HAND-PADDLED CANOE. ASIDE FROM BEING MORE "GREEN", THESE ALLOW YOU TO PENETRATE NARROW WATERWAYS BEYOND THE RANGE OF THE OTHER TOURIST BOATS. DTPC OFFERS ITS OWN PUNTED TOURS, CARRYING TWO PEOPLE FOR ₹250/HR.

A recommended private operator who's been ferrying tourists around Alappuzha's off-track backwaters for years is Mr K.D. Prasenan (☎ 93888 44712), based at the Palm Grove Lake Resort on the Punnamada Kayal, 3.5km north of the boat jetty (see below). He offers tours in a slender 10m boat (₹500/hr for two people).

Alternatively, Paddyland tours charges ₹1000 per person for an 8hr trip, which includes a transfer to and from town on the ferry, and breakfast and lunch in the boatman's home. Contact Mr Joseph on ☎ 94465 84905, 🌐 paddylandtours.com.

ALAPPUZHA TOWN ALASR COMMERCIAL CANAL, NORTH BANK RD, WEST OF KOCHUKADA BRIDGE ☎99470 66699. ALASR IS A SPLENDID TWO-HUNDRED-YEAR-OLD MERCHANT'S MANSION OVER-LOOKING ONE OF ALAPPUZHA'S MAIN CANALS, OFFERING A RANGE OF HUGE, AFFORDABLE ROOMS OF VARIOUS SIZES. THERE'S NONE OF THE STYLE AND RETRO-CHIC OF A BOUTIQUE PLACE AND THEY CAN BE TRICKY TO GET HOLD OF: USE 🌐 BOOKING.COM TO BOOK. ₹₹

★Bella Homestay Near Nehru Trophy Finishing Point 🌐 bellakerala.com. Tucked away in a leafy, quiet backstreet, this homestay in a modern house within walking distance of the main houseboat terminal is a great mid-range option. The impeccably clean rooms are spacious and individually furnished with splashes of colour, the welcome from Keralan-Polish hosts Biju and Natasha is warm, and the breakfasts are great. ₹₹

Cherukara Nest 9 774 Cherukara Building 🌐 cherukaranest.com. 1940s "heritage" home, on a quiet canal road just a short walk around the corner from the KSRTC bus stand. Breakfast is served in an old courtyard under a huge mango tree. Eco-friendly houseboat cruises are a sideline. A/c costs extra. ₹

Palm Grove Lake Resort Punnamada Kayal, 3.5km north of boat jetty 🌐 palmgrovelakeresort.com. Near where the canal meets Punnamada Lake, this relaxed resort overlooks the water – a perfect, tranquil spot from which to watch the snake boat races. Shaded by areca and coconut palms, its pretty cottages have gabled tile roofs, private outdoor showers and sitouts opening onto the garden. ₹₹₹

Palmy Lake Resort Thathampally, 2km north of boat jetty 🌐 palmyresort.com. Spacious, neatly painted red-tiled “cottages” (a/c and non-a/c), grouped behind a modern family home on the northeastern limits of town. It isn’t actually on the lake, but offers exceptional value; all rooms have private pillared verandas opening onto a restful garden. ₹

Venice Castle Behind Canara Bank, close to KSRTC bus stand 🌐 venicecastle.com. Substantial, modern Keralan home a stone’s throw from the bus stand and town centre, but sheltered behind a screen of lush greenery. Huge rooms for the price, and well aired, with comfy beds, decent bathrooms and views over mango and palm trees. A/c costs extra. ₹₹

CHETTIKAD ANGIO BEACH HOUSE CHETTIKAD BEACH, PRIYADARSINI RD, THUMPOLY 📞80867 52586. A SIMPLE AND SECLUDED HOMESTAY RIGHT ON THE BEACH. THE CHARMING HOSTS COOK GREAT KERALAN FOOD – THOUGH ONLY THEIR SON MARTIN, WHO RUNS DREAMERS IN ALAPPUZHA, SPEAKS ENGLISH. EACH OF THE THREE ROOMS HAS A VERANDA AND THERE’S A HAMMOCK AND A LITTLE SITOUT IN THE SHADED GARDEN. THEY PLAN TO ADD A COUPLE OF BAMBOO HUTS, TOO. ₹₹₹

ALAPPUZHA BACKWATERS AKKARAKKULAM MEMOIRS CHENNAMKARY 📞0484 600 3300. ONE OF THE FEW PROPER HERITAGE HOTELS IN THE BACKWATERS (AS OPPOSED TO HOMESTAYS), IN A RECENTLY CONVERTED SYRIAN-CHRISTIAN MANSION OVERLOOKING THE PAMBA RIVER. GREAT VALUE, AND THE RATES INCLUDE A SUNSET CRUISE, USE OF A ROWING BOAT, BICYCLES, NIGHT FISHING TOURS AND GUIDED WALKS AROUND THE AREA. ₹₹₹

KUTTANAD: THE BACKWATERS OF KERALA ONE OF THE MOST MEMORABLE EXPERIENCES FOR TRAVELLERS IN INDIA IS THE OPPORTUNITY TO TAKE A BOAT JOURNEY ON THE BACKWATERS OF KERALA. THE AREA KNOWN AS KUTTANAD

STRETCHES FOR 75KM FROM KOLLAM IN THE SOUTH TO KOCHI IN THE NORTH, SANDWICHED BETWEEN THE SEA AND THE HILLS. THIS BEWILDERING LABYRINTH OF SHIMMERING WATERWAYS, COMPOSED OF LAKES, CANALS, RIVERS AND RIVULETS, IS LINED WITH DENSE TROPICAL GREENERY AND PRESERVES RURAL KERALAN LIFESTYLES THAT ARE COMPLETELY HIDDEN FROM THE ROAD.

The region's bucolic way of life has long fascinated visitors. And the ever-entrepreneurial Keralans were quick to spot its potential as a visitor destination – particularly after it was discovered that foreigners and wealthy tourists from India's cities were prepared to pay vast sums in local terms to explore the area aboard converted rice barges, or kettu vallam. Since its inception in the early 1990s, the houseboat tour industry has grown exponentially in both size and sophistication, and has brought with it major environmental drawbacks as well as increased prosperity. You can, however, explore this extraordinary region in lower-impact ways, too.

TOURIST CRUISES THE MOST POPULAR EXCURSION IN THE KUTTANAD REGION IS THE FULL-DAY JOURNEY BETWEEN KOLLAM AND ALAPPUZHA. ALL SORTS OF PRIVATE HUSTLERS OFFER THEIR SERVICES, BUT THE PRINCIPAL BOATS ARE RUN ON ALTERNATE DAYS BY THE ATDC AND THE DTPC. THE DOUBLE-DECKER BOATS LEAVE FROM BOTH KOLLAM AND ALAPPUZHA DAILY, DEPARTING AT 10.30AM (10AM CHECK-IN); TICKETS (₹400) CAN BE BOUGHT IN ADVANCE OR ON THE DAY AT THE ATDC/DTPC COUNTERS, OTHER AGENTS AND SOME HOTELS. BOTH COMPANIES MAKE THREE STOPS DURING THE 8HR JOURNEY, INCLUDING ONE FOR LUNCH, AND ANOTHER 3HR NORTH OF KOLLAM AT THE MATA AMRITANANDAMAYI MATH AT AMRITAPURI (WHERE “AMMA” OFFERS DEVOTEES HER TRADEMARK HUGS).

ALTHOUGH THIS IS BY FAR THE MAIN BACKWATER ROUTE, MANY TOURISTS FIND IT TOO LONG, WITH CROWDED DECKS AND INTENSE SUN. THERE'S ALSO SOMETHING FAINTLY EMBARRASSING ABOUT BEING COOPED UP WITH A CROWD OF FELLOW TOURISTS, MADLY PHOTOGRAPHING ANY SIGNS OF LIFE ON THE WATER OR CANAL BANKS, WHILE GANGS OF KIDS SCAMPER ALONGSIDE THE BOAT SCREAMING "ONE PEN, ONE PEN".

VILLAGE TOURS AND CANOES QUITE APART FROM THEIR SIGNIFICANT ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT, MOST BOATS ARE TOO WIDE TO SQUEEZE INTO THE NARROWER INLETS CONNECTING SMALL VILLAGES. TO REACH THESE MORE IDYLIC, REMOTE AREAS, THEREFORE, YOU'LL NEED TO CHARTER A PUNTED CANOE. THE SLOWER PACE MEANS YOU COVER LESS DISTANCE IN AN HOUR, BUT THE EXPERIENCE OF BEING SO CLOSE TO THE WATER, AND THOSE WHO LIVE ON IT, TENDS TO BE CORRESPONDINGLY MORE REWARDING. YOU'LL ALSO FIND MORE FORMAL "VILLAGE TOURS" ADVERTISED ACROSS THE KUTTANAD AREA, TYING TOGETHER TRIPS TO WATCH COIR-MAKERS, RICE FARMERS AND BOAT-BUILDERS IN ACTION, WITH THE OPPORTUNITY TO DINE IN A TRADITIONAL KERALAN VILLAGE SETTING.

KETTU VALLAM (HOUSEBOATS) WHOEVER DREAMED UP THE IDEA OF SHOWING TOURISTS AROUND THE BACKWATERS IN OLD RICE BARGES, OR KETTU VALLAM, COULD NEVER HAVE IMAGINED THAT, MORE THAN THREE DECADES ON, NINE HUNDRED OR MORE OF THEM WOULD BE CHUGGING AROUND KUTTANAD WATERWAYS. THESE HOUSEBOATS, MADE OF DARK, OILED JACKWOOD WITH CANOPIES OF PLAITED PALM THATCH AND COIR, ARE BIG BUSINESS, AND ALMOST EVERY ACCOMMODATION SEEMS TO HAVE ONE. THE FLASHIEST ARE FITTED WITH A/C ROOMS, JACUZZIS AND WIDESCREEN PLASMA TVS ON THEIR TEAK SUN DECKS AND HAVE BOTTLES OF IMPORTED WINE IN THEIR FRIDGES. AT THE OPPOSITE END OF THE SCALE ARE ROUGH-AND-READY TRANSPORT BARGES WITH GUT-THUMPING DIESEL ENGINES, CRAMPED BEDROOMS AND MINIMAL WASHING FACILITIES.

Rates vary hugely depending on the quality, more than double over Christmas and New Year, and halve off-season during the monsoons. In practice, ₹7500–18,000 is the usual bracket for a trip on a two-bedroom, a/c boat with a proper bathroom, including three meals, in early December or mid-January. The cruise should last a minimum of 22 hours, though don't expect to spend all of that on the move: running times are carefully calculated to spare gas. From sunset onwards you'll be moored at a riverbank.

You'll save quite a lot of cash, and be doing the fragile ecosystem a big favour, by opting for a more environmentally friendly punted kettu vallam. Rice barges were traditionally propelled by punt, and though it means you travel at a more leisurely pace, the experience is silent (great for wildlife-spotting) and altogether more relaxing.

Houseboat operators work out of Kollam and Kumarakom, but most are in Alappuzha, where you'll find the lowest prices – but also the worst congestion on more scenic routes. Spend a day shopping around for a deal (your guesthouse or hotel-owner will be a good first port of call), or if you're in Alappuzha, head to the main houseboat terminal at 9am to meet returning kettu vallam and question travellers as they disembark. Always check the boat over beforehand. It's also a good idea to get the deal fixed on paper before setting off, and to withhold a final payment until the end of the cruise in case you're not satisfied.

Dependable operators include: Lakes and Lagoons (☎0477 226 6842, 🌐lakeslagoons.com); Angel Queen (☎98951 89095, 🌐angelqueencruise.in); Xandari Riverscapes (☎0484 6503 044 or ☎0484 311 5036, 🌐xandari.com); and the upmarket Spice Routes Luxury Cruises (☎0484 266 5314 or ☎86060 00430, 🌐spiceroutes.in).

LOCAL FERRIES KETTU VALLAM MAY OFFER THE MOST COMFORTABLE WAY OF CRUISING THE BACKWATERS, BUT YOU'LL GET A MUCH MORE VIVID EXPERIENCE OF WHAT

LIFE IS ACTUALLY LIKE IN THE REGION BY JUMPING ON ONE OF THE LOCAL FERRIES THAT SERVE ITS TOWNS AND VILLAGES. PARTICULARLY RECOMMENDED IS THE TRIP FROM ALAPPUZHA TO KOTTAYAM (DEP. 7.30AM, 9.30AM, 11.30AM, 2.30 & 5.15PM; 2HR 30MIN; ₹20), WHICH WINDS ACROSS OPEN LAGOONS AND NARROW CANALS, THROUGH COCONUT GROVES AND ISLANDS. ARRIVE EARLY TO GET A GOOD PLACE WITH UNINTERRUPTED VIEWS.

Good places to aim for from Alappuzha include Neerettupuram, Kidangara and Chambakulam; all are served by regular daily ferries, but you may have to change boats once or twice along the way, killing time in local cafés and toddy shops (all of which adds to the fun, of course).

Lake & Paddy Pamba riverside, 2.5km east of town centre at Chungam. Tiny and colourful budget guest-house, run by hospitable brothers, situated right on the Pamba River with scenic rice fields to the rear. Accommodation consists of two lovely tile-floored cottages that make the most of the verdant views; two other cheapie rooms in the main house are bamboo lined and share a bathroom. A fantastic location for watching village and river life roll by, and easily reached by auto-rickshaw or government ferry from Alappuzha. ₹

Pooppally's Ponga, Pooppally, on the Pamba River @pooppallys.com. This old ancestral mansion is a typically Syrian-Christian home with double-gabled roof and guest rooms in twin wings opening on to a central courtyard garden next to the river. They're not overly large, but have delightful wood-pillared verandas. If it's free, splash out on the romantic, 200-year-old nalukettu, which sits on stilts above a pond in the back garden. Pooppally's is accessible by ferry or road. ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP

In addition to the restaurants listed here, most of Alappuzha's homestays and guesthouses provide meals for guests, usually delicious, home-cooked Keralan cooking that's tailored towards sensitive Western palates.

★Dreamers Alappuzha beach @dreamersrestaurant.com. With its sea view and rustic decor, this place is like a cross between a treehouse and dune shack. The menu includes fresh pasta and pizza with real olive oil – Dreamers is part-owned by an Italian – plus fresh salads and local seafood (the roast crab is a winner). Springsteen, Clapton and Rihanna dominate a rather random soundtrack. ₹₹

Halais CCSB Rd. Proper Keralan-Muslim restaurant that's been an Alappuzha institution for generations. Much of its old-world character disappeared in a recent face-lift, but the food's as delicious as ever. Nearly everyone comes for their chicken biryanis or their blow-out "meals", to be enjoyed with the legendary house date pickle.

Thaff YMCA Junction. It looks a bit down on its luck from the outside, but this is the best place in town for inexpensive non-veg Indian food, from local fish to chicken and mutton specialties, and all the standard veggie dishes. Intense Keralan flavours and rock-bottom prices are guaranteed, such as chicken biryanis and pomfret.

THREATS TO THE BACKWATER ECOSYSTEM THE AFRICAN MOSS THAT OFTEN CARPETS THE SURFACE OF THE NARROWER WATERWAYS MAY LOOK ATTRACTIVE, BUT IT IS A SYMPTOM OF THE MANY SERIOUS ECOLOGICAL PROBLEMS CURRENTLY AFFECTING THE REGION, WHOSE POPULATION DENSITY RANGES FROM BETWEEN TWO AND FOUR TIMES THAT OF OTHER COASTAL AREAS IN SOUTHWEST INDIA. THIS HAS PUT GROWING PRESSURE ON LAND, AND CONSEQUENTLY A GREATER RELIANCE ON FERTILIZERS THAT EVENTUALLY WORK THEIR WAY INTO THE WATER AND CAUSE THE BUILD-UP OF MOSS.

Illegal land reclamation poses the single greatest threat to this fragile ecosystem. In little more than a century, the total area of water in Kuttanad has been reduced by two-thirds, while mangrove swamps and fish stocks have been decimated by pollution and the spread of towns and villages. Tourism adds to the problem, as the film of oil from motorized ferries and houseboats spreads through the waters, killing yet more fish, which has in turn led to a reduction of more than fifty percent in the number of bird species found in the region.

Mararikulam

Fourteen kilometres north of Alappuzha a number of high-end eco-resorts have sprung up in the fishing village of MARARIKULAM; the attraction here is that there's little to do except lounge on the uninterrupted stretch of white-sand beach. One nearby place of interest is sixteenth-century St Andrew's Basilica (arthunkalchurch.org; ₹50 donation requested) 6km north in Arthungal – not to be missed in January when Christian pilgrims flock here for the Feast of San Sebastian.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS BUSES MARARIKULAM FROM ALAPPUZHA DROP PASSENGERS AT ST AUGUSTINE'S CHURCH, A SHORT WALK FROM THE BEACH (FREQUENT; 40MIN). FOR SERVICES FURTHER AFIELD, YOU'LL NEED TO GET AN AUTO-RICKSHAW UP TO THE MAIN HIGHWAY, NH-47.

By taxi Cars line up outside Marari Beach Resort. Laiju is a recommended local driver (☎99463 83081).

ACCOMMODATION MOST VISITORS COMING HERE WILL HAVE BOOKED INTO ONE OF THE EXPENSIVE RESORTS IN ADVANCE; THOSE LISTED BELOW ARE INDEPENDENT,
LOCAL OPTIONS. NOTE THAT THE LANE FROM ST
AUGUSTINE'S CHURCH (ON BEACH RD) TOWARDS THE BEACH IS LINED WITH BUDGET HOMESTAYS THAT USUALLY HAVE ROOMS AVAILABLE TO RENT.

Arakal Heritage Chethy, 3km north of Marari Beach arakal.com. Three-hundred-year-old heritage home tucked away in a shady spot at the far end of Marari Beach. Individual cottages have bags of Keralan character, with traditional gabled roofs and dark-wood antique furniture – one even has a mango tree growing through it. Mini and Abi are wonderful hosts who will arrange cookery classes and lend you a canoe to paddle in the backwaters. Full board. ₹₹₹₹

Marari Arapakal Beach Villa Marari Beach  marariarapakalbeach.com. These two newish buildings in the grounds of a family home might not have much character, but they're clean and secure and just a few minutes' walk from the beach. Dominic also owns a more basic shack right on the beach with two rooms for the same price. Breakfast included. ₹₹

Marari Austin Beach Villa Marari Beach  marariaustinbeachvilla.com. Right on the beachfront, this solid option has four rooms, the slightly pricier two on the first floor with a terrace and a/c (which costs extra). Rooms and bathrooms are spotless and there's solar hot water. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹₹

★Marari Dreamz Mararikulam  mararidreamz.com. Somehow the location on the wrong side of Beach Rd doesn't seem to matter. Behind a standard suburban facade this lovely hideaway has large and very private rooms; each comfortably sleeps three and has its own shady veranda in the garden. There are bicycles and motorbikes to rent and young hosts Allwyn and Jency go out of their way to look after guests. ₹₹₹₹

Kottayam and around Some 76km southeast of Kochi and 37km northeast of Alappuzha, KOTTAYAM is a compact, busy Keralan town strategically located between the backwaters and the mountains of the Periyar Wildlife Sanctuary. The many rubber plantations around town, introduced by British missionaries in the 1820s, have for more than a century formed the bedrock of a booming local economy, most of it controlled by landed Syrian Christians. Author Arundhati Roy grew up in nearby Ayemenem, the magical setting for her acclaimed novel The God of Small Things and partway towards vast Vembanad Lake, where the Kumarakom Bird Sanctuary spreads across a cluster of islands.

Kottayam's churches The presence of two thirteenth-century churches on a hill 5km northwest of the centre (accessible by auto-rickshaw) attests to the area's deeply rooted Christian heritage. Two eighth-century Nestorian stone crosses with Palavi and Syriac inscriptions, on either side of the elaborately decorated altar of the Valliapalli ("big") church, are among the earliest solid traces of Christianity in India. The visitors' book contains entries from as far back as the 1890s, including one each from the Ethiopian king, Haile Selassie, and a British viceroy. The apse of the nearby Cheriapalli ("small") church is covered with lively paintings, thought to have been executed by a Portuguese artist in the sixteenth century. If the doors are locked, ask for the key at the church office (9am–1pm & 2–5pm).

Kumarakom

A twenty-minute bus ride west of Kottayam brings you to the shores of Vembanad Lake, where the Kumarakom Bird Sanctuary forms the focus of a line of ultra-luxurious resorts on the water's edge. A backwaters cruise hereabouts is a much better bet for peace and quiet than in Alappuzha or Kollam, although you will have to pay a little more if you want to arrange things from here: your hotel or homestay will be able to help.

Kumarakom Bird Sanctuary Daily dawn–dusk • charge; guide charge
The small Kumarakom Bird Sanctuary in the wetlands is a good place to spot domestic and migratory birds such as egrets, osprey, flycatchers and racket-tail drongos, as well as glimpses of otters and turtles in the water. There's a paved walkway for a lot of the route, but it does get tricky in parts. The best time to visit is between November and May before the sun rises; the one and only official guide can't be booked in advance and is snapped up by 6.30am.

Bay Island Driftwood Museum Outskirts of Kumarakom village •
Tues–Sat 10am–5pm, Sun 11.30am–5pm • charge •
bayislandmuseum.com

Birds, or representations of them, feature prominently in the area's most bizarre visitor attraction, the Bay Island Driftwood Museum, just off the main road, in which lumps of driftwood sculpted by the sea are displayed in an idiosyncratic gallery.

Ettumanur

12km north of Kottayam • Admission is free for foreigners, but you'll need to buy a camera ticket from the counter on the left of the main gateway Another possible day-trip from Kottayam is the magnificent Mahadeva (Shiva) temple at ETTUMANUR, on the road to Ernakulam, whose entrance porch holds some of Kerala's most celebrated medieval wall paintings. The most spectacular depicts Nataraja (Shiva) executing a cosmic tandava dance, trampling evil in the form of a demon underfoot.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY KOTTAYAM AND AROUND TRAIN KOTTAYAM RAILWAY STATION, 2KM NORTH OF THE CENTRE, SEES A CONSTANT FLOW OF TRAFFIC BETWEEN THIRUVANANTHA-PURAM (3HR 30MIN) AND POINTS NORTH, INCLUDING ERNAKULAM/KOCHI (1HR 30MIN). THERE'S A

PREPAID AUTO-RICKSHAW STAND OUTSIDE THE MAIN ENTRANCE.

By bus Kottayam's KSRTC bus stand, 500m south of the centre on TB Rd (not to be confused with the private stand for local buses on MC Rd), is an important stop on routes to and from major towns in south India.

Destinations Ernakulam/Kochi (hourly; 1hr 45min); Kollam/Quilon (daily; 2hr 45min); Kumily/Periyar (daily; 3hr); Madurai (2 daily; 7hr); Thiruvananthapuram (hourly; 4hr).

By ferry The public ferry leaves for Alappuzha (2hr 30min) at 7am, 9am, 11am, 1.30pm and 3.30pm.

Tourist information DTPC maintains a tiny tourist office at the jetty (daily 10am–6pm; ☎0481 256 0479).

Services The best place to change money is the Canara Bank on KK Rd, which also has one of several ATMs around the main square. Internet facilities are available at Intimacy (₹30/hr), also on KK Rd, just north of the KSRTC bus stand.

ACCOMMODATION AKKARA MARIATHURUTHU 🌐AKKARA.IN. JUST A 15MIN DRIVE OUT OF TOWN, THIS WELCOMING HOMESTAY OCCUPIES AN ANCESTRAL SYRIAN-CHRISTIAN HOMESTEAD SITTING PROUDLY ON THE RIVERBANK – AN IDYLIC, TYPICALLY KERALAN BUILDING, WITH TRADITIONAL GABLED ARCHITECTURE AND INTERIORS. IN 2016 THEY OPENED AN AYURVEDIC CENTRE ON SITE AND PACKAGES ARE AVAILABLE. ACCESS IS BY ROAD OR DUGOUT CANOE. A/C COSTS EXTRA. ₹₹₹

Arcadia TB Rd 🌐arcadiahotels.net. The town's top hotel, occupying its tallest building – a towering, white, angular monster block just south of the centre. Its rooms look much nicer from the inside, however, and are very good value (especially the “standard doubles”); there's also a fantastic rooftop pool on the fourteenth floor, as well as a restaurant (Déjà Vu) and bar (Ice Lounge). ₹₹

Backwater Breeze Cheepumkal, 5km north of Kumarakom, near the bird sanctuary 🌐backwaterbreeze.com. Ajish and his family live downstairs, with the four large guest rooms upstairs sharing a veranda overlooking the canal towards Vembanad Lake. Breakfast is included and there's a restaurant next door where you can order dinner. A/c costs extra. ₹

★GK's Riverview Thekkakarayil, Kottaparambil, near Pulikkuttssery, 4km by water from Kumarakom 094471 97527. Award-winning rustic homestay, buried deep in the watery wilds between Kottayam and Kumarakom. The accommodation comprises four comfortable a/c guest rooms in a separate block behind a family home, overlooking paddy fields. Charming hosts George and Dai are mines of information about the area; they'll pick you up from Kottayam if you phone ahead. Half board ₹₹₹

Homestead KK Rd 0481 256 0467. This long-standing hotel is the best mid-priced option, though the beds in the economy rooms are rock hard and it's well worth shelling out an additional amount for a "deluxe" with more space, better furniture and thicker mattresses. ₹₹

EATING ANAND KK RD. FOR A DELICIOUS, PURE-VEG THALI OR UDUPI SNACK, YOU WON'T DO BETTER THAN THIS PLACE ON THE GROUND FLOOR OF THE NEW ANAND LODGE, JUST OFF THE NORTHEAST SIDE OF THE MAIN SQUARE. OF THE TWO ROOMS THE A/C FAMILY HALL IS MORE RELAXING (THOUGH BOTH ARE A LITTLE ROUGH AROUND THE EDGES) AND MEALS ONLY COST A LITTLE MORE. A RANGE OF RICE MEALS AND SCRUMPTIOUS MASALA DOSAS.

Meenachil Homestead Hotel KK Rd. Quality non-veg Keralan food such as kozhi (chicken) varutha curry and Chinese duck is served on the a/c floor; the cheaper "Thali" section downstairs opens earlier for breakfast, as well as serving set Keralan "meals" at lunchtime.

Periyar and around One of the largest national parks in India, the Periyar Wildlife Sanctuary (also known as the Periyar Tiger Reserve) occupies 925 square kilometres of the Cardamom Hills region of the Western Ghats. The majority of its visitors come in the hope of seeing wild elephants – or even a rare glimpse of a tiger – grazing the shores of the reservoir at the heart of the reserve. Daily safari boats ferry day-trippers around this sprawling, labyrinthine lake, where sightings are most likely at the height of the dry season in April. However, for the rest of the year, wildlife is less abundant than you might expect given Periyar's overwhelming popularity.

Just a few hours by road from the Keralan coastal cities and Madurai in Tamil Nadu, Periyar ranks among India's busiest reserves, attracting thousands of visitors over holiday periods. The park's ageing infrastructure, however, has struggled to cope with the recent upsurge in numbers. Just how overburdened facilities had become was horribly revealed in September 2009 when an excursion boat capsized on the lake, killing 45 tourists. Since that Thekkady disaster, strict restrictions have been imposed, but the lake safari experience hasn't improved; most foreign visitors leave disappointed, not merely with the park, but also its heavily commercialized surroundings and apparent paucity of wildlife.

That said, if you're prepared to trek into the forest, Periyar can still be worth a stay. Elephant, sambar, Malabar giant squirrel, gaur, stripe-necked mongoose and wild boar are still commonly spotted in areas deeper into the park, where birdlife is also prolific. Another selling point is Periyar's much vaunted ecotourism initiative. Instead of earning their livelihoods through poaching and illegal sandalwood extraction, local Manna people are these days employed by the Forest Department to protect vulnerable parts of the sanctuary. Schemes such as “Border Hiking”, “Tiger Trail” and “Jungle Scout” tours, in which visitors accompany tribal wardens on their duties, serve to promote community welfare and generate income for conservation work.

In addition, the area around Periyar holds plenty of engaging day-trip destinations, such as spice plantations, as well as lots of scope for trekking in the surrounding hills and forest. It’s also a lot cooler up here than down on the more humid coast, and many foreign visitors are glad of the break from the heat.

Kumily

As beds inside the wildlife sanctuary are in short supply, most visitors to Periyar stay in nearby KUMILY, a typical High Range town, centred on a hectic roadside market, 1km or so north of the main park entrance (known as Thekkady). Hotels and Kashmiri handicrafts emporia have spread south from the bazaar to within a stone’s throw of the park, and tourism now rivals the spice trade as the area’s main source of income. That said, you’ll still see plenty of little shops selling local herbs, essential oils and cooking spices, while in the busy cardamom sorting yard behind the Spice Village resort, rows of Manna women sift through heaps of fragrant green pods using heart-shaped baskets.

Periyar Wildlife Sanctuary Daily 6am–6pm • charge • ⓘ

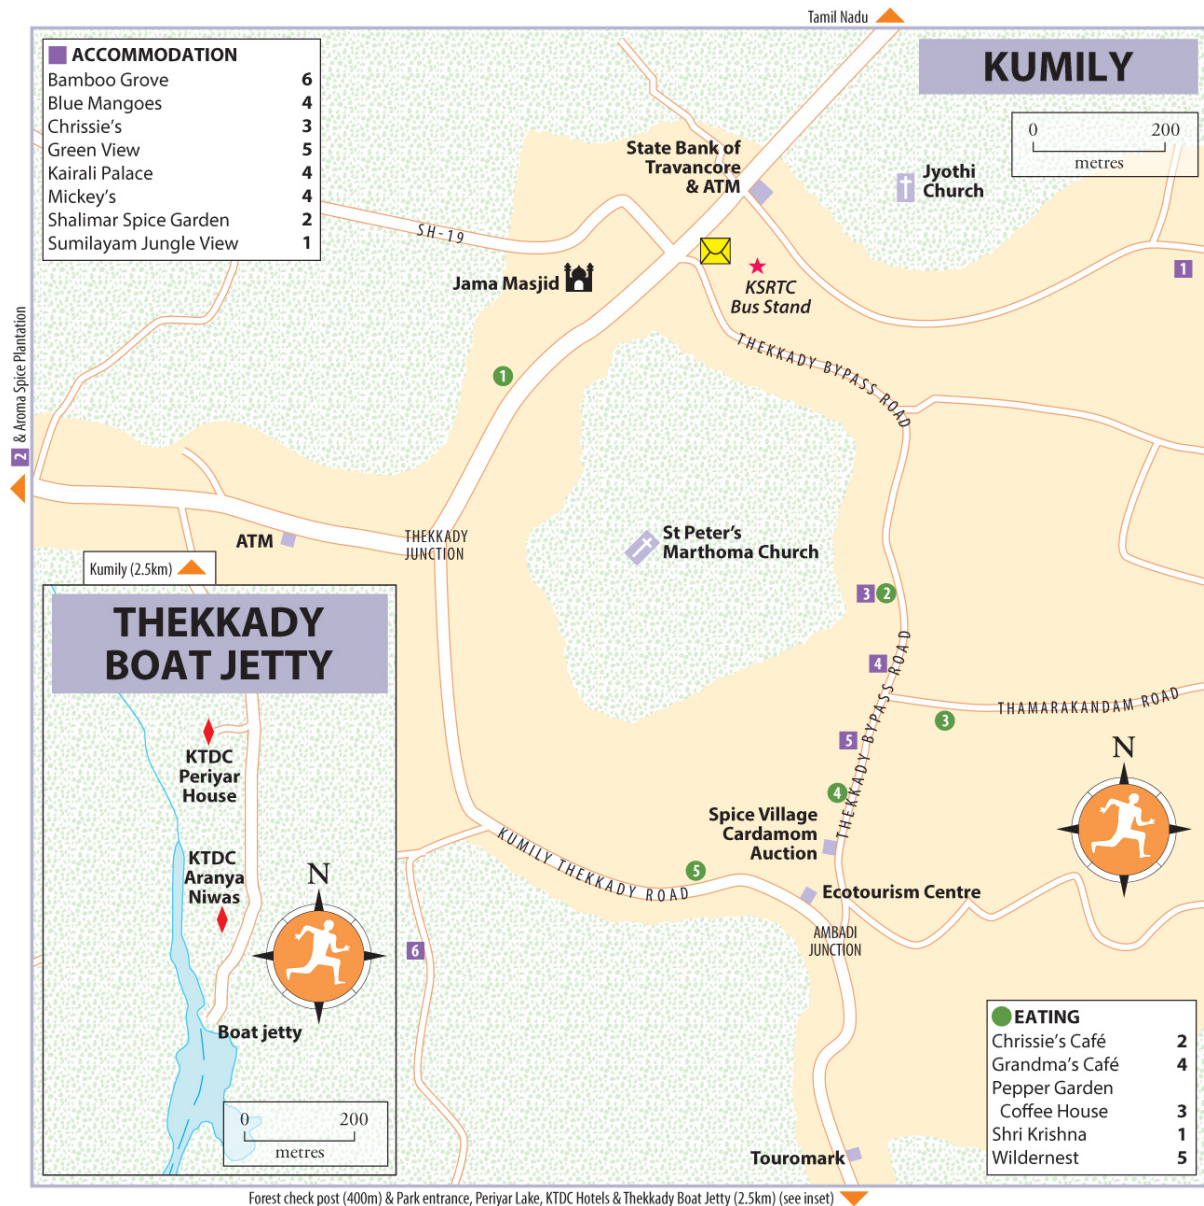

periyartigerreserve.org

Centred on a vast artificial lake created by the British in 1895 to supply water to the drier parts of neighbouring Tamil Nadu, the Periyar Wildlife Sanctuary lies at altitudes of between 900m and 1800m, and is correspondingly cool: temperatures range from 15°C to 30°C. The royal family of Travancore, anxious to preserve favourite hunting grounds from the encroachment of tea plantations, declared it a forest reserve, and built the Edapalayam Lake Palace to accommodate their guests in 1899.

Seventy percent of the protected area, which is divided into core, buffer and tourist zones, is covered with evergreen and semi-evergreen forest. The tourist zone – logically enough, the part accessible to casual visitors – surrounds the lake, and consists mostly of semi-evergreen and deciduous woodland interspersed with grassland, both on hilltops and in the valleys. Although excursions on the lake (either by diesel-powered launch or paddle-powered bamboo raft) are the standard ways to experience the park, you can get much more out of a visit by walking with a local guide in a small group away from the crowd. However, avoid the period immediately after the monsoons, when leeches make hiking virtually impossible. The best time to visit is between December and April, when the dry weather draws animals from the forest to drink at the lakeside.

Bamboo rafting trips By far the best option for wildlife viewing from the lake is to sign up for one of the Forest Department's excellent bamboo rafting trips, which start with a short hike from the boat jetty at 8am, with the half-day trip returning at 2pm and the full-day option at 5pm. The rafts carry four or five people and, because they're paddled rather than motor-driven, can approach the lakeshore in silence, allowing you to get closer to the grazing animals and birds. Tickets cost ₹2000 per person for a full day and may be booked in advance from the ecotourism centre on Ambadi Junction. Note that during busy periods places sell out quickly, so reserve as far ahead as possible.

Boat tours

Although boat tours are considerably less expensive than the bamboo rafting trips, they can come as a disappointment. It's unusual to see many animals – engine noise and the presence of dozens of other people make sure of that. To maximize your chances of sighting elephants, wild boar or sambar grazing by the water's edge, take the 7.30am service (for which you'll need to wear warm clothing in winter).

Trips are run by the Forest Department and KTDC and depart at the same times (7.30am, 9.30am, 11.15am, 1.45pm & 3.30pm; charge). Since the 2009 Thekkady disaster, however, only twenty people are permitted to travel on the upper decks and tickets sell out very fast; you'll need to be at the lakeside at least two hours before the scheduled departure time (or 1hr 30min for the 7.30am boat) or book online in advance (www.periyarfoundation.online). Sales counters are just above the main visitor centre (daily 6am–6pm; ☎04869 224571), next to the boat jetty; the Forest Department will issue two seats per person. You'll need to fill in an indemnity form, and wear a life-jacket at all times.

Walks and treks Although you can – leeches permitting – trek freely around the fringes of Periyar, access to the sanctuary itself on foot is strictly controlled by the Forest Department. Their community-based ecotourism programme offers a variety of structured walking tours, ranging from short rambles to three-day expeditions, all guided by local Manna tribal wardens. Tickets should be booked in advance from the ecotourism centre on Ambadi Junction, where you can also pick up information on the trips.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS PERIYAR AND AROUND BUSES FROM KOTTAYAM (DAILY; 3HR). AUTO-RICKSHAWS WILL RUN YOU FROM HERE TO THE VISITOR CENTRE INSIDE THE PARK FOR AROUND ₹60–70, STOPPING AT THE PARK ENTRANCE AT THEKKADY WHERE YOU CAN PAY THE RESERVE FEE.

Tourist information To book any of Periyar's popular eco tours, you'll have to walk down the Thekkady Rd to the ecotourism centre on Ambadi Junction (daily 6.30am–9pm, last tickets sold at 7.30pm; ☎85476 03066) – or better still, book in advance on www.periyarfoundation.online.

Services Both the State Bank of Travancore (which has an ATM), near the bus stand, and the Thekkady Bankers in the main bazaar can change currency and travellers' cheques. Internet facilities are available around Thekkady Junction for about ₹40/hr.

TOURS AND TREKS TOURS AS WELL AS THE ATTRACTION OF THE WILDLIFE SANCTUARY, TOURS TO TEA FACTORIES AND SPICE PLANTATIONS ARE OFFERED BY ALMOST EVERY HOTEL AND TOURIST AGENCY IN KUMILY. UNFORTUNATELY, MANY PLACES HAVE BECOME HEAVILY COMMERCIALIZED,

SO IT'S WORTH SHOPPING AROUND; OFTEN THE BEST WAY TO ORGANIZE A TOUR IS TO ASK AT YOUR HOTEL. THERE ARE ONLY A COUPLE OF CERTIFIED ORGANIC SPICE GARDENS IN THE AREA, AROMA AT CHELIMADA, A SHORT WALK WEST OF KUMILY ON THE KOTTAYAM RD (₹250/PERSON; ☎04869 222805), AND MANU ABRAHAM'S IDYLIC PLANTATION OUT ON THE KUMILY-ATTAPALLUM MAIN ROAD (₹300/PERSON; BOOK IN ADVANCE ON ☎94464 02276).

Treks The windy, grassy ridgetops and forests around Periyar afford many fine treks, with superb views over the High Range guaranteed. One especially rewarding half-day trip is the hike up Kurusamalai (3hr), the peak towering to the northwest of Kumily, whose summit is crowned with a Holy Cross. As the summit falls within the national park boundaries, you're only permitted to hike to it under the auspices of the ecotourism centre (see above), who market it as their "Cloud Walk" (₹300). Although hilly, this area is also good cycling territory; you can rent bikes from stalls in the market, and Touromark (☎99477 66076, www.exploreperiyar.com), midway between Kumily and Thekkady, have imported 21-speed mountain bikes for rent. They also offer guided trips, ranging from 4hr/15km hacks through local spice gardens, coffee plantations and woodlands to a three-night/four-day ride across the Cardamom Hills to Munnar.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Kumily has accommodation to suit all pockets, with a number of small homestay guesthouses on the fringes of the village offering particularly good value; the three KTDC-run hotels actually inside the park are either ludicrously expensive or shabby, or both. The forest department has a decent campsite, 16km away, just beyond Vallakkadavu checkpoint; they also offer camping inside the park on their "Tiger Trail" trek (contact the ecotourism centre).

Bamboo Grove Off Kumily Thekkady Rd; book via the ecotourism centre www.periyarfoundation.online. Though not in the park itself, Bamboo Grove is run by the forest department and aims to support local communities. The fifteen individual cottages are a little dark, but they're clean and private and set in lovely gardens. The two-day package is great value as it includes food, a jungle trek, tribal visit and boat tour. ₹₹

Blue Mangoes Bypass Rd ☎04869 224603 or ☎97449 95253. Simple rooms (with sitouts and balconies) in an impeccably clean modern block, plus a larger family “cottage”. Rock-bottom rates, but good bedding and a quiet location. Owner Bobby speaks excellent English. ₹₹

Chrissie’s Bypass Rd 🌐chrissies.in. Smart four-storey hotel below the bazaar, run by Adel and his long-standing staff. It’s pricier than most homestays in the area, but you get more privacy and better views, and homely interiors decorated with unique artwork. There’s also a great yoga shala and small pool on the rooftop, and a popular little café-restaurant on the ground floor (see below). ₹₹₹

Green View Bypass Rd 🌐sureshgreenview.com. One of Kumily’s most popular homestays, just off the Thekkady Rd. The seventeen rooms range from basic options with bucket hot water to large rooms with solar-heated showers and balconies looking across the valley to Kurusamalai Mountain; the rooftop where you can do yoga shares the same view. A lovely rear garden attracts lots of wild birds. ₹₹

Kairali Palace Bypass Rd ☎nitheeshmeera@gmail.com. Extremely attractive homestay in a fusion building that blends traditional and modern styles, with gabled roofs and wooden railings wrapped around the airy first-floor terrace. It has just two rooms, both well-furnished for the price. ₹

THE AYAPPA CULT THROUGHOUT DECEMBER AND JANUARY, KERALA IS PACKED WITH HUGE CROWDS OF MEN WEARING BLACK DHOTIS; YOU’LL SEE THEM MILLING ABOUT RAILWAY STATIONS, DRIVING IN OVERCROWDED AND GAILY DECORATED JEEPS AND COOKING A QUICK MEAL ON THE ROADSIDE BY THEIR TOUR BUS. THEY ARE PILGRIMS ON THEIR WAY TO THE SRI AYAPPA FOREST TEMPLE (ALSO KNOWN AS HARIHARAPUTRA OR SHASTA) AT SABARIMALA, IN THE WESTERN SECTION OF PERIYAR, AROUND

200KM FROM BOTH THIRUVANANTHAPURAM AND KOCHI. THE AYAPPA DEVOTEES CAN SEEM DISCONCERTINGLY EBULLIENT, CHANTING “SWAMIYEE SHARANAM AYAPPAN” (“GIVE US PROTECTION, GOD AYAPPA”) IN A LUSTY CALL-AND-RESPONSE STYLE REMINISCENT OF ENGLISH FOOTBALL FANS.

Ayappa – the offspring of a union between Shiva and Mohini, Vishnu’s beautiful female form – is primarily a Keralan deity, but his appeal has spread phenomenally in the last thirty years across south India, to the extent that this is said to be the largest pilgrimage in the world, with as many as 40 to 50 million devotees each year. Pilgrims are required to remain celibate, abstain from intoxicants, and keep to a strict vegetarian diet for 41 days before setting out on the four-day walk through the forest from the village of Erumeli (61km, as the crow flies, northwest) to the shrine at Sabarimala. Less-keen devotees take the bus to the village of Pampa, and join the 5km queue. When they arrive at the modern temple complex, pilgrims who have performed the necessary penances may ascend the famous eighteen gold steps to the inner shrine. There they worship the deity, throwing donations down a chute that opens onto a subterranean conveyor belt, where the money is counted and bagged.

The pilgrimage reaches a climax during the festival of Makaravilakku or Makar Sankranti, when massive crowds congregate at Sabarimala. On January 14, 1999, 51 devotees were buried alive when part of a hill crumbled under the crush of a stampede. The pilgrims had gathered at dusk to catch a glimpse of the final sunset of makara jyoti (“celestial light”) on the distant hill of Ponnambalamedu.

Although males of any age and even of any religion can take part in the pilgrimage, females between the ages of 9 and 50 are barred.

Mickey’s Bypass Rd 04869 223196 or 94472 84160. One of the oldest guesthouses in Kumily, whose smiling owner, Sujata, offers a range of rooms and cottages, all with balconies or sitouts littered with comfortable cane furniture. ₹

Shalimar Spice Garden Murikaddy, 6km from Kumily 📍 shalimarkerala.net. Teak huts in traditional Keralan style with elephant-grass roofs, whitewashed walls, chic interiors and verandas looking straight onto forest, on the edge of an old cardamom and pepper estate. Facilities include a beautiful Ayurveda centre, an outdoor pool set amid the trees and an open-sided restaurant where you can fine dine at rough-hewn granite tables. ₹₹₹₹

★Sumilayam Jungle View On the eastern edge of town 📍 junglevue.webs.com. The best-value budget homestay in Kumily, a 10min plod (or short auto-rickshaw ride) from the bus stand – literally on the Tamil Nadu–Kerala border. The clean, bright guestrooms are comfortably furnished; those on the upper storey open onto a marble-floored veranda just metres from jungle. Free nocturnal wildlife-spotting walks in the gardens are offered by your welcoming host, Mr Ramachandran. ₹

EATING

MAP

You're more likely to take meals at your guesthouse or hotel than eat out in Kumily, but for a change of scene the following places are the best options within walking distance of the bazaar.

Chrissie's Café Bypass Rd 📍 chrissies.in. This relaxing expat-run café, on the ground floor of Chrissie's hotel, pulls in a steady stream of foreigners through-out the day and evening for its delicious pizzas, made with Kodai mozzarella, and Middle Eastern options; check out the specials board. They also do healthy breakfasts with unlimited drinks, home-made cakes and proper coffee.

Grandma's Café Bypass Rd 📞99953 17261. This arty café is adored by backpackers for its laidback vibe and tasty grub; try the ularthiyathu with mushrooms or prawns. Service can be a little slow, but for distraction there's a projector for films and most nights a campfire is lit.

Pepper Garden Coffee House Thamarkandam Rd 📞99614 39789. In a garden filled with cardamom bushes behind a prettily painted blue-and-green house, a former park guide and his wife whip up tempting travellers' breakfasts (date and raisin pancakes, porridge with jungle honey, fresh coffee and Nilgiri tea), in addition to home-cooked lunches of veg fried rice, curry and dhal, using mostly local organic produce.

Shri Krishna Bypass Rd. Run by a Bihari family, this pure-veg restaurant serves authentic north Indian dishes, including cheap and filling Gujarati and Marwari thalis, served on the usual tin trays or leaves.

Wildernest Thekkady Rd ●wildernest-kerala.com. Filling Continental buffet breakfasts (fruit, juices, cereals, eggs, toast, peanut butter, home-made jams and freshly ground coffee; served in the ground-floor café of a stylish small hotel (those on the first floor with terraces are best). They also serve afternoon tea and cakes (including a delicious, very British, warm plum cake).

Munnar and around MUNNAR, 130km east of Kochi and 110km north (4hr 30min by bus) of the Periyar Wildlife Sanctuary, is the centre of Kerala's principal tea-growing region. A scruffy agglomeration of corrugated-iron-roofed cottages and tea factories, its centre on the valley floor fails to live up to its tourist-office billing as "hill station", but there's plenty to enthuse about in the surrounding mountains, whose lower slopes are carpeted with lush tea gardens and dotted with quaint old colonial bungalows. Above them, the grassy ridges and crags of the High Range offer superlative trekking routes, many of which can be tackled in day-trips from the town – though note that peninsular India’s highest peak, Ana Mudi (2695m), is closed to visitors for the time being.

It’s easy to see why the pioneering Scottish planters who developed this hidden valley in the 1870s and 1880s felt so at home here. At an altitude of around 1600m, Munnar enjoys a refreshing climate, with crisp mornings and sunny blue skies in the winter – though as with all of Kerala, torrential rains descend during the monsoons. Munnar’s greenery and cool air draw streams of well-heeled honeymooners and weekenders from south India’s cities. However, increasing numbers of foreign visitors are stopping for a few days too, enticed by the superbly scenic bus ride from Periyar, which takes you across the high ridges and lush tropical forests of the Cardamom Hills, or for the equally spectacular climb across the Ghats from Madurai.

HIKING AROUND MUNNAR ALTHOUGH SOUTH INDIA’S HIGHEST PEAK, ANA MUDI, IS OFF-LIMITS DUE TO THE NILGIRI TAHR CONSERVATION PROGRAMME, SEVERAL OF THE OTHER SUMMITS TOWERING ABOVE MUNNAR CAN BE REACHED ON DAY-TREKS. THE HIKING SCENE IS SURPRISINGLY UNDEVELOPED AND IT MAKES SENSE TO USE THE SERVICES OF A GUIDE, PARTICULARLY FOR MEESAPULIMALAI PEAK (2640M), WHICH CAN BE ACCESSED FROM SILENT VALLEY OR KOLUKKUMALAI ESTATES AND COULD EASILY BE INCORPORATED INTO A MULTIDAY EXCURSION. ALWAYS CHECK WHETHER TRANSPORT TO AND FROM THE TRAILHEAD IS INCLUDED.

OPERATORS GREENVIEW PLEASURE HOLIDAYS 🌐 MUNNARTREKKING.COM. THE OWNER OF THE GREEN VIEW GUESTHOUSE AND HIS ENTHUSIASTIC YOUNG TEAM LEAD GROUPS OF TWO OR MORE ON NEARBY ROUTES; RATES RANGE FROM ₹650/PERSON FOR SOFT TREKS UP TO ₹1250 FOR LONGER, MORE CHALLENGING OUTINGS.

Kestrel Adventures 📞94470 31040, 🌐kestreladventures.com. This professionally run local adventure company arranges treks (₹4200 for 2–3hr for two people at Chinnar, including transport), sightseeing by jeep (₹2000 for a full day) and mountain biking (₹6100 for two people for a full day off-road – plus tax and jeep rental).

KFDC The Kerala Forest Development Corporation arranges 24hr treks (₹9000), including basic overnight accommodation in Silent Valley and transfers in packed jeeps.

Kolukkumalai 🌐kolukkumalai.in. Your best bet for multiday bespoke trips on Meeshapulimalai and the surrounding grasslands. English-speaking guides and delicious food – plus you can opt to stay in a mountain hut nestled in the highest tea estate in the world. Prices start at ₹3000 for a day-trek (plus transport and accommodation).

Clustered around the confluence of three mountain streams, Munnar town is a typical hill bazaar of haphazard buildings and congested market streets; the daily vegetable market in the main bazaar is a good place for a wander (closed Wed).

Kanan Devan Hills Tea Museum Nallathany Rd • Tues–Sun 10am–4pm • charge, camera charge • 🌐
kdhptea.com/TeaMuseum.html

Although it doesn't physically demonstrate how tea is made, the Kanan Devan Hills Tea Museum, 2km northwest of the centre, is worth a visit for its collection of antique machinery and exhibition of photos of the area's tea industry, ranging from 1880s pioneers to the modern Tata tea conglomerate. The highlight of the visit is a short audio-visual presentation outlining how tea was introduced to the region and how it is processed today, rounded off with a tasting session; and there's a shop selling various KDH products.

Around Munnar Buses wind their way up to the aptly named Top Station, a hamlet famed for its views and meadows of Neelakurunji plants, and to the more distant nature sanctuaries of Eravikulam and Chinnar, where you can spot Nilgiri tahr, elephants and many other wild animals. To reach the most remote attractions, however, you might want to hire a taxi for the day.

Top Station

34km northeast of Munnar • 10 daily buses (from 5.30am; 1hr 30min); jeep taxis do the return trip for ₹1200

One of the most popular excursions from Munnar is the long climb through some of the Subcontinent's highest tea estates to TOP STATION, a tiny hamlet on the Kerala–Tamil Nadu border which, at 1600m, is the highest point on the interstate road. The settlement takes its name from the old aerial ropeway that used to connect it with the valley floor, the ruins of which can still be seen in places.

Eravikulam National Park 13km northeast of Munnar • Daily 8am–4.30pm; closed for calving season Feb through March, check ahead • charge, tickets can be purchased in advance online to avoid the queues

• eravikulam.org

Encompassing 100 square kilometres of moist evergreen forest and grassy hilltops in the Western Ghats, Eravikulam National Park is the last stronghold of one of the world's rarest mountain goats, the Nilgiri tahr. Its innate friendliness made the tahr pathetically easy prey during the hunting frenzy of the colonial era. Today, however, numbers are healthy, and the animals have regained their tameness, largely thanks to the efforts of the American biologist Clifford Rice, who studied them here in the early 1980s. Unable to get close enough to observe the creatures properly, Rice followed the advice of locals and attracted them using salt, and soon entire herds were congregating around his camp. The tahrs' salt addiction also explains why so many hang around the park gates at Vaguvarai, where visitors – despite advice from rangers – slip them salty snacks.

You're almost guaranteed sightings of tahr from the minute you enter the park gates, reached by shuttle bus (charge). From there, you can walk a further 1500m up a winding single-track road before the rangers turn you around, but expect to do so in the company of hundreds of other tourists on weekends – a rather hollow experience.

THE NEELAKURUNJI PLANT APART FROM THE MARVELLOUS VIEWS OVER THE TAMIL PLAINS, THE HILLS AROUND MUNNAR ARE RENOWNED FOR THE VERY RARE NEELAKURUNJI PLANT (STROBILANTHES), WHICH FLOWERS ONLY ONCE EVERY TWELVE YEARS. HUGE CROWDS CLIMB UP TO TOP STATION AND OTHER VIEWPOINTS TO ADMIRE THE CASCADES OF VIOLET BLOSSOM SPILLING DOWN THE SLOPES (THE NEXT FLOWERING IS DUE IN SEPT/OCT 2030). VIEWS ARE BEST BEFORE THE MIST BUILDS AT 9AM.

Chinnar Wildlife Sanctuary 58km north of Munnar • Daily 6am–7pm • charge • www.chinnar.in • Any bus running between Munnar and Udumalpet will stop at the sanctuary Although it borders Eravikulam, the Chinnar Wildlife Sanctuary is far less visited, not least because its entrance lies a two-hour drive from Munnar along winding mountain roads. The reserve, in the rain shadow of the High Range and thus much drier than its neighbour, is one of the best spots in the state for birdwatching, with 225 species recorded to date. But the real star attractions are the resident grizzled giant squirrels, who scamper in healthy numbers around the thorny scrub here, and the near-mythical “white bison of Manjampatti”, thought to be an albino Indian gaur.

Members of local tribal communities (who won't be fluent in English) act as guides for popular day-treks that might take in prehistoric rock art, dolmen sites or a waterfall – all of which can be arranged on spec at a counter next to the Chinnar Forest Check Post. For multiday treks you can camp or book a bed in the thirty-bed dormitory, but this needs to be arranged in advance at the Forest Information Centre in Munnar or with Kestrel Adventures.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS STATE-RUN MUNNAR AND PRIVATE BUSES PULL INTO THE TOWN BUS STAND IN THE MODERN MAIN BAZAAR, NEAR THE RIVER CONFLUENCE AND TATA HEADQUARTERS; STATE BUSES CONTINUE THROUGH TOWN, TERMINATING NEARLY 3KM SOUTH. FOR MOST HOTELS YOU SHOULD ASK TO BE DROPPED OFF AT OLD MUNNAR, 2KM SOUTH OF THE CENTRE, NEAR THE INEFFECTUAL DTPC TOURIST OFFICE (DAILY 8.30AM–7PM; ☎04865 231516).

Destinations Ernakulam/Kochi (daily; 3hr); Kottayam (3 daily; 5hr).

KFDC office Based in the Rose Gardens, 2km east on Mattupetty Rd (☎0486 523 0332, 🌐munnar.kfdcecotourism.com), KFDC can arrange a whistlestop day-tour around Munnar (₹1000/person) as well as multiday treks.

Forest Information Centre Near Mount Carmel Church in the centre of Munnar town (☎0486 523 1587). Drop in to organize trips to Chinnar Wildlife Sanctuary.

ACCOMMODATION MUNNAR'S ACCOMMODATION COSTS SIGNIFICANTLY MORE THAN ELSEWHERE IN THE HIGH RANGE REGION, REFLECTING THE HIGH DEMAND FOR BEDS FROM MIDDLE-CLASS TOURISTS FROM THE BIG CITIES. ROOMS AT THE LOW END OF THE SCALE ARE IN PARTICULARLY SHORT SUPPLY; THE FEW THAT EXIST ARE BLIGHTED BY RACKET FROM THE BUS STAND AND BAZAAR. THERE ARE SOME OPTIONS OUTSIDE TOWN THAT WOULD SUIT TRAVELLERS WITH THEIR OWN TRANSPORT.

Anaerangal Camp at Suryanelli 25km east of Munnar on the Periyar road 🌐campanaerangal.com. Half a dozen spacious fixed tents, fitted with beds and bathrooms, facing a magnificent panorama of mountain peaks, lake and forest. Keralan food, prepared at kitchens on site, is included in the rate, along with trekking to the lake and nearby peak, plantation visits and an evening camp fire. An inspiring location, but not the quality outfit it once was. ₹₹₹

Green Valley Vista Chekuthan Mukku, Chithirapuram, 8km south of Munnar 🌐greenvalleyvista.com. On the main road (ask the bus to drop you at the stop 20m away), so it's worth paying a bit extra for the larger quieter rooms at the back, which have the added advantage of gorgeous valley views. Sister to the Green View in Kumily, it offers the same good-value, clean rooms but with a bit less character. ₹₹₹

Green View Sri Parvati Amman Kovil St, near the KSRTC bus stand 🌐 greenviewmunnar.com. Clean and friendly budget guesthouse on the valley floor, down a side road just off the main drag, with rooms of various sizes – the best of them, no. 402, is a tiny double with big windows and hill views. Pitched squarely at foreign backpackers, it's run by an enthusiastic, competent young crew who do a sideline in guided day-treks. They have some quieter properties outside town; enquire about River Green Villa and Greenwoods Cottage. ₹₹

★High Range Club Kanan Devan Hills Rd 🌐 highrangeclubmunnar.com. This old Raj-era club, founded by British planters in 1909, must have been a nightmare of suffocating imperialism in its heyday. Now the faded colonial ambience, with lounges filled with 1940s furniture and moth-eaten hunting trophies, feels undeniably quaint (though there is still a dress code on Sat evenings). The club's guest wing holds three kinds of rooms and cottages, varying in size and comfort. Breakfast, lunch and dinner costs extra. ₹₹₹

JJ Cottage Sri Parvati Amman Kovil St, near the KSRTC bus stand 📞 94968 22163. Next door to Green View, and very much in the same mould, though it's been open longer, charges more and tends to get booked up earlier. Like its neighbour, the nicest of its clean, variously sized rooms is the one at the top (front side), which has wood-panelled walls and fine views. A warm family welcome is guaranteed. ₹

★Rosegardens Karadipara, near the viewpoint on NH-49, 10km southwest of Munnar 🌐 rosegardensmunnar.com. This gem of a homestay has five rooms, all with terraces. It's the two-acre setting that steals the show and hosts Tomy and Rajee are justly proud of their beautiful gardens. There's no TV here – instead you have meals with the family and plenty of peace and quiet. Trekking and cookery courses can be arranged, and there's decent driver accommodation. ₹₹₹

Zina Cottages Kad 🌐 zina-cottage.business.site. British-era stone bungalow, nestled amid tea gardens high on the hillside above Munnar. The basic rooms can be chilly, but the flower-filled front terrace has magnificent views across the town to Ana Mudi, and the young host will fill you in on local walks over flasks of hot tea in his sitting room. Come here less for creature comforts than for atmosphere, of which it has plenty. ₹

EATING THE THATTUKADA (HOT FOOD STALL MARKET) JUST SOUTH OF THE MAIN BAZAAR, OPPOSITE THE TAXI STAND, GETS INTO ITS STRIDE AROUND 7.30PM AND RUNS THROUGH THE NIGHT, SERVING DELICIOUS, PIPING-HOT KERALAN FOOD – DOSAS, PARATHAS, IDDIAPPAM, GREEN-BEAN CURRY, EGG MASALA – LADLED ONTO TIN PLATES AND EATEN ON ROUGH WOOD TABLES IN THE STREET.

Guru Bhavan Mattupetty Rd 94972 31184. This place, a 10min uphill walk from the bazaar, is packed out with locals enjoying veg and non-veg (mostly) south Indian dishes; veg “meals” are stupendous value. Drop by in the morning for cheap and delicious breakfast staples like idli and dosas.

Saravana Bhavan Munnar Market. The best pure-veg south Indian restaurant in town, serving the standard range of tasty Udupi dosas and thali meals – in addition to popular mini-idli plates and delicious buttermilk. Tucked away down a narrow side street, but there’s a large sign on the roadside in the main bazaar, directly behind the Gandhi statue.

Kochi (Cochin) Spreading across islands and promontories between the Arabian Sea and the backwaters, KOCHI (long known as Cochin) is Kerala’s prime tourist destination. Its main sections – modern Ernakulam and the old peninsular districts of Mattancherry and Fort Cochin to the west – are linked by bridges and a complex system of ferries. Although some visitors opt to stay in the more convenient Ernakulam, the overwhelming majority base themselves in Fort Cochin, where the city's complex history is reflected in an assortment of architectural styles. Spice markets, Chinese fishing nets, a synagogue, a Portuguese palace, India's first European church and seventeenth-century Dutch homes can all be found within an easy walk.

Brief history Kochi sprang into being in 1341, when a flood created a safe natural port that swiftly replaced Muziris (now Kodungallur, 50km north) as the chief harbour on the Malabar Coast. The royal family moved here in 1405, after which the city grew rapidly, attracting Christian, Arab and Jewish settlers from the Middle East. The history of European involvement from the early 1500s onwards is dominated by the aggression of the Portuguese, Dutch and British, who successively competed to control the port and its lucrative spice trade. From 1812 until Independence in 1947 it was administered by a succession of diwans, or finance ministers. In the 1920s, the British expanded the port to accommodate modern ocean-going ships, and Willingdon Island, between Ernakulam and Fort Cochin, was created by extensive dredging.

Old Kochi: Fort Cochin and Mattancherry Old Kochi, the thumb-shaped peninsula whose northern tip presides over the entrance to the city's harbour, formed the focus of European trading activities from the sixteenth century onwards. With high-rise development restricted to Ernakulam across the water, its twin districts of Fort Cochin, in the west, and Mattancherry, on the headland's eastern side, have preserved an extraordinary wealth of early colonial architecture, spanning the Portuguese, Dutch and British eras – a crop unparalleled in India. As you approach by ferry, the waterfront, with its sloping red-tiled roofs and ranks of peeling, pastel-coloured godowns (warehouses), offers a view that can have changed little in centuries.

Closer up, however, Old Kochi's historic patina has started to show some ugly cracks. The spice trade that fuelled the town's original rise is still very much in evidence. But over the past twenty years an extraordinary rise in visitor numbers has had a major impact. Thousands of tourists pour through daily in winter, and with no planning or preservation authority to take control, the resulting rash of new building threatens to destroy the very atmosphere people come here to experience. That said, tourism has also brought some benefits, inspiring renovation work to buildings that would otherwise have been left to rot.

Fort Cochin

Fort Cochin, the grid of old streets at the northwest tip of the peninsula, is where the Portuguese erected their first walled citadel, Fort Immanuel, which the Dutch East India Company later consolidated with a circle of well-fortified ramparts. Only a few fragments of the former battlements remain (the outline of the old walls is traced by the district's giant rain trees, some of which are more than two centuries old), but dozens of other evocative European-era monuments survive.

A good way to get to grips with Fort Cochin's many-layered history is to pick up the free walking-tour maps produced by Kerala Tourism. They lead you around some of the district's more significant landmarks, including the early eighteenth-century Dutch Cemetery, Vasco da Gama's supposed house and several traders' residences.

Walking around the old quarter you'll come across several small exhibition spaces and galleries – evidence of Fort Cochin's newfound status as one of India's contemporary art hubs. The scene takes centre stage between mid-December and March when the Kochi-Muziris Biennale (kochimuzirisbiennale.org) draws artists and collectors from across the country with its mix of film, art, performance art and new media hosted by half a dozen different venues.

Chinese fishing nets Daily 6.30–11am & 5–7pm

Probably the single most familiar photographic image of Kerala, the huge, elegant Chinese fishing nets lining the northern shore of Fort Cochin add grace to the waterfront view. Traders from the court of Kublai Khan are said to have introduced them to the Malabar region. Known in Malayalam as cheena vala, they can also be seen throughout the backwaters further south. The nets, which are suspended from poles and operated by levers and weights, require at least four men to control them. If you linger, the fishermen will beckon you over to help (for a small tip).

AND DEMONS – ARE AN UNMISSABLE FEATURE OF KOCHI'S CULTURAL LIFE.

Four venues in the city currently hold daily shows, each preceded by an introductory talk at around 6.30pm. You can watch the dancers being made up if you arrive an hour or so beforehand; keen photographers should turn up well before the start to ensure a front-row seat. Tickets (usually around ₹250) can be bought at the door. Most visitors only attend one performance, but you'll gain a much better sense of what kathakali is all about if you take in at least a couple. The next step is an all-night recital at a temple festival.

Greenix Village Opposite Fort House, Fort Cochin 📞greenix.in. You've a choice between a short kathakali recital (₹350) or longer "kaleidoscope" culture show (₹650) combining excerpts from kathakali plays with displays of mohiniyattam dance, kalarippayat martial art and, on Sun, theyyam, set against a combination of live and pre-recorded music. Performances aren't of the highest standard, but costumes and acts change in quick succession and the make-up is particularly stunning. Note that it costs ₹50 extra to take photos.

Kerala Folklore Museum Theyvara, near Kundanur Bridge, southeastern edge of Ernakulam 📞70347 77499, 🌐keralafolkloremuseum.org. The most atmospheric venue – an a/c theatre decorated with wonderful Keralan murals and traditional wooden architecture – though it's a long trek across town if you're staying in Fort Cochin and sadly you have to book the entire theatre for an exclusive (and eye-wateringly expensive) show. Most visitors tour the museum downstairs and just take a peek at the theatre.

Kerala Kathakali Centre Bernard Master Lane, near Santa Cruz Basilica, just off KB Jacob Rd, Fort Cochin 📞0484 221 5827, 🌐kathakalicentre.com. Popular performances in a dedicated a/c theatre from a company of graduates from the renowned Kerala Kalamandalam academy. You usually get to see three characters, and the music is live. Shows (₹350) 6–7.30pm (make-up 5pm), plus classical music recitals at 8pm every night except Sat (₹300) and kalarippayat martial art daily at 4pm (₹300).

Church of St Francis and around Parade Ground • Daily 8.30am–6.30pm • Free South of the Chinese fishing nets on Church Road (the continuation of River Road) is the large, typically English Parade Ground. Overlooking it, the Church of St Francis was the first built by Europeans in India. Its exact age is not known, though the stone structure is thought to date back to the early sixteenth century. The facade, meanwhile, became the model for most Christian churches in India. Vasco da Gama was buried here in 1524, but his body was later removed to Portugal. Under the Dutch, the church was renovated and became Protestant in 1663, then Anglican with the advent of the British in 1795. Inside, the earliest of various tombstone inscriptions placed in the walls dates from 1562.

Mattancherry Mattancherry, the old district of red-tiled riverfront wharves and houses occupying the northeastern tip of the headland, was once the colonial capital's main market area – the epicentre of the Malabar's spice trade, and home to its wealthiest Jewish and Jain merchants. Like Fort Cochin, its once grand buildings have lapsed into advanced states of disrepair, with most of their original owners working overseas. When Mattancherry's Jews emigrated en masse to Israel in the 1940s, their furniture and other un-portable heirlooms ended up in the antique shops for which the area is now renowned – though these days genuine pieces are few and far between.

Mattancherry Palace Jew Town Rd • Daily except Fri 10am–5pm • charge The sight at the top of most itineraries is Mattancherry Palace, on the roadside a short walk from the Mattancherry Jetty, 1km or so southeast of Fort Cochin. Known locally as the Dutch Palace, the two-storey building was actually erected by the Portuguese, as a gift to the raja of Cochin, Vira Keralavarma (1537–61) – though the Dutch did add to the complex. While its squat exterior is not particularly striking, the interior is captivating, with some of the finest examples of Kerala's underrated school of mural painting, along with Dutch maps of old Cochin, coronation robes belonging to past maharajas, royal palanquins, weapons and furniture.

Paradesi Synagogue Synagogue Lane, Jew Town • Sun–Thurs 10am–noon & 3–5pm • charge The neighbourhood immediately behind and to the south of Mattancherry Palace is known as Jew Town, home of a vestigial Jewish community whose place of worship is the Paradesi (White Jew) Synagogue. Founded in 1568 and rebuilt in 1664, the building is best known for its interior, an incongruous hotchpotch paved with hand-painted eighteenth-century blue-and-white tiles from Canton. An elaborately carved Ark houses four scrolls of the Torah, on which sit gold crowns presented by the maharajas of Travancore and Cochin, testifying to good relations with the Jewish community. The synagogue's oldest artefact is a fourth-century copperplate inscription from the raja of Cochin.

Ernakulam

With its fast-paced traffic, broad streets and glittering gold emporia, ERNAKULAM has more of a big-city feel than Thiruvananthapuram – despite the fact it's marginally smaller. Other than the contemporary art on display at the small Durbar Hall Art Gallery on Durbar Hall Road (daily 11am–7pm; free), and the remarkable folklore museum on the southern outskirts, there's little in the way of sights – if you spend any time here, it'll probably be to eat at one of the area's famous Keralan restaurants.

Running parallel to the seafront, roughly 500m inland, Mahatma Gandhi (MG) Road is its main thoroughfare, where you'll find some of the largest textile stores, jewellery shops and hotels.

Kerala Folklore Museum Theyvara, near Kundanur Bridge • Daily 9.30am–6pm • charge • keralafolkloremuseum.org • Auto-rickshaws charge for the trip out to the museum from the Main Boat Jetty in

Ernakulam – ask for Riviera Junction, or Kundanur Bridge

Ernakulam's one outstanding visitor attraction is the Kerala Folklore Museum, on the distant southeast fringes of the city. Housed in a multi-storey laterite building encrusted with traditional wood- and tile-work, the collection of antiques includes dance-drama masks and costumes, ritual paraphernalia, musical instruments, pieces of temple architecture, 3000-year-old burial urns, cooking utensils, portraits and ancestral photographs – to name but a few of the categories amassed by founder and avid antiques collector, George Thaliyath.

Its crowning glory is an exquisitely decorated theatre on the top floor, decorated with swirling Keralan temple murals and dark wooden pillars. It's only open for exclusive, prearranged kathakali performances.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE KOCHI (COCHIN) KOCHI'S INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT (WORLDIAL.AERO) – ONE OF INDIA'S MOST MODERN AND EFFICIENT – IS AT NEDUMBASSERY, NEAR ALWAYE (AKA ALUA), 29KM NORTH OF ERNAKULAM. A PREPAID TAXI INTO TOWN COSTS
AROUND ₹800 AND TAKES 45MIN OR SO, TRAFFIC PERMITTING. MODERN, COMFORTABLE A/C AIRBUSES ALSO COVER THE ROUTE MORE OR LESS HOURLY, RUNNING TO FORT COCHIN (9 DAILY; 45MIN–1HR 30MIN; ₹100).

By train There are two main railway stations, Ernakulam Junction, near the centre, and Ernakulam Town, 2km further north. The Cochin Harbour Terminus, on Willingdon Island, serves the island's luxury hotels. Ernakulam Town lies on Kerala's main broad-gauge line and sees frequent services to and from Thiruvananthapuram via Kottayam, Kollam and Varkala. In the opposite direction, trains connect Ernakulam and Thrissur, and Chennai across the Ghats in Tamil Nadu. Since the opening of the Konkan Railway, a few express trains travel along the coast all the way to Goa and Mumbai. Although most long-distance express and mail trains depart from Ernakulam Junction, a couple of key services leave from Ernakulam Town. To confuse matters further, a few also start at Cochin Harbour station, so be sure to check the departure point when you book your ticket. The main reservation office, good for trains leaving all the stations, is at Ernakulam Junction.

Destinations Alappuzha/Alleppey (15 daily; 1hr–1hr 30min); Bengaluru (3 daily; 11hr 20min–13hr 30min); Chennai (6 daily; 12–15hr); Goa (2 daily; 12hr 25min–15hr); Kozhikode/Calicut (9 daily; 3hr 20min–4hr 40min); Mumbai (3 daily; 20hr 45min–27hr); Varkala (hourly; 3–4hr).

By bus The KSRTC Central bus stand (☎0484 236 0531), beside the railway line east of MG Rd and north of Ernakulam Junction, is for state-run long-distance services. Reservations for services originating here can be made up to twenty days in advance. There are also two stands for pricier private services: the Kaloor Stand (rural destinations to the south and east) is across the bridge from Ernakulam Town railway station on the Alwaye Rd, while the High Court Stand (buses to Kumily, for Periyar Wildlife Reserve, and north to Thrissur, Guruvayur and Kodungallur) is opposite the High Court ferry jetty. The Fort Cochin bus terminus serves tourist buses, local services to Ernakulam and the airport bus.

RECOMMENDED TRAINS FROM KOCHI/ERNAKULAM THE TRAINS LISTED BELOW ARE RECOMMENDED AS THE FASTEST AND/OR MOST CONVENIENT SERVICES FROM ERNAKULAM. IF YOU'RE HEADING TO ALAPPUZHA FOR THE BACKWATER TRIP TO KOLLAM, TAKE THE BUS, AS THE ONLY TRAINS THAT CAN GET YOU THERE IN TIME INVARIABLY ARRIVE LATE.

Destination	Name	No.	Station	Departs	Arrives
Bengaluru (Bangalore)	Kanyakumari Bangalore Express –	#16525 ET		daily 6.05pm	7.25am+
Kozhikode (Calicut)	Netravathi Express	#16346 EJ		daily 2.05pm	6.40pm
Madgaon (Margao)	Netravathi Express	#16346 EJ		daily 2.05pm	4.35am+
Mumbai	Mangala Ldweep	#12617 EJ		daily 1.15pm	12.50pm+
Thiruvananthapuram	Jan Shatabdi	#12081 EJ		daily 5.25pm	9.35pm
Varkala	Sabari Express	#17230 ET		daily 1.20pm	5.13pm

EJ = Ernakulam Junction

ET = Ernakulam Town

+ = next day

Destinations Alappuzha/Alleppey (hourly; 1hr 50min); Coimbatore (10 daily; 4–5hr 20min); Kottayam (hourly; 2hr); Kozhikode/Calicut (hourly; 5hr 30min); Munnar (daily; 2hr 15min); Thiruvananthapuram (every 30min; 6hr); Thrissur (every 15min; 2hr 20min).

GETTING AROUND BY FERRY KOCHI'S DILAPIDATED FERRIES PROVIDE A CHEAP AND RELAXING WAY TO REACH THE VARIOUS PARTS OF THE CITY. THE MOST POPULAR ROUTE FOR VISITORS IS THE ONE CONNECTING ERNAKULAM'S MAIN BOAT JETTY AND FORT COCHIN/MATTANCHERRY'S CUSTOMS JETTY (5.50AM–9.30PM; EVERY 20–30MIN). ALSO LEAVING FROM ERNAKULAM ARE FERRIES TO BOLGHATTY ISLAND (6.30AM–9PM; EVERY 30MIN) AND VYPEEN ISLAND (7AM–9.30PM; EVERY 30MIN). THE LATTER HAS TWO ROUTES – ONE DIRECT, AND ANOTHER SLOWER SERVICE VIA WILLINGDON ISLAND. FROM FORT COCHIN'S GOVERNMENT JETTY (10MIN WALK WEST OF CUSTOMS JETTY), YOU CAN ALSO HOP ON A FLAT-BOTTOMED VEHICLE FERRY ACROSS THE HARBOUR MOUTH TO VYPEEN ISLAND (6.30AM–9PM; EVERY 10MIN). TICKETS SHOULD BE PURCHASED PRIOR TO EMBARKATION FROM THE HATCH (SEPARATE QUEUES FOR LADIES AND GENTS).

By bus KSRTC is in the process of upgrading its ageing fleet with new, state-of-the-art, low-floored Volvo buses, coloured bright green or orange. The new vehicles – used on prime routes such as the run between Fort Cochin and the airport – are cleaner and more comfortable, but there remain plenty of the old rust buckets in circulation and they're invariably crammed to bursting point. Frequent services run throughout the day between Ernakulam and Fort Cochin, though the ferry is a lot more enjoyable. If you miss the last boat back at 9.30pm, don't wait around for a bus (departures are sporadic and horrendously packed at that time of night); jump in an auto-rickshaw instead (₹350).

By bike Bicycles can be rented from many hotels and guesthouses in Fort Cochin.

By motorbike I-One's-Two Wheelers, at 1/946-A Njalipa-rambu (the lane opposite the entrance to the Kerala Kathakali Centre, near the Basilica in Fort Cochin) has Enfields for rent, as well as a few automatic Honda Activas. You'll need to leave your passport as security. Contact Ivan Joseph (☎98471 55306, 🌐rentabikecochin.com).

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION INDIA TOURISM'S MAIN OFFICE (MON–FRI 9AM–5.30PM, SAT 9AM–NOON; ☎0484 266 9125, 🌐INCREDIBLEINDIA.ORG), PROVIDING RELIABLE INFORMATION AND QUALIFIED GUIDES FOR VISITORS, IS INCONVENIENTLY SITUATED ON WILLINGDON ISLAND, BETWEEN THE VIVANTA BY TAJ MALABAR HOTEL AND TOURIST OFFICE JETTY; THEY ALSO HAVE A DESK AT THE AIRPORT. KTDC'S RECEPTION CENTRE, ON SHANMUGHAM RD, ERNAKULAM (DAILY 8AM–6.30PM; ☎0484 235 3234, 🌐KTDC.COM), BOOKS ROOMS IN THEIR HOTEL CHAIN AND ORGANIZES SIGHTSEEING AND BACKWATER TOURS.

TOURS AND BACKWATER TRIPS BACKWATER TRIPS KTDC OFFERS DAY-TRIPS INTO THE BACKWATERS SOUTH OF KOCHI (DAILY 8.15AM–5.30PM; ₹1250). THE COST INCLUDES HOTEL PICK-UP, TRANSFER TO THE DEPARTURE POINT 5KM NORTH OF ALAPPUZHA, A MORNING CRUISE (IN A MOTORIZED BOAT) ON THE OPEN BACKWATERS, A VILLAGE TOUR, A KERALAN LUNCH BUFFET AND AN AFTERNOON TRIP THROUGH NARROW WATERWAYS IN A MUCH SMALLER PUNTED CANOE. IN A SIMILAR VEIN ARE THE COMMUNITY-BASED TOURS RUN BY THE VILLAGERS OF KUMBALANGHI ON KALLANCHERRY ISLAND, 14KM SOUTH OF FORT COCHIN (☎93884 84424), PROFITS FROM WHICH GO TO THE FARMERS, COIR PRODUCERS AND FISHERMEN WHO SHOW YOU AROUND.

Cruises If you are pushed for time, KTDC's half-day Kochi boat cruise (daily 9.30am–1pm & 2.30–6pm; ₹300) is a good way to orient yourself, but it doesn't stop long in either Mattancherry or Fort Cochin. Book at the reception centre on Shanmugham Rd.

ACCOMMODATION MOST FOREIGN VISITORS OPT TO STAY IN FORT COCHIN, WITH ITS UNCONGESTED BACKSTREETS AND CHARMING COLONIAL-ERA ARCHITECTURE. THERE ARE, HOWEVER, DRAWBACKS: ROOM RATES ARE GROSSLY INFLATED (ESPECIALLY OVER CHRISTMAS AND NEW YEAR), WITH FEW OPTIONS AT THE BUDGET END OF THE SCALE. ERNAKULAM MAY SUFFER A DEARTH OF HISTORIC AMBIENCE, BUT IT'S FAR MORE CONVENIENT FOR TRAVEL CONNECTIONS AND OFFERS LOTS OF CHOICE AND BETTER VALUE IN ALL CATEGORIES. WHEREVER YOU CHOOSE TO STAY, BOOK WELL IN ADVANCE.

ERNAKULAM, MAP

Biju's Tourist Home Corner of Cannonshed and Market roads 📍0484 236 1661. A friendly, efficiently run budget hotel just a 5min walk from the boat jetty, with 27 spotless, well-aired and sizeable rooms that cater to a business crowd. It has its own clean water supply and offers a cheap same-day laundry service. Phone reservations accepted. A/c costs extra. ₹₹

Grand MG Rd 📍grandhotelkerala.com. The most glamorous place to stay in central Ernakulam. Spread over three floors of a 1960s building, its relaxing a/c rooms are done in retro-colonial style, with varnished wood floors and split-cane blinds. The good hotel restaurant warrants a visit in its own right. ₹₹₹

Maple Regency XL/1511 Cannonshed Rd 📍hotelmapleregency.com. The best of the few rock-bottom options in the streets immediately east of the Main Boat Jetty. Although the thirty cheap, clean, non-a/c rooms in the main block are OK, the couple of old ancestral bungalows in the rear are much nicer. They've been converted into pleasant chalet-style "cottages", with red-tiled floors, long pillared verandas and a lot more charm than anything else in this price bracket. Boat Jetty Bungalow next door is run by the same outfit and it's worth checking a couple of rooms for comparison.

₹-₹₹

FORT COCHIN, MAP

Chiramel Residency 1 296 Lilly St @chiramelhomestay.com. A great seventeenth-century heritage homestay, with welcoming owners and five lofty and carefully restored rooms set around a fancily furnished communal sitting room. All have big wooden beds, teak floors and modern bathrooms. There's a cheaper, newer block too, with a similarly nice communal feel. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Delight Ridsdale Rd, opposite the parade ground @delightfulhomestay.com. Occupying an annexe tacked onto a gleaming three-hundred-year-old Portuguese mansion, David and Flowery's homestay holds seven spacious, comfortable and well-aired rooms, all equipped with new bathrooms and quiet ceiling fans. Some open onto a lovely courtyard garden; another has a long veranda overlooking the parade ground. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Fort House 6A Calvathy Rd @hotelforthouse.com. Stylishly simple rooms flank a sandy courtyard littered with pot plants and votive terracotta statues. Those in the better block (rooms 1–6) have comfy king-sized beds and good showers in their chic wet-room bathrooms – though the a/c units can be noisy. Avoid the older budget block on the west side. Rates include breakfast. ₹₹₹₹

Kapithan Inn 931 KL Bernard Rd @0484 2216560. Scrupulously clean, very nicely furnished rooms in a friendly homestay behind Santa Cruz Basilica, with four smarter, larger a/c cottages to the rear (large enough for families). Various rooms at varying rates, but all are a real bargain, plus there's a lovely rooftop space. A/c costs extra. ₹

The Old Courtyard 1/371–2 Princess St @oldcourtyard.com. Another delightful heritage hotel, with eight rooms around a seventeenth-century courtyard, framed by elegant Portuguese arches and bands of original azulejo tiles. For once the decor and antique furnishings (including romantic four-posters) are in keeping with the building – though perhaps a bit dark and lacking mod cons. Upper-storey rooms are less disturbed by noise from the courtyard café. ₹₹₹

Raintree Lodge Peter Celli St 📞0974 7721091. Five outstandingly smart rooms furnished in modern style (three of them with tiny balconies) in a cosy guesthouse that's within easy walking distance of the sights, but still tucked away. The really nice thing about this place is its plant-filled roof terrace, which has panoramic views. No breakfast, however. ₹₹₹

★Secret Garden 745 Bishop Garden Lane, near Pattalam Market 🌐 secretgarden.in. Buried in a maze of narrow back lanes, this unique place is run by Icelandic architect, Thóra Guðmundsdóttir. Huge rooms with high wooden ceilings, hand-carved beds and brightly painted traditional Indian murals open onto balconies fronting an exotic garden with a sizeable pool. Morning yoga on the rosewood deck can be arranged, and there are books and bicycles to borrow. Family rooms are particularly good value. ₹₹₹₹

Sonnetta Residency 387 Princess St 🌐 sonnettaresidency.com. This small, old-fashioned guesthouse has to be one of the cleanest places to stay in Kerala: the surfaces are gleaming, bed linen boil-washed and bathrooms polished. It lacks character, and has no outside sitting space, but is efficiently run and provides a secure, convenient base, with some of the cheapest a/c rooms (costing extra) in the district. ₹₹

Spencer Home 298 Parade Rd 🌐 hotelspencerhomes.com. Warm-toned wood pillars and gleaming ceramic tiled floors line the verandas fronting this Portuguese-era house's eleven immaculate rooms, which open onto a painstakingly kept garden. Peaceful and good value for the area. A/c costs extra. ₹₹

The Tower House 320–321 Tower St 🌐 neemranahotels.com. Graceful period house perfectly situated opposite the Chinese fishing nets. The airy interiors are scrupulously of-the-era, and there's a secluded pool. Don't expect the slick service of other places in this bracket, but note that rates plummet in the off season. ₹₹₹₹

★Walton's Homestay 39 Princess St 🌐 waltonshomestay.com. Among Cochin's most characterful home-stays, run by philosopher and local historian, Christopher Edward Walton, in a centuries-old Dutch house. The rooms, many of which open onto a delightful rear garden, have been beautifully renovated, with modern bathrooms, ceiling fans, solar-powered hot water and comfy beds (a/c costs extra). Book-swap library available; breakfast on the terrace is included. ₹₹

KUMBALANGHI VILLAGE, MAP

Gramam Homestay Neduveli House, North Kumbalangi  gramamhomestay.com. Welcoming homestay offering accommodation in a beautifully-converted coconut warehouse, slap on the banks of a lagoon. Chill in a hammock under the palms, go for cycle and canoe rides around the village, watch local fishermen and toddy tappers at work and generally soak up the peaceful rural atmosphere. Hosts Jos and Lyra provide breakfast (and dinner on request) and there's a self-catering cottage too. ₹₹

★Kallancherry Retreat Kumbalangi village  kallancherryretreat.com. Charming little family homestay, a world away from the crowded streets of Fort Cochin, set under palm trees on the banks of a huge lagoon just a 30min ride out of town. The rooms are squeaky clean and have balconies. ₹₹

EATING FOREIGN TOURISTS TEND TO CONGREGATE AT THE PAVEMENT JOINTS ALONG TOWER RD NEAR THE CHINESE FISHING NETS, DRINKING WARM BEER DISGUISED IN TEAPOTS. THE FOOD SERVED IN THESE CAFÉS, HOWEVER, IS NOTORIOUSLY UNHYGIENIC. YOUR RUPEES WILL STRETCH FURTHER IN ERNAKULAM, WHERE YOU'LL FIND SOME OF THE BEST TRADITIONAL FOOD IN ALL SOUTH INDIA.

ERNAKULAM, MAP

Coffee Beanz Shanmugham Rd  0484 485 6757. Trendy a/c cappuccino bar, patronized in the main by well-heeled students from the local management college shrieking into their mobiles over a full-on MTV soundtrack. The din notwithstanding, it's a good spot to beat the heat and grab a good coffee or quick meal (burgers, grilled sandwiches, dosas and fish curries). ₹₹

Kayees Durbar Hall Rd  0484 235 4321. This salubrious branch of the city's most famous Muslim restaurant is a modern dining hall in the heart of the downtown area, with an a/c section on the first floor. The menu is comprehensive, but everyone comes for the Malabari biryanis (veg, chicken or mutton), served with Kayees' mellow palm-date pickle and Arabian tea. Packed at lunchtime, and on Sun. Pay for your meal token in advance. ₹₹

Kempu Ground floor, Bharat Tourist Home, Durbar Hall Rd 📍 bharathotel.com. The decor – terracotta murals, thick stone floors and dark Keralan wood – is soothing, and the south Indian bites dependably good. Try their bonda – spicy vegetable and peanut balls, served with coconut-chilli chatni that's so thick you have to spread it with a knife. A good place for a coffee break after a shopping trip on nearby MG Rd. ₹₹

★Sarovaram Bypass Rd, Kudunnur 📞0484 230 5519. People travel from across the city for Sarovaram's famous lunchtime sadyas (noon–2.30pm), served on banana leaves in a typical Laurie Baker building, with exposed bricks and stone floors. The pure veg food is unrivalled in the city and the atmosphere is much more Keralan, though it's a long trek across town – you might want to combine it with a trip to the Folklore Museum, about 15min away in a rickshaw. ₹₹₹

Shri Krishna Inn Warriam Rd 📞99613 61999. The sumptuous south Indian thalis served in this smart, dimly lit a/c vegetarian restaurant are on a par with nearby Subhiksha's, but the decor is more appealingly traditional, with lathe-turned wooden pillars and earthy-toned Keralan murals setting the tone. As well as unlimited thalis, they do a huge range of ice creams. ₹₹

Subhiksha Bharat Tourist Home, Durbar Hall Rd 📍 bharathotel.com. The same banana leaf sadyas as at Sarovaram, served in more contemporary surroundings, with incongruous music and a/c. Hidden at the back of the hotel lobby, it's a great place for crowd-watching, especially on Sun when everyone appears in their best saris and shirts for the big family meal. ₹₹₹

FORT COCHIN, MAP

★Dal Roti 1 293 Lilly St. The first choice among Fort Cochin's hungry travellers, despite the erratic service and shortage of tables. You'll know why as soon as you taste their signature kati rolls – deliciously flaky wraps filled with egg, chicken or vegetables – or good-value thalis. The food is authentic north Indian and full of smoky, spicy flavours you don't get to enjoy that often in Kerala.

David Hall Gallery Café Parade Ground 📍 davidhall.in. Delicious pizzas (noon–3pm & 6–9pm only), made in a proper pizza oven and served alfresco in a lovely green oasis behind the David Hall art space. They also serve freshly ground coffee, quality teas and juices. Don't miss the amazing seventeenth-century Dutch timbers on your way through the exhibition space.

Fort House 6A Calvathy Rd ☎hotelforthouse.com. Carefully prepared Keralan specialities – including delicious seafood options and not-so-traditional roast chicken – served on a romantic, candlelit jetty. The food is consistently good, and not too pricey, and the location's perfect for watching the ships chugging in and out of the docks.

Kashi Art Café Burgher St ☎0484 221 5769. Cool, open-air gallery café, with floors made from pebbles and railway sleepers, patronized mainly by well-heeled metropolitan Indian tourists. Freshly ground espresso is the big draw, along with their famous house cakes (the old-fashioned chocolate gateau is legendary), but they also do light meals and savoury snacks – check the specials board, and expect perfunctory service.

Mary's Kitchen 1/957 KB Jacob Rd ☎94460 14385. This small rooftop restaurant across from Santa Cruz Basilica is lovingly run by husband-and-wife team Mary and Martin. Everything is home-cooked from scratch and it's the place to come for true Keralan specialities, particularly at breakfast. Kozhukkotta (coconut dumplings) and banana ada (steamed rice-flour parcels made with coconut and jaggery) are fresh and filling – and remarkably cheap. Ask about cookery classes.

Teapot Peter Celli St ☎0484 221 8035. With its massive collection of teapots from around the world, shabby-chic colour-washed wood floors and walls, tea-chest tables and funky little mezzanine floor, this backstreet tearoom gives Kashi some much-needed competition. Quality teas and coffees are the mainstay, but they also do light meals and delicious home-made cakes. A generous breakfast with tea or coffee is available for a little extra.

MATTANCHERRY, MAP

Crafters Café Next to Heritage Arts shop, Jew Town Rd ☎crafters.in. Handy pit stop if you're visiting the nearby synagogue. Tables on their wonderful little blue-pillared balcony are great for people-watching as you enjoy a plate of delicious butterfly prawns, appam with coconut-veg stew or a freshly cut sandwich. They also do proper espresso and cakes. ₹

★Kayees Rhatmathulla Rahtmathulla Hotel, New Rd. This Muslim joint in the backstreets of Mattancherry is legendary across the state for its fragrant biryanis, prepared fresh each morning according to a traditional, closely guarded Malabari recipe. There are frequently queues out the door, so get here before 1pm (ideally earlier) to avoid disappointment. You've a choice of chicken, prawn, fish, veg or mutton biryanis, accompanied by the wonderful house date pickle. ₹

★Sri Krishna Café Mattancherry Palace/Cheralai Rd. Typical south Indian, pure-veg restaurants are thin on the ground on this side of the water, so it's worth jumping in a rickshaw from Fort Cochin to eat at this famous old Udupi café in the temple district of Mattancherry. ₹

SHOPPING

MAP, MAP AND THIS MAP

While serious shopping in Ernakulam tends to be focused on MG Rd and the mega malls to the north of the city (see box below), over in the tourist enclave of Fort Cochin, a combination of lookalike Kashmiri emporia (best avoided) and more individual boutiques, handicraft and curio shops cater for the passing foreign trade; the Ethnic Passage next to the synagogue in Jew Town has a number of these under one renovated two-thousand-year-old roof. Jew Town is also the hub of an established antiques scene, with some of the largest and most spectacular showrooms in India – a legacy of the post-1960s exodus of the district's Jewish population to Israel, when a large amount of family furniture was left behind. Some approach the scale of small museums, with chunks of temple masonry, carved wood pillars, religious sculpture, doors, windows and even, in one instance, a huge Keralan snake boat for sale – though don't expect to find any bargains. Original art by local painters also features prominently in the galleries of Jew Town.

AKP Metals and Alloys Broadway, Ernakulam ☎099 466 16135. The city's largest metal-ware emporium, showcasing a vast selection of traditional Keralan items in brass, copper, silver and bell metal. Mon–Sat 9.30am–8pm.

Cinnamon Trinity Hotel, 658 Ridsdale Rd, Parade Ground, Fort Cochin ☎0484 221 7124. The Fort Cochin branch of the hip Bengaluru lifestyle chain sells clothes, shoes and items for the home from a range of top Indian designers in a light and airy boutique. Women's garments are particularly striking: unusual pieces in gorgeous natural colours.

Fabindia 279(I), Napier St, near Parade Ground, Fort Cochin (w fabindia.com). Specializing in garments made from traditional Indian textiles, the nationwide chain boasts five branches in the city, the most convenient of them in Fort Cochin. Browse a huge range of vibrant kurtas, tops, skirts, bedspreads and cushion covers – all at reasonable (fixed) rates.

Idiom Bastion St near Princess St, Fort Cochin. The best place to browse for books on travel, Indian and Keralan culture, flora and fauna, religion and art; they also have an excellent range of fiction titles in stock. There's a second branch in Mattancherry.

Khadi Gramodyog Bhavan Pallimuku, MG Rd, Ernakulam. The usual assortment of climate-friendly, hand-spun cotton and silk, sold by length or as ready-made garments, as well as nice decorative items for the home, incense, honey, sandalwood and other village handicrafts at fixed prices.

KOCHI'S SHOPPING MALLS KOCHI'S MASSIVE SHOPPING MALLS ARE PRIME LEISURE DESTINATIONS FOR THE CITY'S WELL-HEELED MIDDLE CLASSES (DAILY 10AM–10PM). ON ERNAKULAM'S MG ROAD, CENTRE SQUARE (w CENTRESQUAREKOCHI.COM) HAS A FOOD COURT AND THE ELEVEN-SCREEN CINÉPOLIS, PLUS THE USUAL INTERNATIONAL, AIR-CONDITIONED STORES. SOME 7KM NORTH OF THE CENTRE, AROUND EDAPALLY JUNCTION AND SPREAD OVER SIX STOREYS, THE OBERON (w OBERONMALL.COM) USED TO BE THE HIGH TEMPLE OF MODERN KERALAN CONSUMERISM UNTIL IT WAS USURPED BY THE COLOSSAL LULU MALL (w LULUMALL.IN), A SIXTEEN-ACRE COMPLEX 2KM FURTHER NORTH, WITH A SEVEN-SCREEN MULTIPLEX, EIGHTEEN FOOD OUTLETS AND PARKING FOR THREE THOUSAND CARS.

Niraamaya Behind the Pardesi Synagogue, Mattan-cherry www.ayurvedaonline.com. This innovative little boutique in Jew Town sells clothes made from organic cotton infused with healing Ayurvedic herbs. Dyed in subtle colours, they're the perfect antidote to the sticky Keralan heat. Also sells bed linen and yoga mats crafted from natural materials. There's another branch on Quiros St in Fort Cochin.

Penta Menaka Mall Marine Drive, Ernakulam. The best place in the city for electronic goods, computer/video games and movies – at a fraction of the price you'd pay back home (they're mostly pirated).

Travellers' Paradise KL Bernard Master Rd, Fort Cochin www.bloominthenaturalway.com. French designer Sophie Debiève set up this collective to market original pieces made by local Keralan women – mostly silk and cotton in beautiful Indian colours, and incorporating floral French print motifs. The range includes original household linen, bags and cards. The adjoining Masters Art Café is a nice place to have a breather.

Tribes Next to Head Post Office, Fort Cochin www.tribesindia.com. Jewellery, textiles, paintings, terracotta and stone work, metal crafts and organic food products produced by tribal communities across the country. Standout pieces range from bead necklaces by the Wancho of Arunachal Pradesh to coral bracelets from the Konyak Nagas and vibrant Pithora ritual art by the Bhils of Madhya Pradesh. Profits go towards development projects in the artists' communities.

DIRECTORY BANKS ALL THE MAJOR SOUTH INDIAN BANKS HAVE BRANCHES ON MG RD IN ERNAKULAM. IN KOCHI, HEAD TO KUNNUPURAM JUNCTION FOR BANKS; ATMS ARE DOTTED EVERYWHERE AROUND TOWN.

Cinemas The largest multiplex in Kochi is Cinépolis, on the sixth floor of Centre Square Mall (see Box above). It has eleven screens, swanky VIP sofas, a "7D screen" and shows all the latest Hollywood and Bollywood offerings.

Hospitals The six-hundred-bed Medical Trust Hospital on MG Rd (☎0484 235 8001, www.medicaltrushospital.com) is one of the state's most advanced private hospitals and has a 24hr casualty unit and ambulance service.

Laundry The municipal laundry in Fort Cochin is the Dhobi Khanna, on the south side of the district, a 3km/₹40 rickshaw ride from the tourist enclave. You'll pay approximately ₹10–15 for shirts; ₹25 for trousers. Allow 24hr before collection.

Taxis Ashik Taxis (☎92881 57145 or ☎96567 98481) cover the entire state, and offer day-trips at fair prices. If you'd like to hire a car and driver for a few days or more, get in touch with Baiju (☎94468 27117), who is reliable and friendly and speaks great English.

Around Kochi While the majority of visitors use the city as a base from which to make day-trips out to the surrounding backwaters and satellite villages, there's nothing to stop you from doing the opposite, basing yourself in the quieter backwater locations out of town – such as Vypeen Island to the north, or Kumbalangi to the south – and travelling in to see the sights by bus, taxi or auto-rickshaw. There is some outstanding homestay accommodation in Kumbalangi village for example and staying in one of these will offer a much different perspective and a very different traveller experience.

Backwater trips Coir-production, rope-making, toddy-tapping, fishing and crab-farming are the main sources of income in the backwater villages south of Kochi. Easily reachable via the national highway, they're scattered over an expanse of huge lagoons and canals, flowing west behind a near continuous beach.

You can dip into the region for a day on one of the popular trips run out of Fort Cochin by KTDC, or with a community-based tourism initiative based at Kumbalangi village – an award-winning project where proceeds are shared among the locals. The cost of the latter tour is ₹1400 (or ₹800 without lunch). You also have to budget for transport to and from the village. The trip is most easily done by auto-rickshaw (₹350–400 each way); if travelling by bus, head for Perumamapadappu, aka “Perumbadapu” on Google maps, and catch an auto from there for the remaining couple of kilometres.

Thripunithra

Some 12km southeast of Ernakulam and a short bus or auto-rickshaw ride from the bus stand just south of Jos Junction on MG Road, the small suburban town of THRIPUNITRA is worth a visit for its dilapidated colonial-style Hill Palace, now an eclectic museum, as well as its fabulous temple festival, held in October or November.

Hill Palace

Tues–Sun 9.30am–12.30pm, 2–4.30pm • charge The royal family of Cochin at one time had around forty palaces – the Hill Palace was confiscated by the state government after Independence, and has slipped into dusty decline over the past decades. One of the museum's finest exhibits is an early seventeenth-century wooden mandapa (hall) featuring carvings of episodes from the Ramayana. Of interest too are the silver filigree jewel boxes, gold and silver ornaments, and ritual objects associated with grand ceremonies. Artefacts in the bronze gallery include a kingini katti knife, whose decorative bells belie the fact that it was used for beheading, and a body-shaped cage in which condemned prisoners would be hung while birds pecked them to death.

Sri Purnathrayisa Temple Performances of theatre, classical music and dance, including all-night kathakali, are held over a period of eight days during the annual Vrishikolsavam festival (Oct/Nov) at the Sri Purnathrayisa Temple on the way to the palace. Inside the temple compound, both in the morning and at night, massed drum orchestras perform chenda melam in procession with fifteen caparisoned elephants.

Cherai Beach The closest beach to Kochi worth the effort of getting to is Cherai, 25km north on Vypeen Island. A 3km strip of golden sand and thumping surf, it's sandwiched on a narrow strip of land between the sea and a very pretty backwater area of glassy lagoons. Chunky granite sea defences prevent the waves from engulfing the ribbon of fishing villages that subsist along this strip. Nowhere, however, is the sand more than a few metres wide at high tide, and the undertow can get quite strong. Even so, Cherai is gaining in popularity each year, and a row of small resorts and guesthouses has sprung up to accommodate the trickle of mainly foreign travellers who find their way up here from Fort Cochin.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY FERRY AND CHERAI BEACH BUS TO GET TO CHERAI, YOU CAN JUMP ON THE CAR FERRY (JANGAR) ACROSS TO VYPEEN ISLAND FROM THE JETTY NEXT TO BRUNTON BOATYARD IN FORT COCHIN, THEN TRANSFER ONTO THE HOURLY BUS WAITING ON THE OTHER SIDE, OR CATCH ONE OF THE MORE FREQUENT BUSES FROM OPPOSITE THE HIGH COURT JETTY IN ERNAKULAM.

LAKSHADWEEP

Visitors to Kerala in search of an exclusive tropical paradise may well find it in Lakshadweep (Ⓜlakshadweep.nic.in), the islands that lie between 200km and 400km offshore in the deep blue of the Arabian Sea. The smallest Union Territory in India, Lakshadweep's 27 tiny, coconut-palm-covered coral islands are the archetypal tropical hideaway, edged with pristine white sands and surrounded by calm lagoons where average water temperature stays around 26°C all year. Beyond the lagoons lie the coral reefs, home to sea turtles, dolphins, eagle rays, lionfish, parrotfish, octopus, barracudas and sharks. Only ten of the islands are inhabited, with a total population of just over 65,000, the majority of whom are Malayalam-speaking Sunni Muslims said to be descended from seventh-century Keralan Hindus who converted to Islam.

Theoretically, it's possible to visit Lakshadweep year round; the hottest time is April and May, when temperatures can reach 33°C; the monsoon (May–Sept) attracts approximately half the rainfall seen in Kerala, in the form of passing showers rather than deluges, although the seas are rough. Concerted attempts are being made to minimize the ecological impact of tourism in the islands; all visits must be arranged in Kochi through the Society for Promotion of Recreational Tourism and Sports (SPORTS) on IG Rd, Willingdon Island (☎0484 235 5387, 🌐lakshadweeptourism.com). At the time of writing, basic but pricey accommodation – run by the Lakshadweep department of tourism – was available on Kadmat, Kavaratti, Bangaram, Thinnakara and Minicoy. Access by plane is to the gateway island of Agatti (Mon–Sat; daily 1hr 30min), from where you'll be transferred by speedboat; or you can travel by sea from Kochi (14–18hr). SPORTS also offers a five-day cruise package taking in Kavaratti, Kalpeni and Minicoy (₹30,500/person). Meals are included, and permits taken care of, but diving costs extra. Week-long diving courses are available in Kadmat, Kavaratti and Minicoy from ₹20,000/person.

By scooter Alternatively, you can hire a scooter and ride up – in which case, a preferable route to the main road is the more picturesque coastal lane hugging the sea wall; you can pick this up by turning west (left) down a bumpy backroad at Nayarambalam, 1km north of Narakkal, or via any of the lanes peeling left further on.

ACCOMMODATION BRIGHTON BEACH HOUSE 3/783 PALLI FORT, CONVENT BEACH RD, 2.5KM NORTH OF CHERAI 🌐BRIGHTONBEACHHOUSE.ORG. FAIRLY BASIC ROOMS (SOME A/C) OPENING ON TO A YARD RIGHT NEXT TO THE SEA WALL, A 5MIN DRIVE NORTH OF THE MAIN BEACHFRONT. MEALS AND SUNDOWNERS ARE SERVED IN A SMALL GAZEBO-CUM-SUN-TERRACE OVERLOOKING THE SAND, WHICH IS PARTICULARLY NARROW HERE. A/C COSTS EXTRA. ₹₹

Kuzhupilly Beach House Kuzhupilly, 4.5km south of Cherai 🌐 kuzhupilly-beach-house.business.site. Little budget guesthouse just 30min by taxi from the Vypeen–Fort Cochin ferry dock, but over-looking a deserted stretch of beach and back-waters. The best rooms are on the upper floor and have fine sea views. Delicious, authentic Keralan home-cooking is on offer, along with bicycles and canoe tours. You can get most of the way there by bus (much cheaper); phone ahead for instructions. ₹₹

La Dame Rouge Kizhakke Veedu, Manapilly 🌐 ladamerouge.com. This small, French-owned boutique guesthouse is a true labour of love – beautifully designed and run by host Marco, a former consular official who's been here for decades. The rooms and duplex suites are exquisitely decorated, with colour-washed walls, four-posters and Indian antiques – and the location, near a huge backwater, is superb. Canoe trips to the local market, Ayurvedic massages and fragrant Indo-Gallic fusion cooking are all on offer. Half board ₹₹₹₹

Ocean Breath Cherai 🌐 cheraihotels.com. The best-value budget option in Cherai, and the one with most Keralan atmosphere. No sea views (it's set back across the road from the sea wall) but the rooms are pleasant, with high, traditional Keralan ceilings and carved gables, shiny ceramic floors and small sitouts. ₹₹

Thrissur (Trichur) THRISSUR (Trichur), a busy market hub and temple town roughly midway between Kochi (74km south) and Palakkad (79km northeast) on the NH-47, is a convenient, albeit trafficclogged, base for central Kerala. Close to the Palghat (Palakkad) Gap – an opening in the natural border made by the Western

Ghats – Thrissur presided over the main trade route into the region from Tamil Nadu and Karnataka and for years was the capital of Cochin state.

Today, Thrissur is home to several influential art institutions and prides itself on being the cultural capital of Kerala. One of the state's principal Hindu temples, Vadukkunnathan, is here too, at the centre of a huge circular maidan that hosts all kinds of public gatherings, not least Kerala's most extravagant, noisy and sumptuous festival, Puram. The town derives most of its income from remittance cheques sent by expatriates in the Gulf – hence the predominance of ostentatious modern houses in the surrounding villages. The hinterland also serves as a storehouse, dotted with communities and pilgrimage sites where both contemporary party politics and ancient art traditions are pursued with great enthusiasm, despite the disruptive impact on local life of mass out-migration.

Vadakke Madham Brahmaswam Thakkemadham Rd • Daily 10am–5pm • Donation requested • ☎0487 244 0877

The mighty Vadukkunnathan Temple, in the centre of the Round, may be closed to non-Hindus, but you can gain a sense of how ancient its roots are at the nearby Vadakka Madham Brahmaswam, five minutes' walk west of the temple, where young Namboodiri Brahmin boys attend chanting classes at a traditional madham, or college. Wearing traditional white mundu, sacred threads and ash marks on their skin, the students sit cross-legged in traditional Keralan halls while they repeat verses from three-thousand-year-old texts modelled for them by their gurus. If you'd like to visit, telephone ahead to ensure classes will be in progress.

Basilica of Our Lady of Dolours Church Rd • Tower Tues–Fri 9am–1pm & 2–6pm, Sat & Sun 10am–1pm & 2–7.30pm • charge • 🌐glasnevinparish.ie

Not to be outdone by the scale of the Hindu temple across town, the vast Indo-Gothic Basilica of Our Lady of Dolours (Puthan Pally in Malayalam) dominates the skyline southeast of the Round, thanks to its gigantic 79m-high belfry – the tallest in India. Take the lift to the top, where superb views extend across the palm forest surrounding Thrissur, but coming down choose the stairs so you can view the artwork adorning the walls; an eclectic mix of wood, stained glass and brass depict stories from the Bible.

Archeological Museum Karunkaram Nambiar Rd • Tues–Sun 10am–5pm • charge Of the town's museums, grouped to the north of the Round, the only one worth visiting – not least for the splendid Keralan architecture of the former palace it's housed in – is the Archeological Museum, opposite the Priya Darshini bus stand, a five-minute walk north of the Round on Karunkaram Nambiar Road. Former residence of the Cochin royal family, the two-hundred-year-old Shaktan Thampuran Palace is beautifully decorated with intricate wood- and tile-work. Exhibits include fifteenth- and eighteenth-century hero stones, a fearsome selection of beheading axes and a massive iron-studded treasury box.

THRISSUR PURAM THRISSUR IS BEST KNOWN TO OUTSIDERS AS THE VENUE FOR KERALA'S BIGGEST ANNUAL FESTIVAL, PURAM, WHICH TAKES PLACE ON ONE DAY IN THE HINDU MONTH OF MEDAM (APRIL–MAY; ASK AT A TOURIST OFFICE OR CHECK ONLINE FOR THE EXACT DATE). INAUGURATED BY SHAKTAN TAMPURAN, THE RAJA OF COCHIN, BETWEEN 1789 AND 1803, THE EVENT IS THE CULMINATION OF EIGHT DAYS OF FESTIVITIES SPREAD OVER NINE DIFFERENT TEMPLES TO MARK OBEISANCE TO LORD SHIVA, AT THE PEAK OF THE

SUMMER’S HEAT. LIKE TEMPLE FESTIVALS ACROSS KERALA, IT INVOLVES THE STOCK INGREDIENTS OF CAPARISONED ELEPHANTS, MASSED DRUM ORCHESTRAS AND FIREWORK DISPLAYS, BUT ON A SCALE AND PERFORMED WITH AN INTENSITY UNMATCHED BY ANY OTHER.

Puram’s grand stage is the long, wide path leading to the southern entrance of Vadukkunnathan Temple on the Round. Shortly after dawn, a sea of onlookers gathers here to watch the first phase of the 36-hour marathon – the kudammattom, or “Divine Durbar” – in which two majestic elephant processions, representing Thrissur’s Tiruvambadi and Paramekkavu temples, advance towards each other down the walkway, like armies on a medieval battlefield, preceded by ranks of drummers and musicians. Both sides present thirteen tuskeders sumptuously decorated with gold caparisons (nettipattom), each ridden by three young Brahmins clutching objects symbolizing royalty: silver-handled whisks of yak hair, circular peacock-feather fans and colourful silk umbrellas fringed with silver pendants. At the centre of the opposing lines, the principal elephant carries an image of the temple’s presiding deity. Swaying gently, the elephants stand still much of the time, ears flapping, seemingly oblivious to the crowds and huge orchestra that plays in front of them, competing to create the most noise and greatest spectacle. When the music reaches its peak around sunset, the two groups set off towards different districts of town. This signals the start of a spectacular firework display that begins with a series of deafening explosions and lasts through the night, with the teams once again trying to outdo each other to put on the most impressive show.

If you venture to Thrissur for Puram, be prepared for packed buses and trains, and book accommodation well in advance. As is usual for temple festivals, many men use the event as an excuse to get hopelessly drunk. Women are thus advised to dress conservatively and only to go to the morning session, or to watch with a group of Indian women – and at all times avoid the area immediately in front of the drummers, where the “rhythm madmen” congregate.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION THE THRISSUR (TRICHUR) PRINCIPAL POINT OF ORIENTATION IN THRISSUR IS THE ROUND, A ROAD (SUBDIVIDED INTO NORTH, SOUTH, EAST AND WEST) WHICH CIRCLES THE VADUKKUNNATHAN TEMPLE COMPLEX AND MAIDAN IN THE TOWN CENTRE.

By train On the main line to Chennai and other points in neighbouring Tamil Nadu, and with good connections to Ernakulam/Kochi and Thiruvananthapuram, the railway station is 1km southwest.

Destinations Ernakulam/Kochi (every 30min; 1hr 20min); Kozhikode/Calicut (12 daily; 2hr 15min–3hr 40min); Thiruvananthapuram (hourly; 6hr–8hr).

By bus The KSRTC long-distance bus stand is opposite the station. The Shakthan Thampuran bus stand, on TB Rd, around 1km from Round South, serves local destinations south such as Irinjalakuda, Kodungallur and Guruvayur.

Tourist information The primary purpose of the volunteer-run DTPC tourist office (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm; ☎0487 232 0800), on Palace Rd opposite the Town Hall (5min walk off Round East), is to promote the Puram festival, but they also hand out maps of Thrissur.

ACCOMMODATION THRISSUR HAS PLENTY OF COMPETITIVELY PRICED MID-RANGE HOTELS BUT ONLY A COUPLE OF DECENT BUDGET ONES. IF YOU'RE PLANNING TO BE HERE DURING PURAM, BOOK WELL IN ADVANCE AND BEAR IN MIND THAT ROOM RATES SOAR – SOME OF THE MORE UPMARKET HOTELS, AND THOSE OVERLOOKING THE ROUND, CHARGE UP TO TEN TIMES THEIR USUAL PRICES.

Ashoka Inn TB Rd 🌐ashokainn.co.in. Best value among the business-oriented three-stars in the Shakthan Thampuran bus stand district, in a gleaming, glass-sided tower block with spacious, impeccably clean rooms. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Gurukripa Heritage Chembottil Lane 🌐gurukripaheritage.in. Run with great efficiency by the venerable Mr Venugopal, the Gurukripa, just off Round South, offers a variety of simple rooms, (including several great-value singles) ranged around a long inner courtyard. ₹₹

★Kuruppath Mannadiara Lane, off Kuruppam Rd 📍
kuruppathheritage.com. An impeccably restored heritage bungalow, cowering amid the high-rise tower blocks in the heart of town, just a stone's throw from Round South. Filled with dark wood and antique tiles, the interiors are light, cool and astonishingly peaceful, considering the location. ₹₹

EATING AND DRINKING THERE ARE PLENTY OF DEPENDABLE PLACES TO EAT IN THRISSUR, WITH MANY HOTELS AND BUSY “MEALS” JOINTS LINING THE ROUND. IN THE EVENING, FROM 8.30PM, YOU CAN ALSO JOIN THE AUTO-RICKSHAW-WALAS, HOSPITAL VISITORS, ITINERANT MENDICANTS, AYAPPA DEVOTEES AND STUDENTS WHO CONGREGATE AT THE POPULAR THATTUKADA HOT FOOD MARKET ON THE CORNER OF ROUND SOUTH AND ROUND EAST, OPPOSITE THE MEDICAL COLLEGE HOSPITAL. THE RUSTIC KERALAN COOKING – OMELETTES, DOSAS, PARATHAS, IDDIAPPAM, BEAN CURRIES AND EGG MASALA – IS FRESHLY PREPARED, DELICIOUS AND UNBELIEVABLY CHEAP.

Akshaya Luciya Palace, Marar Rd, just off the southwest corner of the Round 📍hotelluciyapalace.com. Fairly bland hotel restaurant where waiters in bow ties serve quality Keralan meals at lunchtime in a blissfully cold a/c dining hall. From 7.30pm you can order from an exhaustive multicuisine menu, sitting outside in a pleasant garden illuminated by fairy lights. Beer is permitted with meals. ₹₹₹

★Bharath Hotel Chembottil Lane, 50m down the road from the Elite Hotel 📞0487 242 1720. Thrissur's top pure-veg place, packed from 7.30am onwards. The food is unfailingly fresh and delicious, and the queues stretch out the door on weekends. Be sure to leave room for the ada, a mix of sugar cane, coconut and rice steamed in a banana leaf (which tastes disconcertingly like old-fashioned British treacle pudding). ₹₹₹

DIRECTORY BANKS THERE ARE ATMS ALL OVER THE CENTRE OF TOWN. THE BEST PLACE TO CHANGE MONEY AND TRAVELLERS' CHEQUES IS THE UTI BANK IN THE CITY

CENTRE SHOPPING BUILDING (MON–FRI 9.30AM–3.30PM, SAT 9.30AM–1.30PM) ON ROUND WEST. THE UAE EXCHANGE & FINANCIAL SERVICES (MON–FRI 9.30AM–6PM, SAT 9.30AM–2PM) IN THE BASEMENT OF THE CASINO HOTEL BUILDING ALSO CHANGES CURRENCY AND TRAVELLERS’ CHEQUES.

Internet Available for ₹30/hr at Hugues Net on the top floor of the City Centre Shopping building and at SS Consultants next to the Luciya Palace hotel.

Post office The main post office is on the southern edge of town, just off Round South.

Around Thrissur Guruvayur, 19km west of Thrissur, is the site of south India’s most revered Krishna temple, with hundreds of thousands of Hindu pilgrims pouring in all year to worship at the shrine. As usual, non-Hindus are barred from entering, but there is a cultural institution that has opened its doors to visitors; learn all about kathakali in Cheruthuruthy’s Kerala Kalamandalam.

Cheruthuruthy CHERUTHURUTHY, on the banks of the Bharatpuzha (aka “Nila”) River 32km north of Thrissur, is internationally famous as the home of Kerala Kalamandalam (☎0488 4 26 2418, www.kalamandalam.ac.in), the state’s flagship training school for kathakali and other indigenous Keralan performing arts. The academy was founded in 1927 by the revered Keralan poet Vallathol (1878–1957), and has since been instrumental in the large-scale revival of interest in unique Keralan art forms. Non-Hindus are welcome to attend kathakali, kudiyattam and mohiniyattam performed in the school's wonderful theatre, which replicates the style of the wooden, sloping-roofed traditional kuttambalam auditoria found in Keralan temples. You can also sit in on classes, watch demonstrations of mural painting, and visit exhibitions of costumes by signing up for the fascinating “a day with the masters” cultural programme (Mon–Sat 9.30am–1pm; charge which includes lunch).

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN CHERUTHURUTHY SERVED BY EXPRESS TRAINS TO AND FROM MANGALARU, CHENNAI AND KOCHI, THE NEAREST MAINLINE RAILWAY STATION IS SHORANUR JUNCTION, 3KM SOUTH.

By bus Buses heading to Shoranur from Thrissur's Priya Darshini (aka “Wadakkancheri”) stand pass through Cheruthuruthy.

ACCOMMODATION RIVER RETREAT HERITAGE AYURVEDIC RESORT 2KM FROM KALAMANDALAM @ RIVERRETREAT.IN.
ACCOMMODATION IN CHERUTHURUTHY IS LIMITED TO THE LUXURIOUS RIVER RETREAT HERITAGE AYURVEDIC RESORT, FORMER PALACE OF THE RAJA OF COCHIN. THE THREE-STAR HOTEL AND AYURVEDA SPA OCCUPIES AN IDYLIC POSITION ON THE BANKS OF THE NILA, WHERE YOU CAN SWIM IN A CRYSTALLINE POOL, PARTLY SHADED BY COCONUT PALMS. ₹₹₹

Kozhikode (Calicut) Formerly one of Asia's most prosperous trading capitals, the busy coastal city of KOZHIKODE

(Calicut), 225km north of Kochi, occupies an extremely important place in Keralan legend and history. It's also significant in the chronicles of European involvement on the Subcontinent, as Vasco da Gama landed at nearby Kappad beach in 1498. After centuries of decline following the Portuguese destruction of the city, Kozhikode is once again prospering thanks to the flow of remittance cheques from the Gulf – a legacy of its powerful, Moppila-Muslim merchant community, who ran the local ruler's (Zamorin's) navy and trade. The recent building boom has swept aside most monuments dating from the golden age, but a few survive, notably a handful of splendid Moppila mosques, distinguished by their typically Keralan, multi-tiered roofs.

The Moppila mosques The three most impressive mosques lie off a backroad running through the Muslim quarter of Thekkepuram, 2km southwest of the maidan (the auto-rickshaw-walas will know how to find them). Start at the 1100-year-old Macchandipalli Masjid, between Francis Road and the Kuttichira Tank, whose ceilings are covered in beautiful polychrome stucco and intricate Koranic script. A couple of hundred metres further north, the eleventh-century Jama Masjid's main prayer hall, large enough for a congregation of 1200 worshippers, holds another elaborately carved ceiling. The most magnificent of the trio of mosques, however, is the Mithqalpalli (aka Jama'atpalli) Masjid, hidden down a lane behind Kuttichira tank. Resting on 24 wooden pillars, its four-tier roof and turquoise walls were built more than seven hundred years ago.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE KOZHIKODE (CALICUT)
KOZHIKODE'S INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT ( AAI.AERO), AT KARIPPUR, 23KM SOUTH OF THE CITY, IS PRIMARILY A GATEWAY FOR EMIGRANT WORKERS FLYING TO AND FROM THE GULF, BUT ALSO HAS DIRECT FLIGHTS TO MANY OTHER INDIAN CITIES, INCLUDING MUMBAI, DELHI, KOCHI, CHENNAI AND HYDERABAD. A TAXI FROM THE AIRPORT INTO TOWN COSTS AROUND ₹550.

Destinations Chennai (1–2 daily; 1hr 30min); Cochin (daily; 45min); Mumbai (3 daily; 1hr 40min–2hr).

By train The railway station, near the centre of town, is served by coastal expresses, slower passenger trains and superfast express trains to and from Goa, Mumbai, Kochi and Thiruvananthapuram.

Destinations Bengaluru (daily; 12hr 30min); Chennai (4 daily; 12–18hr); Goa (2 daily; 8–11hr 30min); Kannur (every 30min–1hr; 1hr 20min–1hr 45min); Ernakulam/Kochi (10 daily; 4–5hr); Mumbai (2 daily; 22hr); Thiruvananthapuram (7 daily; 7hr 50min–11hr).

By bus There are three bus stands. Government-run services pull in at the KSRTC bus stand, on Mavoor Rd (aka Indira Gandhi Rd). Private long-distance – mainly over-night – buses stop at the New Moffussil private stand, 500m away on the other side of Mavoor Rd. The Palayam bus stand, off MM Ali Rd, just serves the city.

Destinations Bengaluru (19 daily; 7–10hr); Kannur (hourly; 1hr 30min–3hr); Kalpetta/Wayanad (every 30min; 2hr); Kottayam (12 daily; 4–7hr); Ooty (3–4 daily; 5hr 30min–6hr); Thrissur (every 30min; 3hr 30min).

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION KTDC'S TOURIST INFORMATION BOOTH (OFFICIALLY DAILY 9AM–7.30PM; ☎ 0495 270 0097), AT THE RAILWAY STATION, HAS INFORMATION ON TRAVEL CONNECTIONS AND SIGHTS, BUT OPENING HOURS ARE ERRATIC.

ACCOMMODATION HOTELS IN KOZHIKODE ARE PLENTIFUL, EXCEPT AT THE BOTTOM END OF THE RANGE, WHERE DECENT PLACES ARE FEW AND FAR BETWEEN. THIS IS ONE CITY WHERE TRAVELLERS ON TIGHTER BUDGETS MIGHT BE TEMPTED TO UPGRADE. THE BEACH IS A GREAT PLACE TO STAY, THOUGH YOU'LL NEED TO HEAD INTO TOWN FOR THE BEST PLACES TO EAT.

Alakapuri Guest House Chinthavalappu Junction, MM Ali Rd, near the Palayam bus stand ☎ hotelalakapuri.com. Opening on to a large central garden, the rooms in this popular place range from old-fashioned, spartan, a/c doubles to more spacious “cottages” with polished wood chairs, pillared sitouts and sofas. All are neatly painted and clean. In the evening, you can eat on the lawn or in their cavernous dining hall under the watchful gaze of a giant plaster elephant. ₹₹₹

Beach Hotel Beach Rd, 2km west of the centre ☎ beachheritage.com. Dating from 1890, the premises of the colonial-era Malabar English Club, with its closely cropped lawns and high-pitched tiled roofs, now house a heritage hotel with loads of lovely character. The six rooms come with balconies or private patios, split-cane blinds, paddle fans and a/c. Those on the upper floor are larger and have the best sea views. Good value. ₹₹₹

Calicut Tower Markaz Complex, off IG Rd ☎ alhindcalicuttower.com. This ninety-room tower block, tucked away down a quiet side street close to the KSRTC bus station and popular mainly with visiting Gulf Arab medical tourists, offers by far the best value in Kozhikode's lower-mid-range bracket. Impeccably clean, with shiny tiled floors and well-scrubbed bathrooms, its “standard a/c” rooms (just a fraction pricier than the stuffier non-a/c options) are huge for the price. Strictly no alcohol. ₹₹₹

★Harivihar 4km north of the centre in the residential suburb of Bilathikulam 📍harivihar.com. Ancestral home of the Kadathanadu royal family, converted into a particularly desirable heritage homestay. Set among lawns, herb beds, lotus ponds and an original laterite-lined bathing tank (which guests are welcome to use), the mansion is a model of traditional Keralan refinement. Distractions include short courses in yoga, astrology, cookery and Indian mythology, but the focus is the top-grade Ayurvedic centre. Generously sized rooms make the Ayurveda yoga 21-day retreats an even nicer prospect. ₹₹₹₹

Sea Queen Beach Rd 📍seaqueenhotel.com. This modern four-storey building is a good option if your budget can stretch to one of the pleasant, spacious a/c rooms, the best of which is the sea-facing “a/c-deluxe” (no. 213). The non-a/c rooms are fusty and not nearly as nice. Breakfast, served alfresco on the rooftop, is included in the price (there’s an a/c restaurant up there too). ₹₹₹

EATING KOZHIKODE IS FAMOUS FOR ITS MOPPILA CUISINE, WHICH HAS ITS ROOTS IN THE CULINARY TRADITIONS OF THE CITY’S FORMER ARAB TRADERS. FRAGRANT CHICKEN BIRYANIS AND SEAFOOD CURRIES WITH DISTINCTIVE MALABARI BLENDS OF SPICES CROP UP ON MOST NON-VEG RESTAURANT MENUS. MUSSELS ARE ALSO BIG NEWS HERE; DEEP-FRIED IN THEIR SHELLS IN CRUNCHY, SPICY MILLET COATINGS, THEY’RE SERVED EVERYWHERE DURING THE SEASON (OCT–DEC; AT ANY OTHER TIME, THEY’LL HAVE BEEN IMPORTED AND WON’T BE AS FRESH). FINALLY, NO KOZHIKODE FEAST IS COMPLETE WITHOUT A SERVING OF THE CITY’S LEGENDARY HALWA: A STICKY MALABARI SWEET MADE FROM RICE FLOUR, COCONUT, JAGGERY (UNREFINED SUGAR) AND GHEE, IT COMES IN A DAZZLING VARIETY OF COLOURS AND FLAVOURS.

★Paragon Off the Kannur Rd 📍paragonrestaurant.net. Paragon has been a city institution since it opened in 1939. Don’t be put off by the gloomy setting beneath a flyover: the Malabari cooking here is as good as you'll find anywhere. Seafood dishes are the speciality – especially fish tamarind, fish-mango curry, pollichathu and mollee – but there are dozens of alter-natives. Whatever you order, make sure it's accompanied by their famously light appam and paratha combo. ₹₹

Sagar Mavoor/IG Rd wfacebook.com/calicutsagar. Another old favourite of Calicut's middle classes, now with two branches. Both are housed in distinctive laterite buildings, with non-a/c on the ground floor, and brighter a/c "family" dining halls on the floors above. Ignore the generic north Indian/Chinese/multicuisine menu. Everyone comes for the Malabari dishes such as egg curry, fish korma and, best of all, the flavour-packed chicken pollichathu. ₹₹₹

Zain's Hotel Convent Cross Rd 0495 236 6311. An unassuming, red-painted family house down a dingy lane in the west end of town is hardly what you'd expect the Holy Grail of Moppila cuisine to look like, but people travel from across the city to eat here. You'll find a choice of biryanis (fish, chicken or mutton), various fiery seafood curries and a range of different pathiris – the definitive Malabari rice-flour bread. ₹₹₹

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE THE UAE EXCHANGE ON BANK RD, NEXT TO HYSON HERITAGE (MON–SAT 9.30AM–1.30PM & 2–6PM, SUN 9.30AM–1.30PM), CHANGES CASH AND TRAVELLERS' CHEQUES, WHILE THE UNION BANK OF INDIA AND THE STATE BANK OF INDIA, OPPOSITE EACH OTHER ON MM ALI RD, ARE TWO OF MANY LARGE BRANCHES WITH ATMS.

Internet Available at the Hub, on the first floor of the block to the right of Nandhinee Sweets, MM Ali Rd, and at Internet Zone, near KTDC Malabar Mansion (both ₹40/hr).

Wayanad

The seven mountains encircling the hill district of Wayanad, 70km inland from Kozhikode, enfold some of the most dramatic scenery in all of south India. With landscapes varying from semitropical savanna to misty tea and coffee plantations, and steep slopes that rise through dense forest to distinctive, angular summits of exposed grassland, the region ranges over altitudes of between 750m and 2100m. Even at the base of the plateau, scattered with typically ramshackle Indian hill bazaars, it's cooler than down on the plains.

The main Mysuru–Kozhikode highway, NH-17, slices through Wayanad. Since the late 1990s, it has been the source of new income in the form of overstressed dot-com executives and their families from Bengaluru and Delhi, with numerous high-end resorts, eco-hideaways and plantation stays springing up to service the screen-weary. Even if you can't afford to stay in one of these bijou retreats, however, there are plenty of reasons to venture up here. Abutting the Tamil Nadu and Karnatakan borders, the twin reserves of Muthanga in the southeast and Tholpetty in the north collectively comprise the Wayanad Wildlife Sanctuary – part of the world-famous Nilgiri Biosphere and one of the best places in India to spot wild elephant.

Southern Wayanad If you're travelling on all but the most flexible of budgets, you'll probably have to stay in the district's capital, Kalpetta. A hectic market hub straddling the main road, the town has little to commend it as a place to hang out, but does have budget accommodation, as well as good transport connections to points east. The other centres are Mananthavady and Sulthan Bathery, which is closest to Muthanga Wildlife Sanctuary.

Muthanga Wildlife Sanctuary 40km east of Kalpetta • Daily 7–10am & 3–5pm • charge, plus extra charge for jeep entry and hire Part of a network of protected reserves with neighbouring states, Muthanga Wildlife Sanctuary is noted primarily for its elephants, but also shelters Indian bison (gaur), deer, wild boar, bear and a handful of tigers. There is currently no trekking allowed inside the sanctuary.

Edakkal Caves 28km east of Kalpetta, near Adikavala • Tues–Sun 8am–4pm • charge The prehistoric rock art site of Edakkal, which means “stone in between”, was rediscovered in 1894 and is now overrun most days. It's a 1km hike up to the entry gate, after which there are a lot of stairs to navigate, but it's worth it to see where people etched human figures and animals – and geometric symbols of the sun – more than six thousand years ago. In nearby Adikavala, the Wayanad Heritage Museum (daily 9am–5.30pm; ₹20) gives a bit of background.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS SOUTHERN WAYANAD
SOME BUSES WILL TERMINATE AT EITHER KALPETTA OR SULTHAN BATHERY, BUT IT'S EASY TO HOP ON A LOCAL BUS
BETWEEN THE TWO (30MIN). MOST SERVICES FOR KANNUR DEPART FROM MANANTHAVADY, 30KM NORTH OF KALPETTA.

Destinations Kozhikode/Calicut (every 30min; 2hr); Mysuru (Karnataka; hourly; 2hr 15–5hr); Ooty/Udhagamandalam (Tamil Nadu; 3–4 daily; 4hr; daylight hours only).

INFORMATION AND TOURS DTPC OFFICE CLOSE TO GREEN GATES HOTEL IN NORTH KALPETTA (MON–SAT 10AM–5PM; ☎ 0493 620 2134, 🌐 WAYANADTOURISM.ORG). STAFF WILL HELP WITH PERMITS, TOURS AND TREKKING.

Wayanad Nature Tours By far the best guide is Sabu (☎99612 84874, 🌐 wayanad-naturetours.com) who can take you to tea estates and tribal villages, into forests to spot wildlife or on a challenging trek into the mountains (though you could only ascend halfway up Chembra Peak at the time of writing). His website is a useful resource, updated daily with the latest from Wayanad.

ACCOMMODATION ★ARANYAKAM VALATHUR–RIPPON, MEPPADI 🌐 ARANYAKAM.COM. ROOMS AND SUITES IN A HANDSOME KERALAN-STYLE BUNGALOW, WITH WOOD FLOORS AND VERANDAS ON BOTH SIDES, THE REAR ONES JUST A FEW METRES FROM THE COFFEE BUSHES. BEST OPTIONS, IF YOU CAN STRETCH TO THEM, ARE THEIR TWO HUTS, WHICH LOOK ACROSS A SPECTACULAR WILDERNESS OF PRISTINE FOREST AND MOUNTAIN. ₹₹₹

Chandragiri Inn Main Rd, Kalpetta ☎04936 203 049. The best cheapie in Kalpetta, in a modern block at the north end of town. It has three kinds of room, varying in size from tiny to small, but they're well-scrubbed and aired. ₹

Green Gates TB Rd, North Kalpetta @ greengateshotel.com. Tucked away in its own lush grounds 300m north of the DTPC office, with rooms in the main multi-storey block (ask for a balcony), or more private cottages to its rear. There's a pool (the only area with wi-fi), plenty of chillout space in the gardens and an Ayurveda centre. The most comfortable option in Kalpetta, but not a great location. Half board option available. ₹₹₹

Mint Flower Chungam Sulthan's Battery @ hotelmintflower.com. This modern mid-range hotel on the main road through town has 36 spotless rooms; the more expensive ones have huge bath-rooms. South Indian breakfast included, but the food highlight is the cheap snacks – like samosas – at the bakery out front. Wi-fi in reception only, a/c costs extra. ₹₹

Tranquil Kappamudi Estate, Kolaggappara @ tranquilresort.com. The crème de la crème of Wayanad's homestays, set amid 400 acres of rambling coffee, cardamom and vanilla plantations. The planter's bungalow itself holds eight comfy rooms, all opening on to a glorious veranda wrapped in manicured gardens, and there are two palatial treehouses as well as a large pool. The cooking's terrific, and the Dey family are perfect hosts. ₹₹₹₹

North Wayanad The teak forest takes over completely as you climb towards the northern limits of Wayanad, tracked by the savanna-grass summits of the Brahmagiri massif. Some travellers use the pot-holed trunk road cutting north towards Mysuru to reach the Nagarahole National Park or the Kodagu (Coorg) district in neighbouring Karnataka. But the majority of people who venture up here do so for a glimpse of wild elephants at the Tholpetty Wildlife Sanctuary, on the state border.

Tholpetty Wildlife Sanctuary 25km northeast of Mananthavady • Daily 7–10am & 3–5pm • charge, plus charge for jeep entry and hire • Taxis charge ₹850 for the trip (with waiting time) from Mananthavady and the frequent KSRTC buses to Kutta will drop you off at the sanctuary entrance Forming the northern sector of the Wayanad reserve, Tholpetty Wildlife Sanctuary is one of the best parks in south India for sighting elephant, as well as bison, boar, sambar, spotted deer, macaques and Nilgiri langurs. Tigers also inhabit the reserve and their pug marks are commonly encountered along the muddy margins of forest trails; numbers are steadily increasing, although you'd be lucky to see one in the flesh.

The Forest Department runs 24km jeep safaris from the park's main gates along a network of rutted tracks, passing through stands of old teak and bamboo groves. There is currently no trekking allowed inside the sanctuary.

Sree Thirunelli 30km northwest of Mananthavady • A dozen buses daily connect Mananthavady to Thirunelli; jeeps will run you out there; charge One of Wayanad's most celebrated temples, Sree Thirunelli, lies in a remote part of the district, reached via a bumpy backroad winding west off the Kogadu road. Set amid an awesome amphitheatre of mountains draped in vegetation, the temple is an unusual mix of Keralan tiled roofs and north Indian-style pillared halls. The forest road is a good one to drive at dusk to spot elephants.

ACCOMMODATION ENTEVEEDU NORTH WAYANAD
KAYAKKUNNU, PANANARAM ☎ ENTEVEEDU.CO.IN. MEANING
“MY OWN HOME”, THIS WONDERFUL OUT-OF-THE-WAY PLACE HALFWAY BETWEEN KALPETTA AND MANANTHAVADY HAS LARGE COMFORTABLE ROOMS; ONE HAS THREE DOUBLE BEDS, OTHERS INTERCONNECT SO YOU CAN BOOK AS A FAMILY OR GROUP. SHARED SITOUT AREAS
LOOK OVER THE SURROUNDING PADDY FIELDS AND COFFEE
PLANTATIONS. BREAKFAST INCLUDED. A/C COSTS EXTRA. ₹₹
₹₹

Wildlife Resort 500m from the Tholpetty Forest Check Post ☎ wildliferesorts.in. The most comfortable option within easy walking distance of the Tholpetty National Park gate. Its recently built laterite, red-tiled “cottages”, set in steeply sloping gardens just off the main road, are bland, and a tad overpriced, but well furnished with good mattresses and private sitouts. ₹₹₹

The far north The beautiful coast north of Kozhikode is a seemingly endless stretch of coconut palms, wooded hills and virtually deserted beaches. The small fishing towns ranged along it hold little of interest for visitors, most of whom bypass the area completely – missing out on some exquisite, quiet coves, and the chance to see theyyam, the extraordinary masked trance dances that take place in villages throughout the region between November and May.

The only village in Kannur district where you can be guaranteed a glimpse of theyyam is Parassinikadavu, a thirty-minute drive north of Kannur, where temple priests don elaborate costumes, dance and make offerings to the god Muthappan each morning and evening. With an early enough start, it's possible to catch the morning session and still have time to continue north to explore the little-visited Valiyaparamba backwaters.

Pressing on further north into Kasaragod district, it's worth splashing out on a night in one of the boutique retreats that have sprung up recently – the loveliest of them near the roadside town of Nileshwar, at the head of the Valiyaparamba backwaters. Larger hotel complexes, pitched at wealthy holiday-makers from Bengaluru, are beginning to appear further north still around Bekal Fort, where you can walk along impressive ramparts overlooking kilometres of empty coast.

THEYYAM

Theyyam (or theyyam) – the dramatic spirit-possession ceremonies held at village shrines throughout the northern Malabar region in the winter – rank among Kerala’s most extraordinary spectacles. More than four hundred different manifestations of this arcane ritual exist in the area around Kannur alone, each with its own distinctive costumes, elaborate jewellery, body paints, face make-up and, above all, gigantic headdresses (mudi).

Unlike in kathakali and kudiyattam, where actors impersonate goddesses or gods, here the performers actually become the deity being invoked, acquiring their magical powers. These allow them to perform superhuman feats, such as rolling in hot ashes or dancing with a crown that rises to the height of a coconut tree. By watching the theyyam, members of the audience believe they can partake of the deity’s powers – to cure illness, conceive a child or get lucky in a business venture.

Traditionally staged in small clearings (kaavus) attached to village shrines, theyyam rituals are always performed by members of the lowest castes; Namboodiri and other high-caste people may attend, but they do so to venerate the deity – a unique inversion of the normal social hierarchy. Performances generally have three distinct phases: the thottam, where the dancer, wearing a small red headdress, recites a simple devotional song accompanied by the temple musicians; the vellattam, in which he runs through a series of more complicated rituals and slower, elegant poses; and the mukhathezhuttu, the main event, when he appears in full costume in front of the shrine. From this point on until the end of the performance, which may last all night, the theyyam is manifest and empowered, dancing around the arena in graceful, rhythmic steps that grow quicker and more energetic as the night progresses, culminating in a frenzied outburst just before dawn.

Increasing numbers of visitors are making the journey up to Kannur to experience theyyam, but finding rituals requires time, patience and stamina. The best sources of advice are local guesthouse owners, who can check the Malayalai newspapers for notices; keralatourism.org/theyyamcalendar is also useful. Anyone pushed for time might consider a trip out to Parassinikadavu, where a form of theyyam is staged daily.

Kannur (Cannanore) KANNUR (Cannanore), a large, predominantly Moppila Muslim fishing and market town 92km north of Kozhikode, was for many centuries the capital of the Kolathiri rajas, who prospered from the maritime spice trade through its port. India's first Portuguese Viceroy, Francisco de Almeida, took the stronghold in 1505, leaving in his wake an imposing triangular bastion, St Angelo's Fort. This was taken in the seventeenth century by the Dutch, who sold it a hundred or so years later to the Arakkal rajas, Kerala's only ruling Muslim dynasty.

These days, the town is the largest in the northern Malabar region – a typically Keralan market and transport hub jammed with giant gold emporia and silk shops, and seething with traffic. Land prices are booming ahead of the opening of an international airport, which will doubtless see more skyscrapers pop up. Kannur's few sights can be slotted into a morning, but many travellers use the beaches to the south as a base from which to venture into the hinterland in search of theyyam rituals.

St Angelo's Fort Daily 8am–6pm • Free, car park charge Accessed through a gateway on its northern side, St Angelo's Fort remains in good condition and is worth visiting to wander the gardens and scale the massive laterite ramparts, littered with British cannons, for views over the town's massive Norwegian-funded fishing anchorage.

Arakkal Heritage Museum Tues–Sun 10am–5pm • charge

The somewhat dilapidated whitewashed building facing the beachfront below the fort – once the raja and bibi of Arrakal's palace – now houses the government-run Arakkal Heritage Museum. Here documents, weapons, various pieces of four-hundred-year-old rosewood furniture and other heirlooms relating to the family's history are displayed – though they're somewhat upstaged by the old building itself, with its high-beamed ceilings and original floorboards.

Folklore Museum Chirakkal, 5km north of Kannur town • Mon–Fri 10am–4.30pm • charge • ☎0497 277 8090 • Rickshaws charge for the trip, and buses run every 30min from the Padanna Paalam bus stand on the north edge of Kannur town Extravagant costumes worn in theyyam and other less-known local art and ritual forms, including the Muslim dance style oppana, dominate the collection of the Folklore Museum, in the village of Chirakkal just off NH-17. Housed in the 130-year-old palace, the engaging collection also features masks and weapons used in patayani rituals performed in local Bhadrakali temples, and displays of todikkalam murals.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE KANNUR (CANNANORE)
STRADDLING THE MAIN COASTAL TRANSPORT ARTERY BETWEEN MANGALARU IN KARNATAKA AND KOCHI/THIRUVANANTHAPURAM, KANNUR IS WELL CONNECTED BY BUS AND TRAIN TO MOST MAJOR TOWNS AND CITIES IN KERALA.

By train The busy railway station, right in the centre of town, is Kannur's principal landmark, and the best place to pick up auto-rickshaws and taxis for trips further afield. Kerala Tourism has an info counter on the main concourse (Mon–Sat 9am–4pm; ☎0497 270 3121) where you can find out about homestays and theyyam rituals.

Destinations Goa (2 daily; 7hr–9hr); Ernakulam/Kochi (9 daily; 5hr 30min–6hr 30min); Kozhikode/Calicut (every 30min–1hr; 1hr 20min–1hr 45min); Mangalaru (hourly; 2–3hr); Mumbai (2 daily; 18–21hr).

By bus Most local services, including those from other towns in Malabar, work out of the New Bus Stand, a 5min walk southeast of the railway station; the hub for long-distance Kerala state services is the KSRTC stand, a short hop by auto-rickshaw north. Fleets of private buses – the most garishly painted coaches in India – also cover the same routes.

KANNUR COOPERATIVES LOCAL GUESTHOUSE
OWNERS CAN POINT YOU TOWARDS HANDLOOM
WEAVING WORKSHOPS DOTTED AROUND NEARBY
VILLAGES – A LEGACY OF THE OLD CALICO
COTTON TRADE. A COUPLE THAT ARE USED TO RECEIVING VISITORS (MON–SAT) ARE THE

KANHIRODE CO-OPERATIVE, 13KM NORTHEAST OF KANNUR ON THE MAIN ROAD TO MATTANUR (☎0497 285 7865, 🌐WEAVECO.COM), WHICH EMPLOYS AROUND FOUR HUNDRED WORKERS TO MAKE UPHOLSTERY AND CURTAIN FABRICS, PLUS MATERIAL FOR LUXURY SHIRTS AND SARIS, AND LOKANATH WEAVERS CO-OPERATIVE, 3KM EAST OF KANNUR ON THE EDAPALLY–PANVELL HWY (☎0497 272 6330, 🌐LOKFAB.COM). THE KERALA DINESH BEEDI CO-OPERATIVE IN THOTTADA 7KM SOUTH OF KANNUR (☎0497 270 1699, 🌐KERALADINESH.COM) MAKES AN INTERESTING VISIT TO SEE WORKERS DEFTLY ROLLING THOUSANDS OF SKINNY INDIAN CIGARETTES – THOUGH YOU CAN'T ACTUALLY BUY THEM HERE.

Destinations The following refers only to Kerala and Karnataka State Transport Corporation services: Ernakulam/Kochi (4–6 daily; 8hr); Kozhikode/Calicut (hourly; 1hr 30min–3hr); Madurai (1 nightly; 12hr); Mangaluru (8 daily; 3–5hr); Mysuru (6 daily; 5–6hr).

ACCOMMODATION KANNUR'S NOISY AND CONGESTED CENTRE IS JAMMED WITH HOTELS, BUT YOU'LL FIND BETTER OPTIONS FURTHER EAST IN THE CANTONMENT DISTRICT BEHIND BABY BEACH, AND FURTHER NORTH AT PALLIYAMOOLA BEACH (A ₹75 RIDE AWAY), WHERE A NUMBER OF SMALL RESORTS AND HOMESTAYS STAND CLOSE TO THE SEA. SOUTHEAST OF TOWN DOWN THE COAST, A STRING OF FOUR SPECTACULAR BEACHES HOLD EVEN MORE DESIRABLE PLACES TO STAY.

Blue Mermaid Thottada Beach 🌐bluemermaid.in. Gorgeous homestay resort comprising a modern block of spacious, well-furnished a/c rooms, a detached cottage on the headland and a romantic bamboo honeymoon lodge

– all in a heavenly setting overlooking one of the area’s loveliest beaches. Keralan meals and yoga lessons on site. Half board ₹₹₹

Chera Rocks 14km south at Chera Kalle, Tayeetchery ☎cherarocks.com.

If you’re dreaming of a room where you can watch the moonlight on the waves and fall asleep to the sound of surf crashing through the coconut trees, look no further. Here is a pretty three-bedroom cottage huddled in a palm grove behind an idyllic beach, and less pricey “deluxe” rooms occupying a white house set back just behind it. Rates include full board and station pick-up. ₹₹₹

★Costa Malabari 10km south near Thottada village ☎94477 75691.

Three traditional Keralan bungalows, surrounded by cashew and coconut groves on the bluff above pretty Thottada Beach. Costa Malabari II is the pick of the crop (and costs more than I & III), perched on a clifftop where a flight of rickety wooden steps descends to a golden-sand cove. The food, which is included and served on a picturesque veranda, gets rave reviews. Pick-up from Kannur by arrangement. ₹₹₹

Ezhara Beach House Near Ezhara Moppila School, Ezhara Kadappuram, Kuttikkagam ☎ezharabeachhouse.com. Tucked under the palms, this slightly shabby, blue-painted bungalow is incredibly private and the sort of place travellers pitch up and stay for weeks. It’s a stone’s throw from an empty beach, but visitors are asked to respect the fact it’s in a Muslim village and cover up. Hyacinth is a great host; you get a whole floor to yourself. Half board ₹₹₹

★Kannur Beach House Thottada ☎kannurbeachhouse.com.

Sandwiched on a sliver of land between a river and the beach, this friendly little guesthouse has a sublime location and the rooms, with their antique wooden doors and windows, luminous interiors and lovely verandas, are perfect havens. Half board ₹₹₹

Palm Grove Heritage Mill Rd, near Government Guesthouse, Kannur town ☎palmgroveheritageretreat.com. Dating from the 1930s, this former palace once belonged to the last raja of Arikkal but now accommodates an offbeat hotel, with a choice of bargain rooms or threadbare suites in the old portion, and large, modern, good-value doubles in the two adjacent, multi-storey blocks that sometimes host conferences. Breakfast not included. A/c costs extra. Doubles ₹, suites ₹₹

EATING GEETHA STATION RD. FOR A REAL KERALAN EXPERIENCE STOP AT THIS DIMINUTIVE, SLIGHTLY GRUBBY FOUR-TABLE “BAKERY” OPPOSITE THE RAILWAY STATION EXIT. THE MENU ISN’T IN ENGLISH SO YOU’LL HAVE TO POINT AT WHAT YOU WANT FROM THE GLASS CASE (SAMOSA, BUTTERY PARATHA, ELA ADA...). THE MASALA CURRY IS SPICY, THE CHAI SWEET AND STRONG. ₹

Parassinikadavu The Parassini Madampura temple in the village of PARASSINIKADAVU, 20km north of Kannur beside the River Valapatanam, is visited in large numbers by Hindu pilgrims for its theyyam rituals (daily 6.30–8.30am & 5.45–8.30pm). Elaborately dressed and accompanied by a traditional drum group, the resident priest, or madayan, becomes possessed by the temple’s presiding deity – Lord Muthappan, Shiva, in the form of a kiratha, or hunter – and performs a series of complex offerings. The two-hour ceremony culminates when the priest/deity dances forward to bless individual members of the congregation – an extraordinary spectacle, even by Keralan standards.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS AND TAXI REGULAR LOCAL BUSES LEAVE KANNUR FOR PARASSINIKADAVU FROM AROUND 7AM, DROPPING PASSENGERS AT THE TOP OF THE VILLAGE. IF YOU WANT TO GET HERE IN TIME FOR THE EARLIEST THEYYAM, HOWEVER, YOU’LL HAVE TO FORK OUT FOR ONE OF THE AMBASSADOR TAXIS THAT LINE UP OUTSIDE KANNUR BUS STAND (AROUND ₹500 RETURN). CABBIES SLEEP IN THEIR CARS, SO YOU CAN ARRANGE THE TRIP ON THE SPOT BY WAKING ONE UP; TAXIS MAY ALSO BE ARRANGED THROUGH MOST HOTELS. EITHER WAY, YOU’LL HAVE TO LEAVE AROUND 4.30AM – OR ELSE SPEND THE NIGHT NEARER THE TEMPLE.

ACCOMMODATION THAI RESORT 80M FROM THE TEMPLE 🌐
THAIRESORT.IN. SHADED BY COCONUT TREES, SEVEN CIRCULAR STONE COTTAGES ARE DOTTED AROUND A WELL-KEPT GARDEN WITH COOL, COMFORTABLE ROOMS.
THEY'RE A BIT GLOOMY, BUT WELL AIRED, AND THE LOCATION'S PERFECT. ₹₹

Thapasya Heritage Temple Rd 🌐thapasyaheritage.com. Situated on the hillside just south of the village, this is by far the best-value budget option within walking distance of the temple, and is very popular because of it.
The building's modern, the beds have crisp linen and comfy mattresses, and the bathrooms are clean. A/c costs extra. ₹

Valiyaparamba If you were overwhelmed by the crowded backwaters in the south and are yearning for quiet white-sand beaches and coconut trees, push on 50km north of Kannur to one of the quietest stretches of coast in the state. The Valiyaparamba backwaters centre on a small, 30km delta fed by four rivers and their various bands and tributaries. Though local ferries crisscross this fascinating necklace of lagoons and islets, and a few companies organize houseboat trips from Ayitti Jetty, Valiyaparamba holds comparatively few permanent dwellings and traffic on its waterways largely consists of country fishing boats. It makes a wonderful region for off-track explorations; foreign tourists are few and far between.

ACCOMMODATION ★KANAN BEACH RESORT NILESWAR 🌐
KANANBEACHRESORT.COM. OF ALL THE SWANKY RESORTS
IN THE AREA, THIS HAS THE MOST KERALAN CHARACTER.
THE SELF-CONTAINED, GABLE-ROOFED COTTAGES – THE SIZE OF SMALL VILLAS – COME WITH A KITCHEN AND SEA-
AND SUNSET-FACING VERANDAS. THERE'S A QUIET POOL AND THE LOCATION IN A COCONUT GROVE ALONGSIDE THE BEACH IS UNBEATABLE. ₹₹₹₹

Valiyaparamba Retreat Oriyara village, 15km north of Payyanur  vretreat.in. This three-bedroom house facing the backwater on the northern side of Valiyaparamba has a welcoming host, tasty food and all the basics for a comfy stay. Regular buses run to Oriyara (30min) from the nearest railway station at Payyanur. Full board ₹₹₹

Bekal

BEKAL, 24km north of Nileshtar and the Valiyaparamba backwaters, is popular among Keralans as a weekend day-trip destination, with huge Bekal Fort (daily 8am–5.30pm; charge) standing on a hot and dusty promontory north of palm-fringed Bekal Beach. Both spots are great for people-watching in the late afternoon as families in their Sunday best stroll and paddle in the sea. It has also been a popular filming spot for many regional films.

< Back to Kerala

Shutterstock
VIDHAN SOUDHA, BANGALORE

Karnataka

Bengaluru (Bangalore) and around

Mysuru (Mysore)

Around Mysuru

Hassan and around

Kodagu (Coorg)

Mangaluru (Mangalore).

North of Mangaluru: coastal Karnataka

Hubballi (Hubli)-Dharwad

Hosapete (Hospet).

Hampi (Vijayanagar).

Badami, Aihole and Pattadakal: Monuments of the Chalukyas

Vijayapura (Bijapur) and the north

Karnataka

Founded in 1956 from the princely state of Mysore, Karnataka – a derivation of the word karu nadu meaning “black soil” in the local language, Kannada – marks a transition zone between central India and the Dravidian deep south. Along its borders with Maharashtra, Goa, Andhra Pradesh and Telangana, a string of medieval walled towns studded with domed mausoleums and minarets recall the era when this part of the Deccan was a Muslim stronghold. The coastal and hill districts that dovetail with Kerala are, in contrast, quintessential Hindu south India, lush with tropical vegetation and soaring temple gopuras. In between are scattered several extraordinary sites, notably the ruins of the Vijayanagar empire at Hampi, whose lost temples and derelict palaces stand amid an arid, rocky landscape of surreal beauty.

Fed by the southwest monsoon (see box below) and draped in dense deciduous forests, the Western Ghats, recognized among the world’s top eight biodiversity hotspots, run in an unbroken line along the state’s palm-fringed coast, impeding the path of the rain clouds east. As a result, the landscape of the interior – comprising the southern apex of the triangular Deccan trap, known as the Mysore Plateau, is considerably drier. Three of south India’s most sacred rivers, the Kaveri (also spelt Cauvery), Tungabhadra and Krishna, flow across this terrain, draining east to the Bay of Bengal.

Karnataka’s principal attractions are concentrated at opposite ends of the state, with a handful of less-visited places dotted along the coast between Goa and Kerala. Road and rail routes dictate that most itineraries take in the state capital, Bengaluru (Bangalore), a go-ahead, modern city that epitomizes the aspirations of the country’s new middle class, with glittering malls, fast-food outlets and nightlife unrivalled outside Mumbai. The state’s second city, Mysuru (Mysore), appeals more for its regal ambience, nineteenth-century palaces and vibrant fresh produce and incense markets. It also lies within easy reach of several important historical monuments.

A series of unmissable historical sites lie further northwest, dotted around the dull railway town of Hassan. Around nine centuries ago, the Hoysala kings sited their grand dynastic capitals here, at the now middle-of-nowhere villages of Belur and Halebidu (Halebid), where several crafted and intricate temples survive intact. More impressive still, and one of India's most extraordinary sacred sites, is Gomateshwara, the 18m Jain colossus at Sravanabelagola, which stares serenely over idyllic Deccan countryside.

West of Mysuru, the Ghats rise in a wall of thick jungle cut by deep ravines and isolated valleys. Within, the coffee-growing district of Kodagu (Coorg) offers an entrancing, unique culture and lush, misty vistas. Most Coorg agricultural produce is shipped out of Mangaluru (Mangalore), a student town that is also a stopover on the journey along Karnataka's beautiful Karavali coast. Interrupted by countless mangrove-lined estuaries, the state's 320km-long coastline contains plenty of fine secluded sandy beaches. Attractions of the coastal belt include the famous Krishna temple at Udupi, an important Vaishnavite centre, Jog Falls – India's second highest cataract – set amid some of the region's most spectacular scenery. For some, the region's biggest draw is the atmospheric Hindu pilgrimage town of Gokarna, further north up the coast, a well-established hideaway for Western budget travellers owing to its string of exquisite beaches.

BEST TIME TO VISIT

Coastal Karnataka is one of the wettest regions in India, its climate dominated by the seasonal monsoon, which sweeps in from the southwest in June, dumping an average of 4m of rain on the coast before it peters out in late September. October to April is therefore the best time to visit. Bengaluru and Mysuru, to the south of the Deccan Plateau, have a temperate climate with mild weather most of the year. The northern tracts and the coast get really hot in summer (April–June), with monsoon bringing some respite between July and October.

Shutterstock

PRIVATE HALL OF THE MAHARAJAH, AMBAVILAS PALACE MYSORE

Highlights

① Bengaluru \(Bangalore\) Booming silicon city offers the best shopping, nightlife and dining this side of Mumbai, not to mention a few great parks, plus a magnificent palace and temple.

② Mysuru \(Mysore\) The sandalwood city oozes relaxed, old-world charm and has lots to see, including the opulent palace and a photogenic market.

③ Halebidu and Belur Two wonderfully ornate and architecturally unique Hoysala temples set deep in the slow-paced Karnataka countryside.

④ Gokarna This relaxing seaside town is blessed with atmospheric temples and exquisite crescent beaches.

⑤ Hampi The crumbling remains of the Vijayanagar kingdom, scattered among a stunning boulder-strewn landscape bisected by the Tungabhadra River.

⑥ Vijayapura \(Bijapur\) Home to splendid Islamic architecture, most famously the vast dome of the Gol Gumbaz.

⑦ Bidar Rarely visited Muslim outpost in the remote northeast of the state, famed for bidri metalwork and magnificent medieval monuments.

HIGHLIGHTS ARE MARKED ON THE MAP

FESTIVALS IN KARNATAKA HAMPI UTSAV (EARLY NOV). CELEBRATED SINCE VIJAYANAGAR TIMES AND REVIVED BY THE GOVERNMENT OF KARNATAKA, THIS THREE-DAY FESTIVAL IS A CULTURAL SHOWCASE OF MUSIC, DANCE, COSTUME DRAMAS, PUPPET SHOWS, FIREWORKS, PROCESSIONS AND KUSHTI (WRESTLING) THAT ONCE RECEIVED ROYAL PATRONAGE.

Makara Sankranti (mid-Jan). The transition of the sun into the zodiacal sign of Makara (Capricorn) is when the harvest festival (suggi habba) is celebrated. Temple festivities, feasts in restaurants, cultural programmes and kite-flying, especially in northern Karnataka, mark the occasion.

Bangalore Karaga (April). Bengaluru's oldest festival is celebrated over eleven days around the Dharmaraya Swamy Temple in the old city. The festival honours Draupadi, considered a form of Shakti, and is named after the karaga or large floral pyramid borne by the appointed carrier during a night-time procession to the accompaniment of music and acrobatics. In spring, the festival of Ugadi is also celebrated which marks the new year.

Mysore Dasara (Sept/Oct). The biggest of them all, Mysore Dasara culminates in a grand and glittering procession on its tenth and final day.

Kadalekai Parishe (Dec/Jan). Bengaluru's unique groundnut fair, held near the Bull Temple in Basavanagudi with rural produce on sale.

Apart from Mysuru's regal opulence, the state's undisputed highlight lies in the vicinity of northern Karnataka: the UNESCO-listed ghost city of Vijayanagar, better known as Hampi. Scattered around boulder hills on the south banks of the Tungabhadra River, the ruins of this once splendid capital provide a magical setting, often prompting travellers to overstay. The main access point to Hampi is Hosapete (Hospet), from where buses leave for the journey north across the rolling Deccan plains to Badami, Aihole and Pattadakal, the last another UNESCO World Heritage Site. Now lost in countryside, these tiny villages – once capitals of the Chalukya dynasty – are still littered with ancient rock-cut caves and finely carved stone temples.

Further north, in one of Karnataka's most remote and poorest districts, craggy hilltop citadels and crumbling wayside tombs herald the formerly troubled buffer zone between the Muslim-dominated northern Deccan and the Dravidian-Hindu south. Bijapur, capital of the Bahmanis – now formally Vijayapura – harbours south India's finest collection of Islamic architecture, including the impressive, large freestanding dome, the Gol Gumbaz. The first Bahmani capital, Gulbarga (now Kalaburagi) site of a famous Muslim shrine and theological college, has retained little of its former splendour but the more isolated Bidar, where the Bahmanis moved in the sixteenth century, deserves a detour en route to or from Hyderabad. Perched on a rocky escarpment, its crumbling red ramparts include Persian-style mosaic-fronted mosques, mausoleums and a sprawling fort complex evocative of Samarkand on the Silk Route.

Brief history

Like much of southern India, Karnataka has been ruled by successive Buddhist, Hindu and Muslim dynasties. The influence of Jainism has also been marked; India's very first emperor, Chandragupta Maurya, is believed to have converted to Jainism in the fourth century BC, renounced his throne and fasted to death at Sravanabelagola, now one of the most visited Jain pilgrimage centres in the country with a 57 foot Gommateshwara statue.

During the first millennium AD, this whole region was dominated by power struggles between the various kingdoms controlling the western Deccan. The period between the third and fifth centuries saw the rise of dynasties like the Satavahanas, the Kadambas and the Gangas of Talakad. From the sixth to the eighth centuries, the Chalukya kingdom of Vatapi (Badami) included Maharashtra, the Konkan coast on the west and the whole of Karnataka. The Rashtrakutas and the Hoysalas dominated until the thirteenth century, when the Deccan kingdoms were overwhelmed by General Malik Kafur, a convert to Islam.

By the medieval era Muslim incursions from the north laid the foundation of the Bahmani Sultanate and forced the hitherto warring and fractured Hindu states of the south into close alliance, with the mighty Vijayanagar kings emerging as overlords. Their lavish capital, Vijayanagar, ruled an empire stretching from the Bay of Bengal to the Arabian Sea and south to Cape Comorin. The Bahmani Sultanate split into five independent kingdoms in 1490 but joined forces as a confederacy, the Deccan Sultanate, in 1565 at the Battle of Talikota, and laid siege to Vijayanagar, plundering its opulent palaces and temples.

Thereafter, a succession of Muslim sultans held sway over the north, while in the south of the state, the independent Wadiyar rajas of Mysore, whose territory was comparatively small, successfully fought off the Marathas. In 1761, the brilliant Muslim campaigner Haider Ali, with French support, seized the throne. His son, Tipu Sultan, turned Mysore into a major force in the south before he was killed by the British at the battle of Srirangapatnam in 1799. After Tipu's defeat, the British restored the Wadiyar family to the throne. Apart from a further half-century of colonial rule in the mid-nineteenth century, they kept it until Karnataka was created by the merging of the states of Mysore and the Madras Presidencies in 1956.

Bengaluru (Bangalore) and around The political hub of the region, BENGALURU is a world apart from the rest of the state and in many ways is India's most Westernized urban centre. Once a sleepy cantonment, the charming, verdant "Garden City" of just over 600,000 people at Independence has been completely transformed by the technology boom into both a trendy, racy business hub and a bustling, green megalopolis of nearly twelve million, perhaps the fastest growing city in India. These days, signs of the West are thick on the ground: big-brand fashion stores, coffee shops and craft breweries on nearly every corner; a swanky international airport with two terminals and ultramodern metro and legions of hard-working, free-spending twenty- and thirty-somethings in designer T-shirts and miniskirts.

Despite its lush environs and cosmopolitan air, Bengaluru's few attractions are no match for those elsewhere in the state. That said, it's an efficient transport hub, well served by plane and bus, and paired with first-rate shopping, dining and nightlife, and a calendar packed with big-ticket events in music, dance, art, literature, theatre or folk arts, this vibrant city can still deliver a few days' respite from south India's more taxing inconveniences.

The centre of modern Bengaluru lies about 4km east of Kempe Gowda Circle (and the bus and railway stations), near MG Road, where you'll find most of the mid-range accommodation, restaurants, shops, tourist information and banks, although Indiranagar further east is the area for leisure. Leafy Cubbon Park, and its Central Library, lie on its eastern edge, while the oldest, most "Indian" part of the city extends south from the railway station, a warren of winding streets at their most dynamic in the hubbub of the City and Gandhi markets. Bengaluru's tourist attractions are spread out: monuments such as Tipu's Summer Palace and the Bull Temple are further south of the centre. Most, if not all, can be seen on a half-day tour, and there are many metro stations nearby providing excellent connectivity. Further south from here, you can also stop by to catch a show with regular plays performed in English at Ranga Shankara, one of Bnagalore's best theatres.

Brief history

A stone inscription near a tenth-century temple in the eastern part of the city describes a battle fought on this ground in 890, in a place called “Bengavaluru,” or the “City of Guards”. This historic theory marks the earliest reference to the city that was renamed Bengaluru in 2014. (Another legend ascribes the city’s origins to “benda-kal-ooru”, or “village of boiled beans”, after a Hoysala ruler was offered a humble meal of boiled beans on a hunting expedition and founded a town at the site.) The city was established more firmly in 1537 when Magadi Kempe Gowda, a feudatory chief of the Vijayanagar Empire, set up a pete (town) here. His son Kempe Gowda II built a mud fort and erected four watchtowers outside the pete, predicting that it would one day extend that far (the city now stretches far beyond).

During the first half of the seventeenth century, Bangalore fell to the Muslim Sultanate of Bijapur and changed hands several times before being returned to Hindu rule under the Mysore Wadiyar rajas. In 1758, Chikka Krishnaraja Wadiyar II was deposed by the military genius Haider Ali, who set up arsenals here to produce muskets, rockets and other weapons for his formidable anti-British campaigns. He and his son, Tipu Sultan, greatly extended and fortified Bangalore until Tipu was overthrown in 1799 by the British, who established a military cantonment and passed the administration over to the maharaja of Mysore in 1881. With the creation of Karnataka state in 1956, the erstwhile maharaja became governor and Bangalore the capital.

The modern city Even before 1947, the city had already begun to transform into a scientific and technological capital with the establishment of numerous colleges and universities, including the Indian Institute of Science. Until well after Independence, political leaders, film stars and VIPs flocked to buy or build homes here. The “Garden City”, as it is often referred to, offered many parks and leisurely green spaces, not to mention theatres, cinemas and a lack of restrictions on alcohol. In recent decades, Bengaluru has experienced a seismic societal shift, predominantly due to the endless job opportunities presented by computer software and back-office services. The 1990s high-tech boom saw skyscrapers, swish stores and shopping malls springing up, while the city’s infrastructure buckled. The stumbles prodded several multinationals to decamp to Hyderabad, itself a growing technology centre, upsetting the local economy and temporarily threatening Bengaluru’s treasured status as India’s main IT hub. Led by rapid growth in the international telecom and call centre sectors, the city has bounced back in recent years, though skyrocketing living costs, heavy traffic, regular power failures and crippling seasonal water shortages remain a problem.

Cubbon Park

📍Vidhana Soudha or buses #296B, #114B and #114C from Kempegowda Bus Station A welcome green space in the heart of the city, shaded by massive clumps of bamboo, Cubbon Park is entered from the western end of MG Road, presided over by a statue of Queen Victoria. Several prominent historic landmarks are located within its sprawling expanse, including the State Central Library, one of the oldest and largest in the country, housed in the impressive red Sheshadri Iyer Memorial Hall (daily except Mon 8.30am–6pm), and the colonnaded, red-brick High Court of Karnataka (Attara Kacheri), while the famous government office Vidhana Souda, Chinnaswamy cricket stadium and domed St Mark's Cathedral sit nearby.

Government Museum Kasturba Rd • Tues–Sun 10am–5pm • Charge
The poorly labelled and maintained Government Museum features prehistoric artefacts, Vijayanagar, Hoysala and Chalukya sculpture, musical instruments, Thanjavur paintings and Deccani and Rajasthani miniatures. It includes the adjacent Venkatappa Art Gallery, which exhibits twentieth-century landscapes, portraits, abstract art, wood sculpture and occasional temporary art shows.

Bengaluru Palace Tues–Sun 10am–5.30pm • Charge • Buses #287, #287B, #287C, #287D and #287E from Kempegowda Bus Station • 080 2336 0818

The Tudor architecture in this palace is said to replicate Windsor Castle by many historians. It houses photographs of the Wadiyar family as well as paintings from renowned artists such as Raja Ravi Varma. Photography is not permitted and may incur additional fees.

Vidhana Soudha On the northwest edge of Cubbon Park • No public entry Built in 1956, Bengaluru's vast State Secretariat, Vidhana Soudha, is the largest civic structure of its kind in the country. Kengal Hanumanthaiah, chief minister at the time, wanted a "people's palace" that, following the transfer of power from the royal Wadiyar dynasty to a legislature, would "reflect the power and dignity of the people". In theory its design is entirely Indian, but its overall effect is not unlike the bombastic colonial architecture built in the so-called Indo-Saracenic style.

Lalbagh Botanical Gardens Daily 6am–7pm • Charge • 080 2657 1925
Lalbagh or buses #25, #25A & #25B and #25E from Kempegowda Bus Station • 080 2657 1925

Inspired by the splendid gardens of the Mughals and the French botanical gardens at Puducherry in Tamil Nadu, Sultan Haider Ali set to work in 1760 laying out the Lalbagh Botanical Gardens, 4km south of the centre. Originally covering forty acres, just beyond his fort – where one of Kempe Gowda's original watchtowers can still be seen – the gardens were expanded under Ali's son Tipu, a Sultan who introduced numerous exotic species of plants, and today they house an extensive horticultural seedling centre. The British brought in gardeners from Kew in 1856 and built a military bandstand and a glasshouse, based on London's Crystal Palace, which hosts wonderful flower shows. Now spreading over 240 acres, the gardens are pleasant to visit during the day, but tend to attract unsavoury characters after 6pm. Great sunsets and city views can be had from the central hill, which is topped by one of Kempegowda's four watchtowers in the city.

Tipu's Summer Palace and around KR Market • Daily 10am–6pm • Charge • Buses #15E, #31 & #31E and #210A from Kempegowda Bus Station Just southwest of the crowded City Market (aka KR Market), near the fairytale-like Jamia Masjid – whitewashed and rambling and still in regular use – lies Tipu's Summer Palace, a two-storey, mostly wooden structure built in 1791. Its interior is similar in style to the Daria Daulat Bagh at Srirangapatna, the palace is in a far worse state, with most of its painted decoration destroyed. Next door, the Kote Venkataramana Swamy Temple, dating from the early eighteenth century, was built by the Wadiyar rajas.

Bull Temple

Basavanagudi • Daily 6am–noon & 5.30–9pm • 🚶 National College or buses #15E, #31, #210A and #210E from Kempegowda Bus Station Lying 6km south of the Kempegowda Bus Station, in the Basavanagudi area, Kempe Gowda's sixteenth-century Bull Temple houses a massive monolithic Nandi bull, its grey granite made black by the application of charcoal and oil.

Don't miss the Dodda Ganesha Temple (daily 6.30am–12.30pm & 5.30–8.30pm), featuring a colossal monolith of Ganesha, 5.5m tall and 5m wide, below the Bull Temple.

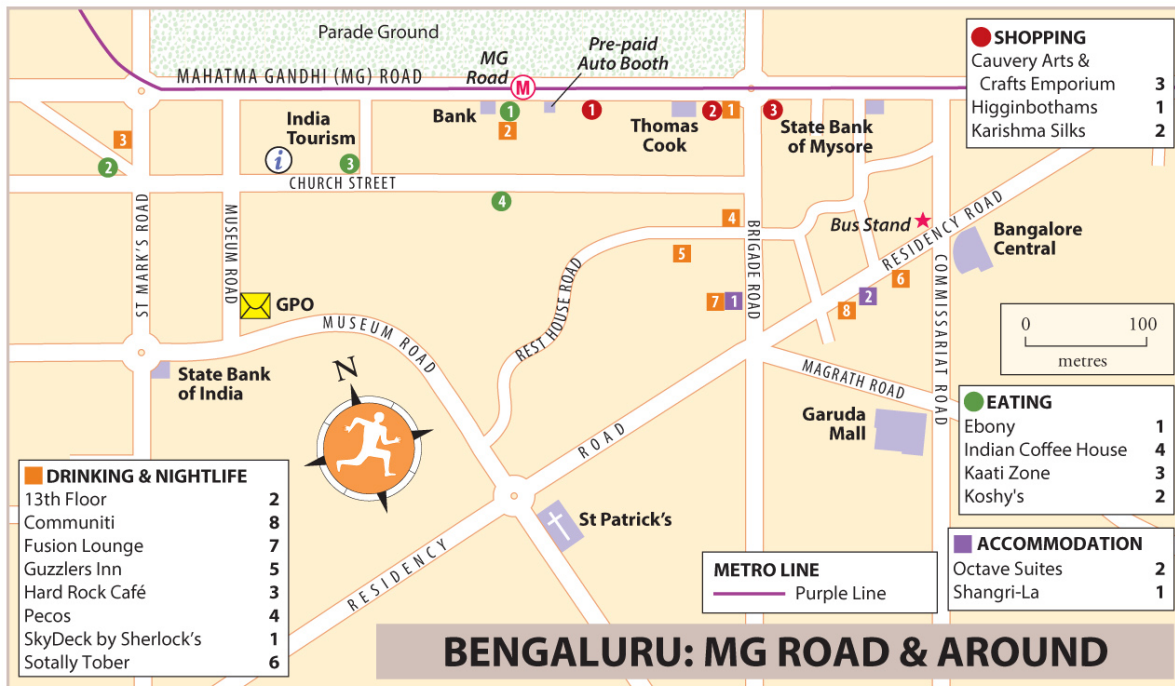

Sri Radha Krishna Mandir (ISKCON temple) Hare Krishna Hill, Chord Rd • Daily 7.15am–1pm & 4.15–8.30pm • Buses

#78A, #78E, #19E, 258CC from Kempegowda Bus Station ①
0802347 1956

Some 8km north of the centre lies ISKCON's (International Society of Krishna Consciousness) gleaming temple, a hybrid of ultramodern glass and vernacular south Indian architecture. Also known as Sri Radha Krishna Mandir, it's a huge, lavish showpiece crowned by a gold-plated dome. Barriers guide visitors on a one-way journey through the well-organized complex to the inner sanctum, an octagonal hall resplendent with colourfully painted ceilings and golden images of the god Krishna and his consort Radha. Collection points throughout and inescapable merchandizing on the way out are evidence of the organization's highly successful commercialization.

National Gallery of Modern Art (NGMA) Manikyavelu Mansion, 49 Palace Rd • Tues-Fri 11am–6pm, Sat-Sun 11am-7.30pm; 1hr guided tours Wed 11.30am & Sat 3pm • Charge • ② ngmaindia.gov.in

Set in a former Wadiyar mansion, the beautifully designed and laid out National Gallery of Modern Art (one of three in India – the others are in Delhi and Mumbai) is a fabulous repository of 17,000 paintings, sculptures and graphic prints capturing Indian art from the early eighteenth century to present times.

ART OF LIVING INTERNATIONAL CENTRE VED VIGNAM MAHA VIDYA PEETH (DAILY 9AM-6.30PM; ☎ 080 6726 2626, ARTOFLIVING.ORG), THE MAIN CENTRE OF THE ART OF LIVING ORGANIZATION FOUNDED IN 1982 BY SRI SRI RAVI SHANKAR (NOT TO BE CONFUSED WITH THE GREAT SITAR MAESTRO), OCCUPIES 24 ACRES OF LUSH, GREEN, HILLY LAND 21KM SOUTH OF BENGALURU ON KANAKAPURA ROAD IN UDAYAPURA. ITS CENTREPIECE IS THE SPLENDID, LOTUS-LIKE VISHALAKSHMI MANTAP TEMPLE, WHICH IS SURROUNDED BY MORE SHRINES, AN AMPHITHEATRE AND AN ASHRAM BOASTING LODGINGS, RESTAURANTS AND A HOST OF OTHER FACILITIES INCLUDING A WELLNESS CENTRE, BOOKSHOP, AYURVEDIC SPA AND EVEN A WEDDING HALL. THE ORGANIZATION – NOW WITH CENTRES

WORLDWIDE AND NGO STATUS – WAS FOUNDED BY THE GURU AFTER HE DISCOVERED SUDARSHAN KRIYA, A POWERFUL STRESS-REDUCING BREATHING TECHNIQUE THAT IS THE FOCAL POINT OF HIS TEACHINGS. THOSE INTERESTED IN COURSES OR VOLUNTEERING CAN REGISTER THROUGH THE WEBSITE, OR SIMPLY DROP IN TO ATTEND REGULAR EVENTS LIKE MUSIC, MEDITATION AND DARSHAN LED BY THE GURU (MOST WED & SAT 4.30PM). GET HERE BY TAKING BUS #211A, #211B, #211C OR #211F FROM KEMPEGOWDA BUS STATION OR #213 OR #214D FROM CITY MARKET.

The School of Ancient Wisdom in the north of the city towards the airport and Nandi Hills is a tranquil oasis away from the bustle of the highways nearby. Along with ayurvedic wellness retreats, there are daily meditation and yoga classes as well as a research centre for holistic therapy.

Around Bengaluru While most visitors push straight on to Mysuru, there are several places of interest within easy reach of Bengaluru, especially for those with interest in folk culture, wildlife or spiritual renewal.

Nrityagram Dance Village Hesaraghatta • Tues–Sun 10am–2pm • Charge; guided tours with lunch and performance (book in advance) Charge (minimum ten people) • nrityagram.org

Anyone wishing to see or study classical dance in a rural environment should check out Nrityagram Dance Village, a delightful, purpose-built model village 30km northwest of Bengaluru, designed by the award-winning architect Gerard de Cunha and founded by the late Protima Gauri. Gauri had a colourful career in media and film, and eventually came to be renowned as an exponent of Odissi dance. Attracting pupils from all over the world, the school hosts regular performances and lectures on Indian mythology and art, and also offers courses in different forms of Indian dance.

Nandi Hills

Daily 6am–10pm • Charge chikamagalur • You can stay at Discovery Village (bookings via discoveryvillage.in/nandihills-resorts-bangalore) or KSTDC's Mayura Pine Top (karnatakaholidays.net) • Regular government buses from Kempegowda Bus Station (2hr) Some 60km north of Bengaluru in Chikkaballapur district, Nandi Hills is named after the hilltop shrine of Yoga Nandeeshwara, dedicated to Shiva. The erstwhile summer retreat of Tipu Sultan and the British, the hills rise to almost 1500m and offer panoramic views and invariably pleasant weather. You can hike to Tipu's Drop, a dreaded 600m clifftop from which convicts were hurled to their death by Tipu Sultan, while other draws include the spring-fed Amrita Sarovar tank and Nehru Nilaya, the guesthouse where ex-PM Jawaharlal Nehru stayed. Don't miss the magnificent ninth century Bhoga Nandeeshwara temple in the area, at the foot of Nandi Hills.

Bannerghatta National Park Daily 9.30am–5pm • Zoo ₹80; Butterfly Park ₹30; bus safari adults ₹400 (₹260), children ₹300 (₹130); boating ₹60; camera ₹20, video camera ₹200 • bannerghattabiologicalpark.org • Bus BIG-10 AC4 from MG Rd, #365/#V365 from Kempegowda Bus Station or #366 from City Market; buses stop at Nagammana Doddi, 400m from the park The key attraction of the 104-square-kilometre Bannerghatta National Park, 22km south of Bengaluru, is a compact “biological park”, which houses a zoo, butterfly enclosure, crocodile farm, reptile park and aviary. Safaris are organized to see lions, tigers, herbivores and sloth bear in a wilderness habitat.

While you're here, it is worth contacting Wildlife SOS (wildlifesos.org), a wildlife conservation charity stationed nearby who you can contact in advance to meet. They have taken several positive initiatives towards eradicating cruelty towards India's precious wildlife such as elephants and sloth bears.

Janapada Loka Folk Arts Museum On the Mysuru road • Daily except Tues 9.30am–5.00pm • Museum Charge; video show Charge; boating Charge • 96866 01166 • Any Bengaluru–Mysuru bus, except nonstop express services, can drop you here The Janapada Loka Folk Arts Museum, 53km southwest of Bengaluru, gives a fascinating insight into the region's culture. The collection is impressive: there's an amazing array of hunting implements, weapons, ingenious household gadgets, masks, dolls and shadow puppets, plus carved wooden bhuta (spirit) sculptures and larger-than-life temple procession figures, manuscripts, musical instruments and yakshagana theatre costumes. A small restaurant serves simple food, and the adjacent Kamat Lokaruchi restaurant is a popular stopover for Bengaluru–Mysuru travellers and it specialises in North Karnataka cuisine.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY PLANE AIRPORT BENGALURU INTERNATIONAL BENGALURU (BANGALORE) AND AROUND AIRPORT (📍)

BENGALURUAIRPORT.COM) IS 35KM NORTHEAST OF THE CITY IN DEVANAHALLI. IT'S THE BUSIEST IN SOUTH INDIA AND THE MOST SPACIOUS IN THE COUNTRY, WITH TOP-NOTCH FACILITIES. UNTIL THE MUCH-DISCUSSED HIGH-SPEED RAIL LINK IS UP AND RUNNING, YOU CAN GET INTO THE CITY BY MERU AIRPORT TAXI (₹900–1000; 📞080 4422 4422, 📍MERUCABS.COM) OR EFFICIENT A/C VAYU VAJRA BUS; THE MOST USEFUL ROUTES TO VISITORS ARE THE ROUND-THE-CLOCK #9 TO/FROM CENTRAL BUS STAND (EVERY 20–50MIN; 45MIN–1HR 15MIN; ₹250) AND #7A TO/FROM MG RD (11 DAILY; 50MIN–1HR 20MIN; ₹250). KSRTC ALSO RUNS DIRECT FLYBUS SERVICES FROM THE AIRPORT TO MYSURU (20 DAILY; 4HR), MADIKERI (2 DAILY; 6HR 45MIN) AND TIRUPATI (2 DAILY; 6HR 30MIN), PLUS AN OVERNIGHT SERVICE (DEPARTING 9PM) TO KUNDAPUR ON THE COAST (10HR), VIA MANGALURU AND UDUPI.

Airlines British Airways (📍britishairways.com); Air India (📞080 6678 5161); Go First (📞080 4740 6091); Indigo (📞080 6678 5450); SpiceJet (📞1 800 180 3333).

Destinations Chennai (17–22 daily; 50min–1hr); Delhi (38–42 daily; 2hr 30min–3hr 30min); Goa (9–11 daily; 1hr–1hr 20min); Hyderabad (24–27 daily; 1hr–1hr 25min); Kochi (12–14 daily; 1hr–1hr 20min); Mumbai (32–34 daily; 1hr 35min–2hr); Trivandrum (4–5 daily; 1hr 10min–1hr 20min).

BY TRAIN STATIONS BENGALURU IS WELL CONNECTED BY TRAIN TO ALL PARTS OF INDIA. BANGALORE CITY RAILWAY STATION IS WEST OF THE CENTRE, NEAR KEMPE GOWDA CIRCLE, OPPOSITE THE MAIN BUS STANDS; FOR THE NORTH OF THE CITY, IT'S BETTER TO BOARD OR DISEMBARK AT BANGALORE CANTONMENT STATION NORTH OF THE CENTRE. BANGALORE CITY HAS PREPAID AUTO-RICKSHAW AND TAXI BOOTHS IN THE FORECOURT, AND IS CONNECTED (VIA MAJESTIC STATION) TO MG ROAD AND POINTS EAST IN THE CITY BY NAMMA METRO'S PURPLE LINE. TRAINS TO GOA AND A HANDFUL OF TRAINS TO OTHER DESTINATIONS LEAVE FROM YESHWANTHPUR RAILWAY STATION (☎080 2337 7161) IN THE NORTH OF THE CITY, ON THE NAMMA METRO'S GREEN LINE.

RECOMMENDED TRAINS FROM KSR BENGALURU

Destination	Name	No.	Departs	Arrives
Chennai	Shatabdi Express	12008	4.25pm	9.40pm ^o
	Sanghamitra Express	12295	9.00am	3.15pm
Delhi	Karnataka Express	12627	7.20pm	10.30am
Ernakulam	Ernakulam Express	12677	6.15am	4.55pm
Hosapete	Hampi Express	16592	10.05pm	7.10am*
Hyderabad	Kacheguda Express	12786	6.20pm	5.40am*
Mumbai	Udyan Express	11302	8.45pm	8.15pm*
Mysuru	Shatabdi Express	12007	1.00am	1.00pm ^o

	Tippu Express	12614	3.15pm	5.45pm
Trivandrum	Kanyakumari Express	16526	8.00pm	1.25pm*

* Next day arrival; arrival two days later; ° except Wed

Bookings The computerized reservation office at Bangalore City (Mon–Sat 8am–2pm & 2.15–8pm, Sun 8am–2pm; ☎132) is in a separate building, to the left as you approach the station; counter 14 is for foreigners.

BY BUS GOVERNMENT BUSES LONG-DISTANCE
GOVERNMENT BUSES, INCLUDING THOSE FROM OTHER STATES LIKE GOA AND MAHARASHTRA, ARRIVE AT THE BUSY CENTRAL BUS STAND, OPPOSITE THE RAILWAY STATION (☎77609 90562, 🌐KSRTC.IN). THERE IS A COMPREHENSIVE TIMETABLE IN ENGLISH IN THE CENTRE OF THE CENTRAL BUS STAND CONCOURSE. MOST SERVICES CAN BE BOOKED IN ADVANCE AT THE COMPUTERIZED COUNTERS NEAR BAY 13 (DAILY 7.30AM–7.30PM).

Private buses Tickets for the numerous private bus companies can be bought from the agencies on Tank Bund Rd, on the opposite side of the bus stand from the train station; operators include Sharma (☎080 2670 2447, 🌐sharmatransports.com), Vijayanand Travels or VRL (☎080 2297 1245, 🌐vrlbus.in), Paulo (☎080 2238 4040, 🌐paulotravels.com), SRS (☎080 2680 1616, 🌐srsbooking.com) and National (☎080 2660 3112, 🌐nationaltravels.in), which all advertise a multitude of destinations, including sleeper coaches to Goa and Mumbai.

Destinations Chennai (hourly; 6–7hr); Hassan (every 15–30min; 4hr); Hosapete (3 daily; 10hr); Hyderabad (8 daily; 15–16hr); Madikeri (hourly; 6hr); Mangaluru (every 30min–1hr; 9–10hr); Mumbai (2–4 daily; 23–24hr); Mysuru (every 10–15min; 3hr); Ootacamund (6 daily; 7hr 30min–8hr); Puttaparthi (every 30min–1hr; 4hr); Tirupati (hourly; 7hr).

GETTING AROUND BY BUS BENGALURU’S EXTENSIVE BUS SYSTEM RADIATES FROM THE KEMPEGOWDA BUS STATION ( ☎080 222 2542), NEAR CITY RAILWAY STATION. MOST BUSES FROM PLATFORM 17 TRAVEL PAST MG RD. ALONG WITH REGULAR BUSES, BMTC (☎1800 425 1663, 🌐MYBMTC.COM) ALSO OPERATES A DELUXE EXPRESS SERVICE, PUSHPAK, ON A NUMBER OF SET ROUTES (#P109 TERMINATES AT WHITEFIELD, BY THE FAMOUS SAI BABA ASHRAM) AS WELL AS A HANDFUL OF NIGHT BUSES. OTHER IMPORTANT CITY BUS STANDS INCLUDE THE CITY MARKET BUS STAND AT KALASIPALAYAM (☎080 2295 2333), NEAR THE RAILWAY STATION, AND SHIVAJI NAGAR (☎080 2295 2324) TO THE NORTHEAST OF CUBBON PARK.

By metro In June 2017, the first phase of Bengaluru's Namma Metro (🌐bmrc.co.in) was completed. The east–west Purple Line links the main train and bus stations (via City Railway and Majestic stations) with points east including Cubbon Park, MG Road and Indiranagar. The north–south Green Line travels south via Yeshwantpur before intersecting with the Purple Line at Majestic and continuing south via Chikpete, KR Market and Lalbagh. Trains run every 10–15min from 6am to 10pm, and tickets cost ₹10–60. Payment is by single-use tokens or Varshik smart cards, which give a slight discount. Metro trains run every five minutes and are reliable.

By auto-rickshaw The easiest way of getting around is by metered auto-rickshaw, which can now even be summoned by app (🌐mgaadi.com). Fares start at ₹25 for the first kilometre and ₹13/km thereafter; one-and-a-half or double-meter rates usually apply 10pm–5am, and there's an extra surcharge of ₹20 to suburban areas. Most meters do work and drivers are usually willing to use them, although you will occasionally be asked for a flat fare, especially during rush hour. Expect to pay ₹120–150 from Kempegowda Bus Station to MG Rd.

By taxi You can book chauffeur-driven cars and taxis through several agencies including EZI Drive (☎080 4240 0000, 🌐ezidrive.in) or Carzonrent (☎88822 22222, 🌐carzonrent.com), or use apps like Ola or Uber which are reliable and affordable.

Car rental Avis has outlets at the airport and the Oberoi hotel, 37–39 MG Rd (☎080 2558 5858, 🌐avis.com). Hertz (☎080 4330 2201, 🌐hertz.com) has counters at the airport and on Swami Vivekananda Rd, east of MG Rd. Zoom (🌐zoomcar.com) is a decent Indian self-drive option. For long-distance car rental and tailor-made itineraries, try one of the travel agents listed in the Basics chapter or any KSTDC office.

INFORMATION AND TOURS INDIA TOURISM FOR INFORMATION ON BENGALURU, KARNATAKA AND NEIGHBOURING STATES, GO TO THE EXCELLENT INDIA TOURISM OFFICE (MON–FRI 9.30AM–6PM, SAT 9AM–1PM; ☎080 2558 5417), IN TRIUMPH TOWER, 48 CHURCH ST, WHERE YOU CAN PICK UP FREE MAPS FOR BOTH CITY AND STATE.

KSTDC Apart from booths at the City railway station (daily 7am–8pm; ☎080 2287 0068) and at the airport, Karnataka State Tourist Development Corporation (www.karnatakaturism.org) also has an office at Badami House, NR Square (daily 6am–10pm; ☎080 4334 4334), where you can book tours (www.kstdc.co).

Listings For information about what's on, pick up the twice-monthly listings magazine Travel & Shop (www.travelandshop.in), available at most hotels and tourist offices, or the online guide Time Out Bangalore (www.timeout.com/bangalore).

National parks information For information on any of Karnataka's national parks, call at the Wildlife Office, Forest Department, Aranya Bhavan, Malleswaram (☎080 2334 1993), or try Jungle Lodges & Resorts, Floor 2, Shringar Shopping Centre, off MG Rd (☎080 2559 7021, www.junglelodges.com). The latter, a quasi-government body, promotes ecotourism through a number of upmarket forest lodges.

Walking tours Bangalore Walks (www.bangalorewalks.com) organizes engaging theme-based walks (₹500, plus optional breakfast ₹200) regularly around the city. Bengaluru by Foot (☎080 4120 3095, www.bengalurubyfoot.com) lead a range of fascinating cultural and food tours in and around Bengaluru (from ₹600), as well as in Mysuru.

ACCOMMODATION DUE TO THE GREAT NUMBER OF BUSINESS VISITORS IT RECEIVES, BENGALURU OFFERS A WEALTH OF UPMARKET LODGINGS, AS WELL AS SERVICED APARTMENTS. DECENT BUDGET ACCOMMODATION IS ALSO AVAILABLE, MOSTLY CONCENTRATED AROUND THE CENTRAL BUS STAND AND RAILWAY STATION.

MG ROAD AND AROUND, MAP

Bloomrooms City Centre 5, Miller's Tank Bund Road @staybloom.com. Brightly decorated, spacious rooms in the heart of the city close to Cubbon Park and Bengaluru Palace. There is also free mineral water, international plug sockets and wi-fi as well as space to work with iMac stations and luggage storage facilities. ₹₹

★Casa Cottage 2 Clapham St @casacottage.com. Tranquility awaits at these cottages, set in well-maintained grounds just over 1km south of MG Rd. The cottages and apartments are enormous, comfortable and well appointed, and the free breakfasts are excellent. Great online deals. ₹₹

Hyatt Centric 1/1 Swami Vivekananda Rd @bangalore.hyatt-hotels.hyatt.com. This ultra-luxurious hotel is a secluded sanctuary, with an infinity pool, Jacuzzi and gym, plus breezy, safari-themed Liquid Lounge bar. Some of the spacious rooms have marble baths and views of Ulsoor Lake; suites have large garden balconies. Online deals available. ₹₹₹₹

★Octave Suites Toucan Plaza, 65 Residency Rd @octavehotels.com. Excellent boutique hotel with spacious suites, all boasting modern furniture and design in vivid colours. Good restaurant and pub on the premises too. ₹₹

Shangri-La No. 56, 6B, Palace Rd; @shangri-la.com/bengaluru. A welcoming high-end hotel overlooking the leafy areas of Bangalore with an excellent restaurant and bar on its rooftop. ₹₹₹₹

AROUND THE RAILWAY STATION AND CENTRAL BUS STAND, MAP

42 SC Rd 080 2287 3997. A tad grubby and frayed at the edges but not a bad fall-back. All the rooms are extremely compact and the cell-like attached singles with TV are very inexpensive. No wi-fi. ₹₹

Adora 47 SC Rd @facebook.com/hoteladora. Above a quality south Indian veg restaurant, this large hotel is a top budget place and popular backpacker choice. Though bland, the rooms are clean and sizeable, and some have a/c. Wi-fi only in lobby. ₹₹

Tourist Ananda Rao Circle, Race Course Rd 080 2226 2381. One of Bengaluru's best all-round budget lodges, with four floors wrapped round a courtyard and a veg restaurant. Small rooms, long verandas, friendly family management and no reservations, so it fills up fast. No wi-fi. ₹

NORTH OF THE CENTRE, MAP

ITC Windsor 25 Golf Course Rd ☎itshotels.in/hotels/itcwindsor.aspx. Ersatz palace, now a luxurious five-star, mainly for overseas businesspeople with rates to match. Facilities include a gym, pool, Jacuzzi, fine restaurant and popular Irish pub, Dublin. ₹₹₹₹

Jayamahal Palace 1 Jayamahal Rd ☎jayamahalpallace.in. A charming heritage hotel tucked in a leafy precinct near Cantonment railway station. The large rooms have parquet flooring and balconies overlooking lawns. ₹₹₹₹

Race View 25 Race Course Rd ☎080 4069 6111. Large business hotel with sizeable wood-panelled rooms. Those at the front do overlook the racecourse but also the busy road. The a/c rooms cost just a little more. No wi-fi. ₹₹

Taj West End Race Course Rd ☎tajhotels.com. Begun as a British-run boarding house in 1887, these lodgings were later upgraded with fabulous gardens and long colonnaded walkways. The old wing is bursting with character, with broad verandas overlooking acres of grounds. Good online deals. ₹₹₹₹

EATING BENGALURU'S PROFUSION OF CAFÉS AND RESTAURANTS MAKES UP FOR ITS DEFICIT OF TOURIST SIGHTS WITH A GASTRONOMIC VARIETY UNPARALLELED IN SOUTH INDIA. AROUND MG RD, AND IN INDIRANAGAR (EAST OF THE CENTRE) AND THE SOUTHEASTERN SUBURB OF KORAMANGALA, PIZZERIAS, BURGER CHAINS, RITZY ICE-CREAM PARLOURS AND GOURMET RESTAURANTS STAND CHEEK BY JOWL WITH REGIONAL CUISINE FROM ANDHRA PRADESH, TAMIL NADU, KERALA, BENGAL AND PUNJAB, BESIDES MUMBAI CHAAT CAFÉS AND SNACK BARS. STAND-UP LOCAL EATERIES CALLED DARSHINIS ARE POPULAR FOR A QUICK BITE. IN ADDITION TO THE PLACES BELOW, MANY OF THE ESTABLISHMENTS LISTED UNDER "DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE" ALSO SERVE GOOD FOOD.

MG ROAD AND AROUND, MAP AND MAP

Ebony 13th floor, Barton Centre, MG Road ☎080 41783344. You can catch the brilliant buffet spread of South Indian and Mughalai delicacies that's on for only lunch through the week. Feast away and enjoy the breeze on the thirteenth floor with a bird's eye view of MG Road and its surrounding bustling streets. On The Edge cocktail bar is a good spot for a drink. ₹₹₹

Indian Coffee House Church St ☎indiancoffeehouse.com. Now occupying incongruous modern premises but still old-fashioned at heart, with turbaned waiters serving tasty finger foods and fine southern filter coffee. The perfectly fluffy scrambled eggs and cutlets are superb. ₹

Kaati Zone Church St ☎kaatizone.com. Fast, clean and wallet-friendly, the popular chain serves delicious kaati rolls, biryani, curry meals and "Rolls-Rice". It has a busy outlet at the airport with dine-in and delivery stores across town. ₹

★Koshy's St Mark's Rd ☎080 2221 3793. A popular hangout for theatre folk, artists and old-timers, this atmospheric colonial-style café with pewter teapots and cotton-clad waiters serves tasty Indian specialities and international favourites. The fish biryani, beef fry and chilli pork are legendary. Its adjacent sister concern, Jewel Box, is more upmarket with a/c. ₹

★SkyDeck by Sherlock's MG Rd, ☎9019110142. Busy, open-air venue offering cocktails, pub grub & a dance area in a casual atmosphere with a view of the bustling MG road and the Metro trains going above. ₹₹

AROUND THE RAILWAY STATION AND CENTRAL BUS STAND, MAP

Narthaki Just off SC Rd ☎94485 53274. The best restaurant in the railway station and bus stand area. Veg meals are served on the first floor, while the restaurant-cum-bar on the second offers a full range of Indian and Chinese dishes. The chicken chilli is a belter. ₹

Sagar Hotel 48 SC Rd ☎080 2291 4197. First-floor Andhra-style family restaurant serving filling biryanis, as well as dishes from other parts of India. There's an a/c bar upstairs. ₹

INDIRANAGAR, MAP

★Little Italy 1135 100 Ft Rd, Indiranagar, 2km east of MG Rd ☎ littleitaly.in. Fantastic vegetarian Italian food – try the risottos or tomato-based pasta dishes served on the bamboo-bordered terrace or in the elegant dining room. There's also an extensive wine list. ₹₹₹

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP AND MAP

Bengaluru's progressive outlook has fostered a thriving nightlife for urban youth and tourists alike. A night on the town generally kicks off with a bar crawl along the old colonial quarter of Brigade Rd, Residency Rd and Church St, which are lined with scores of swish pubs. Drinking alcohol does not have the seedy connotations it does elsewhere in India; you'll even see young Indian women enjoying a beer with their mates. While some prefer an elegant tippie in five-star hotels, it's the latest crop of microbreweries serving craft beer that are now all the rage. Most clubs operate a couples-only policy.

★13th Floor 13th Floor, Ivory Tower, 84 MG Rd ☎080 4178 3355. Sip your poison and take in the sunset view (or glittering city lights) from a fine vantage point: classy and cosmopolitan, with cool postmodern decor, 13th Floor is an absolute must. Come early because it fills up fast (happy hour till 7pm).

★Communiti 67–68 Brigade Solitaire, Residency Rd ☎communiti-pub.business.site. The best central microbrewery by far, which serves a wicked IPA and other fine beers in its cool spacious interior or airy wooden deck. Pizza, burgers and filling sandwiches too..

Fusion Lounge 185 Deena Complex, Brigade Rd ☎080 4114 2912. Dazzling high-tech lounge-cum-nightclub with different spaces for pricey but excellent food, DJ nights, karaoke and live performances.

Guzzlers Inn 48 Rest House Rd, off Brigade Rd ☎080 4112 2513. Long-established watering hole serving up classic rock, live sports, draught beer and good affordable Indian food. Half-price afternoon happy hour extends till 8pm on weekdays.

Hammered 18 Ali Askar Rd, off Cunningham Rd ☎hammeredpub.in. Massive modern pub spread over two floors and presided over by an equally huge tree. Everything from ethnic food, via fine ales and cocktails to a variety of hookah flavours.

★Hard Rock Café 40 St Mark's Rd, at Church 🌐 hardrock.com/cafes/bengaluru. This gorgeous, multi-room space inside an old stone library is well established as the buzzing nexus of Bengaluru nightlife, not to mention the finest bar and grill in town. With high vaulted ceilings, grey stone walls and subtle accents, it feels both lived in and new.

★The Humming Tree 12th Main Rd, Indiranagar 🌐 bit.ly/HummingTreeBangalore. A popular venue for music gigs with a lounge bar serving drinks and good food in a friendly atmosphere.

Pecos 34 Rest House Rd, off Brigade Rd 🌐 pecospub.com. Three dank levels of rock posters and ageing wood make up the definitive Bengaluru dive. The tunes are hard-driving, the beer's cheap and the Indian grub ain't half bad.

Sotally Tober 65 Residency Rd 🌐 sotallytober.com. Trendy new gastropub whose irreverent atmosphere is reflected in the good-humoured name. Board games available to play while you sup a vast range of mostly imported beers – over 300 from Canada alone.

★Toit 100 Ft Rd, Indiranagar II Stage 🌐 toit.in. A lively, loud brewpub across multiple levels with warm brick and wood interiors and eclectic decor. Terrific finger food is on offer and a drinks menu encompassing branded Belgian and German beer to cocktail pitchers. It's always crowded, so reserve a table or grab a stool near the bar.

SHOPPING

MAP AND MAP

The bustling area around MG Rd is the hub of Bengaluru shopping, with lots of stores along its main section selling designer goods a little cheaper than in the West, as well as quality Indian clothing and accessories, and handy including UB City, Bangalore Central and Garuda Mall. Dickenson Rd and Commercial St nearby are particularly strong on good jewellery and clothing. The free Travel & Shop magazine carries a huge list of establishments. At occasional flea markets like Kitsch Mandi (🌐 facebook.com/Kitsch.Mandi/) and Soul Santhe (🌐 sundaysoulsante.com) you can find the traveller's garb and trinkets so evident in places like Hampi or Gokarna, and Raja Market and the crowded lanes of Chickpet are atmospheric for shopping for ethnic items.

Cauvery Arts & Crafts Emporium 49 MG Rd 🌐 cauveryhandicrafts.net. This state government-run outlet sells all manner of wooden toys and gadgets, sandalwood sculptures, inlaid rosewood coffee tables, metalwork, carpets, rugs and hundreds of other gift items.

Higginbothams 74 MG Rd ☎080 2558 6574. The main Bengaluru branch of the venerable national chain has a diverse collection of fiction, plus academic and reference books.

Karishma Silks 45 MG Rd ☎080 2558 1606. Vast, colourful range of pure silks, embroidered saris, cottons and salwar kameez, to suit most budgets.

Levitate India 777i 100 Ft Rd, Indiranagar 🌐levitateindia.com. A quirky lifestyle boutique selling handwoven cotton scarves, handcrafted leather footwear, funky bags and trinkets, besides kitsch and retro Bollywood posters.

Tanishq 121 Dickenson Rd 🌐tanishq.co.in. If you have money to splash out on some really special jewellery, head for this treasure-trove of diamonds, gold and silver.

UB City Mall Vittal Mallya Rd 🌐ubcitybangalore.in. Upmarket global luxury brands from Louis Vuitton to Jimmy Choo, fancy pubs, fine dining, an art gallery and Angsana spa announce where and how the rich come to roost and splurge.

DIRECTORY BANKS AND EXCHANGE THOMAS COOK, 70 MG RD (☎1800 209 9100); TT FOREX, 180 CUNNINGHAM RD (☎080 2225 1201); WEIZMANN FOREX LTD, 56 RESIDENCY RD (☎080 6628 4463) ARE ALL OPEN MON–SAT 10AM–6.30PM. BANKS HAVE BETTER RATES; THE STATE BANK OF MYSORE ON MG RD IS THE MOST CONVENIENT. THERE ARE ATMS ALL OVER, ESPECIALLY IN THE MG RD AREA.

Hospitals Victoria Hospital, near City Market (☎080 2670 1150); Mallya (☎080 2227 7979), close to MG Rd.

Internet Internet cafés are widely available across the city, and generally Charge ₹20–30/hr. They're usually open until 9pm or later.

Libraries The British Council (English-language) library, 23 Kasturba Rd Cross (Mon–Sat 10.30am–6.30pm; ☎080 2248 9220), has newspapers and magazines that visitors are welcome to peruse in a/c comfort.

Pharmacies Most pharmacies attached to hospitals are open 24/7; try Al-Siddique Pharma Centre, opposite Jama Masjid near City Market, and Janata Bazaar, in the Victoria Hospital.

Police 📞100.

Post office On the corner of Raj Bhavan Rd and Cubbon Rd, at the northern tip of Cubbon Park (Mon–Sat 10am–7pm, Sun 10.30am–1.30pm).

Travel agents For flight bookings and train, bus or hotel reservations, try Akbar Travels at 131 Brigade Rd, Shoolay Circle (📞080 2222 7645, 🌐 akbartravels.com). For customised tours and adventure trails contact Nirmala Travels at Netkallappa Circle, SC Rd (📞080 2662 1007, 🌐 nirmalatravels.com).

Mysuru (Mysore) A centre of sandalwood-carving, silk and incense production, and dotted with palaces and gardens, Mysore, officially renamed MYSURU in 2014, is one of south India's more appealing cities and its cultural capital, attracting about 2.5 million visitors each year. Nevertheless, it remains a charming, old-fashioned place, changed by neither an IT boom nor its now well-established status as a top international yoga destination. That said, the erstwhile capital of the Wadiyar rajas can be underwhelming at first blush: upon stumbling off a bus or train you're not so much embraced by the scent of jasmine blossoms or gentle wafts of sandalwood as smacked by a cacophony of tooting, careening buses, bullock carts, bikes and tongas. Still, give it a few days and Mysuru and her surrounding hills and palaces will charm you.

In addition to its established tourist attractions, chief among them the Mysore Palace, Mysuru is a great city simply to stroll around. The evocative, if dilapidated, pre-Independence buildings lining market areas such as Ashoka Road and Sayaji Rao Road lend an air of faded grandeur to a busy centre that teems with vibrant street life.

Brief history In the tenth century Mysuru was known as Mahishur – “the town where Mahishasura, the demon buffalo was slain” (by the goddess Durga). Presiding over a district of many villages, the city was ruled from about 1400 until Independence by the Hindu Wadiyars.

Their rule was only broken from 1761, when the Muslim Haider Ali and his son Tipu Sultan took over. Two years later, the new rulers demolished the labyrinthine old city to replace it with the elegant grid of sweeping, leafy streets and public gardens that survive today. However, following Tipu Sultan's defeat in 1799 by the British colonel Arthur Wellesley (later the Duke of Wellington), Wadiyar power was restored. As the capital of Mysore state, the city thereafter dominated a major part of southern India. In 1956, when Bangalore became capital of newly formed Karnataka, its maharaja was appointed governor. Following the demise in 2013 of Srikantadatta Narasimharaja Wadiyar, who had held the now titular role since 1974, his 23-year-old nephew Yaduveer Krishnadatta Chamaraja Wadiyar was ceremonially crowned as Mysuru's new king on May 28, 2015.

Mysuru Palace There are four gates in the perimeter wall with public entrances via the northern and southern gates • Daily 10am–5.30pm • Charge; shoes must be left at the stall • Sound & Light show Mon–Sat 7pm; Charge • mysorepalace.gov.in Mysuru's centre is dominated by the walled maharaja's palace, popularly known as Mysuru Palace, a fairytale spectacle topped with a shining brass-plated dome. It's especially magnificent on Sunday nights and during festivals, when it is illuminated by nearly 100,000 lightbulbs. The palace was completed in 1912 for the 24th Wadiyar raja, on the site of the old wooden palace that had been destroyed by fire in 1897. In 1998, after a lengthy judicial tussle, the courts decided in favour of formally placing the main palace in the hands of the Karnataka state government but the royal family, who still hold a claim, have lodged an appeal, which is ongoing. Twelve temples surround the palace, some of them of much earlier origin.

Entrance area and outer buildings An extraordinary amalgam of styles from India and around the world crowds the lavish interior. Entry is through the Gombe Thotti or Dolls' Pavilion, once a showcase for the figures featured in the city's lively Dasara celebrations and now a gallery of European and Indian sculpture and ceremonial objects. Halfway along, the brass Elephant Gate forms the main entrance to the centre of the palace, through which the maharaja would drive to his car park. Decorated with floriated designs, it bears the Mysore royal symbol of Ganda-Berunda, a mythical double-headed bird, now the state emblem. To the north, past the gate, stands a ceremonial elephant howdah. Elaborately decorated with 84kg of 24-carat gold, it appears to be inlaid with red and green gems – in fact the twinkling lights are battery-powered signals that would have let the mahout know when the maharaja wished to stop or go.

The main halls Walls leading into the octagonal Kalyana Mandapa, the royal wedding hall, are lined with a meticulously detailed frieze of oil paintings, executed over a period of fifteen years by four Indian artists, illustrating the great Mysore Dasara festival of 1930. The hall itself is magnificent, a cavernous space featuring cast-iron pillars from Glasgow, Bohemian chandeliers and a domed ceiling featuring multi-coloured Belgian stained glass arranged in peacock designs.

Climbing a staircase with Italian marble balustrades, past an unnervingly realistic figure of Krishnaraja Wadiyar IV, lounging comfortably with his bejewelled feet on a stool, you come into the Public Durbar Hall, an orientalist fantasy like something from One Thousand and One Nights. A vision of brightly painted and gilded colonnades, open on one side, the massive hall affords views out across the parade ground and gardens to Chamundi Hill. The maharaja gave audience from here, seated on a throne made from 280kg of solid gold, though these days the hall is only used during the Dasara festival, when it hosts classical concerts. The smaller Ambavilas, or Private Durbar Hall, features especially beautiful stained glass and gold-leaf painting. Before leaving you pass two embossed silver doors – all that remains of the old palace.

Residential Museum Behind the Private Durbar Hall • Daily 10am–5.30pm • Charge Privately owned by the present scion of the royal family, and housed within the residential part of the palace, the Residential Museum displays royal treasures, paintings, musical instruments, children's toys, furniture, trousseaux and armoury.

Jayachamarajendra Art Gallery 300m west of Mysore Palace •
☎0821 2423693

Built in 1861, the three-storey Jaganmohan Palace was used as a royal residence until 1915, when it was turned into a picture gallery and museum, the Jayachamarajendra Art Gallery, by Maharaja Krishnaraja Wadiyar IV. Most of the “contemporary” art in the collection dates from the 1930s, when a revival of Indian painting was spearheaded by E.B. Havell and the Tagore brothers, Rabindranath and Gaganendranath, in Bengal. At the time of writing the gallery was closed long-term for a complete renovation.

Government Museum Irwin Rd • Tues–Sun 10am–5.30pm • Free • 0821 242 4673

Occupying a two-storey building that was once home to the Duke of Wellington, the Government Museum is devoted to anthropology on the ground floor, with photos, artifacts and jewellery of various tribal groups, mainly from the Himalaya and northeastern India. Upstairs there is a collection of statues and a modest selection of modern art. The grounds are strewn with large terracotta sculptures.

MYSURU DASARA FESTIVAL FOLLOWING THE TRADITION SET BY THE VIJAYANAGAR KINGS, THE TEN-DAY FESTIVAL OF DASARA (SEPT/OCT), TO COMMEMORATE THE GODDESS DURGA’S SLAYING OF THE DEMON BUFFALO, MAHISHASURA, IS CELEBRATED IN GRAND STYLE AT MYSURU. SCORES OF CULTURAL EVENTS INCLUDE CONCERTS OF SOUTH INDIAN CLASSICAL (CARNATIC) MUSIC AND DANCE PERFORMANCES IN THE GREAT DURBAR HALL OF THE MYSORE PALACE. ON VIJAYADASHAMI, THE TENTH AND LAST DAY OF THE FESTIVAL, A MAGNIFICENT PROCESSION OF MOUNTED GUARDSMEN ON HORSEBACK AND CAPARISONED ELEPHANTS – ONE, CARRYING THE PALACE DEITY, CHAMUNDESHWARI, ON A GOLD HOWDAH –

MARCHES 5KM FROM THE PALACE TO BANNI MANTAP, SITE OF A SACRED BANYAN TREE. THERE'S ALSO A FLOATING FESTIVAL IN THE TEMPLE TANK AT THE FOOT OF CHAMUNDI HILL, AND A PROCESSION OF CHARIOTS AROUND THE TEMPLE AT THE TOP. A TORCHLIT PARADE (JAMBOO SAVARI) TAKES PLACE IN THE EVENING, FOLLOWED BY A MASSIVE FIREWORK DISPLAY AND MUCH JUBILATION ON THE STREETS.

Mysuru Zoo

Zoo Main Rd, 1km east of Mysore Palace • Daily except Tues 8.30am–5.30pm • Charge, camera & video camera Charge • www.mysuruzoo.info

Officially named Sri Chamarajendra Zoological Gardens, Mysuru Zoo is one of the oldest and best in India. Established as far back as 1882, it was opened to the public in 1902 and has grown to encompass 245 beautifully landscaped acres, with spacious compounds for most of the animals that live here. The zoo boasts all the usual big mammals, including leopards and tigers, and there are also many species of bird and reptile to be admired, though some of their cages do not make viewing the animals easy. The zoo even has a very cheap canteen and an admirable policy of charging a deposit on water bottles, which can be claimed back at the exit. As always, it pays to visit early morning or late afternoon when the animals are most active.

Chamundi Hill Temple Daily 7am–2pm, 3.30–6pm & 7–9pm • Free but special entrance Charge • Bus #201 from the City stand Chamundi Hill, 12km southeast of the city, is topped with a temple to the chosen deity of the Mysore rajas – the goddess Chamundi, or Durga, who slew the demon buffalo Mahishasura. It's a pleasant, easy bus trip to the top; the walk down takes about thirty minutes. Take drinking water, especially in the middle of the day – the walk isn't very demanding, but by the end of it, after more than a thousand steps, your legs are likely to be a bit wobbly.

Inside the twelfth-century temple, which is open to non-Hindus, is a solid gold Chamundi figure. Outside, in the courtyard, stands a fearsome, if gaily coloured, statue of Mahishasura. Overlooking the path down the hill, the magnificent 5m Nandi, carved from a single piece of black granite in 1659, is an object of worship himself, adorned with bells and garlands. Minor shrines, dedicated to Chamundi and the monkey god Hanuman, among others, line the side of the path; at the bottom, a little shrine to Ganesh lies near a chai shop. From here you can pick up an auto-rickshaw or bus back into the city, but at weekends the latter are often full. If you walk on towards the city, passing a temple on the left with a big water tank (the site of the floating festival during Dasara), you'll reach the main road between the Lalitha Mahal Palace and the centre; there's a bus stop, and often auto-rickshaws, at the junction.

YOGA IN MYSURU DESPITE THE PASSING IN 2009 OF ITS FOUNDER, SRI PATTABHI JOIS, THE WORLD-RENOWNED ASHTANGA YOGA INSTITUTE (☎98801 85500, 🌐MYSOREASHTANGA.ORG/HOME), 3.5KM NORTHWEST OF TOWN IN GOKULAM, IS STILL A REVERED PILGRIMAGE DESTINATION FOR DEVOTEES. THE SURROUNDING NEIGHBOURHOOD HAS IN RECENT YEARS TURNED INTO A BUSTLING EXPAT HAVEN, FILLED WITH CAFÉS, GUESTHOUSES, RESTAURANTS AND INTERNET CAFÉS. THE INSTITUTE DOESN'T OFFER DROP-IN CLASSES; STUDENTS MUST REGISTER FOR A MINIMUM OF ONE MONTH (AROUND ₹30,000), AND BOOK AT LEAST TWO MONTHS IN ADVANCE.

There are several other centres clustered around Gokulam, including Bharath Shetty's popular IndeaYoga (☎0821 241 6779, 🌐indeayoga.com) at 144E 7th Main Rd, which offers early morning courses of between two and eight weeks' duration, and Yoga Bharata, 810 Contour Rd (☎0821 424 2342, 🌐yogabharata.com), who welcome drop-ins (₹300 per class) and offer courses of one to four weeks (from ₹2000).

Some 3km south of town, Mysore Mandala Yogashala, at 897/1 Narayan Sastry Rd, Lakshmipuram (☎0821 425 6277, 🌐mandala.ashtanga.org; closed Mon & Sat), is a self-contained retreat, offering excellent instruction, an organic café, well-tended garden, cultural events and drop-in classes. Two-hour Ashtanga classes (₹500) run at 6am, 8.30am and 4.30pm, with the slightly less strenuous ninety-minute Hatha classes (₹400) at 7am and 4.30pm.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN THE MYSURU (MYSORE) RAILWAY STATION IS 1.5KM NORTHWEST OF THE CENTRE. FOR LONG HAULS, THE BEST WAY TO TRAVEL IS BY TRAIN, USUALLY WITH A CHANGE AT BENGALURU (14–16 DAILY; 2–3HR); THE FASTEST SERVICE IS THE A/C SHATABDI EXPRESS #2008 (DAILY EXCEPT WED 2.15PM; 2HR), WHICH CONTINUES TO CHENNAI (7HR 10MIN). THE HAMPI EXPRESS #16592 GOES DAILY VIA BENGALURU TO HOSAPETE (7PM; 12HR 10MIN). THERE ARE 2–5 DAILY EXPRESS SERVICES TO HASSAN, OF WHICH THE TALGUPPA INTERCITY EXPRESS #16206 (6AM; 1HR 50MIN) IS THE FASTEST.

By bus Mysuru has three bus stands: major long-distance KSRTC and other state services pull in to Central, near the heart of the city, where there are advance booking counters. The Private stand is about 1km northwest of here and a host of agents there can make bookings for private buses to many destinations. Local buses, including services for Chamundi Hill and Srirangapatna, stop at the City stand, next to the northwestern corner of Mysore Palace.

Destinations from Central Bus Stand Channarayapatna (for Sravanabelagola; hourly; 2hr 30min); Hassan (every 15–30min; 3hr); Hubballi (4–6 daily; 9hr); Kochi (7 daily; 11–12hr); Madikeri (every 30min–1hr; 3hr); Mangaluru (every 30min–1hr; 7hr); Ootacamund (via Bandipur National Park; 8 daily; 5hr).

Destinations from Private Bus Stand Overnight services to Goa leave at 4pm and 5pm, getting to Panjim at 9am and 10am respectively.

INFORMATION AND TOURS KARNATAKA TOURISM THE HELPFUL KARNATAKA TOURISM OFFICE (MON–SAT 9.30AM–5.30PM; ☎0821 242 2096) IS LOCATED AT THE DEPARTMENT OF TOURISM, HOTEL MAYURA HOYSALA, 2 JHANSI LAKSHMI BAI RD, METROPOLE CIRCLE. THEY RUN MARATHON CITY BUS TOURS (8.30AM–8.30PM; ₹230) FOR A MINIMUM OF TWELVE PASSENGERS, AND RUSHED TOURS OF BELUR, HALEBIDU AND SRAVANABELAGOLA.

Bike tours MYcycle Tours (☎98867 05179, 🌐bit.ly/MYcycle) organizes rickshaw rides and cycling trips covering Mysuru and Srirangapatna (3hr; ₹1500).

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Finding a room is only a problem during Dasara and the Christmas/New Year period, when the popular places are booked up weeks in advance and prices predictably soar. Checkout is generally noon.

★Gitanjali Homestay Siddharthanagar, 6km east of the centre 🌐 gitanjalihomestay.com. Run by a Coorg family, this peaceful homestay located at the base of the Chamundi Hills has four rooms in a cottage-style unit with a large common veranda opening out to a garden. Excellent home-cooked Kodava cuisine. ₹₹₹

★Green Chittaranjan Palace, 2270 Vinoba Rd, Jayalakshmipuram 🌐 greenhotelindia.com. This former royal palace among landscaped gardens on the western outskirts has been refurbished as an elegant, eco-conscious two-star hotel. The 31 rooms are a decent size, and facilities include lounges, verandas, a croquet lawn and well-stocked library. All profits go to charities and environmental projects. Book in advance to arrange a pickup. ₹₹₹

Indra Bhavan Dhanavantri Rd 🌐 hotelindrabhavan@gmail.com. A dilapidated old lodge full of character, with attached singles and doubles. The “ordinary” rooms are a little grubby, but the good-value “deluxe” ones have clean tiled floors, TVs and open onto a wide common veranda. Two good veg restaurants. No wi-fi. ₹

KSTDC Mayura Hoysala 2 Jhansi Lakshmi Bai Rd 🌐 karnatakaholidays.net. Reasonably priced rooms and suites in a colonial-era mansion. There's a terrace restaurant and beer garden, which is good value, but the food is uninspiring. The budget Yatri Niwas (0821 2423492) in the same compound offers cheaper rooms. Rate includes tax. No wi-fi. ₹

₹-₹₹₹

Lalitha Mahal Palace T. Narasipur Rd, 5km east of the city @ lalithamahalpallace.co.in. On a slope overlooking the city in the distance, this white Neoclassical palace was built in 1931 to accommodate the maharaja's foreign guests. Now it's a Raj-style fantasy, decked with stunning period furniture and popular with tour groups. Rooms range from the cute turret rooms to the "Viceroy Suite". The tea lounge, restaurant and pool are open to non-residents. ₹₹₹

Mannars Yattrinivas Chandragupta Rd @ mannarsyattrinivas.com. Budget hotel near the Central Bus Stand and Gandhi Square. Spruced up of late but overall still very plain; of its 24 rooms only the "deluxe" have TV. Deservedly popular with back-packers but no advance booking. ₹-₹₹

★Parklane 2720 Sri Harsha Rd @ parklanemysore.com. A complete overhaul has trans-formed the Parklane into a swish yet affordable boutique hotel. Appealingly misshapen rooms, all with a/c, contemporary furnishings and most with balconies, encircle a sky-lit atrium. ₹₹

Hotel Roopa 2724-C Bangalore-Nilgiri Rd @ hotelroopa.com. Bright modern hotel block with compact but comfy rooms at surprisingly reasonable prices and a good complimentary buffet breakfast. Centrally located near the station, and ideal for the palace. ₹

Royal Orchid Metropole 5 Jhansi Lakshmi Bai Rd @ royalorchidhotels.com. Luxurious heritage hotel set in pleasant gardens built in 1920 by the maharaja of Mysore. Its thirty rooms have high ceilings and a sense of grandeur. There's also a small outdoor pool and gym. The fine Tiger Trail multicuisine restaurant serves buffet breakfast (included) and lunch in the central courtyard; the Shikari restaurant hosts barbecue dinners. ₹₹₹

Sandesh The Prince 3 Nazarbad Main Rd @ sandeshtheprince.com. Smart, stylish four-star with comfortable, well-furnished rooms and an impressive, sky-lit foyer. Facilities include travel desk, foreign exchange, outdoor pool (open to non-residents) with barbecue, and an excellent Ayurvedic centre and beauty parlour. ₹₹₹

Sangeeth 1966 Narayana Shastri Rd, near the Udipi Krishna temple 0821 242. One of Mysuru's best all-round budget deals: bland and a bit boxed in, but friendly and very good value, with a rooftop restaurant. ₹

S.C.D.V.S. Sri Harsha Rd 0821 242 5161. Friendly modern lodge with some a/c rooms and cable TV in most. Some of the upper-storey rooms have balconies overlooking the palace. ₹₹

Zostel Mysore 2639/1 Valmiki Rd www.zostel.com. West of the railway station, this bright modern branch of the growing hostel chain has ultra clean 4-, 6- and 8-bedded dorms, plus some private rooms. Dorm from ₹, double ₹₹

EATING

MAP

Mysuru has scores of places to eat, from numerous south Indian “meals” joints dotted around the market to the opulent Lalitha Mahal Palace. To sample the renowned Mysore pak, a sweet, rich crumbly mixture made of ghee and maize flour, queue at Guru Sweet Mart, a small stall at KR Circle that's considered to be the best sweetshop in town. Another speciality is the soft, fragrant mallige idli, named after the delicate jasmine flower for which the city is known.

Aavass Inn Paradise Ashoka Rd 0821 252 5443. Small sparse canteen at the back of a hotel, serving very cheap South Indian breakfasts and meals. Stand-up snack bar out front. ₹

Dynasty Palace Plaza hotel, Sri Harsha Rd 0821 241 7592. Dynasty offers a wide range of Indian, Chinese and Continental fare, served either in the ground-floor dining hall or breezy covered rooftop terrace, great in the evening. Full bar. ₹₹

Kamat Madhuvan Near Gun House, Nanjangud Rd 99800 04507. A traditional veg place 1km south of the palace, serving and north Karnataka cuisine such as jolada roti (flatbread), plus thalis, to a soundtrack of light classical music in the evening. ₹

Lalitha Mahal Palace T. Narasipur Rd www.lalithamahalpallace.in. Sample the charms of this palatial five-star hotel with a hot drink in the atmospheric tea lounge, or an à la carte lunch in the grand dining hall, accompanied by live sitar music. Buffet dinners available. The old-style bar also boasts a full-size billiards table. ₹₹₹₹

★Le Olive Garden The Windflower Spa, Maharana-pratap Rd, 3km southeast of town 0821 252 2500. Excellent, reasonably priced Indian, Chinese and Western dishes served to the sound of falling water and croaking frogs at this quasi-jungle hideaway. ₹₹

The Old House Jhansi Lakshmi Bai Rd, RTO Circle, 2km west of the palace 0821 233 3255. Overlooking a leafy garden, this lovely café and patisserie serves wood-fired pizzas, pastas, salads and juices, besides a variety of fresh breads from the in-house bakery. Drop by at the adjoining Maya boutique, housed in a charming colonial building, for knick-knacks. ₹₹

★Parklane Sri Harsha Rd 9 parklanemysore.com. Congenial courtyard restaurant-cum-beer balcony, with reasonably priced veg and non-veg (meat sizzlers are a speciality), fake trees and live Indian classical music every evening. The hotel rooftop space is a real stunner, with full bar, pool and fantastic views. ₹₹

★RRR Gandhi Square 0821 244 1979. Superb Andhra canteen with a small but plush a/c room at the back. Gets packed at lunchtimes and at weekends, but it's well worth the wait for its excellent chicken biryani, fried fish and set menus served on banana leaf. ₹₹₹

DRINKING AND NIGHTLIFE

MAP

Food & Drink Maharaja Shopping Complex, Bangalore–Mysore Rd 92415 57015. Advertising itself as a music bar, this joint is still more of a drinking den, with a wide selection of drinks and a jarring mixture of Western and Indian sounds.

The Road Sandesh The Prince, 3 Nazarbad Main Rd 0821 243 6777. Lined with plush booths – several of which are inside faux classic cars – this upmarket, American road trip-themed restaurant/club serves a good lunch menu before the tables are cleared at 7pm and patrons take to the circular wooden dancefloor, usually to guest DJs (cover fee at weekends).

SHOPPING

MAP

Cauvery Arts and Crafts Emporium Sayaji Rao Rd 9 cauverycrafts.com. Souvenir stores spill over with the famous sandalwood in Mysuru but the best place to get a sense of what's on offer is this government-run store, which stocks a wide range of local crafts that can be shipped overseas.

Devaraja Market Sayaji Rao Rd. One of south India's most atmospheric produce markets: a giant complex of covered stalls groaning with bananas (the delicious Nanjangud variety), luscious mangoes, blocks of sticky jaggery and conical heaps of lurid kumkum powder.

Around Mysuru Mysuru is a jumping-off point for some of Karnataka's most popular destinations. At Srirangapatna, the fort, palace and mausoleum date from the era of Tipu Sultan, the "Tiger of Mysore", while the superb Hoysala temple of Somnathpur is an architectural masterpiece. Nagarahole National Park is also accessible within three hours of the city.

Srirangapatna The island of Srirangapatna, in the River Kaveri, 20km northeast of Mysuru, measures 5km by 1km. Long a site of Hindu pilgrimage, it is named after its tenth-century Sriranganathaswamy Vishnu temple. The Vijayanagar kings built a fort here in 1454, and in 1616 it became the capital of the Mysore Wadiyar rajas. However, Srirangapatna is more famously associated with Haider Ali, who deposed the Wadiyars in 1761, and his son Tipu Sultan. During his seventeen-year reign – which ended with his death in 1799, when the future Duke of Wellington took the fort at the bloody battle of “Seringapatnam” – Tipu posed a greater threat than any other Indian ruler to British plans to dominate India. Born in 1750, of a Hindu mother, he inherited his father Haider Ali’s considerable military skills, but was also an educated, cultured man, whose lifelong desire to rid India of the hated British invaders naturally brought him an ally in the French. He obsessively embraced his popular name of the Tiger of Mysore, surrounding himself with symbols and images of tigers; much of his memorabilia is decorated with the animal or its stripes, and, like the Romans, he is said to have kept tigers for the punishment of criminals.

Sri Ranganathaswamy temple 300m east of station • Daily 7.30am–1pm & 4–8pm At the heart of the fortress, the great temple of Sri Ranganathaswamy still stands proud and virtually untouched by the turbulent history that has flowed around it, and remains, for many devotees, the island’s prime draw. Developed by succeeding dynasties, it consists of three distinct sanctuaries and is entered via an impressive five-storeyed gateway and a hall built by Haider Ali. The innermost sanctum, the oldest part of the temple, contains an image of a reclining Vishnu.

Daria Daulat Bagh 2km east of the station • Daily 9am–5pm Fri • Charge The former summer palace, the Daria Daulat Bagh, literally “wealth of the sea”, was built in 1784 to entertain Tipu’s guests. At first sight, this low, wooden colonnaded building set in an attractive formal garden fails to impress. But the superbly preserved interior is remarkable, with its ornamental arches, tiger-striped columns and floral decoration on every centimetre of the teak walls and ceiling. A much-repainted mural on the west wall relishes every detail of Haider Ali’s victory over the British at Pollilore in 1780.

Gumbaz mausoleum 3km east of Daria Daulat Bagh • Daily except Fri 9am–5pm • Free An avenue of cypresses leads from an intricately carved gateway to the Gumbaz mausoleum. Built by Tipu Sultan in 1784 to commemorate Haider Ali, and later also to serve as his own resting place, the lower half of the grey-granite edifice is crowned by a dome of whitewashed brick and plaster, spectacular against the blue sky. Ivory-inlaid rosewood doors lead to the tombs of Haider Ali and Tipu, each covered by a pall (tiger stripes for Tipu), and an Urdu tablet records Tipu's martyrdom.

ARRIVAL AND GETTING AROUND SRIRANGAPATNA
SRIRANGAPATNA IS A SMALL ISLAND, BUT PLACES OF INTEREST ARE QUITE SPREAD OUT; TONGAS, AUTO-RICKSHAWS (AROUND ₹300 FOR A 2HR TOUR) AND BICYCLES ARE AVAILABLE ON THE MAIN ROAD NEAR THE BUS STAND.

By train All the Mysuru–Bengaluru trains pull in to the station near the temple and fort, taking only 15min from Mysuru.

By bus Frequent buses (including #307, #313 and #316) leave from Mysore City Bus Stand (30min); #316 drops you near the Gumbaz.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING MAYURA RIVER VIEW 3KM SOUTH OF THE RAILWAY STATION 🏠

KARNATAKAHOLIDAYS.NET. THE KSTDC HOTEL-CUM-RESTAURANT OCCUPIES A PLEASANT SPOT BESIDE THE RIVER KAVERI. ITS ROOMS AND COTTAGES (ALL A/C) ARE OVERPRICED, HOWEVER. ₹₹

New Amblee Holiday Resort 2km east of the railway station 🏠 ambleeresort.in. Located along the banks of the picturesque Kaveri River, this hotel offers luxury and deluxe rooms with or without a/c. ₹₹

Somnathpur: Keshava Vishnu temple Daily 9am–5.30pm • Charge

Built in 1268, the exquisite Keshava Vishnu temple, in the sleepy hamlet of SOMNATHPUR, was the last important temple to be constructed by the Hoysalas; it is also the most complete and the finest example of this singular style. Somnathpur itself, just ninety minutes from Mysuru by road, is little more than a few neat tracks and some attractive simple houses with pillared verandas.

Built on a star-shaped plan, like other Hoysala shrines, the Keshava temple is a trikutachala, “three-peaked hills” type, with a tower on each shrine. Its high plinth (jagati) provides an upper ambulatory, which allows visitors to marvel at the profusely decorated walls. Among the many superb images here is a life-size statue of Krishna playing the flute, and as at Halebidu, a lively frieze details countless episodes from the Ramayana, Bhagavata Purana and Mahabharata. Unusually, the temple is autographed, bearing the signatures of its sculptors. Outside the temple stands a flagstaff (dhvajastambha), which may originally have been surmounted by a figure of Vishnu’s bird vehicle Garuda.

It’s best to visit as early as possible, as the black stone gets hot in the day, making it tough to walk barefoot.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY BUS THERE ARE SOMNATHPUR
NO DIRECT BUSES FROM MYSURU TO SOMNATHPUR.
PRIVATE BUSES RUN FROM MYSURU TO TIRUMAKUDAL
NARASIPUR (1HR), FROM WHERE THERE ARE REGULAR BUSES TO SOMNATHPUR (20MIN).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING THERE IS NOWHERE TO STAY NEAR THE TEMPLE AND THE ONLY FOOD AVAILABLE IS BISCUITS OR MAYBE A SAMOSA OR FRUIT FROM A STREET-SELLER.

Hassan and around The nondescript town of HASSAN, 118km northwest of Mysuru, is visited in large numbers because of its proximity to the Hoysala temples at Belur and Halebidu, both northwest of the town, and the Jain pilgrimage site of Sravanabelagola to the southeast. Some travellers end up staying a couple of nights but with a little forward planning you shouldn't have to linger for long, as Belur, Halebidu and Sravanabelagola, deep in the serene Karnataka countryside, offer more appealing surroundings.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN THE HASSAN RAILWAY STATION, SERVED BY REGULAR TRAINS FROM MYSURU (10 DAILY; 2–3HR), IS 2KM EAST OF THE TOWN CENTRE ON BM RD. THERE ARE ALSO SEVERAL DAILY TRAINS TO MANGALURU (5–6HR), ONE OF THEM OVERNIGHT.

By bus Hassan's KSRTC Bus Stand is in the centre of town, at the northern end of Bus Stand Rd, and served by frequent buses from Mysuru (every 15–30min; 3hr). In order to see the surrounding sights by bus, you'll need at least two days. Belur and Halebidu can be comfortably covered in one day; it's best to take one of the earliest hourly buses to Halebidu (1hr) and move on to Belur (30min), from where services back to Hassan are more frequent (6.30am–6.15pm; 1hr 10min). Sravanabelagola, however, is in the opposite direction, and not served by direct buses; you have to head to Channarayapatna (every 30min from 6.30am; 1hr), aka "CR Patna", on the main Bengaluru highway and pick up one of the regular buses (30min) or any number of minibuses from there.

By car Apart from taking a tour, the only way to see Sravanabelagola, Belur and Halebidu in one day is by car, which some visitors share; most of the hotels can fix this up for around ₹2500/day.

Tourist information AVK College Rd (Mon–Sat 10am–5.30pm; ☎08172 268862).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING DR KARIGOWDA RESIDENCY BM RD, UNDER 1KM WEST FROM RAILWAY STATION 096868 41686. IMMACULATE BUDGET HOTEL: FRIENDLY, COMFORTABLE AND AMAZING VALUE. SINGLE OCCUPANCY POSSIBLE; A/C COSTS EXTRA. NO WI-FI. ₹

Harsha Mahal Below Harsha Mahal Lodge, Harsha Mahal Rd 008172 268533. Excellent veg canteen that serves freshly cooked idli, dosas and other south Indian fare. ₹

Hoysala Village Belur Rd, 6km northwest of the centre @ hoysalavillageresorts.com. Ethnically designed and decorated luxury cottages and suites in a quiet rural setting, with a multicuisine restaurant and a pool. ₹₹₹₹

Southern Star BM Rd, 500m from the train station @ hotelsouthernstar.com. Newish hotel with a variety of rooms and all mod cons. It's better value than most and the Hoysala multicuisine restaurant is excellent. ₹₹

Suvarna Gate Suvarna Regency, PB 97, BM Rd 008172 264006. This plush non-veg restaurant and bar with a few tables overlooking the garden is one of Hassan's finest. The varied menu is not cheap. ₹₹₹

Halebidu (Halebid) Now little more than a scruffy village of brick houses and chai stalls, HALEBIDU (formerly Halebid), 32km northwest of Hassan, was the second capital of the powerful Hoysala dynasty, which held sway over south Karnataka from the eleventh until the early fourteenth centuries and its peak stretched from coast to coast. Once known as Dora Samudra (Gateway to the Sea), the capital city became Hale-bidu, or "Old City", after successive raids by the Delhi sultanate between 1311 and 1326 reduced it to rubble. Despite the sacking, several large Hoysala temples survive, two of which, the Hoysaleswara and Kedareshwara, are superb, covered in exquisite carvings. Note that Belur has superior facilities to those found in Halebidu, making it a far better base for exploration of the Hoysala region.

Hoysaleshvara temple Temple Daily 6am–6pm • Free • Archaeological museum Daily except Fri 10am–5pm The Hoysaleshvara temple, in the centre of the village, was started in 1121 and still unfinished even after a century of work; this possibly accounts for the absence here of the type of towers that feature at Somnathpur. Two large, ornately carved idols of Nandi, the bull, face its double shrine, with a Ganesha figure to the south. Each shrine contains a lingam.

Hoysaleshvara also features many Vaishnavite images. The sculptures, which have a fluid quality lacking in the earlier work at Belur, include Brahma aboard his swan, Krishna holding up Mount Govardhana and Vishnu (Trivikrama) spanning the world in three steps. One of the most remarkable images is of the demon king Ravana shaking Shiva's mountain abode, Mount Kailash, populated by numerous animals and figures with Shiva and Parvati seated atop. You'll also come across the odd erotic tableau featuring voluptuous, heavily bejewelled maidens. A narrative frieze, on the sixth register from the bottom, follows the length of the Nandi mandapas and illustrates scenes from the Hindu epics.

A small archeological museum next to the temple houses a collection of Hoysala art and other finds from the area.

HOYSALA TEMPLES THE HOYSALA DYNASTY, WHO RULED SOUTHWESTERN KARNATAKA BETWEEN THE ELEVENTH AND THIRTEENTH CENTURIES, BUILT A SERIES OF DISTINCTIVE TEMPLES CENTRED PRIMARILY AT THREE SITES: BELUR AND HALEBIDU, CLOSE TO MODERN HASSAN, AND SOMNATHPUR, NEAR MYSURU. AT FIRST SIGHT, AND FROM A DISTANCE, THE BUILDINGS, ALL BASED ON A STAR-SHAPED PLAN, APPEAR TO BE MODEST STRUCTURES, COMPACT AND EVEN SQUAT. YET ON CLOSER INSPECTION, THEIR PROFUSION OF

FABULOUSLY DETAILED AND SENSUOUS SCULPTURE, COVERING EVERY CENTIMETRE OF THE EXTERIOR, IS ASTONISHING. DETRACTORS OFTEN CLASS HOYSALA ART AS DECADENT, BUT ANYONE WITH AN EYE FOR CRAFTSMANSHIP WILL BE SURE TO MARVEL.

The intricacy of the carvings was made possible by the material used in construction: a soft soapstone that on oxidization hardens to a glassy, highly polished surface. The level of detail, similar to that seen in sandalwood and ivory-work, became increasingly free and more fluid as the style developed, and reached its highest point at Somnathpur. Beautiful bracket figures, often delicate portrayals of voluptuous female subjects, were placed under the eaves, fixed by pegs top and bottom. A later addition (except possibly in the Somnathpur temple), these serve no structural function.

Another technique more usually associated with wood is the unusual treatment of the massive stone pillars: lathe-turned, they resemble those of the wooden temples of Kerala. They were probably turned on a horizontal plane, pinned at each end, and rotated with the use of a rope. It may be no coincidence that, to this day, wood-turning is still a local speciality.

The Jain basadis 600m south of the Hoysaleswara temple Halebidu's Jain basadis (temples) stand virtually unadorned; their only sculptural decoration consists of ceiling friezes inside the mandapas and elephants at the entrance steps, where there's an impressive donation plaque. The thirteenth-century temple of Adi Parshwanatha is dedicated to the 23rd tirthankara, Parshvanath, while the sixteenth-century Vijayanatha is dedicated to the sixteenth tirthankara, Shantinath. The chowkidar will demonstrate various tricks made possible by the carved pillars' highly polished surfaces; some are so finely turned they sound metallic when struck.

Kedareshwara temple 400m east of the basadis • Daily 6.30am–6pm • Free With its magnificently carved outer walls, tower, doorway and ceiling, the Shaivite Kedareshvara temple, built in 1219, has been described by architectural historian James Fergusson as “a gem of Indian architecture”. The multitude of sculpted friezes at the base of the exterior depict elephants, horses, lions, mythical animals, swans and scrolls illustrating stories from Hindu epics, while the upper sections bear 180 finely carved images of gods and goddesses standing under elegantly designed floral arches. Inside, the ceilings are of most interest, replete with dancing images and other carvings.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BUSES RUN HALEBIDU (HALEBID) UNTIL 7PM TO HASSAN (EVERY 30MIN–1HR; 1HR) AND TO BELUR (HOURLY; 30MIN).

ACCOMMODATION MAYURA SHANTALA HALEBEEDU OPPOSITE HOYSALESH-VARA TEMPLE  KARNATAKAHOLIDAYS.NET. KSTDC HOTEL SET IN A SMALL GARDEN OFFERING THREE COMFORTABLE, IF OVERPRICED, DOUBLES WITH VERANDAS, PLUS A FOUR-BED ROOM – ALL SHOULD BE BOOKED IN ADVANCE. THIS IS ALSO THE ONLY PLACE TO EAT, APART FROM A HANDFUL OF DAYTIME CHAI STALLS. NO WI-FI. ₹

Belur

BELUR, 37km northwest of Hassan, on the banks of the Yagachi River, was the Hoysala capital prior to Halebidu, during the eleventh and twelfth centuries. Still in active worship, the Chennakeshava temple is a fine and early example of the singular Hoysala style, built by King Vishnuvardhana in 1117 to celebrate his conversion from Jainism, victory over Chola forces at Talakad and his independence from the Chalukyas. Today, its grey-stone gopura, or gateway tower, soars above a small, bustling market town – a popular pilgrimage site from October to December, when busloads of Ayappan devotees stream through en route to Sabarimala. The car festival held around March or April takes place over twelve days and has a pastoral feel, attracting farmers from the surrounding countryside who conduct a bullock cart procession through the streets to the temple.

Chennakeshava temple West of the bus stand • Daily 7.30am–7.30pm; main shrine opens for worship 8–10am, 11am–1pm, 2.30–5pm & 6.30–7.30pm Chennakeshava temple stands in a huge walled courtyard, surrounded by smaller shrines and columned mandapa hallways. Both the sanctuary and mandapa are raised on the usual plinth (jagati), creating the jagged star shape. The quantity of sculptural decoration, if less mature than in later Hoysala temples, is staggering. The bracket figures depict celestial nymphs with intricately carved make-up, ornaments and hair, such detail being exclusive to Belur. Notable are the stunning sculpture of Darpanasundari (“lady with a mirror”), the pillars in the Navaranga hall and the 2m-high statue of Sri Keshava depicted with four hands.

Within the same enclosure, the Kappe Channigaraya temple has some finely carved niche images and a depiction of Narasimha (Vishnu as man-lion) killing the demon Hiranyakashipu. A few metres west, fine sculptures in the smaller Viranarayana shrine include a scene from the Mahabharata of Bhima killing the demon Bhaga.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS BUSES FROM BELUR HASSAN AND HALEBIDU ARRIVE AT THE SMALL BUS STAND IN THE MIDDLE OF TOWN, A 10MIN WALK WEST ALONG THE MAIN STREET FROM THE TEMPLE.

Bike rental There are auto-rickshaws available, but a good way to explore the area, including Halebidu, is to rent a bicycle (₹5/hr) from one of the stalls around the bus stand.

Tourist information The tourist office (Mon–Sat 10am–5pm) is located within the KSTDC Mayuri Velapuri compound on Temple Rd.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING KALPAVRIKSHA JUST OFF TEMPLE RD 98276 30455. JUST ABOUT THE ONLY PLACE TO EAT MEAT IN BELUR, THIS SMALL BAR AND RESTAURANT OFFERS A STANDARD RANGE OF INDIAN AND CHINESE MAIN COURSES, AS WELL AS SOUTH INDIAN SNACKS. ₹

Mayura Velapuri Temple Rd  karnatakaholidays.net. This KSTDC hotel is a clean and comfortable place to stay, with five non-a/c and eight a/c rooms. The two dorms are rarely occupied, except in the March–May pilgrim season. Dorms ₹, doubles ₹₹

Sumukha Residency Temple Rd 08177 222181. Close to the temple and bus stand, this fairly modern and comfortable place has singles and more expensive a/c rooms. No wi-fi. ₹

Vishnu Lodge Main Rd, near the bus stand 08177 222263. Above a great veg restaurant and sweet shop, this is the best-value place, with sizeable rooms (some with TV) but tiny attached bathrooms where hot water is only available in the mornings. No wi-fi. ₹

Sravanabelagola The sacred Jain site of SRAVANABELAGOLA, 49km southeast of Hassan and 93km north of Mysuru, consists of two hills and a large tank. On one of the hills, Indragiri (also known as Vindhya giri), stands an extraordinary 18m-high monolithic statue of a naked male figure, Gomateshvara. Said to be the largest freestanding sculpture in India, this tenth-century colossus, visible from kilometres away, makes Sravanabelagola a key pilgrimage centre. At the Mahamastakabhisheka or “great head anointing ceremony”, held every twelve years, devotees congregate to pour libations over the statue. The next will be held in February 2018. Spend a night or two in the village, and you can climb Indragiri Hill before dawn to enjoy the serene spectacle of the sun rising over the sugar cane fields and outcrops of lumpy granite that litter the surrounding plains – an unforgettable sight.

Sravanabelagola is linked in tradition with the Mauryan emperor Chandragupta, who starved himself to death on the second hill around 300 BC, in accordance with a Jain practice. The hill was renamed Chandragiri, marking the arrival of Jainism in southern India. At the same time, a controversy regarding the doctrines of Mahavira, the last of the 24 Jain tirthankaras (literally “ford-makers”, who assist the aspirant to cross the “ocean of rebirth”), split Jainism into two separate branches – svetambara, “white-clad” Jains, more common in north India, and digambara, “sky-clad”, who usually go naked and are associated with the south.

The monuments at Sravanabelagola probably date from no earlier than the tenth century, when a General Chavundaraya is said to have visited Chandragiri in search of a Mauryan statue of Gomateshvara. As a result of a vision in the rock face, having failed to find it, he decided to have one made. From the top of Chandragiri he fired an arrow across to Indragiri Hill; where the arrow landed, he had a new Gomateshvara sculpted from a single rock.

Indragiri Hill Gomateshvara is approached from the tank between the two hills south of the main road by 612 steps, cut into the granite of Indragiri Hill, which pass numerous rock inscriptions on the way up to a walled enclosure. Shoes must be deposited at the stall to the left of the steps, and you can leave bags at the site office nearby. Take plenty of water if it's hot, as there is none available on the hill. Entered through a small wagon-vaulted gopura, the temple is entirely dominated by the towering figure of Gomateshvara. With elongated arms and exaggeratedly wide shoulders, his proportions may seem unnatural but depict the idealized physical features possessed by great thinkers and sages. The sensuously smooth surface of the white granite is finely carved: particularly the hands, hair and serene face. As in legend, ant hills and snakes sit at his feet and creepers appear to grow on his limbs.

Chandragiri Hill Leaving your shoes with the keeper at the bottom, take the rock-cut steps to the top of the smaller Chandragiri Hill, north of the main road. Fine views stretch south to Indragiri and, from the north on the far side, across to a river, paddy and sugar cane fields, palms and the village of Jinanathapura, where there's another ornate Hoysala temple, the Shantishvara basadi.

Rather than a single large shrine, as at Indragiri, Chandragiri holds a group of basadis in late Chalukya Dravida style, within a walled enclosure. Caretakers will take you around and open up the closed shrines. Save for pilasters and elaborate parapets, all the temples have plain exteriors. Named after its patron, the tenth-century Chavundaraya temple is the largest of the group, dedicated to Parshvanath. Inside the twelfth-century Chandragupta, superb carved panels in a small shrine tell the story of Chandragupta and his teacher Bhadrabahu. Traces of painted geometric designs survive and the pillars feature detailed carving. Elsewhere in the enclosure stands a 24m-high manastambha, “pillar of fame”, decorated with images of spirits, yakshis and a yaksha. No fewer than 576 inscriptions dating from the sixth to the nineteenth centuries are dotted around the site, on pillars and on the rock itself.

Bhandari Basadi and monastery (math) The road east from the foot of the steps at Chandragiri leads to two interesting Jain buildings in town. To the right as you face the hill, the Bhandari Basadi (1159), housing a shrine with images of the 24 tirthankaras, was built by Hullamaya, treasurer of the Hoysala raja Narasimha. Two mandapa hallways, where naked digambara Jains may sometimes be seen discoursing with devotees clad in white, lead to the shrine at the back.

At the end of the street, the math (monastery) was the residence of Sravanabelagola’s senior acharya, or guru. Thirty male and female monks are attached to the math; normally a member of staff will be happy to show visitors around. Among the rare palm-leaf manuscripts in the library, some more than a millennium old, are works on mathematics and geography, and the Mahapurana, hagiographies of the tirthankaras. Next door, a covered walled courtyard edged by a high platform on three sides has a chair placed for the acharya. A collection of tenth-century bronze tirthankara images is housed here, and vibrant murals detail the various lives of Parshvanath. The hills where the tirthankaras stood to gain moksha are represented in a model, somewhat resembling a jelly mould, with tacked-on footprints.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS SRAVANABELAGOLA
YOU CAN REACH SRAVANABELAGOLA FROM HASSAN WITH ONE CHANGE OF BUS, ALTHOUGH MANY PEOPLE CHOOSE THE EASIER OPTION OF A TOUR FROM MYSURU OR BENGALURU.

Bike rental Crisscrossed by winding back roads, the idyllic countryside around Sravanabelagola is mostly flat and thus perfect cycling terrain. Bicycles are available for rent at Saleem Cycle Mart, on Masjid Rd, opposite the northeast corner of the tank.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING THERE ARE PLENTY OF DHARAMSHALAS TO CHOOSE FROM IF YOU WANT TO STAY. MANAGED BY THE TEMPLE AUTHORITIES, THEY OFFER SIMPLE, SCRUPULOUSLY CLEAN ROOMS, MANY WITH THEIR OWN BATHROOMS AND SITOUTS, SET AROUND GARDENS AND COURTYARDS, AND COSTING UNDER ₹300 PER NIGHT. THE 24HR OFFICE OF THE SHRAVANABELAGOLA DIGAMBARA JAIN MANAGING COMMITTEE (☎08176 257258), LOCATED INSIDE THE SP GUEST HOUSE, NEXT TO THE BUS STAND CLOCK TOWER, ALLOCATES ROOMS.

Hotel Raghu Opposite the main tank ☎08176 257238. Very simple attached rooms but clean enough and the only private option around, with some a/c rooms. It also has the best of the many small local restaurants – try the excellent thali. ₹

Kodagu (Coorg) The hill region of Kodagu, formerly known as Coorg, lies 100km west of Mysuru in the Western Ghats, its eastern fringes merging with the Mysore plateau. India's leading coffee-producing region, Kodagu is also the birthplace of the River Kaveri and home to the martial Kodavas, whose customs, language and appearance set them apart from their neighbours. Its rugged mountain terrain is interspersed with cardamom valleys and fields of lush paddy, as well as coffee plantations, making it one of south India's most beautiful areas. Yet much has changed since Dervla Murphy spent a few months here with her daughter in the 1970s (the subject of her classic travelogue, On a Shoestring to Coorg) and was entranced by the landscape. Homestays have given tourism in Kodagu a big boost, and larger hotel chains and resorts have moved in to cater to weekend visitors, making the main towns feel much more crowded.

Nonetheless, the countryside is still idyllic and the climate refreshingly cool, even in summer. Many visitors trek through the unspoilt forest tracts and ridges that fringe the district. On the eastern borders of Kodagu around Kushalnagar, large Tibetan settlements have transformed the once barren countryside of Bylakuppe into fertile farmland dotted with monasteries, some of which house thousands of monks. To its south, and three hours southwest of Mysuru, Nagarahole National Park can be rewarding if visited at the right time of year.

If you plan to cross the Ghats between Mysuru and the coast, the route through Kodagu is definitely worth considering. A good time to visit is during the festival season in early December, or during the Blossom Showers around March and April when the coffee plants bloom with white flowers that scent the air.

Brief history The first records of a kingdom here date from the eighth century, when it prospered from the salt trade passing between the coast and the cities on the Deccan. Under the Hindu Haleri rajas, the state repulsed invasions by its more powerful neighbours, including Haider Ali and his son Tipu Sultan. A combination of hilly terrain, absence of roads (a deliberate policy on the part of defence-conscious Kodagu kings) and the tenacity of its highly trained warriors ensured Kodagu was never conquered.

In 1834, after ministers appealed to the British to help depose their despotic king, Chikkaviraraja, Kodagu became a princely state with nominal independence, which it retained until the creation of Karnataka in 1956. Coffee was introduced during the Raj and, despite plummeting prices on the international market, this continues to be the linchpin of the local economy, along with pepper and cardamom. Although Kodagu is Karnataka's wealthiest region, despite being its smallest, and provides the highest tax revenue, it does not reap the rewards – some villages are still without electricity – and this, coupled with the distinct identity and fiercely independent nature of the Kodavas, has given rise to movements for autonomy, such as the Codava National Council.

Madikeri (Mercara) and around Nestling beside a curved stretch of craggy hills, MADIKERI, capital of Kodagu, undulates around 1300m up in the Western Ghats, roughly midway between Mysuru and the coastal city of Mangaluru. The gradually increasing number of foreigners who travel up here find it a pleasant enough town, with red-tiled buildings and undulating roads that converge on a bustling bazaar, but most move on to home and plantation stays in the verdant Coorg countryside within a couple of days.

Omkareshwara temple 1km northwest of bus stand

The red-roofed Omkareshwara temple, built in 1820 and dedicated to Shiva, features an unusual combination of Hindu features, Islamic-influenced domes and even Gothic elements. The annual Teppothsava or boat festival takes place in November or December.

Madikeri Fort 1km northwest of bus stand • Tues–Sun 10am–5.30pm • Museum Tues–Sun 9am–5pm, except 2nd Sat • Free Housed within the old Madikeri Fort, the original mud palace of Haleri king Muddu Raja was rebuilt in stone by Tipu Sultan in 1781 and further modified by the British in the nineteenth century; it now serves as government offices. The fort also houses the old prison and an ancient Kote Ganapati temple, as well as St Mark's Chapel, which has been converted into a small museum containing British memorabilia, Jain and Hindu deity figures and weapons.

Around 2km north of the fort and temple, at Gaddige, the huge square tombs of the rajas, with Islamic-style gilded domes and minarets, are also worth a look.

Raja's Seat and around The Kodagu kings chose an ideal vantage point from which to watch the sunset: Raja's Seat (daily 6am–8pm; ₹5), a grassy park and garden on the western edge of town, fills up just before dusk for a water-and-light show at 7pm. Nearby, Gandhi Mantap marks the site where Mahatma Gandhi addressed the townsfolk in 1934.

Abbi Falls

8km southeast of the town • Auto-rickshaws Charge around ₹400 for the return journey including waiting time

THE KODAVAS THEORIES ABOUND AS TO THE ORIGINS OF THE KODAVAS, OR COORGS, WHO TODAY COMPRISE LESS THAN ONE SIXTH OF THE HILL REGION'S POPULATION. FAIR-SKINNED AND WITH THEIR OWN LANGUAGE AND CUSTOMS, THEY ARE THOUGHT TO HAVE MIGRATED TO SOUTHERN INDIA FROM KURDISTAN, KASHMIR OR EVEN GREECE, THOUGH NO ONE KNOWS EXACTLY WHY OR WHEN. ONE POPULAR BELIEF HOLDS THAT THIS STAUNCHLY MARTIAL PEOPLE, WHO SINCE INDEPENDENCE HAVE PRODUCED SOME OF INDIA'S LEADING MILITARY BRAINS, ARE A BRANCH OF INDO-SCYTHIANS; SOME

EVEN CLAIM CONNECTIONS WITH ALEXANDER THE GREAT'S INVADING ARMY. WHATEVER THEIR ORIGINS, THE KODAVAS HAVE MANAGED TO RETAIN A DISTINCT IDENTITY DISTINCT FROM THE FREED PLANTATION SLAVES, MOPLAH MUSLIM TRADERS AND OTHER IMMIGRANTS WHO HAVE SETTLED HERE. THEIR LANGUAGE IS DRAVIDIAN, YET THEIR RELIGIOUS PRACTICES, BASED ON ANCESTOR VENERATION AND WORSHIP OF NATURE SPIRITS, SACRED GROVES (DEVARAKADU) AND THE RIVER, DIFFER MARKEDLY FROM THOSE OF MAINSTREAM HINDUISM. LAND TENURE IN KODAGU IS ALSO QUITE DISTINCTIVE: WOMEN HAVE A RIGHT TO INHERITANCE AND OWNERSHIP AND ARE ALSO ALLOWED TO REMARRY.

Spiritual and social life for traditional Kodavas revolves around the ain mane, or ancestral homestead. Built on raised platforms to overlook the family land, these large, detached houses, with their beautiful carved wood doors and beaten-earth floors, generally have four wings and courtyards to accommodate various branches of the extended family, as well as shrine rooms, or Karona Kalas, dedicated to the clan's most important forebears. Key religious rituals and rites of passage are always conducted in the ain mane, rather than the local temple. However, you could easily travel through Kodagu without ever seeing one, as they are invariably away from roads, deep in the plantations.

The pleasant road to Abbi Falls, Madikeri's famous 21m cascade, winds through the hill country and makes for a good day's outing. A gate near the car park leads through a private coffee and cardamom plantation to the base of the cascade (fenced off to dissuade swimming). Viewed from a hanging bridge, the falls are at their best during and after the monsoons.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY MADIKERI AND AROUND BUS MADIKERI HAS REGULAR BUS CONNECTIONS WITH BENGALURU (HOURLY; 6HR), HASSAN (6–8 DAILY; 4HR),

MANGALURU (EVERY 30MIN–1HR; 4HR) AND MYSURU (EVERY 30MIN–1HR; 3HR). THE KSTRC STATE BUS STAND IS AT THE LOWEST PART OF TOWN, TOWARDS ITS EASTERN SIDE, BELOW THE MAIN BAZAAR; PRIVATE BUSES FROM VILLAGES AROUND THE REGION PULL INTO A CAR PARK 100M WEST.

Tourist information Coorg Travel World (☎08272 224394, 🌐coorgtravelworld.com), on Main Rd, and Coorg SR Tours & Travels (☎08272 222717, 🌐coorgsrtravels.com), near the bus stand, both arrange treks, tours and homestays. For information on Kodagu's forests and booking forest bungalows contact the Deputy Conservator of Forests (☎08272 228305) at the fort. To arrange coffee plantation visits, contact the Kodagu Planters Association on Mysore Rd (☎08272 226273, 🌐cpa.org.in).

ACCOMMODATION KODAGU HAS A HUGE RANGE OF STAY OPTIONS FROM RUSTIC COTTAGES TO RITZY RESORTS, THOUGH ITS CHARM LIES IN THE PROFUSION OF TRADITIONAL HOMESTAYS, MANY IN PLANTATION BUNGALOWS, WHICH OFFER THE LEGENDARY HOSPITALITY OF THE KODAVAS. FOR MORE SEE 🌐COORGHOMESTAYS.COM.

IN AND AROUND TOWN ★CAVERI SCHOOL RD ☎08272 225492. BELOW THE PRIVATE BUS STAND, THIS LARGE HOTEL HAS BEEN UPGRADED BUT REMAINS GOOD VALUE, WITH SPACIOUS AND NICELY FURNISHED DOUBLE ROOMS. THERE'S A GROUND-FLOOR RESTAURANT, SERVING THE SPICY LOCAL DELICACY PANDI (PORK) CURRY, AND ADJACENT BAR. ₹

Chitra School Rd ☎09844357632. Good-value hotel near the private bus station. Neat, well-kept rooms have cable TV, and there's also an excellent veg restaurant-cum-bar downstairs. No wi-fi. ₹

Coorg International Convent Rd 🌐coorginternational.com. A 10min rickshaw ride west of the centre, this large hotel has comfortable Western-style rooms, a multicuisine restaurant, exchange facilities, and shops. Wi-fi only in the lobby. Breakfast included. ₹₹₹

Daisy Bank Heritage Inn General Thimaya Rd (aka Mysore Rd) 08272 321172. Housed in a converted mansion, the original East End Hotel has nine double rooms with high ceilings and subtle decor. All rooms, named after flowers, have spotless bathrooms and flat-screen TVs; prices vary according to size. No wi-fi. ₹₹

★Gowri Nivas New Extension gowrinivas.com. Bops and Muthu's charming homestay in the heart of town has two rooms in a separate cottage and one in the main house, decorated with lovely artefacts. Delicious Kodava cuisine is on offer. ₹₹₹

Mayura Valley View Raja Rd karnatakaholidays.net. A stiff walk up past Raja's Seat, this KSTDC hotel offers large old-fashioned rooms, many with excellent views. The restaurant serves booze and has an open terrace with epic views. ₹₹

OUTSIDE TOWN ★PALACE ESTATE NEAR NALAKNAD PALACE, KAKKABE, 35KM SOUTHWEST OF MADIKERI PALACEESTATE.CO.IN. SET AT THE BASE OF THADIYENDAMOL, COORG'S LOFTIEST MOUNTAIN, THIS PIONEERING HOMESTAY IS A 1HR 15MIN DRIVE FROM MADIKERI. A BACKPACKER FAVOURITE, IT HAS PANORAMIC VIEWS, HOME-STYLE FOOD, WARM HOSTS AND A PRIVATE WATERFALL, MAKING IT THE PERFECT SPOT TO LINGER. ₹₹₹

★Rainforest Retreat 13km north of Madikeri, near Galibeedu village rainforestours.com. Informed hosts and botanists Sujata and Anurag Goel run a 20-acre organic farm, with warmly furnished eco cottages and two tents set amid lush rainforest. Produce such as pepper, cardamom and coffee are sold under their "Don't Panic, It's Organic" brand, with profits going to their NGO, WAPRED, which fosters environmental awareness and sustainable agriculture in the region. Tariff includes breakfast and a plantation walk. ₹₹-₹₹₹

EATING ATHITHI OPPOSITE THE TOWN HALL 99010 40200. TUCKED JUST OFF THE MAIN ROAD, THIS PLACE HAS AN OUTDOOR TERRACE, AS WELL AS INDOOR SEATING, WHERE

YOU CAN ENJOY SOUTH INDIAN AND TANDOORI PURE-VEG CUISINE. ₹

★Choice Junior College Rd 📞08272 225585. This popular three-storey restaurant has had a facelift, with the addition of a spacious roof “garden” upstairs. Tuck into huge portions of Indian and Chinese food; the American chop suey is a winner. ₹

★East End General Thimaya Rd 📞08272 229996. Though the landmark hotel has shifted to a new building behind East End petrol pump, the restaurant has retained the same flavours and menu as before. Try the keema ball curry or biryanis for lunch, or snacks like keema dosa and mutton cutlet. ₹

Karavali Fish Land Down the lane opposite the Fort 📞98457 89989. Sparkling-clean family restaurant that specializes in fish, including a great-value thali, although there are plenty of a la carte veg and meat options too. ₹

West End Near KSRTC bus stand, Kohinoor Rd. A grubby hole-in-the-wall bar and restaurant popular among locals for spicy pandi curry, served with akki otti (rice rotis) roasted on a wood fire. ₹

Nagarahole National Park 90km south from Madikeri •

Charge, video camera Charge payable at check post

Nagarahole (“Snake River”) National Park, together with Bandipur and Tamil Nadu’s Mudumalai national parks, forms the Nilgiri Biosphere Reserve, one of India’s most extensive tracts of protected forest. Straddling Kodagu and Mysore districts, the park extends 640 square kilometres north from the River Kabini, which has been dammed to form a picturesque artificial lake. During the dry season (Feb–June), this perennial water source attracts large numbers of animals to its muddy riverbanks and grassy swamps, or hadlus, making it a potentially prime spot for sighting gaur (Indian bison), elephant, dhole (wild dog), deer, boar, and even the odd tiger or leopard. The forest here is of the moist deciduous type – thick jungle with a 30m-high canopy – and more impressive than Bandipur’s drier scrub. The park is best avoided altogether during the monsoon season.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION NAGARAHOLE NATIONAL PARK BY BUS BUSES FROM MYSURU’S CENTRAL STAND GO TO HUNSUR (2 DAILY; 3HR), 10KM FROM THE PARK’S NORTH GATE, WHERE YOU CAN FIND TRANSPORT, MOSTLY IN THE FORM OF JEEPS, TO THE FOREST DEPARTMENT’S TWO GUESTHOUSES. FROM MADIKERI, THERE ARE REGULAR BUSES TO THE SOUTHERN ENTRANCE AT KUTTA (HOURLY; 2HR); BUSES HEADED FOR KOZHIKODE STOP THERE TOO. AUTO-RICKSHAW AND JEEPS FROM THE KUTTA STAND DROP YOU AT THE PARK ENTRANCE AND RESERVATION OFFICE.

Tours Jeep safaris cost ₹3000–5000 depending on group size. Bus tours (6–9am & 4–6.30pm; ₹100) can be arranged at the visitor centre.

ACCOMMODATION FOREST DEPARTMENT GUESTHOUSES INSIDE THE PARK; BOOKINGS THROUGH THE PROJECT TIGER OFFICE IN MYSURU ☎0821 248 0901 OR FOREST DEPARTMENT IN HUNSUR ☎0822 252 041. THESE SIMPLE RUSTIC CABINS ARE SCANTILY FURNISHED AND YOU MUST ARRIVE (EITHER BY JEEP OR RENTED VEHICLE) AT THE PARK GATES WELL BEFORE DUSK – THE ROAD THROUGH THE RESERVE TO THE LODGES CLOSES AT 6PM, AND IS PRONE TO “ELEPHANT BLOCKS”. ₹

The Jade Manchalli, Kutta 🌐thejadecoorg.com. Kabir and Megha’s heritage homestay is just 10km from the park’s southern entrance and a great base for trekking in the Brahmagiri range to Irpu Falls. The classy rooms overlook the garden and hills. Excellent Kodava cuisine; breakfast and dinner included. ₹₹₹

Jungle Inn Veerana Hosahalli, Hunsur 🌐jungleinn.in. Close to the park’s northern entrance, this highway lodge has a mix of rooms of different sizes plus huge Swiss tented cottages. Staff can arrange pick-up from Hunsur. ₹₹

Kabini River Lodge Approached via the village of Karapura, east of the park @ junglelodges.com. Set in its own leafy compound overlooking the Kabini reservoir, this former maharaja's hunting lodge offers all-in deals that include meals, forest entry Charges and safaris around the park with expert guides. It's impossible to reach by public transport, so you'll need to rent a car to get here. Choose from cottages, rooms and tented cottages. All-inclusive from ₹₹₹₹

Mangaluru (Mangalore) Most visitors dismiss Mangalore, now officially renamed MANGALURU, as a stopover between Goa and Kerala, or as a strategic hub from which to access Coorg and Hassan. However, this bustling multicultural town is packed with history and some visit just to relish its famed coastal cuisine.

Named after the ancient temple of Mangaladevi at Bolar, 3km from the city centre, Mangalore was one of the most famous ports of south India and frequented by Arab traders. It was already well known overseas in the sixth century as a major source of pepper; the fourteenth-century Muslim writer Ibn Battuta noted its trade in pepper and ginger and the presence of merchants from Persia and Yemen. In the mid-1400s, the Persian ambassador Abdu'r-Razzaq saw Mangalore as a lucrative "frontier town" of the Vijayanagar Empire, which was why it was captured by the Portuguese in 1529, and later Tipu Sultan and the British. Nowadays, the modern port, 10km north of the city proper, is principally known for the processing and export of coffee and cocoa (mostly from Kodagu), and cashew nuts (from Kerala). It is also a centre for the production of beedis (local cigarettes).

Mangaluru's strong Christian influence can be traced back to the arrival of St Thomas further south. Some 1400 years later, in 1526, the Portuguese founded one of the earliest churches on the coast, although today's Rosario Cathedral, with a dome based on St Peter's in Rome, dates only from 1910. Closer to the centre, on Lighthouse Hill Road, fine restored fresco, tempera and oil murals by the Italian Antonio Moscheni adorn the Romanesque-style St Aloysius College Chapel, built in 1882.

Manjunatha temple Atop the Kadri Hill, 3km north of the centre Mangaluru's tenth-century Manjunatha temple is believed to be the oldest Shiva temple in the city and an important centre of the tantric Nathapanthi cult, a divergent form of Hinduism and similar to cults in Nepal. Enshrined in the sanctuary are a number of superb bronzes, including a 1.5m-high seated Matsyendranatha, made in 958 AD. To see it up close, visit at darshan times (6am–1pm & 4–8pm), although the bronzes can be glimpsed through the wooden slats on the side of the sanctuary. If possible, time your visit to coincide with mahapuja (8am, noon & 8pm) when the priests give a fire blessing to the accompaniment of raucous music. Opposite the east entrance, steps lead via a reddish-coloured path to a curious group of minor shrines. Beyond this complex stands the Shri Yogishwar Math, a hermitage set round two courtyards.

Ullal

10km south of Mangaluru • Local bus #44A runs to Ullal from the junction at the south end of KS Rao Rd (centre of town) To escape the city for a few hours, head to the suburb of ULLAL, where a long sandy beach stretches for kilometres, backed by wispy casuarina trees. It's a popular place for a stroll, particularly in the evening when Mangaloreans come out to watch the sunset, but a strong undertow makes swimming difficult, and at times unsafe. You might be better off using the pool at the Summer Sands Beach Resort (see below), immediately behind the beach. Towards the centre of Ullal, and around 700m from the main bus stand, is the dargah of Seyyid Mohammad Shareeful Madani, a sixteenth-century saint who is said to have come from Medina in Arabia, floating across the sea on a handkerchief. The extraordinary nineteenth-century building with garish onion domes houses the saint's tomb, which is one of the most important Sufi shrines in southern India. Visitors are advised to follow custom and cover their heads and limbs and wash their feet before entering.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY MANGALURU (MANGALORE) PLANE BAJPE AIRPORT, 22KM NORTH OF THE CITY (BUS #22 OR #47A OR TAXIS FOR ₹450–500), HAS REGULAR FLIGHTS TO BENGALURU (7–8 DAILY; 1HR–1HR 15MIN) AND MUMBAI (6 DAILY; 1HR 40MIN) BESIDES SERVICES TO GOA, HYDERABAD AND KOCHI. THERE ARE ALSO DAILY CONNECTIONS WITH THE GULF STATES.

By train The railway station, to the south of the city centre on Station Rd, sees daily services from cities all over India. Though rail services to Goa and Mumbai operate from Mangaluru, note that Konkan Railway through trains do not stop at the city terminus. A better choice of train connections north and south is at Kankanadi, around 10km north, or Kasaragod, an easy bus ride across the Kerala border.

Destinations From Mangaluru itself, the best northbound trains are: the fast Madgaon Express #22636 (departs 8.15am) to Margao (5hr 45min) via Udupi (1hr 40min) and the Matsyaganda Express #12620 (departs 2.25pm) to Gokarna (4hr 5min), Margao (6hr 5min) and Mumbai's Lokmanya Tilak station (14hr 45min). Services south through all major points in Kerala to Thiruvananthapuram include the Ernad Express #16605 (departs 7.20am; 13hr 40min) and the Malabar Express #16630 (departs 6.15pm; 15hr 15min).

By bus Mangaluru's busy KSRTC Bus Stand (known locally as the "Lal Bagh" Bus Stand) is nearly 3km north of the town centre, in Hampankatta, from where you can catch city buses to most local destinations. Private buses use the much more central stand near the Town Hall. Agents for luxury and overnight services to Bengaluru and beyond include Anand Travels (☎0824 244 6737, 🌐anandbus.com) and Ideal Travels (☎0824 425 0499, 🌐idealtravels.co), both opposite Milagres Church on Falnir Rd, and Vijayanand Travels (☎0824 249 3536, 🌐vrlbus.in).

Destinations Bengaluru (every 30min–1hr; 9–10hr); Hassan (hourly; 5–6hr); Kannur (hourly; 3hr); Kasaragod (every 30min; 1hr); Kozhikode (every 1–2hr; 5hr); Madikeri (every 30min–1hr; 4hr); Mysuru (hourly; 7hr); Udupi (every 10–15min; 1hr). The only direct bus to Gokarna leaves Mangaluru at 1.30pm; otherwise, change at Kumta. There are plenty of state buses heading north to Udupi and south along the coast into northern Kerala, though it is easier to pick up the more numerous private services to those places.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

The main area for hotels, KS Rao Rd, runs south from the bus stand and has an ample choice to suit most pockets. You can also stay out of town by the beach in Ullal, 10km south of the city.

The Gateway Hotel Old Port Rd, 1.5km west of the railway station @thegatewayhotels.com. Modern Taj group business hotel; all rooms are a/c and some offer fine views of the Netravathi River joining the sea. Travel desk, exchange, pool, bar, two classy restaurants (Gad and Cardamom) and 24hr coffee shop. ₹₹₹

★Hotel Surya Balmatta Rd @hotelsuryamlr.com. Excellent value budget hotel, set just off the road in a leafy compound, with decent sized simple but clean rooms. Wi-fi in lobby. ₹

Navaratna Palace KS Rao Rd @navaratnapalace.com. Rooms are musty but its proximity to the railway station and bus stand makes it a convenient choice for travellers. ₹₹

Poonja International KS Rao Rd @hotelpoonjainternational.com. Smart, mostly a/c, high-rise hotel with well-appointed rooms and good views from the upper floors. South Indian buffet breakfast included. ₹₹

Summer Sands Beach Resort Chota Mangalore, Ullal @summersands.in. Near the beach, with a pool and a bar-restaurant serving local specialities, Indian and Chinese food. Unfortunately, the spacious rooms and villa-style cottages are rather run-down. Price inclusive of breakfast, dinner and tax, though wi-fi is Chargeable. ₹₹₹

Woodside Balmatta Rd @hotelwoodsidemangalore.com. Pegged as a business hotel, this place offers unfussy spacious rooms (some a/c) and a good veg restaurant, Xanadu. ₹-₹₹

EATING

MAP

Bombay Lucky Near North Police Station, Mohammed Ali Rd, Bunder, under 2km west of the railway station ☎0824 242 3710. Dating back to 1917, this late-opening restaurant, legendary for its Muslim cuisine, has been renovated but the quality remains high. Try the ghee rice, chicken korma, chicken or mutton biryani or bheja (brain-fry) chicken or mutton fry, washed down with Suleimani (lemon) tea. Reasonably-priced and lightning-quick service. ₹

Coral Ocean Pearl hotel, Navabharat Circle ☎theoceanpearl.in. As the name suggests, there's an excellent seafood selection here and at reasonable prices despite the luxury hotel setting, including delicious fish thalis (lunchtime only) and koliwada (crunchy, fried) prawns. ₹₹

Ganesh Prasad Down a lane running off KS Rao Rd ☎0824 425 5932. Classic pure-veg canteen, churning out all the south Indian favourites, from crispy dosas to gut-busting lunchtime “meals”. ₹

Narayana Near Indian Overseas Bank, Azizuddin Rd, Bunder ☎0824 244 0891. A humble yet popular place near the harbour dishing out the best fish curry in town, served with boiled rice, and a choice of fried fish. Always packed like a tin of sardines. ₹

New Taj Mahal Café Kodialbail, KS Rao Rd ☎0824 426 9335. This Mangalore institution (since the 1920s) is a great choice for an early breakfast. Try local savouries like ambade (lentil fritters), kadle upkari (spiced chickpeas), thuppa dosa (slathered with clarified butter), godhi (wheat) halwa and banana halwa. ₹

Palkhi Balmatta Rd ☎0824 244 4929. This airy family rooftop restaurant offers a wide menu of north Indian, Chinese and Continental cuisine. ₹

North of Mangaluru: coastal Karnataka
Whether you travel the Karnataka
(Karavali) coast on the Konkan Railway or along the busy NH-17, southern India's smoothest highway, the route between Goa and Mangaluru ranks among the most scenic anywhere in the country. Crossing countless palm- and mangrove-fringed estuaries, the railway line stays fairly flat, while the recently upgraded road, dubbed by the local tourist board as “The Sapphire Route”, scales several spurs of the Western Ghats, which here creep to within a stone’s throw of the sea, with spellbinding views over long, empty beaches and deep blue bays. Highlights are the pilgrim town of Udupi, site of a famous Krishna temple, and Gokarna, another important Hindu centre that provides access to exquisite unexploited beaches. A decent inland road winds through the mountains to Jog Falls, India’s biggest waterfall, which can also be approached from the east.

Udupi

UDUPI (also spelt Udipi), on the west coast, 60km north of Mangaluru, is one of south India's holiest Vaishnavite centres. The Hindu saint Madhva (1238–1317) was born here, and the Krishna temple and mathas (monasteries) he founded are visited by hundreds of thousands of pilgrims each year. The largest numbers congregate during the late winter, when the town hosts a series of spectacular car festivals and gigantic, bulbous-domed chariots are hauled through the streets around the temple. Even if your visit doesn't coincide with a festival, Udupi is a good place to break the journey along the Karavali coast. Thronging with pujaris and pilgrims, its small sacred enclave is wonderfully atmospheric.

KAMBLA

If you're anywhere between Mangaluru and Bhatkal from October to April and come across a crowd gathering around a waterlogged paddy field, chances are they're there to watch the spectacular rural sport of Kambla, or buffalo racing. It's a centuries old tradition unique to Dakshina Kannada, the southernmost district of coastal Karnataka.

Two contestants, usually local rice farmers, take part in the race, riding on a wooden plough-board tethered to a pair of buffaloes. The object is to reach the opposite end of the field first, but points are also awarded for style, and riders gain extra marks – and roars of approval from the crowd – if the muddy spray kicked up from the plough-board splashes the special white banners, or thorana, strung across the course at a height of 6–8m. In simpler formats of the competition contestants may be tugged by a single buffalo, connected by a rope or even hold the animal's tail.

Generally, race days are organized by wealthy landowners on fields specially set aside for the purpose. Villagers flock in from all over the region, as much for the fair (shendi), as the races themselves: men huddle in groups to watch cockfights (korikatta), women haggle with bangle sellers and kids roam around sucking sticky kathambdi goolay, the local bonbons. It is considered highly prestigious to be able to throw such a party, especially if your buffaloes win any events or, better still, come away as champions. Pampered by their doting owners, racing buffaloes are massaged, oiled and blessed by priests before big events, during which large sums of money are often won and lost. In recent years, however, the sport has come under the scanner of animal activists leading to a request for a ban on the practice by the Animal Welfare Board of India, though time will tell whether a law will be enforced.

The Krishna temple and mathas Udupi's Krishna temple lies five minutes' walk east of the main street, surrounded by the eight mathas founded by Madhva in the thirteenth century. Legend has it that the idol enshrined within was discovered by the saint himself after he prevented a shipwreck. The grateful captain of the vessel offered Madhva his precious cargo as a reward, but the holy man asked instead for a block of mud, which he broke open to expose a perfectly formed image of Krishna. Believed to contain the essence (sannidhya) of the god, this deity draws a steady stream of pilgrims, and is the focus of almost constant ritual activity. It is looked after by acharyas, or pontiffs, from one of the mathas on a two-year rotation system. They perform pujas (5.30am–8.45pm) that are open to non-Hindus; men are only allowed into the main shrine bare-chested.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY TRAIN UDUPI'S UDUPI
RAILWAY STATION IS AT INDRALI ON MANIPAL RD, 3KM
WEST FROM THE CENTRE, AND THERE ARE AT LEAST FIVE TRAINS IN EACH DIRECTION DAILY.

By bus Udupi's three bus stands are dotted around the amorphous square in the centre of town: the KSRTC and private stands form a practically indistinguishable gathering spot for the numerous services to Mangaluru and more long-distance buses to Mysuru and Bengaluru and between northern Kerala and Goa. There are hardly any direct buses to Gokarna or Jog Falls, so you usually have to change at Kumta or Honnavar for both. The City stand is down some steps to the north and handles private services to local villages.

Tourist information There's a tourist information centre near the temple in the Krishna Building, on Car St (☎0820 429 3222), and a tourist office at Rajasadri, Manipal End Point (Mon–Sat 10am–5.30pm; ☎0820 257 4868).

ACCOMMODATION AS A BUSY PILGRIMAGE TOWN, UDUPI OFFERS AMPLE INEXPENSIVE ACCOMMODATION, WHICH IS ONLY LIKELY TO APPROACH CAPACITY DURING A MAJOR FESTIVAL.

Durga International Just west of City Bus Stand 📞94484 26665. Airy and efficient lodge with a variety of attached rooms, all with TV and some with a/c, on the upper storeys of a modern block. Also has a good multicuisine restaurant. Wi-fi in lobby. ₹

★OYO Janardana Next to KSRTC Bus Stand 📞janardanahotel.in. Recently spruced up, with nicely furnished attached rooms of different sizes, all with cable TV and some a/c. ₹

Sriram Residency Opposite the GPO 📞hotelsriramresidency.in. Plushest place in the centre, though costing no more than most, with a smart lobby and comfortable a/c rooms. One of the two restaurants serves fine non-veg, and there's a bar too. ₹₹

Sri Vidyasamudra Choultry Opposite Krishna temple 📞0820 252 0820. Foreigners are welcome in this ultra-basic lodge for pilgrims. The front rooms overlooking the temple are incredibly atmospheric. No wi-fi. ₹

Vyavahar Lodge Kankads Rd 📞0820 252 2568. Basic but friendly and clean lodge between the bus stands and temple. No wi-fi. ₹

EATING AS YOU MIGHT EXPECT OF THE MASALA DOSA'S BIRTHPLACE, THERE ARE MANY FINE, SIMPLE SOUTH INDIAN RESTAURANTS IN UDUPI, WHERE YOU CAN SAMPLE THESE AND OTHER VEG FAVOURITES. THE VAST MAJORITY OF PLACES ARE PURE VEG: FOR NON-VEG FOOD OR ALCOHOL, YOU'LL HAVE TO TRY A POSH HOTEL RESTAURANT SUCH AS THE SRIRAM RESIDENCY.

Diana Jodukatte, Ajjarkad, 1.5km southwest of the Krishna temple 📞0820 252 0505. This long-established restaurant on the first floor of the Diana hotel is the birthplace of the gadbad ice cream, a famous dish invented hurriedly (gadibidi is Kannada for confusion) when several layers of different ice creams were mixed with chopped nuts and chewy dried fruit. Local snacks like dosas, poori kurma (veg curry with fried bread) and veg cutlets are also available, besides tandoori and Chinese. ₹

Mitra Samaj Car St 📞98801 99678. Established in 1949, this cramped place shares wall space with the Chandra-mouleshwara shrine close to the Krishna temple. Try the bullet idlis (available only after 2pm), goli bajji (a spongy, fried snack, after 4pm) or dosa served with typical Udupi sambhar.

₹

Pooja Below Janardana hotel ☎7204 022221. Formerly called Adarsha, this pure-veg eatery rustles up tasty south Indian tiffin, filling masala dosa, upma (thick semolina or rice-flour porridge) and wholesome thalis. ₹₹

Jog Falls

Vehicle entry fee plus Charge per person • Musical fountain and laser show Mon–Sat 7.15–8.15pm, Sun 7.15–9.15pm Hidden in a remote, thickly forested corner of the Western Ghats 240km northeast of Mangaluru, Jog Falls are the highest waterfalls in India. Today, however, they are rarely as spectacular as they were before the construction of a large dam upriver, which impedes the flow of the River Sharavati over the sheer red-brown sandstone cliffs. Still, the surrounding scenery is gorgeous, with dense scrub and jungle carpeting sparsely populated, mountainous terrain. The views of the falls from the opposite side of the gorge are also impressive, though during the monsoons mist and rain clouds tend to envelop the cascades. Another reason not to come during the wet season is that the extra water, and abundance of leeches at this time, make the excellent hike to the floor valley a trial; if you can, head up here between October and January. The trail starts just below the bus park and winds steeply down to the water, where you can enjoy a refreshing dip. The whole patch opposite the falls has been landscaped for appealing viewing, with its own entrance gate and reception centre.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS JOG FALLS JOG FALLS IS CONNECTED BY THE WELL-PAVED NH-206 THAT CROSSES THE GHATS FROM THE COAST SOUTH OF KUMTA (6 BUSES DAILY TO THE FALLS FROM KUMTA; 3HR), WHICH IS CONNECTED BY FREQUENT BUSES TO GOKARNA. COMING FROM THE SOUTH, IT IS SLIGHTLY QUICKER TO CONNECT AT HONNAVAR (4–6 DAILY; 2HR 30MIN). ON THE INLAND SIDE, THERE ARE HOURLY SERVICES TO SHIVAMOGGA (SHIMOGA), FROM WHERE YOU CAN CHANGE ONTO BUSES FOR HOSAPETE AND HAMPI. CHANGE AT SAGAR (40KM) INSTEAD FOR BUSES TO UDUPI, MYSURU, HASSAN AND BENGALURU.

Tourist information The tourist office (Mon–Sat 10am–1.30pm & 2.30–5.30pm), upstairs at the new reception centre, opens rather erratically but can supply information on transport and vehicle rental.

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING APART FROM THE STANDARD GOVERNMENT CANTEEN AT THE MAYURA

GERUSOPPA JOGFALLS HOTEL, THE ONLY OTHER FOOD OPTIONS ARE AT THE ENCLAVE OF SMALL CHAI STALLS AND SHOPS THAT CLUSTER AROUND THE RECEPTION CENTRE.

JMJ Homestay More than 1km southeast of the reception centre, beyond the canal 📞94822 08755. Friendly homestay with four comfortable, rustic rooms. Food served on request. No wi-fi. ₹

Matthuga Homestay Talavata, BH Rd, 8km from Jog Falls 🌐 matthuga.in. Popular homestay, close to nature, set in a plantation bungalow with lovely attached rooms and cottages. Fixed pure-veg menu (breakfast, lunch and dinner available). No TV, no wi-fi. ₹₹-₹₹₹

Mayura Gerusoppa Jogfalls 200m west of reception centre 🌐 karnatakaholidays.net. Predictable concrete KSTDC hotel whose vast, old-fashioned a/c and non-a/c rooms are comfortable enough but grossly overpriced, especially at weekends. It has two blocks: the more basic Tunga; and Sharavati, with better views of the falls. No wi-fi. Tunga ₹, Sharavati ₹₹

PWD Inspection Bungalow 400m west of the reception centre 📞08186 244333. Nicely situated on a hillock above the main road, with four spacious a/c attached rooms and five decent non-a/c rooms. No wi-fi but food (veg and non-veg) is made on request. ₹

Gokarna

Among India's most scenically situated sacred sites, GOKARNA lies between a broad white-sand beach and the verdant foothills of the Western Ghats, 230km north of Mangaluru. Yet this compact little coastal town – a Shaivite centre for more than two millennia – remained largely “undiscovered” by Western tourists until the early 1990s, when it began to attract dreadlocked and didgeridoo-toting neo-hippies fleeing the commercialization of Goa, just over 60km north. Now it's firmly on the tourist map, although the town retains a charming local character, as the Hindu pilgrims pouring through still far outnumber the foreigners who flock here in winter.

A hotchpotch of wood-fronted houses and red terracotta roofs, Gokarna is clustered around a long L-shaped bazaar. Its broad main road – known as Car Street – runs west to the town beach, which is a sacred site in its own right. Hindu mythology identifies it as the place where Shiva was reborn from the underworld after a period of penance through the ear of a cow, or go-karna, thus giving the town its name.

Gokarna is also the home of one of India's most powerful shivalingas – the atmalinga, which took root here having being carried off by Ravana, the evil king of Lanka, from Shiva's home on Mount Kailash. It is said Ravana's brute force distorted the shivalingam to resemble the shape of a cow's ear – another theory behind the town's name.

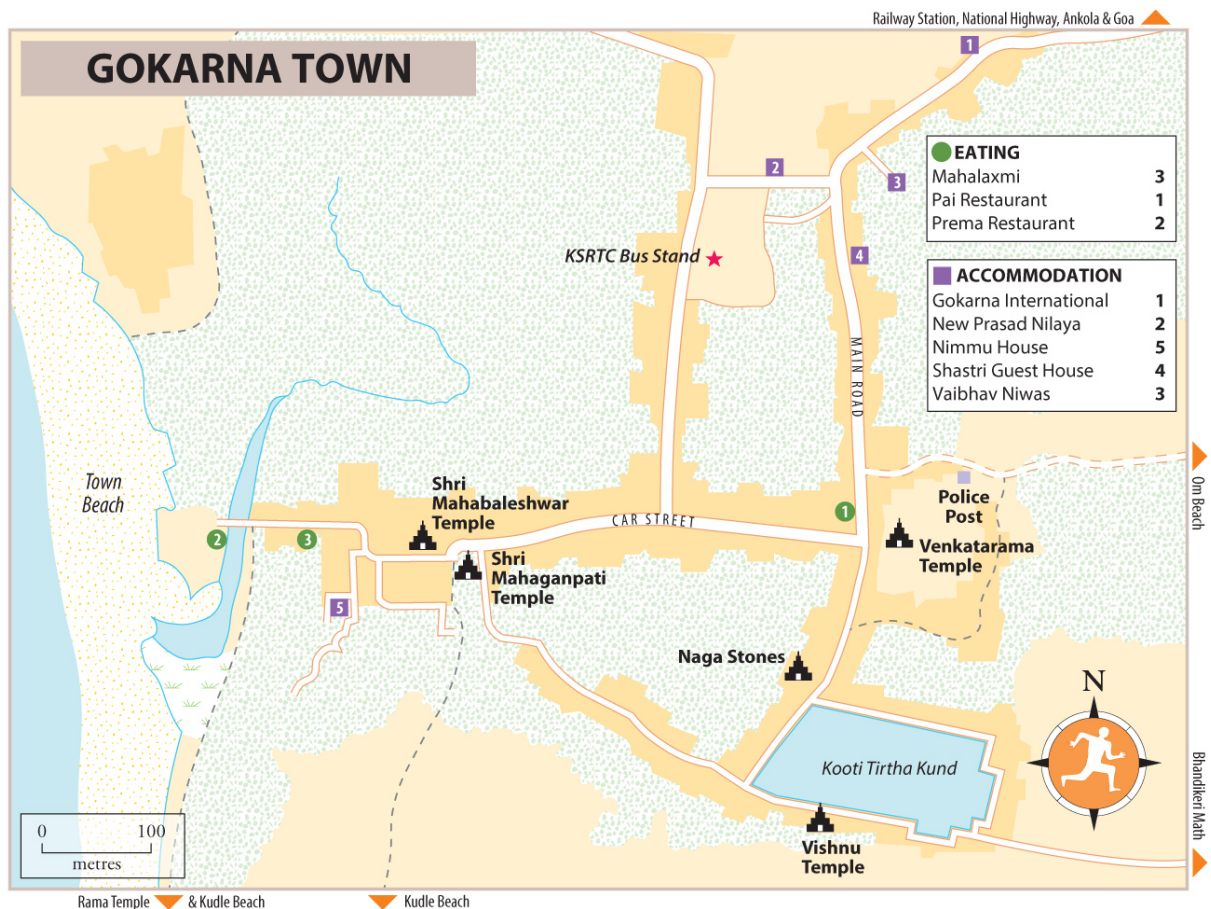

The temples

The atmalinga (or pranalinga) is enshrined in the medieval Shri Mahabaleshwar temple, at the far west end of the bazaar. It is regarded as so auspicious that a mere glimpse of it will absolve a hundred sins, even the murder of a brahmin. Pilgrims shave their heads, fast and take a ritual dip in the sea before darshan. For this reason, the tour of Gokarna traditionally begins at the beach, followed by a puja at the Shri Mahaganapati temple, a stone's throw east of the Mahabaleshwar shrine, to propitiate the elephant-headed god Ganesh. Foreign tourists are not allowed into the inner sancta of the main two temples but the parts you can visit are still extremely atmospheric. One interesting holy place you can get right into is Bhandikeri Math, a short way east of the bathing tank. This three-hundred-year-old temple and learning centre has shrines to the deities Bhavani Shankar, Uma Maheshwari and Maruthi.

The beaches

While Gokarna's numerous temples, shrines and tanks are the big draw for Indian pilgrims, most Western tourists head for the beautiful beaches to the south of the more crowded town beach. Beyond the lumpy, reddish black-coloured headland that overlooks the town, lie a series of sandy strips connected by short seaside walks and motley shacks offering varied cuisine.

To pick up the trail, take a left off Car Street beside the Shri Mahaganapati temple and follow the narrow cemented road for twenty minutes uphill and across a rocky plateau to Kudle Beach. This wonderful 1km-long sweep of golden-white sand sheltered by a pair of steep-sided promontories is now punctuated by dozens of restaurant-cum-accommodation ventures. This is the longest and broadest of Gokarna's beaches, with decent surf too, though the water can be dangerous.

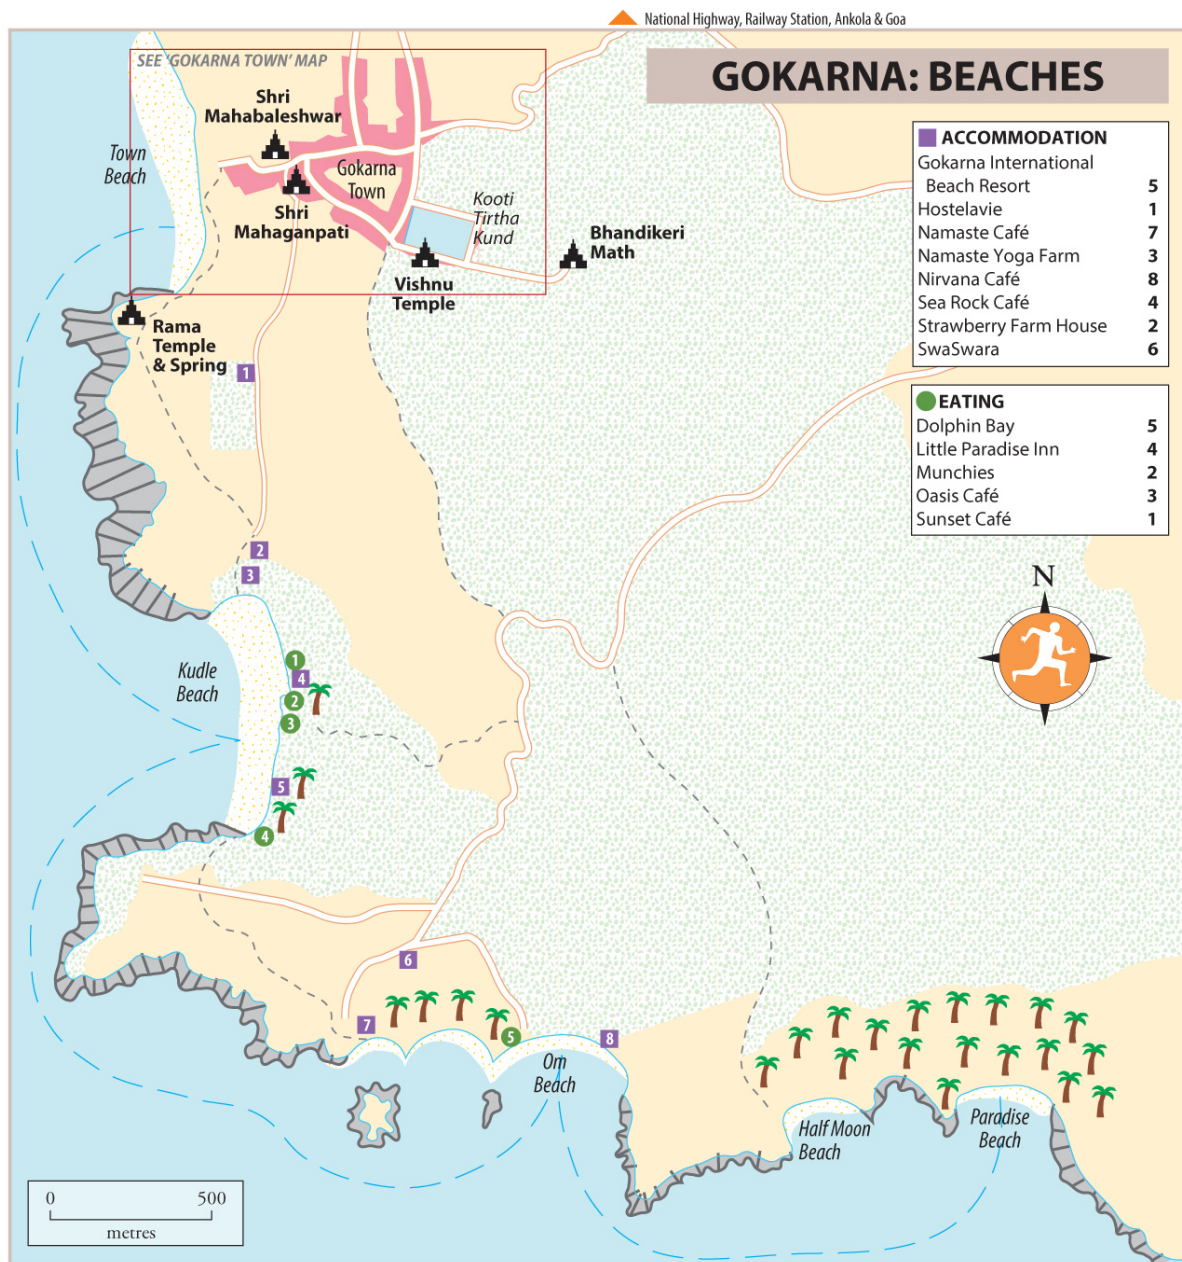

It takes around twenty minutes more to hike over the headland from Kudle to exquisite Om Beach, so named because its distinctive twin crescent-shaped bays resemble the auspicious Om symbol. Apart from the luxury resort set well back from the beach, a mixture of modest concrete rooms and flimsy huts populate the palm groves, usually belonging to restaurants. Large groups of male travellers tend to descend on the beach at weekends – female sunbathers may prefer to press on further south.

Gokarna's two most remote beaches lie another thirty-minute walk over the rocky hills. Half Moon and Paradise beaches are mainly for intrepid sun-lovers happy to pack in their own supplies. If you're looking for near-total isolation – a sense of Goa perhaps thirty years ago – these are your best bet.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN GOKARNA GOKARNA ROAD RAILWAY STATION IS 9KM INLAND BUT BUSES, TAXIS AND AUTO-RICKSHAWS (₹300) ARE AVAILABLE TO TAKE YOU INTO TOWN. GOKARNA ROAD HAS TWO DAILY TRAINS IN

EACH DIRECTION: THE SOUTHBOUND SERVICES ARE THE MATSYAGANDHA EXPRESS #12619 (DEPARTS 3.08AM) AND THE MADGAON PASSENGER #56641 (DEPARTS 3.37PM), BOTH TO UDUPI AND MANGALURU; THE SAME TRAINS NORTH ARE THE MATSYAGANDHA EXPRESS #12620 (DEPARTS 6.40PM) TO MARGAO AND MUMBAI AND THE MADGAON PASSENGER #56640 (DEPARTS 10.11AM) TO MARGAO. A COUPLE OF OTHER WEEKLY EXPRESSES ALSO CALL HERE, SUCH AS THE MARU SAGAR EXPRESS #12978 (DEP. SAT 7.15PM) TO ERNAKULAM AND POORNA EXPRESS #11098 (DEP. TUES 11.24AM) TO PUNE, BUT MORE REGULAR EXPRESS CONNECTIONS CAN BE FOUND IN EITHER KUMTA OR ANKOLA.

By bus The KSRTC Bus Stand, 300m north of Car St, is within easy walking distance of Gokarna's limited accommodation. The town is well connected by direct daily bus to Goa (from 3hr) and several towns in Karnataka, including Bengaluru (13–14hr), Hosapete/Hampi (10hr) and Mysuru (13hr), via Mangaluru (6hr) and Udupi (5hr). You can change at Ankola on the main highway for more services north into Goa and Hubballi for Hosapete/Hampi. For more buses to Hosapete/Hampi, all destinations further south on the coast and the best connections to Jog Falls, change at Kumta. It is best to avoid the private sleeper services to Hampi, as they are cramped and invariably involve a change of bus in the middle of the night.

GETTING AROUND BY BIKE BICYCLES ARE AVAILABLE FOR RENT FROM A STALL NEXT TO PAI RESTAURANT FOR ₹50/DAY.

By auto-rickshaw and taxi Auto-rickshaws and taxis cost ₹200–250 to Om Beach, while auto-rickshaws Charge ₹100 to take you along the paved path that goes almost all the way to Kudle Beach.

ACCOMMODATION THERE IS A BETTER RANGE OF GUESTHOUSES THAN OF BONA FIDE HOTELS IN GOKARNA. AS A LAST RESORT, YOU CAN NEARLY ALWAYS FIND A BED IN ONE OF THE SPARTAN DHARAMSHALAS DOTTED AROUND TOWN. THERE'S AN INCREASING NUMBER OF OPTIONS AT THE BEACHES, FROM BASIC HUTS TO SWANKY RESORTS. PRICES CAN DOUBLE OVER THE CHRISTMAS/NEW YEAR PERIOD.

GOKARNA TOWN, MAP

Gokarna International On the main road into town ⓘ hotelgokarn@yahoo.com. Popular mid-scale place in a four-storey block on the edge of town, offering good value, from no-frills singles to deluxe, carpeted a/c doubles. The better ones have balconies overlooking the palm tops. Restaurant and bar on the premises. ₹-₹₹

New Prasad Lodge On the lane near the bus stand ☎08386 257135. Very clean budget place with no frills but a convenient location. The pricier rooms have cable TV and balconies. ₹

★Nimmu House Southwest of Car St, towards Kudle Beach ⓘ nimmuhouse.in. This foreigners' favourite is in a great leafy location but prices spike in peak season. Double rooms in the attractive modern block are spacious, attractive and many have balconies with beach views, while those in the old wing are much plainer. New restaurant and segregated dorms on upper floor. Dorm ₹, doubles ₹

Shastri Guest House 100m east of the bus stand ⓘ narasimha.shastri@gmail.com. Tucked behind the Shastri Clinic on the main road, this quiet but rather shabby place offers attached plus a handful of non-attached rooms with rock-bottom single rates, as well as four roomier cottages up the hill. Only slightly more in high season. No phone or online bookings. ₹

Vaibhav Lodge Off the main road, a few minutes from the bus stand ③ vaibhavnivas97@gmail.com. Friendly, cheap and justifiably popular guesthouse pitched at foreigners, with a rooftop café-restaurant; rock-bottom rooms with shared facilities and some attached with TV. ₹

GOKARNA BEACHES, MAP

★Gokarna International Beach Resort Kudle Beach ④ gokarnabeachresort.com. Set back from the beach in a small garden dotted with coconut trees, this compact hotel offers simple comforts in neat laterite cottages and rooms fitted with small kitchenettes and verandas, some of them sea-facing. Very low off season rates. ₹₹

Hostelavie Kudle Beach Rd ④ hostelavie.com. One of the dozen or so places that have sprouted up on the road to Kudle Beach, with both segregated and mixed dorms and a self-service laundry. Dorm ₹

Namaste Café Northwest end of Om Beach ④ namastegokarna.com. One of the more popular beach options. Each room has a different theme: in one, everything is round (including the bed); another resembles a rustic log cabin. There's also a pleasant, shaded restaurant. The same folk also run Namaste Sanjeevini, a pricier option on Kudle Beach with a/c and non-a/c and more budget-conscious Namaste Samudra. ₹₹-₹₹₹

Namaste Yoga Farm Above Kudle Beach ④ spiritualland.com. Sea-view cottages, rooms and tree houses amid lush greenery, with an organic vegetable patch. Dressed with good linen, rugs and cheery curtains, plus well-equipped bathrooms, the clean, airy spaces guarantee secluded relaxation. Besides complimentary yoga and chi qong, Thai massages are available. ₹₹₹

Nirvana Café Southeast end of Om Beach ③ suresh.nirvana@gmail.com. A dozen bamboo huts with solid attached brick bathrooms (not all attached), neatly arranged behind a congenial restaurant with raised concrete loungers. ₹

★Sea Rock Café Central Kudle Beach ④ 99167 29466. Very simple but good value concrete bungalows and rooms in a more modern block, all attached. The restaurant does fine special lassis. ₹

Strawberry Farm House North end of Kudle Beach 📞97423 73105. Ten sturdy concrete rooms painted a cheery yellow, all very clean but sparse inside. Handily placed for town but rather overpriced. ₹₹

SwaSvara Above Om Beach 📞swaswara.com. The first luxury resort in Gokarna, this CGH Earth property offers beautifully designed wood villas spread over terraces on a hillside overlooking the bay. There's a pool, yoga dome and an Ayurvedic treatment centre, all set in extensive gardens. Minimum five-night stay; all-inclusive packages per villa. ₹₹₹

EATING GOKARNA TOWN OFFERS A GOOD CHOICE OF PLACES TO EAT, WITH A STRING OF BUSY “MEALS” JOINTS ALONG CAR ST AND THE MAIN ROAD. THE BEACHES NOW HAVE A PLETHORA OF PLACES OFFERING TRAVELLERS’ FAVOURITES. LOOK OUT FOR THE LOCAL SWEET SPECIALITY GADBAD.

GOKARNA TOWN, MAP

Mahalaxmi At the beach end of Car St 📞99450 59215. Service can be rather slow, but you won't feel much need to hurry, waiting on this sea-view rooftop perch. The menu includes tasty veg curries or veg with a creamy cheese sauce. ₹

Pai Restaurant Main Rd 📞08386 256755. An excellent spot for fresh and tasty veg thalis, masala dosas and crisp vadas, plus teas and coffees any time of day. ₹

★Prema Restaurant Car St, 150m west of the Mahabaleshwar temple 📞94810 52117. Welcoming and hugely popular veg canteen with a varied menu encompassing delicious dosas, superb toasted English muffin sandwiches, lots of other veg dishes and the best gadbad in town. ₹₹

GOKARNA BEACHES, MAP

Dolphin Bay Southeastern Om Beach 📞98452 65608. Typically laidback place at the back of the beach, offering Western and Indian food, plus a fine range of lassis. ₹

★Little Paradise Inn Central Kudle Beach 📞95351 94383. Welcoming and highly relaxing hangout, with seating on the sand and an upstairs wooden chill-out deck. Huge menu of Indian, Chinese and Continental cuisine. ₹₹

Munchies South-central Kudle Beach 📞96482 37456. One of the newer and most relaxing spots on Kudle, with pleasant shady seating and known for its pancakes, banoffee pie and garlic cheese naan. Also offers tasty grilled seafood and curries. ₹

Oasis Café South-central Kudle Beach. You can dig your feet in the soft sand at this friendly hangout, nicely decorated with colourful lanterns and wall hangings. A range of offerings from lamb to momos, plus Thai dishes. ₹

Sunset Café Southern Kudle Beach 📞98868 97597. This very popular restaurant offers a range of veg, chicken and seafood dishes such as calamari sizzler, and guarantees prime sunset views accompanied by Arabian Sea breezes. ₹₹

Hubballi (Hubli)-Dharwad Karnataka's second most industrialized city, Hubli, now officially known as HUBBALLI, just east of the Ghats and 418km northwest of Bengaluru, has little of interest except for its transport connections to Mumbai, Goa, the coast of Uttar Kannada (North Canara), Hampi and other points in the interior. Its twin city, the cultural hub of DHARWAD, 20km northwest, has a little more to offer fans of Indian classical music.

Gangothri

Dharwad Yellapur Rd, Shukravarpet • Regular KSRTC buses and taxis ply between Hubballi and Dharwad The birthplace of several renowned Indian classical singers, Dharwad's biggest attraction is Gangothri, the childhood home of Dr Gangubai Hangal (1913–2009), a doyenne of Hindustani classical music who broke boundaries of tradition, gender and stereotype with her deep powerful voice. Her greatness lay in her simplicity, and her humble home has been converted into a museum showcasing her life, musical achievements and memorabilia.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE

HUBBALLI (HUBLI)-DHARWAD

By train Hubballi's railway station is right in the town centre and is well connected.

Destinations Bengaluru (8–12 daily; 8hr 5min–11hr 45min); Hassan (Dharwar Mysore Express #17302 dep. 9.40pm; 6hr 20min); Hosapete (6–9 daily; 2hr 20min–3hr 5min); Mumbai (2–5 daily; 14hr 30min–18hr); Pune (3–5 daily; 10hr 55min–14hr).

By bus Hubballi's efficient KSRTC Bus Stand is 2km south of the centre, and can be reached by bus from the railway station or the chaotic City Bus Stand, about 1km west of the station. There are connections to most towns in Karnataka, most usefully to Ankola (every 30min–1hr; 3hr 30min–4hr) for Gokarna; handy if you do not happen to coincide with one of the four daily direct buses.

ACCOMMODATION AJANTA JC NAGAR RD 0836 236 2216. THIS NO-FRILLS LODGE NEAR THE STATION HAS A RANGE OF ROOMS, INCLUDING VERY CHEAP SINGLES WITH SHARED BATHROOM, AND VARIOUS DOUBLES. ₹

Shri Renuka Lodge Opposite the City Bus Stand 0836 225 3615. This large and well-organized lodge offers a range of reasonable rooms, some with a/c, and has its own veg restaurant. ₹

Swarnaa Paradise Station Rd 0836 426 5111. Conveniently located right outside the railway station, this smart business hotel has nicely designed all a/c rooms of varying sizes. ₹₹

EATING DON'T LEAVE DHARWAD WITHOUT PICKING UP A BOX OF DHARWAD PEDHA, A CARAMEL-BROWN, MILK-BASED SWEET DUSTED WITH CASTER SUGAR, WHICH CAN BE

BOUGHT AT BABUSINGH'S THAKUR PEDHA IN LINE BAZAR OR NUMEROUS OUTLETS OF MISHRA PEDHA.

Basappa Khanavali Opposite Civil Court, PB Rd 📞93426 79111. This 1930 pure-veg eatery serves excellent North Karnataka thalis, served with bhakri (jowar roti). Gets rather busy at lunchtime. ₹

Kamat Hotel 🌐kamatyatri.in. The two branches of the famous south Indian food chain dish out excellent vegetarian meals and snacks. One is by the traffic island at the bus stand end of Lamington Rd, the other opposite the railway station. ₹

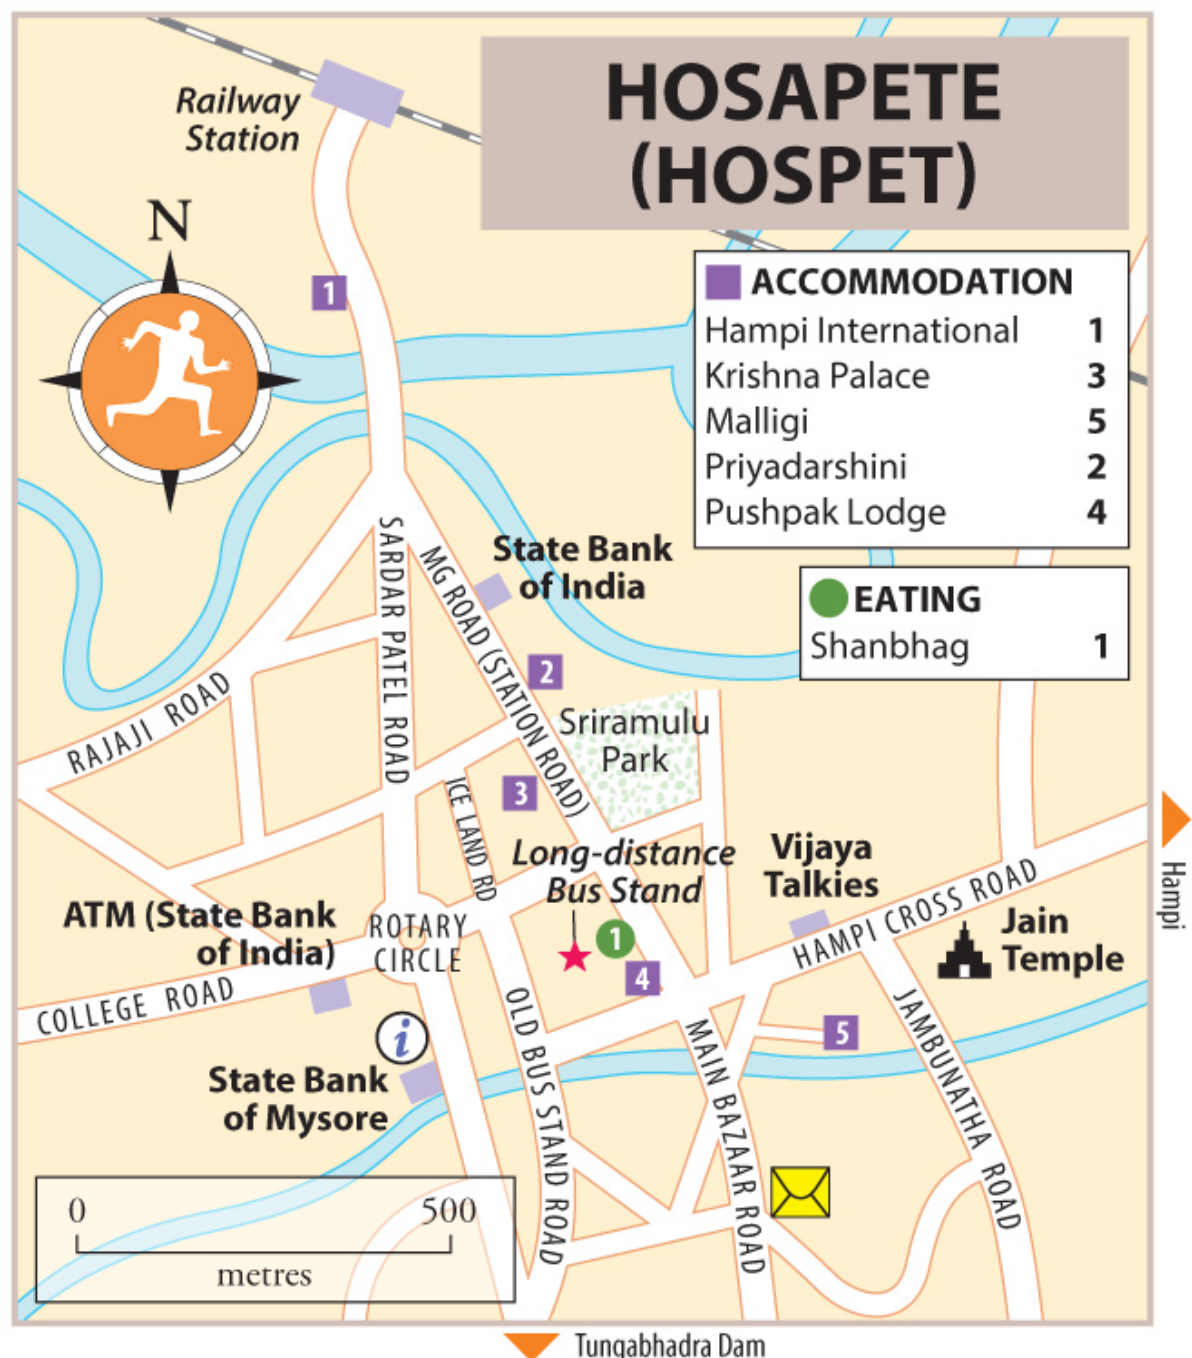

Megh Darshini Subhash Rd 📞0836 243 5147. A popular restaurant serving excellent south Indian fare, with budget meals and generously large puris. ₹

Hosapete (Hospet) Charmless Hospet, now reverted to its traditional name of HOSAPETE (“New City”), about ten hours from both Bengaluru and Goa, is of little interest except as the jumping-off place for the extraordinary ruined city of Hampi (Vijayanagar), 13km northeast. If you arrive really late or want a more upmarket hotel, it makes sense to stay here and catch a bus or auto-rickshaw out to the ruins the following morning.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN HOSAPETE (HOSPET) HOSAPETE'S RAILWAY STATION IS 1.5KM NORTH OF THE CENTRE. NOTE THAT THE HOSAPETE-BASED AUTO-

RICKSHAWS THAT GATHER ON THE FORECOURT CHARGE AT LEAST ₹250 TO HAMPI BUT IF YOU WALK A SHORT WAY ALONG THE ROAD, YOU CAN USUALLY BARGAIN A RETURNING HAMPI AUTO DOWN TO AROUND ₹100. HOSAPETE HAS ONE DIRECT TRAIN DAILY TO BENGALURU, THE OVERNIGHT HAMPI EXPRESS #16591 (DEP. 9.15PM; 8HR 55MIN); CHANGE AT GUNTAKAL JUNCTION (3HR) FOR NUMEROUS SOUTH-BOUND AND NORTHBOUND EXPRESSES. FOR CONNECTIONS TO THE COAST AND GOA, TAKE THE AMARAVATHI EXPRESS #18047 (DEP. MON, WED, THURS & SAT 6.20AM; 7HR 35MIN) OR HEAD WEST TO HUBBALLI (4 DAILY; 3–4HR). FOR CONNECTIONS TO BADAMI AND VIJAYAPURA, CHANGE AT GADAG (4 DAILY; 1HR 20MIN–2HR).

By bus The bus stand is in the centre, just off MG (Station) Rd, which runs south from the railway station. Bookings for long-distance routes can be made at the ticket office on the bus stand concourse (daily 8am–noon & 3–6pm), where there's also a left-luggage facility. Regular buses run the 30min route to Hampi, some via Kamalapura, until around 7.30pm. There are KSRTC buses to destinations throughout the state, but journeys are slow so the only ones worth taking are to Gadag (every 30min; 2hr), Hubballi (every 30min; 3hr) or Guntakal (hourly; 2hr 30min–3hr), for the better rail and road connections in those towns. Many tourists opt for the apparently easy option of a private sleeper coach to Goa or Gokarna which depart between 7 and 8pm (9–10hr; around ₹1000), operated by Paulo Travels (☎ 08394 225867, 🌐 paulotravels.com) from beside the hotel Priyadarshini. Unfortunately, these are usually overbooked, overcrowded and, if you are travelling to Gokarna, you will be offloaded for a transfer at Ankola in the wee hours.

INFORMATION TOURIST INFORMATION THE TOURIST OFFICE AT THE ROTARY CIRCLE (MON-SAT: APRIL & MAY 8AM-1.30PM; JUNE-MARCH 10AM-5.30PM; ☎08394 228537) OFFERS LIMITED INFORMATION AND SELLS TICKETS FOR KSTDC TOURS OF HAMPI.

Services Full exchange facilities are available at the Malligi hotel. Enfield motorbikes are available for rent (or sale) from Bharat Motors (☎08394 224704) near Vijaya Talkies cinema.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Hampi International Station Rd ☎hotelhampiinternational.com. Snazzy modern business hotel right by the station with central a/c and stylish rooms, a plush restaurant and a pleasant bar. ₹₹₹

Krishna Palace MG Rd ☎krishnapalacehotel.com. Offering a bit of luxury surprising for Hosapete, this central and snazzy a/c hotel has smartly furnished rooms and an ostentatious lobby, plus spa massages. Sadly, the restaurant food disappoints. ₹₹₹

Malligi 10/90 JN Rd, a 2min walk southeast of the bus stand ☎malligihotels.com. A 40-year-old institution that's been renovated from a tourist home to swanky hotel with several blocks of luxurious a/c rooms and suites separated by manicured lawns. There is also a large outdoor swimming pool (open to non-residents), two smart restaurants, a gym and spa, in addition to a small bookshop and an efficient travel service. ₹₹

Priyadarshini MG Rd ☎priyadarshinihotels.com. Large and bland, but spotless and decent value, especially the a/c rooms (some with balconies). Two good restaurants: the veg naivedyam and, in the garden, the excellent non-veg manasa, which has a bar. ₹₹

Pushpak Lodge MG Rd ☎08394 421380. With basic but clean attached rooms, this is the best low-priced lodge in town and is conveniently, if noisily, located right by the bus stand. ₹

EATING

MAP

Shanbhag Next to the bus station. The excellent Udupi restaurant at this old hotel is a perfect pit stop before heading to Hampi, particularly since it opens early for breakfast. ₹₹

Hampi (Vijayanagar) Among a surreal landscape of golden-brown boulders and leafy banana fields, the ruined “City of Victory,” Vijayanagar, better known as HAMPI (the name of the main local village), spills from the south bank of the River Tungabhadra. This once dazzling Hindu capital was devastated by a six-month Muslim siege in the second half of the sixteenth century. Only stone, brick and stucco structures survived the ensuing sack – monolithic deities, crumbling houses and abandoned temples dominated by towering gopuras – as well as the irrigation system that channelled water to huge tanks and temples, some of which are still in use today.

Thus, Hampi’s monuments appear a lot older than their four or five hundred years. With its wooden superstructure burnt and past buried in ruins, excavations by the Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) can only piece together the fragmented history of this sophisticated city. Grappling with years of encroachment and the constant tussle between preservation and modernization, the Hampi World Heritage Area Management Authority (HWHAMA) has controversially pressed ahead with plans to revamp Hampi Bazaar and the adjoining “heritage zone”. Yet, at least for the time being, the serene riverside setting and air of magic that still lingers over the site, sacred for centuries before a city was founded here, make it one of India’s most extraordinary locations. Many find it difficult to leave and spend weeks chilling out in cafés, wandering to whitewashed hilltop temples and gazing at the spectacular sunsets.

Although spread over 26 square kilometres, the ruins of Vijayanagar are mostly concentrated in two distinct groups: the designated Sacred Centre around Hampi Bazaar and the nearby riverside area, encompassing an enclave of temples and ghats; and the Royal Enclosure – 3km south of the river, just northwest of Kamalapura village – which holds the remains of palaces, pavilions, elephant stables, guardhouses and temples. Between the two stretches is a long boulder-choked hill and scores of banana plantations, fed by ancient irrigation canals.

Brief history According to the Ramayana, the region was once the mythical Kishkinda, ruled by the monkey king Bali, with his brother Sugriva and their ambassador, Hanuman. The unpredictably placed rocks – some balanced in perilous arches, others heaped in colossal, hill-sized piles – are said to have been flung down by their armies in a show of strength. It was here that Lord Rama raised his monkey army to rescue Sita from demon king Ravana's clutches.

While Hampi's mythic status was grand, its chronological evolution into the capital of a vast empire was no less extraordinary. The rise of the Vijayanagar Empire seems to have been a direct response, in the first half of the fourteenth century, to the expansionist aims of Muslims from the north, most notably Malik Kafur and Mohammed-bin-Tughluq. Two Hindu brothers from Andhra Pradesh, Harihara and Bukka, who had been employed as treasury officers in Kampili, 19km east of Hampi, were captured by the Tughluqs and taken to Delhi, where they supposedly converted to Islam. Assuming them to be suitably tamed, the Delhi sultan despatched them to quell civil disorder in Kampili, which they duly did, only to abandon both Islam and allegiance to Delhi shortly afterwards, preferring to establish their own independent Hindu kingdom. Within a few years they controlled vast tracts of land from coast to coast. In 1343, guided by their spiritual guru Vidyaranya Swami, they founded their new capital, Vijayanagar, on the southern banks of the River Tungabhadra, a location long considered to be sacred by Hindus.

The city's most glorious period was under the reign of Krishna Deva Raya (1509–29), when it enjoyed a near monopoly of the lucrative trade in Arabian horses and Indian spices passing through the coastal ports and was the most powerful Hindu capital in the Deccan. Travellers such as the Portuguese chronicler Domingo Paez, who stayed for two years after 1520, were astonished by its size and wealth, telling tales of markets full of silk and precious gems, bejewelled courtesans, ornate palaces and fantastic festivities. Records reveal how it was once larger than Rome, with palaces grander than those of Lisbon.

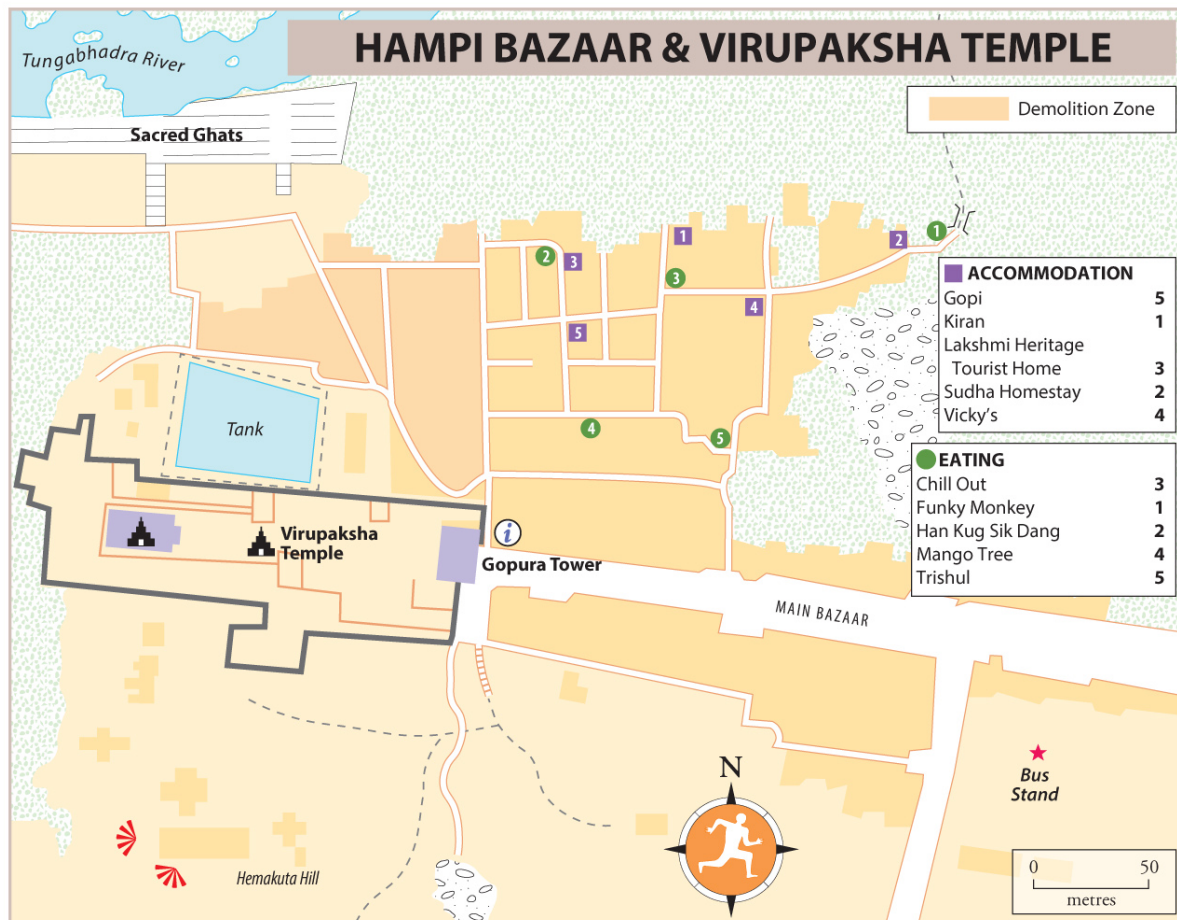

Thanks to its natural features and massive fortifications, Vijayanagar was virtually impregnable. Yet in 1565, following his interference in the affairs of local Muslim sultanates, the regent Rama Raya was drawn into a battle with a confederacy of Muslim forces to the north and ultimately defeated. Rama Raya was captured and suffered a grisly death at the hands of the sultan of Ahmadnagar. Vijayanagar then fell victim to a series of destructive raids, and its days of splendour were brought to an abrupt end.

Hampi Bazaar and around Hampi's long, straight main street, Hampi Bazaar, runs east from the entrance to the Virupaksha temple, and is lined by the remains of Vijayanagar's ruined, columned bazaar. While the Bazaar has been cleared of all shops under a restoration initiative, the area north of the temple towards the river still houses a maze of restaurants, hotels and other businesses.

The Virupaksha temple Daily 6.30am–12.30pm & 2–8.30pm • Charge but free during aarti (daily 6.30–8am & 6.30–8.30pm) Dedicated to a form of Shiva known as Virupaksha (“the terrible-eyed one”), the Virupaksha temple dominates the village, drawing a steady flow of pilgrims, with its 50m-high nine-storey tower, the tallest gopura in Karnataka, acting like a beacon. The temple is at its liveliest during aarti (worship). The small three-headed Nandi outside the main entrance supposedly represents the past, present and future of Hampi. In the 1565 siege, Nandi’s third head, representing the future, was defaced; Hampi never regained its glory.

The complex consists of two courts, each entered through a towered gopura. From the smaller gopura near the ticket counter you enter the inner court, surrounded by a colonnade which is usually filled with pilgrims dozing, singing religious songs or receiving blessings from the temple elephant, Lakshmi. In the middle, the principal temple is approached through a mandapa hallway whose carved columns feature rearing animals. Rare Vijayanagar-era paintings on the mandapa ceiling include aspects of Shiva, a procession with the sage Vidyardhaya, the ten incarnations of Vishnu and scenes from the Mahabharata. In a side passage of the main shrine, guides show the inverted image of the gopura, illustrating an early example of a pin-hole camera.

The riverside The sacred ford in the river is reached from the Virupaksha's north gopura; you can also get there by following the lane around the impressive temple tank. A mandapa overlooks the steps that originally led to the river, now some distance away. A small motorboat (₹50 [₹10]) runs from this part of the bank, ferrying villagers to the fields and tourists to the increasingly popular enclave of Virupapuragadda. The road left from the sacred ford through the village eventually loops back towards the hilltop Hanuman temple, about 5km east, and on to Anegundi – a recommended circular walk.

Matanga Hill

The place to head for sunrise is the boulder hill immediately east of Hampi Bazaar. From the end of the main street, an ancient paved pathway winds up a rise, topped by the magnificent Achyutharaya temple (see below) on the eastern ridge of Matanga Hill. The views improve as you progress up towards the small Veerabhadra temple at its summit, which provides an extraordinary vantage point. Muggings have been reported along this path early in the morning, so be vigilant if there are only one or two of you.

The riverside path Walking east from the Virupaksha temple along the length of Hampi Bazaar, turn left before the huge monolithic Nandi statue to get to Vitthala temple. This riverside path, peppered by conch-blowing sadhus and ragged mendicants, winds past cafés and numerous shrines, including a Rama temple – home to hordes of fearless monkeys. Beyond at least four Vishnu shrines, a paved and colonnaded bazaar leads due south to the Achyutharaya temple (aka Tiruvengalanatha), whose beautiful stone carvings – among them some of Hampi’s famed erotica – are being restored by the ASI. Back on the main path again, make a short detour across the rocks leading to the river to see the little-visited waterside Agni temple; next to it, the Kotilinga complex consists of 1008 tiny lingas, carved on a flat rock. As you approach the Vitthala temple, to the south is an archway known as the King’s Balance, where the rajas were weighed against gold, silver and jewels to be distributed to Brahmins and the needy on festive occasions.

Vitthala temple Daily 6am–6pm • Charge; ticket also valid for the Lotus Mahal on the same day Although the area of the Vitthala temple does not show the same evidence of early cult worship as Virupaksha, the ruined bridge to the west probably dates from before Vijayanagar times. The bathing ghat may be from the Chalukya or Ganga period, but as the temple has fallen into disuse it seems that the river crossing (tirtha) here lacks the sacred significance of the Virupaksha site. Now part of the UNESCO World Heritage Site, the Vitthala temple was built for Vishnu, who according to legend was too embarrassed by its ostentation to live here.

The Saptasvara Mandapa (Open Dancing Hall) features slender monolithic granite musical pillars which were constructed so as to sound the notes of the scale when struck. Today, due to vandalism and erosion from being repeatedly beaten, heavy security makes sure that no one is allowed to touch them. Guides, however, will happily demonstrate the musical resonance of other pillars on an adjacent structure. Outer columns sport characteristic Vijayanagar rearing horses, while friezes of lions, elephants and horses on the moulded basement display sculptural trickery – you can transform one beast into another simply by masking one portion of the image.

In front of the temple, to the east, a stone representation of a wooden processional rath, or chariot, houses an image of Garuda, Vishnu's bird vehicle. Now cemented, at one time the chariot's wheels revolved.

SACRILEGE IN A SACRED SETTING?

Until 2011, the local people of Hampi Bazaar had lived a peaceful and largely idyllic existence amid the Vijayanagar ruins. Indeed, in recent decades many had been making a decent living from tourists who came to hang out in the cafés and guesthouses while marvelling at the sights. All that changed abruptly when a long-pending government scheme to fence off the whole 26-square-kilometre area in order to protect its UNESCO World Heritage status finally got out of legal gridlock and began to be implemented, and residents were forced to move out of the bazaar to a rehabilitation area 4km away. Amid protests, the bulldozers cleared a 30–40m swathe of modern buildings flanking the bazaar and the main lane from the temple to the river. Ironically, even the tourist office was flattened.

While the heritage conservation project may take years to complete, locals who run guesthouses near the river and on the opposite bank feel they are living on borrowed time, fearing the next round of demolition. With authorities having to comply to strict conservation norms and locals facing displacement with paltry compensation packages, Hampi is in a Catch-22 situation. For travellers who have been enchanted by Hampi over the years it is heartbreaking that the magic of staying amid the ruins seems certain to disappear.

Anegundi and beyond With more time, and a sense of adventure, you can head across the River Tungabhadra to ANEGUNDI (also spelt Anegondi), a fortress town predating Vijayanagar, and its fourteenth-century headquarters. The most pleasant way to get here is to take a coracle from the ford 1.5km east of the Vitthala temple; these circular baskets, which are today reinforced with plastic sheets, also carry bicycles, which are a good way to visit Hampi's many monuments. A contentious bridge was constructed at this point but collapsed some years ago. A new one is being built outside the core heritage zone, at Bukkasagar, further downstream.

Forgotten temples and fortifications litter Anegundi village and its quiet surroundings. The ruined Huchchappa-matha temple, near the river gateway, is worth a look for its lathe-turned black stone pillars and fine panels of dancers. Aramane, a ruined palace in the centre, stands opposite the home of the descendants of the royal family; also in the centre, the Ranganatha temple is still active. A huge wooden temple chariot stands in the village square. Limited accommodation is available here in village houses and you can get basic snacks at the local stalls.

Pampa Sarovar To complete a five-kilometre loop back to Hampi from Anegundi (the simplest route if you have wheels), head left (west) through the old gateway just north of the village, which winds through sugar cane fields and eventually comes out near Virupapuragadda. En route you can visit the Vali Kila fort, a Durga temple and the sacred Pampa Sarovar, signposted down a dirt lane to the left. The small temple above this square bathing tank is dedicated to the goddess Lakshmi and holds a cave containing a footprint of Vishnu. If you're staying around Anegundi, this quiet spot is best visited early in the evening during aarti.

Hanuman temple A worthwhile detour off the road north of the river leading west from Anegundi is the hike up to the tiny, whitewashed Hanuman temple, perched on the rocky hilltop of Anjanadri. Believed to be the birthplace of Hanuman (also called Anjaneya, the son of Anjana), the spot holds a strange attraction for monkeys. The steep climb takes around thirty minutes and affords superb views over Hampi, especially at sunrise and sunset. Further west of Anjanadri, you reach an impressive old stone bridge dating from Vijayanagar times. The bridge no longer spans the river but just beyond it to the west, back at Virupapuragadda, the motorboat (₹50 [₹10]) returns you to the Virupaksha temple.

Hemakuta Hill and around Directly above Hampi Bazaar, Hemakuta Hill is dotted with pre-Vijayanagar temples that date from the ninth to eleventh centuries. Aside from the architecture, the main reason to clamber up is to admire the views of the ruins and surrounding countryside. With views across the boulder-covered terrain and banana plantations, the sheer western edge of the hill is Hampi's top sunset spot, attracting crowds of tourists most evenings, along with little boys posing for photos in Hanuman costumes.

A couple of interesting monuments lie on the road leading south towards the southern group of ruins. The first of these, a walled Krishna temple complex to the west of the road, dates from 1513. Although dilapidated in parts, it features some fine carving and shrines.

Hampi's most-photographed monument stands just south of the Krishna temple in its own enclosure. Depicting Vishnu in his incarnation as the Man-Lion, the monolithic Ugra Narasimha statue, with its bulging eyes and crossed legs strapped into yogic pose, is one of Vijayanagar's greatest treasures.

The southern and royal monuments The most impressive remains of Vijayanagar, the city's royal monuments, lie some 3km south of Hampi Bazaar, spread over a large expanse of open ground. Before tackling the ruins proper, it's a good idea to get your bearings with a visit to the small Archeological Museum (daily except Fri 10am–5pm; free) at Kamalapura, which can be reached by bus from Hosapete or Hampi. Among the sculptures, weapons, palm-leaf manuscripts and paintings from Vijayanagar and Anegundi, the highlight is a superb scale model of the city, giving an excellent bird's-eye view of the entire site.

Bhima's Gate

The route to the monuments is well signposted. After 200m or so you reach the partly ruined massive inner city wall, made from granite slabs, which runs 32km around the city, in places as high as 10m. Just beyond the wall, the citadel area was once enclosed by another wall and gates, of which only traces remain. To the east, the small ganigitti ("oil-woman's") fourteenth-century Jain temple features a simple stepped pyramidal tower of undecorated horizontal slabs. Beyond it is Bhima's Gate, once one of the principal entrances to the city, named after the Titan-like Pandava prince and hero of the Mahabharata. Like many of the gates, it is "bent" with two 90° turns, a form of defence against any frontal assault. Bas-reliefs depict such episodes as Bhima avenging the honour of his wife, Draupadi, by killing the general Dushasana. Draupadi vowed she would not dress her hair until Dushasana was dead; one panel shows her tying up her locks, the vow fulfilled.

Queen's Bath

To the west of the Jain temple, the plain facade of the 15m-square Queen's Bath belies its glorious interior, open to the sky and surrounded by corridors with 24 different domes. Eight projecting balconies overlook the now dry tank; traces of Islamic-influenced stucco decoration survive. Women from the royal household would bathe here and umbrellas were placed in shafts in the tank floor to protect them from the sun. The water supply channel can be seen outside.

Mahanavami-Dibba Northwest of the Queen's Bath is Mahanavami-Dibba or "House of Victory", built to commemorate a successful campaign in what is now Odisha. A 12m pyramidal structure with a square base, it is said to have been where the king gave and received honours and gifts. From here he watched the magnificent parades, music and dance performances, martial arts displays, elephant fights and animal sacrifices that made celebration of the ten-day Dasara festival famed throughout the land. Carved reliefs decorate the sides of the platform.

King's Audience Hall To the west of the Mahanavami-Dibba, another platform – the largest at Vijayanagar – is thought to be the basement of the King's Audience Hall. Stone bases of a hundred pillars remain, in an arrangement that has caused speculation as to how the building could have been used; there are no passageways or open areas.

Lotus Mahal

Daily 8am–6pm • Charge; ticket also valid for the Vitthala temple on the same day The two-storey Lotus Mahal, in the north of the compound and part of the zenana enclosure, or women's quarters, was designed for the pleasure of Krishna Deva Raya's queen: a place where she could relax, particularly in summer. Displaying a strong Indo-Islamic influence, the pavilion is open on the ground floor, whereas the inaccessible upper level contains windows and balcony seats. A moat surrounding the building is thought to have provided water-cooled air via tubes.

Elephant Stables Just northeast of the Lotus Mahal, the Elephant Stables, a series of high-ceilinged, domed chambers entered through arches, are the most substantial surviving secular buildings at Vijayanagar – a reflection of the high status accorded to elephants, both ceremonial and in battle.

Hazara Rama temple To the west of the compound, on Hemakuta Hill, is the small Hazara Rama ("One thousand Ramas") temple. Thought to have been a private palace shrine, the rectangular enclosure features a series of medallion figures and bands of detailed friezes showing scenes from the Ramayana.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS HAMPI (VIJAYNAGAR) BUSES FROM HOSAPETE TERMINATE CLOSE TO WHERE THE ROAD JOINS THE MAIN STREET IN HAMPI BAZAAR, HALFWAY ALONG ITS DUSTY LENGTH.

Tourist information Numerous private agencies can also help with most travel-related enquiries and bookings.

Services Stalls such as Pampa (☎94805 10464), diagonally opposite Vicky's guesthouse, has motorbikes and scooters for rent (around ₹400/day). Most guesthouses rent bicycles (₹150/day) but the bumpy terrain does make cycling hard work. There are no ATMs or banks but agents can offer exchange; rates are rather poor, so it's better to stock up on cash in Hosapete.

ACCOMMODATION HAMPI BAZAAR REMAINS THE BEST PLACE TO STAY FOR ACCESS TO THE SITES, CHOICE OF RESTAURANTS AND OTHER FACILITIES. THERE ARE NO FANCY HOTELS BUT A NUMBER OF GUESTHOUSES OF VARYING SIZE AND CALIBRE. SOME TRAVELLERS, ESPECIALLY ISRAELIS, PREFER TO STAY ACROSS THE RIVER IN VIRUPAPURAGADDA, WHICH IS NOW WELL DEVELOPED AND HAS CAUGHT UP IN PRICE. STILL, PRICES ARE PRETTY LOW MOST OF THE YEAR APART FROM THE CHRISTMAS TO MID-JANUARY PEAK, WHEN THEY AT LEAST DOUBLE.

HAMPI BAZAAR, MAP

Gopi Centre of the village ☎gopi-guesthouse.com. One of the more established places with small, simple rooms in the old building and smart but more expensive a/c options in another block round the corner. ₹-₹₹

Kiran Beside the river ☎gowdakiran96@yahoo.co.in. The basic rooms here are compact but clean enough and among the cheapest left in the area. The rooftop restaurant has fine views of the river and the temple. ₹

★Lakshmi Heritage Tourist Home Down the lane towards the river ☎ 08394 241456. There's nothing heritage about this modern guesthouse, whose smart a/c rooms have big mirrors around the headboards. Those downstairs are better. A tad noisy, but has hot running water all the time. Good discounts at slack times. ₹

★Sudha Homestay Northeast end of the village ☎ hampiabdul@gmail.com. One of the nicest, friendliest places to stay. The rooms vary in size but are generally larger and decorated more nicely on the slightly pricier upper storey. ₹

Vicky's Just east of the village centre vikkyhampi@yahoo.co.in. Small, clean attached rooms in one of the village's oldest lodges. The lodge's Top Secret restaurant has relocated to diagonally opposite. ₹

ACROSS THE RIVER, MAP

The Goan Corner 500m inland and east of boat crossing, Virupapuragadda thegoancorner.wordpress.com. Large complex between lush paddy fields and attractive boulders with 36 rooms in thatched huts plus a 24-bed "million star" rooftop dorm. The lively restaurant has a good view of the boulders. ₹

Hampi's Boulders Narayanpet, Bandi Harlapur hampisboulders.com. Overlooking a bend in the River Tungabhadra, this small, quirky resort hotel is the best upscale option, a 30min drive from Hampi Bazaar. There are four grades of cottages, from non-a/c to executive suites, moulded around giant boulder outcrops, with palms and mango trees for shade. Meals are so-so south Indian buffets but they have a natural rock-cut swimming pool. ₹₹₹₹

★Mowgli Far west end of main road, Virupapuragadda mowglihampi.com. The smartest option right across the river, offering thirty rooms and cottages, including two with a/c, with comfy sitouts and private balconies, some with garden and river views, as well as a welcoming restaurant, set against a gorgeous paddy and river backdrop. ₹₹

Raju Guest House Main road, Virupapuragadda mailvenkatasim@gmail.com. Attached rooms on two storeys ranged around a small courtyard, with the Evergreen roof restaurant above it. ₹

★Sunny Guest House Near the village crossroads, Virupapuragadda sunnyguesthouse.com. Nicely landscaped gardens with brightly painted bungalows and two sets of compact rooms, some with piped hot water. Their Sheesh Besh restaurant is a popular hangout. ₹

Umashankar Lodge Main road, Virupapuragadda rameshhampi@gmail.com. Cosy, popular spot with small but clean attached rooms (the upstairs ones rather overpriced) set round a leafy courtyard. Has a shaded garden restaurant. ₹

Uramma Heritage Homes Anegundi urammaheritagehomes.com. Quaint rustic homestays in renovated heritage homes. Choose from the seven Uramma Cottages, set within a farm, each with thatched roof and traditional food on offer, or individual rural villas such as beautiful two-room Uramma House. Nearby Peshegar House has five doubles with shared baths and common dining in the garden courtyard. Peshegar House ₹₹; Uramma Cottage ₹₹₹

EATING

MAP AND THIS MAP

Hampi has a plethora of traveller-oriented restaurants, either in the bazaar, although guesthouse rooftop restaurants above the first floor have been banned, or among the growing row of joints in Virupapuragadda. As a holy site, the main village is strictly alcohol-free and almost entirely vegetarian. There are no such restrictions on the other side of the river.

Chill Out Centre of Hampi Bazaar 094820 48655. One of the cooler hangouts, with cushioned seating and bright decoration. ₹

Funky Monkey Pushpa Homestay, Hampi Bazaar 008394 241775. First floor restaurant with a relaxed vibe, great river views, decent Continental food and beverages like herbal teas and passion fruit lemonade. ₹

Ganesh East West end of Hampi Bazaar. This upstairs family restaurant is one of the best places for authentic Indian food; there are even some genuinely spicy dishes on request. ₹

★Han Kug Sik Dang Towards the river, Hampi Bazaar 094487 95096. Courtyard restaurant specialising in Korean dishes such as tasty kimchi. Try the excellent Korean thali. ₹

Laughing Buddha Main road, Virupapuragadda 094827 67374. Good for set breakfasts, pizza, pasta and Tibetan dishes, with a relaxed atmosphere and film screenings every evening. ₹₹

★Mango Tree Centre of Hampi Bazaar 094487 65213. Relocated from its riverside spot, this famous place is renowned for its veg food, especially banana pancakes and pasta dishes. ₹

Trishul Southeast side of Hampi Bazaar 094484 81332. Featuring chicken, tuna, lasagne, pizza and apple crumble, plus Mexican and Israeli cuisine, this is one of Hampi's widest menus, promising the rare treat of non-veg dishes. ₹₹

Badami, Aihole and Pattadakal:
Monuments of the Chalukyas Now quiet villages, Badami, Aihole and Pattadakal, the last a UNESCO World Heritage Site, were once the capital cities of the Chalukyas, who ruled much of the Deccan between the fourth and eighth centuries. The astonishing profusion of temples in the area beggars belief. Badami's and Aihole's cave temples, stylistically related to those at Ellora, are some of the most important of their type. Among the many freestanding temples are some of the earliest in India, and at Pattadakal, uniquely, it is possible to see both northern (nagara) and southern (Dravida) architectural styles side by side, besides the vesara, a fusion of the two.

Badami

Surrounded by a yawning expanse of flat farmland, BADAMI, capital of the Chalukyas from 543 to 757 AD, extends east into a gorge between two red sandstone hills, topped by an ancient, fortified complex. The southern hill is riddled with cave temples, while the northern one is studded with early structural temples and fort remains. Beyond the village, to the east, is an artificial lake, Agastya Teertha, said to date from the fifth century. Badami's selection of hotels and restaurants makes it an ideal base from which to explore the Chalukyan remains at Aihole and Pattadakal, as they do not possess such facilities. Be aware that the whole Badami area is home to numerous troupes of monkeys, especially around the monuments, and they will crawl all over you if you carry food.

Southern Fort cave temples Daily sunrise–sunset • Charge

Badami's earliest monuments are a group of sixth-century caves cut into the hill's red sandstone, each connected by steep steps leading up the hillside.

About 15m up the rock face and reachable after forty steps is Cave 1, dedicated to Shiva. The entrance is through a triple opening into a long porch raised on a plinth guarded by images of Shiva's dwarf attendants, the ganas. On the right is a striking 1.5m-high image of an eighteen-armed Nataraja illustrating 81 dance postures. Guides dramatically point out certain arm positions to highlight various mudras.

A little higher, Cave 2 is a Vishnu shrine that holds some impressive sculpture and painting. Climbing again, steps and slopes lead upwards past a natural cave containing a smashed image of the Buddhist bodhisattva, Padmapani (he who holds the lotus), before steps on the right lead up to the fort.

Cave 3 (578 AD), another Vishnu shrine, stands beneath a 30m-high perpendicular bluff, and holds an image of Vishnu seated on a coiled snake. The oldest and largest of the group, with a facade measuring 21m from north to south, it is also considered to be the finest for the quality of its sculptural decoration. Treatment of the pillars is extremely elaborate, featuring male and female bracket figures, lotus motifs and medallions portraying amorous couples.

To the east of the others, Cave 4 is a Jain temple that overlooks Agastya Teertha and the town. It's a simpler shrine, dating from the sixth century. Lining the walls are figures of the 24 tirthankaras, both seated and standing and mostly without their identifying emblems. Here, the rock is striped.

After seeing the caves, it is possible to climb up to the fort and walk east where, hidden in the rocks, a carved panel shows Vishnu reclining on the serpent Adishesha, attended by a profusion of gods and sages. Continuing, you can skirt the gorge and descend on the east to the Bhutanatha temples at the lakeside.

North Fort

North of Agastya Teertha, a number of structural temples can be reached by steps. The small Archeological Museum (daily except Fri 10am–5pm; ₹2) contains sculpture from the region. Although now dilapidated, the Upper Shivalaya temple is one of the earliest Chalukyan buildings. Scenes from the life of Krishna decorate the base and various images of him can be seen between pilasters on the walls. Only the sanctuary and tower of the Lower Shivalaya survive. Perched on a rock, the Malegitti Shivalaya (late seventh century) is the finest southern-style, early Chalukyan temple in existence. Its shrine is adjoined by a pillared hallway with small, pierced stones and a single image on each side: Vishnu on the north and Shiva on the south.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY BUS BADAMI BUS STAND, IN THE CENTRE OF THE VILLAGE ON MAIN STATION RD, SEES FREQUENT DAILY SERVICES TO GADAG (2HR), HUBBALLI (3HR) AND VIJAYAPURA (4HR), AS WELL AS LOCAL BUSES TO AIHOLE AND PATTADAKAL. THE DIRECT HOSAPETE BUSES ALL LEAVE BY 8.30AM (5HR); AT OTHER TIMES YOU SHOULD CHANGE IN GADAG.

By train The railway station is 5km north; large auto-rickshaws-cum-tempos connect it with the town centre for ₹10/person; drivers are reluctant to cram in travellers with big bags, but you should be able to secure a whole vehicle for around ₹100. The line from Vijayapura to Gadag via Badami carries five daily trains in each direction; some services continue to Hubballi.

Tourist information The friendly tourist office (Mon–Sat 10am–5.30pm; ☎ 08357 220414) is located inside the KSTDC Hotel Mayura Chalukya.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

★Badami Court Main Station Rd ☎08357 220207, 🌐 hotelbadamicourt.com. A prime location, superior a/c rooms and efficient staff make this a top choice for travellers. Additional perks include a pool to beat the heat and good-quality cooking at the restaurant. ₹₹₹

★Clarks Inn Veerpulakeshi Circle, Main Station Rd ☎08357 220150, 🌐 clarksinn.in. Part of a large chain, this new hotel is a short hop from the bus station (2km from railway station). Swanky, elegantly decorated rooms present superb views of the caves. Has a 24hr coffee shop on the ground floor. Super online deals, too. ₹₹₹

★Heritage Resort Station Rd ☎08357 220250, 🌐 theheritage.co.in. Spacious and attractively furnished detached a/c cottages arranged around verdant lawns, plus some non-a/c rooms. Also an excellent multicuisine restaurant. ₹₹

KSTDC Hotel Mayura Chalukya Ramdurg Rd ☎08357 220046, 🌐 karnatakaholidays.net. This renovated government hotel has 26 sizeable rooms, the majority of which are a/c, plus pleasant gardens and a bar-restaurant. ₹₹

Rajsangam Opposite the bus stand 📞08357 221991, 🌐hotelrajsangam.in. Spacious singles, deluxe doubles, suites with balconies and two good restaurants: the Banashree serves pure-veg food and the Shubashree is non-veg and has a bar. ₹₹

Royal Deluxe 50m north of the bus stand 📞08357 220114. Good-value newish lodge, built of brightly painted concrete and marble, with simply furnished but clean attached rooms, all with flat-screen TVs, and a veg restaurant. ₹

EATING

MAP

Geetha Darshini 100m south of the bus stand 📞90363 56378. This is a small but top-notch south Indian joint whose idlis, vadas and dosas are out of this world. ₹

Golden Caves Just opposite the bus stand 📞94487 29812. Good, inexpensive non-veg Indian and Chinese food, served indoors or in the airy courtyard, though service is slow. Try the tandoori chicken, thali or good-value fish. ₹₹

Aihole

No fewer than 125 temples, dating from the Chalukyan and the later Rashtrakuta periods (sixth to twelfth centuries), are found in the tiny village of AIHOLE (Aivalli), near the banks of the River Malaprabha. Lying in clusters within the village, in surrounding fields and on rocky outcrops, many of the temples are remarkably well preserved. Reflecting both its geographical position and spirit of architectural experimentation, Aihole boasts northern (nagara) and southern (Dravida) temples, as well as variants that failed to survive subsequent stylistic developments.

Two of the temples are rock-cut caves dating from the sixth century. The Hindu Ravalaphadi cave, northeast of the centre, a Shiva shrine with a triple entrance, contains fine sculptures of Mahishasuramardini, a ten-armed Nateshan (the precursor of Nataraja) dancing with Parvati, Ganesh and the Sapta Matrikas (“seven mothers”). A two-storey cave, plain save for decoration at the entrances and a panel image of Buddha in its upper veranda, can be found partway up the hill to the southeast, overlooking the village. At the top of that hill, the Jain Meguti temple, which may never have been completed, bears an inscription on an outer wall dating it to 634

AD. You can climb up to the first floor for fine views of Aihole and the surrounding country.

Durga temple

In the Archaeological Survey compound near the centre of the village • Daily 6am–6pm • ₹100 (₹5)
The late seventh- to early eighth-century Durga temple, one of the most unusual, elaborate and large in Aihole, stands close to others on open ground. The horseshoe-shaped shrine derives its name not from the goddess Durga but from the Kannada durgadagudi, meaning “temple near the fort”. A series of pillars – many featuring amorous couples – form an open ambulatory path around the whole building. Other sculptural highlights include the decoration on the entrance to the mandapa hallway and niche images on the outer walls.

Archeological Museum Just outside the entrance to the Durga temple • Daily except Fri 10am–5pm • Free The small Archeological Museum displays a modest collection of early Chalukyan sculpture and sells the booklet Glorious Aihole, which includes a site map and accounts of the monuments.

Ladh Khan temple A short way south of the Durga temple, beyond several other shrines The Ladh Khan temple, perhaps the best known of all at Aihole, was one of the early temple prototypes. Originally a royal assembly and marriage hall dating back to the fifth century, it was named after the Muslim soldier who later made it his home. Inside are a Nandi bull and a small sanctuary containing a shivalingam next to the back wall. Both may have been later additions, with the original inner sanctum located at the centre.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE SIX DAILY BUSES RUN TO AIHOLE AIHOLE FROM BADAMI (1HR 30MIN) VIA PATTADAKAL (45MIN) FROM 5.30AM TO 9PM; THE LAST BUS RETURNS AROUND 6PM.

Pattadakal

On a bend in the River Malaprabha 22km northeast of Badami, the village of PATTADAKAL served as the ceremonial site of Chalukyan coronations between the seventh and eighth centuries; in fact, it may have been used solely for such ceremonies (pattada kallu means “coronation stone” in Kannada). Like Badami and Aihole, the area boasts fine Chalukyan architecture, with particularly large mature examples; as at Aihole, both northern and southern styles can be seen. Pattadakal is connected by regular state buses and hourly private buses to Badami (45min) and Aihole (45min).

Temple compound Daily 6am–6pm • Charge

Pattadakal's main group of monuments stand together in a well-maintained temple compound, next to the village, and have been designated a UNESCO World Heritage Site. The site is used for a major annual dance festival at the end of January or early February.

Earliest among the temples, the Sangameshwara, also known as Shri Vijayeshwara (a reference to its builder, Vijayaditya Satyashraya; 696–733), shows typical southern features. To the south, both the Mallikarjuna and the enormous Virupaksha, side by side, are in the southern style, built by two sisters who were successively the queens of Vikramaditya II (733–46). Along with the Kanchipuram temple in Tamil Nadu, the Virupaksha was probably one of the largest and most elaborate in India at the time. Interior pillars are carved with scenes from the Ramayana and Mahabharata, while in the Mallikarjuna the stories are from the life of Krishna.

The largest northern-style temple, the Papanatha, further south, was probably built after the Virupaksha in the eighth century. Outside walls feature reliefs from the Ramayana (some of which bear the sculptors' autographs), including Hanuman's monkey army on the south wall.

Vijayapura (Bijapur) and the north The dry and dusty far northern region of Karnataka is as distinct culturally as it is in landscape. Predominantly Muslim, at least in the larger settlements, it boasts some wonderful Islamic architecture and shrines in the venerable city of Vijayapura (Bijapur), bustling Kalaburagi (Gulbarga) and rather forlorn Bidar.

Vijayapura (Bijapur) Boasting some of the Deccan's finest Muslim monuments, Bijapur – now officially VIJAYAPURA – is often billed as “the Agra of the South”. The comparison is partly justified: for more than three hundred years, this was the capital of a succession of powerful rulers, whose domed mausoleums, mosques, colossal civic buildings and fortifications recall a lost golden age of unrivalled prosperity and artistic refinement. Yet there the similarities between the two cities end. A provincial market town of around 300,000 inhabitants, modern Vijayapura is a world away from the urban frenzy of Agra. With the exception of the mighty Gol Gumbaz, which attracts busloads of day-trippers, its historic sites see only a slow trickle of tourists, while the ramshackle town centre is surprisingly laidback, dotted with peaceful green spaces and colonnaded mosque courtyards. In the first week of February the town hosts an annual music festival, which attracts several renowned musicians from both the Carnatic (south Indian) and the Hindustani (north Indian) classical music traditions.

Unlike most medieval Muslim strongholds, Bijapur lacked natural rock defences and had to be strengthened by the Adil Shahis with huge fortified walls. Extending some 10km around the town, these ramparts, studded with cannon emplacements (burjs) and watchtowers, are breached in five points by darwazas, or strong gateways, and several smaller postern gates (didis). In the middle of the town, a further hoop of crenellated battlements encircled Bijapur's citadel, site of the sultans' apartments and durbar hall, of which only fragments remain. The Adil Shahis' tombs are scattered around the outskirts, while most of the important mosques lie southeast of the citadel.

Brief history Still generally known as Bijapur, a name that stuck until the city's rechristening in 2014, Vijayapura (the Chalukyas' "City of Victory") was established around the tenth century. Taken by the Vijayanagar Empire, it passed into Muslim hands for the first time in the thirteenth century with the arrival of the sultans of Delhi. The Bahmanis administered the area for a time, but it was only after the local rulers, the Adil Shahis, won independence from Bidar by expelling the Bahmani garrison and declaring this their capital that Bijapur's rise to prominence began.

Burying their differences for a brief period in the late sixteenth century, the five Muslim dynasties that issued from the breakdown of Bahmani rule – based at Golconda, Ahmadnagar, Bidar and Gulbarga – formed a military alliance to defeat Vijayanagar. The spoils of this campaign, which saw the total destruction of Vijayanagar (Hampi), funded a two-hundred-year building boom in Bijapur during which the city's most impressive monuments were built. However, old enmities between rival Muslim sultanates on the Deccan soon resurfaced, and the Adil Shahis' royal coffers were gradually squandered on fruitless and protracted wars. By the time the British arrived on the scene in the eighteenth century, the Adil Shahis were a spent force, locked into a decline from which they and their capital never recovered.

Gol Gumbaz

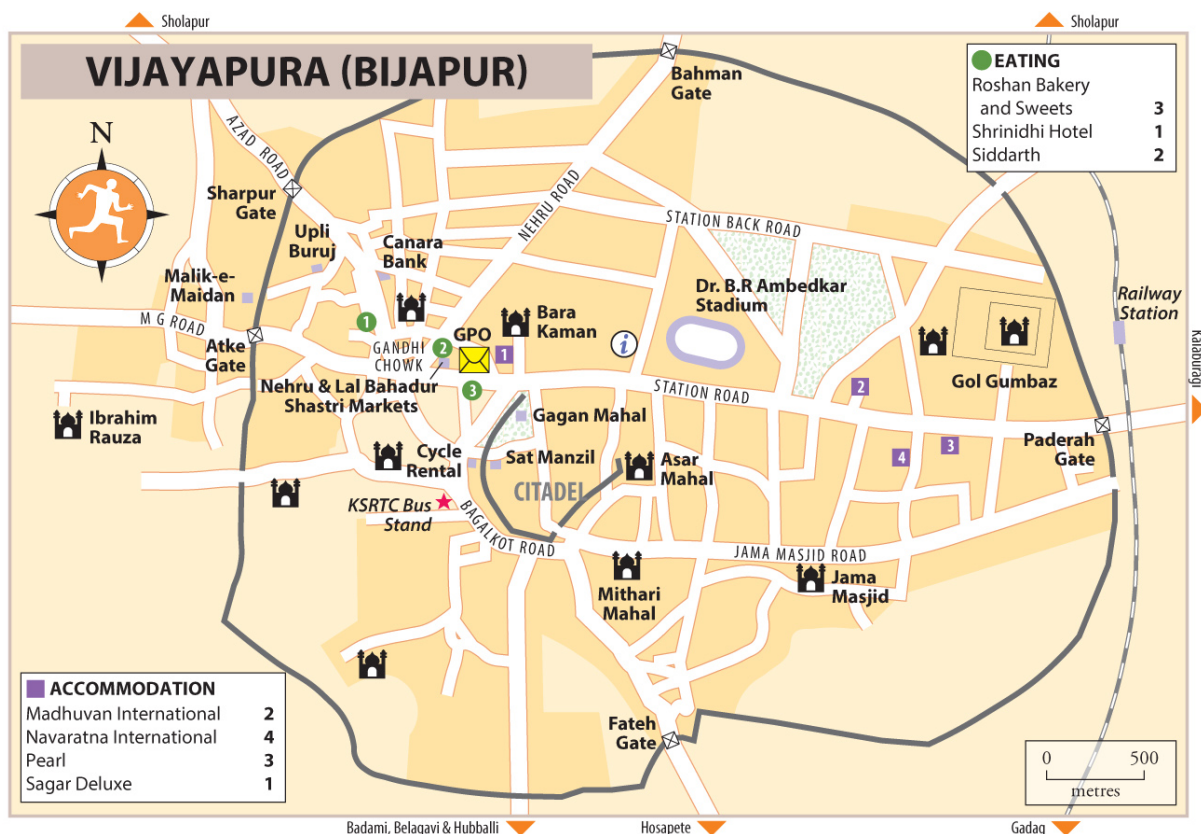

Daily 10am–5pm • Charge

The vast Gol Gumbaz mausoleum, Vijayapura's most famous building, soars above the town's east walls, visible for kilometres in every direction. Inspired by a seven-storey structure in Arabia and built for muezzins to offer azaan (call to prayer) from its summit, the original name Bol Gumbaz was corrupted over the years to Gol Gumbaz.

The cubic tomb, enclosing a 170-square-metre hall, is crowned with a single hemispherical dome, only 5m smaller than St Peter's in Rome, once the largest in the world. Spiral staircases wind up the four seven-storey octagonal towers that buttress the building to the famous Whispering Gallery, a 3m-wide passage encircling the interior base of the dome from where, looking carefully down, you can get a real feel of the sheer size of the building. Arrive here just after opening time to avoid the bus tours and to experience the extraordinary acoustics. The view from the mausoleum's ramparts, which overlook the town and its monuments to the dark-soiled Deccan countryside beyond, is superb.

Set on a plinth in the centre of the hall below are the gravestones of the ruler who built the Gol Gumbaz, Mohammed Adil Shah, along with those of his wife, daughter, grandson and favourite courtesan, Rambha. At one corner of the grounds stands the simple gleaming white shrine to a Sufi saint of the Adil Shahi period, Hashim Pir, which attracts qawwals (singers of devotional qawwali music) each February to the annual three-day urs.

Jama Masjid

A little under 1km southwest of the Gol Gumbaz • Modest clothing is advised – no shorts or skirts
The Jama Masjid was commissioned by Ali Adil Shah, the ruler credited with constructing the city walls and complex water supply system, as a monument to his victory over the Vijayanagar Empire at the battle of Talikota in 1565. Still an active place of worship, it is widely regarded as one of the finest mosques in India.

Simplicity and restraint are the essence of the colonnaded prayer hall below, divided by gently curving arches and rows of thick plaster-covered pillars. Aside from the odd geometric design and trace of yellow, blue and green tile-work, the only ornamentation is found in the mihrab, or west-(Mecca-) facing prayer niche, which is smothered in gold leaf and elaborate calligraphy. The marble floor of the hall features a grid of 2500 rectangles, known as musallahs (after the musallah prayer mats brought to mosques by worshippers). These were added by the Mughal emperor Aurangzeb, allegedly as recompense for making off with the velvet carpets, long golden chain and other valuables that originally filled the prayer hall.

Mithari Mahal 800m west of the Jama Masjid

Although of modest size, the delicately carved three-storey gatehouse known as the Mithari Mahal (or Mehtar Mahal) is one of Vijayapura's most beautiful buildings, with ornate projecting windows and minarets crowning its corners. Once again, it was erected by Ali Adil Shah, along with the mosque behind, using gifts presented to him during a state visit to Vijayanagar.

Asar Mahal

Just beyond the eastern battlement of the citadel The dilapidated Asar Mahal, a large open hall fronted by a stagnant step-well, was built in 1646 by Mohammed Adil Shah as a seat of justice. It was later chosen to house hair strands from the Prophet's beard, thereby earning the title Asar-i-Sharif, or "place of illustrious relics". Women are not permitted inside to view the upper storey, where fifteen niches are decorated with Persian-style pot-and-foliage murals.

The citadel

Vijayapura's citadel stands in the middle of town, hemmed in on all but its north side by battlements. Most of the buildings inside have collapsed, or have been converted into government offices, but enough remain to give a sense of how imposing this royal enclave must once have been.

The best-preserved monuments lie along, or near, the citadel's main north-south artery, Anand Mahal Road, reached by skirting the southeast wall from the Asar Mahal. The latter route brings you first to the Gagan Mahal. Originally Ali Adil Shah's "Heavenly Palace", this now-ruined hulk later served as a durbar hall for the sultans, who would sit in state on the platform at the open-fronted north side, watched by crowds gathered in the grounds opposite. West off Anand Mahal Road, the five-storey Sat Manzil was the pleasure palace of the courtesan Rambha. In front stands an ornately carved water pavilion, the Jal Mandir, now left high and dry in an empty tank.

Malik-e-Maidan and Upli Buruj Guarding the principal western entrance to the city is the Burj-i-Sherza (“Lion Gate”), one of several bastions that punctuate Vijayapura’s battlements. This one sports a colossal cannon, known as the Malik-e-Maidan, literally “Lord of the Plains”. It was brought here as war booty in the sixteenth century, and needed four hundred bullocks, ten elephants and an entire battalion to haul it up the steps to the emplacement. Inscriptions record that the cannon, whose muzzle features a relief of a monster swallowing an elephant, was cast in Ahmadnagar in 1551.

A few more discarded cannons lie atop the watchtower, a short walk northeast of the Malik-e-Maidan. Steps wind around the outside of the oval shaped Upli Buruj, or “Upper Bastion”, to a gun emplacement that affords unimpeded views over the city and plains.

Ibrahim Roza

Under 1km west of the ramparts • Daily 6am–6pm • Charge Set in its own walled compound, the Ibrahim Roza (Rauza) represents the apogee of Bijapuri architecture. Whereas the Gol Gumbaz impresses primarily by its scale, the appeal of this tomb complex lies in its grace and simplicity. It’s also a haven of peace, with cool, colonnaded verandas and flocks of iridescent parakeets careening between the mildewed domes, minarets and gleaming golden finials.

Opinions differ over whether the tomb was commissioned by Ibrahim Adil Shah (1580–1626), or his favourite wife, Taj Sultana, but the former was the first to be interred here, in a gloomy chamber whose only light enters via a series of exquisite pierced-stone windows. Made up of elaborate Koranic inscriptions, these are the finest examples of their kind in India. More amazing stonework decorates the exterior of the mausoleum, and the equally beautiful mosque opposite, the cornice of whose facade features a stone chain carved from a single block. The two buildings, bristling with minarets and cupolas, face each other from opposite sides of a rectangular raised plinth, divided by a small reservoir and fountains. Viewed from on top of the walls that enclose the complex, you can see why its architect, Malik Sandal, added a self-congratulatory inscription in his native Persian over the tomb’s south doorway, describing his masterpiece as “A beauty of which Paradise stood amazed”.

ARRIVAL AND INFORMATION BY VIJAYAPURA (BIJAPUR)
TRAIN THE RAILWAY STATION IS JUST EAST OF THE GOL GUMBAZ, OUTSIDE THE OLD CITY WALLS, AND 3KM NORTHEAST OF THE BUS STAND. DEPARTING AT 4.55PM, THE DAILY GOLGUMBAZ EXPRESS #16536 LINKS VIJAYAPURA WITH BADAMI, GADAG, HUBBALLI AND BENGALURU (15HR 5MIN), WHILE THE BASAVA EXPRESS #17308 (DEP. 4.35PM) RUNS DAILY VIA KALABURAGI (5HR 20MIN) TO BENGALURU (18HR 10MIN).

Destinations Badami (3–4 daily; 2hr 20min–2hr 55min); Bengaluru (2–3 daily; 15hr 5min–18hr 10min); Gadag (3–6 daily; 4hr 10min–4hr 40min); Hubballi (3–5 daily, 5hr 55min–7hr).

By bus State and interstate buses from as far afield as Mumbai and Aurangabad pull into the KSRTC Bus Stand on the southwest edge of the town centre. KSRTC run deluxe buses to Bengaluru, Hubballi, Mumbai and Hyderabad. Heading to Badami, it is often quicker to take the first bus to Bagalkot and change there. VRL runs private services to Bengaluru (3 buses from 7pm) and operates other over-night buses to Mangaluru (via Udupi) and Mumbai. These can be booked through Vijayanand Travels, terrace floor, Shastri Market, Gandhi Chowk (☎08352 251000, 🌐vrlbus.in) or its other branch just south of the bus stand.

Destinations Aurangabad (12hr); Badami (4hr); Bagalkot (2hr); Bengaluru (13hr); Hubballi (6hr); Hyderabad (10hr); Kalaburagi (4hr); Mangaluru (15hr); Mumbai (12hr).

Tourist information The tourist office (Mon–Sat 10am–5.30pm; ☎08352 250359) behind the Hotel Adil Shahi annexe on Station Rd, can help with arranging itineraries and guides.

GETTING AROUND BY BUS FREQUENT LOCAL BUSES, LARGELY UNCROWDED, CONNECT THE BUS STAND WITH THE GOL GUMBAZ AND THE TRAIN STATION.

By auto-rickshaw Auto-rickshaws don't have meters and Charge a minimum of ₹30; although most of Vijayapura is covered by a fare of ₹80, they are a much more expensive way of getting around the monuments, when they charge at least ₹400 for a 4hr tour.

By tonga or tempo Tongas are available from near the bus stand, while tempos ply the main road between the bus stand, the Gol Gumbaz and the train station.

By bike Vijayapura is flat, relatively uncongested, and generally easy to negotiate by bicycle; rickety Heros are available for rent from stalls outside the bus stand for ₹15/hr.

ACCOMMODATION

MAP

Madhuvan International Station Rd 08352 255571. With a bright yellow exterior and a variety of rooms, from overpriced ordinary doubles to more comfortable a/c options, this is a safe bet. The veg restaurant serves good-value thalis at lunchtime. Currency exchange available for guests. ₹₹

Navaratna International Just off Station Rd 08352 222771. The huge, shiny-tiled rooms at this quiet hotel are great value for this price. Good service, veg and non-veg restaurants and a popular palm-shaded dining (and drinking) area. ₹

★Pearl Station Rd 083522 56002. Bright, modern hotel with clean, sizeable rooms. The front ones have balconies and those at the top afford views of the Gol Gumbaz. The smart attached annexe at the back has quality a/c rooms. ₹₹

Sagar Deluxe Near Bara Kaman 0hotelsagardeluxebijapur.com. A budget option close to the action yet tucked away on a quiet side street. Simple but adequate rooms, including cheap singles and great-value a/c. ₹

EATING

MAP

Roshan Bakery and Sweets MG Rd. Among other goodies, this popular place whips up the perfect budget takeaway brunch: flaky croissants filled with boiled egg or veg. ₹

Shrinidhi Hotel Ashram Rd 98441 45240. Probably the best choice for good south Indian veg food, from vada, dosa and snacks to loaded thalis. ₹

★Siddarth Gandhi Chowk 93416 11635. Above the main market, this sprawling rooftop bar-restaurant offers tasty non-veg Indian cuisine such as tandoori chicken. ₹₹

Kalaburagi (Gulbarga) Gulbarga, officially renamed KALABURAGI, around 150km northeast of Vijayapura, was the founding capital of the Bahmani Sultanate and the region's principal city before the court moved to Bidar in 1424. Later captured by the Adil Shahis and Mughals, it has remained a staunchly Muslim town, and bulbous onion domes and mosque minarets still soar prominently above its ramshackle concrete-box skyline. The town is also famous as the birthplace of the Sufi saint, Hazrat Gesu Daraz (1320–1422), whose tomb, situated next to one of India's foremost Islamic theological colleges, is a major shrine.

In spite of Kalaburagi's religious and historical significance, its monuments pale in comparison with those at Vijayapura, or even Bidar. Unless you're particularly interested in medieval Muslim architecture, few are worth breaking a journey to see.

The Dargah

The one monument that warrants a look is the Dargah, a tomb complex on the edge of town around 2km northeast of the train station. Approached via a broad bazaar, this marble-lined enclosure centres on the tomb of Hazrat Gesu Daraz Banda Nawaz, or "the long-haired one who brings comfort to others". The saint was spiritual mentor to the Bahmani rulers, and it was they who erected his beautiful double-storeyed mausoleum, now visited by thousands of Muslim pilgrims each year. Women are not allowed inside, and men must wear long trousers. The same applies to the neighbouring tomb, whose interior has retained its exquisite Persian paintings. The Dargah's other important building, open to both sexes, is the madrasa, founded by Banda Nawaz and enlarged during the two centuries after his death.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY KALABURAGI (GULBARGA)
TRAIN KALABURAGI'S MAINLINE RAILWAY STATION LIES
1.5KM EAST OF THE BUS STAND, ALONG MILL RD. STATION
RD, THE TOWN'S OTHER MAIN ARTERY, RUNS DUE NORTH

OF HERE PAST THE LAKE TO THE BUSY CHOWK CROSSROADS, AT THE HEART OF THE BAZAAR.

Destinations Bengaluru (5–9 daily; 10hr 35min–16hr 40min); Chennai (3–4 daily, 13hr 35min–16hr 50min); Hyderabad/Secunderabad (7–11 daily; 3hr 40min–8hr 5min); Mumbai (10–12 daily; 9hr 55min–12hr); Pune (12–16 daily; 5hr 15min–7hr 40min).

By bus Daily KSRTC buses from Vijayapura, Bidar and beyond pull in to the State Bus Stand on the southwest edge of town. Frequent local buses such as #206 run from the bus stand via the crossroads near the station to the Dargah.

Destinations Hourly to Vijayapura (4hr) and Bidar (3hr); less frequently further afield.

ACCOMMODATION CENTRAL PARK STATION RD, 1KM NORTH OF THE RAILWAY STATION 08472 273231. CLEAN, MODERN BUSINESS HOTEL WHOSE SIMPLE BUT SMART ROOMS HAVE TV; SOME HAVE A/C. GOOD VEG RESTAURANT. ₹

Golden Regency Opposite GESCOM, Station Rd, 1km north of the railway station 08472 273231. Centrally located modern hotel with large, neat rooms and complimentary breakfast. ₹₹

Heritage Inn SB Temple Rd 08472 224093. Modern hotel next to Gulbarga's deserted fort with deluxe rooms and suites, separate veg and non-veg restaurants, a bar and complimentary breakfast and pick-up/drop. ₹₹

EATING KAMAT THE VENERABLE CHAIN RESTAURANT HAS SEVERAL BRANCHES IN KALABURAGI INCLUDING A PLEASANT ONE AT STATION CHOWK, SPECIALIZING IN VEG "MEALS"; TRY JOLADA ROTI, AN UNLEAVENED LOCAL BREAD MADE FROM SORGHUM COOKED EITHER HARD AND CRISP OR SOFT LIKE A CHAPATI OR SIMILAR TO A CORN TORTILLA. ₹

Rajdhani Mill Rd 97417 37143. Most of the mains such as chicken and mutton are inexpensive at this simple basement restaurant on the way towards the station from the bus stand. ₹₹

Bidar

Lost in the far northeast of Karnataka, BIDAR, 284km northeast of Vijayapura, is a provincial backwater, known for its fighter-pilot training base, gently decaying monuments and the most important Sikh shrine in Karnataka. The town, half of whose 210,000-strong population is Muslim, has a gritty charm, with narrow red-dirt streets ending at arched gates and open vistas across the plains. Littered with tile-fronted tombs, rambling fortifications and old mosques, it merits a visit if you're travelling between Hyderabad (150km east) and Vijayapura, although you should expect little in the way of Western comforts, and lots of curious approaches from locals.

In 1424, following the break-up of the Bahmani Sultanate into five rival factions, Ahmad Shah I shifted his court from Gulbarga to a less constricted site at Bidar. Revamping the town with a new fort, splendid palaces, mosques and ornamental gardens, the Bahmanis ruled from here until 1487, when the Barid Shahis took control. They were succeeded by the Adil Shahis from Vijayapura, and later the Mughals under Aurangzeb, who annexed the region in 1656, before the nizam of Hyderabad acquired the territory in the early eighteenth century.

The heart of Bidar is its medieval old town, encircled by crenellated ramparts and eight imposing gateways (darwazas). This predominantly Muslim quarter holds many Bahmani-era mosques, havelis and khanqahs – “monasteries” set up by the local rulers for Muslim cleric-mystics and their disciples.

Mahmud Gawan's madrasa The highlight of the old town is the impressive ruins of Mahmud Gawan's madrasa, whose single minaret soars high above the city centre. The distinctively Persian-style building, originally surmounted by large bulbous domes, once housed a world-famous library. However, this burnt down after being struck by lightning in 1696, and several of the walls and domes were blown away when gunpowder stored here by Aurangzeb's occupying army caught fire and exploded. Today, the madrasa is little more than a shell, although its elegant arched facade has retained large patches of the vibrant Persian glazed tiles that once covered most of the exterior surfaces.

The Fort

At the far north end of the street running past the madrasa A rambling, crumbling Monument Valley to the fifteenth-century Bahmani Sultanate, the Bidar Fort retains a serene, austere beauty. Though locals have incorporated the vast rolling spaces into their lives – young boys play cricket in the grassy turf, terraces are planted with rice, and scooters and small trucks ply its roads – its appeal remains undiminished.

The fort was founded by the Hindu Chalukyas and strengthened by the Bahmanis in the early fifteenth century. Despite repeated sieges, it remains largely intact, encircled by 10km of ramparts that drop away in the north and west to 300m cliffs. The main southern entrance is protected by equally imposing man-made defences: gigantic, fortified gates and a triple moat formerly crossed by a series of drawbridges. You can complete the round of the ramparts in ninety minutes, taking time out to enjoy the views over the red cliffs and across the plains.

BIDRI

Bidar is renowned as the home of a unique damascene metalwork technique known as bidri, developed by the Persian silversmiths who came to the area with the Bahmani court in the fifteenth century. These highly skilled artisans engraved and inlaid their traditional Iranian designs onto a metal alloy composed of lead, copper, zinc and tin, which they blackened and polished. The resulting effect – swirling silver floral motifs framed by geometric patterns and set against black backgrounds – has since become the hallmark of Muslim metalwork in India.

Bidri objets d'art are displayed in museums and galleries all over the country. But if you want to see pukka bidri-walas at work, take a walk down Bidar's Siddiq Talim Road (or Chaubara Road), which cuts across the south side of the old town, where skull-capped artisans tap and burnish vases, goblets, plates, spice boxes, betel-nut tins and ornamental hookah pipes, as well as less traditional objects – coasters, ashtrays and bangles – that crop up (at vastly inflated prices) in silver emporiums as far away as Delhi and Kolkata.

Rangeen Mahal The first building of note inside the fort is the exquisite Rangeen Mahal, on the left after the third and final entrance gateway. Mahmud Shah built this “Coloured Palace” after an unsuccessful uprising of Abyssinian slaves in 1487 forced him to relocate to a safer site inside the citadel. The palace's relatively modest proportions reflect the Bahmanis' declining fortunes, but its interior comprises some of the finest surviving Islamic art in the Deccan, with superb woodcarving above the door arches and Persian-style mother-of-pearl inlay on polished black granite surfaces. If the doors to the palace are locked, ask for the keys at the nearby ASI Museum (daily 8am–1pm & 2–5pm; free).

Solah Khamb Masjid Opposite the ASI Museum

An expanse of gravel is all that remains of the royal gardens, overlooked by the austere Solah Khamb mosque (1327), Bidar's oldest Muslim monument, whose most outstanding feature is the intricate pierced-stone calligraphy around its central dome. From here, continue west through the ruins of the former royal enclosure – a rambling complex of half-collapsed palaces, baths, zenanas and assembly halls – to the fort's west walls.

Ashtur: The Bahmani tombs As you look from the fort's east walls, a cluster of eight bulbous white domes floats alluringly above the trees in the distance. Nearly 5km east of Bidar (leave the old town via Dulhan Darwaza gate) and dating from the fifteenth century, the mausoleums at Ashtur are the final resting-places of the Bahmani sultans and their families, including the son of the ruler who first decamped from Gulbarga, Ala-ud-din Shah I. His tomb is by far the most impressive, with patches of coloured glazed tiles on its arched facade, and a large dome whose interior surfaces bear sumptuous Persian paintings. Reflecting sunlight onto the ceiling with a small pocket mirror, the chowkidar picks out the highlights, among them a diamond, barely visible among the bat droppings.

The tomb of Ala-ud-din's father, the ninth and most illustrious Bahmani sultan, Ahmad Shah I, stands beside that of his son, decorated with Persian inscriptions. Beyond this are two more minor mausoleums, followed by the partially collapsed tomb of Humayun the Cruel (ruled 1458–61), cracked open by a bolt of lightning. Continuing along the line, you can chart the gradual decline of the Bahmanis as the mausoleums diminish in size, ending with a sad handful erected in the early sixteenth century, when the sultans were no more than puppet rulers of the Barid Shahis.

Gurudwara Nanak Jhira Sahib 1km north of bus stand • Headscarves are mandatory, and provided just outside the shrine Guru Nanak, the founder of Sikhism, came to Bidar during his second Udasi (sacred journey) in 1512, when the region was in the grips of a famine. Since Bidar had brackish water, forcing its denizens to travel far away for potable water, the Guru uttered a mantra (“Sat kartar”), shifted a stone with his wooden sandal, and a spring (jhira) miraculously emerged from a laterite trap in the hill, which now fills the water tank known as Amrit Kund (Pool of Nectar). Built in 1948 beside the spring and recently expanded, the Gurudwara Nanak Jhira Sahib is the largest in Karnataka and open to people of all faiths. Drop by at the Sikh Museum, to the left of the gurudwara entrance, where pictures and paintings depict key events in Sikh history, and don’t leave without having a meal at the langar (free community kitchen), run by volunteers for pilgrims round the clock.

ARRIVAL AND DEPARTURE BY TRAIN BIDAR LIES ON A BIDAR BRANCH LINE OF THE MAIN MUMBAI–SECUNDERABAD–CHENNAI RAIL ROUTE AND CAN ONLY BE REACHED BY SLOW PASSENGER TRAIN.

By bus Most visitors arrive by bus at the KSRTC Bus Stand on the far northwestern edge of town, around 2km from the centre. The best connections are with Kalaburagi (every 15min; 3hr) and Hyderabad (every 30min; 4hr).

ACCOMMODATION AND EATING EXTREMELY GRUBBY LODGES PREDOMINATE IN BIDAR BUT THE GOOD NEWS IS THAT NONE OF THE HANDFUL OF BETTER HOTELS LISTED BELOW COST VERY MUCH. THESE ARE GENERALLY THE BEST PLACES TO EAT TOO, ALONG WITH THE ODD BASIC VEG RESTAURANT.

Ashoka Near Deepak Theatre, Basaveshwara Circle, 2km southeast of bus stand 📍08482 227621. Standard business hotel with reasonably comfortable, good-value deluxe rooms, some of them a/c. The restaurant serves both veg and non-veg. No wi-fi. ₹

Rohit Inside gurudwara arch, near town police station 08482 223425. Great Punjabi cuisine close to Gurudwara Nanak Jhira Sahib, including excellent dal makhani and paneer dishes. ₹

Udupi Krishna On Dr Ambedkar Circle 92065 77811. A very humble place but undoubtedly one of the best independent restaurants in town, serving up unlimited pure-veg thalis for lunch and south Indian breakfasts. ₹

Vybe No. 7-7, 439/A, Janwada Rd 08482460982. The best deal in Bidar for a short stay with Vybe being only a stone's throw from both Bidar Fort and Gurudwara Sri Nanak Jhira Sahib. Breakfast and wi-fi are complimentary. ₹₹₹

< Back to Karnataka

Tim Draper/Rough Guides
MURAL IN KERALA

Contexts

History

Religion

Wildlife

Music

Books

Language

Glossary

History

India's history is as complex and as multifaceted as you would expect from such a huge, populous and culturally varied country – a place that was home to one of the world's earliest civilizations and the birthplace of four major global religions, as well as having spawned more dynasties, monarchs and kingdoms than even the most determined historian can keep track of. Broadly speaking, the history of India divides into two parts: the history of the Aryan north, heavily influenced by successive waves of invaders from the uplands of Central Asia, and the much more self-contained history of the Dravidian south.

The Indus Valley Civilization

The earliest human presence in the Indian Subcontinent can be traced back to the Early, Middle and Late Stone Ages (400,000–200,000 BC), when the country was first settled by seminomadic hunters and gatherers. Village settlements gradually developed over the next four thousand years across the Indus Valley as their inhabitants began to use copper and bronze, domesticate animals, make pottery and trade with their neighbours.

By around 2500 BC, the village settlements of the Indus Valley had begun to develop into one of the world's earliest civilizations – roughly contemporaneous with those of Sumer and ancient Egypt. Known variously as the Indus Valley Civilization or the Harappan Civilization, this first great Subcontinental culture spread across a sizeable proportion of what is now southern Pakistan and the periphery of western India. Much of what is known about it comes from the remains of two great cities on the Indus, Harappa in the north and Mohenjo Daro in the south (both in present-day Pakistan). Laid out on a grid, both cities boasted large houses made from uniformly sized baked bricks, an elaborate system of covered drains (the world's first urban sanitation system) and large granaries. The absence of royal palaces and the large numbers of religious figurines found at both sites suggest that the Indus Valley Civilization was a theocratic state of priests, merchants and farmers.

The Indus Valley Civilization displayed remarkable longevity, surviving for a thousand years until its sudden demise around 1700 BC, probably caused by a catastrophic series of floods.

The Vedic Age (1500–600 BC)

The written history of India begins with the invasions of the charioteering Indo-European or Aryan tribes, which dealt the final death blow to the enfeebled Indus Civilization. The arrival of the Aryans marks the beginning of the so-called Vedic Age, named after the earliest Indian literature, the Vedas. The Aryans were one of the various nomadic tribes who emerged out of the vast steppes of Central Asia, marauding and eventually colonizing Europe, the Middle East and the Indian Subcontinent.

Aryan culture was diametrically opposed to that of the Indus Civilization. Seminomadic hunters and pastoralists when they first reached the Subcontinent, the Aryans gradually adopted the farming techniques learned from the peoples they conquered as they spread eastwards into India.

The Aryans' hymns, written down in the Vedas, describe the intertribal conflicts characteristic of the period, but also express an underlying sense of solidarity against the indigenous peoples, whom the Aryans referred to as Dasas. Originally a general term for "enemies", it came to denote "subjects" as they were colonized within the expanding land of the Aryans. The Aryans began to emphasize purity of blood as they settled among the darker aboriginals, and their original class divisions of nobility and ordinary tribesmen were hardened to exclude the Dasas. At the same time, the priests, the sole custodians of the increasingly complex religion and sacrificial rituals, began to claim high privileges for their skill and training. By 1000 BC, Aryan society had become divided into four classes, or varnas (literally "colour"): priests (brahmins), warriors (kshatriya), peasants (vaishya) and serfs (shudra), a division that still survives today. The first three classes covered the main divisions within the Aryan tribes; the Dasas and other non-Aryan subjects became the shudras, who served the three higher classes. Many of India's most important religious texts and epics also date from this period, including the Sama, Yajur and Atharva Vedas, Brahmanas and the Upanishads, while the Mahabharata and the Ramayana also claim to relate to this era.

By the fifth century BC the scattered states of north India had been consolidated into five great kingdoms: Magadha, Kashi, Koshala, Vatsa and the republic of the Vrijjis. Eventually, Magadha emerged supreme, under Bimbisara (543–491 BC), who was also, according to legend, a personal friend and great patron of the Buddha, his almost exact contemporary. Bimbisara's son and successor Ajatashatru (491–461 BC) moved the capital of Magadha to Pataliputra (the forerunner of modern Patna) and either annihilated the other kingdoms in the Ganges valley or reduced them to the status of vassals. In the middle of the fourth century BC, the Nanda dynasty usurped the Magadhan throne; Mahapadma Nanda conquered Kalinga (Odisha and the northern coastal strip of Andhra Pradesh) and gained control of parts of the Deccan. The disputed succession after his death coincided with significant events in the northwest; out of this confusion the first of India's empires was born.

The Mauryan Empire (320–184 BC)

North India's burgeoning prosperity was by now beginning to attract the attention of ambitious rulers in Central Asia – something that was to become a recurrent theme in Indian history over the next thousand years. Darius I, the third Achaemenid emperor of Persia, had already conquered the kingdom of Gandhara (in what is now northern Pakistan and eastern Afghanistan) around 520 BC. Far more significant, however, was the later invasion by Alexander the Great, who defeated Darius III, the last Achaemenid, crossed the Indus in 326 BC, and then overran the Punjab. Alexander was in India for just two years, and although he left garrisons and appointed satraps to govern the conquered territories, their position following his death in 323 BC became increasingly untenable.

The disruption caused by Alexander's brief incursion was seized upon by Chandragupta Maurya, the ruler of Magadha, who had overthrown the last of the Nanda dynasty in around 320 BC. Chandragupta is said to have met Alexander the Great and was probably inspired by his exploits; his 500,000-strong army drove out the Greek garrisons in the northwest and annexed all the lands east of the Indus.

From about 297 BC onwards, Chandragupta's son Bindusara extended the empire as far south as Mysore, before being succeeded in around 269 BC by his son, Ashoka, the most famous of India's early rulers. Ashoka ruthlessly consolidated his power for the first eight years of his reign, but then – allegedly sickened by the terrible carnage caused by his conquests – abruptly converted to Buddhism and renounced the use of violence in favour of the law of moral righteousness, or dharma. His adoption of Buddhism, however, did not interfere with his imperial pragmatism, and he continued to govern the newly acquired territory with a firm military hand. By the end of his reign, Ashoka's empire stretched from Assam to Afghanistan and from Kashmir to Mysore; only the three Dravidian kingdoms of the Cholas, Cheras and Pandyas in the southernmost tip of the Subcontinent remained independent. After Ashoka's death in 232 BC, the empire began to fall apart, and in 184 BC the last of the Mauryans, Brihadratha, was assassinated by one of his generals, bringing to an end nearly 140 years of Mauryan rule.

The age of invasions (184 BC–320 AD)

The five hundred years following the collapse of the Mauryan Empire are the most complex and confusing in Subcontinental history, marked by political fragmentation and a new and seemingly endless series of invasions from the northwest. The period is sometimes referred to as India's "Dark Age", although despite the lack of any unified central power it was also one of economic dynamism and considerable cultural achievement.

The first invaders were the Bactrian Greeks of Gandhara, who occupied the Punjab and extended their power as far as Mathura in Uttar Pradesh.

Yet the arrival of newcomers from Central Asia soon threatened the Greek position in Bactria. Large-scale movements of central Asian Yueh-Chi nomads had precipitated the migration of the Shakas (Scythians), from the Aral Sea area, who displaced the Parthians (Pahlavas) from Iran, who in turn wrested control of Bactria from the Greeks (who henceforth administered their Indian territories from a new capital in Kabul). The finer details of these various population movements remain unclear, and they were probably more in the nature of migrations than invasions. Whatever the details, both the Yueh-Chi and Shakas continued to drift slowly in the direction of India, finally arriving during the first century AD. The Shakas were the first to arrive, establishing themselves in northwestern India until the coming of the Kushan branch of the Yueh-Chi, who drove the Shakas off into Gujarat and Malwa (the area around Ujjain).

Despite the disintegration of the Mauryan Empire and the proliferation of rival kingdoms, the period from 200 BC to 300 AD was also one of unprecedented economic wealth and cultural development. Urban centres began to develop all over India, while external trade, both overland and maritime, opened up lines of communication with the outside world stretching as far as Arabia and Southeast Asia by sea, and China and the Mediterranean by land via the Silk Route.

The rise of the south

Meanwhile, the first great kingdom of southern India was flexing its muscles. Between the second century BC and the second century AD the Andhra or Satavahana dynasty, which originated in the region between the Godavari and Krishna rivers (modern-day Andhra Pradesh and Maharashtra), began to make inroads into much of south and central India. The dynasty survived until the middle of the third century, when its territories were carved up by rival dynasties including the Pallavas, who took control of their territories in Andhra Pradesh.

Further south, the three kingdoms of the Cheras on the Malabar Coast in the west, the Pandiyas in the central southern tip of the peninsula, and the Cholas on the east coast of Coromandel – together comprising much of present-day Tamil Nadu and Kerala – had been developing almost completely independently of north India. Society was divided into groups based on the geographical domains of hills, plains, forest, coast and desert rather than class or varna, though brahmins did command high status. Although agriculture, pastoralism and fishing were the main occupations, trade in spices, gold and jewels with Rome and southeast Asia underpinned the region's prosperity.

From the middle of the first century BC, however, conflicts between the three states intensified. This enervating warfare rendered them vulnerable; early in the fourth century AD, the Pallavas overran the Chola capital of Kanchipuram, and by 325 AD had taken control of Tamil Nadu. The Pallavas remained a dominant power in the south until the ninth century AD, and thus became one of the longest ruling dynasties in Indian history.

The Guptas (320–650)

During the fourth century AD, a second great Indian empire began to emerge in the north: the Guptas. The parallels with the earlier Mauryan Empire are striking. Both were founded in the year 320 (BC and AD respectively) by a king named Chandragupta (though the later king is usually written as two words, Chandra Gupta), and both emerged from within the famous old kingdom of Magadha. Chandra Gupta (reigned c.320–335) appears to have been the ruler of a minor statelet within the old Magadhan kingdom, acquiring considerable new territory through intermarriage with the famous Licchavi clan, one of the Mauryas' principal enemies six hundred years previously. Chandra Gupta thus found himself master of a powerful kingdom in the Gangetic plain, which controlled the vital east–west trade route. His son and heir, Samudra Gupta (c.335–376 AD), expanded the frontiers of his realm from Punjab to Assam, while the empire reached its apogee under his successor, Chandra Gupta II (376–415 AD), who subjugated the Shakas in Gujarat and reunified the whole of northern India, with the exception of the northwest.

The era of these three imperial Guptas, along with the subsequent reign of Harsha Vardhana (606–647 AD) of Kanauj, is generally seen as the Classical Age of Indian history, one of cultural and artistic brilliance, religious ferment and political stability. Secular Sanskrit literature reached its perfection in the works of Kalidasa, the greatest Indian poet and dramatist, who was a member of Chandra Gupta II's court. The cave paintings of Ajanta and Ellora inspired Buddhist artists throughout Asia, and Yashodhara's detailed analysis of painting in the fifth century prescribed the classical conventions for the new art form. In sculpture, the images of the Buddha produced in Sarnath and Mathura embodied the simple and serene quality of classicism. In architecture, the Gupta era saw the birth of a new style of Hindu temple which would become India's classic architectural form. The era of the Guptas produced great thinkers as well: six systems of philosophy evolved, which refuted Buddhism and Jainism. One of them, Vedanta, has continued as the basis of all philosophical studies in India to this day.

The Guptas performed Vedic sacrifices to legitimize their rule, and patronized popular forms of Hinduism, such as devotional religion (bhakti) and the worship in temples of images of Vishnu, Shiva and the goddess Shakti, deities who were attracting increasing numbers of devotees during this era. Buddhism continued to thrive, however, with thousands of monks dwelling at Mathura as well as hundreds in Pataliputra itself.

The Gupta Empire remained relatively peaceful during the long reign of Kumara Gupta (c.415–455), who succeeded Chandra Gupta II, but by the time Skanda Gupta (c.455–467) came to the throne, western India was again threatened by invasions from Central Asia, this time by the White Huns, nomads from Central Asia who had already established themselves in Bactria. Skanda managed to repel White Hun raids, but after his death their disruption of central Asian trade seriously destabilized the empire. By the end of the fifth century, the Huns had wrested the Punjab from Gupta control, and further incursions early in the sixth century dealt a death blow to the Gupta Empire, which had completely disintegrated by 550 AD.

Kingdoms of central and south India (500–1250)

Meanwhile, significant events were taking place in central and south India. The history of the period was dominated by three major kingdoms: the Pallavas, who had supplanted the Satavahanas in the Andhra region and made Kanchipuram their capital back in the fourth century; the Pandyas of Madurai, who had established their own regional kingdom by the sixth century; and the Chalukyas of Vatapi (Badami in Karnataka), who had expanded into the Deccan in the middle of the sixth century. All three kingdoms intermittently fought one another, but their military strength was so evenly matched that none was able to gain ascendancy.

The Chalukyas were eventually overthrown in 753 by Dantidurga, the founder of the Rashtrakuta kingdom (whose rulers also tried their luck in the north, briefly gaining possession of Kanauj). The Pallavas survived their arch-enemies by about a hundred years, then succumbed to a combined attack of the Pandyas and the Cholas. The Cholas were a major new force in Tamil Nadu, conquering the Thanjavur region in the ninth century and taking Madurai from the Pandyas in 907, before being defeated by the Rashtrakutas in the middle of the tenth century, who were themselves replaced by the revived Chalukyas in 973 AD.

Ultimately, the chief beneficiaries of this dynastic back-and-forth were the Cholas, who were able to regain lost territories and expand further during the eleventh and twelfth centuries. The great Chola kings Rajaraja I (985–1014) and Rajendra I (1014–1044) launched a series of campaigns against the Cheras, Pandyas and Chalukyas, and by the end of the eleventh century the Cholas were supreme in the south, although incessant campaigning had exhausted their resources. Ironically, their destruction of the Chalukyas sowed the seeds of their own downfall. Former Chalukya feudatories, such as the Yadavas of Devagiri in the northern Deccan and the Hoysalas, around modern Mysuru, set up their own kingdoms; the latter attacked the Cholas from the west while the Pandyas directed a new offensive from the south. By the thirteenth century, the Pandyas had superseded the Cholas as south India's major power, while the Yadavas and Hoysalas controlled the Deccan until the advent of the Delhi sultans in the fourteenth century.

Despite constant political and military conflicts, this period was very much the classical age of the south. The ascendancy of the Cholas was complemented by the crystallization of Tamil culture; the religious, artistic, and institutional patterns of this period dominated the culture of the south and influenced developments elsewhere in the Subcontinent. In the sphere of religion, for instance, the great philosophers Shankara and Ramanuja, as well as the Tamil and Maharashtrian saints, had a significant impact on Hinduism in north India.

Kingdoms in north India (650–1250)

In north India, Harsha Vardhana's death was followed by a century of confusion, with assorted kingdoms competing to control the Gangetic valley. In time, the Pratihara-Gurjaras, from western India, and the Palas, of Bihar and Bengal, emerged as the main rivals, although both were weakened by repeated incursions from the Deccan by the Rashtrakutas, who briefly occupied Kanauj in 916. The Pratiharas regained their capital, but the tripartite struggle sapped their strength and they were unable to repel the invasion of Kanauj by Mahmud of Ghazni in 1018. The struggle for possession of Kanauj depleted the resources of all three competing powers and resulted in their almost simultaneous decline, while various smaller feudatory kingdoms began to assert their independence. Kingdoms emerged in Nepal, Kamarupa (Assam), Kashmir and Odisha, all with their own cultural identities, customs, literatures and histories. The Eastern Gangas of Kalinga (roughly equivalent to modern Odisha) also achieved political independence and unity in the twelfth century.

Meanwhile, in the west, the celebrated Rajputs began to emerge as a new element within Indian society. Their origins remain the subject of considerable speculation, although they probably descended from the various invaders who arrived in India between the third and sixth centuries, including the Pratihara-Gurjaras, Huns and Shakas and perhaps others. Whatever their origins, they acquired respectable Hindu genealogies and were given kshatriya status. By the tenth century, the most important Rajput clans, like the Chauhans of Ajmer, the Guhilas of Chittaurgarh, the Chandellas of Bundelkhand, and the Tomaras of Haryana (who founded modern Delhi in 1060), had all established small regional kingdoms spread across modern-day Rajasthan, Gujarat, Madhya Pradesh and other parts of the north.

The Rajputs fought among each other incessantly, however, and failed to grasp the significance of a new factor, which entered the politics of north India at the start of the eleventh century. Mahmud of Ghazni (971–1030), a Turkish chieftain who had established the powerful Ghaznavid kingdom at Ghazni in Afghanistan, made seventeen plundering raids into India between 1000 and 1027, looting Mathura, Kanauj and Somnath, among other places. The powerful Rajput clans of northern India were still busy fighting one another almost two centuries later when Muhammad of Ghor (1162–1206) seized Ghaznavid possessions in the Punjab at the end of the twelfth century, and then turned his attention towards the wealthy lands further east. Prithviraj III, the legendary hero of the Chauhans of Ajmer, patched together an alliance to defeat the Turkish warlord at Tarain (north of Delhi) in 1191; but Muhammad returned the next year with a superior force and defeated the Rajputs. He had Prithviraj executed before returning home, leaving his generals to complete his conquest.

The Delhi Sultanate (1206–1526)

Muhammad of Ghor was assassinated in 1206 and his empire immediately disintegrated, leaving his Turkish general Qutbu'd Aiback, a former slave, as the autonomous ruler of Muhammad's former Indian territories. Aiback thus became the founder of the so-called "Slave Dynasty", the first part of which would eventually come to be known as the Delhi Sultanate, which would remain the major political force in the north until the early sixteenth century. The sultanate marked an important turning-point in Indian history. Islam rather than Hinduism suddenly became the religion of the country's rulers, while Delhi, rather than Kanauj or Pataliputra, became the most important city in the north.

Aiback's son-in-law Iltutmish (1211–36) extended the sultanate's territories from the Sind to Bengal by the time he died, but a period of confusion followed, with five different rulers in just six years. Not until Ghiyas-ud-din Balban took effective control in 1246 did the sultanate attain any degree of stability, despite repeated threats from yet another set of foreign interlopers, the Mongols, who had been launching raids into western India from around 1220 and continued to attack the edges of the sultanate.

Ghiyas-ud-din's death in 1287 was followed by the inevitable period of dynastic mayhem that only ended in 1290, when Aiback's Slave Dynasty came to an end, replaced by the Khalji dynasty. The Khalji family had entered India with Muhammad of Ghor, and subsequently carved out their own Muslim fiefdom in Bengal and Bihar. The first Khalji sultan, the elderly Feroz Shah I, was soon done away with by the implacable Ala-ud-din Khalji (1296–1315), one of the most fearsome of all Indian rulers. A hard man for hard times, Ala-ud-din was faced immediately by a series of further Mongol attacks. Delhi was besieged twice and its hinterlands plundered before the invaders suffered a resounding defeat at the hands of the new sultan in 1300, after which they left him alone. Having seen off the Mongols, Ala-ud-din set out to conquer Gujarat and Rajasthan in a series of expeditions between 1299 and 1311, before turning his attention to the Deccan and the south. Even so, his military campaigns were more a question of exacting tribute and raising funds than of building a stable empire.

A fresh imperial impetus came from the Tughluq dynasty, which succeeded the Khaljis in 1320. Under Mohammed bin Tughluq (1325–51), the sultanate reached its largest extent, comparable in size to Ashoka's empire, although the onerous taxes required to finance Mohammed's military campaigns provoked a series of revolts, while the new Hindu kingdom of Vijayanagar took advantage of the decline of the sultanate's authority to extend its influence from its capital near Hampi. Firoz Shah Tughluq (1351–88) reversed the fortunes of the sultanate to some extent, thanks to the comparative mildness of his rule, but arguments over the succession after his death in 1388 further weakened the sultanate, as did an attack by the ruthless Timur, the Central Asian despot known to the West as Tamerlane, who sacked Delhi in 1398. By the end of the fourteenth century, the Delhi Sultanate had been reduced to just one of several competing Muslim states in northern India.

The greatly weakened sultanate was next taken over by the Afghan-descended Khizr Khan (1414–21), whose Sayyid dynasty ruled until 1444, to be succeeded by the Lodis, under whom the sultanate experienced a modest revival. Sikander Lodi (1489–1517) was particularly energetic and successful, annexing Jaunpur and Bihar, but his successor, Ibrahim, was unable to quell dissension among his Afghan feudatories, one of whom enlisted the support of Babur, the ruler of Kabul, who defeated Ibrahim at Panipat in 1526.

The early Mughal Empire (1526–1605)

For Babur – the founder of India’s most famous dynasty, the Mughals – India appears to have been something of an afterthought. A direct descendant of Timur (and also distantly related to Genghis Khan), Babur was born in Uzbekistan and spent most of his life in Afghanistan, where he seized control of Kabul. It was only relatively late in life, hearing of the military weakness of the Lodis, that he decided to attack India.

His battle-hardened forces easily routed the very last Delhi sultan, Ibrahim Lodi, at the Battle of Panipat in 1526, which gave him tenuous control of Delhi and Agra, although his position remained unsafe until his troops had first defeated a far stronger Rajput force led by Rana Sanga of Mewar, at the Battle of Kanwaha in 1527, and then the allied forces of assorted Afghan chiefs. Shortly afterwards, his failing health forced him to retire to Agra, where he died in 1530.

Humayun, his son and successor, was a volatile character, alternating between bursts of energetic activity and indolence. He subdued Malwa and Gujarat, only to lose both while he indulged himself in the harem in Agra. The Afghan-descended Sher Shah Suri (also known as Sher Khan or Sher Khan Sur) of south Bihar soon assumed the leadership of the Afghan opposition and, after two resounding defeats, Humayun was forced to seek refuge in Persia in 1539. He returned fifteen years later, however, to annihilate the forces of Sher Shah Suri’s successor, Sikander Sur. Humayun died the following year after a fall in the Purana Qila in Delhi, leaving his 13-year-old son Akbar to succeed to the throne.

Fortunately for the young emperor, Humayun’s experienced general Bairam Khan was on hand to serve as guardian and regent to help him through the difficult early years of his reign. Bairam first overcame the challenge of the Hindu general Hemu at the second Battle of Panipat in 1556, recovered Gwalior and Jaunpur, and handed over a consolidated kingdom of north India to Akbar in 1560. Akbar’s own first military campaigns were against the Rajputs; and within a decade he had subdued all the Rajput domains except Mewar (Udaipur) by a clever combination of diplomacy and force. By the end of his reign in 1605 he controlled a broad sweep of territory stretching from the Bay of Bengal to Kandahar in Afghanistan.

In 1565, Akbar had the small fort built by Sikander Lodi in Agra demolished and replaced by the magnificent new Agra Fort, the centrepiece of a newly revitalized city that would henceforth rival Delhi as the major centre of Mughal power. Not content with this, in the late 1560s, he embarked on the creation of an entire new city, the remarkable but short-lived Fatehpur Sikri, which served for a brief period as the capital of the empire.

Akbar was as clever a politician and administrator as he was a successful general. In addition to involving Hindu landowners and nobles in political life, Akbar adopted a conscious policy of religious toleration aimed at widening his power base, abolishing the despised poll tax on non-Muslims (jizya) and tolls on Hindu pilgrimages.

The later Mughals (1605–1761)

The reign of Jahangir (1605–27) was a time of brisk economic and expansionist activity conjoined with artistic and architectural brilliance. Jahangir himself was a contradictory character: an alcoholic and a sadist, but also a notable connoisseur of art as well as an able and determined military commander who succeeded in extending the bounds of the already very considerable domains bequeathed to him by Akbar.

Jahangir's son Shah Jahan came to power in 1628, having already proved himself an outstanding commander during his father's reign. Despite his considerable military abilities, however, it is as perhaps the greatest patron of architecture the world has ever known that Shah Jahan is best remembered. In 1648 he officially moved the Mughal capital from Agra back to Delhi, celebrating the translocation with the construction of the new city of Shahjahanabad (now better known as Old Delhi), though it was in Agra that he left his greatest mark, with his myriad embellishments to the city's fort and, pre-eminently, in the creation of the Taj Mahal.

Shah Jahan's reign witnessed the entry of a new force into Indian history: the Marathas, a potent military power in central India. A group of militant Hindus from Maharashtra in central India, the Marathas had carved out a kingdom of their own under their inspirational chief, Shivaji, and soon began to turn their attentions northwards. Shah Jahan had responded to the Maratha threat by sending his third son, the ambitious young Aurangzeb, to the Deccan to take charge of Mughal interests in the region, although his military successes were repeatedly undermined by Shah Jahan's oldest son and preferred heir Dara Shikoh, who was anxious to destabilize Aurangzeb's military exploits lest they create a threat to his own prestige. The anticipated struggle between the two brothers erupted in 1658 when Shah Jahan fell suddenly and seriously ill. Shah Jahan recovered, but not before Aurangzeb had seen off Dara Shikoh, wiping out his army in a series of encounters that culminated in a rout at Ajmer. The thirty-year reign of the ailing emperor ended ignominiously. Aurangzeb had him incarcerated in Agra Fort, where he remained until his death in 1666.

Though lacking the charisma of Akbar or Babur, Aurangzeb evoked an awe of his own and proved to be a firm and capable administrator, who retained his grip on the increasingly unsettled empire until his death at the age of 88. In contrast to the extravagance of the other Mughals, Aurangzeb's lifestyle was pious and disciplined. However, his religious dogmatism ultimately alienated the Hindu community whose leaders had been so carefully cultivated by Akbar. Hindu places of worship were again the object of iconoclasm and the jizya tax on non-Muslims was reintroduced.

The chief threat to Mughal rule in this period came from the Maratha chief, Shivaji, who established a compact and well-organized kingdom in western India, while the nearby Muslim kingdoms of Bijapur and Golconda allied themselves with him. Meanwhile, Guru Tegh Bahadur, the leader of the important new Sikh religion, was executed in 1675 for refusing to embrace Islam; his son, Guru Gobind, transformed the religious community into a military sect that became increasingly powerful in Punjab. Aurangzeb's confrontation with the Rajputs over the Jodhpur succession in 1678 resulted in another war, and the alienation of most of his Rajput partners in the empire.

Aurangzeb's attention, however, was turning steadily south. In 1681 he transferred his base to the Deccan, where he spent the rest of his extremely long life overseeing the subjugation of the Bijapur and Golconda kingdoms and trying to contain the increasingly belligerent Marathas. In 1689, he succeeded in capturing and executing Shivaji's son, and by 1698 the Mughals had overrun almost the whole of the peninsula.

Aurangzeb's son, Bahadur Shah, succeeded in 1707 but reigned for just five years. His death in 1712 marked the beginning of the end for the Mughals, as their empire disintegrated. By the 1720s the rulers of Hyderabad, Avadh (Lucknow) and Bengal were effectively independent; the Marathas overwhelmed the rich province of Malwa in 1738; Hindu landholders everywhere were in revolt; and Nadir Shah of Persia dealt a serious blow to the empire's prestige when he invaded India, defeated the Mughal army and sacked Delhi in 1739.

The East India Company (1600–1857)

India's trading potential had attracted European interest ever since 1498, when Vasco da Gama landed on the Malabar (Keralan) Coast. During the ensuing century Portuguese, Dutch, English, French and Danish companies had all set up coastal trading centres, exporting textiles, sugar and indigo. British interests in India were formalized by the creation of the East India Company, granted a royal charter by Elizabeth I in 1600, whose representatives arrived at Surat in Gujarat in 1608, quickly establishing 27 trading posts around the country, including Fort George and Fort William (out of which the cities of Madras and Calcutta would subsequently develop), as well as at the fledgling settlement of Bombay.

It was in the south that European trading initiatives first took on a political significance, after the onset of the War of the Austrian Succession in 1740. Armed conflict between French and English trading companies along the south Indian coast soon developed into a minor war over the succession of the nizam of Hyderabad. Sporadic fighting continued until the end of the Seven Years' War in Europe and the Treaty of Paris in 1763 put an effective end to French ambitions in India. Meanwhile, Robert Clive's defeat of the rebellious young nawab of Bengal at Plassey in 1757 had decisively augmented British power; by 1765 the enervated Mughal emperor legally recognized the Company by granting it the revenue management of Bengal, Bihar and Orissa (now Odisha).

For the next thirty years, the British in India contented themselves with developing trade and repulsing Indian offensives against their three major settlements in Calcutta, Bombay and Madras, though by the end of the century the defeat of Tipu Sultan of Mysore, the Company's best-organized and most resolute enemy, and the subjugation of the nizam of Hyderabad, resulted in the annexation of considerable territories, and by 1805 nearly all the other rulers in India recognized British suzerainty. A long-drawn-out series of conflicts between the British and Marathas (the so-called three “Maratha Wars” of 1774–1818) finally extinguished the Marathas as an effective military threat.

Following the subjugation of the Marathas, the British established a series of treaties with the rulers of Rajasthan and with most of India’s other surviving independent kingdoms, collectively known as the so-called princely states, stretching from Hyderabad in the south to Kashmir in the north. Under these treaties, the various kingdoms retained their autonomy more or less intact and received a guarantee of military protection in exchange for pledging their loyalty to the British Crown and agreeing to certain political, mercantile and financial concessions. The much-abused city of Delhi, the traditional capital of north India, fared less well, as the British established their capital at the burgeoning new city of Calcutta. Not until 1911 would Delhi recapture its mantle as the north’s imperial city.

The 1857 uprising

The new British colony, however, was in a state of social and economic collapse as a result of the almost incessant conflicts of the previous hundred years. The controversial “Doctrine of Lapse”, whereby autonomous states were gradually annexed, was widely resented. In addition, the Company’s policy, after 1835, of promoting European literature and science (with English replacing Persian as the official state language), the suppression of local customs such as sati and child marriage, and the deployment of Indian troops overseas (resulting in loss of caste) were increasingly perceived as part of a covert British attack on traditional Hindu and Muslim religious and cultural practices.

The final spark which ignited a full-blown uprising by the Indian army was supplied when troops were issued with cartridges for a new Enfield rifle rumoured to have been smeared in cows’ and pigs’ grease (polluting to both Hindus and Muslims). The resultant 1857 uprising (traditionally referred to by the British as the “Indian Mutiny” or “Sepoy Rebellion”, and, in India, as the “First War of Independence”) began with a rebellion of Indian troops (sepoys) at Meerut on May 10, 1857, and Delhi was seized the next day. The rebellion quickly spread across most of central northern India, where mutineers seized Lucknow and Kanpur. The British authorities were caught by surprise, though control was gradually reasserted. Delhi and Kanpur were both retaken in September, and the final recapture of Lucknow in March 1858 effectively signalled the end of the uprising. Bloody reprisals ensued.

The Raj and Indian nationalism (1857–1947)

The uprising had important consequences for subsequent British rule in the Subcontinent. The governing powers of the East India Company were abolished and the British Crown assumed the direct administration of India in the same year. Henceforth, British India was no longer merely a massive trade operation, but a fully-fledged independent kingdom, or Raj, as the period of British rule in the Subcontinent subsequently became known.

As a British colony, India assumed a new position in the world economy. Its trade (though not the population as a whole) benefited from the railways developed by the British, and Indian businessmen began to invest in a range of manufacturing industries. However, India subsidized the British economy as a source of cheap raw materials and as a market for manufactured goods, and its own economy and agriculture remained chronically underdeveloped. British civil servants dominated the higher echelons of the administration, often introducing policies contrary to Indian interests and cultural traditions. Public demonstrations eventually forced the British to sanction the creation of the Indian National Congress party (usually known simply as “Congress”) in 1885, and by 1905 Congress had adopted self-government as a political aim. In 1906, concerns about the predominantly Hindu Congress led to the foundation of the All-India Muslim League to represent the country’s Muslims.

The Morley-Minto Reforms of 1909 paved the way for Indian participation in provincial executive councils and made allowance for separate Muslim representation. At the Great Durbar of 1911, held in honour of the new king, George V, the capital was moved back to Delhi, with the construction of yet another imperial city, so-called “New” Delhi, to celebrate the relocation (though it wasn’t finished until 1931). A few years later, the Royal Proclamation of 1917 promised a gradual development of dominion-style self-government; and two years later the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms attempted to implement the declaration.

At this point an British-educated lawyer, Mohandas Karamchand Gandhi – better known as the Mahatma, or “Great Soul” – took up the initiative, espousing a political philosophy based on non-violence and the championing of the so-called “untouchables”, whom he renamed the Children of God (Harijan). Gandhi began by organizing India-wide one-day strikes and protests, though these were mercilessly crushed by the government – as in the infamous incident in 1919 when troops under General Dyer dispersed a meeting at Jallianwalla Bagh in Amritsar by firing on the unarmed crowd, killing 379 and wounding 1200.

By 1928 Congress was demanding complete independence. The government offered talks, but the more radical elements in Congress, now led by the young Jawaharlal Nehru, were in a confrontational mood. Gandhi, in turn, led a well-publicized 386km “salt march” from his ashram in Sabarmati to make salt illegally at Dandi in Gujarat in defiance of a particularly unpopular British tax. This demonstration of nonviolent civil disobedience (satyagraha) fired the popular imagination, leading to more processions, strikes, and mass imprisonments over the next few years, which in turn led to the formulation of the new Government of India Act in 1935, although this still fell short of offering the country complete independence. Congress remained suspicious of British intentions, and despite Gandhi’s overtures refused to accommodate Muslim demands for representation. Mohammed Ali Jinnah, who assumed the leadership of the Muslim League in 1935, initially promoted Muslim–Hindu cooperation, but he soon despaired of influencing Congress and by 1940 the League passed a resolution demanding an independent Pakistan.

Confrontations between the government, Congress and the Muslim League continued throughout World War II, despite the promise, in 1942, by a Britain increasingly reliant on Indian troops, of post-war independence. Gandhi introduced the Quit India slogan and proposed another campaign of civil disobedience; Jinnah, meanwhile, preached his “two nations” theory and inspired mass Muslim support with his rhetoric against “Hinduization”. A spate of terrorist activities across the country left a thousand dead and sixty thousand imprisoned. By the end of the war, the British government accepted that complete independence for India could no longer be postponed.

Unfortunately, British attempts to find a solution that would preserve a united India while allaying Muslim fears disintegrated in the face of continued intransigence from both sides, and they gradually realized that the division – or so-called Partition – of the existing country of India into separate Muslim and Hindu states was inevitable. Lord Mountbatten was appointed viceroy to hastily supervise the handover of power, yet few preparations were made for what would be one of the biggest mass migrations in history. The Subcontinent was partitioned on August 15, 1947, and Pakistan came into existence. The new boundaries cut through both Bengal and the Punjab; Sikhs, Muslims and Hindus who had been neighbours became enemies overnight. More than five million Hindus and Sikhs from Pakistan, and a similar number of Muslims from India, were involved in the ensuing two-way exodus, and the atrocities cost more than a million lives. Mahatma Gandhi, who had devoted himself to ending the communal violence after Partition, was assassinated in January 1948 by a Hindu extremist antagonized by his defence of Muslims.

India under Nehru (1947–64)

Jawaharlal Nehru, India's first and longest-serving prime minister, proved to be a dynamic and extremely popular leader during his seventeen years in office, building the foundations of a democratic secular nation, and guiding the first stages of its agricultural and industrial development. The franchise was made universal for all adults and, with 173 million eligible to vote, in 1951 India became the world's largest democracy.

Despite Independence, there was still the problem of the 562 princely states within India, covering no less than forty percent of the country's total area, and which remained technically autonomous under the terms of ongoing British treaties. At Independence rulers of several of these states had yet to decide whether they were going to join India or Pakistan. Nehru's able deputy prime minister, Sardar Vallabhai Patel, was made responsible for encouraging the rulers of the recalcitrant statelets to join the new India, including sending a detachment of Indian troops into the territory of the Muslim nizam of Hyderabad, who had resisted joining the union even though the majority of his state's population was Hindu. Some parts of the Subcontinent retained their independence for even longer. The French enclaves at Pondicherry and Chandernagar were not incorporated until the 1950s, while the Portuguese refused to accept the new situation, until in 1961 Nehru finally sent in the army to annex Goa.

The most serious legacy of Partition concerned the Himalayan state of Kashmir. At Independence, Kashmir's Hindu Maharaja Hari Singh remained undecided as to which of the two new countries he wished to join. Jinnah naturally assumed Kashmir would join Pakistan, given that three-quarters of its inhabitants were Muslim; Nehru was equally determined to keep it for India. Meanwhile, the maharaja continued to prevaricate. Events reached a head in October 1947, when Islamic partisans from Pakistan's tribal areas suddenly arrived in the Kashmir valley to encourage the maharaja to join with Pakistan. Hari Singh, fearing he was about to be overthrown, immediately determined to join India instead. Shortly afterwards Indian troops were airlifted into the valley, and began to battle with the Islamic insurgents. Although war was never officially declared, and no regular Pakistani military units were involved, the fighting is usually described as the First Indo-Pakistan War. By the time the UN brokered a ceasefire in 1948, Pakistani insurgents had secured a sizeable slice of Kashmiri territory, which Pakistan retains to this day.

Elsewhere in the region, Nehru attempted to promote Asian unity by following a policy of peaceful nonalignment, although this was repeatedly threatened by Chinese aggression. The Chinese invasion of Tibet in 1950 brought the Chinese right up to India's border (and a flood of refugees into India itself, including the Dalai Lama, who arrived in 1959), while in 1962 Chinese troops brushed aside Indian border patrols and began to move down into Assam. This "invasion" (although it was really more a show of force) ended soon afterwards, and while the humiliating inability of the Indian army to repel the interlopers did not officially spell the end of India's policy of nonalignment, Nehru immediately signed a defence treaty with the US, and the Chinese retained small areas of Indian territory in Kashmir and Assam which they still hold.

Indira Gandhi (1966–84)

In 1946, the whole nation mourned Nehru's death which prevented him from witnessing the restoration of India's military prestige in the Second Indo-Pakistan War of 1965. Pakistani leader General Ayub Khan, perhaps wishing to test the resolve of new Indian premier Lal Bahadur Shastri, launched a series of skirmishes into disputed areas of Gujarat, and followed this up with attempts to infiltrate Kashmir and provoke a pro-Pakistani uprising. Full-scale fighting broke out in Kashmir and to the south, and the Indian army responded by driving Pakistani forces back to within 5km of a virtually defenceless Lahore before a ceasefire was agreed, with both sides returning to their previous borders. Despite this triumph, Lal Bahadur Shastri died shortly afterwards, in January 1966, leaving Nehru's daughter Indira Gandhi to establish herself as the new leader of Congress.

The 49-year-old Indira – or “Mrs Gandhi”, as she is often called (though no relation to the Mahatma; she acquired her surname through marriage to a Parsi named Feroze Gandhi, who had died in 1960) – was initially chosen as a popular but easily manipulated figurehead by Congress chiefs. Gandhi herself had different plans. She moved rapidly to shore up her own power, and then – after consolidating her mandate in fresh elections in 1971 – launched Congress along a populist socialist path, nationalizing the banks, abolishing the former maharajas' privy purses, and introducing new legislation on corporate profits and land holdings. By this time, India was experiencing massive industrial growth and had also made a spectacular agricultural breakthrough with its Green Revolution, becoming self-sufficient in food by the early 1970s thanks to the introduction of high-yield grains.

Gandhi also had to deal with the increasingly chaotic situation in East Pakistan (present-day Bangladesh), which had declared independence from (West) Pakistan in 1971. Pakistani troops had been sent in to bring the East Pakistanis back into line, causing a mass exodus of refugees into India. Gandhi astutely waited until she had the moral support of the international community before launching -simultaneous attacks in West and East Pakistan on December 4. By December 15, Pakistani forces in Bangladesh had capitulated.

Back at home, Gandhi was proving less successful. After widespread agrarian and industrial unrest against the rate of inflation and corruption within the Congress Party, she declared a State of Emergency on June 26, 1975, suspending all civil rights, censoring the press and imprisoning some twenty thousand of her opponents, real or imagined. The “Emergency” lasted eighteen months, characterized by the enforced sterilization of millions of men from deprived communities and brutal slum-clearances in Delhi and elsewhere. When she finally released her opponents and called off the Emergency in January 1977, the bitterness she had engendered resulted in her ignominious defeat in the March elections. The ensuing Janata coalition under Morarji Desai fell apart within two years, and his premiership was terminated by a vote of no confidence in 1979. Gandhi, now apparently forgiven, swept back into office in January 1980.

Four years afterwards, Gandhi made the second, fatal, mistake of her career. A group of rebels demanding a separate Sikh nation – Khalistan – took control of the Golden Temple in Amritsar early in 1984, from where they organized a campaign of violence, killing hundreds of Hindus and moderate Sikhs. Gandhi sent in the tanks in June 1984, but two days of raging combat desecrated the Sikhs' holiest shrine as well as giving Khalistan its first martyrs. In October that year, Gandhi's Sikh bodyguards took revenge by assassinating her at her house in Delhi. The city was then engulfed in massive communal rioting, during which Hindu mobs went about Delhi systematically murdering Sikhs – according to some reports locating their victims with the help of electoral rolls supplied by Congress politicians.

Communal conflict (1984–95)

Following Gandhi's death, it was left to her sole surviving son, Rajiv Gandhi (a former pilot), to take up leadership of Congress. He came to power in December 1984 on a wave of sympathy boosted by his reputation as “Mr Clean”, an image given added meaning by the Bhopal gas tragedy just two weeks before the elections. The opposition subsequently rallied under the leadership of V.P. Singh. Elections in 1989 did not give Singh's Janata Party a majority, but he managed to form a coalition government with the support of the “Hindu first” Bharatiya Janata Party, or BJP, led by L.K. Advani.

Singh was immediately confronted by problems in the Punjab and Kashmir, but it was an even more emotive issue that brought down his government in less than a year. Advani's populist BJP were demanding that the Babri Masjid mosque in Ayodhya, built by Babur on the supposed site of the birthplace of Rama, god-hero of the Ramayana, should be replaced by a Hindu temple. Advani set off towards Ayodhya in October 1990, accompanied by thousands of supporters, with the avowed intention of destroying the mosque. Singh ordered Advani's arrest, and the inevitable withdrawal of the BJP from his coalition government resulted in a vote of no confidence.

New elections were called. Shortly afterwards, while campaigning in Tamil Nadu in May 1991, Rajiv Gandhi was assassinated by Tamil Tigers seeking revenge for India's military opposition to their “freedom fight” in Sri Lanka. It was left to P.V. Narasimha Rao to steer Congress through the elections and form a new coalition government, which immediately embarked on a far-reaching programme of economic liberalization, dismantling trade barriers and allowing Western multinationals to enter the Indian market for the first time.

At the same time, the BJP increased its seats in the Lok Sabha (the Lower House of Parliament) from eighty to 120 and Advani became leader of the opposition, amid growing popular support for the rebuilding of Rama's temple in Ayodhya. The situation finally came to a head in December 1992, as Hindu extremists incited crowds of fanatical devotees to tear down the Babri Masjid at Ayodhya in a blaze of publicity. The demolition was followed by terrible riots in many parts of the country, especially Bombay and Gujarat, where Muslim families and businesses were targeted. A few months later, a massive series of bomb blasts ripped through Bombay, killing 260 people and destroying some of the city's most important commercial buildings. No one claimed responsibility, though the attacks were thought to have been orchestrated by Islamic groups in retaliation for Hindu violence against their fellow Muslims.

Against this backdrop of uncertainty, the rise of right-wing Hindu--fundamentalist parties gathered pace. The BJP took advantage of the power struggle in the Congress Party to rekindle regional support. Their new rallying cry was Swadeshi – a campaign against the Congress-led programme of economic liberalization and, in particular, the activities of newly arrived companies such as Coca-Cola, Pepsi and KFC.

The rise of the BJP (1996–2004)

The BJP emerged from the general election of May 1996 as the single largest party but were unable to muster a majority and were ousted a couple of weeks later by the hastily formed Unified Front (UF) coalition. The UF soldiered on until March 1998, after which the BJP finally struggled to power as the head of a new conservative coalition government under Atal Bihari Vajpayee.

This time, the party managed to stay in office for thirteen months, as opposed to the thirteen days of its previous spell in government. The BJP had promised change and the restoration of national pride, and one of its early acts in government was to conduct five underground nuclear tests in May 1998, provoking Pakistan to respond in kind. There was a chorus of world criticism, and US-led financial sanctions were imposed on both nations.

Ongoing tensions in Kashmir did little to calm local and international fears. In May 1999, at least eight hundred Pakistani-backed mujahedeen crept across the so-called Line of Control (the de facto border) overlooking the Srinagar–Leh road near Kargil and began to occupy Indian territory. India moved thousands of troops into the area, and within days the two countries were poised on the brink of all-out war. In the event the conflict was contained, and by July 1999 the Indian army had retaken all the ground previously lost to the militants.

Shortly afterwards, the Congress Party, reinvigorated under the leadership of Sonia Gandhi, the Italian-born widow of the former prime minister Rajiv, collaborated with the Jayalalitha's AIADMK to bring about the downfall of the BJP government. At the start of the campaign, Congress hopes were high that, with a Gandhi once again as party leader, it could revive the popular support lost after years of infighting and corruption scandals. Unfortunately for them, the wave of patriotism that swept India after the Kargil victory in Kashmir was a godsend for Vajpayee (cynics argued it may well have been the hidden policy behind the army's uncompromising response to the crisis). Riding high on the feel-good factor, his party inflicted the biggest defeat Congress had sustained since 1947.

At the end of 2000, Vajpayee announced the creation of three new states: Jharkhand, Chhattisgarh and Uttaranchal (later changing its name to Uttarakhand), carved out of Bihar, Madhya Pradesh and Uttar Pradesh respectively.

Meanwhile, the wider world started to become aware of India's burgeoning high-tech revolution, centred at first on Bangalore which, by the mid-1990s had become a major player in the international software market. Its pre-eminence was challenged at the turn of the millennium by the even more spectacular emergence of Hyderabad (nicknamed "Cyberabad"), and more recently by Delhi's satellite cities of Gurgaon and Noida. Unfortunately, the rural poor see little of this newly generated wealth, exacerbating the wealth gap, which commentators quickly christened the "digital divide".

To the brink of war

During late 2001, Indo-Pak relations and the Kashmiri question returned to the fore as India entered one of the most volatile periods in its history. In October, the State Assembly building in Srinagar was destroyed by Islamist suicide car-bombers, and then in December, three Muslim gunmen stormed the Parliament Building in New Delhi, killing several police guards before they were picked off by army marksmen. Pakistani involvement was inevitably suspected. Then, in early 2002, a Muslim mob in Godhra, Gujarat, attacked a trainload of Hindu activists returning from Ayodhya: 38 died and 74 were injured. In the reprisal killings that followed, around two thousand people (mostly Muslims) were slaughtered.

Anti-Muslim sentiment was further fuelled only a month later when an Islamist suicide squad commandeered a tourist bus and used it to attack the Kaluchak army cantonment near Jammu. Coming hot on the heels of yet another promise by Pakistan to clamp down on cross-border militancy, the atrocity provoked outrage in Delhi. Vajpayee, bowing to the hawks on the right of his party, called for a “decisive battle”, initiating a massive build-up of troops on the border. An estimated million men at arms were involved in the ensuing standoff as India and Pakistan edged to the brink of war, until US diplomacy diffused the crisis.

In 2003, the Archaeological Survey of India released its long-awaited report on Ayodhya. To no one’s surprise, the ASI panel of “experts”, appointed by the BJP government, declared they’d found evidence to show there had been a temple, in effect condoning the tearing down of the mosque.

The return of Congress (2004–2014)

Despite continuing sectarian troubles, with India booming as never before, Vajpayee and his BJP-led coalition decided to cash in on the perceived feel-good factor and call a snap election in May 2004. Congress gained the largest share of the vote and Sonia Gandhi was duly invited to form a government, but stunned supporters by “humbly declining” the invitation and stepping down. Former finance minister, 71-year-old Manmohan Singh, stepped into the breach and was named as prime minister, the first Sikh to lead the country. As the architect of the important liberalizing economic reforms enacted during the early 1990s, Singh seemed like the perfect candidate to oversee India’s continuing economic and technological growth. In April 2007 the country launched its first commercial space rocket, and the following month saw the government announce the strongest economic growth figures (an impressive 9.4 percent) for twenty years.

Terrorist violence continued to plague the country, however. A series of bomb attacks in 2005–2007 culminated in November 2008 with the “26/11” coordinated assaults by Pakistani gunmen in Mumbai, who murdered 164 people. Images of the burning Taj Palace hotel and the blood-spattered concourse of CST station were beamed live around the world, producing global outrage, and raising questions about India’s security.

Elections in 2009 were won by a Congress-led coalition, with Manmohan Singh becoming the first Indian leader since Nehru in 1952 to be returned directly to power after a five-year term. At the end of the year, the government announced that it would agree to the secession of a new state, Telangana, from Andhra Pradesh. Strong opposition delayed the move, but in 2014 Andhra Pradesh was formally split and Telangana became India’s 29th state.

Meanwhile, a series of corruption scandals emerged in 2010–11 (notably around India’s hosting of the Commonwealth Games), and undermined confidence in the administration. Protests at the abysmal standards in public life and regular misappropriation of government funds coalesced around a social activist from Maharashtra, Anna Hazare, who staged a series of high-profile, Gandhian-style hunger strikes to lobby for a strengthening of anti-corruption legislation. A watered-down anti-corruption law in 2011 took the sting out of the movement but the plight of India’s poor, the big losers in every government corruption case, remained centre-stage in 2012, as more than a hundred thousand peasant farmers marched to Delhi from all over the country to lobby for greater land rights.

Fears over India’s faltering economy dominated the news in late 2012, as growth rates remained stubbornly sluggish at just over 6 percent. Those who identified corruption and government inefficiency as the culprits felt vindicated after a massive electricity blackout in July paralyzed the country, leaving 700 million people without power.

The yawning gulf between middle-class-urban and rural-peasant India was underlined by the Delhi rape case in 2012, when a young student died after being brutally gang raped on a bus. Galvanized by the atrocity, people poured on to the streets protesting at police indifference to sexual violence and poor treatment generally of women in India. Demonstrations across the country garnered worldwide media attention. Yet when, just weeks later, the bodies of three young girls were discovered in a Maharashtra village well, a veil of silence seemed to fall over the Indian media. Only after local mothers blocked the national highway did the police mount an investigation, in the course of which tests proved the girls had been raped before being murdered.

Return of the BJP (2014–)

The general election of 2014 resulted in a landslide victory for the BJP, led by former – and controversial – Gujarat chief minister Narendra Modi, who now became prime minister. The anti-corruption movement had largely fizzled out, although the Aam Aadmi Party that arose out of it did well in Delhi and the Punjab. Seen as more business-friendly than Congress, the BJP launched initiatives such as the Digital India programme, designed to roll out internet access and increase the number of IT industry jobs. Falling oil prices helped the Indian economy, and a slowdown in China from the end of 2015 allowed India to outstrip its neighbour in economic growth, keeping it on course to become the world's third largest economy (after the US and China) by around 2035. The fall in inflation enabled the national government to cut subsidies on energy and agriculture, but for the poor, life remained hard. The following year, in a surprise move, the government controversially withdrew ₹500 and ₹1000 notes from circulation. Ministers claimed this would help to tackle corruption, yet all it seemed to do was spark chaos. In 2017, the government quietly admitted that economic growth had slowed as a result (though it remained at a healthy 7.5 percent in 2018).

In May 2019, the BJP won another landslide victory at the general election, increasing their majority in the Lok Sabha (parliament's lower house), from 282 to 303. In doing so, Narendra Modi became the first Indian prime minister since 1971 to win a single-party majority at two consecutive elections. The failure of the Indian National Congress to secure a minimum ten percent of the seats in the Lok Sabha means that India is without an official opposition party. The turnout was over 67 percent, the highest in the country's history; a record number of women participated in the elections too. With over 900 million people eligible to vote, the 2019 Indian general elections were – in theory – the largest democratic exercise in history.

Along with the rest of the world, India was severely affected by the coronavirus pandemic that started in early 2020. Surprisingly, given the cramped and crowded conditions most people live in and the rather haphazard imposition of restrictions, the virus took quite a long time to take hold and by the time the pandemic subsided, the country had suffered far fewer deaths per capita than more industrialised nations. In November 2020 there were massive protests by farmers against the government's reforms in the sector, which were ostensibly designed to help them but in reality removed support structures and rendered them vulnerable to multinational agro-businesses.

At the time of writing there were the first signs of potential trouble for the BJP ahead of general elections in 2024. After an ostensible victory for the increasingly autocratic PM when former Congress leader Rahul Gandhi was expelled from parliament for allegedly defaming Modi in March 2023, a couple of months later Congress captured the bellweather Karnataka Assembly from the BJP, leaving them in control of no states in the south of the country.

In general, despite the strength of the economy – GDP was expected to grow by 6.4 percent in 2023 – and a burgeoning middle-class, grinding poverty continues to blight the lives of millions in rural and urban India, although rates are declining: those considered to be living in poverty were down to 16.4 percent by 2021. This is far from the only challenge the country faces, however. The rise of the BJP has been accompanied by increasing sectarian sentiment – and sometimes violence – directed largely against Muslims, but also against other religious minorities, most notably Christians, as well as secular voices, human rights activists and journalists. And while the Telangana question may have been settled, agitation for statehood and secession continues in several areas, including Kashmir, North Bengal and the Northeast, while the Naxalite (Maoist guerrilla) insurgency across central India, though reduced to some extent, has not gone away. Gender inequality is also a huge problem, and sex-selective abortions are actually most prevalent in affluent states such as Haryana. Among the country's urban middle classes, the status of women, both at home and in the workplace has improved greatly since Independence, but in rural areas the lot of women has improved little, with domestic violence and rape still horrifyingly commonplace and rarely punished. One positive piece of news, however, has been in the realm of LGBTQ rights, with a landmark

Supreme Court ruling in September 2018 overturning a colonial-era ban on homosexuality.

Meanwhile, the always volatile relationship with Pakistan is a source of uncertainty, and the threat from Islamic militants remains alive and well. Tensions between the two countries threatened to boil over into all-out war during a tense stand-off in early 2019, but the situation was eventually diffused. Relations with another neighbour, Nepal, were blighted by what the Nepalis saw as an economic blockade of the country by Modi's administration. Increasingly, Nepal is turning to China for help. Add frequent natural disasters attributed to climate change into the mix, such as the 2021 floods in Uttarakhand and the 2022 landslides in Manipur, and India does sometimes seem to be teetering on the brink.

Consequently, India's economic boom, far from alleviating the plight of the poorest, seems only to have increased disparities in wealth. Whether the country can continue to evolve at its present pace and achieve its longed-for position on the global stage will be determined not merely by the power of its economy, but also by the extent to which it is able to balance the needs of rich and poor, and curb the corruption endemic in public life. The nation uttered a collective gasp when notorious gangster politician Atiq Ahmed and his brother were gunned down on live TV in April 2023. Whether the state can meet these challenges, along with those of sectarian strife, secessionism and gender inequality remains to be seen, but it is nonetheless apparent that, in the long term, and despite the serious challenges it faces, India is still on the up.

< Back to Context

Religion Four out of five Indians are Hindus, and Hinduism permeates every aspect of life in the country, from the commonplace details of daily life up to national politics. After Hindus, Muslims are the largest religious group, and have been an integral part of Indian society since the twelfth century. The more recently established Sikh faith was founded in reaction to the caste laws and ritual observances of Hinduism and now boasts millions of adherents. The far older Jain religion also still commands a sizeable following, and there are also small communities of Buddhists, Christians, Iranian-descended Zoroastrians, or Parsis, together with more than two million members of the Baha'í Faith.

Hinduism Hinduism is the product of several thousand years of evolution and assimilation. It has no founder or prophet, no single creed, and no single prescribed practice or doctrine; it takes in hundreds of gods, goddesses, beliefs and practices, and widely variant cults and philosophies. Some are recognized by only two or three villages, others are popular right across the Subcontinent. Hindus call their beliefs and practices dharma, which defines a way of living in harmony with natural and moral law while fulfilling personal goals and meeting the requirements of society.

The Vedic age The origins of Hinduism date back to the arrival of the Aryans. The Aryans believed in a number of gods associated with the elements, including Agni, the god of fire, Surya, the sun god, and Indra, the chief god. Most of these deities faded in importance in later times, but Indra is still regarded as the father of the gods, and Surya was widely worshipped until the medieval period.

Aryan religious beliefs were first set down in a series of four books, the Vedas (from the Sanskrit word veda, meaning “knowledge”). Transmitted orally for centuries, the Vedas were finally written down, in Sanskrit, between 1000 BC and 500 AD. The earliest and most important of the four Vedas, the Rig Veda, contains more than a thousand hymns to various deities, while the other three (the Yajur Veda, Sama Veda and Atharva Veda) contain further prayers, chants and instructions for performing the complex sacrificial rituals associated with this early Vedic religion.

The Vedas were followed by further religious texts, including the Brahmanas, a series of commentaries on the Vedas for the use of priests (brahmins) and, more importantly, the Upanishads, which describe in beautiful and emotive verse the mystic experience of unity of the soul (atman) with Brahma, the absolute creator of the universe, ideally attained through asceticism, renunciation of worldly values and meditation. In the Upanishads the concepts of samsara, a cyclic round of death and rebirth characterized by suffering and perpetuated by desire, and moksha, liberation from samsara, became firmly rooted. As fundamental aspects of the Hindu world view, both are accepted by all but a handful of Hindus today, along with the belief in karma, the certainty that one's present position in society is determined by the effect of one's previous actions in this and past lives.

Hindu society The stratification of Hindu society is rooted in the Dharma Sutras, a further collection of scriptures written at roughly the same time as the later Vedas. These defined four hierarchical classes, or varnas (from varna, meaning “colour”, perhaps a reference to difference in appearance between the lighter-skinned Aryans and the darker indigenous Dravidian population). Each varna was assigned specific religious and social duties, with Aryans established as the highest social class. In descending order the varnas are: brahmins (priests and teachers), kshatriyas (rulers and warriors), vaishyas (merchants and cultivators) and shudras (menials). The first three classes, known as “twice-born”, are distinguished by a sacred thread worn from the time of initiation, and are granted full access to religious texts and rituals. Below all four categories, groups whose jobs involve contact with dirt or death (such as undertakers, leather-workers and cleaners) were classified as untouchables or dalits (dalit meaning oppressed). Though discrimination against dalits is now a criminal offence, in part thanks to the campaigns of Mahatma Gandhi, they continue to face extreme prejudice.

THE MAHABHARATA AND THE RAMAYANA EIGHT TIMES AS LONG AS THE ILIAD AND ODYSSEY COMBINED, THE MAHABHARATA WAS WRITTEN AROUND 400 AD AND TELLS OF A FEUDING KSHATRIYA FAMILY IN NORTHERN INDIA DURING THE FOURTH MILLENNIUM BC. THE CHIEF CHARACTER IS ARJUNA, WHO, WITH HIS FOUR BROTHERS, REPRESENTS THE PANDAVA CLAN, SUPREME FIGHTERS AND UPHOLDERS OF RIGHTEOUSNESS. THE PANDAVA CLAN ARE RESENTED BY THEIR COUSINS, THE EVIL KAURAVAS, LED BY DURYODHANA, THE ELDEST SON OF DHRTARASHTRA, RULER OF THE KURU KINGDOM.

When Dhrtarashtra hands his kingdom over to the Pandavas, the Kauravas are understandably less than overjoyed. The subsequent battle between the Pandavas and Kauravas is described in the sixth book, the famous Bhagavad Gita. Krishna steps into battle as Arjuna's charioteer. Arjuna is in a dilemma, unable to justify the killing of his own kin in pursuit of a rightful kingdom. Krishna consoles him, reminding him that his principal duty is as a warrior, and convincing him that by fulfilling his dharma he not only upholds law and order by saving the kingdom from the grasp of unrighteous rulers, he also serves the gods in the spirit of devotion and thus guarantees himself eternal union with the divine in the blissful state of moksha.

The Pandavas finally win the battle and Yudhishtira, one of the five Pandava brothers, is crowned king. Eventually Arjuna's grandson, Pariksit, inherits the throne, and the Pandavas trek to Mount Meru, the mythical centre of the universe and the abode of the gods, where Arjuna finds Krishna's promised moksha.

THE RAMAYANA THE RAMAYANA TELLS THE STORY OF RAMA, THE SEVENTH OF VISHNU'S EIGHT INCARNATIONS. RAMA IS THE OLDEST OF FOUR SONS

BORN TO DASARATHA, THE KING OF AYODHYA, AND HEIR TO THE THRONE. WHEN THE TIME COMES FOR RAMA'S CORONATION, DASARATHA'S SCHEMING THIRD WIFE KAIKEYI HAS HER OWN SON BHARATA CROWNED INSTEAD, AND HAS RAMA BANISHED TO THE FOREST FOR FOURTEEN YEARS. IN AN EXEMPLARY SHOW OF FILIAL PIETY, RAMA ACCEPTS THE LOSS OF HIS THRONE AND LEAVES THE CITY WITH HIS WIFE SITA AND BROTHER LAKSMANA.

One day, Suparnakhi, the sister of the demon Ravana, spots Rama in the woods and instantly falls in love with him. Being a virtuous husband, Rama rebuffs her advances, while Laksmana cuts off her nose and ears in retaliation. In revenge, Ravana kidnaps Sita, who is borne away to one of Ravana's palaces on the island of Lanka.

Determined to find Sita, Rama enlists the help of the monkey god Hanuman, and the two of them gather an army and prepare to attack. After much fighting, Sita is rescued and reunited with her husband. On the long journey back to Ayodhya, Sita's honour is brought into question. To prove her innocence, she asks Laksmana to build a funeral pyre and steps into the flames, praying to Agni, the fire god. Agni walks her through the fire into the arms of a delighted Rama. They march into Ayodhya guided by a trail of lights laid out by the local people. Today, this illuminated homecoming is commemorated by Hindus all over the world during Diwali, the festival of lights. At the end of the epic, Rama's younger brother gladly steps down, allowing Rama to be crowned as the rightful king.

Within the four varnas, social status is further defined by jati, classifying each individual in terms of their family and job (for example, a vaishya may be a jewellery seller, cloth merchant, cowherd or farmer). A person's jati determines his caste, and lays restrictions on all aspects of life from what sort of food he can eat, religious obligations and contact with other castes, to the choice of marriage partners. There are almost three thousand jatis; the divisions and restrictions they have enforced have repeatedly been the target of reform movements and critics.

A Hindu has three aims in life: to fulfil his social and religious duties (dharma); to follow the correct path in his work and actions (karma); and to gain material wealth (artha). These goals are linked with the four traditional stages in life. The first is as a child and student, devoted to learning from parents and guru. Next comes the stage of householder, expected to provide for a family and raise children. That accomplished, he may then take up a life of celibacy and retreat into the forest to meditate alone, and finally renounce all possessions to become a homeless ascetic, hoping to achieve the ultimate goal of moksha. The small number of Hindus who follow this ideal life assume the final stage as saffron-clad sadhus who wander throughout India, begging for food and retreating to isolated caves, forests and hills to meditate. They're a common feature in most Indian towns and many stay for long periods in particular temples. Not all have raised families: some assume the life of a sadhu at an early age as chellas, pupils of an older sadhu.

The main deities Alongside the Vedas and Upanishads, the most important Hindu religious texts are the Puranas – long mythological stories about the Vedic gods – and the two great epics, the Mahabharata and Ramayana, thought to have been completed by the first century AD, though subsequently retold, modified and embellished on numerous occasions and in various different regional languages. The Puranas and the two great epics helped crystallize the basic framework of Hindu religious belief, which survives to this day, based on a supreme triumvirate of deities. Brahma, the original Aryan godhead, or “creator”, was joined by two gods who had begun to achieve increasing significance in the evolving Hindu world-view. The first, Vishnu, “the preserver”, was seen as the force responsible for maintaining the balance of the cosmos whenever it was threatened by disruptive forces, incarnating himself on earth nine times in various animal and human forms, or avatars, to fight the forces of evil and chaos, most famously as Rama (the god-hero whose exploits are described in the Ramayana) and as Krishna (who appears at the most significant juncture of the Mahabharata). The second, Shiva, “the destroyer” (a development of the Aryan god Rudra, who had played a minor role in the Vedas), was charged with destroying and renewing the universe at periodic intervals, though his powers are not merely destructive, and he is worshipped in myriad forms with various attributes. The three supreme gods are often depicted in a trinity, or trimurti, though in time Brahma’s importance declined, and Shiva and Vishnu became the most popular deities – the famous Brahma temple at Pushkar is now one of the few in India dedicated to this venerable but rather esoteric god.

Depicted in human or semi-human form and accompanied by an animal “vehicle”, other gods and goddesses who came alive in the mythology of the Puranas are still venerated across India. River goddesses, ancestors, guardians of particular places and protectors against disease and natural disaster are as central to village life as the major deities.

Practice and pilgrimage In most Hindu homes, a chosen deity is worshipped daily in a shrine room. Outside the home, worship takes place in temples and consists of puja – sometimes a simple act of prayer, but more commonly a complex process when the god’s image is circumambulated, offered flowers, rice, sugar and incense, and anointed with water, milk or sandalwood paste (which is usually done on behalf of the devotee by the temple priest). The aim in puja is to take darshan – glimpse the god – and thus receive his or her blessing. Worshippers leave the temple with prasad, an offering of food or flowers taken from the holy sanctuary. Temple ceremonies are conducted by priests who tend the image in daily rituals in which the god is symbolically woken, bathed, fed, dressed and, at the end of each day, put back to bed. In many villages, shrines to devatas, village deities who function as protectors, are more important than temples.

HINDU GODS AND GODDESSES VISHNU WITH FOUR ARMS HOLDING A CONCH, DISCUS, LOTUS AND MACE, VISHNU IS BLUE-SKINNED, AND OFTEN SHADED BY A SERPENT, OR RESTING ON ITS COILS, AFLOAT ON AN OCEAN. HE IS USUALLY SEEN ALONGSIDE HIS HALF-MAN-HALF-EAGLE VEHICLE, GARUDA. VAISHNAVITES, OFTEN DISTINGUISHABLE BY TWO VERTICAL LINES OF PASTE ON THEIR FOREHEADS, RECOGNIZE VISHNU AS SUPREME LORD, AND HOLD THAT HE HAS MANIFESTED HIMSELF ON EARTH NINE TIMES. THE MOST IMPORTANT AVATARS ARE RAMA AND KRISHNA, THE HERO OF THE BHAGAVAD GITA. THE CULT OF KRISHNA EVOLVED INTO THE POPULAR BHAKTI MOVEMENT – THE ATTEMPT TO ACHIEVE MOKSHA THROUGH DEVOTION TO GOD, AND WITHOUT THE INTERCESSION OF OFFICIATING BRAHMIN PRIESTS, FINDING EXPRESSION IN EMOTIONAL SONGS CONCERNING THE QUEST FOR UNION WITH THE DIVINE. KRISHNA IS REPRESENTED IN VARIOUS WAYS: MOST POPULARLY HE IS SHOWN AS THE PLAYFUL COWHERD WHO SEDUCES AND DANCES WITH COWGIRLS (GOPIS), GIVING EACH THE ILLUSION THAT SHE IS HIS ONLY LOVER. HE IS ALSO PICTURED AS A SMALL, CHUBBY, MISCHIEVOUS BABY, KNOWN FOR HIS BUTTER-STEALING EXPLOITS. LIKE VISHNU, KRISHNA IS BLUE, AND OFTEN SHOWN DANCING AND PLAYING THE FLUTE.

SHIVA SHAIIVISM, THE CULT OF SHIVA, WAS ALSO INSPIRED BY BHAKTI, REQUIRING SELFLESS LOVE FROM DEVOTEES IN A QUEST FOR DIVINE COMMUNION, BUT SHIVA HAS NEVER BEEN INCARNATE ON EARTH. HE IS PRESENTED IN MANY DIFFERENT ASPECTS, SUCH AS NATARAJA, LORD OF THE DANCE, MAHADEV, GREAT GOD, AND MAHESHVAR, DIVINE LORD, SOURCE OF ALL KNOWLEDGE. THOUGH HE DOES HAVE SEVERAL TERRIBLE FORMS, HIS ROLE EXTENDS BEYOND THAT OF DESTROYER, AND HE IS REVERED AS THE SOURCE OF THE WHOLE UNIVERSE.

Shiva is often depicted with four or more faces, holding a trident, draped with serpents, and bearing a third eye in his forehead. In temples, he is identified with the lingam, or phallic symbol, resting in the yoni, a representation of female sexuality. Whether as statue or lingam, Shiva is accompanied by his bull-mount, Nandi, and often by a consort, who also assumes various forms, and is looked upon as the vital energy, shakti, that empowers him.

While Shiva is the object of popular devotion all over India, as the terrible Bhairav he is also the god of the Shaivite ascetics, who renounce family and caste ties and perform extreme meditative and yogic practices.

OTHER GODS AND GODDESSES CHUBBY AND SMILING, ELEPHANT-HEADED GANESH, THE FIRST SON OF SHIVA AND PARVATI, IS INVOKED BEFORE EVERY UNDERTAKING (EXCEPT FUNERALS). SEATED ON A THRONE OR LOTUS, HIS IMAGE IS OFTEN PLACED ABOVE TEMPLE GATEWAYS, IN SHOPS AND HOUSES; IN HIS FOUR ARMS HE HOLDS A CONCH, DISCUS, BOWL OF SWEETS (OR CLUB) AND A WATER LILY, AND HE'S ALWAYS ATTENDED BY HIS VEHICLE, A RAT. GANESH IS REGARDED BY MANY AS THE GOD OF LEARNING, THE LORD OF SUCCESS, PROSPERITY AND PEACE.

Durga, the fiercest of the female deities, is an aspect of Shiva's more conservative consort, Parvati (also known as Uma), who is remarkable only for her beauty and fidelity. Among Durga's many aspects, each a terrifying goddess eager to slay demons, are Chamunda, Kali and Muktakeshi, but in all her forms she is Mahadevi (Great Goddess). Statues show her with ten arms, holding the head of a demon, a spear and other weapons; she tramples demons underfoot, or dances upon Shiva's body.

The comely goddess Lakshmi, Vishnu's consort, is usually shown sitting or standing on a lotus flower, and sometimes called Padma (lotus). Lakshmi is the embodiment of loveliness and grace, and the goddess of prosperity and wealth. She appears in different aspects alongside each of Vishnu's avatars, including Sita, wife of Rama, and Radha, Krishna's favourite gopi. In many temples she is shown as one with Vishnu, in the form of Lakshmi Narayan.

India's great monkey god, Hanuman, features in the Ramayana as Rama's chief aide in the fight against the demon-king of Lanka. Depicted as a giant monkey clasping a mace, Hanuman is seen as Rama and Sita's greatest devotee – as his representatives, monkeys find sanctuary in temples all over India.

The most beautiful Hindu goddess, Saraswati, the wife of Brahma, sits or stands on a water lily or peacock, playing a lute, sitar or vina. She is revered as the goddess of music, creativity and learning.

Closely linked with the planet Saturn, Shani is feared for his destructive powers. His image, a black statue with protruding blood-red tongue, is often found on street corners; strings of green chillies and lemon are hung in shops and houses each Saturday (Saniwar) to ward off his evil influences.

Strict rules address purity and pollution, the most obvious of them requiring high-caste Hindus to limit their contact with potentially polluting lower castes. Above all else, water is the agent of purification, used in ablutions before prayer and revered in all rivers, especially Ganga (the Ganges). Ghats, steps leading to the water's edge, are common in all river- or lakeside towns, used for bathing, washing clothes and performing religious rituals.

India also has a wealth of pilgrimage sites visited by devotees eager to receive darshan and attain merit.

Islam Muslims – some fourteen percent of the population – form a significant presence in almost every town, city and village. The belief in only one god, Allah, the condemnation of idol worship and the observance of their own strict dietary laws and specific festivals all set Muslims apart from their Hindu neighbours, with whom they have coexisted, not always peacefully, for centuries.

The first Muslims to settle in India were traders who arrived on the southwest coast in the seventh century. Much more significant was the invasion of north India under Mahmud of Ghazni, while more raids from Central Asia followed in the twelfth century, resulting in the partial colonization of India, while the invading Muslims set themselves up in Delhi as sultans.

Many Muslims who settled in India intermarried with Hindus, Buddhists and Jains, and the community spread. A further factor in its growth was missionary activity by Sufis, who stressed the attainment of inner knowledge of God through meditation and mystical experience. Their use of music, particularly qawwali singing, and dance, shunned by orthodox Muslims, appealed to Hindus, for whom singing played an important role in religious practice. Muslims are enjoined to pray five times daily. They may do this at home or in a mosque – always full at noon on Friday, for communal prayer (the only exception being the Druze of Mumbai, who hold communal prayers on Thursday).

The position of women in Islam is a subject of great debate. It's customary for women to be veiled – though in larger cities many women don't cover their heads – and in strictly orthodox communities most wear a burqa, usually black, that covers them from head to toe. Like other Indian women, Muslim women take second place to men in public, but in the home they wield great influence. Contrary to popular belief, polygamy is not widespread and, while it does occur, several sects actually stress monogamy as a duty. In marriage, women receive a dowry as financial security.

Buddhism Buddhism was born on the Indian Subcontinent, developing as an offshoot of – and a reaction to – Hinduism, with which it shares many assumptions about the nature of existence. For a time it became the dominant religion in the country, though from around the fourth century AD onwards it was gradually eclipsed by a resurgent Hinduism (which cleverly re-appropriated the Buddha, claiming him to be an incarnation of Vishnu), and the subsequent arrival of Islam more or less finished it off. Today Buddhists make up only a tiny fraction of the population – outside north India's numerous Tibetan refugee camps, only Ladakh and Sikkim now preserve a significant Buddhist presence.

The founder of Buddhism, Siddhartha Gautama, known as the Buddha ("awakened one"), was born into a wealthy kshatriya family in Lumbini, north of the Gangetic plain in present-day Nepal, around 566 BC. Brought up in luxury as a prince, he married at an early age, but renounced family life when he was 30. Unsatisfied with the explanations of worldly suffering proposed by religious gurus, and convinced that asceticism did not lead to spiritual realization, Siddhartha spent years wandering the countryside and meditating. His enlightenment is said to have taken place under a bodhi tree in Bodhgaya (Bihar). Soon afterwards he gave his first sermon in Sarnath, near Varanasi. For the rest of his life he taught, expounding dharma, the true nature of the world, human life and spiritual attainment. Before his death (c.486 BC) in Kushinagara (UP), he had established the Sangha, a community of monks and nuns who continued his teachings.

The Buddha's world-view incorporated the Hindu concept of samsara, and karma and moksha, which Buddhists call nirvana (literally "no wind"). The most important concept outlined by the Buddha was that all things are subject to the inevitability of impermanence. There is no independent inherent self, due to the interconnectedness of all things, and our egos are the biggest obstacles on the road to enlightenment.

Tibetan Buddhism Buddhism was introduced to Tibet in the seventh century AD, and integrated to a certain extent with the indigenous Bon cult. Practised largely in Ladakh, along with parts of Himachal Pradesh and Sikkim, Tibetan Buddhism recognizes the historical Buddha alongside a host of other Buddhas past and to come, and incorporates elaborate rituals into its worship. There is also a heavy emphasis on teachers, known as lamas, and reincarnated teachers, known as tulkus. The Dalai Lama, the head of Tibetan Buddhism, is the fourteenth in a succession of incarnate bodhisattvas, the representative of Avalokitesvara (the bodhisattva of compassion), and the leader of the exiled Tibetan community based in Dharamsala. With as many as 150,000 Tibetan refugees now living in India, including the Dalai Lama and the Tibetan government in exile, Tibetan Buddhism is probably the most accessible and flourishing form of Buddhism in India, and there are numerous opportunities for study. Tibetan Buddhist devotees hang prayer flags, turn prayer wheels, and set stones carved with mantras (religious verses) in rivers, thus sending the word of the Buddha with wind and water to all corners of the earth.

Jainism The number of Jains in India is small – accounting for less than one percent of the population – but has been tremendously influential for at least 2500 years. A large proportion of Jains live in Gujarat, and all over India they are commonly found working as merchants and traders. Similarities to Hinduism, and a shared respect for nature and nonviolence, have contributed to the decline of the Jain community through conversion to Hinduism, but there is no antagonism between the two religions.

Focused on the practice of ahimsa (non-violence), Jains follow a rigorous discipline to avoid harm to all jivas, or “souls”, which exist in humans, animals, plants, water, fire, earth and air. They assert that every jiva is pure and capable of achieving liberation from existence in this universe. However, jivas are obscured by karma, a form of subtle matter that clings to the soul, which is born of action and binds the jiva to physical existence. For the most orthodox Jain, the only way to dissociate karma from the jiva is to follow the path of asceticism and meditation, rejecting passion, attachment and impure action.

The Jain doctrine is based upon the teachings of Mahavira, or “Great Hero”, the last in a succession of 24 tirthankaras (“crossing-makers”) said to appear on earth every 300 million years. Mahavira (c.599–527 BC) was born as Vardhamana Jnatrputra into a kshatriya family near modern Patna. Like his near-contemporary the Buddha, Mahavira rejected family life at the age of 30 and spent years wandering as an ascetic in an attempt to conquer attachment to worldly values.

His teachings were written down in the first millennium BC and Jainism prospered throughout India. Not long after, there was a schism. On the one hand the Digambaras (“sky-clad”) believed that nudity was an essential part of world renunciation, and that women are incapable of achieving liberation from worldly existence. The Svetambaras (“white-clad”), however, disregarded the extremes of nudity, incorporated nuns into monastic communities and even acknowledged a female tirthankara. Today the two sects worship at different temples, but the number of naked Digambaras is minimal. Many Svetambara monks and nuns wear white masks to avoid breathing in insects, and carry a “fly-whisk”, sometimes used to brush their path; none will use public transport and they often spend days or weeks walking barefoot to a pilgrimage site.

Sikhism Sikhism, India’s youngest religion, remains dominant in the Punjab, while its adherents have spread throughout northern India. The movement was founded by Guru Nanak (1469–1539), who was born into an orthodox Hindu kshatriya family near Lahore. Nanak was among many sixteenth-century poet-philosophers, sometimes referred to as sants, who formed emotional cults, drawing elements from both Hinduism and Islam. Nanak declared that “God is neither Hindu nor Muslim and the path which I follow is God’s”; he regarded God as Sat, or truth, who makes himself known through gurus. Though he condemned the rituals of brahmins, Nanak did not attack Islam or Hinduism – he simply regarded the many deities as names for one supreme God, and encouraged his followers to shift religious emphasis from ritual to meditation. In common with Hindus, Nanak believed in a cyclic process of death and rebirth (samsara), but asserted that liberation (moksha) was attainable in this life by all women and men regardless of caste, and that religious practice could and should be integrated into everyday practical living.

Guru Nanak was succeeded by Guru Angad, who continued to lead the community of Sikhs (literally, “disciples”), the so-called Sikh Panth, and wrote his own and Nanak’s hymns in a new script, Gurumukhi, which is today used as the script of written Punjabi. Eight further gurus successively led the Sikh Panth after Guru Angad’s death in 1552, gradually developing Sikhism into a powerful independent religious movement. Guru Ram Das (1552–74) founded the sacred city of Amritsar; his successor, Guru Arjan Dev, compiled the gurus’ hymns in a book called the Adi Granth, built the Golden Temple to house it and also became Sikhism’s first martyr when Jahangir executed him. Throughout their history, the Sikhs have had to battle to protect their faith and their people, especially against the Mughals; Aurangzeb had Guru Teg Bahadur beheaded in 1675, an event that heralded the era of his son and successor, Guru Gobind Singh, who was to revolutionize the entire movement.

Gobind Singh, the last leader, was largely responsible for moulding the community as it exists today. In 1699, he founded the brotherhood of the Khalsa. The aims of the Khalsa are to assist the poor and fight oppression; to have faith in one god and to abandon superstition and dogma; to worship god; and to protect the faith with steel. The Khalsa requires members to renounce tobacco, halal meat and sexual relations with Muslims, and to adopt the five Ks: kangha (comb), kirpan (sword), kara (steel bracelet), kachcha (short trousers) and kesh (unshorn hair) – the last requirement means that Sikh men are usually instantly recognizable thanks to their luxuriant beards and distinctive turbans. Less visibly, Guru Gobind Singh replaced traditional caste names with Singh for men (meaning “lion” – although this name is not unique to Sikhs, being a common Hindu surname as well) and Kaur (“princess”) for women. Finally, Guru Gobind Singh also compiled a standardized version of the Adi Granth, which contains the hymns of the first nine gurus as well as poems written by Hindus and Muslims, and installed it as his successor, naming it Guru Granth Sahib. This became the Sikh’s spiritual guide, while political authority rested with the Khalsa.

Demands for a separate Sikh state – Khalistan – and fighting in the eighteenth century, and later after Independence, have burdened Sikhs with a reputation as military activists, and their bravery and martial traditions mean that they continue to make up an important part of the Indian army. Despite this, Sikhs regard their religion as one devoted to egalitarianism, democracy and social awareness. Though to die fighting for the cause of religious freedom is considered to lead to liberation, the use of force is officially sanctioned only when other methods have failed.

Christianity The Apostle Thomas is said to have arrived in Kerala in 54 AD, and according to popular tradition the Church of San Thome is the oldest Christian denomination in the world, with many tales of miracles by “Mar Thoma”, as Thomas is known in Malayalam. According to tradition, Thomas was martyred in 72 AD at Mylapore in Madras. The tomb has since become a major place of pilgrimage, while the Portuguese added the Gothic San Thome Cathedral to the site in the late nineteenth century.

From the sixteenth century onwards, the history of the Church in India is linked to the spread of foreign Christians across the Subcontinent. In 1552, St Francis Xavier arrived in the Portuguese trading colony of Goa to establish missions to reach out to the Hindu “untouchables”. In 1559, at the behest of the Portuguese king, the Inquisition arrived in Goa. Jesuit missionaries carried out a bloody and brutal campaign to “cleanse” the small colony of Hindu and Muslim religious practice. Early British incomers took the attitude that the Subcontinent was a heathen and polytheistic civilization waiting to be proselytized and made significant numbers of converts – as Christianity is intended to be free of caste stigmas, it can be attractive to those seeking social advancement, and of the two million Christians in present-day India, most are adivasi (tribal) and dalit (untouchable) people.

The position of Christians in Indian society remains uncertain. In early 1999, Christian communities in some areas, notably in Gujarat and Orissa, were subject to forced “reconversions” and attacks. These were allegedly carried out by Hindu extremists incensed by proselytizing evangelists targeting low-caste Hindus. Following an international outcry, some states passed laws banning “forced conversions”, but in December 2002, a riot was only narrowly averted after police acted to prevent 1500 dalit people from attending a mass-conversion in Chennai.

The Hindu influence on Christianity remains marked, in any case, and in many churches you can see devotees offering the Hindu aarti (a plate of coconut, sweets and rice), and women wearing tilak dots on their foreheads. In the same way that Hindus and Muslims consider pilgrimage to be an integral part of life’s journey, Indian Christians have numerous devotional sites, including St Jude’s Shrine in Jhansi and the Temple of Mother Mary in Mathura. This sharing of traditions works both ways. At Christmas, for instance, you can’t fail to notice the brightly coloured paper stars and small Nativity scenes glowing and flashing outside schools, houses, shops and churches throughout India.

Zoroastrianism Of all India’s religious communities, Western visitors are least likely to come across – or recognize – Zoroastrians, who have no distinctive dress and few houses of worship. Most live in Mumbai, where they are known as Parsis (Persians) and are active in business, education and politics. Zoroastrian numbers – roughly ninety thousand – are rapidly dwindling due to a falling birth rate and absorption into wider communities.

The religion’s founder, Zarathustra (Zoroaster), lived in Iran around the sixth or seventh century BC, and was the first religious prophet to expound a dualistic philosophy, based on the opposing powers of good and evil. For him, the absolute, wholly good and wise God, Ahura Mazda, together with his holy spirit and six emanations present in earth, water, the sky, animals, plants and fire, is constantly at odds with an evil power, Angra Mainyu, who is aided by daevas, or evil spirits. Five daily prayers, usually hymns, uttered by Zarathustra and standardized in the Avesta, the main Zoroastrian text, are said in the home or in a temple, before a fire, which symbolizes truth, righteousness and order. For this reason, Zoroastrians are often, incorrectly, called “fire-worshippers”.

< Back to Context

Wildlife India's vast range of habitats support a staggering range of wildlife, with around 65,000 species of fauna including 1200 birds and 340 mammals (India is the only country in the world where you can see both wild lions and tigers) plus a staggering 13,000 varieties of flowering plant. The lush deodar and rhododendron forests of the lower Himalayas are home to bears and blackbucks, while the fabled snow leopard and yak inhabit the higher mountains. Down on the Gangetic plain, the warm climate, forests and numerous lakes and rivers support a rich array of birdlife, while the Sundarbans mangrove swamps in the east are famous for their population of unusual swimming tigers. Camels, both wild and domesticated, can be found in the deserts of Rajasthan, while elsewhere in the west the dry climate supports spotted deer, leopards and the famous Asiatic lion. Further south, the dry Deccan plateau is thick with sandalwood forests, the home of wild elephants, while at the very southern tip of India you'll find elephants, butterflies and jewel-like birds under the canopy of the teak and rosewood rainforest.

Mammals The Indian elephant, distinguished from its African cousin by its long front legs and smaller ears and body, is still widely used as a beast of burden in many parts of the country. Elephants have worked and been tamed in India for three thousand years, and there is still a sizeable population of wild elephants across the country. Another pachyderm, the lumbering one-horned rhinoceros, retains a tenuous foothold in the northeast of the country, with around eleven hundred living in the protected Manas and Kaziranga wildlife sanctuaries in Assam.

Indian tigers are fast becoming extinct in the wild, but you still stand a reasonable chance of coming across one in a national park – for the next few years at least. The other big cats have fared even worse than the tiger. The Asiatic lion now clings on in just one tiny patch of Gujarat, while the ghostly grey- and black-spotted snow leopard of the Himalayas is so rare as to be almost legendary. Only the plains-dwelling leopard (also known as the panther) can still be commonly found, especially in forested places near human settlement where domestic animals make easy prey. Other indigenous felines include the rare multi-coloured marbled cat, the miniature leopard cat, the jungle cat, the fishing cat, and a kind of lynx called the caracal.

Deer and antelope, the larger cats' prey, are much more abundant. The often solitary sambar is the largest of the deer. Smaller and more gregarious are chital (spotted deer), while other deer include the elusive mountain-loving muntjac (barking deer) and the para (hog deer). The smallest deer in India is the nocturnal chevrotain, known because of its size (just 30cm high), as the mouse deer. Antelopes include the nilgai ("blue cow"), the endangered blackbuck and the unique forest-dwelling four-horned chowsingha (swamp deer). The desert-loving gazelle is known as the chinkara ("the one who sneezes") due to the sneeze-like alarm call it makes.

The most common monkeys are the feisty red-bottomed rhesus macaque and the black-faced "Hanuman" langurs, often found around temples. Wild monkeys include the Assamese macaque and pig-tailed macaque in the northern hills, and the bonnet macaque in the steamy tropical jungles of the south.

THE INDIAN TIGER: SURVIVAL OR EXTINCTION?

Few animals command such universal fascination as the tiger, and India is one of the very few places where this rare and enigmatic big cat can still be glimpsed in the wild, stalking through the teak forests and terai grass – a solitary predator, with no natural enemies save one.

As recently as the beginning of the twentieth century, up to 100,000 tigers still roamed the Subcontinent, even though tiger hunting had long been the “sport of kings”. It was the trigger-happy British who brought tiger hunting to its most -gratuitous excesses, however. Photographs of pith-helmeted, bare-kneed burra sahibs posing behind mountains of striped carcasses became a hackneyed image of the Raj.

In the years following Independence, demographic pressures nudged the Indian tiger perilously close to extinction. As the human population increased in rural districts, more and more forest was cleared for farming, depriving large carnivores of their main source of game and of the cover they needed to hunt. Forced to turn on farm cattle as an alternative, tigers were drawn into direct conflict with humans; some animals, out of sheer desperation, even turned man-eater and attacked human settlements. Poaching has taken an even greater toll. The black market has always paid high prices for dead animals – a tiger pelt alone can fetch US$125,000 in China – and for the various body parts believed to hold magical or medicinal properties.

Numbers had plummeted to below two thousand by 1973, the year in which India’s ambitious Project Tiger (mntca.gov.in/about-us/#ministers) was inaugurated. Nine areas of pristine forest were set aside for the remaining tigers. Demand for tiger parts did not end with Project Tiger, however, and the poachers remained in business, aided by organized smuggling rings. India’s worst-case conservation scenario was finally played out in 2005, when it was discovered that the entire population of big cats at Sariska Tiger Reserve had mysteriously vanished at the hands of poachers.

Well-organized guerrilla groups operate in some remote national parks, where inadequate numbers of poorly armed and poorly paid wardens offer little more than token resistance. Project Tiger officials are understandably reluctant to jeopardize lucrative tourist traffic by admitting that sightings are nowadays quite rare, but the superstitious demand for supposedly medicinal tiger products continues to make poaching highly lucrative.

Today there are 48 Project Tiger sites and a 2023 survey estimated there were 3167 tigers in India, an apparent rise of 50 percent in ten years. The increase was hailed by politicians as a huge success, but taken with a pinch of salt by scientists, who suggest that it may at least partly be explained by improved survey methods. They further point out that the number of tigers killed by poachers has also gone up. The upshot is that, while conservation efforts do appear to be bearing some fruit, the tiger is still endangered as a species, both in India and worldwide.

The shaggy sloth bear is hard to spot in the wild, although you may see captive bears being forced to dance near tourist sites; other bears include the black and brown varieties. Of the canines, the scavenging striped hyena and the small pest-eating Indian fox are fairly common, though the desert-dwelling Indian wolf is under threat of extinction.

The wild buffalo has a close genetic relationship with the domesticated water buffalo. More exotic members of the cow family are the hill-loving gaur, an Indian bison which stands 2m across at the shoulders, and the nimble, mountain-dwelling yak.

Reptiles The 238 species of snake in India (of which fifty are poisonous) extend from the 10cm-long worm snake to nest-building king cobras and massive pythons. Poisonous snakes include the majestically hooded cobra, the yellow-brown Russell's viper, the small krait and the saw-scaled viper. Lizards are also common, with every hotel room seeming to have a resident gecko to keep the place free of insects. The colourful garden lizard and Sita's lizard are both found throughout India. Olive ridley marine turtles nest at remote beaches along the east and southwest coasts. Crocodiles are common throughout the Subcontinent.

Birds You don't have to be an aficionado to enjoy India's abundant birdlife. The country has a spectacular array of resident avifauna, while its geographical location also attracts many migratory species from colder countries to the north during the winter months.

Three common species of kingfisher frequently crop up amid the paddy fields and wetlands of the coastal plains. Other common and brightly coloured species include the grass-green, blue and yellow bee-eaters, the stunning golden oriole and the brilliant-blue Indian roller. Hoopoes, recognizable by their elegant black-and-white tipped crests, also flit around fields and villages, as do several kinds of bulbuls, babblers and drongos. Paddy fields and ponds often teem with water birds. The most ubiquitous of these is the snowy-white cattle egret, which can often be seen riding on the backs of cows and buffalo. Look out, too, for the mud-brown paddy bird, India's most common heron, distinguished by its pale green legs, speckled breast and hunched posture.

Common birds of prey such as the brahminy kite and the pariah kite are widespread around towns and fishing villages, where they vie with raucous gangs of house crows and white-eyed jackdaws for scraps. Pink-headed king vultures and the white-backed vulture, which has a white ruff around its bare neck and head, also show up whenever there are carcasses to pick clean. A bird whose call is a regular feature of the Western Ghat forests is the wild ancestor of the domestic chicken – the jungle fowl. Finally, among India's abundant forest birds, one species every enthusiast hopes to glimpse is the magnificent hornbill, with its huge yellow beak sporting a long curved casque on top.

< Back to Context

Music India is home to a staggering variety of different musical traditions, both ancient and modern, ranging from archaic styles of Hindu devotional chanting to the eclectic sounds of contemporary film scores. For many outsiders, the country's aural signature is provided by north Indian classical music, one of the world's most instantly recognizable sounds, with its twanging tanpuras and complex tabla beats. There's also Bollywood's huge treasury of film songs, or filmi, to explore, as well as a rich folk music tradition.

Indian classical music: ragas and talas Underlying all Indian classical music is the concept of the raga (or raag, from the Sanskrit word meaning “colour”). Put simplistically, a raga is simply a musical scale or mode (loosely equivalent to the “key” of a piece of Western music), -determining which notes can and can't be played during a particular piece. The raga defines the basic musical material and expressive content of each particular piece, meaning that while Indian classical musicians are renowned for their improvisation, this only takes place within strictly defined limits – the mark of a good performer is his or her ability to improvise extensively without stepping outside the boundaries of the chosen raga.

Just as the raga organizes melody, so the rhythm of a piece is organized using metric cycles known as talas. A tala is made up of a number of beats, with each beat being defined by a combination of rhythm pattern and timbre. There are literally hundreds of talas, the most common being the sixteen-beat teen tala (four times four beats).

The performance of a raga follows a set pattern. First comes the alap, a slow, meditative introduction in free rhythm which explores the chosen raga, carefully introducing its constituent notes one by one. In the next two sections, the jor and the jhala, the instrumentalist introduces a rhythmic element, developing the raga through a series of increasingly complex variations. Only in these and the final section, the gat, does the percussion instrument – usually the tabla or (in south India) the mridangam – enter. The soloist introduces a short, fixed phrase (known as “the composition”) to which he returns between flights of improvisation. The gat itself is subdivided into three sections: a slow tempo passage known as vilambit, increasing to a medium tempo section called madhya, and leading finally to the fast, concluding drut.

Musical instruments The best-known Indian instrument is the sitar. This has six or seven main strings, plucked with a plectrum, along with between eleven and nineteen sympathetic strings. The curved neck allows the player to alter the pitch by pulling strings sideways across the fret to provide the pitch-bends so characteristic of Indian music. The surbahar, effectively a bass sitar, is played in the same way. Smaller than a sitar, the sarod has two resonating chambers connected by a metal fingerboard, and ten metal strings, plucked with a fragment of coconut shell (plus a further fifteen sympathetic strings underneath).

The sarangi is a fretless bowed instrument with a very broad fingerboard and three or four main strings of gut, plus anything up to forty sympathetic metal strings. Some claim it is the most difficult musical instrument to play in the world. The sarangi is capable of a wide range of timbres and its sound is likened to that of the human voice, meaning that it is often used to accompany vocal recitals. The word bansuri refers to a wide variety of bamboo (banse) flutes, either end-blown or side-blown. The shehnai, traditionally used for wedding music, is a double-reed, oboe-type instrument with up to nine finger holes.

INDIAN CLASSICAL MASTERS THERE'S A HUGE VARIETY OF INDIAN – ESPECIALLY NORTH INDIAN – CLASSICAL MUSIC AVAILABLE, INCLUDING RECORDINGS BY MANY OF THE COUNTRY'S LEADING VIRTUOSOS OF THE PAST FIFTY YEARS. PERHAPS THE BEST-KNOWN AND MOST RECORDED INDIAN CLASSICAL ARTIST IS SITAR PLAYER RAVI SHANKAR (1920–2012), WHO MADE NUMEROUS SOLO RECORDINGS, AS WELL AS DUETTING WITH ARTISTS RANGING FROM ALI AKBAR KHAN (SEE BELOW) TO YEHUDI MENUHIN. OTHER LEGENDARY SITAR PLAYERS INCLUDE NIKHIL BANERJEE (1931–86) AND VILAYAT KHAN (1928–2004), WHILE IT'S ALSO WORTH SEARCHING OUT RECORDINGS BY IMRAT KHAN (B.1935, AND YOUNGER BROTHER OF VILAYAT), THE ACKNOWLEDGED MASTER OF THE SOULFUL SURBAHAR (BASS SITAR).

Rivalling Ravi Shankar for recorded legacy is the internationally revered sarod virtuoso Ali Akbar Khan (1922–2009), while the hauntingly atmospheric music of Hariprasad Chaurasia (b.1938), India's leading master of the bansuri (bamboo flute), is also essential listening for anyone with even a passing interest in Subcontinental music. Less well known, but equally rewarding, are the recorded performances of Sultan Khan (1940–2011) and Ram Narayan (b.1927), two of modern India's greatest masters of the sarangi, while recordings by leading shehnai virtuoso Bismillah Khan (1916–2006) are also worth looking out for – albeit the instrument is something of an acquired taste. Many notable recordings also feature Alla Rakha (1919–2000), perhaps the finest tabla virtuoso of recent years. For Carnatic music, try some of the many recordings by violin wizard L. Subramanian, saxophone supremo Kadri Gopalnath, or the much rarer recordings by Sundaram Balachander (1927–90), one of the twentieth century's leading exponents of the soulful veena.

The tabla is a set of two small drums, tuned to the tonic, dominant or -subdominant notes of the raga and played with the palms and fingertips to produce an incredible variety of sounds and timbres. Predating the tabla, the pakhavaj is nearly 1m long and was traditionally made of clay, although wood is now more popular. It has two parchment heads, each tuned to a different pitch.

The instruments of Carnatic music include the vina, which resembles the sitar but has no sympathetic strings; the mridangam double-headed drum; and the enormous nadaswaram (or nagaswaram), a kind of metre-long oboe, commonly used during temple ceremonies. The violin (slightly modified to suit Indian musical requirements) is also widely used.

Finally, perhaps the most ubiquitous but self-effacing of all Indian musical instruments is the tanpura (or tambura), a type of fretless lute with (usually) four or five wire strings. It's the tanpura that supplies the instantly recognizable, buzzing drone that underpins all Indian classical music. The tanpura is traditionally played by an advanced student of the lead performer – considered a rare and special honour for the pupil concerned.

Classical vocal music Dhrupad is the oldest and most austere form of north Indian classical music. Dhrupads typically consist of two sections: a long and entirely wordless introductory alap during which the singer(s) vocalize a sequence of syllables deriving from the mantra “Hari Om Narayana Taan Tarana Tum”, followed by a much shorter and faster section sung to the accompaniment of a pakhavaj drum. During the eighteenth century the rather severe dhrupad was largely displaced by the much more flamboyant khayal – described as the “bel canto of Indian music” – a form that allows for far greater displays of virtuosity. Khayal is typically accompanied by tabla and harmonium, along with a bowed instrument such as a sarangi or violin, which mirrors the vocal line.

Thumri are essentially love songs, written from a female perspective and sung in a language known as Braj Bhasha, a literary dialect of Hindi particularly associated with Lucknow. The singer is always accompanied by the tabla, as well perhaps as the tanpura, the sarangi or the surmandal, and sometimes the violin or harmonium. Still more song-like than the thumri is the ghazal. In some ways the Urdu counterpart of thumri, the ghazal was introduced to India by Persian Muslims and is a poetic rather than a musical form – many favourite ghazals are drawn from the works of great Urdu poets.

Carnatic music Southern India’s classical music – known as Carnatic (or “Karnatak”) music – is essentially similar to Hindustani classical music in its overall concept but differs in many details, usually ascribed to the far greater Islamic influence in the north. To the Western ear, Carnatic music is emotionally direct and impassioned, without the restraint that characterizes much of the north’s music.

Song is at the root of south Indian music, and forms based on song are paramount, even when the performance is purely instrumental. The vast majority of the texts are religious, and the temple is frequently the venue for performance. The most important form is the kriti, a devotional song, hundreds of which were written by the most influential figure in the development of Carnatic music, the singer Thyagaraja (1767–1847).

Folk music There are many kinds of Indian folk music (Lok Sangeet), but the main regional strands are those of Rajasthan, the Punjab (spread across both India and Pakistan), and Bengal. In Rajasthan, music is always played for weddings and theatre -performances, and often at local markets or gatherings. There is a whole cast of professional musicians who perform this function, and a wonderful assortment of earthy-sounding stringed instruments like the kamayacha and ravanhata that accompany their songs.

Bengal is best known for the music of the Bauls, an order of wandering mystics and musicians who subscribe to a syncretic mix of Sufi and bhakti Hindu mystical beliefs expressed primarily through song, typically accompanied by the ektara, a one-stringed drone instrument.

The Punjab is most closely associated with bhangra. This was originally a kind of folk dance, performed as part of harvest festival celebrations and accompanied by music on the dhol and dholki drums, ektara and tumbi (a kind of single-string guitar); but since the 1980s has become a global pop phenomenon both in its traditional form and in contemporary dance, house and hip-hop fusions, created mainly by Asian musicians in the UK.

Filmi Indian popular music is intimately bound up with the country's massive film industry. Music plays a crucial role in Bollywood movies and up until the 1990s virtually all Indian popular music consisted of songs, known as filmi, taken from the soundtracks to these movies. The most striking feature of these Bollywood filmi is their incredibly eclectic style, offering a fascinating snapshot of changing musical fashions over the past five decades, all seen from a uniquely Indian point of view.

Early film scores tended to be rooted in Indian folk and classical music, but from the 1960s onwards Bollywood film composers such as the famous R.D. Burman began to soak up an incredible range of musical influences in their work, from big band rock'n'roll to the techno and electronic creations of the innovative A.R. Rahman. Bollywood filmi are performed by so-called playback singers, the invisible artists who record the songs that the film's actors and actresses then mime along to. Many of these singers have achieved massive fame in their own right, including the legendary Asha Bhosle and her sister Lata Mangeshkar, along with male singers such as Kishore Kumar and Mohammed Rafi.

< Back to Context

Books India is one of the most written-about places on earth, and there are a bewildering number of titles available covering virtually every aspect of the country, ranging from scholarly historical dissertations to racy travelogues. Books marked ★ are particularly recommended.

HISTORY, SOCIETY AND REPORTAGE CHARLES ALLEN PLAIN TALES FROM THE RAJ. FIRST-HAND ACCOUNTS FROM ERSTWHILE SAHIBS AND MEMSAHIBS OF EVERYDAY BRITISH INDIA, ORGANIZED THEMATICALLY.

A.L. Basham The Wonder That Was India. This veritable encyclopedia by one of India's foremost historical authorities positively bristles with erudition.

Oliver Blach India Rising: Tales from a Changing Nation. Part reportage, part travel writing, India Rising is a personalized account of the modern nation state drawn from a broad cast of everyday lives, ranging from millionaire entrepreneurs to slum dwellers. A vivid account of the contradictions and challenges at the heart of India's rise, and its extraordinary potential.

Katherine Boo Behind the Beautiful Forevers. Award-winning investigative journalist Boo spent three years exploring the Annawadi slum near Mumbai airport, and her account, tracing the impact of a violent crime on the community, races along with an almost cinematic intensity.

Elizabeth Bumiller May You Be the Mother of a Hundred Sons. Lucid exploration of the Indian woman's lot, drawn from dozens of first-hand encounters in the 1990s – since when surprisingly little has changed.

David Burton The Raj at Table. Vividly evokes the quirky world of British India – commendable both for its extra-ordinary recipes and as a marvellous piece of social history.

Liz Collingham Curry. Original and entertaining account of Indian history seen through its food, from Mughlai biryanis to Mulligatawny soup.

Larry Collins and Dominique Lapierre Freedom at Midnight. Readable, if shallow, account of Independence, highly sympathetic to the British and, particularly, to Mountbatten, who was the authors' main source of information.

Anne de Courcy The Fishing Fleet. The hitherto untold story of the many British women who, in response to a dearth of eligible bachelors at home, travelled to India in the late nineteenth century in search of husbands. Drawing on mainly unpublished memoirs, diaries and letters, the narrative yields a vivid picture of the Raj at its height from the female perspective.

★William Dalrymple The Last Mughal. Masterful account of Delhi's part in the 1857 uprising. Using Urdu as well as English sources, Dalrymple tells us what it was like for the insurgents, the British, the Mughal court and – most importantly – the ordinary people of Delhi.

★William Dalrymple Nine Lives: In Search of the Sacred in Modern India. The stories of nine different people who follow contrasting religious paths through the vortex of rapid social and cultural change. Each of Dalrymple's subjects is beautifully defined, revealing a wealth of insight into both India's past and present.

★William Dalrymple White Mughals. Compelling account of the previously forgotten story of British political officer James Achilles Kirkpatrick's marriage to the great-niece of the nizam of Hyderabad's prime minister.

Siddhartha Deb The Beautiful and the Damned: Life in the New India. Another brilliant portrait of the country, this time focusing on a handful of individuals whose tragicomic lives epitomize some of the tensions underlying India's modern metamorphosis.

Louis Fischer The Life of Mahatma Gandhi. Veteran American journalist Louis Fischer knew his subject personally, and his book provides an engaging account of Gandhi as a man, politician and propagandist.

Patrick French India. A snapshot of the modern nation divided into themes (politics, economy and religion). Drawing on encounters with Indians from contrasting backgrounds, it manages to be scholarly yet wide-ranging at the same time – and a highly enjoyable read.

Patrick French Liberty or Death. The definitive account (and a damning indictment) of the last years of the British Raj.

M.K. Gandhi The Story of My Experiments with Truth. Gandhi's fascinating record of his life, including his spiritual and moral quests and gradual emergence to the fore of national politics.

Bamber Gascoigne The Great Mughals. Concise, entertaining and eminently readable account of the lives of the first six great Mughals.

★Sujatha Gidla Ants Among Elephants. A searing account of what it is like to be a so-called “untouchable” in India, Gidla uses her own family's story to eviscerate the brutalities of the caste system. The result is a remarkable, unsentimental, knockout punch of a book.

Anand Giridharadas India Calling. An intimate portrait of the country written from the perspective of a young American born of Indian parents who emigrated to the US in the 1970s. It's particularly revealing of the impact of new technology and economic change on families.

Christopher Hibbert The Great Mutiny. Account of the 1857 uprising, told entirely from the British point of view, in easy prose and with some compelling first-hand material from the British side.

Christophe Jaffrelot Modi's India: Hindu Nationalism and the Rise of Ethnic Democracy. Painstakingly researched through extensive interviews, this history of the last twenty years paints a disconcerting picture of rising nationalism under PM Modi.

John Keay The Honourable Company: A History of the English East India Company. Readable and balanced account of the East India Company and its strange role in Subcontinental history.

★John Keay India: A History. One of the best single-volume histories currently in print. Keay manages to coax clear, impartial and highly readable narrative from five thousand years of fragmented events, enlivened with plenty of quirky asides.

John Keay Into India. As an all-round introduction to India, this book – originally written in 1973 but reissued in 1999 – is the one most often recommended by old hands, presenting a wide spread of history and cultural background, interspersed with lucid personal observations.

Edward Luce In Spite of the Gods. The most authoritative account of the state of the nation currently in print, packed full of sobering statistics and myth-busting facts that challenge common misconceptions about the country.

★Suketu Mehta Maximum City: Bombay Lost and Found. Acclaimed portrait of India's largest city, mixing memoir and travelogue, along with penetrating insights into the history, society and people of Mumbai.

Geoffrey Moorhouse India Britannica. A balanced, lively survey of the rise and fall of the British Raj.

Palagummi Sainath Everybody Loves a Good Drought. A classic report on India's poorest districts, telling the stories of individual villages that are usually lost in a maze of development statistics.

Amartya Sen The Argumentative Indian. A provocative and sharply written collection of essays on identity, religion, history, philosophy and – above all – what it means to be Indian.

Mala Sen Death By Fire. Later made into a controversial film, this book uses the infamous Roop Kanwar sati case as a springboard to explore some of the wider issues affecting women in contemporary Indian society.

Shashi Tharoor Inglorious Empire. A fiercely-argued polemic from politician, diplomat and author Tharoor, sharply rebutting the notion that British colonialism in the sub-continent was a force for good.

Mark Tully India: the Road Ahead. Few commentators understand India as well as Mark Tully, the former BBC correspondent, who has written a string of books cataloguing the country's rapid change. This is his most recent, but they're all worth hunting out, from No Full Stops (1992) to India In Slow Motion (2003) and India's Unending Journey (2008).

TRAVEL JAMES CAMERON AN INDIAN SUMMER.
AFFECTIONATE AND HUMOROUS DESCRIPTION OF THE VETERAN BRITISH JOURNALIST'S VISIT TO INDIA IN 1972, AND HIS MARRIAGE TO AN INDIAN WOMAN.

★William Dalrymple City of Djinns. Dalrymple's account of a year in Delhi sifts through successive layers of the city's past using a blend of inspired historical sleuth-work and interviews with a cast of characters ranging from Urdu calligraphers to local pigeon fanciers. The Age of Kali (published in India as In the Court of the Fish-Eyed Goddess) is a collection of essays drawn from ten years' travel in India.

Alexander Frater Chasing the Monsoon. Frater's wet-season jaunt up the west coast and across to Shillong took him through an India of muddy puddles and grey skies: an evocative account of the country as few visitors see it, now something of a classic.

Tim Mackintosh-Smith The Hall of a Thousand Columns. Quirky, learned and entertaining travelogue following the footsteps of Ibn Battuta through the Delhi of the Tughluq sultan Muhammad Shah and thence south to Kerala, with lashings of offbeat Subcontinental Islamic history en route.

V.S. Naipaul An Area of Darkness. One of the finest (and bleakest) books ever written about India: a darkly comic portrait based on a year of travel around the Subcontinent in the early 1960s – dated, but still essential reading. Naipaul followed this up with India: A Wounded Civilisation, a damning analysis of Indian society written during the Emergency of 1975–77, and the slightly sunnier India: A Million Mutinies Now, published in 1990.

Monisha Rajesh Around India in 80 Trains. Echoing Jules Verne's classic story, British-Indian travel writer Rajesh covers 40,000km – the circumference of the earth – in her railway journey across India, riding on everything from toy trains to hospitals on wheels.

Tahir Shah Sorcerer's Apprentice. A journey through the weird underworld of occult India. Travelling as an apprentice to a master conjurer and illusionist, Shah encounters hangmen, baby renters, skeleton dealers, sadhus and charlatans.

Mark Shand Travels on My Elephant. Award-winning account of a 965km ride on an elephant from Konark in Odisha to Bihar, and full of incident, humour and pathos. For the sequel, Queen of the Elephants, Shand teamed up with an Assamese princess who's the country's leading elephant-handler.

Eric Shipton and H.W. Tilman Nanda Devi: Exploration and Ascent. Two classics of Himalayan mountaineering literature published in a single volume, recounting the famous expeditions of 1934 and 1936. Shipton's, in particular, is a masterpiece: beautifully written and enthralling from start to finish.

FICTION ARAVIND ADIGA THE WHITE TIGER. BRILLIANTLY DARK SATIRE ON THE “NEW” INDIA, SET LARGELY IN DELHI AND FEATURING THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN A WEALTHY EMPLOYER AND HIS IMPECUNIOUS BUT MURDEROUSLY AMBITIOUS SERVANT.

Mulk Raj Anand Untouchable and Coolie. First published in 1935, Untouchable gives a memorable worm’s-eye view of the brutal life of an untouchable sweeper, while the subsequent Coolie (1936) describes the death of a 15-year-old child labourer.

Kunal Basu In an Ideal World. Fast-paced modern mystery novel that touches on contemporary issues such as nationalism, sectarianism and terrorism.

Chetan Bhagat One Night at the Call Centre. A heart-warming tale by India’s most popular novelist about six employees in a Gurgaon call centre. Like most of Bhagat’s novels – including 2 States, about a Punjabi man who wants to marry a Tamil woman, and Revolution 2020, about private tuition colleges and corruption – it’s never too heavy, but makes some serious points about the problems faced by young, urban Indians.

★Vikram Chandra Sacred Games. More than a decade elapsed between the publication of Chandra’s award-winning debut novel, Red Earth and Pouring Rain, inspired by the life of Anglo-Indian soldier James Skinner, and this, his second offering – an epic, page-turning tale of friendship and betrayals, love and violence set in modern Mumbai.

Anita Desai Fasting, Feasting. One of India’s leading female authors’ eloquent portrayal of the frustration of a sensitive young woman stuck in the stifling atmosphere of home while her spoilt brother is packed off to study in America.

Kiran Desai The Inheritance of Loss. This Booker Prize-winning novel, partly set in the Himalayan town of Kalimpong, with the Gorkhaland movement as a backdrop, tells the haunting stories of a judge, an orphaned girl and a cook, each one trapped by their dreams.

E.M. Forster A Passage to India. Set in the 1920s, this withering critique of colonialism is memorable as much for its sympathetic portrayal of middle-class Indian life as for its insights into cultural misunderstandings.

Amitav Ghosh The Hungry Tide. The history and myths of the Sundarbans are brought dramatically to life in this beautifully written novel, which centres on the relationship between a marine biologist – an American of Indian descent – and a Bengali businessman.

Amitav Ghosh Sea of Poppies. This first instalment in Ghosh's Ibis trilogy centres around the opium trade in the early nineteenth century. Full of fascinating historical detail, with engaging characters who speak an array of local English vernaculars, it's an excellent depiction of Bengal under Company rule.

Rudyard Kipling Kim. Cringingly colonialist at times, of course, but the atmosphere of India and Kipling's love of it shine through in this story of an orphaned white boy. Kipling's other key works on India are two books of short stories: Soldiers Three and In Black and White.

★Rohinton Mistry A Fine Balance. Magnificent, gut-wrenching novel focusing on two friends who leave their lower-caste rural lives for the urban opportunities of the big smoke. Mistry's Such a Long Journey is an acclaimed account of a Mumbai Parsi's struggle to maintain personal integrity in the face of betrayals and disappointment.

R.K. Narayan Gods, Demons and Others. Classic Indian folk tales and popular myths told through the voice of a village storyteller. Many of Narayan's beautifully crafted books, full of touching characters and subtle humour, are set in the fictional south Indian territory of Malgudi.

Gregory David Roberts Shantaram. Riveting, albeit rather overlong, semi-autobiographical account of an escaped Australian convict taking refuge in India (mainly Mumbai), with memorable, beautifully written, depictions of the country and its people.

★Arundhati Roy The God of Small Things. Haunting Booker Prize-winner about a well-to-do south Indian family caught between the snobberies of high-caste tradition, a colonial past and the diverse personal histories of its members. Her follow-up novel, The Ministry of Utmost Happiness, was published in 2017, 20 years later. Although it doesn't quite hit the heights of her debut, it's still well worth a read, interweaving the stories of a diverse cast of characters to illuminate the dark side of modern India.

★Salman Rushdie Midnight's Children. This story of a man born at the very moment of Independence, whose life mirrors that of modern India itself, won Rushdie the Booker Prize and the enmity of Indira Gandhi, who had it banned in India. Set in Kerala and Mumbai, The Moor's Last Sigh was the subject of a defamation case brought by Shiv Sena leader, Bal Thackeray.

★Vikram Seth A Suitable Boy. Vast, all-embracing tome set in UP shortly after Independence; wonderful characterization and an impeccable sense of place and time make this an essential read for long train journeys.

William Sutcliffe Are You Experienced? Hilarious novel sending up the backpacker scene in India. Wickedly perceptive and very readable.

Vikas Swarup Q&A. Filmed by Danny Boyle as Slumdog Millionaire, this is the story – in turn funny, shocking and heart-warming – of how an illiterate slum dweller's life experiences enable him to answer a series of difficult questions on a high-prize TV quiz show.

Tarun J. Tejpal The Alchemy of Desire. Set mainly in the Himalayas, this sensuous tale focuses on two lovers, mixing its exploration of human relationships with wider reflections on India in the twentieth century.

ART, ARCHITECTURE AND RELIGION ROY CRAVEN INDIAN ART. CONCISE GENERAL INTRODUCTION TO INDIAN ART, FROM HARAPPAN SEALS TO MUGHAL MINIATURES.

★Diana L. Eck Banaras – City of Light. Thorough disquisition on the religious significance of Varanasi, and a good introduction to the practice of Hindu cosmology.

Dorf Hartsuiker Sadhus: Holy Men of India. The weird world of India's itinerant ascetics exposed in glossy colour photographs and erudite but accessible text.

Stephen P. Huyler Meeting God. Unrivalled overview of the beliefs and practices of contemporary Hinduism, accompanied by fine photographs.

George Michell The Hindu Temple. A reasonable primer, introducing Hindu temples, their significance and architectural development.

Wendy O'Flaherty (translator) Hindu Myths. Translations of key myths from the original Sanskrit texts, providing an insight into the foundations of Hinduism.

Paramahansa Yogananda Autobiography of a Yogi. Uplifting account of religious awakening and spiritual development by one of the most internationally influential Hindu masters.

< Back to Context

Language

No fewer than 22 major languages are officially recognized by the Indian constitution, while numerous minor ones and more than a thousand dialects are also spoken across the country. When independent India was organized, the present-day states were largely created along linguistic lines, which help the traveller make some sense of the complex situation. Considering the continuing prevalence of English, there is rarely any necessity to speak a local language, but some theoretical knowledge of the background and learning at least a few words of one or two can only enhance your visit.

The main languages of northern India, including the country's eastern and western extremities, are all Indo-Aryan, the easternmost subgroup of the Indo-European family that is thought to have originated somewhere between Europe and Central Asia several millennia BC, before tribal movements spread its progeny in all directions. The oldest extant Subcontinental language is Sanskrit, one of the three "big sisters" (along with Latin and Greek) upon which philologists have created the model of proto-Indo-European language. It's known to have been spoken early in the second millennium BC, although it was not written down until much later, and is the vehicle for all the sacred texts of Hinduism. Sanskrit remained the language of the educated until around 1000 AD and gradually developed into the modern tongues of northern India: Hindi, Urdu, Bengali, Gujarati, Marathi, Kashmiri, Punjabi and Oriya.

North India

Hindi is the pre-eminent language in the north, and the main language in the states of Uttar Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Haryana, Bihar and Himachal Pradesh, as well as being widely used as a second language in other states. Hindi is very closely related to Urdu, the main language of Pakistan. Both Hindi and Urdu developed in tandem around the markets and army camps of Delhi (the term Urdu derives from the Turkish word for “camp”) during the establishment of Muslim rule around the start of the second millennium AD. Whereas Hindi later returned to the Sanskrit roots of its Hindu speakers, however, and adopted the classical Devanagari script, Urdu became culturally more closely linked with Islam and is written in Perso-Arabic script. The vocabulary of each also reflects these cultural and religious ties. The scripts of Punjabi, Bengali and Gujarati are among those that have developed out of Devanagari and still bear some resemblance to it.

Other important languages spoken in north India include Bengali (West Bengal and Tripura), Nepali (West Bengal and Sikkim), Gujarati (Gujarat), Punjabi (Punjab, Delhi), Kashmiri and Dogri (Kashmir), Assamese and Bodo (Assam), Oriya (Odisha) and Maithili (Bihar).

South India

The four most widely spoken south Indian languages, Tamil (Tamil Nadu), Telugu (Andhra Pradesh), Kannada (Karnataka) and Malayalam (Kerala) all belong to the Dravidian family, the world’s fourth largest group of languages. These and related minor languages grew up quite separately among the non-Aryan peoples of southern India over thousands of years, and the earliest written records of Tamil date back to the third century AD. The exact origins of the Dravidian group have not been established, but it is likely that Dravidian languages were spoken further north in prehistoric times before being driven south by the Aryan invaders.

INDIAN ENGLISH

During the British Raj, Indian English developed its own characteristics, many of which have survived to the present day. It was during this period that Indian words also entered the vocabulary of everyday English, among them veranda, bungalow, sandal, pyjamas, shampoo, jungle, turban, caste, chariot, chilli, cardamom, pundit and yoga. The traveller to India soon becomes familiar with other terms in common usage that have not spread so widely outside the Subcontinent: dacoit, dhoti, panchayat, lakh and crore are but a few. A full list of Anglo-Indianisms can be found in the famous Hobson-Jobson Anglo-Indian dictionary.

Perhaps the most endearing aspect of Indian English is the way it has preserved forms now regarded as highly old-fashioned in Britain. Addresses such as “Good sir” and questions like “May I know your good name?” are commonplace, as are terms like “tiffin” and “cantonment”. This type of usage reaches its apogee in the more flowery expressions of the media, which regularly feature in the vast array of daily newspapers published in English. Thus headlines often appear such as “37 perish in mishap”, referring to a train crash, or passages like this splendid report of a bank robbery: “The miscreants absconded with the loot in great haste. They repaired immediately to their hideaway, whereupon they divided the iniquitous spoils before vanishing into thin air.”

Language in India since Independence

With Independence it was decided by the government in Delhi that Hindi should become the official language of the newly created country. A drive to teach Hindi in all schools followed and more than half the country’s population are now reckoned to have a decent working knowledge of the language. However, there has always been strong resistance to the imposition of Hindi in certain areas, especially the Tamil-led Dravidian south, and the vast majority of people living below the Deccan plateau have little or no knowledge of it.

This is where English, the language of the ex-colonists, becomes an important means of communication. Not surprisingly, given India’s rich linguistic diversity, English remains a lingua franca for many people. It is still the preferred language of law, higher education, much of commerce and the media, and to some degree political dialogue; and for many educated Indians, not just those living abroad, it is actually their first language. All this explains why Anglophone visitors can often soon feel surprisingly at home despite the huge cultural differences. It is not unusual to overhear everyday contact between Indians from different parts of the country being conducted in English, and stimulating conversations can often be had, not only with students or businesspeople, but also with chai walas and shoeshine boys.

USEFUL HINDI WORDS AND PHRASES

GREETINGS

Hello (slightly formal; not used for Muslims) Namaste/Namaskar Hello (formal; to a Muslim) As salaam alaykum (in reply) Alaykum as salaam Goodbye Namaste
Goodbye (to a Muslim) Khudaa haafiz
See you later Phir mileyenge
How are you? (formal) Aap kaise hai?
How are you? (familiar) Kya hal hai?
brother (informal; not to be used to older men) bhaai sister (informal; not to be used to older women) diidi sir sahib
sir (Muslims only) hazur

BASIC WORDS

yes (informal/more formal) haa/ji haa no (informal/more formal) nahi/ji nahi OK acha/tiik hai
I/me mai
you (formal) aap
you (familiar; and to children) tum and/more aur
how? kaise?
how much? kitna?
thank you dhanyavad/shukriya
(formal; Indians don't usually say thank you during everyday transactions. There's no direct Hindi equivalent to the English word "please") good acha very good bahut acha bad buraa big barra small chhota hot garam hot (spicy) mirchi cold thanda clean saaf dirty gandaa open khulaa expensive mehngaa
please come aiiye go jao
run (also "take a run" or "scram") bhaago enough bas

BASIC PHRASES

My name is... Mera naam...hai
What is your name? (formal) Aapka naam kya hai?
What is your name? (familiar, and to children) Tumhara naam kya hai?
I'm from... Mai...se hu
We're from... Hum...se hai
Where do you come from? Aap kaha se aate hai?
I understand Samaj gayaa
I don't understand Samaj nahin aayaa
I don't know Maluum nahi
I don't speak Hindi Mai Hindi nahi bol sakta hu Please speak slowly Dhiire boliye

Sorry Ma'af kiijiye

It is OK? Tiik hai?

How much is this? Yeh kitne ka hai?

I don't need it (literally "not needed"); useful response to persistent touts Nahi chai'iya Do you have...? ...hai?

I/we like it Acha lugta hai

I'm fine Tiik hai

What work do you do? Kya kam karte hai?

Do you have any brothers or sisters? Bhaai behan hai?

Oh dear! Arey!

GETTING AROUND

Where is the...? ...kaha hai?

I want to go to... Mai...jaana chaata hu

Where is it? Kaha hai?

How far? Kitna duur?

Which is the bus for Agra? Agra ki bas kaha hai?

What time does the train leave? Gaarii kab jayegi?

Stop! Ruko!

Wait! Thehero!

ACCOMMODATION

I need a room Mujhe kamra chai'eeye

How much is the room? Kamra kitne ka hai?

I am staying for one night Mai ek raat ke liiye theheroonga Health

I have a headache Sir me dard hai

I have a pain in my stomach Mere pate me dard hai The pain is here Dard yaha hai

Where is the doctor's clinic? Doktor ka clinic kaha hai Where is the hospital? Haspital kaha hai?

Where is the pharmacy? Dawaaii khana kaha hai?

medicine dawaaii

ill bimar

pain dard

stomach pate

eye aankh

nose naak

ear kaan

back piith

foot paao

NUMBERS AND TIME

zero shunya

one ek

two do three tiin

four char

five paanch

six che

seven saat

eight aath

nine nau ten das eleven gyaarah twelve baarah thirteen terah fourteen chaudah fifteen pandrah sixteen solah seventeen satrah eighteen atarah nineteen unniis twenty biis thirty tiis forty chaaliis fifty pachaas sixty saath seventy sattar eighty assii ninety nabbe
one hundred ek sau
one thousand ek hazaar one hundred thousand ek lakh ten million ek crore today aaj tomorrow/yesterday kal day din afternoon dopahar evening shaam night raat week haftaah month mahiinaa year saal
Monday somvaar
Tuesday mangalvaar
Wednesday budhvaar
Thursday viirvaar
Friday shukravaar
Saturday shanivaar
Sunday ravivaar

FOOD AND DRINK GLOSSARY

BASICS

khaana food chawaal rice chamach spoon chhoori knife kanta fork plate plate

chini sugar
chini nahi no sugar (e.g. in tea) kali mirch black pepper
gur jaggery (unrefined sugar) namak salt mirch pepper mirchi chilli hot mirchi kam less hot garam hot thanda cold
dahi yogurt
dhal curried lentils, sometimes reduced to a kind of broth; traditionally served as an accompaniment to all Indian meals garam masala spice mix (literally “hot spices”) added to dishes as hot seasoning ghee clarified butter; often used instead of cooking oil, or to flavour food gravy any kind of curry sauce; nothing to do with British gravy jeera cumin lal mirch red pepper masala generic term indicating either a spice mixture or something spicy methi fenugreek paan betel nut paneer unfermented cheese
sabji any vegetable

DRINKS

bhang lassi lassi with pounded cannabis leaf botal vaala paani mineral water chai tea
doodh milk
falooda traditional Mughlai dessert, usually made with milk, ice cream, nuts and sweets kaapi or kaafi coffee lassi yogurt drink, served either plain or flavoured with salt or fruit pani water peenay ka pani drinking water (not mineral water) Meat and fish chingri prawns
gosht meat, usually mutton keema minced meat macchi fish murg chicken

VEGETABLES AND FRUIT

aam mango
alu potatoes
baingan or brinjal eggplant (aubergine) bhindi okra (ladies’ fingers) chana chickpeas gaajar carrot gobi cauliflower kaddoo pumpkin kela banana
mooli large radish (daikon) mutter peas palak spinach piaz onions
sabji vegetables (literally, “greens”) santaraa orange seb apple

sag spinach tamatar tomato

DISHES AND COOKING TERMS

alu baingan potato and aubergine; usually mild to medium alu gobi potato and cauliflower; usually mild alu methi potato with fenugreek leaves, usually medium-hot alu mutter potato and pea curry; usually mild baingan bharta baked and mashed aubergine mixed with onion bhindi bhaji gently spiced, fried okra bhuna roasted and then thickened-down medium-hot curry sauce biryani rice baked with saffron or turmeric, whole spices and meat (sometimes vegetables), and often hard-boiled egg; rich chana masala spicy chickpeas; usually medium-hot cutlet fried cutlet of minced meat or chopped vegetables dhal gosht meat cooked in lentils; usually hot dhal makhani lentils cooked with cream dhansak curry sauce made from reduced lentils; usually medium-hot dopiaza onion-based sauce; medium-mild dum steamed in a casserole; the most common dish is dum aloo, with potatoes jalfrezi dish cooked with tomatoes and green chilli; medium-hot to hot karahi cast-iron wok that has given its name to a method of cooking with dry spices to create dishes of medium strength karhi dhal-like dish made from dahi and gram flour kofta balls of minced vegetables or meat in a curried sauce korma mild sauce made with curd (and perhaps cream) malai kofta vegetable balls in a rich cream sauce; usually medium-mild momo Tibetan dumplings

mooli Keralan fish curry

mughlai masala Mughal-style mild, creamy sauce mulligatawny classic Anglo-Indian-style vegetable soup; moderately spicy murg makhani butter chicken mutter paneer paneer and peas curry palak paneer paneer and spinach pathia thickened curry with lemon juice; hot pomfret a flatfish popular in Mumbai and Kolkata

pongol spicy rice and dhal

pulau rice, gently spiced and pre-fried raita chilled yogurt flavoured with mild spices, sometimes with the addition of small pieces of cucumber and tomato; usually eaten as an accompaniment to a main course rasam south Indian-style spicy soup

rogan josh deep-red lamb curry, a classic Mughlai dish; medium-hot sambhar soupy lentil and vegetable curry with asafoetida and tamarind shahi paneer “royal” paneer; slightly more elaborate version of standard paneer curry, sometimes including fruit and nuts seekh kebab minced lamb grilled on a skewer shami kebab small minced lamb cutlets tarka dhal lentils with a masala of fried garlic, onions and spices thali combination of vegetarian dishes, chutneys, pickles, rice and bread served as an all-in-one meal vindaloo Goan vinegared meat (sometimes fish) curry, originally pork; very hot Breads and pancakes appam* south Indian-style rice pancake speckled with holes, soft in the middle bhatura soft bread made of white flour and traditionally accompanying chana; common in Delhi chapatti unleavened bread made of whole wheat flour dosa crispy south Indian rice pancake; can be served in various forms, the best known of which is the masala dosa, when the dosa is wrapped around a filling of spicy potato curry idli south Indian steamed rice cake, usually served with sambhar kaathi filled wraps

kachori small thick cakes of salty deep-fried bread loocho delicate puri often mixed with white flour; cooked in Bengal Mughlai paratha paratha with egg naan white leavened bread kneaded with yogurt and baked in a tandoor papad or poppadum crisp, thin, chickpea-flour cracker paratha or parantha whole wheat bread made with butter, rolled thin and griddle-fried; a little bit like a chewy pancake, sometimes stuffed with meat or vegetables puri crispy, puffed-up, deep-fried whole wheat bread rava a type of spiced dosa with cumin

roti loosely used term; often just another name for chapatti, though it should be thicker, chewier, and baked in a tandoor uttapam thick, south Indian-style rice pancake often cooked with onions south Indian terminology; all other terms are either in Hindi or refer to north Indian cuisine.*

SNACKS (CHAAT), SWEETS AND DESSERTS

barfi or burfi traditional sweet made with milk; a bit like fudge bhaji or bhajia pieces of vegetable deep-fried in chickpea batter, served as a main course or a street snack bhel puri mix of puffed rice, potato and crunchy puri with tamarind sauce; a Mumbai speciality, though now popular nationwide gulab jamun classic Indian sweet made from deep-fried dough balls served in syrup halwa traditional sweet made from lentils, nuts and fruit, baked in a large tray and cut into small squares jalebi flour batter, deep-fried and soaked in sugar syrup kheer delicate, Mughal-style rice pudding kulfi Indian-style ice cream, often flavoured with pistachio ladoo or ladu sweets made from small balls of gram flour and semolina namkeens savoury snacks of the Bombay mix variety pakora pieces of vegetable deep-fried in chickpea batter; a popular street snack raj kachori a crisp puri usually filled with chickpeas and doused in curd and sauce rasgulla curd cheese balls flavoured with rosewater; a popular dessert samosa parcels of vegetable and potato (and sometimes meat) wrapped up in triangles of pastry and deep-fried vada doughnut-shaped, deep-fried lentil cake (also spelt vadai, vade, wadi, etc) vada pao a vada served in a bun with chutney

< Back to Context

Glossary

aarti evening temple puja of lights adivasi official term for tribal person

ahimsa non-violence

amrita nectar of immortality

anda literally “egg”: the spherical part of a stupa angrez general term for Westerners apsara heavenly nymph

arak or araq liquor distilled from rice or coconut asana yogic seating posture; small mat used in prayer and meditation ashram centre for spiritual learning and religious practice asura demon

atman soul

avatar reincarnation of Vishnu on Earth, in human or animal form ayah nursemaid

Ayurveda ancient system of medicine employing herbs, minerals and massage baba respectful term for a sadhu or an old man bagh garden, park

baithak reception area in private house baksheesh tip, donation or alms

bandh general strike

bandhani tie-dye

baniya another word for shopkeeper/trader/merchant baniyan a cotton vest banyan vast fig tree, used traditionally as a meeting place, or shade for teaching and meditating baoli or baori step-well bastee or bustee slum area beedi Indian-style cigarette, with tobacco rolled in a leaf begum a Muslim woman of high status

betel leaf chewed in paan, with the nut of the areca tree; also loosely applies to the nut bhajan song in praise of god

bhakti religious devotion expressed in a personalized or emotional relationship with the deity bhang pounded marijuana leaf, often mixed in lassi Bharat Hindi name for India

Bharat Mata literally “Mother India”; a representation of India personified as a maternal goddess bhawan or bhavan building, house, palace or residence Bhotia Himalayan people of Tibetan origin

bhumi earth

bindu seed, or the red dot (also bindi) worn by women on their foreheads as decoration BJP

Bharatiya Janata Party (“Indian People’s Party”): right-wing Hindu political party bodhi enlightenment

bodhi tree or bo tree peepal tree (Ficus religiosa), -associated with the Buddha’s enlightenment bodhisattva in Buddhism an enlightened being brahmin priest; a member of the highest caste group burj tower or bastion burqa a loose robe worn by orthodox Muslim women that covers the entire body burra sahib

colonial official, boss, or a man of great importance cantonment area of town occupied by military quarters caste social status acquired at birth cella chamber, often housing the image of a deity cenotaph ornate tomb

chaat snack

chaddar literally a sheet, can also mean a shawl chaitya Buddhist temple or stupa chajja sloping dripstone eave chakra discus; focus of power; energy point in the body; wheel, often representing the cycle of death and rebirth chandam sandalwood paste chandra moon

chang Ladakhi beer made from fermented millet, wheat or rice chappal sandals or flip-flops (thongs)

charas hashish

charbagh Persian-style garden divided into quadrants charpoy traditional Indian bed; wooden-framed, with rope stretched across it chhatra domed stone pavilion, often erected over a tomb

chillum cylindrical pipe for smoking charas or ganja Chishti a follower of the Sufi saint Khwaja Muin-ud-din Chishti of Ajmer choli short, tight-fitting blouse worn with a sari chor robber chorten monument, often containing prayers, texts or relics, erected as a sign of faith by Tibetan Buddhists choultry quarters for pilgrims adjoined to south Indian temples chowk crossroads or courtyard

chowki police post

chowkidar watchman/caretaker

coolie porter/labourer

crore ten million

CPI Communist Party of India

CPI(M) Communist Party of India (Marxist)

dabba box; lunch box

dacoit bandit

dalit “oppressed”, “out-caste”; the self-chosen name for those considered to be from the lowest strata of society dargah tomb of a Muslim saint darshan vision of a deity or saint; receiving religious teachings darwaza gateway; door

dawan servant

deg cauldron for food offerings, often found in dargahs deul Odishan temple or sanctuary

deva god

devadasi temple dancer

devi goddess

devta deity

dhaba food hall selling local dishes

dham important religious site, or a theological college dharamshala rest house for pilgrims dharma sense of religious and social duty (Hindu); the law of nature, teachings, truth (Buddhist)

dhobi laundryman

dholak double-ended drum

dhoop thick pliable block of strong incense dhota white ankle-length cloth worn by males, tied around the waist, and hitched up through the legs

dhurrie woollen rug

digambara literally “sky-clad”: a Jain sect, known for the habit of nudity among monks, though this is no longer commonplace diwan or dewan chief minister diwan-i-am public audience hall

diwan-i-khas hall of private audience

Dravidian family of south Indian languages (including Tamil, Kannda and Malayalam) probably also spoken in the north in ancient times du-khang main temple in a gompa dukka tank and fountain in courtyard of mosque dupatta scarf worn (sometimes as a veil) with salwar kameez darbar royal audience or council of state

dvarapala guardian image placed at sanctuary door dzo domesticated half-cow half-yak

Eve-teasing sexual harassment of women, either physical or verbal fakir ascetic Muslim mendicant feni Goan spirit, distilled from coconut or cashew fruits finial capping motif on temple pinnacle gandharvas Indra’s heavenly musicians

ganj area or neighbourhood

ganja marijuana bud

garbhagriha temple sanctuary, literally “womb-chamber”

garh fort

gari vehicle or car

ghat mountain, landing platform, or steps leading to water ghazal verse form common in Urdu poems and songs godown warehouse go-khang temple in a gompa devoted to protector (gon) deities gompa Tibetan, or Ladakhi, Buddhist monastery

goonda ruffian

gopi young cattle-tending maidens who feature as Krishna’s playmates and lovers in popular mythology gopura towered temple gateway, common in south India guru teacher of religion, music, dance, astrology etc gurudwara Sikh place of worship

haj Muslim pilgrimage to Mecca hajji Muslim engaged upon, or who has performed, the haj hammam sunken Persian-style bath

Harijan title – “Children of God” – given to “untouchables” by Gandhi hartal strike haveli elaborately decorated mansion

hijra eunuch or transvestite

Hinayana literally “lesser vehicle”: the name given to the original school of Buddhism by later sects howdah bulky elephant-saddle, sometimes made of pure silver, and often shaded by a canopy hypostyle a building or room in which the roof is -supported by columns (usually numerous) rather than walls, arches or vaulting idgah area laid aside in the west of town for prayers during the Muslim festival Id-ul-Zuha Imam Muslim leader or teacher

imambara tomb of a Shi’ite saint or congregational hall for Shi’ite religious commemorations Indo-Saracenic overblown Raj-era architecture that combines Muslim, Hindu, Jain and Western elements ishwara god

iwan the main (often central) arch in a mosque

jagirdar landowner

jali latticework in stone, or a pierced screen

Jama Masjid Friday (congregational) mosque

janapadas small republics and monarchies; literally “territory of the clan” jangha the body of a temple jarokha small canopied balcony, often containing a window seat Jat major north Indian ethnic group; particularly numerous in eastern Rajasthan around Bharatpur Jataka popular tales about the Buddha’s life and teachings jati caste, determined by family and occupation

jawab a building constructed to mirror another building opposite it, thus creating symmetry jawan soldier jhuta soiled by lips: food or drink polluted by touch -ji suffix added to names as a term of respect

johar old practice of self-immolation by women in times of war jyotirlinga twelve sacred sites associated with Shiva’s unbounded lingam of light Kailasa or Kailash mountain in western Tibet: Shiva’s abode and the traditional source of the Ganges and Brahmaputra; the earthly manifestation of the “world pillar”, Mount Meru kalasha pot-like capping stone characteristic of south Indian temples kama satisfaction karma weight of good and bad actions that determine status of rebirth katcha crude, weak, not pukka kavad small decorated box that unfolds to serve as a travelling temple khadi home-spun cotton; Gandhi’s symbol of Indian self-sufficiency khan honorific Muslim title

khana dwelling or house khejri small tree found throughout the desert regions of Rajasthan kirtan hymn-singing kot fort

kothi residence

kotla citadel

kotwali police station
kovil term for a Tamil Nadu temple kshatriya the warrior and ruling caste kumkum red mark on a Hindu woman's forehead (widows are not supposed to wear it) kund tank, lake, reservoir kurta long men's shirt worn over baggy pyjamas lakh one hundred thousand lama Tibetan Buddhist monk and teacher lathi heavy stick that can be used for support or as a weapon lingam phallic symbol in places of worship, representing the god Shiva liwan prayer hall or covered area of a mosque loka realm or world, e.g. devaloka, world of the gods lunggi male garment; long wraparound cloth worn tucked in around the waist flowing down to the ankles madrassa Islamic school maha great or large mahadeva literally "great god", and a common epithet for Shiva mahal palace; mansion mahant in Hinduism, a high-ranking pandit; in Sikhism, the manager of a gurudwara maharaja (maharana, maharawal) prince, especially one who rules maharani the wife of a maharaja, or the woman holding the rank of maharaja Mahatma great soul Mahayana "Great Vehicle": a Buddhist school that has spread throughout Southeast Asia mahout elephant driver or keeper maidan large open space or field makara crocodile-like animal featuring on temple doorways and symbolizing the River Ganges. Also the vehicle of Varuna, the Vedic god of the sea mala necklace, garland or rosary mandala religious diagram mandapa hall, often with many pillars, used for various purposes such as weddings or dances mandi market mandir temple mantra sacred verse, often repeated as an aid to meditation mardana area for use of men in a haveli or palace marg road masjid mosque
mataji "mother"; it is also used as a polite form of address to an older woman or a female sadhu math or mutt Hindu or Jain monastery mayur peacock medhi terrace mehendi henna mela festival
memsahib respectful address to European women mihrab niche in the wall of a mosque indicating the direction of Mecca minaret tower of a mosque, from which the call to prayer is issued minbar pulpit in a mosque from which the Friday sermon is read mithuna amorous couples in Hindu and Buddhist figurative art mohalla neighbourhood moksha blissful state of freedom from rebirth aspired to by Hindus, Sikhs and Jains mudra symbolic hand gestures used in meditation and dance that also feature in Hindu, Buddhist and Jain art muezzin man behind the voice calling Muslims to prayer from a mosque mullah Muslim teacher and scholar muqarna a style of Islamic moulded vaulting nadi river naga mythical serpent; alternatively, a person from Nagaland nala gorge cut by a seasonal stream natak drama natya dance nautch dance
nawab Muslim landowner or prince Naxalites Maoist insurgents

nilgai blue bull
nirvana (or, in Pali, nibbana) Buddhist equivalent of moksha nizam title of Hyderabad rulers NRI non-resident Indian: someone entitled to Indian nationality but resident abroad nullah stream gorge in the mountains om or aum symbol denoting the origin of all things, and ultimate divine essence, used in meditation by Hindus and Buddhists paan betel nut pada foot, or base; also a poetic meter padma lotus; another name for the goddess Lakshmi pagoda multi-storeyed Buddhist monument paisa There are a hundred paise in a rupee pali original language of early Buddhist texts panchayat village council parikrama ritual circumambulation around a temple, shrine or mountain Parsi Zoroastrian phulkari flowery Punjabi embroidered fabric used for shawls, head scarfs and dupattas pietra dura inlay work, traditionally consisting of semiprecious stones set in marble; particularly associated with Agra pir Muslim holy man pol fortified gate pradakshina patha processional path circling a monument or sanctuary prakara enclosure or courtyard in a south Indian temple pranayama breath control, used in meditation prasad food blessed in temple sanctuaries and shared among devotees prayag auspicious confluence of two or more rivers puja worship pujari priest
pukka (literally “ripe” or “mature”) proper; done right; correctly so-called punkah type of manually operated ceiling fan, widely used during the Raj era, hand-pulled by a punkah-wala punya religious merit pardah (literally “curtain”) hiding of women from men, including wearing a veil purnima full moon pyjama men’s baggy trousers qawwal hypnotic Sufi chant qibla the Mecca-facing wall of a mosque qila fort raag or raga series of notes forming the basis of a melody Raj rule; monarchy; in particular the period of British imperial rule 1857–1947
raja a ruler or landlord
Rajput princely rulers who once dominated much of north and west India rakshasa demon rangoli geometrical pattern of rice powder laid before houses and temples rani a queen or princess of a raja
rath chariot
rawal chieftain or ruler of a minor principality rinpoche literally “precious one”, a highly revered Tibetan Buddhist lama, considered to be a reincarnation of a previous teacher rishi “seer”; philosophical sage or poet rudraksha beads used to make Shiva rosaries rumal handkerchief, particularly finely embroidered in Chamba state (HP) saadhak a person who is engaged in an all-encompassing course in spirituality to achieve realization of the self and God sadar “main”; e.g. Sadar Bazaar sadhu Hindu mendicant holy man sagar lake
sahib respectful title for gentlemen salwar kameez long shirt and baggy ankle-hugging trousers worn by Indian women samadhi final enlightenment; a site of death or burial of a saint sambar species of Asian deer samsara cyclic process of death and rebirth sangam sacred confluence of two or more rivers, or an academy sangeet music sannyasi homeless, possessionless ascetic (Hindu) sarai resting place for caravans and travellers who once followed the trade routes through Asia sari dress for Indian women: a length of cloth wound around the waist and draped over one shoulder sati immolation of a widow on her husband's funeral pyre in emulation of Shiva's wife (now banned) satyagraha Gandhi's campaign of nonviolent protest, literally "grasping truth" scheduled castes official name for "untouchables" sepoy infantry private, an Indian soldier in the British army during the colonial period seva voluntary service in a temple or community shaikh Muslim holy man or saint Shaivite Hindu recognizing Shiva as the supreme god shankha conch, symbol of Vishnu shastra treatise sheesh mahal "glass palace"; usually a room or apartment decorated with mirrors shikar hunting shikhara temple tower or spire common in north Indian architecture shloka verse from a Sanskrit text shri or sri respectful prefix; another name for Lakshmi shudra the lowest of the four varnas; servant singh or singha lion sitout veranda soma unidentified drug used in early Vedic and Zoroastrian rituals stambha pillar, or flagstaff sthal site sacred for its association with legendary events stupa large hemispherical mound, representing the Buddha's presence, and often protecting relics of the Buddha or a Buddhist saint suchalaya toilet

sulabh convenient toilet surma black eyeliner, also known as kohl sutra or sutta verse in Sanskrit and Pali texts (literally "thread") svetambara "white-clad" sect of Jainism that accepts nuns and shuns nudity swami master; title for a holy man swaraj "self-rule"; synonym for independence, coined by Gandhi tala rhythmic cycle in classical music; in sculpture a tala signifies one face-length tandoor clay oven tank square or rectangular water pool in a temple complex, for ritual bathing tanpura the instrument producing the drone that accompanies all Indian classical music tempo three-wheeled taxi terma precious manuscript (Tibetan Buddhist term) thakur usually Rajput landowner thangka Tibetan religious scroll painting Theravada "Doctrine of the Elders": the original name for early Buddhism, which persists today in Sri Lanka and Thailand thug member of a north Indian cult of professional robbers and murderers tiffin light meal tiffin carrier stainless-steel set of tins used for carrying meals tilak red dot smeared on the forehead during worship, and often used cosmetically tirtha river crossing considered sacred by Hindus, or the transition from the mundane world to heaven; a place of pilgrimage for Jains tirthankara "ford-maker" or "crossing-maker": an enlightened Jain teacher who is deified – 24 appear every 300 million years tola the weight of a silver rupee: 180 grains, or approximately 11.6g tonga two-wheeled horse-drawn cart topi cap torana arch, or freestanding gateway of two pillars linked by an elaborate arch trimurti the Hindu trinity trishula Shiva's trident tuk fortified enclosure of Jain shrines or temples tulku reincarnated teacher of Tibetan Buddhism untouchables former term for dalit, now considered pejorative urs Muslim saint's-day festival vahana the "vehicle" of a deity: the bull Nandi is Shiva's vahana vaishya member of the merchant and trading caste group varna literally "colour"; one of the four caste groupings: brahmins, kshatriyas, vaishyas and shudras vav step-well, common in Gujarat Vedas sacred texts of early Hinduism vedika railing around a stupa vihara Jain or Buddhist monastery vimana tower over temple sanctuary

waddo south Indian term meaning ward or subdivision of a district wala suffix implying occupation, e.g. rickshaw-wala wazir chief minister to the king

yagna Vedic sacrificial ritual

yaksha pre-Vedic folklore figure connected with fertility and incorporated into later Hindu iconography yakshi female yaksha yali mythical lion yantra cosmological pictogram, or instrument used in an observatory yatra pilgrimage

yatri pilgrim

yogi (female: yogini) practitioner of yoga

yoni symbol of the female sexual organ, set around the base of the lingam in temple shrines yuga aeon: the present age is the last in a cycle of four yugas, kali-yuga, a “black age” of degeneration and spiritual decline zamindar landowner zenana women’s quarters; segregated area for women in a mosque, haveli or palace < Back to Context

Small print Small print

About the author

Map symbols

A ROUGH GUIDE TO ROUGH GUIDES

Published in 1982, the first Rough Guide – to Greece – was a student scheme that became a publishing phenomenon. Mark Ellingham, a recent graduate in English from Bristol University, had been travelling in Greece the previous summer and couldn't find the right guidebook. With a small group of friends he wrote his own guide, combining a contemporary, journalistic style with a thoroughly practical approach to travellers' needs.

The immediate success of the book spawned a series that rapidly covered dozens of destinations. And, in addition to impecunious backpackers, Rough Guides soon acquired a much broader readership that relished the guides' wit and inquisitiveness as much as their enthusiastic, critical approach and value-for-money ethos. These days, Rough Guides include recommendations from budget to luxury and cover more than 120 destinations around the globe, from Amsterdam to Zanzibar, all regularly updated by our team of roaming writers.

Browse all our latest guides, read inspirational features and book your trip at roughguides.com.

Rough Guide credits

Editor: Kate Drynan

Cartography: Carte and Katie Bennett

Picture editor: Piotr Kala

Picture manager: Tom Smyth

Layout: Pradeep Thapliyal

Head of DTP and Pre-Press: Rebeka Davies

Head of Publishing: Sarah Clark

Publishing information

Twelfth edition 2024

Distribution

UK, Ireland and Europe

Apa Publications (UK) Ltd; sales@roughguides.com

United States and Canada

Ingram Publisher Services; ips@ingramcontent.com

Australia and New Zealand

Booktopia; retailer@booktopia.com.au

Worldwide

Apa Publications (UK) Ltd; sales@roughguides.com

Special Sales, Content Licensing and CoPublishing

Rough Guides can be purchased in bulk quantities at discounted prices. We can create special editions, personalised jackets and corporate imprints tailored to your needs. sales@roughguides.com.
roughguides.com

This book was produced using Typefi automated publishing software.

All rights reserved

© 2024 Apa Digital AG

License edition © Apa Publications Ltd UK

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced, stored in or introduced into a retrieval system, or transmitted in any form, or by any means (electronic, mechanical, photocopying, recording or otherwise) without the prior written permission of the copyright owner.

A catalogue record for this book is available from the British Library

The publishers and authors have done their best to ensure the accuracy and currency of all the information in The Rough Guide to India, however, they can accept no responsibility for any loss, injury, or inconvenience sustained by any traveller as a result of information or advice contained in the guide.

Help us update

We've gone to a lot of effort to ensure that this edition of The Rough Guide to India is accurate and up-to-date. However, things change – places get “discovered”, opening hours are notoriously fickle, restaurants and rooms raise prices or lower standards. If you feel we've got it wrong or left something out, we'd like to know, and if you can remember the address, the price, the hours, the phone number, so much the better.

Please send your comments with the subject line "Rough Guide India Update" to mail@uk.roughguides.com. We'll credit all contributions and send a copy of the next edition (or any other Rough Guide if you prefer) for the very best emails.

Reader's updates

Thanks to all the readers who have taken the time to write in with comments and suggestions (and apologies if we've inadvertently omitted or misspelt anyone's name):

Many thanks to Lucy Perry for her invaluable feedback from her travels in Chandigarh.

Acknowledgements

Maria Edwards would like to thank T.X. Lareau for instilling wanderlust in me at such an early age. My parents Burt and Jeanne Binder for taking me on exquisite holidays; editor Kate Drynan, as well as my fellow authors and everyone else at Rough Guides and lastly Nick Edwards who is the world's greatest travel companion.

Rashmi Narayan would like to extend her sincere gratitude to the tourism boards of Goa, Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Kerala, the Andaman and Nicobar Islands, Karnataka, Maharashtra and Tamil Nadu. Much gratitude to T Francis Sundar Singh, NK Jamsheer and Rachel Ninan for their exceptional local recommendations.

Nick Edwards would like to thank the good friends in India who have extended hospitality over the years, especially Manzoor Chachoo. Thanks to Kate Drynan for smoothly overseeing the project. Heartfelt thanks to Maria for sharing the experience, aided and abetted by our recent arrival, Bengal cat Shiva. Bom Shankar!

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Rashmi Narayan is a London-based travel and food journalist who moved from her hometown of Bengaluru at the age of 22. She has travelled extensively across India, particularly the south and continues to do so when she visits her family every year. Being an avid railway enthusiast, she still prefers travelling by train with the Konkan coast featuring in her top train journeys. Hailing from a family of forest rangers in Karnataka, Rashmi is on a constant quest to bring forward India's sustainable initiatives for the conscious traveller and work with organisations that protect the country's precious wildlife.Z

Nick Edwards After years studying Classics and Modern Greek at Oxford, Nick spent many years living in Athens and Pittsburgh and has clocked up a total of well over four years in India. Now living back in his native southeast London with spouse Maria, he is able to devote more time to his beloved Spurs, obscure psychedelic sounds, discovering pastures new and promoting Oneness.

Maria Edwards Maria Viskochil Edwards grew up mainly in Michigan but spent the majority of her adult life in Pittsburgh before permanently relocating to London in 2008. Always an avid traveller, she has written or fact checked several titles for Rough Guides, including California, Greece, Greek Islands, India, South India, Turkey and The USA.

Supriya Sahu Starting out as a Software Engineer, Supriya switched careers to become a travel writer. Spending her time between Karnataka and Delhi, she travels to find coherence in life and love. With an active craving for local Indian food, she loves meandering through the alleys, backpacking and treasures talks with the old and wise. Bylines include Tripoto, Plan the Unplanned, Women's Web and Rough Guides.

< Back to Small print

Map symbols

The symbols below are used on maps throughout the book

	International boundary		Fuel station		Escarpment
	State/union territory boundary		Hospital		Cliff
	Major road		Golf course		Waterfall
	Minor road		Statue		Hot spring
	Unpaved road		Viewpoint		Swimming pool
	4WD-only road		Lighthouse		Swamp/paddy field
	Pedestrian road		National park/wildlife sanctuary		Palm tree
	Steps		Country park		Winery
	Footpath		Trekking hut		Synagogue
	Railway		Museum		Hindu/Jain temple
	Ferry route		Monument		Mosque/Muslim monument
	River/coastline		Fortress		Buddhist temple/monastery
	Wall		Palace		Stupa
	Cable car/ropeway		Haveli		Shrine
	Airport		Bridge		Church (regional)
	Domestic airport		Ghat		Church (town)
	Helipad		Entrance gate		Building
	Metro station		Boat		Market
	Bus/taxi stand		Mountain range		Stadium
	Parking		Mountain peak		Christian cemetery
	Point of interest		Cave		Muslim cemetery
	Post office		Rocks		Park
	Tourist office		Pass		Beach
	Internet access		Excavations		Glacier

< Back to Small print